announces over the intercom that she has implanted a device into Qui-Gon’s body, via the various experimentation, which will cause the other Force-user to be killed if he leaves the compound. Qui-Gon cannot allow this to happen, so he orders Obi-Wan and Astri to leave with the antitoxin. More Jedi are on the way to save him, sent by Tahl, so Obi-Wan and Astri should just wait for them. While it pains him to do so, Obi-Wan agrees to leave. He hands Qui-Gon his lightsaber then leaves with Astri. Within the compound, Qui-Gon Jinn, now free and armed, is ready to restart the “game” with Arbor, only this time, the rules have changed.*

(The Evil Experiment)*

*NOTE: See note with The Dangerous Rescue below.

- As Obi-Wan Kenobi and Astri Oddo escape from Jenna Zan Arbor’s compound, leaving Qui-Gon Jinn loose inside, they find no trace of Cholly, Weez, or Tup. They contact Jedi Master Tahl and are told to remain on Simpla-12 and wait for Master Adi Gallia and her Padawan, Siri Tachi, to arrive. The two Jedi arrive. Astri leaves on the transport to get the cure for Didi Oddo’s illness to him at the Jedi Temple. In the meantime, Adi explains that the other Jedi prisoner being held in the compound, who will die if Qui-Gon leaves, is Noor R’aya, a Jedi Master. Cholly, Weez, and Tup reappear and help smuggle the Jedi back into the compound with a shipment of droids. The Jedi emerge and take on Arbor’s security droids, allowing Qui-Gon to emerge and join the fray. Unfortunately, Arbor escapes with Noor. Winna Di Uni helps remove a device from Qui-Gon to allow him to leave the compound, even as they receive word that Didi should eventually be okay, but Astri has taken off after Ona Nobis seeking revenge for Didi’s near death. They now need to find Arbor and Noor, but Arbor’s assistant, Nil, has been killed, leaving them with dead ends. They receive word from Sorrus, Ona Nobis’ homeworld, that Astri has been hurt and is in need of Obi-Wan. Obi-Wan and Siri leave for Sorrus. On Sorrus, they go to the hospital where Astri is supposedly held, but find that it was a trap set by Ona Nobis. They narrowly evade capture. Next, they go to Ona Nobis’ old home and find Astri, Cholly, Weez, and Tup trapped before they are all trapped by a rockslide. Nobis has outwitted them. Luckily, with some use of the force and the help of Goq Cranna, whom they met on their last trip to Sorrus, they manage to escape. They call an annoyed Qui-Gon (because they disobeyed orders to go to Nobis’ home) and agree to meet up on Belasco (Senator Uta S’orn’s homeworld), where Ona Nobis was last heading. They meet up (all of them) and discover that the world’s water supply has been poisoned by a bacteria more powerful than the regular bacterial tides on the world, probably at Arbor’s hand. They go to see Uta S’orn, who is working with ill children, but are shooed away. Uta doesn’t believe Arbor has come for her. Astri and the goofy trio are left to keep an eye on Uta as the Jedi leave and bump into Fligh, whom they had thought dead. It turns out that Fligh had faked his own death, using his fake eye as evidence that the body provided by a mortician friend was his. He had drained the corpse of blood so it would match that of some of his lowlife brethren who had crossed Arbor and Nobis. He reveals that he still has the datapad he stole from Uta S’orn and gives it to the Jedi. He had been following Astri in an attempt to look after her in Didi’s absence, but figures he can leave now that the Jedi are here. At the spaceport, they discover that Arbor and Noor are indeed on the planet, and that Noor had left at least one clue for them in the form of a V-wing toy for a child made from his Jedi robes, much as he had fashioned toys for children when he had gone into supposed seclusion on Sorl years earlier. Analyzing the datapad’s records compared to real Senate records, they discover that apparently Arbor had used her holding of Ren S’orn to force Uta to change some Senate records which allowed Arbor to release a water-borne disease on Mindemir for her own purposes. Upon another visit, Uta confirms this, but when Min K’atel, leader of Belasco, arrives, Uta manipulates him into forcing the Jedi away. In order to prove that Arbor is behind Belasco’s water illness, the Jedi break into a water treatment plant, but barely get out with samples. They race to reveal the truth to the government, but Arbor’s company has already stepped in with information about a miracle cure, true to form. They are about to be shooed away from the royal grounds again when they try to expose this, but they realize, based on children’s toys made of Jedi robes and that there are two more trays per meal than people officially in the wards, that Uta is hiding Arbor and Noor, possibly even Nobis, in the royal grounds. The Jedi reveal this to Min, who has Uta taken into custody (after royal guard droids nearly kill the Jedi) and allows the Jedi access to the grounds. The Jedi go to where Arbor, Nobis, and Noor are in seclusion and find Arbor with a datapad with the final ingredient to the wonder cure listed. She tries to use it to bargain, but Qui-Gon simply yanks it from her and captures her, as they free Noor R’aya. Obi-Wan realizes Siri is gone and races after her, finding her about to be killed by Ona Nobis. Obi-Wan leaps in and takes on Nobis, finally sending her flying off into the night, down several stories, never to be seen again, it would appear. With Arbor and Uta taken care of and Nobis presumed dead, the Jedi return to Coruscant, where Astri and Fligh work to ready a new restaurant for Didi called “Didi’s New Caf.” The crisis has finally passed.*

(The Dangerous Rescue)*

*NOTE: The Essential Reader’s Companion puts this story and the two preceding it in this year (43 BBY), while there is a gap of “months” between The Shattered Peace and The Deadly Hunter that is the first of the Jedi Apprentice tales in this year. It then completely jumps over 42 BBY to place the next few stories in the series, beginning with The Ties That Bind in 41 BBY, where I had previously placed it.

- Aboard the Thalmussen, Qui-Gon Jinn accompanies the Wookiee Attichitcuk, his son Chewbacca, Chewbacca’s friend Shoran, and other Wookiees on a colonization mission to the planet Alaris Prime. Upon arrival, they soon discover that despite their own successes and survival of a gundark attack, they are not alone. The Trade Federation has set up a colony on the planet as well. Then they run afoul of the Trade Federation, Attichitcuk (“Itchy”) is attacked and wounded, prompting Chewie to save him. Despite the Trade Federation’s activities, the Wookiee colony grows, eventually splitting into two colonies (one under Shoran). When Shoran discovers a Jedi Holocron near his colony, Qui-Gon has Obi-Wan Kenobi come ferry it to the Jedi Temple, even as the Jedi agree to set up a new Jedi training facility on Alaris Prime. With two Wookiee colonies and a new Jedi settlement beginning, the Trade Federation are no match for their combined might when they start trouble again. Alaris Prime is purged of Trade Federation influence. (To be continued below . . . )

(Galactic Battlegrounds)

Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)

Prelude to Rebellion [continued] [flashback] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad)

Prelude to Rebellion, Part III [continued] [flashback] (comic: Jan Strnad)

Children of the Force (SWT13 short story: Jason Hall)

Children of the Force (SWT13 short story: Jason Hall)

Jedi Apprentice [continued] (youth novel series: Dave Wolverton & Jude Watson)

The Deadly Hunter (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 – 16

The Evil Experiment (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 – 19

The Dangerous Rescue (youth novel: Jude Watson)*

Chapters 1 – 20*

Chapter 29*

*NOTE: This is my own little bit of humor at Scholastic’s expense. The chapters in The Dangerous Rescue were misnumbered. They jumped from Chapter 20 to Chapter 29 instead of 21. Rest assured, only 21 chapters exist.

Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Attichitcuk Campaign

42 BBY – 4 ABY

The Story of Darth Vader (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)

The Story of Darth Vader (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)

The Story of Darth Vader*

*NOTE: This is an overview section of this biographical children’s book. Thus, it covers from his birth through his death.

42 BBY – 31.9 ABY

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)

Young Anakin Skywalker*

*NOTE: This is an overview of Anakin’s childhood prior to TPM.

42 BBY

- TCW DATE: Arrad, son of Rikkard, is born on Lanteeb.*
  (conjecture based on Siege)*

  *NOTE: He is approximately Anakin’s age.

- Anakin Skywalker is born on 23rd day of the fourth month of this year. It is later believed that Anakin’s mother was impregnated through the manipulation of the midichlorians by the Sith to create life, but this is untrue. Instead, the Force acted on its own through the midichlorians to create Anakin in response to Sith manipulations into using the Force to create and extend life, as a sort of cosmic balancing act. (It is around this time that Darth Plagueis was able to control midichlorians and the Force to kill and resurrect Darth Venamis repeatedly, though whether this is the impetus for Anakin’s conception or an event at the same time of Anakin’s birth is unknown. It could very well be that the Force anticipated the Sith’s discovery and conceived Anakin prior to this event so that he would be born around the same time.)*
  (conjecture based on The Followers, Vader: The Ultimate Guide, and Darth Plagueis)*

  *NOTE: We’ve known for a while, thanks to The Followers and Attack of the Clones, that Anakin must have been born earlier than Month 5, Day 16 of his birth year, and that The Phantom Menace must have taken place before that birthday. Now, thanks to new information from the AOTC materials, we can extrapolate that Anakin, who is said to be 9 TPM, yet 20 in AOTC, must be born very soon after TPM. Given that the novelization of AOTC features Shmi celebrating his birthday approximately one month before Anakin comes looking for her and finds her kidnapped, his birthdate was narrowed down even more. The confirmation for the dates of TPM by Leland Chee (then later in the Essential Atlas), has given Lucasfilm the ability to pin down Anakin’s actual birthdate. (His birthday is basically the day after TPM.) The date here for the shift in the Force is a little tricky, given that it must be happening when Anakin is born, rather than conceived.

- Micael Torval is born on Tanaab.
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)*

  *NOTE: He is 42 in Mask of the Pirate Queen.

- Two years after losing his True Mandalorians on Galidraan to the Jedi, Jango Fett is a slave. The governor of Galidraan sold him into slavery after he was turned over by the Jedi, and his armor was kept by the governor. When pirates attack the slave ship, Jango escapes and makes his way to Galidraan. He breaks into the governor’s home, reclaiming his armor, which the governor has restored and refitted into a silver and blue version of its former self. The governor tells Jango where to find Tor Vizsla and the Death Watch. Jango chases Vizsla down over Corellia, ramming his way through the cockpit with his jetpack. The two struggle, but the ship is too heavily damaged from Jango’s first attack. The two end up grappling in an escape pod, which crashes on Corellia. When both recover, the do battle again. Vizsla nearly bests Jango, knocking his helmet away and poisoning him, but Jango uses his gauntlet’s blade to slash Vizsla, allowing the scent of blood to draw a dire-cat near to pounce on Vizsla. Tor Vizsla is eaten. Jango awakens to discover children looking over him. He explains that he was “tainted meat” to the animals, so he was left alive. He recovers his helmet and goes looking for a job . . . (To be continued below . . . )

  (Jango Fett: Open Seasons)

- Sometime during Jango Fett’s career as a bounty hunter, while Montross remains active in the galaxy, Cradossk is hunting a Rodian needed in court, when the hunt nearly goes awry. He is in his own ship, chasing the Rodian’s skyhopper on Aridus, when Cradossk’s ship has a malfunction. Out of seemingly nowhere, Jaster’s Legacy, flown by Jango Fett, swoops in to disable the Rodian’s ship. Rather than taking the Rodian and the bounty, which would earn Bounty Hunters Guild ire since Jango is not a member, Jango makes no move to capture the prey. Instead, he lets Cradossk continue on his own hunt, though Jango does refuse to join the Guild. Little does Cradossk realize that this was not a matter of honor, per se, but a matter of Jango having been hired to delay the Rodian’s appearance in court.*
  (conjecture based on Making a Killing)*

  *NOTE: We have no indication of when this takes place, aside from Jango being a bounty hunter and Cradossk being head of the Bounty Hunters Guild.

- Seek is born, most likely on Tatooine.
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

501

(conjecture based on reports of the shooting script to The Phantom Menace)

- TCW DATE: Jaklin and her lover, a Damotite miner, move to the village of Torbel on Lanteeb. When he eventually dies, she stays in Torbel as a teacher.
  (conjecture based on Siege)

- Floria is born on Thracior.
  (conjecture based on The Trail of the Jedi)

- Olzal Erne is born.
  (conjecture based on Death Star)

- Reymet Autem is born to Sagoro Autem and his mate.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

- Drextar Pym is born on Exarga.
  (conjecture based on A Taste of Adventure: Countdown to Disaster)

- The planet Maken Te is besieged by a civil war. A Republic peace-keeping force is dispatched to quell the violence and restore the planet's society.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I—The Phantom Menace novelization via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Depa Billaba becomes a Chalactan adept, which allows her to have the Greater Mark of Illumination affixed to her skull.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)

- Tork Winger joins the Old Republic Army. His assignments take him away from Garos IV.*
  (conjecture based on Mission to Zila)

*NOTE: This is about 50 years prior to Mission to Zila, which is in late 8 ABY.*

- Wilhuff Tarkin graduates from the Academy. He and his younger brother, Gideon Tarkin, then join the Republic Outland Regions Security Force.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters and Peter Cushing's age during A New Hope)

- Quintus Farel and his parents die on Samaria in a speeder accident. Quintus' identity will be used twenty-three years later as an alias to help hide Astri Oddo and her son, Lune, from Lune's father, Bog Divinian.
  (conjecture based on A Tangled Web)

- Jedi Master Omo Bouri dies. His former Padawan, Saesee Tiin devotes himself fanatically to the Jedi, hoping to gain the skills necessary to contact Omo on the spirit plane. This dedication causes him to refuse to take a Padawan himself.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

- Ewane is re-elected as Supreme Governor of New Apalonon, then murdered. He is succeeded by Roan, a former member of the Civilized class. Some believe he was behind the assassination, though, and the world is again thrown into turmoil.
  (conjecture based on The Ties That Bind)

- Another conflict between the Mon Calamari and the Quarren on Mon Calamari brings about the Quarren War. Among its heroes is Commander Merai, a Mon Calamari who will eventually join Count Dooku's Separatists during the Clone Wars.
  (conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)

- The Theed Palace Space Vessel Engineering Corps of Naboo, in cooperation with the Nubian Design Collective, complete designs for a Nuboo Royal Starship (a J-Type 327 Nubian), which will take four years to construct.
  (conjecture based on The Naboo Royal Starship of Queen Amidala)

- Rufus Trammel leaves Blathar III. After he does, a non-native virus wipes out many species, except for specimens Rufus has with him. He sells some back to the government, making about 3,000,000 credits. He then comes to Dorumaa in his search for wildlife. It is said he even contacts Velin Wir, but the Metatheran Cartel is silent on the matter.
  (conjecture based on Rufus Trammel profile on www.wizards.com)

- Two decades before the Clone Wars, Kuat Drive Yards produces the Mandator, the first warship to be given the designation of “Dreadnought” under the Anaxes War College naming system. Under the Anaxes War College Starship Classification System, ships fall into the categories of (from smallest to largest): corvettes; frigates; cruisers; heavy cruisers; Star Destroyers; battlecruisers; and dreadnaughts. (Starfighters get their own classification system.)
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare and Age of Rebellion: Core Rulebook)

- SoroSuub releases the B’zabuu-class transport.
(conjecture based on Star Wars: Gamer #1 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Lant Mining Corporation is founded by Darman Lant.
(conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, abridged)

- The planet Ansion makes two alliances that will make it a pivotal part of the Commerce Guild’s secession plot two decades from now. The first is a treaty with the Keitumites, known as the Keitumite Mutual Military Treaty. The second is with the Malarians, known as the Malarian Alliance.
(conjecture based on The Approaching Storm via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- On Air Avab on Genarius, a group known as the Cell rises up against Nirama, but is quickly wiped out.
(conjecture based on wizards.com via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Chistor becomes Governor of Almas.
(conjecture based on wizards.com via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- The Shorak refurbish and expand one of their outposts on Giaca into Station 3Z3, resparking struggle with other powers over the planet.*
(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn. This is about 20 years before the Clone Wars.

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)
Jango Fett: Open Seasons [continued] (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Open Seasons, Part III [flashback] (comic: Haden Blackman)

41 BBY

- Kister Banai is born to Rakir Banai and his wife.
(conjecture based on Episode I: Insider's Guide and The Ghostling Children)

- Gillam Tarturi is born to Berm Tarturi and his wife.
(conjecture based on The School of Fear)

- Sarchen Snyle is born.
(conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, abridged)

- Darish Vol, future Grand Lord, is born on Keeefsh.*
(conjecture based on Ascension)*

*NOTE: He is over 80 in Ascension, which I have rounded to 85.

- Bidor Ferrouz is born.*
(conjecture based on Choices of One)*

*NOTE: He is “barely into his forties,” so I have interpreted that as approximately 41 years old.

- Ordith Huarr is born on Lorr’d.
(conjecture based on Betrayal)

- Dashé Borreno is born on Naboo.
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)

- Maximilian Veers is born.
(conjecture based on Julian Glover’s age via TimeTales, abridged)

- Jorj Car’das begins smuggling.*
(conjecture based on Vision of the Future)*

*NOTE: This event seems dubious in light of Outbound Flight locking his birth date at a mere nine years ago. However, it could be that he found himself aboard a smuggling vessel well before signing on with Dubrak Qennto in the months before Outbound Flight.

- Talesan “Taly” Fry creates a voice-activated security and tracking system in his family home at the age of eight.
(conjecture based on Secrets of the Jedi)

- On Centax 2, a satellite of Coruscant, the Jedi Order sets up a controversial Jedi starfighter corps program, headed by Jedi Knight Clea Rhara. Starfighters are donated to the program by the Senate, and many potential Padawans begin delaying their upper-level training for the possibility that they could be recruited to fly Jedi starfighter missions.

(conjecture based on Deceptions)

- Sheeka Tull and Jango Fett meet in the Meridian sector and have a love affair. At this time, Jango is 25 and Sheeka is 18. After about a year, the two part ways, much to Sheeka’s longtime regret.

(conjecture based on The Cestus Deception)

- Aurra Sing finds herself in the hands of the Sennex pirates and sold to Walla the Hutt. She tells Walla that the Dark Woman sold her to the pirates, but it remains to be seen if this is true. Walla then takes Aurra to Anis, leader of the Anzati, and asks to have Aurra trained in the ways of the Anzati assassins, in order to be “the deadliest dancing girl on Tatooine.” Anis is wary, but owes Walla, so Aurra’s training begins under Torgo Tahn. Torgo takes an unrequited liking to Aurra during her training. (To be continued below . . . )

(Aurra’s Song)

- AutoTerrain, a model of treaded locomotion system is developed for droids.

(conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #6 via TimeTales, verbatim)

- On Orsis, Maul (age 13) and fellow student (and partner in flirtation) Kilindi Matakot win another training exercise against Rodian students Hubnul and Fretch. After it ends, both Kilindi and Maul are taken to Blackguard Castle, which Darth Sidious has obtained under a false identity to use for his own training of Maul outside of Trezza’s facility. There, Trezza and Sidious inform them that their students have advanced so far that they need a new trainer. The new trainer that they have acquired (after Sidious makes a substantial “donation” and apparently against the new trainer’s will) is Mandalorian Death Watch member Meltch Krakko. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Wrath of Darth Maul)

- On Orsis, at the training facility run by Trezza, Mandalorian Death Watch member Meltch Krakko makes his rivalry with Maul personal, rather than simply professional. (Presumably, this is due to him being essentially forced to return to train at Orsis, rather than doing so of his own volition.) He will continue to take this approach for the next two years.

(conjecture based on Restraint)

- Vox Chun is released from prison (having his way bought out by the newest incarnation of Offworld). He makes plans to head for Coruscant to discover the truth behind his son Bruck’s death.

(conjecture based on Deceptions)

- Atour Riten begins working for the Library Galactica.

(conjecture based on Death Star)

- Jedi Master Tahl makes her intentions clear that she will not take a Padawan Learner (crushing the hopes of young Bant Eiren). Having made her decision, she takes a mission to Centax 2, where Clee Rhara’s Jedi starfighter corps operation is having sabotage problems.

(conjecture based on Deceptions)

- On Coruscant, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Qui-Gon Jinn are called before the Jedi Council. They are told to expect Vox Chun, the father of Bruck Chun, to arrive soon. He has been released from prison and wants details on Bruck’s death, which happened during the final days of the Temple battle with Xanatos. They meet Vox when he arrives, and they are surprised to also meet Bruck’s younger brother, Kad Chun. Both Chuns blame the Jedi for Bruck’s death. Taking the Chuns and the man who will be revealed as a prosecutor, Sano Sauro, to the place where Bruck died, they explain what happened to Vox, who is unwilling to listen to very much. They get just enough information for Vox, who then decides it is time to leave. To get Obi-Wan’s mind off of the situation, Qui-Gon takes him on a side mission to Centax 2, where Jedi Master Tahl has gone to investigate sabotage in Clee Rhara’s Jedi starfighter corps project. Qui-Gon wants to talk to Tahl about her refusal to take a Padawan and how it is effecting Bant Eiren, but Tahl makes the topic off-limits. Before they can investigate much, Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan are called back to Coruscant. Vox has used his Senate influence to call a hearing regarding Bruck’s death. Qui-Gon testifies truthfully, followed by Bant, who has to admit that she does not know for certain that she was near death when held underwater, but only that she felt through the Force that she was dying, which Sano believes is dubious. Unable to do anything more for Obi-Wan, who must testify very soon, Qui-Gon heads back to Centax 2 to help Tahl and save Jedi pilots’ lives. While on Centax 2, he and Tahl meet the repair workers Haly Dura and Tarrence Chenati. Tahl catches Tarrence in a lie about not having worked on a part that caused the latest accident, and Tahl runs a background check on him, where she discovers that Tarrence Chenati is the name of a Senate operative (a “no-name”) who died twenty years earlier. Someone has apparently taken that identity and used it to infiltrate this fake Tarrence into the project. They confront “Tarrence,” but he escapes from them. At least now, though, the project is safe from further sabotage. After the battle, Tahl’s droid TooJay enters. The memory of how Xanatos had put a bug in TooJay sparks something in Qui-Gon, and he races back to Coruscant. On Coruscant, Obi-Wan, having just seen Bant trying to test her underwater breathing limits (at the risk of her life) to help him, finally testifies. His testimony is twisted and prodded, but Qui-Gon arrives and interrupts. He retrieves Bruck’s lightsaber. Xanatos was never one to trust anyone, even those who worked for him, and Qui-Gon knows this. He retrieves a small recorder from the hilt of the lightsaber, and when it is played back, Bruck’s own words from the final encounter with Obi-Wan proves that Obi-Wan was not at fault. The hearing is dismissed, but after everyone leaves, Kad Chun attacks Obi-Wan. Obi-Wan refuses to hurt him, but Kad also refuses to believe that Obi-Wan is anything but a murderer. His words sting, and for twelve years to come, Obi-Wan will wonder to himself if he really might be nothing more than a murderer . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Deceptions)*

*NOTE: In the latter half of Deceptions, Anakin has been at the Temple for 3 years, placing it at mid-29 BBY. The second half takes place 12 years after the first half, placing this part of the story here, at mid-41 BBY. Bant says she was a year younger when the events of The Day of Reckoning took place, which places that story and everything between then and now at 42 BBY. That is utter bunk, as it’s simply not feasible, given that Legacy of the Jedi puts itself just after The Day of Reckoning at 44 BBY (or even worse, 45 BBY if we don’t assume we can date all those stories back from 21 BBY rather than 22 BBY). So, to make this all make even the most remote sense, I’ve put all the obviously continuous stories through The Day of Reckoning (including the short story Mythology) in that same year. The Fight for Truth and The Shattered Peace, which take place before a full of months before The Deadly Hunter, were originally placed in the year 43 BBY, but The Essential Reader’s Companion officially put them into 44 BBY, just months later than the previous tales. The Deadly Hunter, The Evil Experiment, and The Dangerous Rescue, then all take place in 43 BBY (originally 42 BBY by my calculations, but The Essential Reader’s Companion pinned down the 43 BBY date), allowing this story to happen a while later, in 41 BBY, as the tale suggests. Don’t even try to make sense of any age references in the tales, as Watson’s continuity here as far as ages is about as messed up as the Solo twin ages in the middle of the New Jedi Order series. It’s best not to think about it, or your ears will start bleeding. For my part, I am now trying to stick with the dates in The Essential Reader’s Companion, which do agree on my dating for the stories in 41 BBY, but it basically leaves 42 BBY devoid of any Jedi Apprentice stories, which just shuffles a few books back in time a tad – no major issues there. However, The Essential Reader’s Companion does perpetuate the incorrect notion that Deception’s first segment (here) is in 44 BBY, when obviously cannot be, due to the novel’s stated twelve year time jump to reach a point when Anakin has been at the Jedi Temple for three years.

- A short while after the saboteur within the Jedi starfighter corps project is found, the Jedi Council determines that the project should be shut down, to avoid any potential political and social dilemmas that might arise from a Jedi starfighter corps. Shortly thereafter, though, Garen Muln, one of Clee Rhara’s dedicated followers, becomes her Padawan Learner. (conjecture based on Deceptions)

- Jedi Knights aboard the Freedom’s Messenger resolve the Vaykaaris Uprising. (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: Endgame via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Jedi Master Tahl takes Bant Eiren as her Padawan Learner. (conjecture based on The Ties That Bind)

- Qui-Gon Jinn and Tahl experience tension as he tries to advise her about how to deal with her Padawan, Bant, and she feels crowded by his attention. They are slowly starting to deal with how they feel for each other, but neither will acknowledge it just yet. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Death of Hope)

- While on an endurance test with Obi-Wan Kenobi on Ragoon-6, where he and Tahl had once trained together, Qui-Gon Jinn receives a vision of Tahl in danger. They rush back to Coruscant, where Qui-Gon bursts in on a Jedi Council meeting, finding Tahl requesting permission to return to New Apsolon to rescue Alani and Eritha, the daughters of the assassinated Supreme Governor Ewane, with whom she’d formed a bond six years earlier. Based on his earlier mission with Tahl and his vision, Qui-Gon requests that he be sent with her, but the Jedi Council refuses his request, and Tahl does not take the intrusion kindly. When three weeks pass with no word from Tahl, Qui-Gon-defies the Council and heads for New Apsolon, as does Obi-Wan, who defies Qui-Gon to go with him. Upon arrival, they check in with Supreme Governor Roan’s security head, Balog, who tells them that the twins are in no danger, but have been living with Roan like a foster father. The Jedi go to Roan’s and talk to the girls, who say they have no idea that Tahl is there and that they did not send for her. The Jedi head for the Absolute Museum to learn a bit more and meet Irini, a Worker, who makes mention of sensory deprivation containment devices once used by the Absolutes. Later, they are tracked by an illegal probe droid with a Worker seal, so they follow Irini from the museum later and end up listening in on a secret Worker meeting, where they learn that the Absolutes have reformed and are growing in power. Just then, Absolutes bust up the meeting, taking the Jedi in with the others. While blindfolded in custody, Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan hear Tahl giving orders among the Absolutes. When she finally manages to allow them to go free, they learn that Tahl was contacted by the twins, who are suspicious of Roan in their father’s murder, but are being kept in the house for their safety. Tahl had infiltrated the Absolutes to figure out what is happening. She says she will take a week to find out more through her position, while the other two Jedi look into Ewane’s death. They start with Manex, Roan’s brother, and hear that Roan is apparently a truly devoted foster father and had been Ewane’s best friend. Unsure what to make of conflicting tales of Roan, they head off to meet Roan himself, but before they can, they witness the twins being kidnapped in sensory deprivation containers. They tell Balog what happened and are soon taken to see Roan, who receives a call from the kidnappers. He is to get the girls, but after doing so, resign as Supreme Governor, saying it is the will of the people. If he refuses or reneges on his part of the bargain, they all die. Roan agrees. Soon, Tahl’s cover is broken. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan rescue her and bring her back to Roan’s, but in the interim, Roan has left to meet the kidnappers and has been returned, dead. Manex arrives, grieving, and is soon followed by the twins, who have been released now that their use as bait is over. They regret their earlier suspicions and grieve as well. Soon, Balog tells them that there is to be a peace meeting of one Worker, one Civilized, and one neutral Jedi. Irini is to represent the Workers, while Balog represents the Civilized. Tahl agrees to go as the Jedi, but before she can leave, Qui-Gon comes to a realization of why he was so worried for her. He takes her aside into another room and professes his love for her. She responds in kind, and they pledge themselves to each other. Shortly thereafter, Tahl leaves for the meeting. Soon, Irini arrives at Roan’s to talk to the Jedi. She delivers the message that the Workers had nothing to do with the kidnapping or Roan’s murder, and they are hoping against hope that peace can be maintained. She also confesses that the Workers have had a person working inside Roan’s to keep an eye on the girls and keep them safe. When asked if she’s worried about being late for the meeting, she has no idea what they mean. They realize that Balog is the Worker planet, which means he was a spy working against Roan. The meeting was a ruse. They rush to the “meeting place,” only to find Tahl’s lightsaber in a stash with weapons of other “dignitaries.” Jedi Master Tahl is gone . . .

(The Ties That Bind)

- With the kidnapping of Jedi Master Tahl by Balog, who is in league with the Absolutes of New Apsolon, Qui-Gon Jinn, who has just professed his love for Tahl, is devastated. He and Obi-Wan Kenobi formulate a plan to save Tahl. They decide they need to get an illegal probe droid to track Balog. Alani, one of the twins Tahl had been protecting, the daughters of the assassinated ruler (Ewane) and foster daughters of the most recent assassinated ruler (Roan), suggests they meet with Irini at the Absolute Museum to find Lenz. The Workers know that the Absolutes often use a paralyzing drug to keep prisoners under control, and enough of the drug can kill. They also suspect that Balog might be after a list of Absolute collaborators among the Workers that he might believe is in Tahl’s possession. They proceed to Mota, who provides them with the droid and Balog’s stats so it can track him.
With this motive in mind, the Jedi purchase a swoop and a speeder from Lenz and take off outside the capital to find Balog. As they pursue Balog, they are soon attacked by Balog's own droid assault, which they survive, but after which they are slowed by having to repair the swoop. They continue, only to discover they are being followed. When they try to catch the pursuer, it turns out to be Eritha, the other twin, who believes Alani is backing Balog. She is trying to manipulate her way into being appointed ruler by the United Legislature. She intends to restore the old Absolute government and trample the Workers. She's been plotting all along, which explains her confidence when captured, but means that she actually plotted the death of her own foster father, which Eritha finds hurtful to believe. Eritha asks to go with them. Next, they come under attack by Workers thinking they are Absolutes. The probe droid is destroyed, and Obi-Wan is injured. They go to the Worker settlement to have him tended to. The Workers—Bini, Kevta, and Yanci—tell them that the Absolutes have been raiding them for their weapons and explosives recently. As soon as Obi-Wan is well enough to travel, the trio sets out again, but as they get within sight of their objective of finding Balog, Yanci arrives to tell them that the Absolutes have attacked again. Qui-Gon refuses to help and goes after Balog, but after only a moment, it seems, he returns to the others to go back and help the Workers. He's sensed how his own heart and mind are being clouded by his love for Tahl. They return to a destroyed settlement. The Absolutes have wiped it out, killing Kevta, Bini, and countless others. When they spot footprints from the Absolutes, Yanci recognizes the coloration and realizes where the Absolutes are. The trio races for the quarries, where they sneak into the Absolutes' base, which is hidden under the water save for a cave entrance that rises to accept transports. Inside, they find a huge stockpile of weapons, enough for the Absolutes to take control of New Apsolon by force, and sense Tahl's presence. Eritha is captured by Absolutes. Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon use some explosives for diversions to get further into the base and soon see Balog. Balog runs into the arms area and then heads for where he's keeping Tahl. Qui-Gon barely makes it through a closing door into the room. Tahl is in a sensory deprivation unit, drugged up with the toxin, and Balog has an injector on remote to give her a final fatal dose. When Obi-Wan barges in, both he and Qui-Gon stand still until Qui-Gon lashes out with lightning speed to take out the transmitter. Balog then escapes by watercraft while the Jedi save Tahl, who lies in Qui-Gon's arms, nearly limp, in the same situation and saying the same phrase as she has in Qui-Gon's visions of her doom. Obi-Wan breaks Eritha out of confinement, even as Balog's self-destruct scheme using the arms storage tanks begins to take effect. They make their way out through the water route Balog took (only swimming), and upon exiting, Qui-Gon races Tahl to the Supreme Governor's residence while Eritha and Obi-Wan (left with Tahl's lightsaber for the moment) follow as they are able. As they are en route, Tahl learns of Alani's betrayal and suggests that perhaps the message runner named Oleg has the real informant list, since he was so paranoid about it when she was undercover. By the time Obi-Wan and Eritha arrive at the residence, Tahl has been taken to Roan's brother Manex's doctor for care. Qui-Gon enters to see Tahl, who does not look good. He tries to use the Force to help her heal, but with his forehead to hers, she asks that this be her final memory, and she passes away from the drugs. From outside, Obi-Wan hears Qui-Gon's anguished cry. He enters, finally realizing the true depth of his Master's feelings for Tahl. Balog, Alani, and the Absolutes must still be stopped. The mission remains, but for Qui-Gon, there is no help for him now, all that remains for him, he tells Obi-Wan, is revenge . . .

(The Death of Hope)

- On New Apsolon, Manex sets up a memorial light for Tahl and offers Qui-Gon Jinn a large house in which to mourn. Obi-Wan Kenobi contacts the Jedi Council about Tahl's death. The Council will send two Jedi to meet them on New Apsolon.

(conjecture based on The Call to Vengeance)

- On New Apsolon, Qui-Gon Jinn mourns for Tahl in Manex's home. Qui-Gon has sent probe droids, bought from Mota, to find Balog, whom he holds responsible for Tahl's death. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan Kenobi can only wait, while his Master falls further into anger and depression. Bant Eiren, Tahl's Padawan, arrives with Jedi Council member Mace Windu to aid in the search for Tahl's killer and to continue the mission to bring peace to the planet. Bant is angry with Obi-Wan for not calling her when Tahl was missing. Qui-Gon wants revenge. As the tension mounts, Manex enters, telling them that he has been made Acting Supreme Governor until elections in the United Legislature. A holotape of Tahl while undercover acting as an Absolute has turned some public support from Manex and the Jedi, but not enough to hinder them yet. The Jedi will remain to oversee elections when the time comes. Yanci soon arrives. She has heard that Balog is after a Worker named Oleg (whom the Jedi believe has a list of Workers who were Absolute informers, which was what Balog was trying to get from Tahl, though she didn’t have it). She presumes the Jedi will want to find him as well, so they can find Balog through him, and she informs them of a form of hibernation sickness that Oleg suffers from, which will allow them to track him via clinics in the area. Qui-Gon takes off alone, using this lead to bring him into contact with Oleg at a cantina. Oleg seems willing to sell the info, and thinks Qui-Gon is his buyer. Oleg then leaves, but Qui-Gon follows, also noticing Balog nearby. Qui-Gon heads after Balog instead. He loses Balog, but soon finds Oleg in a warehouse, dead. The other Jedi follow the same lead, but arrive only after Qui-Gon has left the scene. They wonder if Qui-Gon perhaps killed Oleg in his anger. Qui-Gon, though, has gone to see Irini, who was at the scene as well. She was trying to get the list from Oleg, but he didn’t have it with him. On her suggestion that the list may be being used to interfere with the United Legislature, Qui-Gon heads there. At the United Legislature, the other Jedi later come upon Legislator Pleni, who has been killed. The law officers tell them that she was killed by a probe droid owned by Qui-Gon. Presumably, it was Pleni who ended up with the list, which would explain Pleni’s death. The next day, Qui-Gon overhears that he is wanted, then bumps into Eritha, daughter of former ruler Ewane and sister of Alani, whom he believes to be Balog’s co-conspirator. Eritha hugas him, then asks him to wait for her, but he is chased away by security officers. The other Jedi soon learn of this from Manex, who is beginning to consider running for Supreme Governor himself against Alani. Manex has also started to spread a rumor that he has the list, so that they can draw Balog out into the open. Qui-Gon meets them later, while they are protecting Manex, but he disappears into the night again. He then meets with Alani again, who says she can show him where Balog is hiding. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan rethinks their situation and begins to put two and two together and to suspect that Eritha is in league with Alani, Balog, and the Absolutes. He speaks with Manex about the girls and discovers that his suspicions are shared. Obi-Wan races off to speak with Alani, who is very bold and simply reveals her involvement in the entire plot, that luring Tahl there to help them as a mere tool, and so forth. This confirmed (like in a bad James Bond film), Obi-Wan realizes that Qui-Gon may be being led into a trap and catches up to Qui-Gon and Eritha just as she is about to turn him over to the security forces. Master and Padawan escape. They head to Mota’s to find out who reprogrammed Qui-Gon’s probe droids to go after Oleg and Pleni instead of Balog. Mota denies any involvement, but he learned that someone essentially hacked into them. Qui-Gon traces the source—Irini and Lenz. They confront them about it. Irini is suffering from a blaster bolt and won’t go get bacta treatment. It turns out that they were the ones who had the probe droid kill Pleni so they could take the list from Pleni, but then Balog burst in and shot Irini, stealing the list. Lenz’s name is on the list as an informer, hence their actions. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan race for the residence, where they can go through a secret tunnel to the Absolute Museum, where they realize Balog is hiding. They call Mace and Bant, but Qui-Gon won’t wait for them. On their way in, they are confronted by Eritha, who tells Qui-Gon it was his fault that Tahl had to die. Before he can strike her down, Obi-Wan disarms her, and the two Jedi race through the museum. They battle droids on their way, but finally find Balog with the list in the tech room. Qui-Gon nearly kills him in revenge, but hearing his name causes him to stop. The day is won. In the aftermath of these events, elections are put off for a week, and Manex seems to be the leading contender. Alani, Balog, Eritha, and other Absolutes are in custody, while Irini recovers in a med center. The list has been made public, but it is seen as a step toward healing the planet, and the Jedi wish them all the best. Obi-Wan and Bant are reconciled. Qui-Gon thanks Obi-Wan for saying his name and stopping him from killing Balog, but Obi-Wan says it wasn’t him. It was actually Tahl’s voice through the Force. Qui-Gon Jinn has lost the woman he loves, and he will never be the same, but perhaps someday he will find a purpose grander than himself to once again place his faith into. The Jedi leave New Apsolon for Coruscant, Tahl’s final journey home.
(The Call to Vengeance)
Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Aurra’s Song [flashback] (DHPA00 short story: Dean Motter)
Aurra’s Song [flashback] (DHPA00 short story: Dean Motter)
Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapter 9
Jedi Apprentice: Special Edition (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
Deceptions (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 10
Jedi Apprentice [continued] (youth novel series: Dave Wolverton & Jude Watson)
The Death of Hope [flashback] [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapter 7 [flashback]
The Ties That Bind (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 7
The Death of Hope [flashback] [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapter 2 [flashback]
The Ties That Bind [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 8 – 19
The Death of Hope [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapter 1
Chapter 2 [continued]
Chapters 3 – 6
Chapter 7 [continued]
Chapters 8 – 9
Chapter 10 [continued]
Chapter 11 [continued]
Chapters 12 – 16
Chapter 17 [continued]
Chapter 18
Chapter 19 [continued]
Chapter 20
The Call to Vengeance (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 18

40 – 38 BBY
• Jorus C’Baoth helps oppose a Dark Jedi insurrection in on Bpfassh. This will come to be confused with a later battle at Bpfassh during which a Dark Jedi escapes to Dagobah, during the Clone Wars. (Exact date according to Old Senate Library entry: 7/77 to 1/74 P.E.)*
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising)*
*NOTE: Please bear in mind that the exact date quoted here (7/77 – 1/74 P.E.) is Zahn’s erroneous dating based on when he believed the Clone Wars took place. It is included here for the sake of cross-referencing for those curious. See the “On P.E. Dating” notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology), and has thus been translated into a corrected date. The extended explanation about the “confusion” with this and the Clone Wars event is meant to allow us to both believe the Clone Wars backstory about the Dark Jedi, Yoda, and Car’das, while still being able to stay true to the dates given for C’Baoth’s life history.

40 BBY
• Kabe is born.
  (conjecture based on Play it Again Figrin D’an: The Tale of Muftak and Kabe)
• Princess Arawynne is born on Datar.
  (conjecture based on The Ghostling Children)
• Fissona is born on Cularin.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
• Darra Thel-Tanis is born.*
NOTE: This assumes that she is the traditional 13 when she becomes a Padawan.

- Tru Veld is born.
  (conjecture based on The Way of the Apprentice)

NOTE: This assumes that he is the traditional 13 when he becomes a Padawan.

- Tord Gamb is born on Port Evokk.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Evram Darkmere is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)

- Jax Pavan is born to Lorn and Siena Pavan.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Hunter)

- Veeka Gault and Varan Gault, twins, are born to Orrin Gault and Liselle Gault.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)

- Dozer Creed is born.
  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)

*NOTE: Winter is “barely half his age” in Scoundrels, when Winter is around 19 or so (depending on which conflicting age you go with in her various appearances). If we round that up to 20 and double it, we get this approximate date for Dozer’s birth.*

- Diskio Khzrry is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)

- Devon Fuller is born on Arkanis.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 9: Fragments from the Rim)

- Arajen Turman is born.
  (conjecture based on Secrets of Tatooine)

*NOTE: This assumes that mid-sixties can be said as 65-years-old and that we are dating back from Vector Prime.

- Boba Fett is rumored to have been born.
  (conjecture based on early The Empire Strikes Back cards)

*NOTE: This is, of course, only a rumor. His real birth is at 32 BBY, based on information in Attack of the Clones.

- Alara Fax is born on Kerig-En.
  (conjecture based on Adversaries)

*NOTE: This assumes that the main bulk of Bill Slavicsek’s Adversaries: Characters for the Star Wars New Republic Campaign is set during 4 ABY, during “the height of the Galactic Civil War.”

- Tyanna Tymb is born on Sullust.
  (conjecture based on Adversaries)

*NOTE: This assumes that the main bulk of Bill Slavicsek’s Adversaries: Characters for the Star Wars New Republic Campaign is set during 4 ABY, during “the height of the Galactic Civil War.”

- A four-member team from the Interstellar Survey Corps touches down on a previously unknown planet in the Outer Rim. After they discover several nearby temples, six dark side wraiths appear and stone them before they have the chance to report to the Republic their location.
  (conjecture based on Shadow of the Dark Side)

- Finis Valorum becomes Supreme Chancellor of the Republic.
  (conjecture based on Cloak of Deception)

*NOTE: Using Cloak of Deception, The New Essential Guide to Characters, and other sources, it seems that Finis Valorum became Chancellor this year. However, “Valorum” is the name of the Supreme Chancellor in The Only Witness, which takes place during the latter part of the previous year. I would assume this was a different Valorum in his family line, but before Finis Valorum was Kalpana. I am leaving the entry here, and leaving The Only Witness where it stands. See the explanation above with that summary.*

- Finis Valorum signs an environmental law making the rikknits of New Plympto an endangered species, greatly harming that world’s intoxicant industry. This causes a major economic depression on the planet, for which the Nosaurians blame the Republic.
  (conjecture based on The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Nosaurians)

- Ebareebaveebedee (AKA “The Illustrious Chieftain of the Junkyards”) becomes Squib King.
  (conjecture based on Scavenger Hunt)

- The Koqus Design Syndic starship class enters production.
  (conjecture based on Shield of Lies)
• Upon meeting with Darth Sidious in brief leaves from Trezza’s care on Orsis, Maul begins coming back from each meeting with barely-restrained anger, built up by the Dark Side as he matures.
  (conjecture based on Restraint)
• The Vagaari begin violating Chiss borders.*
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.
• Talesan “Taly” Fry is creates a way around his own voice-activated security and tracking system in his family home at the age of nine.
  (conjecture based on Secrets of the Jedi)
• Nass becomes Governor (Boss) of Otoh Gunga.
  (conjecture based on Episode I Incredible Locations)
• Scrivner’s Revenge becomes a popular holodrama.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5 via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• The Far Orbit Resort is founded on Athiss by an Ithorian businessman. It the Ithorian’s intent to give tourists a place to relax, away from the growing turmoil and corruption in the Republic. He soon takes on a Rodian partner.*
  (conjecture based on Lost Knowledge)*
*NOTE: This assumes that Lost Knowledge takes place shortly after ANH.
• TCW DATE: As a Padawan to Qui-Gon Jinn, Obi-Wan Kenobi is unable to capture T’Mott Zoat. He will get his chance to capture him two decades from now.*
  (conjecture based on The Smuggler’s Code)*
*NOTE: This is 20 years prior to The Smuggler’s Code, which is set during TCW’s fourth season, which is assumed to be around 20 – 19 BBY.
• Holo-Quiz becomes a popular game show on the HoloNet.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5 via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• Icaris Tool and Drive begins supplying Subpro Corporation.
  (conjecture based on Gamer #5 via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• Quarsh Panaka is among the members of a Republic Special Task Force battling pirates in the space near Naboo.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I-"The Phantom Menace” novelization and Episode I: Visual Dictionary)
• On Dega, in the Elrood system, the ore veins dry up, forcing the Radell Mining Corporation to leave the planet.
  (conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three)
• Raith Sienar becomes a major subcontractor in a retrofit of the YT light trade class of vessels. Sienar places a tracking unit in the integument of every vessel he retrofits, one that he can activate with a private code.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet via TimeTales, verbatim)
• The Athallian Messenger crashes on Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on Wanderer of Worlds)
• Piklin Katt, baron administrator of Tindark on Cularin, is assassinated.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
• Morgukai warrior Ma’kis’shaalaas, who has always felt the Force, leaves the Morgukai, giving his armor to his old friend and fellow Morgukai Tsyrl. While presumed dead in the Burning Moon Range, he actually survives and becomes a Jedi Knight.*
  (conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)*
*NOTE: I am assuming that this takes place approximately five years before Tsyrl and Ma’kis’shaalaas meet again, and that their confrontation at that point is approximately five years before we meet Tsyrl in Rite of Passage.
• During a mission for the Galactic Scout Corps in the Outer Rim, Ensign Milac Troper and Mission Commander Dayal Kev encounter a gasnit, which attacks Dayla. Instead of helping, Troper flees to their ship. Lieutenant Hereven races out to save Dayla, but instead of waiting for them, Troper is spooked by the sound of the gasnit and escapes in the craft, leaving them for dead. He believes them to be dead, and will eventually move to the Diplomatic Corps in about fifteen years, which calls on his true talents. Meanwhile, Dayla and Hereven survive the attack, and as they survive on the world, they grow closer. Just after Hereven is killed while hunting, Dayla realizes she is pregnant with Hereven’s child. When the child is born later in the year, she names him Hereven after his father. She will raise Hereven to hate the Force, which allows them to grow in the Dark Side. Hereven will come to be what could be classified as a Dark Side marauder.

(conjecture based on Welcome to the Jungle)

- On Frego, Rutin Cobral, who has decided to leave his crime family and testify against them, is killed. Shortly thereafter, his wife, Lena, decides to take up his cause and testify herself. She contacts Senator Crote to arrange her testimony and passage from Frego to Coruscant.

(conjecture based on The Only Witness)

- Qui-Gon Jinn, still mourning Tahl, is called to the Jedi Council chamber with Obi-Wan Kenobi. There, Mace Windu, Plo Koon, and Yoda send them on a mission to Frego. They are to secure and safely return to Coruscant with a witness who can testify before the Senate to bring down the Cobral family. This is being done at the behest of Frego’s Senator Crote. They are briefed by Jocasta Nu, who tells them that the witness is Lena Cobral, wife of the recently murdered Rutin Cobral. Upon arrival, Lena’s cousin Mica takes them to her. Lena is trying to testify before the Senate to bring down the Cobrals because that is what Rutin, her late husband, was intending before the Cobrals, under his brother Solan, had him killed. She has lied to Corte, though, and really has no evidence. She wants the Jedi to protect her as she gathers evidence over the next two days. They agree, reluctantly. The Jedi and Lena head for Lena’s apartment. They find it in shambles. Her computer has been erased, taking away any evidence, and a message has been left on it: “You cannot stop us. You can only die trying.” They sneak into the Cobral Estate during the birthday gala for Rutin’s other brother, Bard. They speak with Zanita, Rutin’s mother, asking her to help bring down the family in Rutin’s memory. Zanita agrees to get documents to them. They slip out, but find their speeder destroyed by a sabotaged statue. Someone has known they were present. They cover their presence as a mere visit, and leave amicably in a borrowed speeder. They return to the safehouse, where they discover Mica waiting with a recently-arrived package addressed to Lena . . . in Rutin’s handwriting. It was apparently sent by Rutin before he died and contains boots, a dirt sample, a small light, a beam drill, and nothing that makes any semblance of sense to Lena. Mica slips out to prepare some food, and Obi-Wan follows, only to find her trying to escape. They believe she may have betrayed the whereabouts of the safehouse. Mica reveals that she was the one who wiped Lena’s computer, hoping to stop the trial and spare Lena the danger associated with it, but it was hired Cobral goons that ransacked the place and left the threatening message. Lena runs off upon hearing this, and they search for her in her favorite park to no avail. When they return to the safehouse, she is there. She explains that she is certain the package was from Rutin, but she cannot figure out what to do with the contents. She also shows them a message from Zanita asking her to meet Zanita that night at a loading dock. She goes with the Jedi shadowing her, only to find Zanita held at gunpoint by Solan. Mica has followed and is caught, so now all three women are in danger. The Jedi spring into action, but Bard is able to get a shot in. Mica dies in Lena’s arms, once again reminding Qui-Gon of how he lost Tahl. Lena realizes what the clues mean, and they all head for the park. In the park, she uses the equipment to enter a secret underground area, recovering evidence left by Rutin. Now they just need to get off of Frego. Crote has arranged for them to take a ship back to Coruscant, but they suspect that Crote is attached to the Cobrals. This is confirmed when another thug trying to capture Lena is stopped, and travel orders signed by Crote are found on his person. They take a different ship to Coruscant, faking that they have taken Crote’s vessel, which is destroyed shortly after takeoff. Upon arrival at Coruscant. The special Senate session commences, and Crote is exposed. The Cobral will fall. At the Frego consulate, Lena is ready to take a break from the session, when the true mastermind of the Cobral family and Rutin’s death emerges—Zanita. She attacks Lena, but Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon stop her. Zanita takes her own life rather than be captured. A short time later, Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon get ready to go see the wounded Lena. On their way, Qui-Gon expresses his thanks to Obi-Wan for being there for him in the wake of Tahl's death, even if Qui-Gon had not acted cordial toward him. Their bond has been strengthened, and it looks as though Qui-Gon will finally begin to gain a measure of peace over Tahl's death.*

(The Only Witness)*

*NOTE: The Supreme Chancellor in this story is named Valorum. It may have been meant to be Finis Valorum, as seen in TPM, but he is not elected until the next year. Furthermore, this cannot be a relative of Valorum, as Kalpana preceded him in office. One could assume that this means that Valorum was actually elected shortly before this story, then inaugurated early the next year. Perhaps in the Republic, they referred to a Chancellor-Elect as simply the Supreme Chancellor. Maybe it was just an error on the author's part. Either way, the story dating stands, as does Valorum's term dates. For what it's worth, even The Essential Reader's Companion calls out this obvious error, while also noting it in 40 BBY, rather than in late 41 BBY, where I had once placed it.

• On Vorzyd 4, Chairman Port's mother dies.

(conjecture based on The Threat Within)

• On Vorzyd 4, the Freelenes, the Vorzydiak children, begin playing pranks to get their elders’ attention. The pranks are taken very seriously, and the elders begin to believe that Vorzyd 5 is attacking their productivity. The Jedi are called to mediate.

(conjecture based on The Threat Within)

• At the Jedi Temple, 17-year-old Padawan Obi-Wan Kenobi and his Jedi Master, Qui-Gon Jinn, are called before the Jedi Council. They are to be sent to Vorzyd 4, where the local Vorzydiak believe that Vorzyd 5 has been sabotaging their productivity as a means of gaining status in the system. After a brief discussion of the situation with Jocasta Nu, the duo head off to Vorzyd 4. Upon arrival, they are taken to meet with the local Vorzydiak leader, Chairman Port. The society is made up almost entirely of workers, who live only for work. Seldom are children seen in the streets, and the elderly retire at age 70, but soon die, probably from depression or something similar. Port heads Multycorp, a major business on the world, where the Jedi witness a computer sabotage that disrupts the work and frazzles the workers. The Jedi spend the evening with the Ports, although their son, Grath, is not home. Soon, they begin to believe that Vorzyd 5 is not at fault, but some other party on Vorzyd 4. Later, on a hunch, Obi-Wan follows a young girl named Nania from her grandmother’s room at the retirement center as she secretly leaves to meet with Grath and other children, including young Tray and Flip. Obi-Wan infiltrates the meeting (luckily not being recognized), where he overhears what is really going on. The kids are trying to get their parents to pay more attention to them instead of work, so they are sabotaging the work. Obi-Wan reports this to Qui-Gon, who is dealing with his feelings about just how far Obi-Wan has come in four years, and Qui-Gon grants him three days to try to diffuse the situation from inside the Freelenes. Memories of Melida/Daan emerge constantly. The next day, infiltrating the school, Obi-Wan becomes a Freelen after letting several of the leaders out of an infirmary where they were plotting and feigning illness. He goes with them as they set explosives on shuttles. They are to be destroyed in the evening, when they are empty, so that the travel to Vorzyd 5, the Freelies meet. The only witness a computer sabotage that disrupts the work and frazzles the workers. The Jedi spend the evening with the Ports, although their son, Grath, is not home. Soon, they begin to believe that Vorzyd 5 is not at fault, but some other party on Vorzyd 4. Later, on a hunch, Obi-Wan follows a young girl named Nania from her grandmother’s room at the retirement center as she secretly leaves to meet with Grath and other children, including young Tray and Flip. Obi-Wan infiltrates the meeting (luckily not being recognized), where he overhears what is really going on. The kids are trying to get their parents to pay more attention to them instead of work, so they are sabotaging the work. Obi-Wan reports this to Qui-Gon, who is dealing with his feelings about just how far Obi-Wan has come in four years, and Qui-Gon grants him three days to try to diffuse the situation from inside the Freelenes. Memories of Melida/Daan emerge constantly. The next day, infiltrating the school, Obi-Wan becomes a Freelen after letting several of the leaders out of an infirmary where they were plotting and feigning illness. He goes with them as they set explosives on shuttles. They are to be destroyed in the evening, when they are empty, so that the travel to work the next day is slowed. Meanwhile, Qui-Gon helps save children when a power failure caused by the Freelenes nearly shuts down power to a children’s hospital. Later, Qui-Gon witnesses a discussion via comms between Felana (Vorzyd 5’s leader) and Port. Felana is tired of his baseless accusations and subtly threatens war. Later that evening, without warning, the shuttles that were rigged begin to explode with passengers in them! Someone has set the charges to go off earlier than they were supposed to. Grath is shocked that someone in his group could have done this, and as the Jedi help the survivors, a shadowy figure (Flip) notices that Obi-Wan is a Jedi, not a true Freelen. At the next Freelen meeting, Flip takes credit for the early explosions, believing that Grath would be proud of him for taking things to the next level. After another round of accusations between Vorzyd 4 and Vorzyd 5, Obi-Wan attends another meeting of the fracturing Freelenes. Flip exposes Obi-Wan as a Jedi, and Grath admits that he already knew who Obi-Wan was (thanks to his father), but the issue is cut short as they are discovered. Flip conveniently knows how to save them all (given that he was the one who called in the tip to the authorities). The Jedi agree that they need to set up talks between the adults and the Freelenes and that it is time to tell Port the truth. As Qui-Gon does so, settling matters peacefully between Vorzyd 4 and Vorzyd 5, the Freelenes meet. Grath wants them to go to the meeting and stop their latest prank, but Flip is nowhere to be found. Upon learning that the meeting will take place at Multycorp, though, and that some of the retired workers (including her grandmother) will be there, Tray blurs out that Flip is planning to blow up the Multycorp annex. As they race for the annex to save everyone, Obi-Wan sends a telepathic warning to Qui-Gon. They arrive too late, but find that Qui-Gon got almost everyone out. Tray’s grandmother is injured, but will live. Obi-Wan and Tray enter the rubble to find Flip, who is barely alive. After he is rescued, though, there is nothing that can be done for him. With a brief word from Grath and Tray, Flip dies, the victim of his own misguided intentions. Outside, the Freelines and adults are about to come to blows over the incident, but Obi-Wan, much like Qui-Gon has in the past, steps in between the groups and calls for peace. Qui-Gon steps up as well, and they share a message of generations needing and learning from each other. It is a message with an obvious double-meaning for Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan. Soon, the retirement center is open for everyone, the work week is shortened, and Vorzyd 4 is on its way to a multi-generational society. All is well, and Qui-Gon knows that Obi-Wan is on his way to becoming a full Jedi Knight in a few years. He has entered the next stage of his training. Only one question remains unanswered . . . As Qui-Gon looked toward the future, he could not see a Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi. Does this mean that Obi-Wan will fail or die along the way? Or could it be a portent of Qui-Gon Jinn’s own fate instead . . . ?

(Threat Within)

• As the Kruy Mulacks Show prepares to discover the secrets of the ancient hero Tet-Ami on Carthas, questions abound as to what may be found there. Could it be the body of the “Time Guardian” himself? Perhaps they will find the “Orb of Passage” that allowed him to move through time? No one knows. Before they can break in, though, Mace Windu arrives and enters, destroying its guardian droids. Upon reaching the center of the temple, though, he finds a statue of . . . himself, with hand outstretched. He places the Orb, which he brought with him, into the statue’s hand, causing a temporal distortion that sends Mace back in time to the legendary battle with alien beasts that gained Tet-Ami such fame in the first place. Mace helps the natives defeat the beasts, earning him their gratitude in the chant “Tet-am! Tet-am!” Mace then vanishes from the past, returning to the present. He leaves the temple, with the Orb’s energies spent. Later, at the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, he and Yoda discuss the situation. The Jedi had taken the Orb from the temple, knowing that one day, they would send Mace Windu to replace the Orb, causing him to go into the past and be the legendary hero, Tet-Ami. A Jedi must always, after all, start the job he finished.

(The Secret of Tet-Ami)

Jedi Apprentice [continued] (youth novel series: Dave Wolverton & Jude Watson)
The Only Witness (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 20
The Threat Within (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 23

The Secret of Tet-Ami [continued] (SWT13 short story: Fabian Nicieza)
The Secret of Tet-Ami [continued] (SWT13 short story: Fabian Nicieza)

39 BBY

• Jorad Pressor is born.*
  (conjecture based on Survivor’s Quest)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the Outbound Flight Project was when he met Lorana Jinzler.

• Dengless Rinn is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)

• Mako Spince is born.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)

• Vistal Purn is born on Generis.*
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)*

*NOTE: Purn is 10 years (or so) older than Han Solo.

• Gaor Tembon is born on Sullust.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

• Kornell “Uli” Divini is born.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Healer)
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

- Firmus Piett is born on Axxila.
  (conjecture based on Kenneth Colley's age via TimeTales, abridged)
- Telloti Cillmam’n is born.
  (conjecture based on Hammer)*

*NOTE: This assumes that he is the traditional 13 when he was to become a Padawan but instead joined the Explorer Corps.
- Raith Sienar and Wilhuff Tarkin meet for the first time.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet)
- Sienar Design Systems releases several products as part of the Republic Defense Procurement plan.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet)
- Raith Sienar smuggles several universal combat droids made from the Kol Hurro system past Republic customs.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet via TimeTales, verbatim)
- The Blue Star Pirates gang is formed. They are supplied with military weapons by Jalla Spree.
  (conjecture based on Invasion of Theed via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- The Drunk Dancer is first launched.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)
- By the time she turns seven (very early this year) Padmé Naberrie Amidala is involved in the Refugee Relief Movement.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- Ebenn Q3 Baobab, at ten years old, leaves his family's circus and begins traveling with the Baobab Merchant Fleet.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Phrase Book and Travel Guide)
- Half of the animals at the Thaney family farm on Tatooine get the Parch and die. As a result, Caelum and Nella Thaney’s daughter, Annileen Thaney (age 17) takes a job at Dannar Calwell. With her family’s future in doubt, Annileen Thaney considers applying to join a zoological expedition authorized by the University of Alderaan that would have traveled ten planets in two years as part of an exobiology program. She completes the application, but it is never submitted. She keeps the application on an old datapad she will still own twenty years from now. Very soon, Annileen begins a relationship with Dannar, beginning a four year relationship prior to their marriage that Annileen jokingly refers to as the “Nella Thaney Stress Test.” (Nella wants to be sure that Dannar is an honest man, even going so far as to count Annileen’s pay for the first two years of her employment and relationship with Dannar.)
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
- While a customer of Annileen Thaney at Dannar’s Claim, Wyle Ulbreck first pontificates on his believes that droids are all programmed by Jawas to steal. He will continue to spout this nonsense for the next two decades at least.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
- While working for Dannar Calwell at Dannar’s Claim, Annileen Thaney witnesses him ordering customers not to trade with a Jawa sandcrawler that arrives, so that he can buy what they need and resell it to them at a small markup to keep the business (and the Pika Oasis) thriving. Annileen will continue this business practice over the next twenty years.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
- Kai Konnik writes his award-winning Breach of Stars while staying in Polodo Place on Coruscant.
  (conjecture based on Street of Shadows)*

NOTE: Street of Shadows puts this event “twenty years ago,” which puts it here in 39 BBY. However, that novel is also rife with continuity errors, some of which miss the mark for the events of TPM and the Clone Wars by literally decades. Did Michael Reaves really mean “twenty years ago” when he made this reference? Under the circumstances, how could we possibly know for sure?
- Around this time, the Jedi Council (answering a request from the Senate) sends a group of Jedi (including Komari Vosa, Dooku’s former Padawan) to Baltizaar to fend off attacks from the Bando Gora. All of the Jedi are believed to have died, as is reported to Dooku. In reality, Komari has joined the Bando Gora and become their leader, entering into a secret deal with Gardulla the Hutt and the Dug known as Sebolot to distribute contaminated death sticks.*
(conjecture based on Darth Plagueis and Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)*

*NOTE: I had originally believed this to be in 33 BBY, but JvS:TEGttF places it in 39 BBY. (For what it’s worth, The Clone Wars Campaign Guide tries to claim that this is “shortly after the Battle of Galidraan,” when it is clearly 5 years after that event.)

- In the wake of the apparent death of Komari Vosa on Baltizaar, Dooku sends a protest message to the Jedi Council with regard to the notion of sending Jedi off on potential suicide missions at a whim. (To be continued below . . . )
  (Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)
- Shmi Skywalker and Anakin Skywalker (age 3) arrive on Tatooine. Shmi’s kind master Pi-Lippa died without being able to set them free, and the unkind relative of Pi-Lippa who inherited Shmi has sold her (and Anakin) to Gardulla the Hutt. (To be continued below . . . )*
  (The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader)*

*NOTE: This entry assumes that Anakin is born in 42 BBY, as deduced from dates in the AOTC novelization and conflicting reports of his age as 9 and/or 10 in TPM.

- History professor Murk Lundi decides to advance his academic career by studying the controversial subject of the Sith. He creates a communications network that links him with various Sith cults, eventually coming to learn of King Adas’ Sith Holocron, buried beneath the ocean on Kodai.
  (conjecture based on Evil Never Dies: The Sith Dynasties)
- The Andoan Wars come to an end when Admiral Trench leads Ando and Harch forces against the Andoan Free Colonies “Free Forces” to victory at the Battle of Raquish. Trench’s ruthless tactics turn victory into defeat, though, as the Republic finally gets involved to stop the dispute. What should have been an Andoan victory becomes forced separation and demilitarization at Republic gunpoint. A demilitarized zone is created, patrolled and enforced by a large Republic Judicial Forces fleet. Trench will spend the next decade serving the Corporate Alliance in destroying pirate bases and raiding rivals.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- Industrial Automaton produces R2-D2. R2-D2 is then modified in the aftermarket and begins his career with the Royal House of Naboo, where he is altered to include small internal repulsorlift coils, magnetized treads, and the retractable booster rockets that will soon become standard on his series of astromechs. It is using those rockets that gives R2-D2 his first reputation, as he is seen as a troublemaker, leading fellow astromechs flying around Naboo in lieu of rolling on many occasions. His first assignment is to the Royal Security Forces for King Ars Veruna, mainly acting as astromech for Bravo Squadron pilots*
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)*

*NOTE: This is dated back 5 years from R2-D2’s assignment to the Royal Starship, giving him enough time to build up a reputation on Naboo.

- The Bitthaevrian m’Yalfor’ac Order again clashes with the Old Republic. The warfare ends with the intervention of several Jedi Knights on the Republic’s behalf. This conflict causes both the Republic and the Jedi Order to be deemed perpetual enemies of the Bitthaevrian people.*
  (conjecture based on Special Military Unit Intelligence Update)*

*NOTE: This assumes that two generations can be rounded to 50 years, dating back from the time that the SMUIU was written. This could be the same scenario as is detailed in The Story of General Grievous: Lord of War, but the date references are many, many decades off for that to make sense. I can only assume that this is a second battle with the Order.

- The Old Republic sends a survey mission to Dagobah, led by Halka Four-Den. The records of the mission become lost when the survey party itself is lost. The team had spent thirteen weeks on the planet gathering information, far longer than had been planned. This 13-week estimate is based on logs that were later recovered, but is an inaccurate figure. In reality, a few of the original crew members have survived.
  (The Illustrated Star Wars Universe: Dagobah Entry and conjecture based on Galaxy of Fear: The Hunger)
- Even as Telos begins to recover from the grip of Offworld, other special interests begin to slowly take over. In a short while, this rebirth of corruption will lead a desperate, duty-filled
Kad Chun to take a ramshackle vessel, the BioCruiser, along with some of the best and brightest Telos has to offer, into space, acting as a nomadic vessel trying to stay away from corruption and hoping that someday they can bring true order back to Telos when corruption has led to the current situation’s end.

(note based on Deceptions)

• The XP-38, a fully-armed and shielded freighter is presented to the Cularin government as a gift from the Metatheran Cartel. It is custom outfitted for the defense of the planet Cularin and is presented to the government with the outward aim of helping the natives of Cularin protect themselves. However, several of the teams which tour the ship are able to evaluate its capabilities discover a transmitter hidden in one of the weapons turrets. The transmitter’s function is unknown, although it is discovered that it is transmitting data to an unspecified source. In the hold of the XP-38, a transportation crate is found with four empty slots that fit the transmitter perfectly. The other three transmitters are never found, but the Cularin government resents the Cartel’s attempt to spy on them. After publicly presenting the evidence of the transmitter to the Cartel, the government of Cularin expels the Cartel from the planet, forbidding them to do any further business there. The representative of the Metatheran Cartel, Thurm Loogg, claims that the transmitters had been placed aboard the ship by unknown agents based on Tolea Biqua, possibly connected to his predecessor Velin Wir, but no formal investigation is ever launched. His efforts to quell the Cularin government eventually succeed, after the XP-38 is scoured for other transmitters and deemed “clean” by the Cularin military, which will later begin using the ship as part of their defense fleet.

(note based on wizards.com via TimeTales, abridged)

• Around this time, Den Dhur becomes a reporter. *

(note based on Jedi Healer)*

*NOTE: This rounds “nearly twenty years” before Jedi Healer to 19 years.

• In the weeks since the situation on Vorzyd 4, Obi-Wan Kenobi and his Jedi Master, Qui-Gon Jinn, have been spending time at the Jedi Temple. Supposedly, they were there because the Jedi Council believed Obi-Wan needed time to relax and mediate. In truth, the Council, particularly Yoda, is worried about Qui-Gon in the wake of Tahil’s death, which is still profoundly affecting his attitude and mood. As much as Yoda would like to keep them there a while longer, though, he must send them on a new mission. A young boy named Talesan “Taly” Fry and his parents, Nalia and Grove, are on the run, forced to hide after the technically brilliant young Taly overheard a quintet of bounty hunters next door planning a series of assassinations. Now, the hunters are after him. It will be up to Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan, along with the Master and Padawan duo of Adi Gallia and Siri Tachi, to find the Frys and bring them to safety. They head for the city of Ciran on the planet Cirrus. They check a hotel where the family was supposed to be staying, but they find the family gone and a bounty hunter (Magus) charging in to attack them. They defeat the hunter, but he escapes. They then follow a passcode clue left by the family to find where they are really staying. As the hunters also converge on the house, they escape via swoops on the roof, but Grove and Nalia choose to try to divert the hunters attention, asking the Jedi to get Taly to safety. The Jedi reluctantly agree. A short time later, they escape aboard a starship, but find themselves pursued by the bounty hunters’ vessel. They are forced to crash land on the planet Quadrant Seven, using an escape craft to make it appear that Taly is dead, as the ship crashes with everyone aboard. Upon exiting the crashed vessel, Siri and Obi-Wan are left in a nearby cave to watch over Taly, while Qui-Gon and Adi go into town to see if they can get a new transport off of the planet. Unfortunately, they find that the world is strictly isolationist. Only a monthly transport that will arrive in a few days can get them off of the planet, unless they travel quite a while to get to another settlement and bargain for a freighter, which requires permits. While on the street, they spot Magus, already on the planet. They follow him, sneaking aboard the hunters’ ship. They discover that the other four hunters are Gorm the Dissolver, Lunasa (a woman in Mandalorian armor), Raptor, and Pilot. They decide to stow away as the hunters leave, figuring that the Padawans and Taly are safe with the bounty hunters on the ship leaving. Unfortunately, once the ship lifts off, they realize that Magus has stayed behind to look for Taly, just in case he’s alive, but now the Jedi can’t escape the ship to stop him.

Meanwhile, Obi-Wan and Siri watch over a despondent Taly, who suggests that they take him to his uncle’s place on Qexis. Siri considers it, but Obi-Wan won’t allow it. The two butt heads, but now, at the age of eighteen, their feelings for each other are more complicated than just friendship, making their squabbling something new to Obi-Wan. They receive a garbled message from Qui-Gon, telling them to be ready to get to the monthly transport if necessary to get off of the planet if Qui-Gon and Adi don’t get back in time. A short time later, both parties find themselves in unexpected circumstances. Intending to get aboard the transport, Obi-Wan, Siri, and Taly head for the transport landing zone, but after Siri bought some food by selling her “warming stone” (a prized possession), the vendor passed along her presence to Magus, who is waiting for them. Instead of taking the transport, they steal Magus’ ship and escape toward Coruscant, Taly disabling the security systems. Unfortunately, he missed one. The ship will explode upon reversion to realspace if it does so on its own. They can only hope to cause it to revert then jump again and confuse the explosive controller. As they head for the pivotal moment, Taly realizes that he knows where the bounty hunters are going to commit their assassination plot. He had heard them say “rendezvous,” when it was actually “Rondai-2.” They also come up with a better plan. They put out a distress call, hoping to attract pirates, who, as if on cue, pull them from realspace artificially using an interdiction field, bypassing the explosive’s controls. Unfortunately, when they are boarded, Taly won’t let Siri or Obi-Wan risk their lives to protect him, so he gives himself over to the pirates to be turned over (since they recognize a bounty on his head) to Magus’ gang. As for Obi-Wan and Siri, they are left to crash the nearly fuel-deprived vessel into a nearby spaceport, escaping alive. More has changed for them, though. While facing possible death, they began to recognize their true romantic feelings for each other. Now, at the spaceport, they call it what it is—love. They decide to determine what to do about their love in light of the Jedi Order’s restrictions on attachment, after they save Taly somehow. Meanwhile, Adi and Qui-Gon sneak around on the hunters’ ship, trying to steal information from a datapad under Pilot’s pillow, but when Pilot wakes up, an alarm is sounded, and they are forced to escape in an escape pod. Once in safe territory, they contact Jocasta Nu at the Jedi Temple to inquire about any meetings of twenty leaders where the hunters could pull off their assassination. They learn that twenty planetary leaders are about to meet to create a pact to cut off their trade with the Corporate Alliance in protest of various actions. It would make sense for Passel Argente, the head of the Corporate Alliance, to want the leaders dead. The meeting is on Rondai-2. Adi and Qui-Gon head there and begin surveillance. They spot the meeting place, then also see Pilot and Raptor arrive with a captive Taly in tow. (Taly told them that he had other copies of the recording of their plan, so they are keeping him alive for now.) Realizing how the hunters are trying to infiltrate the building with the meeting, Qui-Gon and Adi get inside, fighting the hunters and alerting security. They finally make it to the meeting room, where they are forced to fight Gorm as the room catches on fire. Above, on the rooftop, Siri and Obi-Wan have arrived to help. In the ensuing chaos, Pilot and Magus get to the rooftop with Taly, and Magus threatens to have Pilot toss Taly off the roof if they aren’t allowed to leave. The Jedi say he can leave, and when Magus lifts off, he allows Pilot and Taly to fall toward doom. Adi manages to save Taly, but Pilot dies on the pavement below. Thus, at the end of the mission, Pilot and Raptor are dead, Gorm and Lunasa are in custody, and Magus is on the loose. They have no proof (unless Taly does) that Passel Argente was involved. Taly soon testifies before the Senate (leaving out any mention of Argente), but in the wake of his testimony, his parents are killed by Magus in revenge. Taly is now on his own, but the Jedi will watch over him as best they can, out of obligation. As for Obi-Wan and Siri, Qui-Gon knows of their secret love for each other, and he reports it to Yoda. They both urge him to let her go because if they stay together, they can’t be Jedi, and if they leave the Order, the regret over that decision will eventually win out over their love and make them unhappy. Qui-Gon wants Obi-Wan to learn from the mistake he and Tahl might’ve made for each other. Obi-Wan and Siri talk about it, and they both agree that they will bury their feelings and never speak of it again. Unfortunately, it will cause them to drive apart, no longer being the best of friends that they had become over the course of so many years . . . (To be continued below . . .)

(Secrets of the Jedi)

- Upon receiving a transmission from Korriban, the ancient Sith planet, sent by Jedi Master Kit
Fisto and Padawan Bant Eiren, the Jedi Council calls Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi before them. The two Jedi are given an assignment to investigate Professor Murk Lundi and the possibility that one of several Sith Sects (that is, people who study Sith teachings, but who are not Sith Lords or Dark Jedi themselves) is near to finding ancient Sith artifacts. Lundi’s texts on the Sith had been found in a shack filled with Sith information on Korriban, which had prompted Kit and Bant’s report. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan attend one of Lundi’s lectures, noting his top student, Norval, another student, Omal, and his assistant, Dedra. When Lundi announces that he will now be leaving on a sabbatical, the Jedi have no choice but to follow as he leaves aboard a shuttle for Lisal, one of the planets rumored to be the location of a lost Sith Holocron. Knowing he must be after the Holocron, they keep tabs on him en route, only to find that he bribes the pilot to allow him a stop on Nolar. On Nolar, as the Jedi fight off Sith Sect members, Lundi tries to buy mining equipment, to no avail. Apparently, he will have to dig for the Holocron somewhere. After another encounter with members of the Sith Sect and word from Yoda that more Sith artifacts were found on Umgul, the Jedi return to the hangar to find the pilot drugged and his ship stolen by Lundi. Luckily, the pilot had been approached to take Lundi to his destination before he was drugged, so he can supply the professor’s destination—Kadai. Apparently, the Sith Holocron he is looking for (which is the one that once belonged to King Adas, then Lord Garu, then Freedon Nadd) is on Kodai, not Lisal, as originally thought. They get passage to Kodai, learning from Jocasta Nu along the way that Kodai is a world of nearly all water, but every ten years, the tide changes for a short time, allowing access to certain areas usually covered by water. They assume that the Sith Holocron must be in that area that is about to be uncovered, hence Lundi’s timing. They soon discover a bomb on the ship and disable it. Upon arriving on Kodai, the Jedi stake out Lundi’s room and speak to a man named Reis, who confirms that Lundi is after the Holocron. They then race to where Lundi is about to get to the Holocron, only to find that he has apparently held it, forcing him into near madness, but the Holocron has been stolen. But by whom? As they ponder the question, Elda, their pilot, shows up to get them off the planet in the nick of time. Lundi is mad, the Holocron is lost, and the mission, for now, is over. But only for now . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(The Followers)

- Sometime during the period in which the Sith Holocron of King Adas is being sought, Darth Sidious sends a Sith mercenary from the Thyrsus Sun Guard to recover it. The Sun Guard is unsuccessful and executed for his failure. This Sun Guard is the father of future Sith follower (and future apprentice to Lumiya) Flint. (conjecture based on Evil Never Dies: The Sith Dynasties)

- Maul, age 15, is on the planet Orsis for combat training, as he has been for eight years, under the Falleen specialist Trezza. He acts as the prey in a training session where he is hunted by a group led by Mandalorian Death Watch member Meltch Krakko. He has been instructed by Darth Sidious (with Trezza’s agreement) to not use his Force abilities overtly, so that he does not reveal the Sith’s existence. When he uses the Force briefly in the exercise, Meltch is even more suspicious than he was before, and with Maul as his main rival, he wants Maul gone. Sidious chastises him for it, as does Trezza, but Maul continues his training. His next test will be to survive in an area called the Gora, where wild beasts roam, without using his Force abilities. The exercise does not go as expected, however. Meltch has contacted Mother Talzin, the leader of a group of Nightsisters of Dathomir, informing her of Maul’s existence. With his tattoos marking him as a Nightbrother and a relation to Savage Opress and Feral, Talzin questions his mother, Kycina, then heads for Orsis, where she and a group of Nightsisters subdue and capture Maul, planning to return him to Dathomir. They head up to Orsis Orbital Station in preparation for heading back to Dathomir, but Meltch has betrayed Talzin by taking a job for a Rattatak Cauldron (combat arena) operative Osika Kirske to help Kirske get his hands on Dathomiri Force users for the arena. Talzin reveals some of Maul’s family background while interrogating him, but when they are attacked by Kirske’s agents, Maul and the Nightsisters are forced to fight together to protect themselves, and Maul, thinking that this is another test by Sidious, restrains himself from using the Force. They make their escape against the odds, finding Darth Sidious (alerted by Trezza of Maul’s disappearance) waiting at the shuttle they plan to take to get off the station. Maul is returned to Sidious, but Talzin and the surviving Nightsisters are allowed to leave, so long as they lay no claim (ever) on Maul. Unbeknownst to Sidious, however, Talzin uses a talisman (the Talisman of Finding) she wears to hold a touch of Maul's blood, thereby allowing her to track him in the future. Unfortunately for Maul’s comrades down on the surface of Orsis, they cannot allow word of this incident or any other related information to get out into the galaxy. Maul is tasked with returning down to the surface to kill everyone, including Trezza, Meltch, and anyone else still alive. Maul will relish the chance to show Meltch the true extent of his abilities.

(Restraint)*

*NOTE: This story is also repeated in The Wrath of Darth Maul.

- Upon returning to Orsis, Maul comes upon Trezza, Kilindi Matako, and Meltch Krakko in Trezza’s office, having already killed Kilindi’s bunkmate, Daleen. He kills all three of them, despite his attraction to Kilindi, then heads back to rejoin Darth Sidious on Coruscant. He will continue training without the “Darth” title for the next two years. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Wrath of Darth Maul)

  - The Dark Side [continued]
  - Dark Jedi [continued]
  - The Conversion of Count Dooku

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

- The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  - Chapter 1

The Illustrated Star Wars Universe (book: Kevin J. Anderson)

- The Illustrated Star Wars Universe (book: Kevin J. Anderson)
  - Dagobah Entry
    - First Week Summary
    - Second Week Summary
    - Third Week Summary
    - Fourth Week Summary
    - Fifth Week Summary
    - Sixth Week Summary
    - Thirteenth Week Summary (Final Entry)

Secrets of the Jedi (youth novel: Jude Watson)

- Secrets of the Jedi (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Chapters 1 – 20

Jedi Apprentice: Special Edition (youth novel series: Jude Watson)

- The Followers (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Chapters 1 – 12

Restraint (short story: James Luceno)

- Restraint (short story: James Luceno)
  - Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
    - The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
      - Chapters 10 – 11

38 – 32 BBY

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

- The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  - Chapter 2

38 BBY

- Wald is born, most likely on Tatooine.
  - (conjecture based on reports of the shooting script to The Phantom Menace)
- Amee is born, most likely on Tatooine, to Hala and her husband.
Qell Tepine is born on Coruscant.

Bammy Decree is born.

Diric Wessiri is born.*

Aven Cholus is born.

Ohwun De Maal is born on Duro.

Hyobu Sulloran is born.*

IT-3PO enters service and will not have a memory wipe from this point forward.*

Chirpa becomes chief of his Ewok tribe.

Krayn raids Tatooine for slaves once again. Among those taken are Mazie and her daughter Berri. Berri’s father is killed.

Bissley Kloth signs on with the prison barge Purtle, now that he is old enough to hire on for a full share.

Dakarai Blirr finishes upgrading the Ando Overland Podracing course for the Desilijic Hutt Clan. He then returns to Cog Hive Seven, still not speaking aloud, and informs his sister (in writing) of a new algorithm that he has been considering. This algorithm allows the Blirrs to have a computer analyze all data from every prisoner (and potential contestant) in Cog Hive Seven to match pairs up for exciting, close gladiatorial matches for gambling purposes.

Jax Pavan first hears the Jedi Code at age two.

Padmé Amidala aids refugees on Shadda-Bi-Boran, where she meets a child named N’akee-ulu.

At the urging of King Ars Veruna and Senator Palpatine, Kwilaan Starport (named after the original human who scouted Naboo) is constructed in Keren on Naboo.

Kister Banai and his mother are captured by slavers. Kister is sold to Gardulla the Hutt, on Tatooine.

Kan Pojo is killed in combat.*

Construction on the J-type 327 Nubian that will be the new Naboo Royal Starship is completed by the Nubian Design Collective and the Theed Palace Space Vessel Engineering Corps.

Tiion Solo and Randil Sal are married.

Ament, brother of Jaren, is convicted of 31 murders (during bouts of uncontrollable rage) and... locked away in prison for the next six years, until Jaren breaks him out, leading to their encounter with Darca Nyl.

(conjecture based on Nomad)

- The old spacer who will come to befriend Anakin Skywalker on Tatooine leaves the Republic pilot corps after years of service, including stints flying Jedi Knights on missions, and taking Republic soldiers to Makem Te during its rebellion.

 (conjecture based Star Wars: Episode I--“The Phantom Menace” novelization)

- Maul begins fulfilling missions for Darth Sidious.*

 (conjecture based on Star Wars: Journal—“Episode I: Darth Maul”)*

*NOTE: This assumes both that Maul and Obi-Wan are the same age in TPM, and that his Sith Lord initiation occurred when Maul was 18.

- The eldest son of Deen and K’Yark is born. He will be killed during warfare when he is six.

(conjecture based on Kenobi)

- After about a year of being stranded on Dagobah, the Old Republic survey team’s distress call is heard by a passing ship, but that ship crashes on Dagobah. Now there are forty people trapped.

 (conjecture based on The Hunger)

- TCW DATE: Thugs Raxis and Nolid lead an organized crime ring that is taking advantage of the farming community on Antar IV in what becomes known as the “colfilini plantation dispute.” When Tayvor Mandirly (an uncle of Bail Organa) stands up to them, he is burnt at the stake as a warning to others. (Bail’s mother will never get over what was done to Tayvor, and she will die soon after.) The Antar IV government asks the Jedi Order to intervene, so Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi are sent to capture Raxis and Nolid, but once they are turned over to the government, they are only slapped with fines and set free. The situation leaves Obi-Wan with nightmare for a while after, and Bail and Obi-Wan will find some connection in the shared tragedy sixteen years later.

 (conjecture based on Wild Space)

- Anakin Skywalker’s mechanical talents are noticed by Watto, who then arranges a podracing bet with Gardulla the Hutt in order to win the two Skywalkers. He wins, and both Anakin and Shmi pass into Watto’s ownership.*

 (conjecture based on The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader)*

*NOTE: This entry assumes that the months that passed between the Skywalkers’ arrival on Tatooine and the bet that moves them into Watto’s care is enough months to push the event into this year. Their arrival date is based on Anakin’s stated age at the time (three) and his apparent birth year (based on AOTC and other references). However, Secrets of Tatooine put them entering Watto’s control around this time, which fits well with the notion of months passing, as The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader suggests.

- Jorus C’Baoth assumes (i.e. is not given) the title of Jedi Master. (Exact date according to Old Senate Library entry: 4/3/74 P.E.)*

 (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising)*

*NOTE: Please bear in mind that the exact date quoted here (4/3/74 P.E.) is Zahn’s erroneous dating based on when he believed the Clone Wars took place, and has thus been translated into a corrected date. It is included here for the sake of cross-referencing for those curious. See the “On P.E. Dating” notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology).

- Lorn Pavan, an employee in the Jedi Temple, is told that his son, Jax Pavan, is Force-sensitive. Jax is taken from Lorn for training. Lorn, frustrated that he cannot see his son, is fired by the Jedi. Lacking direction, he soon finds the droid I-5YQ working for a family whose children abuse the droid, which is their nanny. Lorn frees I-Five and has him reprogrammed. Lorn and I-Five then become partners in the selling of information.

 (conjecture based on Shadow Hunter)

- Raith Sienar is once again attacked by mercenaries hired by the Xi Char. In this attack, which takes place aboard a pleasure cruise near Dantooine, Raith is able to escape, but his father is killed when the family’s vessel is destroyed. Raith is then given full control of Sienar Technologies.

 (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

- In the clouds of the gas planet Yorn Skot, the Aurorient Express is sinking into the atmosphere. Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi have been sent to save the vessel. They leap down from their vessel onto the Aurorient Express, discovering weapons placed on the outer hull. Upon breaking their way in, they meet with the captain, who is arguing with the wife of Clode Rhoden (the owner of Yorn Skot). When Madam Rhoden finally leaves in a huff, the Jedi inform the captain of the ship’s true peril. They contact the engineer, Chief Bouyardy (Chef Boyardee? Good lord, Kennedy . . .), who is under attack by droids. The Jedi race to save him, even as Madam Rhoden and her buff boy-toy confederate, Buck, discuss a secret plan that involves Baron Rhoden and a package of some kind. They discover that the droids came from lot 44C, then track that to the man responsible for the cargo manifest, Waverton, who points them to the owner of the crates. That owner is Saul Moegantz, who thinks they were filled with his booze. They then hunt down the person who put it on the ship, a Shik named Podlong Foahl. When they find him, Podlong races deeper into the ship. The pursuing group now includes Qui-Gon, Obi-Wan, Bouyardy, Waverton, and Saul. When Podlong pulls out a core bomb remote, Waverton shoots him. However, that means the bomb is still aboard somewhere, and they have no idea where that might be.

Things are further complicated by the arrival of more droids. Getting away from the droids, the heroes question Buck and Madam Rhoden. Buck recognized the core bomb and reveals that his is (or “used to be”) an eco-terrorist. They figured that Podlong had been working with Pressure Pirates, but if that was true, why was there a bomb aboard, which would destroy any salvage? Saul suggests that Rhoden or Madam Rhoden might be trying to blow up the mining station for the insurance money. Saul, of course, intends to seize the station himself as payment for the money Rhoden owes him. Moments later, in private, Madam Rhoden argues with Buck about revealing his past to the Jedi, and Buck lets slip the idea that perhaps he’s still a terrorist and just using Rhoden, just as she’s using him for muscle and as an accomplice while they deliver their bomb to the station. After more bickering between Waverton and Bouyardy, Waverton goes to his room, where he contacts the leader of the Pressure Pirates, whom both he and Podlong are working with. Obi-Wan overhears this, along with the assertion that Podlang’s bomb was of his own devising to impress everyone, not part of the pirates’ or Waverton’s plans. He reports this to Qui-Gon, and they prove this by showing that the droids won’t attack Waverton’s locator frequency. They take him to the captain, where he confesses, sort of, but they then learn that the ship is on a collision course with the station. They search for traces of another bomb, discovering some in Rhoden’s quarters, but when they get past Buck to the bomb box, it is empty. Someone has taken it. Buck and Rhoden race to her escape pod. As everyone prepares to evacuate, they talk to the Captain again and learn that they aren’t falling anymore. The Captain has fixed it. He’s been working all along with the newest face to emerge—Clode Rhoden—, who is, in fact, working for that insurance money. As for the bomb, it was put in Madam Rhoden’s escape pod, but Saul has talked her and Buck into working with him to get the station from Clode.

Clode then sets a droid on the Jedi, but the two easily best it, holding Clode hostage against it. Clode gives in, as the escape pod explodes harmlessly. A short time later, on a rescue frigate, Madam Rhoden and Saul confront Clode, who is under arrest. Clode is ruined. He still has his ship, though . . . well, at least until the pirates take it and both the pirate and captured vessel explode from a self-destruct. Sometimes, as Qui-Gon says, fate provides its own prosecution.

(The Aurorient Express)
Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan: The Aurorient Express (comic series: Mike Kennedy)
The Aurorient Express, Part I (comic: Mike Kennedy)
The Aurorient Express, Part II (comic: Mike Kennedy)

37 BBY
• Lobot is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 2: Yavin and Bespin)
• Kaine Paulsen is born.
  (conjecture based on Out of the Cradle)
• Nahdonnis Praji is born.
• Parlay Thorp is born.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
• Children, including Galt, are born to the survivors on Dagobah.
  (conjecture based on The Hunger)
• Tandra Pryl is born.
  (conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three)
• Tour Aryn is born on Treylon II.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley)
• Orman Tagge is born.
  (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #74)
• Haydhat Treen, future senator from Kuat, is born.
  (conjecture based on Backlash)
• Iolan Gendarr is born on Commenor.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
• Harovan Toth is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11)
• Zothip is born on Bestine.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
• Hiram Drayson is born on Chandrila.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
• Lorren Morrick is born.*
  (conjecture based on Onslaught at Arda I)*
*NOTE: She is in her late thirties in Onslaught at Arda I, which I have approximated to 38 years old.
• “Pori Nate,” a future death stick abuser, is born.  This name is, however, just an alias to protect his identity in a HoloNet News report.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• The Z-95 Headhunter goes into production.
  (conjecture based on Planet of Twilight and The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)
• Tork Winger returns to Garos IV.*
  (conjecture based on Mission to Zila)*
*NOTE: This is five years after he began his Army service, which was about 50 years prior to Mission to Zila in late 8 ABY.
• Nubian Design Collective designs the Scurrg H-6 Prototype Bomber. NDC offers to sell it to the Naboo, but they refuse the offer, seeing no need for such a powerful offensive weapon. While trying to find other buyers, the prototype vessel is stolen by Nym.*
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars Campaign Guide)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.
• TCW DATE: Argyus, a fresh recruit to the Senate Guard, is assigned to guard a diplomatic mission. The mission fails and the consular ship is attacked. Argyus is wounded in the ensuing fighting, but his life is saved by one of the Jedi on the mission, Dooku. Due to their experiences, Argyus and Dooku become friends.*
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars Campaign Guide)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn. This is “several years” before the Battle of Naboo, which I have interpreted as 5 years.
• Kuat Drive Yards spawns Kuat Systems Engineering in an attempt to diversify the Kuat brand.*
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)*
*NOTE: The NEGtVaV says that this is shortly before the Clone Wars, but the creation of the CloakShape Fighter by KSE this year must have taken place after KSE’s creation.
• The Kuat Systems Engineering CloakShape Fighter enters production.*
  (conjecture based on Starships of the Galaxy)*
*NOTE: Information in the New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels would suggest that this happens “decades” before the Clone Wars . . . but it also says that it is created by Kuat Systems Engineering, which is says is formed “shortly” before the Clone Wars. I have chosen to keep this original date from Starships of the Galaxy, as it is a nice middle-ground between those two contradictory statements.

- Finally convinced that Dannar Calwell is an honest man, Nella Thaney ceases to count her daughter Annileen Thaney’s pay from Dannar’s Claim, though the so-called “Nella Thaney Stress Test” continues for the next two years, until the two are engaged and married.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)

- By the age of 22, Qymaen jai Sheelal (the future General Grievous) has killed so many Yamrii invaders that he is considered a demigod by his fellow Kaleesh. Sometime in these early days, Sheelal has a dream of hunting a mumuu beast in the Kunbal jungle, which he brutally kills. He later goes to the jungle to fulfill that vision, only to discover that the target is himself in his mumuu mask, while the slayer is actually Ronderu lij Kummar, a female Kaleesh warrior from the Grendaju region. The two become close comrades (some say she was his lover, some say half-sister). She teaches Sheelal to fight with a sword, just as he teaches her to use a sniper rifle. Together, the two become known as living manifestations of the parable of, appropriately, Sheelal, the so-called “Dreamer and Dreamt One.”
  (conjecture based on Unknown Soldier: The Story of General Grievous and The Story of General Grievous: Lord of War)

*NOTE: This entry uses the conjectural Grievous birthdate of 59 BBY. See the note with the birth entry.

- On Engebo V, the Outer Rim Oreworks operation is closed after the mines dry up. Jaffro Davengatt comes into the Landing and sets up Davengatt’s Double-Zed Nerf Ranch, saving the colony, somewhat. One of Davengatt’s early employees is Gall, whom he makes “sheriff.”
  (conjecture based on Death, Dirt, and the Nerf Rancher’s Daughter)

*NOTE: This assumes that DDATNRD takes place 27 BBY.

- TCW DATE: Bail Organa and Doctor Tryn Netzl become friends. Tryn will be a witness at Bail’s wedding and a shoulder to lean on during Breha Organa’s five miscarriages. He will assist them in finding fertility doctors.
  (conjecture based on Siege)

- After four years training with the Anzati, Aurra Sing’s training is complete. She then kills her Hutt owner, Walanooga, along with the pirates who had stolen her. She then takes a blockade runner and begins working as a bounty hunter. She kills Jedi when she finds them, seeking to someday confront the Dark Woman for her “betrayal” on Ord Namurat. Aurra refuses membership in the Bounty Hunters’ Guild, but still accepts side jobs from Cradossk.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

- On Pergitor, a popular revolution of young liberals takes control of the government, thrusting the culture into strict authoritarian rule.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

- A Senate operative (no-name) named Kern dies. His identity is retired, until someone recycles it to use for the same man who bore the stolen “Tarrence Chenati” identity during the Centax 2 Jedi starfighter project sabotage crisis.
  (conjecture based on Deceptions)

- Nubian designers create a prototype bomber to sell to Naboo. When the Naboo reject the vessel, it is put into storage, from which the Feeorin Nym steals it. With a Bith engineer, he soon has the vessel modified into his personal ship, the Havoc.
  (conjecture based on Starfighter Aces)
To save a herd of wild banthas from being shot, 5-year-old Anakin Skywalker runs up a dune to chase them away. Although he collapses several times from the heat, he doggedly continues until he achieves his goal.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I—The Phantom Menace novelization via TimeTales, verbatim)

Vana Sage, now twenty, takes a job as King Ars Veruna of Naboo’s bodyguard and pilot. After only a short time, though, she grows frustrated with the government’s refusal to upgrade its military and leaves the position. She begins working as a mercenary, acquiring a starfighter, the Guardian Mantis, from a rogue Xi Char engineer. She will continue to keep an eye on Naboo from time to time . . .

(conjecture based on Starfighter Aces)

NOTE: This assumes Vana is 25 in Starfighter.

At an open landing platform on Coruscant, Chancellor Finis Valorum, an aide, and several Senate Guards are awaiting the arrival of the Benevolent III, which is carrying Baroness Omnino of the Vena System, whom the Chancellor hopes is coming to negotiate a trade agreement. Across the platform, Obi-Wan Kenobi stands watch, making a point to stay out of view. Omnino has a dislike for Jedi. The ship lands, and Omnino departs, preceded by her armed guard. Suddenly, a Senate Guard breaks off from the others and shoots the armed guard. He then takes a shot at Omnino, but another Senate Guard steps in, protecting her with a lightsaber. Obi-Wan leaps to his swoop to capture the traitor, but the traitor plunges to his death (seeming to call for help even as he does so of his own volition). On the platform, the lightsaber-bearing guard reveals himself to be Qui-Gon Jinn. Omnino is not pleased that Qui-Gon is there, both because of her distaste for Jedi and because it is Qui-Gon in particular. Walking from the scene, Qui-Gon admits to Obi-Wan that he and the Baroness had met before. At the Jedi Temple, the Jedi Council briefs the two Jedi about the situation. They agree with Qui-Gon’s assessment that the Senate Guard was under some form of telepathic mind control, which means the true enemy is still at large. The Council assigns Qui-Gon to be Omnino’s guardian on Coruscant . . . at her request. Before leaving to meet Omnino, Qui-Gon tells Obi-Wan of his past with Omnino. Twelve years earlier, Qui-Gon was her husband’s guardian when he died in Republic space. The cause was heart failure, but Omnino had blamed Qui-Gon. Obi-Wan, half-jokingly, suggests that perhaps Omnino has taken a liking to him. They meet her at the holographic zoo, where she is biding her time waiting for her son, Baron Sando, to arrive for the negotiations. They soon receive word that Baron Sando’s freighter, while still apparently in one piece, has sent out a distress signal. Omnino asks Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan to investigate. They head for the Bright Jewel Cluster, where they dock the Radiant VII with a Republic rescue vessel which is, in turn, docked with Sando’s vessel. Inside, they find everyone, even Sando, dead. A pair of Mantellian Savrips have gotten loose aboard the ship. It would appear that Sando was ferrying the creatures somewhere, but the destination is unknown. They decide to head for the planet the Savrips came from, Ord Mantell. Once on Ord Mantell, they are told that the Baron’s ship had docked recently at the Bold Moisture Plant. They head for the plant and enter, only to find themselves surrounded by armed droids. The droids attack, but are called off when their master, Orin Bold, sees that they are Jedi. He fears they are assassins sent by the apparent Jedi (possible con-man) Taxer Sundown, who has been trying to run them off their land. His daughter, Nella, also arrive, and offers to help the Jedi to the area that Sando’s ship apparently went to. They take an antique (and very valuable for something seemingly abandoned) T-24 landspeeder into Sundown’s territory, passing a large band of Savrips. Nella tries to kill them to avenge her mother, but the Jedi stop her. Finally in Sundown’s territory, they begin their search, but Nella begins to appear sick. They are soon accosted by mind-controlled minions of Sundown wielding practice lightsabers. During the scuffle, Nella is kidnapped, but they cannot pursue in the T-24 because someone has stolen it. They take a landspeeder to where one of the controlled attackers points them (where they saw the Savrips). They need to know how the hologram of Sundown that taunted them before the light knew their names and their mission, but as they arrive, another question presents itself. The vessel is destroyed and the minions dead. But Nella has vanished . . . When one of Sundown’s agents comes to check on the wreck, the Jedi learn that Sundown is on his way.
to Bold’s moisture farm and then to the stellar energy station where he will be picked up by an unknown transport. As Obi-Wan is sent to Bold’s, Qui-Gon heads in the direction of the Savrips, hoping to save Nella. When Qui-Gon finds the Savrips and Nella, he discovers that the Savrips are sentient. Their leader, Mawkran, says that no human can be safe so long as the slavers remain. When Qui-Gon says he needs to go after Sundown, the Savrips accompany him and Nella. At Bold’s, Obi-Wan hears Sundown speaking with Bold. It seems that Sundown’s “Force powers” are simply illusions along with a hypnotic mind control device. He had been controlling Bold and Nella to act as couriers and causing Bold to create fake lightsabers for Sundown’s goons. When Nella’s mother discovered the lightsabers, Bold killed her, still under control, and made it look like the Savrips did it. Hearing this, Obi-Wan moves in, but Sundown escapes, but not before being smacked on the head by Bold, which fouls up his mind control device. Obi-Wan races after Bold and manages to slice the fin on Sundown’s speeder before he can kill Qui-Gon and the others, who are on their way up to the spaceport. Their actions, especially the mass migration of Savrips, have not gone unnoticed by the prejudiced populace. Upon reaching the spaceport and reuniting, the Jedi discover the control device on Sundown, who has died in the crash of his speeder. Just then, the Benevolent III arrives, bearing Omnino. She was to meet Sundown. She was behind it all along. She wanted to discredit the Jedi, which is why Sundown acted as one. She chose Ord Mantell so she could capture the Savrips, not as slaves, but as food. Omnino used the attack on Coruscant, which was staged, to get Republic sympathy for Vena’s entry into the Republic. She has brought along Chancellor Valorum, who is held at blasterpoint. The Savrips then grab our heroes. Qui-Gon realizes that the Savrips, the guards, etc. are all being controlled by Omnino with the same type of control device Sundown had. Qui-Gon appeals to Omnino’s vanity, saying he would leave the order to join her and be her new bodyguard. She relaxes the Savrip’s control just enough that he can ignite his lightsaber and decapitate her. Valorum and the rest come out of their hypnosis, but even as they do, Mawkran is blasted by newly arrived settlers, who believed Nella was in trouble. Qui-Gon tells them the truth about the Savrips, and how Sundown used them as patsies. In the end, who are the true monsters—the savrips, or the colonists? As the Jedi and Valorum return to Coruscant, they know inquiries must be made into the incident, but once again, Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan have come through with flying colors.

(Last Stand on Ord Mantell)

- Having become disenchanted with Anzati leader Anis’ ways, Torgo Tahn kills Anis, and then kills his would-be friends before escaping on his own. (To be continued below . . . )

(Aurra’s Song)

- After two years of training with Darth Sidious after slaughtering his former instructors and fellow students on Orsis, Maul trains in extreme conditions on Mustafar for fourteen days straight. After succeeding in this endeavor, Sidious sends him to Hypori with only a survival pack, where he must manage to survive for one full month. The month is extremely rough on Maul, as he is hunted by assassin droids. Finally, when the month ends, he faces his final test. He is confronted by Sidious himself and goaded until admitting that he has great hatred toward his Sith Master. That said, he has completed his final test. Darth Sidious dubs him ready for the “Darth” and “Lord” titles. Darth Maul has been born. Upon returning to Coruscant, Sidious provides him with schematics for Exar Kun’s double-bladed lightsaber, so that Lord Maul can begin building his own. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Wrath of Darth Maul)

Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)

Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan: Last Stand on Ord Mantell (comic series: Ryder Windham)

- Last Stand on Ord Mantell, Part I (comic: Ryder Windham)
- Last Stand on Ord Mantell, Part II (comic: Ryder Windham)
- Last Stand on Ord Mantell, Part III (comic: Ryder Windham)

Aurra’s Song [flashback] [continued] (DHPA00 short story: Dean Motter)

- Aurra’s Song [flashback] [continued] (DHPA00 short story: Dean Motter)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapter 12

36 BBY

- TCW DATE: Ahsoka Tano is born, likely on the planet Shili, homeworld of the Togruta species.
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars)
- TCW DATE: Kidd Kareen, future podracer, is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars)*

*NOTE: Kidd is said to be around Ahsoka's age.

- Crix Madine is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising Sourcebook)
- Kallie Calwell is born to Dannar Calwell and Annileen Thaney on Tatooine. After this, Dannar starts to pull back from risking much on financial plans with longtime friend Orrin Gault. As a result, Orrin will soon own most of the land surrounding Dannar's Claim, something Dannar does not begrudge him at all.*
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)*

*NOTE: I can only conclude that Kallie was born before Annileen and Dannar were married. Annileen is 37 in Kenobi, set in 19 BBY, which makes her birthyear 56 BBY. She does not begin working at Dannar’s Claim and dating Dannar until she is 17, which would be in 39 BBY. They do not announce their engagement and then get married until four years later, 35 BBY. Kallie, however, is 17 in Kenobi, putting her birth in this year. (Her brother, Jabe, is 16 in Kenobi, making his birth next year, around the time of their wedding.)

- Vo Lantes is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #7)
- Shea Hublin is born on Talcene.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- Etsero is born on Adner.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Around this time, Ryun is born on Naboo.*
  (conjecture based on Debts to Pay)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Debts to Pay is about a year or so after ANH. He is in his thirties in the story, which I have rounded to 35 years old.

- Zeck Tambell is born on Coriallis.*
  (conjecture based on Ringers)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Zeck is 35 in Ringers.

- Ilo Jev is born on Wyloff.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- K’li’al Khzr’ry is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Nenevanth Tion is born on Lianna.
  (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #70)
- Partaal Shenvehr is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Rogret Jiriss is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Magris Quill is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Terrel Nakay is born on Haruun Kal.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
- Finis Valorum is re-elected as Supreme Chancellor of the Republic.
  (conjecture based on Cloak of Deception)
- Tandun III will be resurveyed during Finis Valorum’s second term as Supreme Chancellor.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- Tonheld Mining Corporation buys mining rights to the Halmad system.
  (conjecture based on Iron Fist)
- 3D-4, an admin droid, begins working for Warden Sadiki Blirr at Cog Hive Seven. During the the droid’s initial upgrade, she includes a manipulation arm that hold a hypodermic needle with painkillers in it.
(conjecture based on Lockdown)

- Jabba the Hutt begins losing money to the arms sales of Iram Radique. He will put up with this situation for the next three years before exacting revenge on Radique at Cog Hive Seven.
(conjecture based on Lockdown)

- Tenn Graneet enters military service.*
(conjecture based on Death Star)*

*NOTE: Tenn is “past fifty” as of Death Star, which I have interpreted as a birth year of 52 BBY. That being said, I have assumed that he entered military service at age 18 or so, putting his entry here.

- Raith Sienar receives his last interesting contract with the Republic for seven years.
(conjecture based on Rogue Planet)

- Arkeid begins research and teaching at Mriss Academy.
(conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, abridged)

- Gilad Pellaeon lies about his age and applies to Raithal Academy at the age of 15. He is not caught, since a slicer doctors his records for him. He will serve in the Judicial Forces, then the Republic and Imperial Navies.
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Padmé Amidala, seemingly a prodigy, is sent to Theed for continued schooling.
(conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo)

- Young Granta Omega leaves his home on Nierport Seven and heads off to study at the All Science Research Academy on Yerphonia. The money for his studies comes not from his mother, Tura Omega, but from Sano Sauro.*
(conjecture based on The Master of Disguise)*

*NOTE: This assumes that his degree at the Academy came after four years (but this is in doubt because of issues with Xanatos’ new birthdate, since he is Granta Omega’s father).

- Rhys Dallows turns eighteen and gets a job at the Theed Municipal Spaceport. He then also volunteers for service in the Naboo Royal Space Fighter Corps, but finds himself passed up for promotion often, due to his arrogance.
(conjecture based on The Starfighter Trap)

- The Great ReSynchronization takes place. When this happens, Elona 1 (by Tapani Sector naming, at least) is set as the first day of the year, with years now starting at 00 and moving forward from this year. This comes to be called Galactic Standard Time.
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

- Naescorcom sets up a manufacturing center known as Ipsus on Genarius in the Cularin system. Among their first problems is network security, but when they capture a slicer named Loa Tibeeme and give him a job instead of punishing him, the problems become easier to manage.
(conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)

- Dariana, Mother of the Hiromi, begins putting all of her energy into holding back the evil machinations of the Wyrd, now commanded by her older sister, Liriana, the Dark Force Witch of Cularin.
(conjecture based on Liriana: Dark Force Witch of Cularin story on the RPGA website)

- At Cog Hive Seven, inmate (and all-around go-to guy for smuggled goods) Zero is visited by Waleed Nagma, who wants a bulb of Anzati snot garlic as soon as possible. It arrives a week later, and Zero delivers it to Nagma, whom he also saves from being beaten by Vas Nailhead of the Bone Kings for daring to look at them for a little too long. Nagma explains that he is from Monsolar in the Alzoc system, where he was hired by a gangster in a desperate bid to get away from the tribal warfare on his planet, but he wound up arrested with a load of thermal detonators at a spaceport on Urdur, which is an automatic life sentence, and sent to Cog Hive Seven. At the time, he was infested with a Syrox (a “Wolf Worm”), which the gangster said he would help get removed, but now he has little hope in prison. It is growing in his body and soon to emerge. Knowing that it will soon eat its way out of him, Nagma wants to use a folk remedy to draw it out: sleeping with a bulb of Anzati snot garlic on his pillow, which will supposedly draw the creature out. Weeks later, the Syrox, not removed by the folk remedy, is about to emerge. Nagma calls Zero for help. As the creature emerges, Zero kills it. Nagma lives two more weeks, until he is killed in a match against another inmate for Cog Hive Seven’s gambling routine. As his body lay dying, another Syrox (or perhaps a piece remaining behind from the first that developed into its own entity) emerges from his mouth and slips into the ductwork. A Wolf Worm is now loose within Cog Hive Seven, with the mind of Waleed Nagma as the first absorbed into its primitive mental collective.

(The Syrox Redemption)

• On Naboo, a sando aqua monster is chased and forced to beach itself by a pair of opee sea killers. It ends up beached and dying over a series of caverns bearing an alarming secret. Elsewhere, at the Fort Landien Perfumery, Lieutenant Quarsh Panaka of the Royal Security Force, along with Sergeant Bialy, confront a trespassing Gungan named Kroke Modbom. Panaka is injured, but knocks Kroke out. Later, after working a bit on a prototype for a grappling device for the standard RSF blaster, Panaka is called in to see Captain Magneta. There he meets a close advisor to Senator Palpatine named Sate Pestage. Pestage says that Kroke is a wanted fugitive and will be sent off to Coruscant for further trial, while Panaka will search for Kroke’s accomplice on Naboo... after he handles traffic duty to keep people away from the beached sando aqua monster. Near the monster, Panaka’s roadblock is breached by a hurtling speeder. Panaka gives chase and follows the other driver, now on foot, into the caverns below the creature. Inside, Panaka is caught by the other man, who calls himself Veermok. He explains to Panaka that these caverns house a secret facility where he and other anti-conspiracy citizens believe that King Ars Veruna has been hiding evidence of corruption in the highest levels of the Naboo government. Panaka is slightly intrigued, but more interested in getting out of the situation. When the aqua monster’s death throes cause a cave in and a deluge of water in the cavern, only Panaka’s grappling device saves him from being swept away with several dead bodies, both human and Gungan, that appear to have been left to rot. Upon surviving the rushing water, Panaka uses the grappler to catch Veermok, but before he can take him in, Sate Pestage appears and shoots the man. Pestage commends Panaka for his bravery and leads him out, taking some kind of device with him. Outside, Panaka is informed that the entire suggestion of a facility and the bodies is being written off as a pirate operation, and Panaka shouldn’t question Magneta’s decision on the matter. Moments later, all evidence of the situation is destroyed by fire from N-1 starfighters. Any hope of uncovering the truth of corruption is dashed until another day...

(The Monster)

The Syrox Redemption (SWI146 short story: Joe Schreiber)
The Monster (G2/SWH short story: Daniel Wallace)

35 BBY

• Dor Reder is born on Pirralor.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
• Corf Sarb is born on Deylerax.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
• Graf Yonna is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Ekria is born.
  (conjecture based End Game)
• Burellion Tiy is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Koris Haslam is born.*
  (conjecture based on Do No Harm)*

*NOTE: This interprets “mid-thirties” as 35.
• “Pepper” Flarestream is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Serdif Tount is born on Coruscant.
• Antinnis Tremayne is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Vendetta and Prey)
• Jann Tosh is born, presumably on Tyne’s Horky.*
  (conjecture based on The Lost Prince)
*NOTE: This assumes that Jann is about 20 during The Lost Prince.
• Cachi De Maal is born on Duro.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley)
• Keela is born on Haruun Kal.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
• Thrackan Sal-Solo is born to Tiion Sal-Solo and Randil Sal.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
• A’Deen is born to Deen and K’Yark among the Tusken Raiders of Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
• Jareth Sartoris is born.*
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)
*NOTE: This one is tricky. Sartoris served the Empire for “decades,” according to Death Troopers (1 BBY), but the Empire hadn’t been around for “decades” by that point. I thus pushed the event as far back as possible to still have it be the “Empire” that he joined, approximately 18 years prior (19 BBY) to the comment being made in Death Troopers. That would put his birth around this time, since he was 16 when he joined the Empire.
• Preela Dorat is born to Chel Dorat and his wife.*
  (conjecture based on Loyalties)
*NOTE: This assumes that Loyalties takes place the year of ANH and that “in her thirties” can be rounded to 35 years old as of Loyalties.
• Annileen Thaney and Dannar Calwell are engaged to be married. Three days later, Annileen’s father, Caelum Thaney commits suicide after four years of living in the wake of the loss of most of his land and animals. Annileen and Dannar are married. They spend their honeymoon at the Twin Shadows Inn in Kerner Plaza in Mos Eisley and have a fancy dinner at the Court of the Fountain. As a wedding gift to his wife, Dannar creates a nursery where the rest of her father’s animals can be raised at Dannar’s Claim. He even presses an old LiteVan II back into service to service the Claim and its new animals. Later this year, their second child, Jabe Calwell, is born (but-first via caesarian section). Jabe is a difficult delivery, leaving Annileen mostly off of her feet for the next month. After this, his second child, is born, Dannar is unwilling to stick his neck out on any financial projects or schemes with his old friend Orrin Gault.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
• Padmé Amidala joins the Apprentice Legislature on Naboo.
  (conjecture based on Padmé Amidala profile on starwars.com)
• Garm Bel Iblis is elected Senator for Corellia.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
• The planet Mawan is torn apart by civil war, which decimates the world. In the absence of a government, criminal elements take over, and the majority of the population goes underground, where the social order seems to flip upside down. This war is known as the Great Purge.
  (conjecture based on The Shadow Trap)
• On Bespin, Callista Masana trains under Jedi Master Djinn Altis on a Jedi training platform named the Chu’unthor, possibly after the ship that crashed years before on Dathomir. While there, she falls in love with fellow student Geith.*
  (conjecture based on Darksaber and Murder in Slushtime)
*NOTE: Callista trains on Bespin for five years, but we only have a general idea of when she trains, so I can only say that this note here is sometime within that five year stretch, which could either run from here to 30 BBY, or perhaps from 39 BBY through here, or anywhere in between.
• Around this time, Bib Fortuna, a smuggler, is caught on Ryloth and sentenced to death. He escapes and teams up with Bidlo Kwerve smuggling for Jabba the Hutt. Realizing that this could only end in death eventually, Bib convinces Jabba to let him be one of his slavers. Bib returns to the homeworld that snubbed him with a fleet of slaver ships, kicking up Jabba’s operation full-force.*
Ebe Endocott, a proficient podracer, finishes first in the semi-pro Podrace on Malastare.
(conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I—The Visual Dictionary)

By this time, the Techno Union has control of Saleucami, making it one of its new mechworlds.
(conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

Gilad Pellaeon graduates from the Caridian Academy.
(conjecture based on Heir to the Empire)

*NOTE: This date has been revised to reflect the birth date of 57 BBY given by Leland Chee. It was previously assumed to have taken place 41 BBY. This new date assumes that he entered the Academy at the age of 18 and had a 4-year curriculum.

Civil war begins on Haaridan.
(conjecture based on The Master of Disguise)

Galactic Corporate Policy League is formed.
(conjecture based on Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook)

The Courageous is constructed. The YT-1300 vessel is soon overhauled into a war vessel.*
(conjecture based on A Legacy of Starships)

*NOTE: This event takes place during Valorum’s Chancellorship, but no more specific time is given.

Essara Till, under contract to the Garqi Agricultural Combine, begins to miss Naboo. She works her way out of her contract and returns home, where she is asked by Ric Olie to join Bravo Flight and help train pilots for Echo Flight.
(conjecture based on The Starfighter Trap)

By age seven, Anakin Skywalker is scrounging parts to build his own podracer under Watto’s nose.
(conjecture based on The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader)

Late this year, a load of Tarascii explosives is stolen from a BlasTech ordinance satellite by Black Sun.*
(conjecture based on Lockdown)

*NOTE: This is within a year of when the explosives reach Cog Hive Seven, which is 18 months before Lockdown.

A Republic Judicial Forces fleet, led by Terrinald Screed, defeats the Biskaran Pirates during their siege of Niele. During this battle, Screed loses an eye to a Biskaran vibro-ax.
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

Continuing his “advancement agenda,” King Ars Veruna begins breaking with many of Naboo’s traditions, in which new technology, methods of administration, and even legal precedents were imposed upon the people and institutions of Naboo.
(conjecture based on Fact Files via TimeTales, verbatim)

Around this time (several years before receiving the Sith Infiltrator), Darth Maul receives the protocol droid C-3PX. He has little use for the droid over the next few years, but when he receives his Sith Infiltrator, C-3PX will receive a deadly refit.
(conjecture based on Ultimate Adversaries)

Former Morgukai warrior, now Jedi Knight, Ma’kis’shaalas, attempts to contact his old comrade, Morgukai warrior Tsyr, on a mission of peace. Upon seeing his old friend as a Jedi, Tsyr attacks Ma’kis’shaalas. Both leave the confrontation scarred, but alive.*
(conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)

*NOTE: I am assuming that this takes place approximately five years before we meet Tsyr in Rite of Passage.

Mon Calamari Jedi Ambaln is sent by the Jedi Council to the planet Lobaoc to test a young child who may have potential to become a Jedi. Unknown to the Council, during a recent deep cover assignment with a criminal syndicate, Ambaln fell to the dark side and resolved to create his own Jedi Council. After his departure, the Council discovers his fall and surmises that he intends to begin creating his replacement council with the child he has just been sent to find. They dispatch a group of heroes to track Ambaln and hopefully bring him back alive so that he can be rehabilitated.
(conjecture based on Swim Meet)

A group of heroes has been dispatched by the Jedi Council to follow Mon Calamari Jedi Ambaln to the planet Lobaoc. Ambaln was recently sent by the council to Lobaoc to find a young child who may have the potential to become a Jedi. After he left, the council learned that he had fallen to the dark side. The heroes have been sent to capture and return him alive for rehabilitation. They arrive on Lobaoc a day after Ambaln and quickly discover that he had already located the child and gotten permission from her parents to take her for Jedi training.
Later, they come across Ambaln’s droid, Z-N0, who was left with instructions to take anyone looking for his master to a boathouse where Ambaln will talk with whoever is looking for him.
It’s a trap, however, and as the heroes begin walking down the dock to which the boathouse is attached, eight dianogas attack the dock, shaking the heroes into the water. After a fight, the heroes manage to get to the boathouse, only to find Ambaln swimming away. They chase and eventually catch him, but he uses his Force skills to slip away and return to his ship. He takes off with the girl, intending to hide for a few weeks and then return to Lobaoc to begin her training.*

(Swim Meet)

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. There is no indication of when this happens, other than that it is in the Rise of the Empire era. I have put it here in 35 BBY to be close to the prequels, yet not overlapping with them to make things messy.

Swim Meet (RPG short story: Jeff Quick)

Swim Meet (RPG short story: Jeff Quick)
Lay of the Land
Message for You
Ambaln’s Escape
Wrap-Up

34 BBY

- Talon Karrde is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising Sourcebook)
- Sintas Vel, future wife of Boba Fett and future mother of Fett’s child (Ailyn Vel), is born on Kiffu.
  (conjecture based on Bloodlines)
- Thavish is born.*
  (conjecture based on Luke Skywalker and the Shadows of Mindor)*
*NOTE: Thavish is five years older than Han Solo.

- Drigor Tarrens is born.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: The Kathol Outback—“Wildfire”)
- Kharys is born to Klarmère and his mate, though Kharys’ mother does not survive giving birth.
  (conjecture based on SkyeWalkers)
- Magar Jaros is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Pike Angeles is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Venlyss Pnorr is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- One of the many victims of Depa Billaba’s “message” to Mace Windu from Haruun Kal twelve years from now is born.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
- Tallisbeth Enwandung-Esterhazy (later known as “Scout”) is born on Vorzyd 5. She is soon taken to the Jedi Temple for training.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- Lena Missa, a future Jedi student, is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- Hanna Ding is born, presumably on Arnakia.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- Kajin Savaros is born mid-year this year.*
  (conjecture based on Patterns of Force)*

*NOTE: He turns 15 approximately 6 weeks before Patterns of Force, which is 18.3 BBY. (Some have interpreted this as needing to date 15 years backward from 18 BBY, but the year in which he turns 15 is the 19 – 18 BBY time span, which means it should be dated back to the middle of 34 BBY, not 33 BBY as others have suggested.)

- Anakin Skywalker sneaks a ride in Watto's podracer, and Watto is impressed to the point of making Anakin his full-time racer.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I—“The Phantom Menace” novelization)
- Maxo Vista wins a record-breaking five events in the Galactic Games on Berrun.
  (conjecture based on The Dangerous Games)
- TCW DATE: On Scipio, Rush Clovis (age 12) is orphaned by a shuttle accident that kills both of his parents. Those parents had worked for a powerful Muun family as virtual servants, but the head of the household took an interest in Clovis and his education. The same shuttle accident that has now killed Clovis’ parents also claims the life of this benefactor’s wife. The Muun then adopts Clovis into his family and continues to raise him. This allows Clovis to later gain high position within the InterGalactic Banking Clan, despite being human rather than Muun.*
  (conjecture based on The Rise of Clovis)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Clovis and Padmé are the same age.

- Tura Omega dies, two years after her son Granta left home.*
  (conjecture based on The Master of Disguise)*

*NOTE: This assumes that his degree at the Academy came after four years.
- Strabo is shipped to Cog Hive Seven, where his first work detail is laundry.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is 18 months before Lockdown (around 2:9 or 2:10 most likely), making it approximately 1:4.
- A Black Sun Vigo docks an unlicensed shuttle out of Gateway, bound for Cog Hive Seven, carrying a load of Tarasicii explosives that were stolen from a BlasTech ordnance satellite the previous year.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is 18 months before Lockdown (around 2:9 or 2:10 most likely), making it approximately 1:4.
- The Corporate Alliance hires Sikurdian pirates to seize fuel tankers on Malastare, as part of a group consisting of both the pirates and Corporate Alliance Fantail-class destroyers, all under the command of Admiral Trench. They blockade Malastare Narrows, intending to force a settlement that would be to the Alliance’s favor. Malastare requests that Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum intervene, and while he does not take a strong stance in public, he convinces Tyus and Var Hagen sectors to support Malastare, provides funds for the Dugs of Malastare to hire privateers to fight on their side, and sends military “observers” to Malastare in the form of Jedi Kep-She and officer Wullf Yularen (a man who had fought the Sikurdian pirates before). In the ensuing confrontation, the Alliance was defeated, and Trench’s ship was destroyed. He was presumed dead, only to emerge again during the Clone Wars. As for Valorum, the situation creates yet another scandal during his last years in office.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- At an official banquet for the Old Republic’s Hewett senators, Adi Gallia keeps Qui-Gon Jinn from eating Konkeel pie, which is poisonous to humanoids. He believes that Adi Gallia has saved his life, just as if she’d saved him from attack.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Emergency)
- Wullf Yularen resigns his Planetary Security Forces rank and joins the Senate Intelligence Bureau, where he will spend the next decade following an anti-corruption agenda.*
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)*

*NOTE: This assumes that he is sidelined and then made part of Palpatine’s special unit in 24 BBY.
- Padmé Amidala falls for a boy named Palo in the Legislative Youth Program. Eventually, she’ll enter public service, while he will become an artist.
  (conjecture based Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones”)
- Darth Sidious begins to secretly fund Poggle the Lesser’s rise to power on Geonosis in a coup against Hadiss the Vaulted.
  (conjecture based on A Cast of Thousands)
- After having first heard the Jedi Code at age two, Jax Pavan, now age six, finally finds it resonating with him in a way he can truly understand.
  (conjecture based on Patterns of Force)
- Quinlan Vos, having passed the Jedi Trials and constructed his own lightsaber, is promoted by his Jedi Master, Tholme, to the rank of Jedi Knight. Tholme reminds him that as his former Padawan, Quinlan’s mistakes will reflect upon Tholme as well. (To be continued below . . . )

(Hidden Enemy)

- Quinlan Vos, now a Jedi Knight, takes Aayla Secura as his Padawan Learner. Upon doing so, he gives Aayla a Heart of Fire. At some point during the next two years, the two will uncover the secret of the Lodi with the Shu-Wang Prism and save a princess on Xoman III from pirates and a traitor.*
  (conjecture based on Heart of Fire and information found at starwars.com)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Quinlan is 27 in TPM, and that he became a full Knight and took a Padawan at age 25, just like Obi-Wan. This further assumes that Aayla was the same age Obi-Wan was when he became a Padawan.
Either way, Aayla receives the Heart of Fire when she is 13, whether at her initiation as Padawan or not.

- Sometime during Aayla Secura’s early training as Quinlan Vos’ Padawan, a small animal that Aayla is fond of, T’da, is hurt and dies, even though Aayla tries to heal her with the Force.
This allows Quinlan to teach her a valuable lesson about mortality and the Force. (To be continued below . . . )

(Hidden Enemy)

- Ebe Endocott, a proficient podracer, finishes first in the semi-pro Podrace on Malastare for the second time.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I—“The Visual Dictionary”)

- Padmé Amidala, seemingly a political prodigy, becomes Princess of Theed.
  (conjecture based on A Summer’s Dream)

- Vespucla Manufacturing & Exports is formed.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)

- Sia-Lan Wezz becomes Padawan of Jedi Master Lo-Jad.*
  (conjecture based on Invasion of Theed)*

*NOTE: This assumes that she became a Padawan at the age of 13, just like Obi-Wan Kenobi.

- Rann l-Kanu becomes Padawan of Jedi Master Ali-Vor.*
  (conjecture based on Invasion of Theed)*

*NOTE: This assumes that he became a Padawan at the age of 13, just like Obi-Wan Kenobi.

- The Star Morning, a Kogus liner, is built.
  (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)

- R2-D2 is assigned to the Naboo Royal Starship.
  (conjecture based on Episode I: Visual Dictionary)

- Six months after going to Cog Hive Seven with a cargo of stolen Tarascii explosives, a Black Sun shuttle returns to the prison, this time carrying a load of baradium.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is one year before Lockdown.

- Artagan Truax is contacted by Iram Radique, the man whose life he saved shortly after his son Eogan Truax was born. Radique requests that he come to Cog Hive Seven, so they arrange for Artagan and Eogan to be arrested along with a handful of counterfeiters and low-level street enforcers and sent to Cog Hive Seven. During his first month there, Artagan finds Radique, who offers him the chance to build weapons for Radique at Cog Hive Seven in exchange for protection. However, Radique requires that Artagan give up his own eyes as part of the bargain. He refuses and does not hear from Radique again. Now trapped there, Artagan will be matched five times for fighting in Cog Hive Seven before Maul’s arrival, with the fifth match causing him debilitating migraines and other afflictions after the fight. He will continue to look after his son, teaching him to fight and hopefully survive in the days to come.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is “almost a year” before Lockdown, according to Artagan. His story is also related in vague terms by Zero and said to have happened “about two years ago.” Presumably, Zero would be less certain on these details than Artagan and Eogan themselves, along with the novel’s narration, all of which stick with the “almost a year” date.

- Strabo kills the leader of the Gravity Massive gang on Cog Hive Seven and takes over leadership of the gang. He need not return to the laundry area that was his first work detail again for nearly a year.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*
NOTE: This is almost a full year before Lockdown.

- About a year before Maul finds himself in Cog Hive Seven on a mission, a couple of convicts override the prison’s main power grid in an attempt to break into medbay and reprogram the surgical droid there to disarm the charges placed in their body upon arrival. They had worked for Iram Radique, though, and he cannot allow them to leave, so they wind up dead in the medbay.*

  (conjecture based on Lockdown)

NOTE: This is almost a full year before Lockdown.

- At Chancellor Valorum’s request, Mace Windu sends Jedi Knight Naeshahn and Padawan Ebor Taulk to Yinchorr to sue for peace with the increasingly aggressive Yinchorri.

  (conjecture based on Jedi Council: Acts of War)

- Dren Melne returns to Naboo after several years of piloting out in the galaxy at large. He joins Bravo Flight, where he meets Essara Till. The two slowly become more than just friends.

  (conjecture based on The Starfighter Trap)

- At the age of 19 months, Antinnis Tremayne is taken in by the Jedi Order.

  (conjecture based on Prey)

- Around this time, the Theed Palace Space Vessel Engineering Corps designs the N-1 Starfighter for Naboo. Shortly after their production begins, King Veruna has the docking port for the Theed palace moved to right next to the power generators.

  (conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo)

- Samuel and Royce, two prospectors, discover an ore-rich world. Samuel has all rights to their mining operation signed over to him, though, leaving Royce cut out of the deal.

  (conjecture based on Nomad)

- A research station is set up on Almas to study the kaluthin plants put on the world centuries earlier by Darth Rivan as a terraforming agent. Gilloma, an Ithorian who recently left the University of Alderaan, heads the team to cross-breed the plant with others to make its properties transplantable.

  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)

- While Anakin and his friend Amee spend an unusual day off from slave duties, they return to the Mos Espa slave quarters to find the area in chaos. The slave-raider Krayn has struck, taking away Amee’s mother, Hala, and causing such terror in Shmi Skywalker that Anakin forces himself to bury her look of fear in his mind, hopefully to never remember it again. (To be continued below . . .)

  (Path to Truth)

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)

Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)

  Hidden Enemy, Part III [flashback] (comic: John Ostrander)

Jedi Quest (youth novel series: Jude Watson)

Path to Truth (youth novel: Jude Watson)

  Prologue

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest (comic series: Ryder Windham)

  Jedi Quest, Part II [flashback] (comic: Ryder Windham)

33 BBY

- Pendor Gyrr is born on Yag’Dhul.

  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- TCW DATE: Greti is born to Bohle in Torbel on Lanteeb.*

  (conjecture based on Siege)

  *NOTE: She is 11 or 12 in Siege. I have chosen 11 for this date.

- Dannen Lifehold is born.*
• Kolor Delan is born on Pendarr III.
  (conjecture based on Breaking Free)

*NOTE: This entry assumes that Dannen Lifehold and Krell worked together on Alderaan for 3 years. Dannen’s Breaking Free biography says “a few years.”

• Leeds is born.
  (conjecture based on The Longest Fall)

• Drake Lo’gaan is born.
  (conjecture based on Prey)

• Quip Fargil is born on Denon.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

• Corf Binale is born on Cartao to Pilester Binalie and his wife.
  (conjecture based on Hero of Cartao: Hero’s Call)

• Boo Rawl is born.
  (conjecture based on Slaying Dragons)

• Gumbrak Hoxz is born, presumably on Mon Calamari.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)

• Daran Tal is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Luminous Bantha)

*NOTE: This assumes a date of 4 – 5 ABY for The Luminous Bantha.

• Setenna Hase is born on Tralus.*
  (conjecture based on Onslaught at Arda)

*NOTE: She is 34 in Onslaught at Arda I.

• White Marleaux, future Padawan of Maks Leem, is born on Vjun in Chateau Marleaux to Viscount Marleaux and his wife, later known as “Whirry.”
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)

• The Jedi student who will beat Tallisbeth Enwandung-Esterhazy (Scout) in the first round of the Jedi Temple student tournament held when she is 14 is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)

• Danaan Kerr is born.*
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

*NOTE: Actually, he could be born any time before this date. In Wanted by Cracken, which is set 7 ABY, his age is given as “40+.”

• Tardon Golor is born on Ryloth.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

• Redda Macrebe is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #7)

• Glongfurpp is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 2: Yavin and Bespin)

• Teela Panjarra is born, presumably on Corulag. Her parents die shortly thereafter during an accident at an archaeological dig, and she is left in the custody of Chief Scientist Frexton of the Corulag Academy’s Science Service division.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Emergency)

• Winama, Padmé Amidala’s grandmother, whom she had lived with before becoming governor of Theed, dies.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Journal—“Episode I: Queen Amidala”)

• Anakin Skywalker discovers a broken down old war droid. When he access its memories, he learns of the Sith, which worries him. He later speaks to a down and out spacer about the Sith, learning a bit more about their history.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Journal—“Episode I: Anakin Skywalker”)

• Jedi Master Niquon takes Nason Laric as his Padawan Learner.
  (conjecture based on Jedi’s Legacy)

• Westa Impeveri uses political maneuvering to become Senior Counselor of Hedrett on Cularin.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
• Aron Harcourt begins commanding starships.
  (conjecture based on Wreckage)
• Sebulba purchases two Rutian Twileks as masseuses.
  (conjecture based on Episode I Visual Dictionary)
• Kharl Vanneb and Sakme Kelene graduate from the Theed School of Technology and Engineering on Naboo.
  (conjecture based on Peril in the Ionosphere)
• Lorn Pavan gives Tuden Sal some information that helps Sal keep his liquor license.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Hunter)
• Using Nubian components and a Naboo spaceframe, the Naboo Bomber is developed by the Royal Security Force and Theed Palace Vessel Engineering Corps.
  (conjecture based on Battle for Naboo via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• On Haruun Kal, Kar Vastor’s entire family is wiped out by jungle prospectors. He is left to “jungle justice” (tan pel’trokal), but given how in touch he is with the Force in the jungle (pelekotan), he survives, but trades much of his humanity for immense Force power. Mace Windu later believes that Kar Vastor may have found the ruins of the Jedi starship that crashed on the world millennia before, bringing the ancestors of the Korunnai.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
• On Molavar, the gangster boss Magon, who runs local crime from Malcraan, expands her operation to include protection rackets to surrounding moisture farms like the one run by Byrom and Ensa.
  (conjecture based on Nomad)
• Mandi is born.*
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)*
*NOTE: She is “in her early thirties” in Mask of the Pirate Queen, which is likely set shortly after ANH. I have rounded to her being 33 years old.
• A Gungan named Toba purchases a used SoroSuub transport and names it the Sea Killer. He has a sea killer image painted onto it and installs missile launchers.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for the Sea Killer, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)
• Rufus Trammel places a bid on the private platform Tolea Biqua on Dorumaa, moon of Almas in the Cularin system. When the bid becomes public, he backs out. Presumably, he believes there is something worth the investment below the platform . . .
  (conjecture based on Rufus Trammel profile on www.wizards.com)
• By this point, the Trade Federation’s secretive military buildup has come to include several variants of Battle Droids, Colicoid Destroyer Droids, battleships and droid control ships masquerading as freighters, droid starfighters and C-9979 landing ships (courtesy of the Xi Char company Haor Chall Engineering on Charros IV), Baktoid Armor Workshops ground vehicles (the Multi Troop Transport, Armored Assault Tank, and Single Trooper Aerial Platform), and several other designs entering production, such as the droid starfighters. They are nearly ready to move.*
  (conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo and The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)*
*NOTE: There is no way to tell yet exactly when these various advancements entered the Neimoidians’ arsenal. We only know they are recent as of TPM.
• During the Trade Federation military buildup, shortly before the Battle of Naboo, Baktoid Combat Automata produces the E4 Baron Droid, which Nute Gunray intends to use as personal assassin droids in his ongoing feud with the Commerce Guild. Unfortunately for Gunray, the droids will be pressed into service before he can use them for his own purposes.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• During the Trade Federation military buildup, the Federation purchases many PK-series worker droids from Cybot Galactica. However, Republic agent Vyn Narcassan arranges for one out of every 400 of the droids to be spies for the Republic. Unfortunately, the plan is put into motion too late to stop the Battle of Naboo.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• Ke Daiv, a Bloodcarver from the planet Batorine, is exiled from his family, which is well known politically, for killing his childhood friend during a hunting expedition. Adopted as an orphan, Ke Daiv learned that his benefactor’s son was prophesized to die in battle. The son was kept away from any form of combat. However, the youth still had to kill a wild feragriff to prove his adulthood, so they were sent to a preserve on one of Coruscant’s moons to kill the beast. Unfortunately, the prophecy came true when one of Ke Daiv’s shots missed the feragriff and instead killed the other youth. His benefactor cursed him and exiled him. He later finds work with the Trade Federation as a hired assassin.

(conjecture based on Rogue Planet via TimeTales, verbatim)

- On Naboo, Victor Flight’s commanding officer, is arrested for collusion with pirates. He is replaced by Stal Bridda, who slowly begins to rebuild the squadron’s reputation.
  (conjecture based on On Wings of Rogues)

- The planet Yashuvhu is rediscovered by the Republic vessel Pathfinder III. The Republic force is surprised to find scattered human settlement and Force Adepts within the population, who grew from the bloodline of the Jedi who crashed there millennia ago. The natives question the Republic group about the outside galaxy and the Jedi. None is more questioning than Valara Saar. She convinces the Pathfinder III team to take her back to the Republic to train as a true Jedi. Unfortunately, Jedi training will prove too restrictive for her, and she will leave to become a wanderer.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Valara Saar, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- The automated defensive weapons on Uffel, the droid-controlled moon of Genarius, are tested when pirates attempt to raid Q2-2D’s operation.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)

- Adacap Zonsoe leads a number of the pirates in his Blazing Chain Blackshackle fleet to the Dark Side. Having heard stories of the Sith, he becomes a conqueror and begins taking direct control of many of the Chain’s favorite raiding targets. He attacks and defeats the Blazing Chain Arcblade fleet, absorbing the survivors into his own fleet. The remaining Chain fleets band together to oppose Zonsoe.*
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.

- Darsha Assant attends a demonstration held by Yoda, in which Yoda, unarmed, is attacked by Plo Koon, Saesee Tiin, and Depa Billaba. With the Force as his ally, Yoda is never even touched.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Hunter)

- The StarForge Shipyard is established by the parents of Chidee Na Maak.
  (conjecture based on The Far Orbit Project and Pirates and Privateers via TimeTales, abridged)

- Jedi Master Ali-Vor sends Rann I-Kanu to study at Theed’s Royal House of Learning on Naboo. Jedi Master Lo-Jad also sends Padawan Sia-Lan Wezz. At the House of Learning, the two Padawans meet and become close friends with Rorwor (son of a Wookiee diplomat), Deel Surol (child of wealthy Twi'lek merchants), Gulak (a volunteer with the Royal Security Force), Toba (a Gungan scout), Arani Korden (daughter of a Theed noble), and Dane (will eventually be part of the Queen’s handmaidens once Padmé Amidala is elected queen).*
  (conjecture based on Invasion of Theed)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the two Jedi Padawans were sent about a year before the events of Invasion of Theed, which allows them a year to be with their Masters.

- Zegmon Pent, the leader of the anti-Senate group known as the Flail on Coruscant, steals an imitation lightsaber from a technician who had constructed it as an experiment. Pent then uses the fake lightsaber to perpetuate his fake persona as a former Jedi student in order to maintain control over his minions through fear.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of Coruscant)

- A Yuuzhan Vong warrior is captured and sent among a shipment of convicts to Cog Hive Seven. He will fight in Cog Hive Seven’s combat matches for the next six months, until being killed by Maul.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

*NOTE: This is 6 months before Lockdown (around 2:9 or 2:10 most likely), making it approximately 2:4.

- Jedi Master Ali-Vor, on Naboo with Rann I-Kanu, assigns Rann to help look into smuggling activities based out of Theed. With a group of friends, Rann heads for an ancient shrine that the smugglers have converted into a base. The group sneaks inside and discovers that the smugglers are dealing in Veermoks. They free the smugglers’ prisoner, Tasrah Boh (who then heads back to the House of Learning), and then discover the leader of the smugglers, Saidle Frex. In a fierce battle with Frex, the group finally defeats him, bringing an end to the smuggling operation.

(The Smugglers of Naboo AKA The Predators)

*NOTE: This adventure was a tie-in adventure to Invasion of Theed, first presented on the Wizards of the Coast Website under the name The Smugglers of Naboo and then printed in Star Wars Gamer #2 as The Predators. It then appeared again on the WotC site (Do these guys get a hard-on from this story or what?), under the original name.

- In Otoh Gunga on Naboo, the City Bigspace opens.
  (conjecture based on Episode I Incredible Locations)
- Jedi Master Mace Windu writes a new educational document about the Jedi Code, focusing highly on the commentary on the Code written by Odan-Urr.
  (Understanding the Jedi Code)
- The Neimoidian Trade Federation begins to speed its buildup for invading Naboo. This movement is silently directed by Darth Sidious and accomplished with the aid of Jabba the Hutt.
  (conjecture based on Episode I Incredible Locations)
- Around this time, Darth Sidious tells Poggle the Lesser to step up his production of Battle Droids on Geonosis to supply tens of thousands of them to Trade Federation Viceroy Nute Gunray.
  (conjecture based on A Cast of Thousands)
- In light of the Trade Federation’s leaders, the Neimoidians, intending the risky blockade of Naboo, two other Trade Federation species, the Filordi and Caarites, break from the Trade Federation and form the Metatheran Cartel and begin to expose Neimoidian policies in the Cularin system. They begin to replace the Trade Federation as the major economic power in the system, while the Trade Federation can only counter by hiring pirate bands to harass the Cartel.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- Aboard a blasted ship, Aurra Sing is held captive by her former teacher, Torgo Tahn. The Anzati is still attracted to Aurra and is now a bounty hunter himself. He has come to collect a huge bounty offered on Aurra (alive, not dead). He taunts her about their shared past and reveals how he killed Anis and fled the Anzati. In his ego trip, he doesn’t notice Aurra reach for a small control device, which frees her from the device holding her and sends it to ensnare Torgo. The ship, which Torgo had set as a trap for Aurra, was sold to Torgo by Aurra’s agents as a trap for him. She was the one who set the bounty, and she had been planning this reunion for a long time, hoping to collect the bounty on Torgo, which is being offered by the Anzati for his murder of Anis and his companions years ago. Having succeeded in her plan, Aurra takes her new prisoner and heads off to collect her bounty.
  (Aurra’s Song)
- On Kwannot, Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi search for the Jedi Knight Mana Veridi, who has sent a distress signal. When they finally find her, she is battered, but cannot be saved, as Aurra Sing emerges behind her, stabbing her through the chest with a lightsaber. She takes on both of the Jedi before realizing she is outmatched. She then escapes, but they will encounter her again later. (To be continued below . . . )*
  (Once Bitten)*

*NOTE: This could take place any time before Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon’s next (last?) encounter with Aurra Sing.

- After a series of incidents, culminating with Jar Jar Binks trying to steal food from the retired general (now chef) Marshoo, Jar Jar Binks is arrested by his old friend, Captain Tarpals, who tells him that people are calling Jar Jar the “Death of Captain Tarpals.” Boss Nass and the Rep Council have just voted to banish Jar Jar via the Nocombackie Law, and Tarpals is to take him to a cell before his banishment. Before he can do so, though, the two Gungans are attacked by Marshoo. They are saved when their Eopie knocks Marshoo into a pool and Jar Jar smacks him with a pan upon emerging. Jar Jar wakes Tarpals, and they take a bongo to the surface of Naboo, where Tarpals allows Jar Jar to go free in his banishment, instead of facing punishment first. He can’t let Jar Jar be the death of him.

(The Death of Captain Tarpals)

- When Republic citizens on Mayvitch 7 (one of the moons of Amador) are attacked by the Yinchorri, the Jedi Council is asked for assistance. The Jedi had already tried for peace with the Yinchorri when Mace Windu sent Naeshahn and Ebor Taulk to Yinchorr, but last night, their mutilated bodies were delivered to Supreme Chancellor Valorum. They now know that the Yinchorri are, at present, immune to mind tricks, and that at least some of them wear cortosis shields, which short out lightsabers on contact. The two Jedi never had a chance. Mace intends to head for Yinchorr alone. Elsewhere on Coruscant, Darth Sidious (Senator Palpatine of Naboo) and his apprentice, Darth Maul, discuss the situation with the Yinchorri. Sidious is preparing to make his move for the Chancellorship, and a species like the Yinchorri, greatly aggressive and immune to mind manipulation through the Force, can be a major obstacle in gaining absolute power. Maul wishes to be the one to go after the Jedi on Yinchorr, or the Yinchorri, but Sidious contacts the mercenary Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk, who will be his “hand” on Yinchorr to either prod the Yinchorri to kill the Jedi (ridding Sidious of them) or to fight the Jedi and die in the attempt (ridding Sidious of the Yinchorri). At the Coruscant spaceport, many Jedi have arrived, voluntarily joining Mace in his mission. Mace, Saesee Tiin, Qui-Gon Jinn, and Obi-Wan Kenobi will go to Yinchorr. Adi Gallia, Eeth Koth, Tsui Choi, and Theen Fida will be going to Yitheeth. Plo Koon, Micah Gillett, Lilit Twoseas, and K’Kruhk are going to Yibikkoror. When one group finds the Yinchorri command center, they will call the other teams to assist in taking it out. Yoda, Yarael Poof, and Oppo Rancisis see them off. They each take a diplomatic cruiser and emerge from hyperspace into an ambush. Gallia’s team manages to trick one Yinchorri ship into destroying two others, causing the first ship to retreat. Mace’s team uses a trick Tiin knows to go into hyperspace and essentially go through the planet (my guess is that they leaped into hyperspace, skirted the mass shadow, then popped out on the other side of the realspace planet). On Gillett’s ship, the Jedi plan to make it look like they are abandoning the ship and need the Yinchorri to score a decent hit to make it believable, which the Yinchorri manage to do on their own. (To be continued below . . .)

(Jedi Council: Acts of War)

- As the Jedi head out to stop the Yinchorri crisis, a new political crisis grows on Coruscant. Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum is being forced to change some of his political positions, as piracy and cartels like Black Sun plague the planets that are Trade Federation clients, yet the Trade Federation is not yet allowed to have its own military force, nor does the Republic have a standing army. The idea emerges to have the planets under attack create their own militaries, but who will be taxed to pay for it? Those worlds can’t afford it, the Trade Federation sees taxing them as unacceptable, and the Core Worlds see those worlds as a region they do not intend to pay to protect, since the crisis does not affect them directly. The compromise idea of taxing the free trade zones that the Trade Federation fought hard to create. This creates resentment from worlds in those zones, along with the Trade Federation, Commerce Guild, Techno Union, and Corporate Alliance, just as giving those entities voices in the Senate was intended to do when the Sith Lords maneuvered to have them admitted to the Republic in the first place. Sidious visits Plagueis (now forced to wear a breather) on Sojourn. Plagueis has spent the last 20 years to master manipulating midichlorians, and he has mastered the energies of order and disorder, creation and entropy, and even life and death. Sidious shows Plagueis a video of Maul’s own training, using a saber-staff, based on the designs of Exar Kun and prompted by Maul attaching two separate lightsabers together at one point in his training. They agree that Maul should witness the Yinchorri attack on the Jedi Temple that Sidious has arranged. (Speaking of Maul, Plagueis has had their friends at Sienar create a Sith Infiltrator starfighter, based on early Sith designs, for Maul’s eventual use, and Plagueis is having it delivered to Sojourn.) They agree that the time is right to engineer a conflict that Finis Valorum cannot recover from, and they also decide that it is time to begin moving King Ars Veruna of Naboo into position for that crisis, along with moving Neimoidian Viceroy Nute Gunray into the Trade Federation Directorate. To begin making the Sith known to Gunray, Sidious sends him a cloned rare bird from Sojourn secretly to get his attention . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Darth Plagueis)*

*NOTE: Even though this section of Darth Plagueis claims to be set in “34 – 32” BBY, it is obvious by the tie-in to Jedi Council: Acts of War in the very first chapter of this section that it actually begins in 33 BBY instead, just like the first section was obviously starting in 66 BBY, rather than in 67 BBY, as the time span for that part indicated. Moreover, it repeatedly refers to “twenty years” having passed since the previous section, which cannot be an exact number if the death of Vidar Kim is indeed in 52 BBY. It appears to be an estimate instead.

- Back on Coruscant, news of the Yinchorri conflict reaches the remaining Jedi, but Yoda senses another danger . . . as several Yinchorri stalk the grounds of Coruscant. The Yinchorri attack the Jedi Temple, getting caught as they enter. Tieren Nie-Tan and Jude Rozess are killed, but so are all but one of the Yinchorri, who is interrogated. Elsewhere, the Yibikkoror team ejects all escape pods, convincing the Yinchorri that they have abandoned ship. They proceed to Yibikkoror. The Yitheeth team arrives on Yitheeth and are attacked, but they learn (from a Devaronian) that the Yinchorri base is not on Yitheeth. The Yibikkoror team is attacked as well, but take refuge in one of the world’s floating cities, while still being pursued. As the Jedi on Coruscant determine that there must be someone else pulling the Yinchorri’s strings, the Yibikkoror team prepares to make a stand against the Yinchorri, but Plo Koon fears that if the Yitheeth team does not arrive as backup soon, it could be their last stand. Back on Yinchorr, Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon have discovered what looks like the staging area for a Yinchorri invasion. Back on Yibikkoror, the team faces off with the Yinchorri as the Yitheeth team arrives to save them. The team escapes, and Adi Gallia reports back to the Jedi Temple that they have captured the Devaronian who set them up. Elsewhere on Coruscant, Darth Sidious informs Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk that one of his agents has been captured. It would appear that Ville is working for the Dark Lords of the Sith, whether he realizes who they truly are or not. Soon, the combined non-Yinchorri Jedi force reaches Yinchorr as Mace Windu’s team is under attack by advancing Yinchorri. The newly arrived Jedi enter the fray, hoping to help their fellows escape. In the battle, Lilit Twoseas receives a possibly fatal blow trying to save K’Krugh from a Yinchorri. Then Fida is also gravely injured. As the other Jedi attempt to get the wounded Jedi to the ship to escape, Micah, Obi-Wan, Qui-Gon, and Plo Koon remain behind for the moment to cover the retreat. Back on Coruscant, Supreme Chancellor Valorum manages to get enough votes to pass a resolution creating a blockade and embargo against the Yinchorri. Back on Yinchorr, the escaping Jedi take their wounded and dead (note: dead that did not pass into the Force) into their ship to escape, finding their Devaronian prisoner attempting to call Ville. The Jedi trace the transmission to the Yinchorri command center inside a lifeless world close to the Yinchorri sun, the same location Yaddle and the Jedi Council have determined must be the base. As Plo Koon, Obi-Wan, Qui-Gon, and Micah cover the escape, Micah is shot. He remains behind, letting the other three escape as he uses his lightsaber to cause a massive explosion. On Coruscant, Darth Sidious senses Micah’s death and sends for Ville, but Ville is already running scared now that the plot has been foiled. The Jedi task force heads for the Yinchorri command planet, even as Valorum sends the Republic Navy to attack the same location. They arrive at almost the same time, and as the Navy covers them, the Jedi fly their vessel into and through the planetoid, destroying the Yinchorri operation. Back at the Jedi Temple, Valorum (via hologram) reports to Yoda that the quarantine on the Yinchorri system is about to begin. The Jedi soon return, and with their arrival, the Jedi Council must now begin to decide on who will replace Micah on the Council. Mace Windu and Yoda are considering Ki-Adi-Mundi, who has stood in for Micah in the past. Yoda has a more pressing worry, though. Ville had no motive for wanting to incite the Yinchorri, so who was really behind the plot? Elsewhere on Coruscant, Sidious and Darth Maul relish in their victory in oppressing the Yinchorri and eliminating a potential future threat, all thanks to the Jedi Knights . . .

(Jedi Council: Acts of War)

- Boss Nass and the Rep Council of Gungans on Naboo grant Jar Jar another try to live in Otoh Gunga, rescinding their recent banishment.*

(conjecture based on The Death of Captain Tarpals and Rescue in the Core)*

*NOTE: The Death of Captain Tarpals shows a banishment that was totally unlike what was described in TPM. The Bongo Rally, which is part of Episode I Adventures shows a manner which matches what was said in TPM.
As they are both C-Canon, one can only presume that The Death of Captain Tarpals takes place before Rescue in the Core (the first part of the third Episode I Adventures cycle), and that Jar Jar somehow managed to be allowed to return between the two stories.

- After a petition to remove Jar Jar Binks to a far-off bubble is torn up by Boss Nass, and the Rep Council’s suggestion of removing Jar Jar to a military post on the surface is also dismissed by Boss Nass, Jar Jar Binks is given a job as a bubble cleaner for the Otoh Gunga Zoological Research Facility to keep him out of trouble. While cleaning the hrumph cage, Jar Jar accidentally lets one loose and chases after it, not realizing that in doing so, he is letting the others escape as well. They are all eventually rounded up, but by then, they have made it to the control room and accidentally released the Great Hohokum and two dwarf opee sea killers from their bubbles. The Director of the Zoological Research Facility finds Jar Jar asleep after chasing one hrumph and takes him to Boss Nass. Jar Jar is not going to be punished, but will be sent to the quarry, where prisoners were sentenced to shape and reshape boulders generations before. The quarry has been shut down for a long time, but they will reopen it, just for Jar Jar. Upon reaching the docking platform to take Jar Jar to the quarry, Nass discovers that the military bongo is out chasing down escaped animals, and Rep Teers has already left in the Rep heyblibber, so they must take an untrouble bongo, which means that only Jar Jar, Nass, and Commander Wollod can go. They leave and head for the quarry, but on the way, they learn that a seakeak has endangered Teers’ heyblibber and the lives of Teers and the pilot, Major Fassa. They prepare to go on a rescue mission, but the shockwave from the seakeak hits the bongo and knocks all but Jar Jar out. Jar Jar manages, with minor problems along the way, to get them into the safety of the quarry, but they are trapped inside by a cave-in. Jar Jar makes sure the other two are okay, then sets out to find a way to get out of the quarry. As he sets out, he finds an albino dianoga from the research facility that had hitched a ride on the bongo. Jar Jar knocks it out and prepares to take it back with them. After battling veermoks and sea creatures, Jar Jar makes it to the control room and starts to fill the room with the bongo with water to raise them to an escape tunnel. As Jar Jar races back to the bongo, he finds the two dwarf opees and makes them come with him. Finally, Jar Jar gets the bongo and the opees out of the area and to where they help save the heyblibber from another creature before finally arriving at a bubble in Lake Umberbool. Teers, Nass, Wollod, and Fassa will be found, but Captain Tarpals still takes Jar Jar into custody, until Nass asks to see him. Nass thanks him for saving their lives, and will allow Jar Jar to remain on Otoh Gunga on probation and to go watch the Festival of Warriors that will soon be held. Nass then introduces Jar Jar to Fassa, who happens to be his gorgeous (by Gungan standards) niece, and who also happens to believe she owes Jar Jar a life debt for saving her and Teers. Fassa asks if Jar Jar will be competing in the festival, and he can only gulp and know that since she has asked, he’ll have to compete.

(Rescue in the Core)

NOTE: I include this story here, before The Death of Captain Tarpals and the rest of the Episode I Adventures stories because Jar Jar is still living in Otoh Gunga at this time, which ends with The Bongo Rally (yes, he must’ve returned after his earlier banishment in The Death of Captain Tarpals), but all of the previous Episode I Adventures stories have given the impression of taking place much closer to the time of The Phantom Menace than when Jar Jar was supposed to have been banished. Thus, since the Star Wars Missions stories, which were precursors to the Episode I Adventures stories, leaped around a tiny bit in sequence, I assume that Episode I Adventures can as well, and this cycle simply takes place before the earlier Episode I Adventures books.

- Jar Jar Binks has been assigned to Lake Umberbool to prepare for the Festival of Warriors, but Major Fassa’s pursuit of him causes him to lie and say Boss Nass wanted him to work in the kitchen. This brings Nass fuming after Jar Jar, but he soon learns why Jar Jar has lied and forgives him the error. To prove that he is not just a clumsy foul-up, Jar Jar enters into the Big Nasty Free-for-All, which Fassa had expected him to do. Among the 436 contestants are Jar Jar, Nass, Fassa, and Captain Tarpals. As the event is about to start, Rep Teers calls Nass and tells him that droids have been sighted in the area. Nass says that subduing a droid will give the competitors bonus points. The game begins and the competition is fierce. Tarpals gets off track and uses a kaadu to catch up, and Moppo Dop accuses him of cheating. As per the rules, Tarpals kicks Dop’s butt, so Dop retracts the accusation. Elsewhere, Fassa disables droids, coming upon a submarine. In the sub, droids prepare to attack the arena. She stops both the droids inside the sub and the torpedo that was fired, then finishes the Big Nasty by crossing the finish line with the sub, which is okay by the rules.
Fassa is first. Tarpals is second. Jar Jar is thirteenth. Nass is forty-eighth. Nass calls his people together to discover what the droids were up to. Elsewhere, the pirate Captain Swagg learns of the droids’ failure, but is happy at their fate because now the Gungans will undoubtedly take time to study the droids . . . while he can plunder the Gungans’ sacred place, stealing the area’s statues . . .

(Festival of Warriors)

- On Naboo, as the other Gungans are at the Festival of Warriors, Gungan historian Rep Been heads for the sacred place to study the ruins. Upon arrival, though, he is captured by Captain Swagg and his droids, who are there to plunder the area. Back at Lake Umberbool, Boss Nass, Captain Tarpals, Major Fassa, Jar Jar Binks, and engineer Lob Dizz look over the droids that were captured by Fassa during the Big Nasty Free-For-All. When the droids won’t give up information about their mission, the Gungans have a couple of the out of commission droids turned into garbage disposals, using Jar Jar’s voice through a megaphone to scare the droids. The droids aren’t necessarily scared, but they sure as hell don’t want to end up talking like the Gungans, so they tell the Gungans about Swagg’s plans, and that he still has ten droids. Along with Commander Wollood, the group of Gungan races for the sacred place to stop Swagg. They send Jar Jar (thinking he’ll get killed, though Fassa doesn’t like that one bit) to Been’s captured sub (which Swagg was going to use to replace the sub Fassa stole) to find and rescue Been. Through sheer dumb luck, Jar Jar actually succeeds in getting aboard and defeating some droids, but Been is not aboard. The Gungans race through the jungle to stop Swagg and the droids, and along the way, Jar Jar gets caught in a trap. Tarpals finds him, but decides not to free him yet, so that he can’t cause any more trouble. Tarpals gets aboard Swagg’s ship as he takes off with one statue. He attacks Swagg and manages to hold him at blasterpoint, while freeing Rep Been. Swagg escapes in an escape pod, though, while Tarpals pilots the ship back to Naboo. After talking to the others, Tarpals realizes he still has to get Jar Jar down, so he races for the trap. Jar Jar is cut down, but he’s quite dizzy from blood rushing to his head. Playing off of Tarpals’ guilt, Jar Jar gets permission to attend the upcoming Bongo Rally.

(Pirates from Beyond the Sea)

- Boss Nass is not amused that Major Fassa has taken a life debt to Jar Jar Binks, but, luckily, Nass discovers from Rep Been that since Jar Jar is on probation, the life debt is invalid. As Jar Jar returns to Lake Umberbool for work, the pirate Captain Swagg sets course to return to his captured droids, 3-S and 4-S, who are in Gungan custody . . . and then resume his attack on the Gungans as revenge for foiling his pillaging of the Sacred Place. He arrives and frees the droids, preparing also to destroy the lab where the droid 4-S was turned into a trash bin. At Lake Umberbool, two bongo racers, Spleed Nukkels and Neb Neb Goodrow, get into an accident during prerace trials. Jar Jar, having been given his Bongo Rally tickets but being talked into working at Boss Nass’ party in Otloh Gunga, goes with the two racers back to Otloh Gunga, where the racers intend to get other bongos. Upon arrival, they find Lob Dizz knocked out and explosions threatening the lab. Dizz and Neb Neb go to fix the city’s communications array to warn those in Lake Umberbool of Swagg’s return, while Jar Jar and Nukkels chase down Swagg, who has stolen a ferry. They arrive at Umberbool and Jar Jar manages to take out one of the two droids. Swagg and the other droid escape as Nukkels twists her ankle. Jar Jar continues after the intruders, discovering that one of them has taken the place of racer Brooboo Seep. Jar Jar quickly warns Tarpals and Fassa and escapes before Nass can see that he’s not at Otloh Gunga. Tarpals races after “Seep” and manages to take out the second droid and to board Swagg’s stolen ferry. Swagg takes a shot at Tarpals, but it ricochets and kills him. Tarpals brings the ferry under control and is a hero. He saves Jar Jar’s hide by not saying how he knew Swagg was coming. Later, at Boss Nass’ party, Jar Jar re-heats food in a gasser when the door gets stuck. In trying to fix it, he manages to cause an explosion, which floods the area and wrecks Boss Nass’ heyblibber. Having fouled up, yet again, while on probation, Jar Jar is banished from Otloh Gunga to the surface of Naboo.

(The Bongo Rally)

- Ebe Endocott, a proficient podracer, finishes first in the semi-pro Podrace on Malastare for the third time. He then buys a ship and heads for Tatooine for the Boonta Eve Podrace to be held a year later.
On Arorlia, Jedi Master Qui-Gon Jinn and his Padawan, Obi-Wan Kenobi, discuss the Living Force, while escaping a squollyhawlwk and dealing with a treacherous Moggonite named Mosko Bolpa. They come upon the lair of a Silan, one of the primordial creatures of the Dark Side, and Qui-Gon decides he must destroy it. Obi-Wan insists on joining him, and they defeat the creature. The galaxy has one less Dark Side creature. After the battle, Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon discuss their role in destroying the creature, and Obi-Wan receives a lesson in being part of something much greater and much better than he can imagine.

The patriarch of Ootoola is killed by a Purist movement. All other members of his family, with the exception of his daughter, the princess, are also killed. The Purist Council becomes the new government of the planet.

Shortly before the Battle of Naboo, TaggeCo forms a partnership with the Trade Federation, since several members of its Executive Board are House of Tagge loyalists.

On Ootoola, Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk, a Devaronian, has been hired by the remnants of the old government to smuggle the last remaining royal, the princess, off of the planet. The princess is accompanied by Naradan D’ulin, a Mistryl. During their escape, Ville arranges for them to be captured by the Purist Council, who want the princess dead. When D’ulin mentions she can pay more than the Purists can, Ville arranges for an escape. They make it to Dur Sabon aboard Ville’s ship, the Inferno, with the help of his ship’s artificial intelligence, NT.

Republic diplomats visit Cerea three times. On the last time, they leave behind “Representative” Bron.

Saboteurs shut down Lommite Limited conveyors on Dorvalla.

In the period leading up to the Battle of Naboo, Darth Sidious' Thyrsian Sun Guard is instrumental in assassinating many who stand in the way of his plans for Naboo.

The Republic attempts to gain the entry of the planet Cerea. Cerea, however, refuses to join based on their anti-technology stance. Representative Silais, a Twi'lek diplomat, arrives and speaks to the Cerean elders on behalf of the Republic, but the elders choose to give their support to the anti-joining views of Jedi Knight Ki-Adi-Mundi. His point of view is that the world is fine on its own, and that the relatively few places that have been touched by the Republic have soiled the planet's natural beauty already. Ki returns home to his honor and bond wives only to find that his daughter, Sylvn is still consorting with a group of Techrats, young people who desire the technology that the elders forbid and the Republic offers. Sylvn, it seems, has fallen in love with Maj-Odo-Nomor, one of the more vocal of the Techrats. Ki proceeds to a Techrat rally to bring Sylvn home, and finds a human named Bron stirring up anti-elder, pro-technology, pro-Republic support from within the Techrat ranks (much like a toned-down version of Adolf Hitler in our galaxy will later do). Just as Ki enters the scene, Bron has managed to get the crowd's mob mentality riled up to a frenzy. Ki attempts to dissuade them from rash action, but a group of Cerean youths, led by none other than Sylvn’s boyfriend Maj, decides to attack Ki. The Techrats manage to take his lightsaber and are about to continue their attack when Maj accidentally activates Ki's lightsaber and inadvertently kills a fellow Techrat. Sylvn and other friends of Maj whisk him away to safety. Ki, being an honorable man, investigates the body of the murdered Techrat. Just as he prepares to retrieve his lightsaber and take the body of the boy to the authorities, several Techrats see him and the dead boy and assume that he was the murderer. Bron uses this opportunity to accuse Ki of murder and create more discomfort between the elders and the Techrats. At a hearing of the elders, Representative Silais uses Republic technology (surveillance cameras and analysis of skin cells found on the lightsaber) to prove that Ki was not the murderer. The elders still refuse to return Ki's lightsaber to him, and Silais uses his...
Ki is able to reach Ephant Mon's base of operations, only to find Ephant Mon, Bron, Maj, and Ephant Mon's confederates. Ki realizes that Ephant Mon is preparing to launch a pod with illegal weapons. Ephant Mon decides to chain the two girls to an ion attractor to be "fried" when an approaching ion storm reaches the palace. Ki uses Jedi mind tricks on an incarcerated confederate of Ephant Mon, Skeel, to obtain information about Ephant Mon's operations. With the aid of some Jedi mind tricks, Ki is able to defeat the droid, but is wounded in the process. The arrival of a messenger from the Cerean elders complicates matters as well, but when the messenger gives Ki his lightsaber back—as sent by the elder—as Ki is able to defeat the droid, but is wounded in the process. Ki recovers in a bacta tank, and the Jedi Council business, which is none of the Federation's concern (especially since Tatooine is not part of the Federation's jurisdiction), is allowed to proceed to the surface. When Ki informs them (with a bit of Jedi mind trick aid) that he is on Jedi Council business, the decision is made that since Maj and his confederates are most likely off-planet, Ki should be given the authority to track them down anywhere in the galaxy. Ephant Mon, Maj, Twin, and Sylven take Ephant Mon's freighter to Tatooine. The ship is disabled in orbit by a hold of hungry divviks. Upon learning of the ship's whereabouts and cargo, the elders take Ki from his bacta tank early and send him to save his daughter and bring back the criminals. With him on his borrowed starship are prototype ("reject") droids Gim (maintenance), B3NK (systems integration, computer operations, navigation, and tactical speculation), 2-ROB (medical), and FLTCH R-1 (pilot), the very droid that almost killed him and put him in the bacta tank to begin with, simply reprogrammed. Ki and the droids make it to Tatooine and the ship, where Ki realizes that Ephant Mon is somewhat Force-sensitive and will lead him to where he and the others are located on the ship. To get to them, however, he must make his way through the hold of hungry divviks. He makes it through the creatures to a bulkhead. On the other side, Mon, Twin, Maj, and Sylven still sit in the escape pod, unable to leave because someone must manually open the outer door for the pod to escape. Ephant Mon knows this and tells Ki that if he does not manually open the escape pathway, he will launch the pod anyway, killing all inside. After Maj is killed while trying to stop Ephant Mon from launching the pod, Ki opens the outer door and the pod is launched toward Tatooine. Ki cuts his way into space as well to escape the divviks. Once FLTCH has picked up Ki, they head for the planet, only to be fired upon by a Neimoidian Trade Federation vessel. Once Ki informs them (with a bit of Jedi mind trick aid) that he is on Jedi Council business, which is none of the Federation's concern (especially since Tatooine is not part of the Federation's jurisdiction), they are allowed to proceed to the surface. When Ki and FLTCH find the pod, only Maj's body is left behind. Ephant Mon has taken Sylven and Twin with him to Jabba's palace. Jabba and Ephant Mon decide to chain the two girls to an ion attractor to be "fried" when an approaching ion storm reaches the palace. On approach to the palace, Ki's ship is attacked and he jettisons the ship's garbage as a "decoy," while really using it as cover to send J1M on a covert mission. At the palace, Ephant Mon and Jabba prepare to escape in a shuttle full of illegal weaponry. The Jedi ship reaches the palace, and Ki and FLTCH save Sylven and Twin. They then take the Jedi ship to pursue the shuttle. They have no authority to stop the ship, but when the ship releases its garbage, J1M escapes the ship, where he had been covertly obtaining information. He informs Ki that the ship flown by Jabba and Ephant Mon was carrying illegal weapons to the Neimoidian Trade Federation. The group returns to Cerea. The situation regarding Maj is cleared up, but things are coming to a head in the Republic. Several senators have gone into seclusion. Silais has been recalled to Coruscant. A diffuse disturbance in the Force can be detected. Ki returns to his family. Soon thereafter, Ki's bond-wife Shea gives birth to another daughter. On Coruscant, Mace Windu (presumably) and Yoda speak of Ki's future. Yoda wishes for Ki to join the Jedi Council, given his experience standing in on the Council for the late Micah Gillett, and Windu agrees to call it to a vote. The vote passes and Ki leaves Cerea to take his rightful place in the Jedi Council on Coruscant.*

(Prelude to Rebellion)*

The Star Wars Comics Companion suggests that this story takes place six months before TPM. Normally, I would take that at face value and put an exact date for this story, but the SWCC tended to round very loosely at times, and it also suggested that the Darth Maul series was happening concurrent to this story (both were placed at six months before TPM), which makes no sense in relation to the other Maul stories in this time frame. Thus, I leave this as near the end of 33 BBY without specifying any more specifically.

- In Watto's junkyard, Anakin Skywalker and Kister Banai discover a discarded Cybot Galactica protocol droid. Anakin takes it and decides to rebuild it. His mother allows him to do so because he seems meant to take care of it. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Thank the Maker)*

*NOTE: This placement is based on the fact that Anakin is already nine when this happens in The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader, but he will need time to work on it before TPM. Since Anakin is nine as of the middle of this year, this event can be late this year, rather than early next year.

- TCW DATE: Jedi Masters Ring-Sol Ambase and Dooku are aboard a Malarian Alliance ship under Captain Krempil, helping the Alliance deal with the McGrerrr Gang at the edge of Wild Space. They manage to chase the Random Mallet into a nebula, but after the ship nearly disappears into the nebula, then escapes into hyperspace, they investigate a strange small craft that appeared during the encounter at the nebula. Aboard, they discover a young Chiss child (though they have no knowledge of the Chiss), whom they sense is strong in the Force. Despite Dooku's own misgivings about the child and the "coincidence" of coming upon the pod, Ambase insists that they take the child back to Coruscant to be trained as a Jedi, assuming they are unable to figure out a way to get him back home. At the Jedi Temple, the Jedi determine that his species is the "Chiss" and that his name is "Nuru Kungurama" (actually Kung'urama'nuruodo). (To be continued below . . . )*

(Guardians of the Chiss Key)*

*NOTE: This is 11 years before Duel at Shattered Rock and 11 years before the Clone Wars, which not only puts it here but also manages to lock the date for the entire Secret Missions series into the first year of the Clone Wars.

- Eventually, Qymaen jai Sheelal and Roneru lij Kummar are separated during combat on the beaches of Kalee, where Kummar is slain by Yam'rii warriors. The grief-stricken Sheelal journeys to the island-monolith of Abesmi to beseech the gods to raise her from the dead so he can see her one last time, but it is not to be. Sheelal tries to bury his grief by taking ten wives and fathering thirty sons, but he eventually discovers that this isn't helping him deal with his grief. Instead, he embraces that grief, understanding that he is meant to mourn Kummar for the rest of his days. He takes the name "Grievous" and begins to spread the agony to his enemies, becoming the most savage Kaleesh warlord of all time. He gathers up other tortured Kaleesh warriors and creates his "elite" warrior group (the Izvoshra Khans). Grievous and his elite led the Kaleesh in defeating the Yam'rii that had invaded Kalee, then pursuing them through the remainder of their colony worlds, as far as Tovarskl. The Yam'rii, though, call in the aid of the Trade Federation and the Republic to help stop the Kaleesh (quite the ironic move). The Republic Judicial Department sends a Jedi team under Jedi Masters T'chooka D'o'on and Jmmaar, who rule in favor of the Yam'rii and put extreme sanctions on the Kaleesh. The Huk War effectively ends, leaving Kalee economically devastated, as the Kaleesh begin dying in droves on Kalee. Eventually, InterGalactic Banking Clan Chairman San Hill approaches Grievous with a promise to relieve Kalee's massive debt in return for Grievous and his elite working for the IBC as enforcers and "collections agents." Grievous does so, and San Hill holds up his end of the bargain, even going so far as to eventually provide IG-100 MagnaDroids for Grievous when he claims that regular battledroids aren't intelligent enough.*

(conjecture based on Unknown Soldier: The Story of General Grievous)*

*NOTE: This date is entirely conjectural. I have simply assumed that it takes place about four years or so before Grievous becomes a cyborg, though it could be any time after he teams up with Kummar, but before he becomes a cyborg.

- Weeks after the Yinchorri attack on the Jedi Temple, Palpatine visits King Ars Veruna on Naboo, discovering that Veruna intends on cutting business relations with the Trade Federation and having Palpatine vote against them on the issue of taxation of free trade zones in the Senate. They have now built the Space Corps that Veruna long intended, and he believes it is time for Naboo to assert some power in its own right. Palpatine tries to talk him out of it, letting him know that the Senate will be allowing the Trade Federation to arm its ships (which it had already been building up to in secret) in a compromise to get the Trade Federation to back off on its opposition to the free trade zone taxation. Palpatine says they should maintain their Trade Federation ties and perhaps get aid from Hego Damask, but Veruna scoffs at the idea. Thus, Veruna shows himself to now be working against the Sith Lords (Palpatine and Damask AKA Sidious and Plagueis) and should be removed from power, especially once Veruna starts talking about revealing dirty little secrets from their dealings over the years. Meanwhile, Darth Plagueis, on Sojourn, is nearing the end of his quest for immortality. Eight years (or so) earlier, he and Sidious, after intense meditation, had been able to exert a level of sovereignty over the Force (particularly the Dark Side), which the Dark Side did not resist. On that same day, he had allowed Darth Venamis, whom he had kept alive as an experiment, to die, then brought him back to life, repeating this again and again. However, the Force then seemed to retreat from him, despite being able to use the Force to start healing his own body at a rapid pace. He could not repeat the life-generating act, but he is of the belief that it is again within reach . . . Maul reports on the Yinchorri raid on the Jedi Temple (weeks after the fact), then witnesses (out of video range) Sidious contact Nute Gunray of the Trade Federation, bringing him into his schemes overtly. Once Gunray is in the fold, Sidious tasks Maul with studying up on the planet Dorvalla and its mining companies (Lommite Limited and InterGalactic Ore), believing that they may be the key to fully ensnaring Gunray and power for the Neimoidian. Darth Plagueis, shortly thereafter, meets with Jabba the Hutt, who wants him to convince his allies to stop funding Gardulla the Hutt’s efforts on Tatooine. In return, he lets Plagueis know that the new leader of the Bando Gora cult that is involved in a plot with contaminated death sticks is none other than a fallen Jedi: Dooku’s failed apprentice Komari Vosa . . . (To be continued below . . . )”*

(Darth Plagueis)*

- On the world of Dorvalla in the Videnda sector, Patch Bruit, chief of field operations for Lommite Limited’s lommite mining operation on the world, is nearly killed when yet another instance of sabotage on behalf of their competitors, InterGalactic Ore, causes two drones to crash and explode into the castle serving as the operation’s control center. When Bruit goes to see LL’s leader, Jurnel Arrant, Arrant agrees that it has to have been InterGalactic, and authorizes Bruit to hire mercenaries to strike back. They also receive a transmission from Neimoidian Trade Federation representative Hath Monchar, who attempts to convince Arrant to give the Federation exclusive rights to shipping in the sector. Arrant refuses. On Coruscant, Darth Sidious (Palpatine) has his own plans. To gain greater allegiance from the Neimoidians and elevate Viceroy Nute Gunray to a permanent position on the ruling board, which will give Sidious a hand in a higher place, he sends Darth Maul to work toward forcing InterGal and LL to annihilate each other, allowing the Trade Federation to take over the sector. Maul arrives as Bruit sets a plan in motion with the Toom Clan to have them wipe out a group of InterGal ships as they arrive at Eriadu. During a meeting with his subordinates, Bruit suggests that perhaps both companies should make way for a better organization, unknowing that Maul is recording the discussion. That night, Maul sneaks into Bruit’s home as he’s sleeping and accesses Bruit’s computer, getting all he needs to know about the Toom Clan deal. He then alters recordings of Bruit and contacts InterGal with a message supposedly from the Toom Clan offering to allow them the chance to hire the Toom Clan to wipe out the LL ships at Eriadu. InterGal’s Caba’Zan then contacts Nort Toom himself to confirm the deal, and Toom sets it up just fine, although he is surprised to hear of this “offer” he supposedly made. The Tooms set up a plan to wipe out both of the companies ships at Eriadu, via sabotage, so they can collect money from both sides. Soon, at Eriadu, as Bruit, Assant, and representatives of InterGal meet with Lieutenant Governor , they witness disaster when both companies’ ships emerge from hyperspace in a spectacular collision, which virtually wipes out both companies’ ability to function as a company. The Toom Clan goes into hiding on Riome, but thanks to some subterfuge from Maul, a combined LL/InterGal payback force finds them easily. The attack goes brutally, coming near an end when the Toom Clan is pretty much wiped out. Knowing he cannot let anyone live to identify his role in any of this, Maul leaps into the fray, killing everyone else, saving Bruit, who asks what it is all about, for last. Maul replies that it is part of a grander plan, then Force chokes Bruit to death. (To be continued below . . . )

(Saboteur)

• While Darth Maul is on his first mission on Dorvalla, Palpatine (Darth Sidious) meets with Jedi Master Dooku, who is considering leaving the Jedi Order. After all that has happened recently, he feels the need to speak his mind about the Republic, and with him having received word that Komari Vosa may be dead on Baltizaar (where she has actually taken control of the Bando Gora), he is sick of seeing Jedi fall at the whims of the Republic. He considers the idea of leaving the Jedi Order to retake his hereditary title of “Count” on Serenno, and both he and Palpatine seem to agree on the idea that the corrupt Republic needs to be torn down and started anew, and that something like a civil war (which Dooku thinks they are close to anyway) could be the key to that happening. He reveals that if one more Jedi dies due to indolence and moral equivocation on behalf of the Republic and Jedi Council, he will leave the order (not realizing that it will be his own former apprentice, Qui-Gon Jinn who will pay that price). He also reveals to Sidious that the Jedi are becoming preoccupied with the idea of an individual who can “bring balance to the Force” in such troubled times, based on an ancient prophecy. Palpatine then visits the local Refugee Relieve Movement location, where he meets with Ruwee and Jobal Naberrie, whose daughter, Padmé, was appointed governor of Theed by King Veruna in order to placate his detractors. Now, Palpatine convinces them that she should run for Queen of Naboo, and he intends to reveal many of Veruna’s secret dealings to seal her election. (To be continued below . . . )

(Darth Plagueis)

• Darth Sidious contacts Nute Gunray. The Trade Federation has swept into the region around Dorvalla to take over shipping, while Lommite Limited and InterGalactic Ore have become Dorvalla Mining, working under the Federation. Nute Gunray has also found his position elevated. Everything has gone as Sidious wished. For now, he sends Darth Maul back to his training, with the suggestion that he read up on Black Sun in preparation for a new mission very soon.

(Saboteur)

• Around this time, Artagan Truax has his first seizure as a result of injuries received in his fifth match on Cog Hive Seven.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is 2 months before Lockdown.

• An unlicensed shuttle from the Black Sun Syndicate (the same one that delivered Tarascii explosives and baradium to Cog Hive Seven) delivers another cargo to Cog Hive Seven for Iram Radique. This time, the cargo is weapons-grade depleted uranium, allowing Radique to create a proscribed nuclear device.*
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is about one month before Lockdown.

• Bissley Kloth is appointed navigator and second-in-command of the prison barge Purge, working under Captain Wyatt Styrene. *
  (conjecture based on Lockdown)*

*NOTE: This is “recent” as of Lockdown.

• Above Dorvalla, the Trade Federation vessel Revenue, under the command of Duality Dofine, comes under attack from a group of Nebula Front pirates led by Arwen Cohl, and including his partner/love interest Rella and the Rodian named Boiny. They had sneaked aboard in a cargo pod and manage to take over the ship, seizing the aurodium ingots the ship is carrying and setting it to self-destruct. As the pirates move to escape in their pod (which houses small shuttle), two other stowaways, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Qui-Gon Jinn, emerge from their pod (and the lancet hidden inside) to put a tracking device on Cohl’s escape craft. The Jedi had been hunting Cohl for quite some time. Even as the Trade Federation vessel Acquisitor races to the rescue and Cohl's Hawk-Bat hopes for a rendezvous, the Jedi in their lancet engage in a high speed chase against Cohl's vessel—a chase which ends only when Cohl takes his back into the Revenue just as it explodes. Cohl is presumed dead, but Qui-Gon is not so sure. At any rate, the battle is over, and Dofine, upon being rescued, is promoted to command of the Acquisitor. It seems the Trade Federation, or at least Viceroy Nute Gunray, had planned this all along. On Coruscant, this latest assault by the militaristic wing of the Nebula Front against the Trade Federation has put Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum in a tight spot. He is being asked to either have the Republic protect trade regions, or allow the Trade Federation to build its own internal army for protection. Senator Palpatine of Naboo convinces him that he should propose taxing trade routes, which many senators in the Trade Federation's "employ" would object to, but which would be a decent counterpoint in return for allowing the Trade Federation to build up its armaments. Even as Qui-Gon Jinn argues in vain that the Jedi should come in to help stop the Nebula Front, the major Neimoidian players in the Trade Federation (Nute Gunray, Rune Haako, and Hath Monchar) communicate via hologram with their mysterious benefactor, Darth Sidious (who, unbeknownst to them, is Senator Palpatine). The Neimoidians are wary of Sidious, given that he is a Sith Lord and they have only recently begun working with his assistance, but Sidious' plans will not be thwarted. He allowed the Nebula Front to know of the Revenue and the ingots specifically so that the attack could be used as an excuse to call for the build-up of a Trade Federation army, and it appears to be working. The only obstacle seems to be that the Trade Federation Directorate is opposed to spending money on arms. Perhaps they should be dealt with as well. A short time later, Cohl and his crew, very much alive, make their way back down to Dorvala's surface to finish their contract, even as Qui-Gon laments being unable to continue his pursuit of Cohl or the Nebula Front who hired him. In the Senate, Valorum makes his taxation proposal, which prompts a call for committees and the like to discuss it. In order to make things go faster, and further his own goals, Palpatine suggests that Eriadu host a summit to discuss the matter. Valorum agrees. At a Nebula Front meeting, Cohl hands over the ingots to the leader of the Front's military wing, Havac, and his second, Cindar. Cohl and Rella want to get out of the business and retire, but when Havac offers the kind of contract one could retire well on, he has second thoughts. A short while later, even as the Trade Federation begins receiving its first prototype battle droids and the like, Palpatine meets with Havac, and accepts the ingots from the Revenue in order to help buy votes and influence to help the Nebula Front and thus the Rim. Palpatine is, as always, playing every side against each other. He has the ingots placed in a special "bribe" account, for lack of a better term. Elsewhere, a short time later, Valorum is on his way to his personal shuttle during a protest of his taxation proposal when he is attacked by Nebula Front assassins. The assassins fail in their attempt only because Qui-Gon Jinn and Adi Gallia arrive, having learned Cohl is alive, and save him just in time. But if this was a true assassination attempt, it was a badly executed one . . . Palpatine uses this as an excuse to convince Valorum to have the Jedi begin to intervene against the Nebula Front, thus taking the Trade Federation's side, to a point. That night, Sate Pestage, one of Palpatine's advisors, plants computer records in Senator Orn Free Taa's computer, for purposes that will be clear later. The Jedi manage to track one of the assassins back to the Nebula Front on Asmeru, and Valorum asks Mace Windu and Yoda to sanction sending a team of Jedi to Asmeru with the standard judicial forces. On Asmeru, Cohl has decided to return to work, but Rella is still gone. He leaves his Hawk-Bat on Asmeru and goes on a mission for Havac and Cindar to find qualified assassins. Havac informs him that their target is Supreme Chancellor Valorum, presumably during the summit on Eriadu. Cohl reluctantly agrees to take the mission. Soon, several Jedi (Qui-Gon, Obi-Wan, Depa Billaba, Saesee Tiin, Ki-Adi-Mundi, Yaddle, and Vergere) arrive at Asmeru on one vessel, while other judicials are in another. They are welcomed to the surface (the Jedi vessel that is), but the other ship is soon destroyed and the Jedi and their judicial counterparts are taken as hostages for the Nebula Front, who hope it will force Valorum to include the Nebula Front in the trade summit. To save the Jedi, the Council sends ten of the twenty Jedi who had been sent to Eriadu for the summit, leaving the summit more vulnerable. On Asmeru, a slave helps lead the Jedi to freedom, where they get caught in the middle of a revolt on behalf of the non-militant Nebula Front operatives and the slaves against the militant faction. Qui-Gon’s informant (who told him of Cohl’s intentions are Dorvalla earlier) dies in the battle, but as the other Jedi arrive, the day is won. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan take the Hawk-Bat and track Cohl to Karfeddion, where he has hired several operatives and hooked back up with Rella for the mission. On Eriadu, Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum arrives and is given a place to stay. He is to stay with Lieutenant Governor Wilhuff Tarkin, at Palpatine’s request, instead of with his own family, who owns a major business on the world. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Orn Free Taa gives the information planted by Pestage, which he believes he found accidentally, to Senator Bail Antilles of Alderaan for review. It could be big trouble for Valorum. On Karfeddion, Cohl has left, but when Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi gather information on Cohl’s growing group of mercenaries, Cindar appears and tries to kill them. Cindar ends up being the one lying dead. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan race for Eriadu. (To be continued below . . .)

(Cloak of Deception)

- With Darth Sidious leaving Coruscant to attend the summit on Eriadu, Maul, who has not been allowed to be part of several other machinations of his Master, is beginning to have doubts that Sidious will ever truly make him a Dark Lord of the Sith and reveal the full workings of the Grand Plan. (To be continued below . . .)

(Darth Plagueis)

- On Eriadu, Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum arrives and is given a place to stay. He is to stay with Lieutenant Governor Wilhuff Tarkin, at Palpatine’s request, instead of with his own family, who owns a major business on the world. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Orn Free Taa gives the information planted by Pestage, which he believes he found accidentally, to Senator Bail Antilles of Alderaan for review. It could be big trouble for Valorum. On Karfeddion, Cohl has left, but when Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi gather information on Cohl’s growing group of mercenaries, Cindar appears and tries to kill them. Cindar ends up being the one lying dead. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan race for Eriadu. On Eriadu, Cohl’s crew knocks out a customs crew and uses their attire and several creates to sneak through customs. Cohl, Boiny, and Rella then meet with Havac. Havac reveals to Cohl that the others are just decoys to be sacrificed as needed, and Cohl is revolted. As a result, he tries to turn his back on Havac’s plan, but Havac ends up killing Rella and gravely wounding Cohl and Boiny. (To be continued below . . .)

(Cloak of Deception)

- Darth Sidious, diverts on his way to Eriadu briefly to visit Naboo at the request of King Ars Veruna. Ian Lago, close friend of Padmé Naberie (later Amidala), was present when Palpatine convinced her parents that she should run against Veruna to become Queen of Naboo. Ian passed that information to his father, Kun Lago, who is Veruna’s closest advisor. Veruna is furious and intends, upon reelection (which won’t happen if the Sith release information about Veruna that will cause major scandals), to replace Palpatine with Kun Lago as Senator. Palpatine leaves for Eriadu. (To be continued below . . .)

(Darth Plagueis)

- As the Trade Federation directorate arrives for the Eriadu summit and meets with Nute Gunray, Havac meets with the people Cohl recruited and informs them that they will be set up as spotters to tell which entrance Valorum will use at the summit, and another will act as a sniper to purposely miss Valorum. The true threat is to be a special commander battle droid prototype that Havac has brought. It will be infiltrated into the Trade Federation droid ranks (via Sidious’ maneuvering) and will react to a sign of danger and a personal command remote, to carry out the true violence of the day. As they leave, Havac makes sure to leave behind a map holoprojector. Very soon, Cohl and Boiny, injured, find the holoprojector and know it was just planted. They leave it there, knowing that Havac must have contacted the authorities and possibly the Jedi of their whereabouts, hoping to make them patsies. Instead of heading for the map location, Cohl and Boiny head for the summit, where they intend to take out Havac in revenge. Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan soon enter the same building and find the holoprojector. Again, they know it must have been left on purpose, but they do a flyby of the map area anyway, and are nearly shot down by the mercenaries before they manage to take them into custody. None will reveal the truth of the matter, though. They head back to the summit. At the summit Valorum is arriving, and most of the others have already arrived, including the Trade Federation delegation with one extra battle droid and Cohl and Boiny, who are making their way up to the media booths where Havac, whom they know to be a former holodrama creator, will be located. Cohl and Boiny are soon caught by Qui-Gon, but they agree to work together to stop Havac. Soon, on the media level, the Jedi and mercs capture Havac, but are told that the control for the droid is with the sniper of the group. Qui-Gon and Boiny race to stop the sniper. Below, Lott Dod, the Trade Federation Senator, calls Nute Gunray away from the Trade Federation delegation due to a shuttle problem. In the upper levels, Qui-Gon speaks to a helpful man whom Boiny then shouts is the sniper. The sniper shoots Boiny, but Qui-Gon takes the man out. Unfortunately, the day cannot be saved. The activity with the sniper alerts those below to trouble, causing the Trade Federation to activate a personal shield around themselves and their battle droids. Above, Havac reveals to Cohl that his target was never Valorum but the Trade Federation, and the remote is actually in his “camera.” Cohl and Havac struggle, ending in both of their deaths, but the camera is able to send its signal. Below, the commander droid activates and, using its ability to command other droids, turns the other twelve battle droids with it . . . toward the Trade Federation directorate. The droids assassinate the entire directorate, unstoppable due to the force field. When the shield finally falls, the droids have deactivated due to central computer override, but the damage is done. The Neimoidians now move up into full control of the Trade Federation, as Darth Sidious had planned all along, and now the Federation has even more incentive to continue its military build-up. (To be continued below . . .)

(Cloak of Deception)

- Darth Sidious arranges for Maul to be inserted into Cog Hive Seven to procure a nuclear weapon for the Bando Gora from Iram Radique. His false background calls him “Jagganath” and refers to him as a mercenary charged with murder. He is taken to Cog Hive Seven aboard a prison barge with other inmates and greeted upon arrival by the smack-talking corrections officer Augustine Smight. Subatomic electostatic charges are placed into both of Maul’s hearts by medical droid GH-7, as is the case for any inmate, so that any escape attempt or refusal to return to his cell for “matching” in Cog Hive Seven’s gladiatorial combat bouts can result in immediate execution (as can infractions that cause a guard to use a “dropout” keypad to activate the charges).*

NOTE: If this sounds vague, read the summary that immediately follows this event listing.

- Darth Sidious has sent Maul into Cog Hive Seven, a massive prison space station, on a mission to seek out the legendary and reclusive (some say imaginary) arms dealer Iram Radique. He is to make arrangements to acquire a proscribed nuclear device from Radique and get it into the hands of the Bando Gora (led by Komari Vosa, who Maul does not yet know is a former Jedi Knight). Sidious’ goal, as far as Maul knows, is the further destabilization of the Outer Rim, which a nuke in the hands of the Bando Gora would achieve. His hidden goal, though, is that the weapon might one day be used against Darth Plagueis, killing his Sith Master (of whom Maul is not yet aware at all). Maul cannot reveal his identity as a Sith Lord, however, and is thus ordered to avoid use of the Force. He has also been sent in without his lightsaber staff. The warden of Cog Hive Seven, Sadiki Blirr, and her brother, Dakarai Blirr (a math genius), run the prison in cooperation with the Galactic Gaming Commission (under Gaming Commissioner Dragomir Chlorus, with whom Sadiki had a brief fling while she was a manager at the Outlander Club on Coruscant). Twice a day, an algorithm designed by Dakarai selects two prisoners based on numerous statistics and pits them into a one-on-one battle to the death, which is then broadcast and bet upon throughout the galaxy (including bets being placed by the Blirrs based on whomever the algorithm predicts will win each match). For the last six months, the champion of Cog Hive Seven’s combat has been a strange alien that few have ever seen (a Yuuzhan Vong warrior). On Maul’s first day, during his first bout under his assumed name of Jagganath ("The Tooth"), Maul kills this Vong warrior, surprising everyone and becoming the new champion and a possible target for other inmates. Sadiki is contacted by Clorus, who warns her that the Commission is keep an eye on the Hive because it seems to win most of its bets, but the Vong was favored to win in the most recent match. He warns her that she should be wary of other interests who are beginning to target the prison. (He is vague at first, but events will bear out that it is Jabba the Hutt of the Desilijic Hutt Clan who is most interested in punishing Cog Hive Seven, but not for the reasons Chlorus or Sadiki would assume.) After the call, she finds that InterGalactic Banking Clan agent Vesto Slipher has arrived for a “routine” inspection. (Unbeknownst to her, Slipher has been sent by Hego Damask, though he is unaware that Damask is the Sith Lord Darth Plagueis, whose existence is still kept secret from Maul by Sidious.) Maul (prisoner 11240, implanted with subatomic electrostatic charges in both of his hearts like all other inmates) visits the mess hall, where he sees a Twi’lek surrounded by other inmates that seem to be guarding him, which include a Weequay. After arranging a distraction (an explosion in the kitchen), Maul speaks with Chadra-Fan inmate Coyle, who identifies the Twi’lek as Zero (as in “Inmate Zero,” on Cog Hive Seven since the beginning, and known as the being who can get anything one might want within the prison) and the two dominant gangs in the prison, the Bone Kings (led by Vasco “Vas” Nailhead) and the Gravity Massive (led by Strabo). Coyle suggests Zero would know how to contact Radique and that he might be able to meet with Zero in Ventilation Conduit 11-AZR. Meanwhile, they are observed by fellow inmates Artagan Truex and his sixteen-year-old son, Eogan Truex. (Artagan was a member of the Bando Gora nearly two decades ago, but he escaped them soon after Eogan’s birth and his wife’s death by saving Iram Radique’s life when the Bando Gora plotted to kill him. Instead of offering the Truxes protection immediately, Radique left them, so Artagan made his way as a fighter. Around a year ago, Radique contacted Artagan with an offer to come work for him on Cog Hive Seven in return for protection, so it was arranged so that they would arrive as prisoners. However, when the price of joining Radique’s operation included the loss of his eyes, Artagan refused Radique’s terms, leaving himself and Eogan stuck on Cog Hive Seven and out of contact with Radique, who returned to the shadows. Artagan has been training Eogan to fight, working on the Fifty-Two Fists technique, but he knows that Eogan is not a fighter, so they must find a way off of the prison station.) Artagan has arranged with Corrections Officer Voystock to help them escape in return for khipu (a specifically-knotted string – think Andes Mountain civilizations before the Europeans came if seeking a real world example) that points him to an account with winnings saved up over Artagan’s years of professional fights. Before leaving the mess hall, Maul approaches Strabo and claims the Bone Kings want a meeting to fight. Maul is then asked what he told Strabo by the Bone Kings, to whom he claims the Gravity Massive want a fight. He points both groups to the ventilation shaft where he intends to seek Zero. Meanwhile, Sadiki introduces Slipher to Dakarai, who is mute by choice and has installed a silencing feature to turn the control center into an anechoic chamber (i.e. a place with no sound whatsoever). At the ventilation shaft, Maul is not met by Zero but by a CO working for him. Maul holds him up above the shaft (where he encounters a clawbird) when the Bone Kings and Gravity Massive arrive and begin fighting each other, finally forcing him to tell Maul the location of Zero’s cell. When the CO tries to use his “dropbox” (a keypad all CO’s carry that can detonate the charges in inmates’ hearts by pressing their inmate number) to execute Maul for his actions, Sadiki, watching from the control room, overrides it, which can only be done when a fighter is already chosen for the next bout. The system then sounds the alarm for a new bout, forcing Maul and everyone else to return to their cells. Maul is matched against an injured, hungry, kill-crazed wampa, which breaks its bindings and battles Maul, who cannot use his Force abilities. Finally, Maul kills it by punching its way into its chest and literally crushing its heart with one hand. (The fact that the prison had a wampa to put into the bout sparks talk about what other creatures the prison might contain, including the Syrox, the so-called “Wolf Worm” of Cog Hive Seven, which is thought by many to be a myth. Zero knows that it is all too real, given that he saw its “birth” three years ago and thought he had killed it as it emerged from Waleed Nagma, though some of it must have remained to regenerate and escape into the prison.) Zero is accosted by Vas Nailhead, who claims that after their fight in the shaft, the Bone Kings and Gravity Massive have decided that they do not need Zero as much as he needs them, thus they can kill him. Zero talks his way out of the situation by referring to how he can send and receive messages and also knows about Vas’ sister, Delia, who writes to him frequently. At this veiled threat, Vas lets him go. He arrives at his cell and finds Maul waiting for him. Zero admits to sending the CO to trap him in the shaft, having learned of Maul’s interest from Coyle, but he has no ill will toward Maul; he was simply being cautious. Maul requests the location of Radique, and Zero claims that Radique does not exist. (He even relates the tale of the Truexes, after a fashion, claiming that the reason those prisoners are stuck there is because Radique doesn’t actually exist, which is false.) Maul makes a deal with Zero: Maul will make certain that the gangs no longer bother Zero, as long as Zero gets him a subspace transmitter that cannot be traced. Shortly thereafter, Maul sends a message via maintenance droids to both Strabo and Vas Nailhead, claiming it came from the head CO, Halcon, calling the Bone Kings and Gravity Massive to a meeting in the laundry facility. Once both groups arrive, Maul locks the doors and starts to fill the room with cryogen. He “saves them,” claiming that Halcon is tired of dealing with them and wanted to kill them in a way that could look like an accident to Warden Blirr. Since both Strabo and Vas were trying to escape and save themselves, rather than saving their gangs, Maul declares himself the new leader of both gangs. They can remain separate, but they answer to him, and they are not to touch Zero. (He also learns that the gangs work for Radique by having components to weapons show up in shipments, which they then each take and put in their cells. The parts then vanish from their cells by unknown means. They are paid via khipu with account numbers, just like Artagan’s.) His end of the bargain kept, Maul is directed by Zero to the morgue, where Zero has hidden the subspace transmitter for him. Maul uses it to contact Darth Sidious. Sidious encourages his efforts to find Radique and notes Maul’s desire to play a larger role in the Grand Plan, given that he was left out of the assassination of the Trade Federation Directorate at the Eriadu Trade Summit and the attempt made on the life of Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum. On Coruscant, as Sidious ends the transmission from within the LiMerge building, he heads out to take an air-taxi to the Senate, only to find Plagueis (in his Hego Damask persona) waiting for him. Sidious claims to Plagueis that he sent Maul to Cog Hive Seven to assassinate Radique and remove him as an unpredictable element in the galaxy. Plagueis note to Sidious that he has sent Slipher to the prison, so that he might help Maul find Radique (which, of course, is a way of keeping Sidious in check, since Plagueis rightly suspects that there is more to Sidious’ plan than to have Radique killed). Plagueis then returns to his work on Sojourn. Back on Cog Hive Seven in an area called Nightside, Artagan and Eogan practice just enough to make Eogan tired, then they are met by Voystock to begin their escape plan. (Eogan is too tired to disagree with the plan, which was the point of training him that day.) Their plan is for Voystock to disrupt the primary and auxiliary power feeds to the medbay, forcing maintenance to run a “black start” that will give them fifteen minutes to have the GH-7 deactivate or remove the charges in their hearts. Emergency procedures, will turn GH-7’s photoreceptors into security feeds for the authorities, though, so they will be seen, though Artagan seems unconcerned, since they cannot be as easily tracked without their charges. Seeking information on Radique, Maul speaks with Gravity Massive second-in-command (and rising after Vas’ fall from grace in the laundry) Izhsmash, who is a high-level slicer and orders him to slice into the prison computers to obtain a list of all of the inmates and their criminal histories. As he giving these instructions, the escape attempt begins. Izhsmash recognizes a brownout as an escape attempt, based on a similar plan that failed nearly a year ago. It is believed that those who were killed trying to escape last time were trying to leave but stopped because Radique will not let anyone who works for him leave and risk exposing him. Maul races for the medbay when Izhsmash confirms where the bodies were found last time. Anyone Radique would kill to keep quiet could help Maul find him. Even as this is happening, Sadiki is speaking via comm with Chlorus, who clarifies for her that the Hutts are plotting against Cog Hive Seven, not due to gambling but due to Iram Radique’s supposed weapon dealing operation there cutting into Hutt profits. She and Slipher are in the control room as the escape attempt begins, putting her into a difficult position with Slipher looking over her shoulder in such circumstances. In the medbay, GH-7 puts its needle into Eogan, but then voices are heard coming. The needle retracts, but Artagan and Eogan cannot be sure if Eogan’s charge was deactivated. (Artagan never even had a chance to try to have his deactivated.) Voystock had lied about the fifteen minutes of privacy, since he takes orders from Radique, who cannot let the Truexes leave. (He even throws the khipu with the account back at Artagan, refusing it.) Voystock knocks out Eogan, and Artagan attacks him, taking his dropbox. Unfortunately, Voystock still has his blaster, which he uses to blast off the bottom half of one of Artagan’s legs. Before he can kill the defiant father, though, Maul emerges from the shadows and snaps Voystock’s neck. Maul questions them, offering to protect Eogan (since Artagan certainly can’t now that he is so injured and unlikely to have his leg replaced), if they will help him find Radique. Before going unconscious, Artagan claims that Eogan knows everything about Radique. (It is a lie, though, meant to make Maul protect Eogan no matter what happens to Artagan.) Corrections Officers finally make it through the door and take Maul to Sadiki. Rather than ordering his death, she offers him a job working for her, but he refuses. Rebuffed, she vows to match him again and again until he dies (or, in theory, could accept her offer). She has an even greater interest in him because brain scans from his bouts suggest telepathy or some other ability. (Fortunately for his mission, she seems not to have realized his Force attunement.) As he is taken away, he notes that her office is bugged, something she had not realized. (Slipher put a listening device under her desk.) Slipher, meanwhile, uses a “blue witch” (a prototype device that works against all electronics to essentially cloak the person from any kind of security systems but is unlikely to work for very long in total, which Damask required Slipher to take with him) to sneak into an unfinished part of the prison and contact Damask (Plagueis). Plagueis confirms his belief that Radique is real. He notes that over the last 18 months, parts have been delivered to Cog Hive Seven that suggest that Radique is building, among other things, one or more proscribed nuclear weapons. (The conversation also confirms that Slipher has been given Maul’s name and orders to find Radique before he does.) Back in his cell, Maul is visited by a clawbird, which flies off. On instinct or a nudge from the Dark Side, Maul follows it to an unfinished area of the prison that is filled with “statues” made of bones from dead inmates, made by Coyle, who is there working on his newest work of “art.” When discussing things made at Cog Hive Seven, Coyle tells Maul a riddle: “Slimy to touch, greasy to feel, but mix me with blood and I’ll eat through steel.” Zero arrives and speaks of bones being plentiful due to the large Syrox within the bowels and walls of the prison. Maul tells him he has confirmed Radique exists because comments from Artagan when he was injured confirm that he was the prisoner that Zero spoke of earlier, who had come for Radique. In another riddle, Zero explains (in a roundabout way) that Maul followed the clawbird because it is a “rook,” which means nothing to Maul at the time, just like Coyle’s riddle. Maul then tries to speak with Artagan in medbay, but he is gone. He goes to Eogan, but the boy claims to know nothing of where his father is, nor of Radique. Maul then receives the prisoner list from Izhsmash and finds that there is a prisoner on the list that few other prisoners, if any, seem to know about. The prisoner’s name is “Rook,” giving meaning to the riddle. Maul has Izhsmash rig the prison computer to set him up to fight Rook in the next match. Maul will make a diversion for him to do his slicing. Maul brings more bones to Coyle in the mess hall as an offering, then asks Coyle, whom he now knows was imprisoned for counterfeiting credits, if he could create 300,000 counterfeit credits for him (with Zero getting him the materials he would need). He will do so in return for something he would like for his art—the skull of a varactyl, a beast currently being held in the prison for a future match. Elsewhere, Artagan awakens to find himself held by Zero and an Aqualish (Rook). They want to know what he told Maul about Radique, but alarms begin to sound. Maul has broken his way into the varactyl’s pen and battled the beast, killing it and ripping off its head, which is explained away as him protecting others by killing the beast as it broke out of its pen. This provides the distraction necessary for Izhsmash to rig the next match. Maul takes the skull to Coyle, who offers him “white Metaxas root,” a flavorless, odorless substance that can kill with a few ingested granules, but Maul refuses it, not needing assistance in killing. The call for the next match rings out, and Maul returns to his cell to find CO Augustine Smight (high on spice) waiting for him. Under orders, Smight ties Maul to the bench in his cell with Nylasteel zip-ties (the same as used on the wampa). As the match nears, the cell begins to fill with water. By the time it nearly fills, the door has opened and the match has begun. Rook, the aquatic Aqualish, attacks and has a distinct advantage. For her part, Sadiki (fretting after Dakarai until he finally shows up in the control room) is given a tongue-lashing by Chlorus because Maul was not supposed to fight Rook, thus the information provided to gamblers was incorrect. Assuming that this means that they are trying to break rules or rig the matches, Chlorus rules that the Galactic Gaming Commission is shutting down Cog Hive Seven’s gambling activities, effective immediately. He advises her to find Iram Radique and expose him to Jabba the Hutt in hopes of warding off any Hutt retribution when Cog Hive Seven loses its limited protection from the Commission. He informs her that the Hutts have already infiltrated Cog Hive Seven to find Radique, but not with prisoners. The infiltrators are among the guards, some of whom have arrived with falsified backgrounds. Back in the flooded, connected cells, Maul is able to remember Coyle’s riddle and use greasy mold from around the bench, mixed with his opponent’s blood (drawn with his horns) to create an acidic mixture. He uses it to free himself, then uses it to attack Rook, who reveals that Radique had arranged for him to never have to fight. Maul gives him a relatively clean death when he reveals a crucial piece of information: the parts that “vanish” from cells are actually collected by clawbirds, all of whom follow directions from Radique, after a new shipment is coming the very next day. (He also crawls a “0” in blood, which Maul only later realizes was a reference to “Zero,” rather than a letter “O” or a circle.) Maul returns to the morgue to contact Sidious after the match, but his master is growing impatient. As Maul ends the call, he is stunned and taken away. He awakens to find himself with his legs and arms tied up (for drawing and quartering). He is being held by Zero (who works for Radique) and, in the shadows, the Weequay he saw with Zero on his first day, this time with a clawbird on his shoulder). Nearby, Artagan, still a prisoner, is dying from blood poisoning to his infected lost limb, and Izhsmash has been killed for slicing the match that ended in Maul killing Rook. Once they leave Maul and Artagan alone and set a machine to begin pulling Maul apart, Artagan, nearly delirious, reveals that he was with the Bando Gora before betraying them to save Radique. Maul also realizes (wrongly, it will turn out) that the Weequay was Radique. Knowing that Artagan could contact the Bando Gora to aid in his mission, Maul dislocates his shoulder, frees himself, and takes Artagan to Eogan’s cell.

Meanwhile, Sadiki intends to keep the matches going, despite what Chlorus ordered. She and her administrative droid, 3D-4, holds a meeting of the guards she suspects of working for Jabba. She contacts Jabba directly, offering him the chance to save any of them who work for him, but, of course, he denies that any of them do. Smight and a few others actually do, and some even speak up, but since he refuses to acknowledge them, Sadiki intends to have them all killed. She has opened the cells of the Bone Kings and Gravity Massive, so that they could reach the ready room. Sadiki had ordered the guards to leave their dropboxes behind, meaning that she is the only one in the room who could kill the inmates. Thus, she allows the inmates to enter and attack the guards. Smight escapes through the same infrastructure opening that had allowed the gangs to enter, but he soon runs into the Syrox, which he sees kill Vas Nailhead, Strobo, and many others before Smight is able to escape deeper into the prison. In Eogan’s cell, Maul gets Eogan to ask the nearly-dead, very delirious Artagan how to contact the Bando Gora. Artagan also reveals to Eogan that Zero answers to another name (suggesting, again wrongly, that Zero is Radique, though he does indeed have another identity). Maul then returns to Coyle, accepts the white metaxas root, and then puts it into Zero’s special meal (Zero always eats better than the other inmates, thanks to Radique). Maul offers to take him to medbay for an antidote if he tells what he knows. Maul tells him that he needs to buy a nuclear device from Radique for the Bando Gora, but Zero argues that Radique would never sell him one if that is who it is going to, since the Bando Gora tried to kill him. When Zero will not further cooperate, Maul will not take him to the medbay, and Zero seemingly dies in his dinner. Maul returns to Eogan and Artagan, taking them to the morgue, so that Artagan can enter the code to call the Bando Gora. Maul has Eogan take Artagan back to Eogan’s cell, and Maul contacts Sidious to inform him that he has found Iram Radique (or at least Maul thinks that he has). Maul returns to Coyle and acquires his counterfeit credits in a case. The case is confiscated by a guard, but it is only full of bones, since Maul has tucked all of the fake money into his prison jumpsuit. The warning to return to cells for a match sounds, and Maul goes to his, even as Sadiki is flipping out in the control room because Dakarai is nowhere to be found and has apparently rigged the next match to be between Maul and the Weequay that Maul believes is Radique, and only Dakarai could undo the match, which is again not what the algorithm predicted and thus not what was broadcast (without Commission consent) to gamblers around the galaxy. When the match begins, Maul tries to reason with “Radique,” showing him the money and telling him he wants to buy the bomb, but “Radique” fights Maul, believing he is in league with the Bando Gora.
Maul is forced to kill the Weequay. On Coruscant, in Hego Damask’s quarters at Kaldani Spires, Plagueis congratulates Sidious on the apparent death of Radique at Maul’s hands and tells Sidious to order Maul to destroy Cog Hive Seven, removing any trace of his mission or Radique’s operation, and Plagueis intends for Maul to die there as well. Meanwhile, Smight, having fled through various parts of the prison, finds himself in a strange area with shipping crates full of weapons and conveyor belts. He realizes that he has found Radique’s weapon production facility and intends to get back on Jabba’s good side with what he has found. He is incapacitated by Zero before he can do anything about his find. Maul, feeling as though he has failed his master by killing “Radique,” awaits punishment in his cell. He has a dream (or vision) of fighting himself, after which he seems to “hear” the name “Plagueis” through the Force, though it means nothing to him at the moment. Slipher goes to the main hangar bay, where he uses his IBC override code (issued verbally) to have a load lifter notify him when a crate arrives for him aboard the next prison barge and keep it from being otherwise scanned or diverted. Maul awakens to find a clawbird waiting for him. As others arrive, he begins to wonder if he is their new master, since he killed “Radique.” He gives them a nudge to take him somewhere, and they lead him through the prison to the weapon production facility, where Slipher (contacted by Zero and invited), Smight (now a prisoner), Coyle, and Zero await. (It turns out that Coyle’s metaxas root was a ruse to see what Maul might do with it, and Zero was never actually dead.) Maul sees workers building weapons, but they all have had their eyes removed, the price (per Artagan’s story) of working for Radique. The Weequay, it is revealed, was not Radique. The real Radique remains unseen, speaking via an intercom to the others. They intend to now kill Maul for Radique, but Maul notices that the workers are building lightsabers, but something does not seem right. He bluff by claiming that he could fix the problem Radique is having with his lightsabers (true, though he does not know for sure that there is a problem at all yet). To test a saber, Zero releases Smight and gives it to him with the promise of freedom if he kills Maul. Smight activates it, only for the blade to swing around like a lightwhip and cut most of Smight’s head off. Maul again offers to fix the lightsabers, claiming that in his travels as a mercenary, he once killed a Jedi and studied his lightsaber in great detail. When he notes that his price is still the nuclear weapon for the Bando Gora, Radique orders Zero to kill him. Maul attacks Zero, accidentally removing a mask (possibly the Yuuzhan Vong’s oogish masquer) that reveals that “Zero” is actually Dakarai Blirr. He has been using this disguise to move among the inmates and serve both Sadiki and Radique, and even Radique did not know his true identity. Radique orders Coyle to kill Dakarai, which he does. Slipher is then told to take Maul with him while completing the rest of his own task. It turns out that what Radique needs to fix the lightsabers is a geological compressor to fix the crystals he is using, as Maul himself notes, but Radique already knew this and has one on its way. It is the package that Slipher might have delivered, but it is claimed that Slipher has brought a device that Plagueis himself acquired for Radique via Slipher. Meanwhile, Jabba the Hutt’s space yacht, the Star Jewel, emerges from hyperspace with six Z-95 Headhunters. When the prison barge Purge (commanded by Wyatt Styrene with Bissley Kloth as XO and navigator) arrives, it is set upon by the Hutt forces. Jabba’s henchmen take over the barge, killing Styrene and knocking out Kloth, then transferring a pair of kell dragons aboard. (Jabba himself stays aboard the Star Jewel to be safely out of any conflict aboard Cog Hive Seven). The Purge then continues to the prison. Maul and Slipher make their way to the hangar bay. En route, Slipher mentions that the Bando Gora is now led by Komari Vosa, who used to be a Jedi. This catches Maul’s interest, making him believe that facing her to do business and perhaps to kill her might be the final test of him on this mission. When Maul disobeys Slipher’s “orders” to maintain a low profile, Maul uses the Force on him briefly to choke him enough to threaten him. (This is a violation of his orders from Sidious, however, and would be considered failure of his mission if Slipher is able to reveal this to anyone.) They reach one of the load-lifters, and Slipher uses his verbal code to check on his package, but it has not yet arrived aboard the Purge. When unarmed dock workers notice Slipher with an obvious prisoner, Slipher pretends that he is being held against his will, and Maul grabs the blue witch from him, then pretends it is an explosive to cause the workers to back off. Maul then leaps atop the load-lifter and makes it go berserk. As it thrashes around, it decapitates a boasting Slipher, ending any threat of Maul's brief use of the Dark Side being revealed. In the control room, Sadiki is contacted by Chlorus, who is outraged at her refusal to shut down the matches at his orders, but then she shows him recorded proof of their affair while she was a manager at the Outlander Casino and Resort. Using this as blackmail, she forces him to reinstate the prison's good standing and arrange to somehow cover for the death of Slipher, which she has just witnessed on a security camera (since he did not have the blue witch on him when the load-lifter killed him). Once the call ends, she seeks out Maul on the monitors and is unable to see him until she notices a distortion on cameras, caused by the blue witch. She is able to trap Maul in a lift (in which he abandons the blue witch because it wasn’t able to hide him and is burning out). He still refuses to work for her, so she begins to heat up the lift to cook him alive. Sadiki then heads for the hangar with 3D-4 to meet the newly-arrived Purge. It is a trap! The real cargo is still on the ship, and cargo held by “guards” includes a Trandoshan with a rifle. The “guards” are henchman for Jabba, as are fake prisoners, since the real prisoners remain locked up on the ship. Kell dragons emerge as well, hauling a platform that acts as a large hologram emitter for a live feed to Jabba, who appears as a hologram above it. Unwilling to accept the insult of having his men killed (even if he did have to deny that they were his) and wanting to wipe out Radique’s operation as well, Jabba has his goons attack, and the kell dragons are released. Sadiki is able to zap the Trandoshan with an electroprod and use his rifle to kill one of the dragons, but the other reaches her and bites one of her feet off in one bite. She orders 3D-4 to initiate reconfiguration series 121, basically a random reconfiguration of the modular prison that, instead of moving to align cells for inmates to fight each other, starts a sort of self destruct that begins to shift and shake the prison apart. The dragon disappears into a newly-created crevasse, and Sadiki is saved by an injection of a powerful painkiller and stimulant from 3D-4. He helps her escape from the hangar, even as Jabba has his men release the prisoners on the Purge, who join Jabba’s people in attack the guards, since they don’t have explosives in their hearts yet. Maul is able to escape the lift via its roof, only to barely escape doom due to the reconfiguration. As he saves himself, though, he witnesses shifts in shafts in the prison that denote the movement of the giant Syrox. He is able to sense the minds of all of those eaten by the Syrox, which are seemingly trapped in a sort of chaotic hive mind within the Syrox’s mind. Back at Eogan’s cell, Artagan reveals why he brought Eogan to Cog Hive Seven, but he knows that Radique will be sending people to kill him. Sure enough, blind minions of Radique arrive with claw birds to kill Artagan. They stab him to death (though he was nearly dead anyway), and Eogan uses the Fifty-Two Fists to defeat the minions, making that success the last thing Artagan sees as he dies. Maul arrives, mildly impressed by Eogan’s actions, and takes the boy with him as they head for the hangar to get the geological compressor that must now have arrived on the Purge. When they arrive, they stay out of the ongoing firefight and instead go to the load-lifters. Maul uses Slipher’s verbal code on one, then rewires it to not require a voiceprint match, thereby having the load-lifter bring him the compressor. On Sojourn, Plagueis is informed by 11-D, during his experiments on the body of Darth Venamis, that his package has been received, but not by Slipher as intended. Aboard the Purge, still docked with Cog Hive Seven, Kloth comes to, only to find the prisoners gone and a new force coming in through the hull breach that Jabba’s goons had used before the Star Jewel moved away to safe distance. It is the Bando Gora, led by Komari Vosa, there to acquire the nuclear device that Maul used Artagan’s code to contact them about. Sadiki has made it back to the control room (with a prosthetic foot attached) and has ordered 3D-4 to have their escape pod ready as soon as Dakarai is found (not knowing her brother is dead). She activates the Omega Initiative, which begins cycling slowly through all of the inmates’ numbers in order of their arrival (slowly so that the system does not crash), causing their charges to kill them. Time is running out. While she is there, the Syrox breaks in through the wall. She tries to escape it, but when she activates the sound-proofing without meaning to, she is unable to hear it as it looms and devours her. Maul and Eogan follow clawbird movements (sent by Radique) back to the weapon shop with the compressor, finally meeting the real Iram Radique, who is revealed to be a Chiss, another species virtually unknown in the modern galaxy (like the Yuuzhan Vong Maul fault earlier). Maul shows him the compressor, proving that his only source of the device has put it in Maul’s hands. Maul proves it works to fix the lightsabers, and Radique seems to agree to his deal. Maul will show him how to use the compressor to fix the lightsabers he is building in return for the nuclear device. He also needs Radique to make sure that GH-7 in the medbay is ready for Maul and Eogan when they arrive to have their charges deactivated before their numbers can be reached in the Omega Initiative. (Radique has to agree, since he needs Maul to show him how to fix the lightsabers.) They head for medbay, even as Komari encounters Jabba in hologram form, then senses Maul’s presence in the Force. She intends to take the weapon, then kill him, since she expects that this is a trap, rather than an honest act of support for the Bando Gora. She is on her way to his location when she is attacked by the Syrox. Unable to defeat the monstrosity and forced to face her own depths of despair and desire for self-destruction, she runs from the confrontation. At the medbay, Maul and Eogan find the droid destroyed and Radique waiting for them instead. They have been betrayed! Radique sets his clawbirds against Eogan, who falls and seems to die as his number is reached in the count-up. Maul battles Radique, who wields the single lightsaber that Maul had fixed as an example. Maul takes the blade from Radique, but Radique sends the clawbirds after Maul long enough to cover drawing a hidden blaster, with which he shoots Maul in the shoulder. Before he can kill Maul, though, Eogan rises and jumps upon him, having apparently had his charge deactivated during his brief needling by GH-7 during the failed escape attempt with his father. Eogan breaks Radique’s wrist until the blaster is pointing at Radique’s own head, then fires, killing the weaponsmith. Komari then enters the medbay, drawn by the sounds of struggle and Maul’s presence in the Force. She attacks Maul, who uses the fixed saber to defend himself, until the Syrox bursts into the room, drawing Komari into attacking it as the greater threat. Maul refuses to let Komari, something intriquingly not Jedi or Sith yet powerful in the Dark Side, die at the maw of the beast, so he attacks, finally killing the Syrox by cutting off all the parts of its mouth. Komari then returns the favor, saving Maul’s life by using the Force via telekinesis to deactivate (permanently) the charges in Maul’s hearts. Upon reaching the hangar with the nuclear device, the trio is confronted by Jabba, whose Star Jewel has landed, presumably to gather the last of his men before the station tears itself apart. Maul kills a nearby goon, showing Jabba that he is not a man to be denied. Rather than protesting any further, Jabba offers the trio escape aboard the space yacht. As they leave, Cog Hive Seven finally continues its self-destruction, leaving no evidence of Maul’s mission there. In the aftermath, Darth Sidious emerges from a shower in his apartment at 500 Republica on Coruscant to find Plagueis waiting for him. Plagueis congratulates him on killing Radique, for real this time, since the prison is gone and Radique with it. Sidious feigns concern at possibly failing Plagueis by risking revealing their existence to the galaxy by sending Maul into the prison. The two part ways, for what Sidious intends to be the last time. (He will soon manipulate the Bando Gora and their allies into a strike against Sojourn in an attempt to assassinate Plagueis.) As for Maul, Eogan, and Komari, they travel in comfort. Maul remains with the nuclear device, waiting to hear from Sidious in some fashion. Komari visits him, suggesting that perhaps Eogan might someday be his apprentice. She even suggests a sexual interest in Maul, though he does not take the bait. She suggests that neither of them are the people they once were before the Dark Side claimed them, and they perhaps will find themselves together again. The Star Jewel continues on to Hutt Space, where the three survivors from the Cog Hive Seven debacle will part ways, and Komari will carry the nuclear weapon toward its future use by the Bando Gora . . .

(Lockdown)

NOTE: The placement of this novel, Maul: Lockdown, is somewhat tricky. It takes place over a relatively short period, which is helpful, but the timeline in the front of this novel and other contemporary ones place it in 33 BBY, right after a listing for Darth Maul: Shadow Hunter. However, the listing puts Shadow Hunter in 33 BBY, when it is actually in the first month of 32 BBY in the teeny-tiny bit of the year that comes before TPM, since TPM is in 3:4. The novel includes an overt reference to the assassinations on Eriadu near the end of Cloak of Deception as having already taken place. However, the story’s concept is that this is how Sidious manages to get a proscribed nuclear device into the hands of the Bando Gora, so that they and their allies can attack Plagueis and his laboratory on Sojourn, as we see in chapter 26 (pp. 305 – 310) of Darth Plagueis. We can break chapter 26 of Darth Plagueis up into its three sections. The first portion has Maul at the LIMerge factory, considering how Palpatine is on his way to Eriadu (pp. 300 – 302) for the summit (meaning that we are still before chapter 26 of Cloak of Deception, which is when Palpatine arrives). The second portion (pp. 303 – 305) has Palpatine taking a detour to Naboo, which sets the stage for the attack on Sojour. The third portion (pp. 305 – 310) is the attack itself, and the next chapter (27) has Palpatine back on Coruscant, meeting Plagueis, who has survived the attack. In order for Maul: Lockdown to refer to the assassination of the Directorate in past tense, have Palpatine be contacting Maul from Coruscant (not Eriadu), and have the nuclear device from Lockdown be the one used against Sojour, then the assassinations in Cloak of Deception must take place in the gap on p. 305 of Darth Plagueis, followed by Lockdown, and then the rest of that chapter of Darth Plagueis. However, this means that Lockdown does not take place after Shadow Hunter in the way it is listed in the novels timeline at the front of the book. I suppose I should also note that the book gives Maul’s date of entry for Cog Hive Seven as “01102211224,” which seems to be a meaningless number in galactic dating terms.

- Forces loyal to Ars Veruna and his allies (Gardulla the Hutt, Black Sun, and the Bando Gora) attack Sojour. Darth Plagueis expected this, so he and 11-4D take the Rugess Nome-designed and Sienar-built Sith Infiltrator that he has had made and delivered to Sojour and escape, just as those enemies unleash a banned nuclear warhead (acquired by Maul from Iram Radique on Cog Hive Seven) on the moon. This happens earlier than expected, though, and it is only with the aid of Jabba the Hutt (whom he had contacted earlier) that saves Plagueis, who has Jabba take them and the starfighter to Coruscant, while contacting Veruna to tell him that his assassination attempt has failed. Shortly thereafter, Darth Plagueis and Darth Sidious (now returned from Eriadu) reunite on Coruscant (where Plagueis has also delivered the Sith Infiltrator to Darth Sidious, so he can present it to Maul). They intend to strike a blow against the conspirators who tried to kill Plagueis. Plagueis will deal with Ars Veruna on Naboo, and Sidious will send Maul to take down Black Sun’s leadership, while they leave the Bando Gora and Gardulla the Hutt for later, waiting to see how things pan out with Komari Vosa, a fallen Jedi, in charge of the Bando Gora and as a potential future asset. (To be continued below . . . )

(Darth Plagueis)

- Darth Sidious intends to make sure he can keep in secure communication with his pawns. He has received the Sith Infiltrator from Darth Plagueis, and intends to give it to his apprentice, Maul. Before that, though, he hires a pilot named Fa’ale Leh to take the newly-completed Sith Infiltrator, the Scimitar, to the communications device manufacturer Thal K’zar. K’zar is given precise designs on how a special transceiver is to be made for the vessel, and he has two of them made. The other one is sent to Xi Char, where another designer has been hired to create a mechno-chair for Nute Gunray of the Trade Federation (soon to be in charge of the Trade Federation if Sidious’ schemes come through). His intent is for both (and by the time of the Battle of Geonosis, to have all of the Separatist leadership in the Clone Wars) have similar transceivers in order to allow for secure communications between the Sith Lord and his most prominent underlings.

(conjecture based on Labyrinth of Evil)

- On Naboo, a rally is held to promote a movement to elect Padmé Amidala, who had been elected as Princess of Theed at 12 years old, to be the next Queen of Naboo, having just turned 14. A young boy named Ian Lago attends and falls in love with Amidala. Shortly thereafter, Ian’s father, Kun Lago, Prime Counselor to King Veruna is rocked by scandals within Veruna’s administration. All the while, Ian is dreaming of Amidala, and he finally meets her one day in the park. The two hit it off and spend the majority of the summer with each other, eventually growing into a full-fledged couple, hidden from public view. When Kun Lago discovers his son’s actions, he throws the boy out of the house. What Ian did not yet know, but finds out upon arriving to see Amidala, is that King Veruna has just abdicated the throne, and Amidala is being prepared to take his place. When he arrives, Amidala shuts him out, knowing that her duty and love must now be for all of Naboo, not him. The next morning, Amidala is elected by the popular vote as Queen of Naboo, and a despondent young Ian Lago leaves Naboo. (Exact date: 2:10)

(A Summer’s Dream)

“NOTE: This was said to be five months prior to TPM, but the scene in Darth Plagueis where Sidious reveals Veruna’s abdication is the same scene in which he presents the Scimitar to Darth Maul as he heads out on the mission in the Darth Maul comic series, which is set 6 months before TPM. Presumably, this makes both events closer together around the turn of the month . . . or something. I have, such, shifted its “exact date” from 2:11 to 2:10.

- Queen Padmé Amidala of Naboo forms a group of handmaidens/bodyguards consisting of Sabé, Saché, Yané, Rabé, and Eirtaé.
• Approximately half a year before the Battle of Naboo (just after Veruna's abdication on Naboo), within Darth Sidious' secret Sith sanctum on Coruscant (perhaps attached to the quarters Sidious uses while living as his alter ego, Palpatine?), Darth Maul trains with his double-bladed lightsaber against assassin droids. He survives, much to the approval of Lord Sidious. Sidious tells Maul to prepare for a new mission. Sidious' plan to blockade Naboo (thus forcing a crisis to make himself Supreme Chancellor) is nearly set, but Sidious is wary of interference from the Black Sun criminal organization. Maul is charged with severing the head of the organization, hoping to throw it into disarray. To facilitate his mission, Maul receives a gift from Sidious—the Sith Infiltrator starfighter (the Scimitar), complete with three Dark Eye probe droids, a speeder bike (the Bloodfin), and a cloaking device. Maul leaves on his mission in his new ship, flying over the towers of Coruscant while cloaked. He flies over Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan, and as he does so, Qui-Gon momentarily senses a disturbance in the force, like a shadow passing over the sun. His first target is Black Sun's Darnada. He heads for the space station the Vigo calls home and arrives as Feen Fenoob is trying to escape from two of Darnada's henchmen, Gargachyk and Asa. Feen uses flash globes to escape from the two henchmen, only to be cut in half by Darth Maul. Maul deactivates his lightsaber and asks to be taken to see Darnada, so he can join Black Sun. Asa is wary, but decides Darnada might find him useful. They go to see Darnada, who has just dismissed Neimoidian Hath Monchar like an insect. Darnada's bodyguard, Sinya, is not impressed by Maul, especially when Maul flat out tells them that he has come to kill them. Darnada's goons attack Maul, who easily tears them apart. He even manages to kill Sinya in one-to-one combat. Finally, Maul kills Darnada with a stab through the eye. Maul turns to Asa, the only survivor, and tells him to carry word that Black Sun is now at war with itself. Both Maul and Asa escape the station just before explosives set by Maul destroy it. As Maul continues his quest, Asa changes course to tell his master about the events on the station. A short time later, Maul hits the base of Vigo Morn, killing him. Word travels to Rattii, where the head of Black Sun, Lex, has called the other Vigos together. The Vigos are arguing amongst themselves, casting blame on each other, but Lex is intelligent enough to know that the information Asa has supplied must've been planted to sow discord. They plan on being there as a group to present a target of opportunity for Maul, and then kill him when he arrives. Of course, this is all part of Maul's plan. Maul contacts Sidious to let him know all is ready for his final attack, and then Maul makes his way into Lex's compound, cutting through Black Sun's defenders as if they were nothing, until finally reaching the inner sanctum, where the Vigos' bodyguards lie in wait. Maul easily decimates the bodyguards, including a telepathic guard who looks into Maul's mind and sees great darkness. Maul then enters the room through which the Vigos are escaping. Lex takes his servant, Oolth, and his Nightsister bodyguard, Mighella, and leaves, locking the other Vigos in the room with Maul, believing that Black Sun will survive as long as Lex alone survives. Maul kills Asa and the Vigos, then heads after Lex. Mighella stays behind to attack Maul. They duel as they taunt each other of how little each other knows of the Dark Side. Finally, Mighella uses Force lightning on Maul, but he resists through the Dark Side, finally killing her (ironically by cutting her in half as Maul will be by Obi-Wan Kenobi), as she realizes who and what he must be. Finally, Maul faces off with Lex (not noticing that Oolth has escaped . . . ). Lex reveals that his name is Alexi Garyn, and he was once supposed to become a Jedi Knight. He was too old to train, so he turned to crime, but during his time among Jedi, he heard rumors of the Sith Order, and now, in Maul, he finds his fears and the rumors personified. Knowing Maul must kill him, Lex takes the offensive and cuts across Maul’s stomach before Maul disarms and drowns him . . . (To be continued below . . . ) (Exact date: 2:10)*

(Darth Maul)*

*NOTE: The proper names for the Sith Infiltrator and Sith Speeder Bike were found in The Dark Side Sourcebook. The Star Wars Comics Companion and New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels both suggest that this story takes place half a year (6 months on a 12-month calendar or 5 months on a 10-month calendar) before TPM, which also gives us a general sense of when Cloak of Deception and the Episode I Adventures stories must be taking place.

• Darth Maul reprograms and refits C-3PX as a security guard for his Sith Infiltrator. (conjecture based on Ultimate Adversaries)
As Darth Maul brings death to Black Sun in retaliation for the attempt on Darth Plagueis’ life, Plagueis and 11-4D travel to Naboo to confront Ars Veruna, who has stepped down as king in the aftermath of scandals that the Sith revealed through their agents on Naboo to engineer the election of a more malleable Padmé Amidala. He sneaks into the Veruna residence and confronts him, revealing his true identity as a Sith Lord, then kills Veruna, watching the midichlorians wink back to the Force as he dies. (To be continued below . . . )

(Darth Plagueis)

In the wake of his abdication and death, rumors are circulated that Ars Veruna went into hiding and then died of an "accident" that Captain Magneta lets happen and then helps to cover up. For failing to save Veruna from death (actually at the hands of Darth Plagueis), Magneta resigns and his position as head of the Royal Security Force is taken by Quarsh Panaka.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I--"The Phantom Menace" novelization and Episode I: Visual Dictionary)

After the Black Sun mission, Maul sits in his sanctum. Darth Sidious asks him of survivors (there are none) and of his wound (there is no pain where strength lies). Finally Sidious tells Maul that there is one other threat to their security. Maul stands and ignites his lightsaber. As always, he is at his master’s command. (Exact date: 2:10)*

(Darth Maul)*

*NOTE: The proper names for the Sith Infiltrator and Sith Speeder Bike were found in The Dark Side Sourcebook. The Star Wars Comics Companion and New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels both suggest that this story takes place half a year (6 months on a 12-month calendar or 5 months on a 10-month calendar) before TPM, which also gives us a general sense of when Cloak of Deception and the Episode I Adventures stories must be taking place.

Approximately six months before the Battle of Naboo, Darth Sidious takes Darth Maul with hunting down a Dark Side Force-user. Maul takes his Sith Infiltrator to a planet on the Outer Rim, where he discovers the one-on-one tournament fighter Silus, who uses the Dark Side in his matches. Maul delivers a holographic message to him, only to discover that the message is Sidious offering Silus the chance to be his Sith Apprentice Shadow Hand), if he can kill Darth Maul. Maul and Silus do battle, and Maul finally kills Silus. Upon returning to his Master, Maul understands that it was a test to ensure that his fighting skills are up to fighting Force-users. Maul remains Sidious’ Apprentice.

(Marked)

Jedi Knight Ronhar Kim begins a six-month mission that will keep him away from Coruscant while his old friend Palpatine becomes Supreme Chancellor.

(conjecture based on Bloodlines)

On Coruscant, Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum continues to face accusations of corruption. Seeking to use this to their advantage, the anti-Senate (and anti-Valorum) group known as the Flail (led by Zegmon Pent, who maintains a fake image as a former Jedi student) has decided to make an attempt on Valorum’s credibility and his life to remove him from power. As Valorum prepares for a speech to be given the next day, he meets with Jedi Master Mace Windu to set up a meeting with a group of supporters and allies who can blend into crowds and hopefully stop the Flail’s plot. Later, as the group awaits their meeting with Valorum, they stop a plot by Senn Riip Domeet, a Flail operative, that would have destroyed the plaza outside Valorum’s tower, where he would be giving his speech. After Domeet is stopped, the group meets with Windu and Valorum, who tell them that they expect the Flail to hit either (or both) the weather-control station or air traffic control centers to wreck havoc and prepare to ruin Valorum. If the Flail fail, they expect that the attempt will be made on Valorum’s life during his speech, where the group can stop them. The group heads for the weather station, where they capture and scare off several terrorists. They then head for the air traffic control center, where they see a shuttle flown by Pent dropping off terrorists. After rounding up the terrorists, the group gives chase to Pent, who has taken the shuttle to the plaza. As the group catches up in their own air taxi, terrorists leap from the unarmed shuttle to attack Valorum. One of Valorum’s guards, Vinsho Pah, grabs Valorum as a blast sends him over the railing, but cannot lift Valorum up as it would endanger him. Several members of the group provide cover fire while Pah saves Valorum. When most of the terrorists are stopped, Pent himself leaps from the shuttle, brandishing his imitation lightsaber. His hope is that by attacking Valorum with it, it will make it look as though the Jedi are against Valorum, but when a member of the group ignites their lightsaber, Pent knows he cannot face them with his fake saber. He instead pulls out a holdout blaster and tries to cover himself and get to Valorum, while using the shuttle’s autopilot to set it to crash into the plaza. In a furious few moments, the group on the plaza grounds subdues Pent, while the few remaining in the air taxi barely stop the shuttle from making its suicide run. The plot has been foiled, but whether or not the end of Pent means the end of the Flail that Valorum had promised remains to be seen.

(Shadows of Coruscant)

- On Coruscant, Jedi Master Qui-Gon Jinn is called before the Jedi Council, where he learns that Council member Adi Gallia has vanished on Esseles while investigating an anonymous report that Trinkatta Starships has been commissioned by an unknown party to build fifty experimental, hyperdrive-bearing droid starfighters. Jinn is told to go to Esseles with Jedi Knights Vel Ardox and Noro Zak to discover the truth. He is told to leave his Padawan, Obi-Wan Kenobi, behind, but as they leave aboard the Radiant VII, he makes sure Obi-Wan is aboard, believing that the Padawan could be of assistance on the mission. Once on Esseles, the Jedi discover that the Trinkatta Starships facility has been taken over, it seems, by reprogrammed droids and the buildings are being fumigated, which would kill any living being trapped inside. The Jedi split up, and Qui-Gon makes it into the main building only to find Boll Trinkatta trapped by his own droids. He frees Trinkatta, who tells him that the Neimoidian Trade Federation contracted him to build the droid starfighters, against their exclusive contract with the Xi Charrians. When Trinkatta objected to creating starfighters that were obviously intended for hit and run hyperspace warfare, Trinkatta’s test pilot “vanished” at the hands of the NTF. Trinkatta then completed the starfighters out of fear. As Trinkatta escapes, Qui-Gon heads for another area, where he believes Adi Gallia is being held. On the way, he discovers that the droid starfighters are no longer at the facility. He enters a tower and finds Adi Gallia badly injured, but alive. He takes the wounded Jedi and escapes an attack by Bartokk assassins before being reunited with the other Jedi. They realize that the assassins always travel in groups of three, and only three were taken out, which probably means that the droid starfighters are still on Esseles somewhere, although Qui-Gon is not so sure that it is the Bartokks that have the ships. Perhaps the assassins that are left are hunting for the starfighters as well. They decide that Qui-Gon, Obi-Wan, and Trinkatta will continue their search, while the other two Jedi take Adi Gallia to Rhinnal for medical treatment. In another part of the galaxy, Trade Federation Viceroy Nute Gunray and his second-in-command, Rune Haako speak with Darth Sidious via hologram. Sidious is displeased with the starfighter situation and wants the person who leaked information of their existence to the Republic found and terminated.

(Search for the Lost Jedi)

- Believing that the Bartokks are not behind the theft of the enhanced droid starfighters, and with the suspicion that Boll Trinkatta’s test pilot, Bama Vook, may have been behind it, Qui-Gon Jinn decides that he, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Trinkatta should head for the Ion Sandbox, a spaceport cantina where they might learn where the starfighters are hidden. Unbeknownst to them, Darth Sidious has dispatched Rune Haako and Dulty Dofine, two Neimoidians, to Esseles to find the starfighters. They arrive and make a stop at the Ion Sandbox. They are noticed by Bama Vook (who, by the way, is not dead), who slips out slowly. As he exits, he runs into Trinkatta and explains that he did not wish to be party to the building of war vessels for the Trade Federation, so he “vanished” with his son, Chup-Chup, and his droid, LE-PR34 (Leeper). When the Bartokks arrived and stole the starfighters and the prototype hyperdrive, they put them in an over-sized freighter, which Bama subsequently stole, not knowing that it was owned by Bartokk assassins. He hid it in Docking Bay 28, along with his brand new YT-1300 freighter, the Metron Burner, and a modified Z-95 Headhunter that can carry two passengers. They head for the docking bay, followed by the Neimoidians, who recognized them as they left the Ion Sandbox. Upon arrival, they are attacked by Bartokks before learning from Leeper that Chup-Chup has been taken hostage aboard the Bartokk freighter. A Bartokk gets the drop on them and stuns everyone but Obi-Wan, who battles several other assassins before they escape in the freighter. He gets the others out of the stun net, and leaves Trinkatta to oversee their safety. Obi-Wan then takes the Z-95 Headhunter after the Bartokks (after disabling a bomb they had placed on the starfighter). He finally catches up to the Bartokk ship and battles one Bartokk starfighter and then three droid starfighters before boarding. Once aboard, he finds twenty-two droid starfighters. Considering the three he just destroyed, that means that twenty-five are missing. He finds and frees Chup-Chup, who tells him that the Bartokks had transferred the other twenty-five droid starfighters to another Bartokk freighter. Obi-Wan defeats and uses the Force to probe the mind of another Bartokk assassin. He learns that the Bartokks were indeed on a mission, but the target of their assassination is on Corulag. They were stealing the droid starfighters to carry out that mission. Obi-Wan then sets the ship to explode and he and Chup-Chup escape with the prototype hyperdrive just before the ship is destroyed. They return to Esseles, where Obi-Wan informs Corulag that the other Bartokk freighter is on the way. Reunited with the others, they determine that they should go to Corulag, but Obi-Wan reports that they cannot get a message through to Rhinnal (the planet they sent Noro Zak and Vel Ardox to with the injured Adi Gallia). This could mean that there is trouble on Rhinnal, so they must go there before attempting to catch the Bartokk freighter. Bama offers to take them to Rhinnal aboard the Metron Burner. They prepare to leave. In another part of the galaxy, Neimoidian Trade Federation Viceroy Nute Gunray contacts Darth Sidious via hologram. He informs the Sith Lord (who, I must stress again, is Naboo Senator Palpatine of the Republic Senate) that the two Neimoidians on Esseles overheard that the droid starfighters and prototype hyperdrive were aboard a Bartokk freighter that took off from Esseles. Gunray offers to personally pursue the Bartokk freighter (not knowing that it was destroyed, but we can assume that he would’ve just wound up chasing after the second freighter), but Darth Sidious denies him permission to do so. Sidious has someone else lined up for that duty, presumably his apprentice, Darth Maul.

(The Bartokk Assassins)

Darth Sidious (Naboo Senator Palpatine) calls his Sith Apprentice, Darth Maul. He informs Maul that their droid starfighters (with hyperdrives) have been stolen, which interferes with their plans to take over Brentaal and control the Perlemian Trade Route and Hydian Way. Maul is to find and recapture the ships, so the Bartokks who stole them cannot use them to carry out an assassination or attack that would discredit the Neimoidian Trade Federation, which Sidious is controlling. He is to leave the Bartokk’s employer to live in fear, but the Bartokks lives are forfeit. As Darth Maul and his specially programmed and built droid, C-3PX, head for Esseles, Bama Vook, Qui-Gon Jinn, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Leeper leave Esseles for Rhinnal to learn the fate of the planet’s Jedi chapter house. They land on Rhinnal and learn that the communications blackout was the result of a severe storm, confirming Obi-Wan’s fears that they had deviated from going after the Bartokks when there was no real crisis on Rhinnal. They will leave again as soon as the next storm subsides. Maul arrives near Esseles and determines which freighter belongs to the thieves, who then divert course from heading to Corulag to heading to Raltiir. Maul follows them there and allows himself (and alter C-3PX) to be captured in order to learn from them and be in position to defeat them. After destroying the interrogator droid in his cell and taking its truth serum capsule, Maul rages through the Bartokk’s fortress, killing many of them and using the truth serum on one to learn the story behind their assignment. The Trade Federation had hired Groodo the Hutt to design a prototype hyperdrive engine for the NTF, which he did. The NTF took the hyperdrive and did not pay Groodo. When he learned that the prototype hyperdrive had been taken to Trinkatta and Bama Vook on Esseles for the creation of fifty hyperdrive-enhanced droid starfighters, he saw his chance to seek revenge on both the NTF and Corulag Academy, which had refused to admit his son, Boonda the Hutt. Groodo hired the Bartokks to steal the starfighters and prototype hyperdrive and then attack the Corulag Academy. Now that he prototype is in the hands of the Jedi Knights and half of the starfighters are destroyed, the Bartokks still intend to use the remaining 25 droid starfighters to complete their mission. Maul uses a thermal detonator to blow up the fortress’ armory, unfortunately having to leave C-3PX to perish (as far as can be told) in the explosion. Maul races back to his Sith Infiltrator and heads for Corulag to stop the attack on Corulag Academy, which was about to be carried out by the droid starfighters and one Bartokk fighter that had left the fortress during Maul’s rampage. Maul arrives in the Corulag system just before the starfighters. He then uses a droid starfighter control device given to him by Darth Sidious to turn the droid starfighters against the Bartokk starfighter, destroying it. He then spots the ship that can only belong to Groodo and turns the starfighters on it. Groodo and his son, Boonda, use an escape pod to head for Corulag’s surface, and Maul lets them live, as per Sidious’ instructions. The Hutts land on Corulag and Groodo prepares to place a call that might enable him to strike back at the Trade Federation that Maul represents. Maul, in the meantime, heads back to Rattir to search for C-3PX. He finds the droid’s restraining bolt, but no sign of the droid itself and resigns himself to C-3PX’s destruction. On Rhinnal, Obi-Wan reports that he has spoken with Corulag and learned of the firefight and that the droid starfighters escaped into hyperspace after the battle, leaving the question of who now has the starfighters up in the air. The Jedi (including Noro Zak and Adi Gallia) confer on the issue, and Qui-Gon then receives a call from Yoda on Coruscant. Yoda informs Qui-Gon that he will meet Qui-Gon and the others at Corulag. “Matters most urgent” await them at the Corulag Academy.

(The Fury of Darth Maul)

• At some point before the Battle of Naboo, Darth Maul somehow comes back into possession of C-3PX.*

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

*NOTE: It certainly seems like The Fury of Darth Maul intended to leave C-3PX out of Maul’s hands to end up available for Droids: The Kalarba Adventures much later, but The New Essential Guide to Droids has C-3PX being captured by the Republic when the Scimitar is seized after Maul’s death. Thus, the only logical conclusion is that Maul somehow comes back into possession of the droid after The Fury of Darth Maul, yet before The Phantom Menace.

• Bartokks assassins steal a new-model SoroSuub space yacht from Ausiec Grogle of Trandosh.

(conjecture based on Jedi Emergency)

• As Qui-Gon Jinn, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Bama Vook, Leeper, Vel Ardox, Noro Zak, and Adi Gallia head from Rhinnal to Corulag to meet with Yoda and Mace Windu, Groodo the Hutt, angry over the Bartokks’ failure to destroy Corulag Academy, gives the Bartokks one last chance to fulfill their assignment. The Jedi (aboard the Radiant VII and the Metron Burner) arrive in Corulag’s vicinity at the same time that a new model SoroSuub yacht (registered to Ausiec Grogle of Trandosh, but piloted by the Bartokks with six X10-D droids, three of which are modified with plasma bombs) enters the system as well. Leeper notes that this is odd since the new model should not be for sale yet. (The Bartokks stole it, of course.) All of our heroes meet on Corulag, and Windu and Yoda are not angered that Obi-Wan is with Qui-Gon against their original wishes. Yoda and Mace Windu tell them that their mission is to help secure a Force-attuned child, Teela Panjarra. It seems that when the six-month-old’s parents died, she was placed in the care of Chief Scientist Frexton of the Corulag Academy’s Science Service, the same division that rejected Boonda the Hutt’s application. Frexton knows the child has a high midichlorian count, but refuses to turn her over, preferring to run his own tests (AKA preferring to make her his own personal lab rat, not an individual with rights). The Jedi are there to save the child from Frexton. The Jedi soon run into two X10-Ds and realize that the Bartokks are trying to complete their mission. Yoda orders the other Jedi to evacuate the children in the Science Service tower’s nursery (where Teela is nowhere to be found), while he takes out the X10-Ds. He does, so, but is locked into a different section of the tower, with only a shot-up security droid nearby to help. Yoda takes has taken out both droids and finds a bomb inside one of them. The security droid disables it while Yoda rushes to the lab where Frexton has Teela. He finds Frexton and Frexton tries to evade Yoda, carrying Teela in a Live Organism Comfort Conveyor (LOCC). A few Bartokks and two more droids arrive, and Yoda defeats them. They confirm that their intent is to destroy the Academy, and Yoda deactivates (well disintegrates—in a trash unit) another bomb droid. There are two droids left, one of which has a bomb. Yoda chases Frexton (who has run off with Teela) to another room, where the girl is taken by several Bartokks and the remaining two droids. Yoda defeats them all, and then takes the last bomb and the LOCC aboard the Bartokks’ skiff and flies to the SoroSuub yacht. Once there, he races aboard, sets the bomb to detonate (it had a fail-safe timer), and then battles (and kills) the Bartokk queen before escaping with Teela in the LOCC. The ship explodes, taking the rest of the Bartokks with it. Victorious, the Jedi prepare to return to Coruscant on the Radiant VII, while the furious Groodo and his son, Boonda, hitch a ride back to Esseles with Bama Vook and Leeper aboard the Burner.

(Jedi Emergency)

- On Tatooine, Anakin Skywalker, Dorn, and Wald are killing time. Wald discovers an old lightsaber in Watto’s shop, but it won’t work. They go to where Sebulba is preparing for a Podrace. While checking out Sebulba’s Podracer (not the one in The Phantom Menace), they accidentally drop the lightsaber into his engine. While getting it out, Anakin accidentally activates it for a split-second, just enough to sever a wire inside. The race begins, and the damage causes Sebulba to lose, much to the delight of Watto, who bet against him, since it’s the only way to get a decent profit from such a bet. Unfortunately, he knows nothing of the children’s involvement and still considers them useless street urchins.

(Urchins)

- On Datar, several Ghostling children are kidnapped by Djas Puhr and Gondry, under orders from Sebulba. They are transported to Tatooine, where Pala Kwiteksa, a Twilek slave of Madame Vansitt, is being shown to a prospective buyer, Lord Tantos. Tantos agrees to purchase her, and she will be leaving soon. She goes to give the bad news to her friends, Anakin Skywalker, Kister, Wald, Amee, and Dorn. Watto sends Anakin to sneak a peek at what Sebulba is bringing into Mos Espa. He and Kister rush off and see Sebulba’s newly-modified Podracer. After other crates are inside a storehouse, the boys sneak in to check on the crate contents. There, they see the Ghostling children, including Princess Arawyne. They have not had the explosive anti-escape transmitters installed in them yet. The boys are sent away by guards but want to help the children, if possible. The children are soon sold to Gardulla the Hutt for use as garden decorations (which would be killed by more ferocious garden decorations). Anakin is then sent on a trading mission to the Jundland Wastes where he meets with some Jawas and reluctantly purchases what appears to be a small cube with Jedi markings and something evil trapped inside. Soon, Kister, Pala, Anakin, and Dorn, disguised as Jawas, break into Gardulla’s complex and find the Ghostlings. Using the unimplanted transmitters as impromptu bombs, the Mos Espa children sneak the Ghostlings into the complex and get them out of Gardulla’s palace completely. Anakin and the other non-Ghostlings make their escape (an escape that the Ghostlings, by their physical exhaustion and make-up could not have made). They say their goodbyes to Pala as she prepares to leave with her new master. Shortly thereafter, Sebulba comes to Gardulla for his payment, but she refuses to pay until she has the Ghostlings in her hands again (since she fears duplicity on Sebulba’s part). Sebulba sets out on a personal (and business) mission to find the missing Ghostling children.

(The Ghostling Children)

- Gardulla the Hutt has sent Sebulba, Gondry, Khiss, and Djas Puhr to find the children who helped the Ghostlings. They find a skin bit left by Pala Kwiteksa and pick up Anakin Skywalker’s scent and are on the move. At Madame Vansitt’s academy, Vansitt suggests that Pala escape. After meeting with Jira and deciding to collect money to free the slaves, Anakin, Kister, Dorn, and Pala prepare a plan of action. Anakin is chased by Puhr, but the others help him escape. Anakin and Kister escape in Sebulba’s Podracer, while Sebulba pursues in Brant Rumble’s. Anakin drops Kister off so he can take a scrambler to Pala to save her if Gardulla sends people after her based on the DNA of the skin flake or try to destroy her using the implanted detonator. Anakin and Sebulba go head to head in Mos Espa (with Sebulba not realizing who he’s facing) and Sebulba is forced to wreck Brant’s Pod and Anakin escapes. Later, Kister informs him that Pala is safely hidden with the Ghostlings and the scrambler is working to save her from scans and kill commands. Later, Anakin has a dream and seems to be being contacted by some kind of lifeform in the mysterious cube he got from Jawas earlier in the week. At Jabba’s Palace, Sebulba informs him that a bounty has been put on the head of Pala and her unknown accomplices, and Jabba tells him that he will put Dorn to tracking down the children (which would mean betraying his friends if he followed through) . . .

(The Hunt for Anakin Skywalker)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the needed parts for Watto’s racer are not a result of the race at the start of the TPM novelization. The text also puts this story at one week before the Boonta Eve Race, and thus about a week
Jabba the Hutt calls Dorn to him and pretends to be preparing to free him in order to let him work as a spy for his father, Zorba the Hutt. All Dorn has to do is prove his loyalty to Jabba by betraying his friends and turning in the Ghostling children. Dorn knows this is all a ruse, though, and that chances are that he’ll be killed after helping, anyway. Dorn is sent to find the Ghostlings, while Sebulba, Khiss, Gondry, and Djas Puhr, follow. Anakin Skywalker slips a signal scrambler to Dorn, while Kister gives him a Jawa robe, allowing him to hide from the hunters. As the hunters chase down Dorn and the other two children, the kids race into the Racer’s Edge Cantina and rouse the patrons to fight Sebulba and the others when they enter. The children then head for Gardulla the Hutt’s palace, where they lead the hunters through a wild chase through Gardulla’s dangerous (and even more so due to traps set by Pala and the Ghostling children, under the leadership of Arawynne) garden. They have been allowed to roam free by the garden’s Ho’Din gardener, Oo Wen, and have the aid of several Wisties from Endor. The children lead the hunters all around various traps. Dorn and Kister are stunned and captured, while Pala, Arawynne, and the other Ghostlings nearly make it out of an air vent before they are stopped by the hunter’s freighter and Djas Puhr with his sidearm. The only one who manages to escape is Anakin, knowing full well that when his friends are probed by an interrogator droid, he’ll be the next one the hunters come after.

Capture Arawynne

On Tatooine, Pala, Arawynne, Kister, Dorn, and the Ghostlings have been captured. Only Anakin Skywalker has escaped. The captured children are taken to holding cells at the Mos Espa Arena. Anakin speaks with Jira about their planned escape, and Jira tells him they need more money. Anakin takes a beamdrill and breaks into the cell from below, fleeing with the others into the tunnels below. After a long and harrowing chase, Anakin discovers a storage room where some pirates have their treasure. He steals some to pay for the rest of the smuggler’s fee to leave Tatooine. The children race for freedom, while Dorn leads the trackers off of their tails. Finally, they make it to Jira and give her the money. The smuggler arrives to take the children off of the planet and Kister immediately recognizes him—it’s Kister’s father, Rakir Banai, whom he hasn’t seen for years. Anakin decides to stay on Tatooine, which puts the ship at its exact life support capacity. Dorn arrives and needs to escape, so Kister gives Dorn his spot. Kister contemplates telling his father who he is, but knows his father would want to take him, leaving Dorn or someone else behind. Kister keeps his silence and the ship leaves with the newly freed Ghostlings, Dorn, and Pala. Jira gives Anakin and Kister what’s left of the transport money and they get back to Mos Espa. Shortly thereafter, Sebulba, Gondry, and Djas Puhr find the speeder Dorn had used to catch up to the others and an enraged Sebulba blasts it apart. A couple of days later, Anakin participates in a preliminary race to practice for the upcoming Boonta Eve Classic.

Trouble on Tatooine

In the lower levels of Coruscant, Obi-Wan Kenobi is investigating the harassment of various citizens by a criminal element known as the Black Heth. Upon returning to the Jedi Temple and informing the Jedi Council of his findings, the Jedi Council soon becomes aware of a Quarren insider within the Black Heth, who has now been captured. Rather than allow this pro-Republic agent to be left to the gang’s tender mercies, the Council sends Obi-Wan into a skyscraper (still under construction) to infiltrate the Black Heth’s inner defenses. Obi-Wan manages to save the infiltrator, but what he learns points to arms being smuggled onto Coruscant in hopes of turning the entire planet into a Black Heth-controlled warzone. In the continuing investigation, Obi-Wan is again sent out on his own, this time to plant a tracking device on one of the arms-delivery ships. He is successful in doing so, but in the process, he is forced to do battle with alien warriors with cortosis ore blades, whom he soon learns are the Jin’Ha. Rather than sending Obi-Wan into harm’s way again (well, at least not immediately), Jedi Council members Plo Koon and Eeth Koth are sent to follow the tracking device. When their signal is lost, Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan are sent to the planet Obredaan to investigate. There, they find a Jin’Ha base. They are able to rescue their fellow Jedi, but what is more disturbing is the revelation that it is indeed cortosis ore being mined on Obredaan . . . and it is being sent to the Neimoidian Trade Federation . . . (The remainder of this tale parallels events in The Phantom Menace, so it will be merged into the film summary before TPM.)
(Obi-Wan)

- A young Jedi Knight, Keiran Valn of Alderaan, dies from poisoning at a banquet held by his family. Investigation reveals the poison was based on green glie from Naboo. (conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo via TimeTales, verbatim)

- While Queen Amidala makes a trip offworld, taking Bravo Flight leader Ric Olie with her, administrative duties for the Royal Naboo Security Force’s squadrons is left to Bravo Seven, Flight Instructor Essara Till. As she handles some bookkeeping, her fellow pilot and significant other, Dren Melne (Bravo Eight), enters and once again repeats his usual offer to whisk her away from Naboo, where the populace keeps its collective head in the sand, to Agamar, where the ruler is setting up a new elite air defense force where they could make a real difference. Essara again refuses to consider it, but her argument is cut off by an emergency briefing for Bravo and Echo flights. The two teams (the former of which flies Naboo N-1 starfighters and the latter who would like to) are briefed by Governor Sio Bibble and a security officer. The Naboo space station TFP-9 has come under attack by a group of what seems to be pirates, who are at the station with a Corellian capital ship and a few Z-95 Headhunters. Rhys Dallows (Echo Five) speaks up during the briefing, asking questions about the attacker’s specifications that the officer cannot answer, meaning they will be going in, not blind, but fairly close to blind. Essara and Dren take their yellow N-1s and lead the blue Echo Flight starfighters into space. Upon arrival at TFP-9, they easily chase off the Z-95s, but as soon as they do, a new wave of Z-95s emerges behind them, followed by their carrier, the Velumina. Captain Sorran of the Velumina orders the Naboo forces to prepare to be taken prisoner. All the attackers want are the starfighters. Essara refuses, but as she does, Dren breaks ranks and attacks the other starfighters. He is in league with the Velumina, which begins launching small droid starfighters. A fierce battle ensues, during with several members of Echo Flight are killed before Essara and Rhys knock out much of the carrier’s capabilities. Finally, Sorran says that Dren has failed in his promise to easily deliver at least two N-1s, and fires on Dren. Dren is killed by his own colleagues, and the invading forces escape, leaving Essara to pick up the pieces. Five days later, Bibble informs Essara that the attackers appear to have been from Agamar, but the Agamarians are denying their involvement. The droid starfighters were of Xi Char design, and had recently been ordered by Agamar. Essara has interviewed Dren’s family to determine what was behind his defection, and has discovered a harsh isolationist sentiment among his close family. Finally, Ric Olie, having returned from the trip with Amidala, must fill the open position in Bravo Flight left by Dren. Essara gives him three possible candidates—Rhys Dallows (Echo Five), Keela Egast (Echo Eight), and Evenyl Yob (Echo One).

(The Starfighter Trap)

- After a short search for an official pilot for Amidala’s royal starship, Sio Bibble and Quarsh Panaka decide upon Ric Olie for the position. (conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo)

- Shortly after Amidala’s election as Queen of Naboo, Captain Quarsh Panaka has a royal pistol designed as her sidearm. (conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo)

- Soon after the assassinations of the Trade Federation directorate on Eriadu, Havac’s true name, Eru Matalis, is revealed, and the disgraced Nebula Front is all but disbanded. Senator Palpatine speaks with the newly elected Queen Padmé Naberrie Amidala via holocomm and learns that King Veruna is dead, having after his abdication. As for Supreme Chancellor Valorum’s taxation proposal, it should pass soon. It finally does pass, but the victory is short lived. Acting on information from Senator Orn Free Taa (planted in Taa’s computer by Palpatine’s assistant, Safe Pestage), Bail Antilles brings Valorum before the courts. It would appear that the taxation and Palpatine’s proposed (and passed) plan for tax money to help flood back into the Rim thereby helping its markets has prompted a large amount of new investment in Valorum’s family’s business interests on Eriadu. This would be insider trading, to an extent, but it is compounded by the fact that the funds invested came from an account known for pay-offs . . . and it was paid in the same aurodium ingots stolen from the Trade Federation’s Revenue by Captain Cohl. It has the appearance of Valorum being paid off by the Trade Federation. He is now “mired by baseless accusations of corruption.” Later, as Senators mingle at a party, we learn that Mas Amedda, a Trade Federation puppet and super-bureaucrat, has been appointed to serve as Vice Chancellor (under suggestion from Palpatine), taking away much of Valorum’s political power, even as Orn Free Taa and others begin to consider that the next Supreme Chancellor shouldn’t be Antilles or Ainlee Teem (who are both already basically campaigning), but Palpatine himself. At the Jedi Temple, the Jedi sense an unknown hand tipping events toward darkness. Finally, aboard the Trade Federation vessel Saak’ak (the Profiteer), Gunray, Monchar, Haako, and Dofine are contacted by Darth Sidious, who suggests that they put the Trade Federation’s new war machines to the test... by blockading Naboo as a protest against trade route taxation. The political stage for the Battle of Naboo has been set.

(Cloak of Deception)
- With the deaths of several Kuati members of the Trade Federation’s Executive Board, Kuat Drive Yards turns its back on the Trade Federation and joins forces with the Republic.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- In a similar fashion to Kuat Drive Yards, Tagge Company (TaggeCo) severs its ties with the Trade Federation as well. In the case of TaggeCo, though, they remain neutral through the upcoming Clone Wars.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- TCW DATE: Just over ten years before encountering Nuru Kungurama, Hethra Mcgrrr’s Mcgrrrrr Gang is trapped by the pull of a black hole that has qualities that make hyperspace travel impossible. The group eventually becomes the Black Hole Pirates and begins taking in other stray travelers who end up trapped by the strange phenomenon.
  (conjecture based on Curse of the Black Hole Pirates)

The Predators (G2 short story: Owen K. C. Stephens)*
The Predators (G2 short story: Owen K. C. Stephens)*
  Jungle Clearing
  The Shrine Entrance
  The Guard Room
  The Power Generator
  Storage Room
  The Barracks
  Saidle’s Chamber

*NOTE: This adventure was a tie-in adventure to Invasion of Theed, first presented on the Wizards of the Coast Website under the name The Smugglers of Naboo and then printed in Star Wars Gamer #2 as The Predators.

Understanding the Jedi Code (G1 short story: J. D. Wiker)
Understanding the Jedi Code (G1 short story: J. D. Wiker)
Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Aurra’s Song (DHPA00 short story: Dean Motter)
  Aurra’s Song (DHPA00 short story: Dean Motter)
Once Bitten [flashback] (SWT12 short story: C. B. Cebulski)
  Once Bitten [flashback] (SWT12 short story: C. B. Cebulski)
The Death of Captain Tarpals (SWT3 short story: Ryder Windham)
  The Death of Captain Tarpals (SWT3 short story: Ryder Windham)
Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Jedi Council: Acts of War (comic series: Randy Stradley)
  Acts of War, Part I (comic series: Randy Stradley)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Mastery

Ordinary Beings
Under the Midnight Sun
Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Jedi Council: Acts of War [continued] (comic series: Randy Stradley)
   Acts of War, Part II (comic series: Randy Stradley)
   Acts of War, Part III (comic series: Randy Stradley)
   Acts of War, Part IV (comic series: Randy Stradley)

Episode I Adventures (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
Episode I Adventures, Cycle III (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
   Rescue in the Core (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
      Chapters 1 – 14
   The Festival of Warriors (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
      Introduction
      Chapters 1 – 12
   Pirates from Beyond the Sea (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
      Introduction
      Chapters 1 – 11
   The Bongo Rally (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
      Introduction
      Chapters 1 – 13

Life, Death, and the Living Force (SWT1 short story: Jim Woodring)
   Life, Death, and the Living Force (SWT1 short story: Jim Woodring)

Deal with a Demon (SWT3 short story: John Ostrander)
   Deal with a Demon (SWT3 short story: John Ostrander)

Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
   Prelude to Rebellion [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad)
      Prelude to Rebellion #0 [continued] (starwars.com comic: Peet Janes)
      Prelude to Rebellion, Part I (comic: Jan Strnad)
      Prelude to Rebellion, Part II [continued] (comic: Jan Strnad)
      Prelude to Rebellion, Part III [continued] (comic: Jan Strnad)
      Prelude to Rebellion, Part IV (comic: Jan Strnad)
      Prelude to Rebellion, Part V (comic: Jan Strnad)
      Prelude to Rebellion, Part VI (comic: Jan Strnad)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
   Chapter 3

Thank the Maker [flashback] (SWT6 short story: Ryder Windham)
   Thank the Maker [flashback] (SWT6 short story: Ryder Windham)

Jedi Council (canceled comic series: Unknown)*
   Yoda (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Mace Windu (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Yaddle (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Eeth Koth (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Yarael Poof (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Saesee Tiin (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Adi Gallia (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Oppo Rancisis (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Even Piell (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Ki-Adi-Mundi (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Plo Koon (canceled comic: Unknown)*
   Depa Billaba (canceled comic: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This series of 12 Jedi Council One-Shots never came to exist. It was replaced by Acts of War. Consider it historical curiosity.

Secret Missions (youth novel series: Ryder Windham) Guardians of the Chiss Key (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapter 1

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]
Sith’ari

Darth Maul: Saboteur (E-book: James Luceno)
Darth Maul: Saboteur (E-book: James Luceno)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]
Sith’ari [continued]
The Discreet Charm of the Meritocracy

Darth Maul: Saboteur [continued] (E-book: James Luceno)
Darth Maul: Saboteur [continued] (E-book: James Luceno)

Cloak of Deception (novel: James Luceno)
Cloak of Deception (novel: James Luceno)
Dorvalla
Chapters 1 – 6

Coruscant
Chapters 7 – 17
The Outlying Systems
Chapters 18 – 23

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]
Their Baser Nature

Cloak of Deception [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Cloak of Deception [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
The Outlying Systems [continued]
Chapters 24 – 25

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]
Their Baser Nature [continued]

Cloak of Deception [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Cloak of Deception [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
The Outlying Systems [continued]
Chapters 26 – 33

Maul: Lockdown (novel: Joe Schreiber)
Maul: Lockdown (novel: Joe Schreiber)
Cog Hive Seven
Sadiki
Hot Mess
Coyle
Knockout Mouse
The Whole Thing Runs on Blood Gravity Massive Mute Math
Straphanger
Skin in the Game
From the Land of the Ice and Snow
Face Time
Cautionary Tale
Jar of Flies
LiMerge
Nightside
Ghost Voltage
Black Start
In My Time of Dying
Open Secrets
Spindle
Blue Witch
Factory Floor
Wishlist
Skull Game
Old Man
Varactyl
Submerged
Spectators
Tank
Clarity
Whiteout
Reconfig
Hooligans
Ready Room
What the Fever Said
Bestiary
Antidote
Crawl
Nobody’s Hero
The Main Monkey Business
Bleed the Freak
Kaldani Spires
Shop
Red Saber Dreams
Hangar
Airborne
Watch the Throne
Cabal
Behind the Mask
To the Hold
Purge
Is There a Ghost
Hot Box
Inbound Flight
12 x 18
Killing Box
The Dark Backward
Syrox
Closing Time
Pressure and Time
Ready Appliance
Sojourn
The Tombs
As Below, So Above
Hush
The Man Comes Around
Malefactors
Low Numbers
The Killing Moon
The Sum of Its Parts
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]
Their Baser Nature [continued]

Calibrations

Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Darth Maul (comic series: Ron Marz)
Darth Maul, Part I (comic: Ron Marz)
Darth Maul, Part II (comic: Ron Marz)
Darth Maul, Part III (comic: Ron Marz)
Darth Maul, Part IV (comic: Ron Marz)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]

Calibrations [continued]

Rise of the Sith Omnibus [continued] (comic: Mike Kennedy & Ryder Windham & Randy Stradley & Jan Strnad & Ron Marz & Dean Motter)
Darth Maul [continued] (comic series: Ron Marz)
Darth Maul, Part IV [continued] (comic: Ron Marz)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]

Chain of Command

Marked (SWT24 short story: Rob Williams)
Marked (SWT24 short story: Rob Williams)

Shadows of Coruscant (RPG: Andy Collins & Bill Slavicsek & J. D. Wiker)
Shadows of Coruscant (RPG: Andy Collins & Bill Slavicsek & J. D. Wiker) Agent of Terror
The Meeting
Lightning Strikes
Chaos in the Canyons
The Enemy’s Secret

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
Episode I Adventures, Cycle I (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
Search for the Lost Jedi (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 11

The Bartokk Assassins (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 10

The Fury of Darth Maul (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 10

Jedi Emergency (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 10

Urchins (SWT14 short story: Stan Sakai)
Urchins (SWT14 short story: Stan Sakai)
Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
Episode I Adventures, Cycle II (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Ghostling Children (youth novel: Dave Wolverton)
Chapters 1 – 14
The Hunt for Anakin Skywalker (youth novel: Dave Wolverton)
Chapters 1 - 11
Capture Arawynne (youth novel: Dave Wolverton)
Chapters 1 – 17
Trouble on Tatooine (youth novel: Dave Wolverton)
Chapters 1 – 14

Obi-Wan (video game: LucasArts)
Obi-Wan (video game: LucasArts)
The Shadows of Coruscant
The Informant
Secret of the Black Heth
In the Jin’Ha Swamp
The Mines of Obredaan
Escape!

The Starfighter Trap (G1/starwars.com/wizards.com/lucasarts.com short story: Steve Miller)*
The Starfighter Trap (G1 short story: Steve Miller)*
The Starfighter Trap, Part One (starwars.com short story: Steve Miller)*
The Starfighter Trap, Part Two (wizards.com short story: Steve Miller)*
The Starfighter Trap, Part Three (lucasarts.com short story: Steve Miller)*

*NOTE: This story was included as one full story in Star Wars Gamer #1, but was first released in three parts on the official Star Wars website, the Wizards of the Coast website, and the LucasArts website, hence the strange structure of this entry. Oddly enough, while the WotC website included RPG statistics for the characters in the story, the Gamer issue did not.

Cloak of Deception [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Cloak of Deception [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
The Inner Circle
Chapters 34 – 37

32 – 31.9 BBY
• At this point, there are only ten thousand Jedi Knights.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode I--“The Phantom Menace” novelization)
• At this time, five Hutt clans essentially run Tatooine: the Desilijic under Jabba; the Besadii under Gardulla; the Nasiri; the Faljozic; and the Jahibakti.
  (conjecture based on Secrets of Tatooine)
• TCW DATE: Rotta the Hutt is born to Jabba Desilijic Tiure.
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars: The Visual Guide)
• Kea Moll is born on Annoo to Demma Moll.
  (conjecture based on Droids)
• Major Perrn is born.
  (conjecture based on The New Republic Campaign: The Battle for Endor from the PC’s Perspective)
• Taver Soren is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Luminous Bantha)*
*NOTE: This assumes a date of 4 – 5 ABY for The Luminous Bantha.
• Trever Flume is born on Bellassa.*
  (conjecture based on Dark Warning)*
*NOTE: References in The Desperate Mission would seem to have suggested that Trever was twelve during the early Last of the Jedi books, but a reference to him being thirteen in Dark Warning pins down his age much more specifically, hence having him born here, rather than in 31 BBY.
• Pavik Tharen is born to Renn and Sera Tharen on Corellia.*
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)*
*NOTE: This could just as easily be dated 31 BBY. Han notes that Pavik is “two or three” years older than him, and I chose to use three instead of two.

- Thilis-Brin is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #10)
- Kant Aryon is born on Bethars.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley)
- Dren Nord is born.*
  (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjacker)*

*NOTE: This assumes Nord is 35 in Special Ops: Shipjacker.
- Tantor is born on Esboma.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Dom Vidmin is born on Riflor.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Niles Ferrier is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising Sourcebook)
- Akanah Norand Goss is born.
  (conjecture based on Before the Storm)
- Boc Aseca (Bocas’eca), better known as the Dark Jedi “Boc the Crude,” is born on Ryloth. He is Force-sensitive, but the death of Ryloth’s Jedi scout, Anoon Bondara, during this year puts off anyone recognizing his talents until Nejaa Halcyon discovers him years later and deems him too old to train as a Jedi.
  (conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part IV: Of the Crudest Matter)
- Vin Northal is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, abridged)
- Saren Llalik is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, abridged)
- Siro Simto is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, abridged)
- Atresh Pikil is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- Zenn Bien is born.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- The Tapani Sector enters into what is later known as the Imperial Era (12,689 - 12,724 by their domestic calendar).
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)
- Aldar Beedo is hired by Wan Sandage to kill Sebulba.
  (conjecture based on Episode I: Insider’s Guide)
- Granta Omega graduates from the All Science Research Academy on Yerphonia.
  (conjecture based on The Master of Disguise)
- Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi make one last journey to Ragoon-6 to continue the bonding exercise that was interrupted years earlier when Qui-Gon sensed Tahli’s impending death.
  (conjecture based on The Trail of the Jedi)
- On Sernpidal, a fight breaks out in a cantina. Young Rango Tel defeats his drunken adversary and learns to his surprise that he has just incapacitated a man with a sizable bounty on his head. Tel uses the money to leave the planet and, encouraged by his windfall, decides to become a bounty hunter. Being young and naïve, however, he is swindled by a junk dealer who sells him substandard vac-exposure armor as authentic Mandalorian armor. Tel then takes a Hutt contract on Kam Nale, son of Fluggrian kingpin Borzu Nale. He spends the next several months searching for Kam.*
  (conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Rango Tel, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.
- Around this time, Wilhuff Tarkin is elected Lieutenant Governor or Eriadu, owing to family connections. This comes only after he leaves the Outland Regions Security Force to pursue Ferus Olin becomes Padawan Learner to an unknown Jedi Master. Approximately five years from now, under unknown circumstances, he will become Siri Tachi's new Padawan Learner.*

Ferus obviously becomes Padawan after Siri drops her cover from Jedi Quest: Path to Truth, but Ferus sounds far more experienced than the other Padawans. The way Anakin talks about him makes it sound as though he was a star pupil that was talked about constantly after leaving as a Padawan quite a while before The Way of the Apprentice. Thus, it seems that he must have somehow been under someone else between the normal 13-year-old mark for becoming a Padawan and later becoming Siri's Padawan.

Imprisoned on the Trade Federation vessel, the Stockade (an apt name), the pirate captain Nym recounts how he came to be there to his fellow captive. Three days earlier, Nym, Kole, and Jinkins took the Havoc to make a trade of stolen Trade Federation blaster prototypes with Vana Sage. Upon arrival at the meeting, Vana's subordinates turned out to be bounty hunters. They attacked the trio, even as battle droids emerged from a hidden area. Vana had betrayed Nym. To save his own life and that of his crew, Nym surrenders himself. Kole and Jinkins will be sent down to Maramere in an escape pod, but Vana intends to keep the Havoc. As Nym finishes recounting his misfortune, Merick and Bravo, two torturers, arrive to take him to his interrogation, but his hate will see him through the day.

Rhys Dallows, a new recruit to Bravo Flight, undergoes training with Essara Till, before being assigned to escort Queen Amidala's royal vessel. On one of their early missions escorting the queen (this time to a meeting with Trade Federation officials), the Trade Federation vessel bugs out, leaving them all under attack by mercenaries. While the queen's vessel gets to safety, Essara's starfighter is destroyed, killing her. Rhys' ship is too badly damaged to pursue the mercs, but he is luckily found by the Toydarian Reti, who tows him to the base of another merc, Vana Sage, for repairs. Meanwhile, Vana herself is working for the Trade Federation, testing her skills in her Guardian Mantis against new scarab starfighter droids. However, upon overhearing a transmission reporting the failure to assassinate Amidala (in the battle Rhys just took part in), Vana is deemed to know too much to live, so the Federation sends their droids after her, along with incoming mercs. She manages to beat them off, then finds her way to the volcanic world of Eos, where she discovers a massive Trade Federation operation. They appear to be creating an invasion force, and this close to Naboo, Naboo can be its only target. Upon escaping, she heads for home, only to find the pirate Nym waiting for her there. Nym spares her life when she tells him of what is happening on Eos, but he still locks her up for safekeeping. Nym and his pirates check out Eos, then come under fire by Trade Federation vessels. While protecting their home system of Lok from the Federation, they end up knocking one starfighter out of the sky and recover it. Unfortunately, the recovered technology has a tracking device, which brings the Federation down on Nym's base. Nym is forced to order an evacuation of his Lok base operation. Upon arriving back at Vana's "home," where he had stashed Vana, Nym finds that Rhys and Reti have arrived for his repairs and have freed Vana. Luckily, rather than killing the three of them, Nym listens to reason, and the four of them agree to work together to destroy the Federation's factory. They do so, with two of them (Rhys and Reti) going after space-borne defenses and the other two (Nym and Vana) taking out the factory. Their mission is quite a success, delivering a blow to the Federation in the system . . . but the victory is short-lived, as they soon learn that the Neimoidian Trade Federation has now blockaded Rhys' homeworld of Naboo. (To be continued below . . . )*

Darth Maul is reporting back to Darth Sidious on Coruscant after the Black Sun mission. Sidious then reports the same to Darth Plagueis, who reveals that just as Maul risked their secretly by revealing himself as a Sith Lord to Alexi Garyn. Plagueis did so before killing Veruna. Sidious believes the other Sith are becoming complacent during the endgame. Sidious and Plagueis walk together to consider their plans. The Trade Federation is ready to blockade Naboo, and they see the ability to continue creating resentment that can lead to a civil war. They realize that both sides in such a war would need to be managed, and that with Yinchorri clones being useless based on tests on Kamino, they believe human clones would make for a good army. They intend to use Silo-Dyas, who already sees the need for such an army to an extent, to make this happen. Sidious has tried contacting Nute Gunray and found that one of the Neimoidian leaders, Hath Monchar is “ill.” Believing this to be a ruse, Sidious recalls Darth Maul for a new mission . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Darth Plagueis)

- Darth Sidious has attempted to contact the Neimoidian Trade Federation heads via hologram. When the connection was made with the Saak’ak, though, Nute Gunray had to pretend that Deputy Viceroy Hath Monchar is ill. In actuality, Hath has vanished, taking a vessel with him. Sidious, of course, knew Nute is lying, and contacted Darth Maul. Both the Sith Lords and the Neimoidians know that it is highly likely that Hath is trying to sell information about the upcoming blockade of Naboo to the highest bidder, possibly even with the information that the Sith are behind it. (We’ve already seen him trying to sell this information to Black Sun just under six months ago.) On Coruscant, Darth Maul’s destination in seeking Hath, small-time lawbreaker Lorn Pavan meets with Zippa to purchase an ancient Sith Holocron. He is double-crossed, though, and he and his partner, I-5YQ, are forced to return home empty-handed. At the Jedi Temple, Master Anoon Bondara’s Padawan, Darsha Assant, is given her final mission before being promoted to Jedi Knight. She is to head for the Crimson Corridor of Coruscant and transport Oolth, the only survivor of Darth Maul’s Black Sun massacre six months earlier, from a safehouse to the Temple. Her mission is a failure, though, for when she secures Oolth and tries to escape, a group of Raptors led by “Green Hair” attacks, ending in the destruction of her skyhopper. She and Oolth try to escape to higher levels on a cable, but hawkbats wound Darsha and send Oolth falling to his death. Elsewhere, Darth Maul has tracked Hath Monchar to a tavern, not knowing that the Neimoidians have hired their own bounty hunter, Mahwi Lihnn, to find him too. Maul arrives too late, but learns that Hath has a holocron with information he wishes to sell and that the bartender pointed Hath to Lorn to try to sell the holocron. Lorn awakens from a drunken sleep, having spent part of the night ranting about how the Jedi ruined his life, and checks his messages. Yanth the Hutt is eager to buy a holocron, while Hath has contacted him about selling one. Seeing this as a way out, Lorn goes to meet Hath. They have a quick meeting, during which Lorn learns that he and I-Five will need to pull a bank fraud scam to get enough money to buy the holocron from Hath, but can then resell it to Yanth for more profit. As they go to pull off the fraud, Hath is followed to his quarters by Maul and Mahwi. Maul slices his way in, finding and executing Hath for his betrayal. Before he can recover the holocron, though, Mahwi enters and fires on him. He barely escapes before the ill-aimed rocket destroys the room, killing Mahwi. Soon, Lorn and I-Five arrive. They quickly recover the holocron and escape. Maul informs Sidious of his partial failure and is told to kill Lorn and destroy the holocron. As Lorn meets with Yanth, selling him the holocron, Darsha returns to the Jedi Temple. She and Master Bondara return to the Crimson Corridor to confirm Oolth’s death. Later, Maul, having gone through Lorn’s messages at his home, breaks into Yanth’s lair. He kills Yanth, reclaiming the holocron, even as Lorn and I-Five escape. Maul pursues them through the streets, but before he can catch them, Darsha and Bondara, having confirmed Oolth’s death, move in to save the day. They use their skycar’s repulsors to knock Maul down in mid-jump and escape with the two partners. Maul manages to damage the skycar’s ability to rise, however, allowing him time to get his speederbike and give chase. In mid-chase, Bondara leaps onto the speederbike, grappling with Maul. Hoping to give Darsha and their charges time to escape, Bondara leaps to a rooftop, where Maul soon joins him. Maul bests Bondara in a furious duel, leading Bondara to use his last resort—causing Maul’s bike to overload and explode. Bondara is killed, and Maul barely escapes. The shockwave knocks the skycar out of the sky. I-Five barely pulls Darsha and Lorn out before it explodes. At the Jedi Temple, Yoda, Mace Windu, and Qui-Gon Jinn are concerned about Darsha and Bondara’s disappearance. They send Obi-Wan Kenobi to investigate. Darsha, Lorn, and I-Five escape deeper into Coruscant, pursued by Maul. The trio are captured by Cthons, but escape thanks to unexpected teamwork. They go deeper, even as Maul finds and kills most of the Cthons. The trio arrive at a bridge over a huge cavern. On their trek, Darsha has realized that Lorn was a worker at the Temple at one time, but when his son was taken for Jedi training, he left, resentful of their intervention. Her musing over the situation is cut short when they realize that the bridge was created by a taozin, a creature invisible to the Force. With no way to defeat the taozin, which begins to attack, they are forced to retreat toward where Maul waits. Finally, I-Five has a better idea. They dismantle part of the bridge and sever their side, allowing them to swing around and under the taozin to safety. As they scramble up the other side, Maul tries to find another way over, but is forced to go back the way he came and resume his search later. The trio are again accosted by Green Hair, but Lorn holds him at blaster point. They prod him to find a way to get them to a higher level. At a comm terminal, Maul contacts Sidious and calls in a false lead on the bank fraud that took place a short time earlier. When security forces arrive, he destroys them and steals one of their speederbikes. Maul then realizes that in the security images he scanned, he’d seen a security alert giving Lorn’s current location, thanks to the bank fraud APB. Elsewhere, Lorn and Darsha are beginning to become fond of one another, despite Lorn’s ever-fading hatred for the Jedi. Green Hair leads them to a ladder to ten levels up, but when the trio emerges, Maul is waiting for them. Darsha forces I-Five and Lorn into another sealed compartment where I-Five begins to put them both into carbonite for protection. Darsha and Maul duel. Darsha is, of course, sure she will die, but she manages to pile up explosive materials behind Maul, detonating them with her lightsaber. Darsha is killed, and, again, Maul barely escapes, assuming everyone dead. Later, Maul contacts Sidious and arranges to meet to give him the holocron. At about the same time, Obi-Wan, who has seen various bits of the chase thus far, discovers the explosion site and Darsha’s lightsaber. He now has confirmation that Bondara, Darsha, and Oolth are all dead. Lorn awakens from the carbon freeze. He and I-Five are picked up by Tuden Sal, their contact to get off the planet. Escaping, they see Maul board the cloaked Infiltrator and Lorn decides he must go after the Sith Lord, to reclaim the holocron and avenge Darsha. They follow Maul once he decloaks in the atmosphere, heading for a Coruscant space station. Once there, Maul heads for where he is to meet Sidious, and Lorn enters as well, telling Sal to get Lorn and the info he has (about the coming blockade and the Sith) to the Jedi Temple. Once Lorn enters the station, though, Sal decides to simply steal I-Five and reprogram him as a bodyguard. It is all up to Lorn now. Using a bit of taozin skin, Lorn sneaks up behind Maul and stuns him. Maul awakens as Lorn steals the holocron. Maul severs Lorn’s hand, but Lorn manages to escape down the hall to another room, where Senator Palpatine is meeting with others from the Senate. Lorn gives Palpatine the holocron, not knowing he has just delivered the holocron to Darth Sidious. Lorn is then sent to a medical facility on Palpatine’s orders . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Shadow Hunter)

- Darth Sidious slips back from acquiring the Holocron from Lorn Pavan to rejoin Darth Plagueis at a political function. Plagueis has been engaged in discussion with Jedi Master Sifo-Dyas, reminding him of a conversation they had years ago about the idea of having a clone army grown in case the Republic were to need one. He suggests that he (as Hego Damask) would fund such a venture if Sifo-Dyas would put in such an order on Kamino. (To be continued below . . . )

(Darth Plagueis)

- TCW DATE: Shortly before the Battle of Naboo, tensions between the Pyke Syndicate of Oba Diah and other criminal organizations are nearing the point of a full-scale underworld war. To prevent this, Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum secretly sends Jedi Master Sifo-Dyas and his own personal aide, Silman, to Oba Diah to resolve the situation. Shortly after their arrival, however, war between clans on Felucia necessitates that the pair leave to resolve that situation first. They will so do, but plotting in the meantime will mean the death of Sifo-Dyas when he finally heads back to Oba Diah . . .

(conjecture based on The Lost One)

- Black Sun Vigo Yanth the Hutt’s henchman, Dal Perhi, is afforded a bit of a legendary status as word begins to spread about him having tangled with Obi-Wan Kenobi when Kenobi investigates Yanth.

(conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)

- Colonel Kaever Tapps informs Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum of the blockading of Naboo by the Trade Federation. Valorum sends a communiqué to Qui-Gon Jinn, wishing to send him on a secret mission of negotiation to Naboo.

(conjecture based on Secrets of Naboo)

- Keder the Black, a paid assassin and spy, infiltrates the Coruscant royal guards protecting Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, abridged)

- Odin Nesloor’s entire family is lost when their starship makes a routine jump into hyperspace.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, abridged)

- Madakor begins serving as a Captain in the Old Republic Navy, and is the commander of the Radiant VII when it is dispatched to the planet Naboo.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, abridged)

- Williams begins serving the Old Republic as a Lieutenant in the Navy. He is personally requested by Captain Madakor to pilot the Radiant VII to Naboo.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, abridged)

- The Jedi, never having received the holocron or I-Five’s warning, have learned of the blockade of Naboo. Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi are to be dispatched to Naboo at once. A short time later, Lorn Pavan, now healed, believes he has gotten the holocron to the Jedi as Darsha Assant would’ve wanted. He is ready to start a new life, but when he opens his door, Darth Maul is there. Maul kills him, completing his mission. But at least, Lorn thinks, his son may still grow to be a Jedi, and that would not be so bad anymore.

(Shadow Hunter)

- While meeting with Supreme Chancellor Valorum, feigning trying to protect his “old friend” from allegations against him, Palpatine is informed of the Trade Federation blockade of Naboo (which, of course, he had set in motion as Darth Sidious). Valorum supports his “old friend” in resolving the situation. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Darth Plagueis)*

*NOTE: This portion of the summary is a bit difficult to pin down. Supposedly, Maul has already killed Lorn at this point, but Valorum has not sent the Jedi yet, which seems to contradict the order in which this took place in Shadow Hunter. Much of what follows in the next portion of Darth Plagueis is included in the TPM summary below.

- I-Five, now separated from Lorn Pavan, eventually ends up in the employ of Kessel Run spice smugglers, but authorities will seize him and sell him at auction, leading I-Five to Naboo as a house droid for a noble family.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- Darth Maul is given a new speederbike to replace the one destroyed by Anoon Bondara.

(conjecture based on Shadow Hunter)

- On Tatooine, the Lucky Despot Hotel opens.*

(conjecture based on Secrets of Tatooine)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the Boonta Eve Classic that is discussed in Secrets of Tatooine is the fateful one in TPM.

- On Naboo, Savor Kibbs begins rallying both Naboo and Gungans behind him in an attempt to take over rule of the planet.

(conjecture based on Invasion of Theed: Renegade)

- The morning of the invasion of Naboo, Padmé Amidala realizes that the amulet given to her by her father before she became queen has been lost. Her handmaiden, Sabé, seeks it out. She will find it just in time for Padmé to let her wear it as part of her disguise as her decoy.

(The Queen’s Amulet)

- En route to Naboo, Obi-Wan Kenobi delivers his report on Anoon Bondara and Darsha Assant’s fates to the Jedi Temple via holocomm.

(conjecture based on Shadow Hunter)

- A group of heroes on Naboo seek passage off of Naboo with Nuun Pargen and his daughter, Inea. They are stopped in their flight by a Trade Federation vessel and are forced to land outside of Theed. The heroes head into Theed to find medical supplies to help Inea, who was injured in the attack.

(conjecture based on Peril on Naboo)

Single Cell (SWT7 short story: Haden Blackman)

Starfighter (comic/video game series: Haden Blackman & LucasArts)*

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Darth Maul: Shadow Hunter (novel: Michael Reaves)

The Queen’s Amulet (children’s book: Julianne Balmain)

31.9 BBY

- On Tatooine, Anakin Skywalker engages in a Podrace. Sebulba, another racer, flashes him with his vents, and Anakin crashes. He survives, but the racer, owned by his owner, Watto, is a wreck. Another racer, Rimkar, dies at Sebulba’s hands. Watto orders Anakin to repair the racer. Shortly thereafter, Anakin, Wald, and Kister head for Maggy the Gorgon’s to buy some ruby bliels, their favorite drink, where they meet an old spacer, who tells them stories of adventure in space. Elsewhere, Republic Supreme Chancellor Finis Valorum secretly dispatches the Radiant VII to the Naboo blockade bearing two Jedi ambassadors, Jedi Master Qui-Gon Jinn and his Padawan learner, Obi-Wan Kenobi. They arrive aboard the Trade Federation command ship (the Saak’ak) and are greeted by TC-14, a protocol droid who shortly thereafter informs Neimoidian Trade Federation Viceroy Nute Gunray and Daultay Dofine that the ambassadors are Jedi. They contact Dark Lord of the Sith Darth Sidious (Republic Senator Palpatine, though that fact is not known, even to the Neimoidians, apparently) to inform him of these events, and Sidious (as his Apprentice, Darth Maul, watches from out of transmitter range) orders the Republic ambassadors, and all with them, destroyed. First, the Radiant VII is destroyed, with crew still aboard. Second, the Jedi themselves are caught in a room filling with gas until Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan burst out and decimate a group of battle droids, including OWO-1. The Jedi quickly escape to the hangar where they see the Federation forces preparing for an invasion. They each stow away on one Trade Federation landing craft and await their transport to the surface of Naboo. In the royal palace in Theed, capital of Naboo, Queen Amidala consults with Senator Palpatine (after a quick change out of his Dark Lord of the Sith cloak) via hologram, but the transmission is interrupted. The invasion has begun. Qui-Gon emerges from the landing craft and runs from an MTT (Multi-Troop Transport) until he runs into (literally) Jar Jar Binks. The two narrowly miss being killed, and Jar Jar owes Qui-Gon a life debt. After saving Obi-Wan from two STAPs (Single Trooper Aerial Platforms) when Obi-Wan’s lightsaber is inoperative, the trio make their way to Otoh Gunga, a hidden Gungan city, hub of the society from which Jar Jar has been banished for clumsiness. The Jedi plead their case to Boss Nass, but will receive no aid. They and Jar Jar are given a bongo (submarine), with a bit of Force suggestion, and make their way through the Naboo ocean to Theed, encountering several sea creatures on the way. On Tatooine, Anakin goes to meet Jawas and gain supplies for Watto. On the way back, he encounters a hurt Tusken Raider, whom he helps. Knowing it is too late to return home, he sleeps where he is for the night, dreaming of piloting starships, being a Jedi, and going to his mother, only to have her vanish before his eyes. He awakens to find other Sandpeople coming to claim their wounded “brother.” They leave without incident and Anakin returns home. On Naboo, as the Federation troops lead the captured Queen Amidala, her handmaidens, and her advisers to captivity, the Jedi burst on the scene, saving the Queen. They fight their way to Amidala’s ship, free several pilots, and leave the planet. In the ensuing pursuit by the Federation, the ship’s hyperdrive is damaged (badly) and only the quick actions of an astromech droid save the ship. The droid is then presented to Amidala. He is R2-D2. They must set down on Tatooine to search for a new hyperdrive (or one with the parts to fix their old one). On Tatooine, Anakin works on repairing a bin for Watto, when Amee arrives and distracts him. Watto orders him to speak with the newly arrived Jawas from Mochot Steep, who are now in Mos Espa to sell parts. Shmi, his mother, also asks him to get fruit on the way back. Anakin meets up with Wald and Kister and the trio goes to Jira’s fruit stand. They get the fruit and promise to find a cooling unit for Jira. They then run into Sebulba outside Maggy the Gorgori’s, but the altercation is stopped by the spacer, who offers the boys some ruby bliels. Before leaving, Anakin asks the spacer to tell him of the angels from the moons of lego the next time they meet. The boys depart, unknowing that behind the walls of Maggy the Gorgori’s, activities relating to the Boonta Eve Podrace he wishes to enter are going on. Inside, Gasgano and Mawhonic fight over their egos, Wan Sandage hires Aldar Beedo to kill Sebulba during the race, and Ark “Bumpy” Roose grumbles over having human competition. At the Jawa’s swap meet, the boys’ distraction manages to cost them the parts Watto needs as another person’s pit droid buys the parts as they arrive. Angered, Watto orders Anakin to clean the bins (which he has already cleaned). Once outside of the shop, he finds a cooling unit for Jira and, since he has already cleaned the bins, settles down for a nap. As he rests, he sees the Queen’s ship coming in for a landing. He falls asleep and dreams of an angel leading warriors into battle and himself, again, as a Jedi. Newly arrived on Tatooine, Qui-Gon, R2-D2, Jar Jar, and a handmaiden named Padmé go into Mos Espa for parts. At Watto’s junkyard, they meet Anakin. Watto has the necessary hyperdrive, but will not accept Republic dataries (credits). Leaving the shop, Jar Jar is nearly beaten up by a Dug named Sebulba, the reigning Podrace champion, but is saved by Anakin. A sandstorm comes and forces the group into shelter. Anakin takes them to his home, and introduces them to his mother, Shmi, and Anakin’s pet-project droid, C-3PO. Upon meeting him, R2-D2 tells C-3PO that he is naked. (The banter has begun!) Back at the ship, a message is received from Sio Bibble, an advisor of the queen, who urges her to contact him.  Obi-Wan knows this is meant to allow someone to trace the signal to them, so he orders them not to reply.  On Coruscant, Darth Sidious speaks with his apprentice, Darth Maul.  (Unbeknownst to them, they are being watched by Sidious’ own Sith Master, Darth Plagueis, who is eavesdropping through his droid, 11-4D.)  Sidious sends Maul to Tatooine (having traced the message being received).  Plagueis is concerned that this might reveal the Sith to the Jedi too soon and instigate a witch hunt for them if things don’t work out as foreseen.  On Tatooine, Anakin wishes to enter the Boonta Eve Podrace in his secretly-built Pod, hoping to win for his new friends the hyperdrive they need.  Qui-Gon places a bet with Watto--if Anakin wins, they split the profit (and thus they get the hyperdrive), and if Anakin loses, Watto gets the ship.  Qui-Gon then learns that Anakin apparently has no father (read:  virgin birth).  In space, Darth Maul comes out of hyperspace en route to Tatooine and is attacked by pirate vessel and its small support craft.  Maul takes his escape pod and lets the pirates look over his empty ship while he enters their ship and slaughters their companions.  The pirates on the Sith Infiltrator bring the ship aboard, and Maul wipes them out as well, but not before receiving a leg wound that will bother him for, quite literally, the rest of his life.  He takes his ship and escapes just as the pirate vessel explodes from Maul’s sabotage of its engines and weapons.  He heads on to Tatooine.  That night, Qui-Gon takes a blood sample from Anakin and sends it to Obi-Wan to be analyzed.  Anakin’s midichlorian count is far above even Yoda’s.  He has immense power in the Force, and Qui-Gon is convinced that he may be the Chosen One, the one who will bring balance to the Force.  Elsewhere, Maul lands and dispatches Sith probe droids to find the queen and the Jedi.  Back at the queen’s ship, the “queen” (her decoy) has been captured by Tusken Raiders!  Obi-Wan hunts down the Tusken group, finally finding and defeating its chief, saving the “queen.”  The next day, before the race, Qui-Gon makes another bet with Watto.  If Anakin wins, he will be freed.  If Anakin loses, Watto gets the Pod (which he is pretending is his own).  As preparations are made for the race, Jar Jar notices a Trooshti (think semi-sentient wasp) stealing the charging battery from Anakin’s Pod.  Knowing they will need the battery if Anakin is to race, Jar Jar and Padmé track the Trooshti, first into the hands of two Gamorrean slavers and then to an abandoned moisture farm that the Trooshti swarm is using as a home.  It seems that they need the battery to restart their water vaporator’s pump, or their home will dry up.  As the slavers attack, Padmé fixes the device and Jar Jar tricks the Gamorreans into falling into the water.  Padmé and Jar Jar race back to the arena following the Trooshti, who returns the battery to the Pod now that its use to his swarm is gone.  Anakin sees the two and tells them that Kister will show them to where they can get cleaned up.  The race is about to start.  The race proceeds and despite the cheating of Sebulba, Anakin wins, to the amazement of the spectators (including bounty hunter Aurra Sing).  Watto does not wish to let Qui-Gon take Anakin, but when Qui-Gon suggests that they turn the matter over to the Hutts, Watto seems to back down.  Qui-Gon tells him to bring the parts to the hangar and prepare to release Anakin shortly thereafter.  (As this happens, one of the probe droids notices Qui-Gon’s presence and heads off to inform Lord Maul).  As Qui-Gon leaves, Gardulla the Hutt arrives and offers to buy Anakin back from Watto.  Watto has been given yet another reason to keep Anakin from leaving.  When Gardulla leaves, Watto arranges for an employee of the arena to “persuade” Qui-Gon to allow Anakin to stay.  Qui-Gon, Jar Jar, Padmé, Shmi, and Anakin meet with Watto in the hangar moments later and Watto gives them the necessary parts to repair the hyperdrive.  Qui-Gon, Padmé, Jar Jar, and R2-D2 head back to the ship with the parts and say that they will return by midday to return Watto’s coppies and gray-sled.  Along the way, Qui-Gon explains to Jar Jar why he didn’t simply “beat the parts” out of Watto, and then hints to Padmé that the reason Anakin’s victory seemed assured was due to how he appeared to feel for Padmé.  Qui-Gon then tells Obi-Wan that he is returning to Mos Espa to get Anakin and proceeds to do so.  As he enters Mos Espa, Qui-Gon is led into a trap laid by Watto’s hired muscle, but he escapes uninjured.  He arrives at Watto’s shop just as Watto is speaking with Sebulba, who is in need of pod parts or a podracer.  Watto deactivates the device that would kill Anakin if he “escaped” and releases the boy to Qui-Gon.  Outside the shop, Qui-Gon meets Sebulba and sells Anakin’s podracer to him.  As he leaves, he sees Anakin fighting with a Rodian boy named Greedo, who had accused him of cheating in the race. Qui-Gon stops the fight and gives Anakin a lesson in tolerance. He then tells Anakin that he sold the pod and the two head for Anakin’s home, only to come upon a slaver riding a repulsorlift vehicle pulled by three slaves, all severely dehydrated. Qui-Gon steps in and gives them water, along with using the Force to influence the slaver into being kinder to them. When Anakin asks why he didn’t just make the slaver set the slaves free, Qui-Gon tells him that the slaves wouldn’t have lasted long on Tatooine alone, and a Jedi must be responsible for the consequences of his actions. Upon arrival at the Skywalker home, Qui-Gon tells Anakin that he is free and after a tearful goodbye to Shmi, the two head for the ship. While they are en route, Darth Maul is back near his ship facing off with Tusken Raiders. After whupping up on some of them, the others retreat to find easier prey. Just as they leave, the probe droid that spotted Qui-Gon returns and informs Maul that the Jedi Master and the boy are on their way to their ship. As Qui-Gon and Anakin near the ship, Darth Maul speeds onto the scene and duels Qui-Gon while Anakin tells the others to take off. They take off and approach low enough for Qui-Gon to jump aboard and escape. En route to Coruscant, Padmé speaks with a sad Anakin. Anakin gives her a necklace he made from a jappor snippet for her to remember him by. When Anakin finally falls asleep, Jar Jar and Padmé speak of missing home. When Quash Panaka enters to see when Padmé will be finally going to sleep, she leaves for her quarters, but not before asking Jar Jar if he thought the Gungans would support a move against the Federation. Jar Jar tells her that if the Naboo would be treating the Gungans kindly, as Padmé has treated Jar Jar, then he could see it happening. They arrive on Coruscant, where Amidala speaks with Palpatine, who convinces her that she should call for a vote of no confidence in Supreme Chancellor Valorum, to allow a better leader into the position to help Naboo. At the Jedi temple, Qui-Gon relates the encounter with the mysterious attacker, trained as a Jedi. The Jedi Council must ponder what this could mean—if the Sith have indeed returned without their knowledge. Qui-Gon also wishes for Anakin to be tested and to train as a Jedi, over the Council’s obvious hesitation. After a brief word with Qui-Gon about Obi-Wan’s doubts, Anakin takes the test and speaks with the Jedi Council. He is found to have great fear in him, and thus the potential for hate, which leads to suffering. While he is being tested, Qui-Gon reveals his plan to Obi-Wan to send a Tobal Lens to Shmi on Tatooine in hopes that it might someday give her the leverage needed to buy or bargain for her freedom. In the Senate, the Federation ambassador, Lott Dod, is outraged by the accusation of an invasion and tries to stall the proceedings. Amidala calls for a vote of no confidence on Valorum, who will not act swiftly enough to save her people. As the race to become the next Supreme Chancellor ensues, Darth Plagueis uses Jabba the Hutt to release information that undermines Malastare’s Ainlee Teem by exposing ties to the Bando Gora cult and Gardulla the Hutt. Before discussing this is the likely next Chancellor with Amidala, Palpatine meets with Jedi Master Dooku, pushing to see if he is ready to dip over to the Dark Side. It is through Dooku that Palpatine learns that Anakin, the little boy from the landing platform with the queen, is believed to possibly be the Jedi Chosen One. (He realizes that this might be a being created by the Force in reaction to Plagueis mastering life and death around the same time Anakin would have been conceived.) He informs Plagueis, who tries to get in to see Anakin, but Anakin is already gone (being tested at the Jedi Temple, as seen earlier). Plagueis is dismayed. He (and Darth Tenebrous before him) were awaiting a being born of the Force, a super-powerful Jedi that they could study (or even take over as a host body) to extend their lives indefinitely, but now that child may well become a Jedi instead of a Sith Lord! As he reports this to Sidious, Palpatine is nominated by Orn Free Taa to be the next Supreme Chancellor. Amidala learns a short time later that Palpatine is the most likely candidate for Supreme Chancellor (which seems to have been Palpatine’s whole purpose in using his Darth Sidious persona to escalate the Naboo conflict). She also learns that the Gungans have a large army. She takes the group (with the Jedi, at the Council’s urging) back to Naboo. Darth Maul is then sent to Naboo. On Naboo, the group finds the Gungans at a sacred hiding place. Padmé reveals that she is Amidala, and “Amidala” is really her handmaiden, Sabé, who had taken her place as a decoy. She shows that she is not above the Gungans, and Nass agrees to help. The Gungans will attack as a diversion, while the others kidnap Nute Gunray to strike the leadership from the Federation forces. The remaining pilots will try to take out the Federation's droid control ship (the Vuutun Palaa), rendering the droids inoperable. The Gungans enter the battlefield and are met by heavy resistance from battle droids and AATs. The infiltration team makes it into the Theed via a captured MTT and a hidden entrance, then on into the hangar. The pilots take off in Royal N-1 Starfighters, while Anakin is told to stay in a cockpit (with R2-D2 in the astromech socket) where it is safe. As the group prepares to leave the hangar, they are met by Darth Maul. The Jedi handle him while the others make their way to Nute Gunray in the throne room. Anakin accidentally takes off in the starfighter and enters the space battle. As Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon duel Darth Maul (at the same time), Anakin finds himself crashing into the hangar of the droid control ship. In the Theed reactor core, the duel rages. Obi-Wan is kicked by Maul and separated from the other two, who continue to duel. Force fields turn on and off in cycles (like an airlock) in a hallway toward the large shaft in the core. Qui-Gon and Maul duel in one of the "airlocks" (for lack of a better term), and when they are separated, Qui-Gon meditates and Maul stalks like a panther. When they finally enter the area around the shaft, Obi-Wan races to catch up but is stopped by one last field. He watches helplessly as Maul impales Qui-Gon and the Jedi Master falls. Obi-Wan finally is able to enter and he unleashes on Maul like a man possessed, managing to cut Maul's double-bladed lightsaber in half, leaving Maul with a regular lightsaber (basically). Maul knocks Obi-Wan into the shaft (where he barely hangs on) and kicks his lightsaber into oblivion. As Maul stands above, Obi-Wan uses the Force to launch himself out of the shaft and call Qui-Gon's lightsaber to him. He once again attacks Maul, slicing Maul clean through at the waist. Maul's two halves fall into the shaft. (Unbeknownst to Obi-Wan, the upper half of Maul, its wound cauterized by the lightsaber blade, is able to use the Force to push himself into a ventilation shaft, saving at least the upper half of his body from falling entirely down the shaft.) Obi-Wan races to Qui-Gon, but it is too late. Qui-Gon's last act is to have Obi-Wan promise to train Anakin. In the palace, Amidala's team captures Gunray. On the droid control ship, Anakin manages to destroy a critical part of the ship before escaping. The ship explodes and the droids on the surface shut down. The Battle of Naboo has been won. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Darth Sidious and Darth Plagueis know that Sidious (Palpatine) being elected to the Chancellorship is assured. This is the end of their Grand Plan, which Plagueis believes will mean that Sidious is Supreme Chancellor, and he will appoint Hego Damask (Plagueis) alongside him. However, Sidious has no intentions of sharing power with Plagueis. Sidious attacks Plagueis, mocking the "short-sighted" Sith Master as "Darth Plagueis the Wise." Sidious kills Plagueis, becoming the new Sith Master, believing Darth Maul is his apprentice (not knowing that Maul has died on Naboo). He is announced as the winner of the voting for Supreme Chancellor, even as the HoloNet carries news of the death of Hego Damask. Palpatine, now in power, heads for Naboo. Upon arrival, he congratulates the heroes and notes that he will watch Anakin's career with great interest. The heroes (and Palpatine) attend Qui-Gon Jinn's funeral pyre. During the funeral, Yoda and Mace Windu speak of the Sith Lords. There are always two, a Master and an Apprentice. Windu wonders which was killed that day—Master or Apprentice? Obi-Wan speaks with Yoda later. After telling Yoda the events of the adventure, he is promoted to full Jedi Knight, but his decision to train Anakin disturbs Yoda. Yoda disapproves of Obi-Wan training Anakin, but the Jedi Council has granted his request to train the boy. A victory celebration is then held in Theed. Amidala and Boss Nass usher the Naboo and the Gungans into a new era of peace on the planet. (Exact starting date based on the Essential Atlas and other Holocron-related sources: 3:4:14)

(Star Wars: Episode I--"The Phantom Menace" et al)*

*NOTE: By "et al," in this case, I am including the Anakin Skywalker, Qui-Gon Jinn, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Queen Amidala one-shots, the novelization, the script, the journals . . . everything. (Just so no one asks where my summaries for those items are or why my summary incorporates scenes that were not in the film.) The exact date for this story comes from extrapolation based on Anakin's birthdate. See that entry at 42 BBY. This date was later confirmed in the final installment of Republic HoloNet News from the Star Wars Insider #84. I should note that this date was also repeated on the map for TPM in the Essential Atlas as part of the dates I submitted for the project.

The Prequel Blu-Ray Trilogy (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)
Star Wars: Episode I--"The Phantom Menace" (movie: George Lucas)*
Opening Logos
The Phantom Menace
Short Negotiations
Queen Amidala
Landing on Naboo
Jar Jar Binks
Otoh Gunga
Boss Nass
The Planet Core
Invasion of Theed
Surprise Rescue
Running the Blockade
Tatooine
Watto’s Shop
Fateful Meetings
Dinner Conversation
Preparing for the Race
A Wager with Watto
Meet the Podracers
“Begin the Race”
Lap Two
Home Stretch
Collecting the Prize
Choosing a New Path
Darth Maul Attacks
The Queen’s Worries
Arrival on Coruscant
The Jedi Council
Senate Session
Testing Anakin
Palpatine’s Nomination
Anakin’s Future
The Queen’s Gambit
A Plea to the Gungans
Battle Plans
“Wipe Them Out”
Retaking the Palace
The Conflict Continues
Duel of the Fates
Gungan Retreat
Qui-Gon vs. Darth Maul
Capturing the Viceroy
Obi-Wan vs. Darth Maul
Control Ship Destroyed
A Sith Vanquished
Chancellor Palpatine Arrives
New Knight, New Apprentice
Farewell to a Jedi
Naboo Celebration
End Credits

*NOTE: As far as I can tell, this version of the film is the same as TPM’s 3D release, so there is no separate title entry here for that version of the film.

The Prequel DVD Trilogy (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)
Star Wars: Episode I--“The Phantom Menace” (movie: George Lucas)
Opening Logos
The Phantom Menace
Short Negotiations
Queen Amidala
Landing on Naboo
Jar Jar Binks
Otoh Gunga
Boss Nass
The Planet Core
Invasion of Theed
Surprise Rescue
Running the Blockade
Tatooine
Watto’s Shop
Fateful Meetings
Dinner Conversation
Preparing for the Race
A Wager with Watto
Meet the Podracers
“Begin the Race”
Lap Two
Home Stretch
Collecting the Prize
Choosing a New Path
Darth Maul Attacks
The Queen’s Worries
Arrival on Coruscant
The Jedi Council
Senate Session
Testing Anakin
Palpatine’s Nomination
Anakin’s Future
The Queen’s Gambit
A Plea to the Gungans
Battle Plans
“Wipe Them Out”
Retaking the Palace
The Conflict Continues
Duel of the Fates
Gungan Retreat
Qui-Gon vs. Darth Maul
Capturing the Viceroy
Obi-Wan vs. Darth Maul
Control Ship Destroyed
A Sith Vanquished
Chancellor Palpatine Arrives
New Knight, New Apprentice
Farewell to a Jedi
Naboo Celebration
End Credits

The Prequel Trilogy (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)
Star Wars: Episode I--“The Phantom Menace” (movie: George Lucas)*
Disc One
Opening Logos / The Galaxy in Turmoil
Occupied the Naboo [sic]
A Surprise Rescue
Encounter with Anakin
Preparing for the Race
A Wager with Watto
Choosing a New Path

Disc Two

Darth Maul
Testing Anakin
A Plea to the Gungan’s [sic]
Qui-Gon vs. Darth Maul
The Credits of Anakin
Celebration of the Galaxy / End Credits

*NOTE: The chapter names included here come from the VCD release of the film. The VCD was released in Asian markets and many were imported into the U.S. (including my copies), but the non-English markets are the reason for the somewhat odd chapter titles.

The Prequel Novelization Trilogy (novel trilogy: Terry Brooks & R. A. Salvatore & Matthew Stover)
The Phantom Menace (novel: Terry Brooks)
 Chapters 1 – 24

The Prequel Comic Adaptation Trilogy (comic trilogy: Henry Gilroy & Miles Lane)
The Phantom Menace (comic series: Henry Gilroy)
The Phantom Menace, Part I (comic: Henry Gilroy)
The Phantom Menace, Part II (comic: Henry Gilroy)
The Phantom Menace, Part III (comic: Henry Gilroy)
The Phantom Menace, Part IV (comic: Henry Gilroy)

Photo Comic Adaptations (comic series: Tokyopop & George Lucas & Bryan Andrews & Darrick Bachman & Paul Rudish & Gennady Tartakovsky & Kirsten Mayer & Rob Valois & Zachary Rau)
The Photo Comic Prequel Adaptation Trilogy (comic trilogy: Tokyopop & George Lucas)
The Phantom Menace Photo Comic (comic: Tokyopop & George Lucas)

The Manga Prequel Comic Adaptation Trilogy (comic trilogy: Kia Asamiya et al)
The Phantom Menace (comic series: Kia Asamiya)
The Phantom Menace, Part I (comic: Kia Asamiya)
The Phantom Menace, Part II (comic: Kia Asamiya)

“The Phantom Menace” (starwars.com comic: Henry Gilroy)*
“The Phantom Menace” (starwars.com comic: Henry Gilroy)*

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
 Chapters 4 – 5

The Phantom Menace (children’s book: John Whitman)

The Phantom Menace (read-along book: Walt Disney Records)
The Phantom Menace (read-along book: Walt Disney Records)
Anakin’s Fate (children’s book: Marc Cerasini)
Dangers of the Core (children’s book: Jim K. Thomas)
Anakin to the Rescue (children’s book: Cecilia Venn)

Episode I Lift-a-Flap (children’s book series: Kerry Milliron)
Jar Jar Binks (children’s book: Kerry Milliron)
Anakin Skywalker (children’s book: Kerry Milliron)

Episode I (children’s book series: Alice Alfonsi)
Anakin’s Race for Freedom (children’s book: Alice Alfonsi)

Jedi Junior (children’s book series: Liza Baker & Lara Bergen & Gail Herman & Laura Dower)
Save Naboo! (children’s book: Gail Herman)
Podrace! (children’s book: Lara Bergen)
Sith Attack! (children’s book: Lara Bergen)
Meet the Jedi High Council (children’s book: Laura Dower)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 2

The Phantom Menace (video game: LucasArts)
The Phantom Menace (video game: LucasArts)
  Trade Federation Battleship
  The Swamps of Naboo
  Otoh Gunga
  The Gardens of Theed
  Escape from Naboo
  Mos Espa
  Mos Espa Podraces
  Encounter in the Desert
  Danger in Coruscant
  Assault on Naboo
  The Final Battle

Obi-Wan’s Adventures (video game: LucasArts & THQ)
Obi-Wan’s Adventures (video game: LucasArts & THQ)

Jedi Power Battles (video game: LucasArts)
Jedi Power Battles (video game: LucasArts)

Jar Jar’s Journey (video game: Lucas Learning)
Jar Jar’s Journey (video game: Lucas Learning)

The Phantom Menace Storybook (children’s book: Unknown)

Watch Out, Jar Jar! (children’s book: Kerry Milliron)

C-3PO’s Big Adventure (children’s book: Liza Baker)

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
  A Special Calling
  A New Life Begins

Episode I Interactive Play-a-Sound (children’s book: Margaret Lansing)
Episode I Interactive Play-a-Sound (children’s book: Margaret Lansing)

R2-D2 Interactive Play-a-Sound (children’s book: Margaret Lansing)
R2-D2 Interactive Play-a-Sound (children’s book: Margaret Lansing)

  The Phantom Menace

The Complete Saga (youth novel: Jason Fry)
The Complete Saga (youth novel: Jason Fry)
  Episode I: The Phantom Menace

The Legendary Yoda (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
The Legendary Yoda (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
  Strong Opinions

The Phantom Menace 3D (children’s book: Pablo Hidalgo)

The Phantom Menace (children’s book: Hannah Dolan)
  The Jedi
  The Trade Federation
  Dark Dealings
  Invasion of Naboo
  Jar Jar Binks
Anakin Skywalker
Podracing
Mystery Man
The Jedi High Council
Battlefield
The Queen’s Palace
Deadly Duel
Flying High

Trouble Brewing
Planet of Naboo Battleship Blockade
Revenge of the Sith
Jedi to the Rescue
Young Queen
Underwater World
Gungan Guide Boy Hero
Fight on Tatooine
New Alliance
Battle Strategy
The Droid Army
Gungans vs. Droids
Hangar Battle
Into the Palace
Space Battle
Sith Duels
Celebration Time

Ultimate Duels (children’s book: Lindsay Kent)
Ultimate Duels (children’s book: Lindsay Kent)
A Forgotten Menace
Duels on Naboo

Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
An Important Mission
Sith duel
Jedi Knight

C-3PO
The Phantom Menace
Journals 1 – 8

Darth Vader
The Phantom Menace
Journals 1 – 9

Message Recording 5469: Qui-Gon Jinn
Message Recording 5471: Jar Jar Binks
Message Recording 5489: Anakin Skywalker
Message Recording 5495: Obi-Wan Kenobi
Message Recording 5506: Padmé Amidala
Message Recording 5507: Padmé Amidala
Message Recording 5530: Obi-Wan Kenobi

Star Wars Annual 2012 (children’s book: Pedigree Books)
CONCURRENT TO SW1

- Even as Anakin Skywalker engages Sebulba in a podrace that leaves Watto’s podracer mostly a wreck, Darth Maul hacks his way through numerous battledroids on Coruscant as practice. Darth Sidious comes to him with a new mission about to unfold.*

  (Duel of the Fates!)

*NOTE: This story is rather obscure, but it seems to be a retelling of Anakin’s “last race” that is referenced in the TPM film and seen in the TPM novelization. Maul’s portion, however, is not an adaptation of previous material but a new training sequence, hence giving this a separate entry here.

- En route to Naboo, Qui-Gon Jinn assures Obi-Wan Kenobi that he will one day be a great Jedi Knight. His only flaw is that he wishes to please Qui-Gon too much. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Legacy of the Jedi)

- Raymus Daal meets a group of free agents outside the Naboo city of Kwilaan. He hires them to take out a transmission array, which, unbeknownst to the agents, will cut off communications to and from most of Naboo to allow the Trade Federation to invade. The agents agree and leave the meeting even as Daal is attacked by security forces. They make it to the sensor array and take it out without much trouble. Communications on Naboo are now down, thanks to this event and parallels events carried out by battle droid OOM-9 and his (its?) forces.
Knowing that transmissions from Naboo need to be terminated in order to successfully blockade the planet, Trade Federation battle droid leader OOM-9 is sent to destroy various cities that have their own transmitters. Amid this mission, a group of Naboo are able to get ahold of a copy of the programming files used to control the droid army, but OOM-9’s forces retrieve the information and revitalize the groups of droids that the Naboo manage to shut down with it, allowing no major harm to come to the droid army. The rampage continues, taking heavy tolls on cities like Spinnaker, Harte Secur, New Cenrif, and others. Finally, OOM-9 and his legions are ordered to take the capital city of Theed and capture Queen Amidala . . . (To be continued below . . . )

In Theed on Naboo, Rorworr, Sia-Lan Wezz, Deel Surool, and Arani Korden are in the middle of their own little escapade when they find themselves hiding behind a blasted speeder and some crates as the invasion of Naboo commences. Each of the armed friends prepares to defend their home, while trying to escape the droids that are moving through the streets and arresting citizens. As the others hold off approaching droids, Deel is sent down the street to slice his way into a locked door for them to escape into. At the last moment, as Destroyer Droids arrive, the door opens, allowing the four to enter to safety, and into a situation they’d never expected . . . *

NOTE: What was the situation they hadn’t expected, you ask? We’ll never know. At that point, it is assumed that the individual SW:RPG gamer will take over with their own story.

On Naboo, in the capital city of Theed, several friends (Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, and Dane) find themselves facing several Battle Droids when the Neimoidian Trade Federation invades. As more Battle Droids come in to secure the city, the group narrowly escapes the droids to commandeering a flash speeder and escape from Theed.

In Theed, the former passengers of Nuun Pargen’s Crescent seek medical supplies for Inea Pargen. They are caught in the middle of the invasion. They meet Chee Mobok and assist him in escaping in return for him showing them to his speeder. They use the speeder to escape Theed, but are pursued by STAPs. They finally outrun the STAPs, forcing one to crash into an MTT and send it sinking into the river outside Theed. They escape into the swamp, where they encounter a group of Gungans led by Sergeant Mokem, but are shooed away. They finally make their way, with the Gungans’ help, to where they are to meet the Crescent, but it is gone and several thieves are ransacking supplies left for them. The heroes step in to save him. He identifies himself at Mett Habbie and invites them to join in a resistance force that is already being planned, even as the invasion takes place. (To be continued below . . . )

On Naboo, as the invasion commences, Royal Security Force Lieutenant Gavyn Sykes joins Captain Kael in escaping from Theed. They head directly for a trader village in swamplands for aid, only to discover that the traders aren’t equipped to help battle the Trade Federation. The traders point the officers to the mountains, where the few Naboo discover the base of operations for Borvo the Hutt, Nal ReuTta. The Trade Federation is attacking his operation, and when Kael and Sykes help cover the Hutt’s escape, Borvo agrees to aid them in their battle with the Trade Federation. (To be continued below . . . )

Captain Tarpals reports to Boss Nass that Jar Jar Binks has returned to Otoh Gunga and has brought two visitors, both Jedi, with him. Qui-Gon Jinn, of the Jedi, explains to Nass that the Trade Federation has invaded Naboo and will soon conquer both the humans and the Gungans. Nass responds that he doesn’t care about the Naboo and so sends the Jedi and Jar Jar away in a bongo. (To be continued below . . . )

(Gungan Trouble)*

*NOTE: All information pertaining to this Star Wars Junior book was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- TCW DATE: Around the time of the invasion of Naboo, the Trade Federation sets up a secret laboratory on the planet. Mad scientist Dr. Nuvo Vindi soon begins working there in secret, having gone missing from the galaxy at large. It is here that he will develop the weaponized airborne variant of the extinct Blue Shadow Virus for release shortly after the Clone Wars begin.

(conjecture based on The Clone Wars)

- Having escaped from Theed, Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane join the Naboo Underground.

(conjecture based on Invasion of Theed: Recovery)

- Arriving on Naboo after their mission to Eos, Rhys Dallows, Nym, Vana Sage, and Reti discover the planet blockaded, as expected. Vana takes on a convoy, while Reti captures munitions. Rhys and Reti deliver the munitions to a Trade Federation-overrun resistance base, where they soon join up to help the civilian resistance rescue prisoners of war from Trade Federation camps (basically concentration camps, in the literally, non-Nazi, meaning of the term). As Rhys and Reti clean up after their action, Nym and Vana save another resistance camp. Together, our heroes are basically trying to keep the Federation on its toes until a true uprising can liberate the planet. (To be continued below . . . )

(Starfighter)

- Early on the day before the Boonta Eve podrace, Anakin Skywalker is working on a pit droid for Watto when it runs off. Anakin chases it until finally recovering it, while Sebulba is engaged in a podrace nearby. It will be later that day when fateful visitors will arrive . . .

(Catch That Pit Droid!)

- On Tatooine, the day before the Boonta Eve podrace, Jabba and Gardulla meet to discuss odds in the upcoming Boonta Eve Race. Gardulla favors Gasgano, but Jabba’s droid has calculated that the winner will be Sebulba, followed by Gasgano and Mawhonic, though he finds it interesting that Watto has entered young Anakin Skywalker. Jabba convinces Gardulla to bet that Skywalker will not win. To ensure that this is the case, Gardulla sends her servant, Diva, to hire someone to sabotage Anakin’s racer. Diva ends up hiring Ark “Bumpy” Roose, who is still annoyed that Anakin has recently made a fool of him while racing. Fode/Beed then interviews several of the racers for the Boonta, the last of whom is Sebulba, who issues a direct challenge to Anakin. Later, Kam Nale (who goes by the alias "Elan Mak") makes a recording detailing his desire to seek revenge against Aldar Beedo for his father Borzu Nale’s death. At the same time, Wan Sandage hires Beedo to help ensure that Sandage wins the Boonta. Sebulba, seconds later, speaks with Dud Bolt, whom he has secretly hired as a bodyguard, about making sure he is extra protected for the Boonta. Later in the evening, the Podracers go to the Poodoo Lounge to hear Boles Roor perform. Before the concert, Boles bets Ben Quadrinaros that he’s too chicken to enter the race. Ben enters. (To be continued below . . . )

(Podracing Tales)

- Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane, who are all now part of the Naboo Underground, are given an assignment by their cell leader, Lucas Dannt. They are to get back into Theed and free a group of pilots before they are shipped elsewhere, and to attempt to steal weapons from the armory while they are at it. The team enters the city with very little troubles, but faces off with various droids and Neimoidian guards before finally freeing the pilots, gathering some weapons, and escaping again to the Underground.

(Invasion of Theed: Recovery)

- Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane, receive a briefing from Lucas Dannt and Lialla Tane, daughter of Minister of Culture Kyu Tane. She asks the group to help her by repeating their earlier recovery mission, this time to rescue her parents. The team agrees and enters Theed again, this time freeing the Tanes, several citizens, and a disgruntled pilot. Once again, they escape without significant injury.

(Invasion of Theed: Rescue)
• Just before Anakin Skywalker leaves Watto’s shop to head out to get set for the Boonta Eve Podrace, Watto entertains a guest to his shop, whom he teaches briefly about the various kinds of droids.

(Droids Everywhere!)

• In preparations for the Boonta Eve Podrace, Anakin Skywalker’s Pit Droid, DUM-4, must race to find a necessary part for the podracer. He does so, and when Anakin wins, it is a victory for DUM-4 as well.

(Anakin’s Pit Droid)

• The morning of the Boonta Eve Podrace, the contestants begin to arrive and prepare for the race. Teemto Pagalies tells Sebulba that Mars Guo wants to abduct one of his Twi’lek slave girls. Sebulba then has Dud Bolt distract Mars as he sabotages Mars’ racer. Ark “Bumpy” Roose then asks Sebulba which racer is Anakin Skywalker’s. Sebulba hasn’t yet seen Anakin arrive with his, but figures the pod will be junk. On the basis of that slim description, Bumpy sabotages the nearest unfamiliar podracer, thinking it is Anakin’s. In actuality, it belongs to Ben Quadrinaros. A short time later, the race begins. As Skywalker comes to defeat Sebulba, Watto finds himself in even more trouble, as he bets yet again against Skywalker with Graxol, which Weazel also gets in on. When Anakin wins, Watto is in deep poodo. A short time later, as Fode/Beed gives post-race comments, the racers take stock of the day. Wan Sandage confronts Aldar Beedo for not killing Sebulba, but Beedo intends to continue the contract on Malastare. Elan Mak intends to continue trying to kill Aldar Beedo on Malastare. Rescue crews still haven’t found Mawhonic or Teemto. As for Sebulba, he roars into the studio to announce that he’s intending to kick some butt on Malastare in his new podracer—the one he just bought from Qui-Gon (acting on Anakin’s behalf). For some, the race is never over.

(Podracing Tales)

• Romeo Treblanc, owner of the Galaxies Opera House and gambling addict, attends the Boonta Eve Podrace.*

(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for the Romeo Treblanc, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• Rango Tel finally tracks Kam Nale (alias Elan Mak) to Tatooine. He corners his bounty in a back-alley, but with his few skills and second-rate armor, Nale’s blaster ends Tel’s bounty hunting career (and his life).*

(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Rango Tel, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• Seeking out “rumored underwater villages” of the Gungans, OOM-9 learns the location of Otoh Gunga from Boss Ganne, a Gungan captured at Harte Secur. He then uses this information to move against the underwater city. After intense fighting, the battle droids seize the city (what’s left of it after all the fighting, that is). Luckily, Boss Nass and the majority of the Gungans in the city are able to evacuate. They head for the Gungan Sacred Place. (To be continued below . . . )

(Galactic Battlegrounds)

• Based on other reports, battle droids do not drive the Gungans from Otoh Gunga in a battle. Instead, a Gungan scout observes Trade Federation battle droids scouring the swamps looking for Gungan cities. Nass decides that Otoh Gunga will be destroyed if the Gungans stay in the city, so he has Rep Been convince the people to leave for their sacred place. The evacuation is difficult, as much must be left behind, but taking only what they need, the Gungans make it to their sacred swamplands full of temple ruins. Days later, as supplies begin to run out, fighting breaks out amongst the Gungans. Some want to return to Otoh Gunga. Others want to fight the Trade Federation. Nass urges the people to remain calm and wait.*

(Gungan Trouble!)*

*NOTE: All information pertaining to this Star Wars Junior book was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• With Borvo the Hutt’s smugglers as their wingmates, Captain Kael and Gavyn Sykes head into Naboo’s orbit and destroy communications satellite Comm 4, opening up the Trade
Federation base immediately below to assault. They strike, decimating the base. Gavyn steals a gunboat and heads along the Andrevea River, working to liberate recently erected labor camps along the river. The rescued civilians are placed in transport vehicles and are escorted to safety. As they are escaping, though, something seems fishy. With the civilians safely leaving with Borvo, Sykes discovers Captain Kael’s downed starfighter. Borvo has betrayed them, intending to sell the civilians into slavery. As a result of the attack on his starfighter by Borvo’s forces, Kael dies, and Sykes swears revenge. He hunts down Borvo, making a new ally of one of the smugglers. Together, they take out Borvo’s vessel and free the civilians. They then make plans to liberate the Trade Federation’s Camp 4, freeing many high-level Naboo prisoners . . . (To be continued below . . .)

NOTE: The rest of this story is basically a retelling of material in TPM, covered in the TPM summary above. There are some inconsistencies between this story and The Wrath of Darth Maul, though, such as the way he introduces himself to Gunray in person.

- At night, Gavyn Sykes and his allies strike Naboo’s Camp 4, liberating many Naboo, including some much-needed pilots. As dawn approaches, they learn that Captain Quarsh Panaka has returned to lead them, with Amidala readying a plan to take back Naboo. Sykes and the others rendezvous with Panaka briefly, then head off on their own, eventually making their way to where Amidala lays out their plans. (To be continued below . . .)

*NOTE: All information pertaining to this Star Wars Junior book was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- As the Gungans arrive at the Sacred Place, Boss Nass begins raising a Grand Army to face the Trade Federation, bringing in Gungans from other assaulted cities. Finally, the Gungans begin to gather en masse for the upcoming battle . . . (To be continued below . . .)
Amidala’s briefing. When the team needs a way to infiltrate Theed, the heroes remember the MTT they caused to sink in the river and suggest using it as cover to reach the access point for the insertion team into Theed. The team joins a contingent of Gungans in raising the sunken MTT and they soon prepare their Trojan Horse. The heroes drive the insertion team, hidden within the MTT, to the insertion point, but once the team is inserted, an autopilot recall of the MTT brings the group unwillingly into a hangar. (To be continued below . . . )

(Peril on Naboo)

- While slinking around Theed trying to find ways to help the populace, Underground members Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane come upon a segment of Queen Amidala’s invasion team, led by Sabé, who is masquerading as Amidala. To aid in the insertion of the invasion force, the group makes a diversion by engaging some Battle Droids before making their way to safety.

(Invasion of Theed: Aid the Queen)

- Even as Rann I-Kanu and the others are staging a distraction for Battle Droids in one area of Theed, a team led by Gavyn Sykes takes to speeders and stages a fast-paced diversion, attacking anything belonging to the Trade Federation on an opposite end of Theed from the insertion point. (To be continued below . . . )

(Battle for Naboo)

- Having distracted the Battle Droids, the group (Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane) attempts to get to cover as the Battle of Naboo rages. They notice a droid starfighter in droid mode, flanked by four Battle Droids, heading for the palace. They manage to stop the droids, but several bystanders are harmed. Among them are a pilot, who asks them to get an R2 unit with crucial information to Amidala. Another is a guard with a diplomatic pouch for the Alderaanian ambassador. The group accepts the items and returns them to their rightful recipients.

(Invasion of Theed: Battle in the Streets!)*

*NOTE: This adventure was a bonus, presented only on the Wizards of the Coast website.

- Unwittingly brought into the Theed palace hangar, the heroes who helped bring the insertion team in the captured MTT exit the vehicle and briefly glimpse Darth Maul heading for the insertion team. They soon encounter Gode Takrab, a Neimoidian underling and discover that he holds a fake hologram of Amidala announcing that she has signed an agreement with the Trade Federation. The Neimoidians had him working on this just in case they could not recapture Amidala. There is also a hidden copy of a false agreement as well, but Tarkab refuses to divulge its location. The group rushes to Tarkab’s shuttle to search for the document. Aboard the shuttle, they are beset by Battle Droids. (To be continued below . . . )

(Peril on Naboo)

- As Bravo Flight launches against the Trade Federation droid control ship, Bravo Flight is joined by Royal Security Force officer and pilot, Lieutenant Gavyn Sykes. As Anakin Skywalker heads for the fray on auto-pilot, Bravo Flight destroys tractor beam generators at the docking bay openings in the huge vessel, though which Anakin then accidentally flies though. Ric Olie orders that no other fighter attempt the virtual suicide move that the unknown pilot (Anakin) did. Instead, Bravo Flight, specifically Gavyn, concentrates on destroying the housing for the shield generator’s power source, which is eventually destroyed, just in time for the outer and inner shields over sensitive areas to go down, allowing Anakin’s accidental shot to pass unimpeded toward sensitive areas in the vessel. As Bravo Flight prepares for another run, the vessel begins to explode and Anakin escapes. This stage of the Battle of Naboo has been won.

(Battle for Naboo)

- During the Battle of Naboo, Rhys Dallows rejoins Bravo Flight to attack the Trade Federation control vessel. In the battle, as he takes out transmitters around the hull, he spots the mercenary vessel that destroyed Essara Till’s starfighter a while ago. Seeking justice (or simple revenge), Rhys follows the merc into the Federation control ship when its shields go down, making his way into the interior, where he destroys the merc, getting his revenge, then escapes, just as the ship explodes from the inside. (To be continued below . . . )

(Starfighter)

- As the Battle Droids deactivate, the heroes aboard Gode Tarkab’s shuttle discover the fake agreement as a computer file within Tarkab’s protocol droid, foiling that Neimoidian backup plan. They return to meet the victorious insertion team and then set about helping free imprisoned Naboo from former Trade Federation camps. Surprisingly, they are also reunited with Nuun Pargen, whose daughter is doing well. He had to simply leave for their safety, and had helped out in his own way during the occupation.

(Peril on Naboo)

• As Darth Maul falls to his apparent death in two segments, his cauterized upper half remains available to him. He uses the Dark Side to grab onto a vent as he passes by, saving his life and at least the upper half of his body. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Wrath of Darth Maul)

• Darth Maul finds himself among plasma waste and shunted into containers that are then carried by a disposal craft to Lotho Minor, where the containers are disconnected to fall and crash to the surface. Maul (the upper half that has survived, at least) is able to get out of the container, destroy a garbage creature with one half of his lightsaber, and finds an ally in Morley the Anacondan. In his rage and growing mental instability, he is able to draw on the Dark Side to create arachnid-like legs to replace the lower half of his body. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Sith Hunters)

• Boss Nass joins Queen Amidala at a memorial service for the Gungans and Naboo who died in the battle, as well as for Qui-Gon. The next day, Nass participates in a celebration marking victory and the beginning of peace and cooperation between the Gungans and the Naboo. *

(Gungan Trouble!)*

*NOTE: All information pertaining to this Star Wars Junior book was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• As preparations are made for the celebration in which Queen Amidala is expected to solidify the alliance between the Naboo and the Gungans, a successful group of former Underground members (Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann i-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane) is asked to undertake another covert mission. They are to head for where Lialla Tane has observed covert gatherings of disgruntled humans and Gungans and their leader, Savor Kibbs. They are to gather intelligence and return with what they know, not face Kibbs alone. They make their way through the Naboo swamps, battling beasts and quicksand, finally entering the Dark Grove, a place strong in the Dark Side. This place is adding to the power of Savor Kibbs, who is a Dark Side Adept. The group battles illusions created by Kibbs before finally discovering Kibbs followers, who try to talk the group into joining them. The group refuses and find themselves under attack by both Savor Kibbs himself and a Destroyer Droid that Kibbs outfitted with a droid brain to replace that lost with the Trade Federation control ship. The group, working as a team, manages to take out both the droid and Kibbs, who flees into the swamps. As Kibbs leaves the area, his Dark Side influence over the citizens dissipates, and they return to their senses. The citizens and our heroes return home.

(Invasion of Theed: Renegade)

• In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, as Theed celebrates, Nym gathers his supplies and heads back to his pirates, his true home. As for Vana and Reti, they will stay on Naboo with Rhys, helping to secure the safety of their new adopted home.

(Starfighter)

Duel of the Fates! (TSW20 comic: Steve White)

Legacy of the Jedi [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

“Intermission #3”*

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Mastery [continued]

The Force Strikes Back

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Betrayal
Stowaway

The Queen's Amulet [continued] (children's book: Julianne Balmain)
The Queen's Amulet [continued] (children's book: Julianne Balmain)

Battle for Theed (comic: Michael A. Stackpole)
Battle for Theed (comic: Michael A. Stackpole)

Battle for Naboo" (video game: LucasArts)
Battle for Naboo" (video game: LucasArts)
   Escape from Theed
   Neimoidian Plunder
   Naboo Bayou
   Smuggler Alliance
   Hutt's Retreat

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)
The Phantom Menace Adventures (comic series: Timothy Truman & Mark Schultz & Ryder Windham & Henry Gilroy)
   Anakin Skywalker (comic: Timothy Truman)
   The Phantom Menace #1/2 (comic: Timothy Truman & Henry Gilroy & Ryder Windham & Mark Schultz)
   Anakin Skywalker

Signal Interruption (www.wizards.com RPG: Jesse Decker)
Signal Interruption (www.wizards.com RPG: Jesse Decker)
   Introduction
   This is Only a Test
   Do Not Attempt to Adjust Your Screen
   Broadcast Signals
   Back to Your Regularly Scheduled Programming

Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
   OOM-9 Campaign

Star Wars: Journal (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Darth Maul (youth novel: Jude Watson)
   Entry One

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
   Chapter 13

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala (youth novel: Jude Watson)
   Entry 1: Blockade
      Location: Theed Palace
   Episode I: Darth Maul (youth novel: Jude Watson)
   Entry One [continued]
   Entry Two

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
Danger on Naboo (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
   Chapters 1 – 3

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna
   Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
   Entry 1: Blockade [continued]
      Later

Invasion of Theed (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)
Invasion of Theed (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)
   Battle Droid Invasion
Battle Droids in the Streets

Peril on Naboo (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)

Peril on Naboo (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
- Invasion
  - Flight From Theed
  - Pursued by STAPs
  - The Swamp

Gungan Trouble! (children’s book: Liza Baker)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
- Entry 2: Invasion
  - "First Section"
  - Later
- Entry 3: Capture
  - Location: Queen’s Royal Starship
  - Later

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- Stowaway

Star Wars: Starfighter—“Special Edition” [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter—“Special Edition” [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- The New Resistance
- Midnight Munitions Run
- Rescue on the Solleu
- Last Stand on Naboo

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Danger on Naboo [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
- Chapters 4 – 7

Deleted Scenes (TPMDVD clips: George Lucas)

The Waterfall Sequence (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- City Under Siege
- Within the Palace
- A Queen in Peril

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Danger on Naboo [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
- Chapters 8 – 9
- Podrace to Freedom (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  - Chapter 1
- Danger on Naboo [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  - Chapters 10 – 11

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
- Entry 3: Capture [continued]
  - Later

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Danger on Naboo [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
- Chapter 12

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)

Chapter 13 [continued]

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry Three

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 4: Everything New and Strange

"First Section"*

Later: Mos Espa Spaceport, Tatooine

Entry 5: Anakin

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapter 2

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

First Entry: I Meet an Angel

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapter 3

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

Second Entry: Magnet for Trouble

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 6: Fate is a Tangle

"First Section"*

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapters 4 – 5

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

Third Entry: Jedi Secrets

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 6: Fate is a Tangle [continued]

Later

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry Four

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)

Chapter 13 [continued]

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Mastery [continued]

The Force Strikes Back [continued]

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 7: A Way Out

"First Section"*

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry Four [continued]

Entry Five

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 14

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry Six

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 14 [continued]

Jedi Junior [continued] (children’s book series: Liza Baker & Lara Bergen & Gail Herman & Laura Dower)
Catch That Pit Droid! (children’s book: Liza Baker)

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Rescue on Tatooine
  The Tusken Chief

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  The Next Day

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Chapter 6

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 8: Bargains
    “First Section”*
  Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
    Fourth Entry: We Prepare for the Race
  Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 8: Bargains [continued]
  Later

Podracing Tales (starwars.com comic series: Ryder Windham)
Podracing Tales, Part I (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)
Podracing Tales, Part II (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)
Podracing Tales, Part III (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)
Podracing Tales, Part IV (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)

Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  OOM-9 Campaign [continued]

Jedi Junior [continued] (children’s book series: Liza Baker & Lara Bergen & Gail Herman & Laura Dower)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 8: Bargains [continued]

Night

Jedi Junior [continued] (children’s book series: Liza Baker & Lara Bergen & Gail Herman & Laura Dower)
Droids Everywhere! (children’s book: Liza Baker)

Anakin’s Pit Droid (children’s book: Justine Fontes & Ron Fontes)
Anakin’s Pit Droid (children’s book: Justine Fontes & Ron Fontes)

Podracing Tales [continued] (starwars.com comic series: Ryder Windham)
Podracing Tales, Part V (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)
Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)

Recovery
- Neimoidian Guards
- Security Droids

Rescue
- Break In!
- The Patrol

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapter 7

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 9: The Hands of a Boy

"First Section"

Deleted Scenes (TPMDVD clips: George Lucas)

Dawn Before the Race (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

Complete Podrace Grid Sequence (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

Podracing Tales [continued] (starwars.com comic series: Ryder Windham)

Podracing Tales, Part VI (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 9: The Hands of a Boy [continued]

Later

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)

The Phantom Menace Adventures [continued] (comic series: Timothy Truman & Mark Schultz & Ryder Windham & Henry Gilroy)

Queen Amidala (comic: Mark Schultz)

Podracing Tales [continued] (starwars.com comic series: Ryder Windham)

Podracing Tales, Part VII (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapters 8

Deleted Scenes [continued] (TPMDVD clips: George Lucas)

Extended Podrace Lap 2 (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

Fifth Entry: The Race of My Life

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapters 9 – 10

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 9: The Hands of a Boy [continued]

After the Race

Later

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)

The Phantom Menace Adventures [continued] (comic series: Timothy Truman & Mark Schultz & Ryder Windham & Henry Gilroy)

Qui-Gon Jinn (comic: Ryder Windham)
The Phantom Menace #1/2 [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Henry Gilroy & Ryder Windham & Mark Schultz)

Qui-Gon Jinn

Podracing Tales [continued] (starwars.com comic series: Ryder Windham)

Podracing Tales, Part VIII (starwars.com comic: Ryder Windham)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

Sixth Entry: The Biggest Surprise

Deleted Scenes [continued] (TPMDVD clips: George Lucas)

Anakin’s Scuffle with Greedo (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

NOTE: Due to the existence of A Hunter’s Fate, The New Essential Guide to Characters retconned the Greedo in this deleted scene (and the TPM novel) to be the “elder” Greedo, the bounty hunter’s father, not the ANH character himself. However, Greedo’s appearance in the TCW episode Sphere of Influence has eliminated A Hunter’s Fate from continuity, it seems, and thereby restored this Greedo to being the bounty hunter from ANH, not that character’s father. A retcon has either been re-retconned or unretconned, or whatever you would call it.

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapter 11

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

Seventh Entry: A Difficult Decision

Deleted Scenes [continued] (TPMDVD clips: George Lucas)

Farewell to Jira (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

Podrace to Freedom [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)

Chapter 12

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 10: Some Great Evil

Location: Queen’s Royal Starship

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry Seven

Entry Eight

Entry Nine

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)

Chapter 15

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry Ten

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)

Eighth Entry: The Queen

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Entry 10: Some Great Evil [continued]

Later

Later

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)

The Phantom Menace Adventures [continued] (comic series: Timothy Truman & Mark Shultz & Ryder Windham & Henry Gilroy)

The Phantom Menace #1/2 [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Henry Gilroy & Ryder Windham & Mark Schultz)

Queen Amidala
Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
The Final Battle (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Chapter 1

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Mastery [continued]
  The Force Strikes Back [continued]

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 11: Queen
    Location: Coruscant

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry Ten [continued]

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 16

Deleted Scenes [continued] (TPMDVD clips: George Lucas)
The Air Taxi Sequence (TPMDVD clip: George Lucas)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 11: Queen [continued]
    Later
  Entry 12: Galactic Senate
    "First Section"
    Later
    Later: Queen's Royal Starship

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry Ten [continued]

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Mastery [continued]
  The Force Strikes Back [continued]

Betrayal (comic series: Scott Allie)
  Betrayal, Part I [flashback] (comic: Scott Allie)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
  Ninth Entry: The Future is Uncertain

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Chapter 2

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 12: Galactic Senate [continued]
    Later

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Chapter 3

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Mastery [continued]
  Taking the Future From the Now

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
- Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
  - Tenth Entry: Past and Future

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
- Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  - Mastery [continued]
    - Taking the Future From the Now [continued]

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
- Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Entry 12: Galactic Senate [continued]
    - Later: Queen's Royal Starship
  - Entry 13: Return
    - "First Section"
    - Later

End Game (short story: James Luceno)
- End Game (short story: James Luceno)

Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  - Disruption of Comm 4
  - Glacial Grave
  - The Andrevea River
  - Sanctuary
  - Search for Captain Kael
  - Borvo the Hutt
  - Liberation of Camp 4

Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- Galactic Battlegrounds [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  - Boss Nass Campaign [continued]

Jedi Junior [continued] (children's book series: Liza Baker & Lara Bergen & Gail Herman & Laura Dower)

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
- The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  - Chapter 4

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
- Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Entry 13: Return [continued]
  - Later

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
- Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
  - Eleventh Entry: Another Surprise

Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  - The Queen's Gambit

Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
- Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
  - The Naboo Underground
Missed Rendezvous
The Queen’s Plan

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Chapter 5

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 15: The Plan
  "First Section"

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry Eleven

End Game [continued] (short story: James Luceno)
End Game [continued] (short story: James Luceno)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 16 [continued]

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 15: The Plan [continued]
  Later

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry Twelve

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 17

End Game [continued] (short story: James Luceno)
End Game [continued] (short story: James Luceno)

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 15: The Plan [continued]
  Later

End Game [continued] (short story: James Luceno)
End Game [continued] (short story: James Luceno)

Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
  The Naboo Underground [continued]
  Underwater Salvage
  Assault on Theed
  Return to Theed
  The Fighting Begins

Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)
Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)
  Aid the Queen
  Fight and Flight!

Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Panaka’s Diversion

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Chapter 6

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
Twelfth Entry: A Greater Enemy Appears

Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)

Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
- Assault on Theed [continued]
- The Neimoidian Shuttle

Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Battle for Naboo [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- Battle for Naboo

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)

The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
- Chapter 7

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
- Thirteenth Entry: The Battle

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Obi-Wan [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- Captives of the Federation
- Grounded
- Valuable Assistance
- Darth Maul

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
- Chapter 17 [continued]

Duel of the Fates (G1 short story: Andy Collins)

Duel of the Fates (G1 short story: Andy Collins)

Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)

Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)
- Battle in the Streets!*

*NOTE: This adventure was a bonus, presented only on the Wizards of the Coast website.

Star Wars: Starfighter—“Special Edition” [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter—“Special Edition” [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
- The Final Assault

Battlefront (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)

Battlefront (video game: LucasArts)
- Historical Campaigns
  - Clone Wars
    - Naboo
    - Battle of Naboo
    - Rebellion in Theed
    - Kashyyyk
    - Aggressive Negotiations

Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)

Peril on Naboo [continued] (RPG: Steve Miller & J. D. Wiker)
- Assault on Theed [continued]
- The Neimoidian Shuttle [continued]

Epilogue

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
- Fourteenth Entry: A Bitter Triumph

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
- Entry 16: Joy and Mourning
  - Location: Naboo
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Mastery [continued]
    Taking the Future From the Now [continued]

Prologue
  Mastery [continued]
  Taking the Future From the Now [continued]

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Wrath of Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 17 [continued]

The Clone Wars Digest [continued] (comic series: Henry Gilroy & John Ostrander & Jeremy Barlow & Mike Barr & Ryder Windham & Justin Aclin)
The Sith Hunters [flashback] (comic: Henry Gilroy)

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)
The Phantom Menace Adventures [continued] (comic series: Timothy Truman & Mark Schultz & Ryder Windham & Henry Gilroy)
  Obi-Wan Kenobi (comic: Henry Gilroy)

Episode I Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham & A. L. Singer)
The Final Battle [continued] (youth novel: A. L. Singer)
  Epilogue

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)
The Phantom Menace Adventures [continued] (comic series: Timothy Truman & Mark Schultz & Ryder Windham & Henry Gilroy)
  The Phantom Menace #1/2 [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Henry Gilroy & Ryder Windham & Mark Schultz)
  Obi-Wan Kenobi

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Epilogue

Jedi Junior [continued] (children’s book series: Liza Baker & Lara Bergen & Gail Herman & Laura Dower)

Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)

Invasion of Theed [continued] (RPG: Bill Slavicsek)
  Renegade
    Gathering Information
    Dangers in the Swamp
      Swamp Beast
      Quicksand
      The Dark Grove
    The Dark Lord
    The Renegade’s Base
      Talking to the Followers
      Destroyer Droid

Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)

Episode I: Queen Amidala [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Entry 16: Joy and Mourning [continued]
  The Next Day
  Celebration

Episode I: Anakin Skywalker [continued] (youth novel: Todd Strasser)
  Introduction: Naboo
  Time to Go

Episode I: Darth Maul [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Epilogue
Voice Recording by Lord Darth Sidious—Location: Coruscant

Star Wars: Starfighter—“Special Edition” [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Star Wars: Starfighter—“Special Edition” [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Star Wars: Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Star Wars: Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

Farewell

31.9 – 21.8 BBY
The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapter 6

31.9 – 31 BBY
- Republic authorities take custody of Darth Maul’s Sith Infiltrator, the Scimitar, on Naboo. The escape pod is mysteriously missing. After discovering that it was built on heavily modified designs of the Republic Sienar Systems Star Courier, Sienar Design Systems claims complete ignorance of the ship’s existence. Saesee Tiin is called in to study the craft and recommends that it be put in the care of the Jedi Council, but Kuati Senators manage to get permission to transport it to a Kuat Drive Yards facility. It disappears en route . . .
  (conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook)

  - Having examined the Scimitar, Jedi Master Saesee Tiin reports to Yoda on the ship’s similarity to Sienar designs, how its databanks have been wiped, and how the ship virtually hums with Dark Side energy. (To be continued below . . .)
  (Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

  - When the Scimitar is seized by the Republic, C-3PX is also captured. Knowing that the droid could contain Sith secrets, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine orders the droid’s memory erased. C-3PX is then placed in the care of Raith Sienar. Sienar refits the droid for espionage.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

  - Five days after Qui-Gon Jinn’s death (the day after the victory celebration on Naboo), Obi-Wan Kenobi files an official report for the Jedi Council regarding his encounter with the Sith Lord Darth Maul on Naboo. (To be continued below . . .)
  (Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

  - Thanks to the scrutiny on Sienar Design Systems from the Scimitar’s capture, Republic Sienar Systems closes down Sienar Design Systems (which Sienar will simply revive later as his Advanced Projects Laboratory).
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)

  - It is said that for over ten years after this time, Mace Windu was never seen to smile.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)

  - The Gungans on Naboo erect the Jedi Monument and Queen’s Monument.
  (conjecture based on Episode I: Insider’s Guide)

  - In years to come, the Battle of Naboo will come to be known as the Gungans as the Battle of the Great Grass Plains.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

  - In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, Podracing Quarterly, not wanting to offend a star of Sebulba’s magnitude, changes the official record of the race to give Clegg Holdfast, their reporter, a time of nearly half an hour, instead of mentioning how Sebulba attacked him with flame jets.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

  - TCW DATE: In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, the parents of young Kidd Kareen decide to devote the time to training him to become a skilled podracer himself.
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars)
In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, the family of Ratts Tyerell will mourn him. Eventually, this will lead to his son, Deland “Pabs” Tyerell forming the Ratts Tyerell Foundation, dedicated to outlawing the sport of podracing. Some will charge that this organization is used by the Republic to crack down on non-humans, though the Republic (particularly Palpatine) will deny it.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, in which Mars Guo (a rival for Sebulba’s masseuse Ann Gella’s affections) died, Teemto Pagalies increases his romantic overtures to Ann Gella.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, Ben Quadrinaros receives 5,000,000 peggats for using a rented Balta-Trabaat BT310 in the Podrace, even though he never crossed the starting line.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, Boles Roor loses 5,000,000 peggats to Ben Quadrinaros as part of their bet that Ben would not have the guts to enter the race. Boles makes up most of this loss with a sold-out, year-long club tour.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

In the wake of the Boonta Eve Podrace, Kister Banai uses the credits left to him by Anakin Skywalker to purchase Par Ontham’s Guide to Etiquette. That guide will enable him to get a job at the Three Moons and later to become majordomo on the Rendala Estate. In a very real way, this gift changes kister’s life forever.

(conjecture based on Tatooine Ghost)

In the wake of the vote of no-confidence that removed him from the position of Supreme Chancellor, Finis Valorum goes into seclusion.

(conjecture based on Dead Ends)

As word of the Trade Federation’s defeat at Naboo reaches the Cularin System, the pirates hired by the Neimoidians to harass the Metatheran Cartel’s interests abruptly switch sides. Control of the legal trade in the system is now fully in Metatheran Cartel control.

(conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)

In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, the Trade Federation distances itself from Baktoid Armor Workshop and begins dismantling the company, which has substantial facilities on Ord Cestus, harming the Cestian economy. This will not be the last time that the Republic’s conflicts with outsiders will harm Ord Cestus.

(conjecture based on The Cestus Deception)

In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, Nym is pardoned by Supreme Chancellor Palpatine and begins working with a Republic Special Task Force, advising anti-pirate patrols.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

In the wake of the battle of Naboo, Hoersch-Kessel Drive, Inc., which has been a subsidiary of the Trade Federation, is sold to Duros investors.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, Orman Tagge of TaggeCo begins working on designs for Republic battle droids.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, Jedi Master Shaptives gives Anakin Skywalker a patch from the Jedi Starfighter Corps in honor of how he destroyed the droid control ship during the battle.

(conjecture based on The Jedi Path)

In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, the Jedi Order begins a recruitment drive to find more potential Jedi to train in the art of Jedi Battle Meditation.

(conjecture based on The Jedi Path)

In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, the Royal Security Force on Naboo, under Captain Quarsh Panaka, begins upgrading the planet with discreet defenses, such as shield generators, ion cannons, and the like. They also commission new vessels, including the H-Type Nubian Yacht that will be Padmé Amidala’s Royal Yacht.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)
• In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, Baktoid Combat Automata secretly produces a new line of E-5 battledroids, which are essentially upgraded versions of the B1 battledroids that were used in the Battle of Naboo. This is just a temporary measure, though, while Super Battledroids (B2 battledroids) are developed. Raith Sienar buys several prototype E-5 droids.

• Trade Federation techs retrofit many of their B1 battle droids with new cognitive modules, freeing them from reliance on a central control ship.*

• In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, the Republic passes laws banning the use of droid armies, but it carries very little weight.

• In the wake of the Battle of Naboo, Haor Chall Engineering begins work on a new submersible droid subfighter because the other Trade Federation ocean craft at this point are merely land vehicles adapted for water. The result will be the manta subfighter, but the Xi Char engineers who create it are so ashamed that they couldn’t make the manta subfighter transform like their droid starfighters that they provide the blueprints for the mantas to the Trade Federation free of charge, as well as providing underwater conversion kits for the TF’s MVR-3 speeders.

• With Darth Maul defeated on Naboo and presumed dead, Darth Sidious (Palpatine) makes contact with Dooku, who has left the Jedi Order to regain his status as Count on Serenno. They discuss recent events and their shared belief that the Republic must fall to be reborn, and Palpatine suggests that the Sith that Dooku might be open to learning from the secrets of the Dark Side will likely find him. Shortly thereafter, Palpatine meets with Obi-Wan Kenobi and his new Padawan, Anakin Skywalker, beginning to forge ties between himself and the boy that will eventually bring Anakin into his thrall as a Dark Lord of the Sith.

The Grand Plan continues . . .

(Darth Plagueis)

• With Count Dooku having left the Jedi Order, he becomes one of the Lost. However, while the term “Lost” has been applied in the previous nineteen situations of a Jedi leaving the Order in this fashion, Dooku’s resignation is significant enough that the Jedi Order will start referring to the “Lost” (never followed by a number) as the “Lost Twenty.”

(conjecture based on Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

• TCW DATE: Upon leaving the Jedi Order, Dooku contacts his friend Captain Argyus of the Senate commandos and convinces him to work for Dooku in secret.*

(conjecture based on The Clone Wars Campaign Guide)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn.

• TCW DATE (IN PART): At some point shortly after the Battle of Naboo, Darth Sidious reveals his true self to Dooku, offering him the chance to become his Sith apprentice. Before he will do so, though, Dooku must complete a final test. Dooku’s old friend, Jedi Master Sifo-Dyas, had been far too close to Dooku in the last few years. More importantly, Sifo-Dyas has sensed the gathering darkness in the galaxy and has taken steps to prepare the Republic for the coming dark times (at the urging of Darth Plagueis as Hego Damask). Sifo-Dyas goes to Kamino, where he commissions a clone army for the Republic, striking a deal with Prime Minister Lama Su. All that remains is to find a suitable template for the clones, which Sifo-Dyas assures Lama Su will be forthcoming. Before he can find a suitable template and send him to Kamino, Sidious sends Dooku to confront Sifo-Dyas. Killing Sifo-Dyas will be his final test to become a Sith Lord, at which point he will earn the title of “Darth Tyranus.” Under the alias of “Tyranus” (albeit a bit prematurely), Dooku arranges for the Pyke Syndicate to kill Sifo-Dyas when he and former Supreme Chancellor Valorum’s personal aide, Silman, return to Oba Diah after a brief detour to deal with warring clans on Felucia. While above Oba Diah’s moon, Sifo-Dyas and Silman are shot down in their shuttle. Sifo-Dyas is killed in the crash, and his body is returned to Tyranus as proof that they have completed their mission. (At least one of his lightsabers is left in the crashed shuttle.) The Pykes take Silman back to Oba Diah to hold as insurance against Tyranus. In return for killing Sifo-Dyas, the Pykes are given advantages over other criminal families. With Sifo-Dyas dead at Dooku’s instruction (though not his own hand as some will later believe), Dooku earns the “Darth” title and becomes Darth Tyranus. Thus, the existence of the clone army is kept a secret known to the Dark Lords of the Sith, which will allow Darth Sidious to manipulate the confrontation he needs to gain control of the Republic all the more easily. As for Sifo-Dyas, the Jedi are told a lie about the circumstances of Sifo-Dyas’ death. They are told that the Jedi Master died on Felucia and was cremated there. They also are told that another Jedi was there with him, which may be a means of covering up Silman’s involvement, since the mission undertaken by Sifo-Dyas and Silman to Oba Diah was kept classified by Valorum. The involvement of the Sith is not revealed. Dooku then returns home to Serenno, where he uses his family’s fortune to begin building up a fledgling Separatist movement, aimed at direct conflict (a decade from now) with the Republic, as part of the Sith’s scheme to dominate the galaxy.*

*NOTE: This is an attempt to reconcile various pieces of Sifo-Dyas’ backstory, as presented in both the Official Continuity’s C-Canon and in The Clone Wars episode The Lost One, which is T-Canon.

- Darth Tyranus (Dooku) returns home to Serenno, where he reclaims the title of “Count Dooku” over his family’s house. His sister, the mother of Adan Dooku, had been regent until now and takes her family away to Alderaan for their safety. Adan will go on to marry a woman named Maite and become close friends with Bail Organa. It is only being away from Serenno that will save Adan from the Cleansing of Serenno shortly after the Clone Wars and allow him to gain the title of “Count Dooku” after the end of the conflict.

conjecture based on Hard Targets

- Shortly after becoming “Darth Tyranus,” Count Dooku goes to Geonosis to partner with the Geonosian Archduke Poggle the Lesser. As a sign of the new partnership (and in appreciation for Dooku’s knowledge of Geonosian sailing vessels), Poggle has his engineers create the Solar Sailer for Dooku, using both Geonosian technology and blueprints from the Gree species. To pilot the ship, the technicians also augment a SoroSuub FA-4 pilot droid (using droid starfighter technology) for Dooku.

conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels and The New Essential Guide to Droids

- Supreme Chancellor Palpatine outlaws all battle droids.

conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia

- After reports from Tatooine from Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi, the Republic commissions the military force known as the Republic Outland Regions Security Force in an effort to establish some form of law and order in the Outer Rim.

conjecture based on Rogue Planet via TimeTales, verbatim

- The YT-1760 line from Corellian Engineering Corporation is launched. It is in the vein of the HWK-series that launched decades earlier. Unfortunately, the YT-1760, while fast and agile, is also very high-maintenance, rather difficult to fly, is somewhat fragile, and has reduced cargo capacity. Despite poor focus testing and obvious shortcomings, CEC released the ship anyway and does indeed see robust sales at first. However, as owners begin to realize the amount of time and money that must go into maintaining the YT-1760, sales plummet.*

conjecture based on A Legacy of Starships and Far Horizons

*NOTE: Far Horizons would suggest a date of 30 BBY for this, but it specifically says “roughly thirty years before the Battle of Yavin," so I am sticking with this seemingly more concrete date.

- Early in Palpatine’s reign as chancellor, Tannon Praji is appointed as the Chair of the Coruscant Ministry of Ingress.*
  (conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Tannon Praji, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)
  *NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.
- The Commission for the Protection (sometimes referred to as “Preservation” instead) of the Republic (COMPOR) is founded as a social group, but receives covert aid and political power from Supreme Chancellor Palpatine himself.*
  (conjecture based on Imperial Sourcebook)*
  *NOTE: The sourcebook actually uses this as the birth of COMPNOR, not COMPOR, but later explanations of the origins of the organization make it clear that this would be the birth of the Commission for the Preservation of the Republic here, not the New Order.
- Chel Dorat, a captain in the Old Republic Navy, becomes a supporter of the New Order early on.
  (conjecture based on Loyalties)
- The Shard ambassadors from Orax start to be cut off from their homeworld by Palpatine’s decree.
  (conjecture based Alien Encounters: The Shard)
- Tira Wils becomes a special agent for Colonel Jir Tramsig in the Cularin system.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- On Thyferra, a quiet coup led by the Aschern Circle (or “Black Claw”) puts the Vratix in charge of the planet, thanks to the revelation that Xucphra had sabotaged bacta supplies during the Stark Hyperspace War to raise prices. This begins a decade of freewheeling trade known as the Thriving Season (or “Alazhixazha”).
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)
- At this time, the copy of the Jedi textbook known as The Jedi Path that was once owned by Yoda, Thame Cerulian, Dooku, Qui-Gon Jinn, and Obi-Wan Kenobi is passed to Obi-Wan’s new Padawan, Anakin Skywalker.
  (conjecture based on The Jedi Path and comments by Dan Wallace on his blog)
- Sebulba is temporarily suspended from the Podracing Circuit for his actions in the Boonta Eve Podrace, but the suspension will be lifted by the time of the Phoebos Memorial Classic on Malastare, so it is essentially just a slap on the wrist.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- The Freedom’s Messenger increasingly finds itself as a military vessel, forsaking its diplomatic assignments.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign)
- Jabitha hikes in the Dragon Cave, full of steam, next to an underground glacier, for the last time.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet via TimeTales, verbatim)
- On Sullust, a new constitutional amendment is enacted which grants all shareholders of SoroSuub, whether residents of Sullust or not, a vote in planetary elections.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- Supreme Chancellor Palpatine awards Arakyd Industries with a large contract, which includes Vanguard probots that will help the Republic Explorational Corps open new hyperlanes into the Deep Core.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- A Yuuzhan Vong scouting mission into the galaxy enters the Gardaji region and begins an offensive against the legendary Zonama Sekot, seeking its shipbuilding secrets.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet, The New Jedi Order Sourcebook, and I, Yuuzhan Vong)
- The Mantaris, a hybrid vessel of Naboo and Gungan technology, is completed.
  (conjecture based on Save the Mantaris!)
- TCW DATE: Shortly after the Battle of Naboo, the Trade Federation conquers the planet Kynahi, home of KynachTech Industries. This is done swiftly enough to allow for the installation of a frequency jammer that keeps the truth from the outside galaxy. To all appearances, the Kynachi have simply become isolationist. This allows the Techno Union to send Overseer Umbrag to start secretly using the planet as a prison and as a base to create technology for future Separatist weapons like the Malevolence.

(conjecture based on Breakout Squad)

- Jedi Master Ronhar Kim arrives on Coruscant, having been on a six-month mission. He meets with his old friend, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. As they walk and talk, they are met by Senator Viento, who suggests that Palpatine needs his own personal guard, rather than the blue-armored Senate Guards, as there have been threats on his life. At that moment, one of the Senate Guards pulls a blaster rifle and attacks the Chancellor. Ronhar saves him, but this will provide a further excuse for the creation of Palpatine’s elite red-armored guardsmen shortly thereafter. As for the assassin, he kills himself before he can talk, using a device that Ronhar has only seen once before, when his father was killed on Naboo . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Bloodlines)

- The group of friends who helped stop Savor Kibbs is tapped for another mission. Queen Amidala and the governments of the Naboo and the Gungans have decided to begin work on a joint colony on Naboo’s water-rich moon. The group is to journey to the moon on a shuttle piloted by Ithorian Captain Worlohp, along with passengers Kharl Vanneb, Professor Hallem Celaar, and Sakme Kelene. Once they reach the ionosphere of the moon, ship troubles cause a leak of harmless Kyvalon-4 gas into the ship. Well, harmless to humans and near humans. It has the effect of driving Ithorians to murder. The passengers engage Worlohp to save their own lives even as they struggle to save the ship. They finally do so, and land safely on the moon.

(Peril in the Ionosphere)

- In an effort to spark a war between the Gungans and the Naboo, a group of assassins kills a Gungan technician and kidnaps a Naboo engineer, both associated with the joint colonization of Naboo’s moon. A small group of adventurers saves the engineer, earning the distinction of also being the first group to guard the Mantaris during its maiden voyage.

(Save the Mantaris!)

- The Naboo and Gungans on Naboo begin cooperating militarily, including in starfighter corps, where a new starfighter, the G-1 Starfighter, is being developed by joint Gungan/Naboo efforts.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Toba, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- Wilhuff Tarkin becomes head of the Outland Regions Security Force.

(conjecture based on Rebellion Era Sourcebook)

- Having become a fan of Jar Jar Binks’ exploits, Toba decides he wants to travel away from Naboo for a while as well, and ends up becoming a pilot for the Ohma’dun colony. He soon volunteers for the Naboo military as a pilot, one of the first Gungans in the joint Naboo planet military effort. He becomes a founding member of a new starfighter squadron, Iron Cesta Flight, which flies the new G-1 Starfighter, designed by his father’s BullbaBong Engineering and the Theed Palace Space Vessel Engineering Corps.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Toba, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- As part of a joint effort to map the caverns and tunnels within Naboo (with its lack of a molten core), Queen Amidala’s Master of Sciences, Graf Zapalo, works with two Gungan designers to create the ER-1 Probe Droid.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for the ER-1 Probe Droid, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- Merchant Captain Harkan Resch, down on his luck, sells off his ship, the Mystic Burn. It comes into the possession of the same group of friends who helped stop Savor Kibbs (Sia-Lan Wezz, Rorworr, Deel Surool, Galak, Rann I-Kanu, Toba, Arani Korden, and Dane).

(conjecture based on Shipbuilding Secrets)

- Conil Barje, Camella Barje, and their son leave Corellia and proceed to Tatooine to begin a new family life.
- As the Metatheran Cartel grows in power in the Cularin system, it begins hunting the pirates it once used as an offensive force. (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- SoroSuub Corporation builds a floating manufacturing city in the clouds of Genarius in the Cularin system. (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- With the defeat of the Trade Federation, Baktoid Armor Workshop E-5 droid blasters are sold for scrap. (conjecture based on Arms and Equipment Guide)
- In the Cularin system, Almas' moon, Dorumaa, is terraformed for a resort colony. In doing so, however, the flash-frozen eggs of long-dead sea creatures are allowed to thaw and hatch, essentially re-creating the aquatic ecosystem of the moon. (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- The Cularin system enters the Republic. As a result, the system gains a Senator for the Republic Senate, and the Thaereian military comes to Cularin. Under Colonel Jir Tramsig, the Thaereian military establishes a base on Cularin (at Soboll and commanded by Major Kurth San), a base on Dorumaa, and a secret base on Ostfrei, one of Genarius' moons. Shortly after the bases are established, Nirama plants a mole within the Soboll operation. (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- On Almas, in the Cularin system, a growing deadland is spreading out from, presumably, Darth Rivan's abandoned fortress. Rumors abound that a Dark Jedi has come to Almas, prompting Jedi Master Lanius Qel-Bertuk to begin searching out a danger only he can sense. (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)
- In the wake of Nute Gunray's defeat at Naboo, the Geonosians begin work on a new line of Super Battle Droid to replace the models used by the Trade Federation on Naboo. (conjecture based on A Cast of Thousands)
- In the wake of his defeat at Naboo, Nute Gunray refuses to resign his post as Trade Federation Viceroy, and claims no prior knowledge of the Sith. He pleads innocent to any misdeeds and, after dozens of hearings, will remain in power, but he will never again trust a Sith Lord, if he can help it. (conjecture based on Galactic Power Brokers)
- A war-clan of Tusken Raiders attacks Anchorhead. Shortly thereafter, other clans join in--13 clans all under one warleader. All in all, they killed six militia men, set fire to the armory, smashed the central vaporator-cistern and escaped with a large amount of water. (conjecture based on Outlander)
- Republic scouts discover Alzoc III and the native Talz. Due to the belief that the Talz are a primitive sentient species, they opt not to register their discover with the Republic, so as not to burden the Senate with the proceedings. (conjecture based on Alien Anthology)
- Around this time, the planet Castell has been in an economic depression. The Commerce Guild has brought funding to the world by buying up tracts of land, which have, in turn, made the world particularly important to the Commerce Guild. Shu Mai, a resident Gossam, has risen to be the chief of property resources within the Commerce Guild. With her independent wealth, she purchases enough land to essentially free Castell from the Commerce Guild, but she will be chosen as Commerce Guild president, making her own ties to the guild even stronger.* (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)*

*NOTE: I have seen conflicting eras for this event, but it has to be sometime prior to Shu Mai's machinations in the lead-up to the Clone Wars.

- TCW DATE: Jedi student Shon-Ju is determined to be unfit to serve as a Padawan. He is to serve the Jedi Order in some other fashion, but he refuses to agree to this and leaves the Jedi Order, urged on by Count Dooku to one day "return and show them all." (conjecture based on Deadly Hands of Shon-Ju)

*NOTE: I am assuming here that Dooku being at the Jedi Temple means that he was still a Jedi, but his statements to Shon-Ju also suggest that he is disillusioned at this point. Thus, I'm placing this event here, after...
Qui-Gon's death but just before Dooku himself leaves the Order.

- On Tatooine, at Mochot Steep, Conil Barje, Camella Barje, and their baby boy (newly arrived from Corellia with dreams of a future that was just one large lie by the Zygian Bank’s land agents) attempt to purchase weapons to protect themselves from raids and such. Conil meets a moisture farmer who tells him about the recent raid of Anchorhead by thirteen clans of Tusken Raiders, all under one warleader. The Jawas present refer to the warleader as “Ootman” (the Hutt word for “Outlander”). It appears that everyone in sight is buying weapons to protect themselves from the Sandpeople. Suddenly, the Tusken Raiders attack the trading post. The moisture farmer and Conil are both killed, as is the dewback Camella and the baby are riding behind. The Tusken Raiders demolish the area and one prepares to kill Camella and the boy, but the warleader stops the offending Raider by severing his knife-wielding hand... with a lightsaber. He then tells the woman, “Blessed be your going out from us,” an old Tatooinian phrase. The Raiders leave Camella and the child unharmed and head off with their loot. Above a nearby dune, Aurra Sing observes and is happy to learn that the warleader appears to be a Jedi. Shortly thereafter, in the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, Yoda, Eeth Koth, and Ki-Adi-Mundi speak about the mysterious warleader. Based on what he said, they determine that it must be the Jedi Knight Sharad Hett, a former Padawan of Eeth Koth who was presumed dead fifteen years earlier. Eeth Koth is not allowed to go after Hett due to his relationship with the man, so Ki-Adi-Mundi is sent to Tatooine to deal with Hett. He is to speak with Jabba the Hutt upon arrival before proceeding with the mission, a task Ki finds difficult based on Jabba’s involvement in the recent kidnapping and near-murder of his daughter, Sylvin. On Tatooine, in a cantina at the Mos Eisley spaceport, Aurra Sing senses that another Jedi will be arriving soon. She glances in her “trophy case” at five lightsabers (with spaces for two more) from past encounters with Jedi and is eager to face these two new Jedi. Shortly thereafter, on Coruscant, Ki stands on a secluded landing pad awaiting the arrival of the Corellian cruiser which will take him to Tatooine. He is met there by the female Jedi Master who had taken Ki from Cerea to Coruscant for training. When her teaching methods were questioned by the Jedi Council, she had begun questioning herself, and had been in seclusion since then. Ki assures her that her inability to save “that child” (the identity of which we currently have no way of knowing for certain) was not her fault. She gives Ki a final warning to be careful, based on dreams she has had of Ki in terrible danger. He leaves for Tatooine. (To be continued below...)

(Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett)

- Jedi Master Ki-Adi-Mundi records a report while en route to Tatooine that discusses his impressions about Anakin Skywalker. (To be continued below...)

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

- On Tatooine, as Ki-Adi-Mundi’s ship arrives, Aurra Sing is in a cantina using her Force abilities to beat up several rowdy patrons (well, to have them beat themselves up). When one calls her a Jedi, she nearly kills him. She heads to DeMaal’s docking bay to await the coming Jedi. She recognizes Ki on sight, but knows that the identity of the new Jedi changes nothing for her. Ki is taken to Jabba the Hutt’s home, where he is assured safe passage through the desert. He is even given a skiff and crew for the ski... ff. Of course, Jabba sends off on her swoop. Aboard the skiff, Ki defeats Aura Sing with the help of Jedi Master Adi Mundi who gives Ki a final warning to be careful, based on dreams she has had of Ki in terrible danger. He leaves for Tatooine. (To be continued below...)

(Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett)

- Jedi Master Ki-Adi-Mundi records a report while en route to Tatooine that discusses his impressions about Anakin Skywalker. (To be continued below...)

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)
pearl that is his prize. Shortly thereafter, Sharad Hett informs Ki that the boy is A'Sharad Hett, his son and Padawan. Hett then voices his suspicions that Jabba is instigating the conflict between the sandpeople and humans on Tatooine. He tells Ki that the reason for their attack on Monchat Steep will be revealed to him in time. They depart, leaving the wounded Rkk’tlk’t behind to commit suicide, as is customary, for only “whoever has two hands can hold a gaderffii.” A short time later, Aurra Sing arrives and surveys the area, realizing that the Jedi are now traveling together. She is set upon by the feral rat-like creatures Ki encountered and kills them all with the help of her lightsaber. She remounts her swoop and heads after the Jedi. Later, Ki speaks to Hett about how he came to be on Tatooine. Hett had been the Padawan of Eeth Koth, and he was sent to the most unruly areas of the Republic to uphold the law, just as Koth had always been. Over the years, he had become a hero on such missions, but he realized that he needed to return home to see his family, since he had been away so long. He had arrived to find the planet decimated at the hands of offworld rivals, and turned his back on society. He headed for the Outer Rim and crashed on Tatooine, where he decided to live in the Dune Sea. He was taken in by the Tusken Raiders and soon proved himself worth to be among them. He rose to power as he taught them new methods of fighting and living. Shortly after he was taken in, he and another Tusken, K'Sheek, conceived A'Sharad. K'Sheek died shortly thereafter. He is proud to be able to have his son as his Padawan, since it is so rare. He explains that he is leading the Tusken in battle because the Tusken are being attacked, poisoned, and otherwise mistreated by settlers. The attack on Anchorhead had been because Anchorhead was the staging area for the attacks, and the Jawas at Machot Steep were distributing black market weapons to the offenders. All of it is being egged on by Jabba, who makes a great amount of profit from the sale of the weapons. Nearby, Aurra Sing informs her employer, Gardulla the Hutt, that the Jedi and Tusken are open to attack. Back with the Tusken, Ki tells Hett about the return of the Sith, but Hett is determined to remain on Tatooine. Suddenly, Gardulla’s huge force arrives and prepares to attack. Ki, Sharad, and A'Sharad draw their lightsabers. At her observation point, Aurra Sing is attacked by Tusken, but she easily kills them. She marvels at the situation caused by Jabba the Hutt’s greed. Jabba had been a middle-man for arms sales between Dreddon and some Arcanian rebels, and when the rebels were executed before delivery, Jabba got stuck with the weapons, which prompted him to cause the conflict between settlers and Tusken to recover his losses. Gardulla hired Sing to help track down and destroy the Tusken, thereby eliminating Jabba’s means of profit. The Tusken are getting the crap blasted out of them when Sharad manages to destroy the enemy airhooks using the Force. Ki and A'Sharad rush onto the scene on a bantha, but the bantha is blasted out from under them by Sing. A'Sharad is hurt and must lean on Ki to walk. Sharad leaps onto Gardulla’s skiff and uses his lightsaber to cut a swath through her forces. Suddenly, Jabba the Hutt arrives to “save the day” (i.e. make Gardulla look bad). He was called there by Aurra Sing, who had been hired by Jabba before being hired by Gardulla. (Ah, business.) Sing uses her sniper rifle to shoot Sharad off of Gardulla’s skiff. As the Hutt forces leave (since the Tusken have been decimated by Jabba’s goons), Sing squares off with Sharad Hett, reclusive Jedi against failed Jedi (yes, Aurra Sing was once a Padawan). Sing uses the Force to hurl debris at Sharad, distracting him as she skewers him. Ki and A'Sharad arrive and Ki recognizes Aurra Sing as the failed former apprentice of his old friend, the Jedi Master known as the Dark Woman. Before Ki can stop him, A'Sharad lunges at Sing with his lightsaber. It takes all of Ki’s persuasiveness to keep him from killing her and falling to the Dark Side. Sing escapes, and Sharad dies of his wound, but not before asking Ki to take A'Sharad as his Padawan learner. Ki agrees to do so, and he and A'Sharad prepare to return to Coruscant.

(Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett)

- The warfare started by Jabba the Hutt on Tatooine has claimed the life of the eldest son of Deen and K’Yark, who was only six. Deen has also been killed, and K’Yark will soon be forced step into his leadership role, despite being female, renaming herself A’Yark. She holds the clan together, even as the large alliance of Tusken created by Sharad Hett disintegrates. This disintegration will mark the beginning of a Tusken decline over the next 14 years, a change that will start to reshape gender roles as well. (A’Yark is also the sister-in-law, in a sense, of Sharad Hett, as she is the “sister” of K'Sheek, Sharad’s mate.)
(conjecture based on Kenobi)

- Jedi Master Ki-Adi-Mundi records an after-mission report to the Jedi Council to inform them of the death of Sharad Hett and his decision to take A'Sharad Hett as his Padawan. (To be continued below . . . )

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

- Aboard his Solar Sailor, floating in the depths of space, Count Dooku receives a holo-message from his new master, Darth Sidious. The Sith Lord has become concerned about the Bando Gora, a fanatic cult that’s attacking industrial interests across the galaxy. This cult is led by none other than Dooku’s last Padawan Learner, the now berserk darksider Komari Vosa. She threatens the Sith master plan, so Dooku is tasked to wipe her and the cult out. And while he’s at it, Sidious wants Dooku to find a genetic donor for the planned Clone Army Sidious’ scheme requires. He suggests Dooku look amongst the deadliest, most brutal mercenaries in the cosmos. Dooku agrees and decides to kill two mynocks with one stone… Outland Station, a distant outpost where beast fights are the pastime. Up in the rafters of the beast arena, a Mutti named Meeko Ghinteel guides his chosen beast to victory via a cranial implant. Suddenly, a figure in blue-and-gray True Mandalorian armor appears behind him. Jango Fett has arrived to claim the bounty on Meeko. The criminal panics and falls into the pit arena floor, with Fett in hot pursuit. Meeko guides his red borhek into Jango’s jetpack, leaving the hunter fighting the beast as he escapes. Jango guns the beast down and continues the chase through the space station. He comes upon a Gran adviser of Meeko’s, who he “recruits” into leading him to his prey. The two head into Merchant Row, a bazaar of shops and alleys. From there, they find Meeko in his hideout as he examines the purity of the death sticks he and his henchmen are dealing. Meeko again flees and puts his men between him and Fett. Another chase through the streets, but Meeko steals a speeder and zooms off. Jango buys a jetpack from the speeder vendor and takes off after the stolen speeder. The speeder crashes into a door into the docking bays, and Meeko limps into the bays with Jango still hot on his trail. After several close calls with conveyor belts and sharp drops, Fett catches up to Meeko just as he reaches his ship (the Longshot). Jango shoots out the vessel’s weapon turrets, sending it back to the ground. Jango hauls the injured-but-still-alive Meeko to his employer, a female Toydarian named Rozatta (owner of Outland Station). Rozatta then gives him a message from a guy named ‘Tyranus,’ who offers a jaw-dropping five million credits for the killing of Komari Vosa and the destruction of the Bando Gora. Roz warns Fett against it – no bounty hunter has survived an attempt on that group. Fett takes it anyway and heads off to Coruscant on Roz’s advice; a small-time death stick dealer named Jervis Gloom may lead Fett to the cult. But he’s not the only one Dooku contacts – he also calls upon Montross, a former member of Jango’s True Mandalorian squad… Jango’s rickety old ship, Jaster’s Legacy, limps towards the entertainment district of Coruscant. Speaking to Jango in his cockpit over holo, Roz scoffs at him keeping such an old relic for a vessel. She says he’s so obsessed with the man who took him under his wing – why don’t he find someone to take under his wing? Jango laughs at the thought and lands near Jervis’s reported location. Jango quickly snare three of Jervis’s men and finds his factory. After turning Gloom in to the police, Jango takes the dealer’s craft and flies it into the industrial district and a death stick factory Gloom pointed out to him, owned by one Groff Haugg. On a hunch, Jango has some of the death sticks stored there analyzed and learns they contain a powerful, mind-altering drug not found in the usual death sticks. He tears through the factory, tagging and bagging several henchmen in search of Haugg. He eventually finds him… frozen to death in a carbon freezer by Montross! Jango battles his former lieutenant, but the traitor jeers him and escapes. Jango, undeterred, checks the factory’s computer. He notes that a senator must be involved to keep the operation so quiet, and he finds a holo of that terrified Senator wanting to know if the “bounty hunters” are coming after him. Roz recognizes the green Twi’lek as one Senator Trill, and gives Jango his penthouse address. He finds the building is crawling with Coruscant security, and he faces a dangerous shoot-and-climb ahead. But he is the best, and makes his way into the Senator’s penthouse where he demands the location of Vosa from the terrified Senator. He gasps out that a Dug kingpin named Sebolto is manufacturing a new kind of death stick on Malastare with the Bando Gora’s help. A police assault ship appears in the skies over the skyscraper and loudly demands Jango release the Senator. In response, Jango flings Trell off the balcony. He then blows up the police ship for good measure and flies off Coruscant. Up in orbit, Roz (on holo) notes that Fett can’t just walk into Sebolto’s realm. But she does have an “invitation” – Bendix Fust, an inmate in the Republic’s Oovo IV maximum-security prison, has a 50,000 living bounty on him posted by Sebolto. Montross is now said to be in the Gazzari system (Groff was evidently more afraid of the Bando Gora than him), so he won’t have to worry about him this time. Roz urges him to consider retiring, settling down, maybe have a kid. “Not in this life, Roz.” Meanwhile, on another planet, a fearsome horned alien warns his female leader that their Coruscant contacts are dead. The woman tells him that the contacts are replaceable – but the bounty hunters, if they surface again, are to be dealt with… Following a cargo vessel in through the planetary asteroid belt, Jango lands the Legacy under the planetary shield. Breaking into the prison proves surprisingly easy, but getting Fust is not – just as Jango reaches a vent to Fust’s cell, a woman in purple spandex and a veiled hat busts him out herself and starts a riot! A furious Jango fights his way through an alarmed army of prison guards and escaped cons alike and escapes the prison. He spots the newly-incarcerated Meeko along the way and frees him. When he reaches his ship, he sees the woman and Fust trying to break into it. As he starts to berate the woman for wrecking his plan, a blue-and-gray vessel shoots down out of the sky – and blows the Legacy to atoms!! “That ship’s mine,” Jango snarls as it flies away. Forced to join forces, the three sabotage the reactors powering the planetary shield.

Jango then sneaks into a hangar adjoining the reactors and steals the vessel (a prototype Firespray-class police vessel) and vaporizes the other five prototypes. He deactivated the Firespray’s transponder to trick the officials into thinking that ship destroyed too. He takes the woman and Fust with him to Malastare. The woman introduces herself as Zam Wesell, and notes she already knows who Fett is. He doesn’t know her, though, and calls her a reckless amateur. Elsewhere, Montross figures out he was tricked and learns about the prison break. He heads for Malastare himself. When the Firespray reaches Malastare, Jango is dropped off in the jungle while Zam (on Fett’s orders – he threatens to kill her if she refuses) presents Fust and acts “charming” for Sebolto. Meanwhile, Fett treks through the jungle towards the Dug crimelord’s lair. Gran, Dugs and Nexus block his way. He fights his way to the base, but finds Sebolto has retreated to a fortress nearby. With Zam covering him with his sniper rifle, Fett accesses a secret passage to the palace and confronts the Dug kingpin. Sebolto panics and jumps down an underground pipe into a death stick factory. He knocks himself cold on the wall just under his escape route, however, and falls into a molten chemical vat. “That’ll be a sour batch,” Jango mutters. But he explores the death stick factory anyway and meets the spooky Bando Gora for the first time. He also finds Montross’ ship, and again battles the traitor. This time Montross is on a skiff, and again he escapes as Zam rejoins Jango. The woman demands to know what’s going on, and Jango finally tells her about the Bando Gora. He notes that a freighter in Sebolto’s hangar had Huttese markings on it, so the Hutts are involved in the Gora’s “instant brainwashing/recruiting” scheme. As the Firespray flies to Tatooine, Montross monitors them via a listening device planted on the ship and heads there as well. Once in Tatooine orbit, Jango calls Roz for info. She tells him that an old friend of hers, Watto, told her that Gardulla and Jabba are in a heated feud for control of Tatooine. Since a gift is required to meet with a Hutt, she tells him that Watto placed a bounty on Jabba’s behalf (in return for a finder’s fee) on one Longo Two-Guns and his band of bandits.

Jango decides to meet with Jabba while Zam meets with Gardulla. Roz also asks if he’s come up with a new name for the Firespray. He has. “Slave I.” A short time later, Jango presents Jabba the Hutt with the corpses of Two-Guns and his gang. Jabba approves, and tells him that Gardulla is the Bando Gora supplier. He’d appreciate it if Jango were to terminate her. Jango agrees. He flies the Slave I into a Tusken canyon near her palace, as he overhears on his helmet headset Zam being captured by the Hutt’s henchmen. He successfully breaks into the palace and finds Zam in a cell. When he refuses to let her out until after Gardulla’s been dealt with, she screams for the guards. Brought before Gardulla, Jango learns that Zam is a shapeshifter – talk about two-faced! Jango is stripped of his weaponry and thrown into a pit to be eaten by Gardulla’s pet krayt dragon. But they forgot his mini-torch, which he uses to cut his way through a grate at the pit’s side. After retaking his weapons and fighting through the palace, he feeds Gardulla (after she refuses to tell him where Vosa is) to her own dragon with the words “Jabba sends his regards.” (The krayt doesn’t actually eat her, though. It just keeps her busy, and she eventually does escape.) He then leaves Zam in the cell of the now-empty palace. He calls up Roz again… and this time, it’s Montross on the other end. He’s tortured Vosa’s location out of Roz! Jango snarls that Montross has just signed his own death warrant and high-tails it to Outland Station. He finds it rigged to blow, with a dying Roz lying on the floor of her office. She just barely has enough life left to slip a holodisc into Jango’s hand before expiring. Jango flees the exploding station and follows the coordinates Roz gave him – coordinates that led to the fog-enshrouded moon of Kohlma, in the Bogden system. The moon is a nightmare of gothic churches, cathedrals, catacombs, and graveyards flooded with acid. The horrible spirits of the Bando Gora are here in force, and Jango makes good use of his flamethrower to dispatch the demon creatures. And soon, he again encounters Montross. This time it’s to the death, and Montross dons his own Mandalorian helmet to wage the battle. After a hard-fought contest, Jango leaves the wounded Montross to face the Gora’s wrath. Jango then heads into the massive castle of Komari Vosa, but is overwhelmed by dozens of Bando Gora who present him to Vosa. She tortures him, vowing to make him her slave. Zam Wesell suddenly appears, her blaster aimed at Jango and Vosa both. Vosa ignites two lightsabers and easily blocks Zam’s shots, sending one back into her. Dazed, Zam shoots Jango’s shackles off. “We’re even now.” Jango reclaims his gear and confronts Vosa in her throne room. Vosa is extremely quick and nimble, but Jango is barely able to wrap his metal cable around her and gun her down. “Which will it be, bounty hunter,” she gasps. “Dead or alive?” Before he can decide, her neck suddenly snap…and Count Dooku enters the room and congratulates Jango. He has a new offer for the bounty hunter: To come to the planet Kamino and donate his DNA and his expertise to creating and training the perfect army – exact clones of Jango himself, grown at twice the normal rate and programmed for absolute loyalty and obedience. Jango considers this, and agrees on one condition – that he take the first clone, unaltered, for himself. The deal is struck, and Jango flies the wounded Zam off the moon of Bogden in the Slave I…*

(Bounty Hunter)

*NOTE: Rozatta is killed by Montross in this tale, but Boba, sometime after ANH, writes in his The Bounty Hunter Code that he should check with Rozatta about certain new upgrades for Slave I, suggesting that she either somehow survives and lives much longer or that there is another “Rozatta” who will later supply another Fett.

- After the near death of Gardulla the Hutt, Decca the Hutt (her child) takes over her operations, presumably while she recovers from the experience with the krayt dragon.*

(conjecture based on The Shadow Trap)

NOTE: I had to tweak this info because we find that she has survived in Hunt for Ziro.

- Darth Tyranus (Count Dooku) returns to his tower to discover his Master, Darth Sidious (Palpatine) waiting for him. Dooku reports that the search for the Prime Clone for Sidious’ intended clone army is nearly complete. The galaxy’s deadliest mercenaries have been pit against each other, and Jango Fett, the sole survivor when the Jedi raided the True Mandalorians on Galidraan, will soon be the victor. He tells Sidious of Jango’s past, using information he has from personal experience and information he extracted from Silas through torture shortly before the meeting. Soon, Jango, who is the last of the mercenaries in the competition, arrives to continue the story for them. Dooku makes the offer of a lifetime to Jango. If Jango will be his Prime Clone, the basis for the new clone army, he will pay Jango handsomely… but Jango will not yet accept. He doesn’t trust Jedi, and he knows that Dooku was one of them. In fact, as soon as he mentions Galidraan, Dooku confirms that he was there that day. Jango retrieves his blasters and makes Dooku a different deal. He has one other demand to make before agreeing to be the Prime Clone, and Dooku is in no position to deny him the request. Jango has infected Dooku with the Karatos Plague, to which he is immune due to having been inoculated in his youth on Concord Dawn. Jango will give Dooku the antidote in return for Dooku agreeing to the final request, but Dooku agrees only on the condition that Jango also tell him what happened to him after Galidraan. Jango does so, and once his story is over, Dooku reveals that he has used the Force to cleanse himself of the pathogen. But, a deal is a deal, and Dooku honors Jango’s request. Jango will receive one unaltered clone for himself. For a moment, Dooku believes Jango might have some sentimentality about the idea of being a father. Instead, Jango simply informs him that he does not want a son, but an apprentice. His son (Boba Fett) will be his mentor’s (Jaster Mereel’s) true legacy.

_Jango Fett: Open Seasons_

- Jango Fett arrives on Kamino and undergoes the cloning process. The first batch of clones (200,000) begin their growth, and Jango receives his unaltered clone, a baby version of Jango that he names Boba. He will raise Boba as his own son and Jaster Mereel’s legacy. Dooku, meanwhile, the true architect of Jango being the clone template, vanishes from public view.

  (conjecture based Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones”)

- Jango Fett, in his duties as the template for the Kaminoan clone army project, gathers up former True Mandalorian comrades like Walon Vau and Rav Bralor, and bring them to Kamino to train commando clone troopers in more advanced tactics than that of regular clones. Overall, he gathers up 100 such combat experts, 75 of whom are Mandalorians. Among the non-Mandalorians is ex-Journeyman Protector Cort Davin of Concord Dawn.

  (conjecture based on Hard Contact and Guide to the Grand Army of the Republic)

- As the cloning of Jango Fett begins on Kamino, the facilities in Tipoca City are supplemented by other clones being grown at Baran Wu and Su Des Stations in order to protect from any one strike from an enemy wiping out the entire growing army.

  (conjecture based on Guide to the Grand Army of the Republic)

- The Kaminoan cloners create a batch of twelve prototype ARC Troopers (Advance Recon Commandos), using the Jango Fett genetic code, but weeding out his tendency to be a loner. The ARCs are intended to be able to be more autonomous than other clones. Of this first batch of twelve, only six survive the gestation process . . . (These will eventually be the Null ARCs after Kal Skirata saves them two years later.)

  (conjecture based on The History of the Mandalorians and Guide to the Grand Army of the Republic)

- Shortly after the creation of the Null ARCs, the cloners the create the first test batch of non-prototype Alpha-class ARC Troopers. Of these first 100 subjects, one is Alpha-02, nicknamed “Spar.” Spar’s reconditioning will fail to take over the years. Over the years, a few of the ARC troopers will return to Kamino to help train clone commanders in ARC tactics, thereby creating the ARC Commander clones, such as Commander Cody of the 212th Attack Battalion.

  (conjecture based on The History of the Mandalorians and Guide to the Grand Army of the Republic)

- Jedi Master Ronhar Kim takes Tap-Nar-Pal as his Padawan.

  (conjecture based on Bloodlines)

- A few weeks after Anakin Skywalker comes to the Jedi Temple for training, Obi-Wan Kenobi discovers him shirking his meditation exercises to spend time talking with A’Sharad Hett, who has recently arrived from Tatooine. When Obi-Wan finally has Anakin excuse himself from the conversation, the two discuss Anakin’s tendency toward disobedience and Obi-Wan’s tendency toward being a disciplinarian. They end up agreeing that Obi-Wan will not feel sorry for Anakin because he used to be a slave, and Anakin will not feel sorry for Obi-Wan because Obi-Wan never knew his real mother. (To be continued below . . . )

  (The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi)

- On Coruscant, A’Sharad Hett is forced to duel the Dark Woman in the Jedi Temple. He proves that he is worthy of being a Jedi, not just a Tusken Raider, as he battles her with both his lightsaber and his father’s, referring to the Jedi Code when the Dark Woman tries to tempt him astray. She concludes that he is worthy and apologizes, before hitting him one last time as a reminder that even the most trusted ally can become an enemy. As the other Jedi present head away, Ki-Adi-Mundi and the Dark Woman speak about Aurra Sing. The Dark Woman is continually haunted by her failure with Sing. She vanishes into the night. The Jedi Council then meets and confers on a new urgent matter. Even Piell’s world of Lannik had been at war with the Red Iaro (a terrorist organization) for years, but now the sides are suing for peace. Supreme Chancellor Palpatine has asked that six of the twelve Jedi Council members go to Malastare, a neutral world, for a peace summit. Ki-Adi-Mundi volunteers upon hearing the request. Piell will go because it is his world. Adi Gallia will go because she owes Piell a debt for saving her parents' lives. Yaddle and Plo Koon then volunteer. As a senior member, Mace Windu also agrees to go. Windu and Eeth Koth then perform the concordance of fealty, where they each give the other back their original lightsaber, which they'd entrusted to each other as a sign of friendship. As the Jedi prepare to leave, Ki heads to the roof to find A'Sharad, who is speaking with Anakin Skywalker. Ki tells A'Sharad to get ready to head for Malastare, and upon hearing the planet's name, Anakin begins telling Ki about the world's podraces. Soon, on Malastare, the final elimination rounds for the Phoebos Memorial Run and Vinta Harvest Classic are held. Among the Podracers are Sebulba (who's home city of Pixelito is one of the passes in the race, and who is, by the way, using Anakin Skywalker's old pod, repainted), Wan Sandage (still having hired Aldar Beedo to kill Sebulba), Aldar Beedo (still trying to carry out Sandage's orders), Elan Mak (still trying to kill Aldar Beedo), and By't Distombe. Sebulba knocks By't out of the race and wins handily, though he still needs to win big in the next day's main event to re-qualify for the Galactic Circuit. Watching the race is one of the three Gran Republic Senators for Malastare, Ak's Moe. He is there consortiing with Myk'chur Finux, a Red Iaro terrorist and a Ffib priest. They intend to use the race to divert attention from their dire plans for the peace summit with Even Piell. Along the way, Finux berates Moe about how the Gran culture has subjugated the Dugs on Malastare. As they converse, the Jedi arrive. They are met by the other two Gran Senators, Baskol Yeesrim and Ailme Teem. On their way to their accommodations, Even Piell and Adi Gallia sense that they are being followed by a Lannik Red Iago terrorist and another Ffib. They lag behind and get the drop on the would-be assassins, just as Ki and A'Sharad come up from behind. The assassins escape, and the Senators send a search after them. Mace Windu realizes, though, that since they got in with weapons, they must have help high in the government or at least in the spaceport (which, of course, is Ak's Moe). When the two assassins report their failure to Moe, he eases the Ffib's fears and assures him that by the next night, all the Jedi will be dead. The night goes on, and the summit begins. The Lannik Prince R'cardo Sooflie IX is totally arrogant and adverse to the peace process, even when his advisor, Hutar Zash, suggests that they hear Even Piell, his old ally. The Red Iaro representatives arrive, including Myk'chur Zug, the Lannik who cost Even his eye years before. Elsewhere, the Vinta Harvest Classic begins. As it goes on, the R'cardo rants and raves, calling an end to the negotiations for the evening. Hutar offers to transport the Jedi in two of his shuttles (taxis, not starcraft). Along the way back to the Jedi's rooms, they fly through an area the Podrace will go through. As the Podracers zip through the area, Huta and his aides reveal themselves to be Red Iaro supporters and that they have explosives strapped to themselves. All of the Jedi escape harm. Mace, Adi, and Even manage to cut their shuttle in half before they are killed, but it leaves them falling from several stories up. The other Jedi push their assailants off the shuttle. As all of the Red Iaro conspirators explode, Adi grabs Even, Even grabs Mace, and Mace saves their lives by grabbing onto one of the supports holding Sebulba's cockpit pod to his left engine . . . and off they go! Sebulba is none too pleased and tries to knock them off several times before Mace loses his grip. Luckily, Adi has a grapple gun that once again attaches them to the podracer. Unfortunately, Aldar Beedo, trying to kill Sebulba, manages to shoot the rope and the Jedi are once again falling . . . right into the other waiting transport, manned by the other Jedi. As they return to safety, Even comments that for Hutar to have joined the Red Iaro and to try to make it look like the prince ordered the Jedi's deaths, the prince must be quite unsavory. Mace declares that they will not turn their allegiances so easily to the Red Iaro. They Jedi are there for peace—period. At the prince's quarters, Myk'chur and the Ffib priest lead a group of armed Red Iaro forces in to kill the prince, who is to be eaten by akk dogs. He is saved when the Jedi crash through the skylight and attack the Red Iaro. One akk dog is killed (complements of Yaddle) and the other is pacified by Mace. The priest is apprehended, while Myk'chur escapes by jet pack, only to be ripped to shreds in one of Sebulba's pod engines. When Aks Moe arrives, he pretends to be uninvolved, but tells the Jedi that the negotiations are, of course, over, and that they should return to Coruscant. Knowing that the akk dogs are peaceful creatures from his homeworld, and that they are being maliciously sold on the Nar Shaddaa black market, Mace Windu decides to head for Nar Shaddaa to investigate this new injustice. Upon arriving at Nar Shaddaa, Mace finds the barkeep Kyood Vurd and his thugs harassing a local woman named Aunuanna. He moves in to save Aunuanna, only to find more of Vurd’s thugs crawling out of the woodwork. Mace is soon joined by Jedi Master Depa Billaba, who is there to assist Mace out of continued gratitude for his bringing her to the Jedi years ago. They send Vurd and his minions packing and speak with Aunuanna, who tells them that another Jedi is there, and from out of the shadows steps the Jedi Quinlan Vos, who, with his Padawan, is supposed to be on Ryloth. He warns Mace that to get to the akk dogs will mean going to the lowest depths of the city. As he vanishes again into the shadows to return to his Padawan and on to Ryloth, he tells the two Council members that he and his Padawan were on Nar Shaddaa tracing a lead, and what they have learned could shake the Galactic Senate. After Vos leaves, Aunuanna tells them that her daughter was taken to be a Jedi. Mace and Depa are clueless as to whom this Jedi might be. They travel to where the old woman has stored an antique swoop. She gives it to the Jedi, who give her some money in return (though she feigns refusal at first). The Jedi head for the lower levels, where the Circus Horrificus is having one of their people, Glamaxon Tvrul, battle akk dogs for sport. As they approach the circus facility, the Jedi are set upon by vrblthers, the demon-like scourge of Nar Shaddaa’s nether regions. As the Jedi approach closer to the circus, the vrblthers cause Depa to lose control of the swoop. They are going to crash into the circus. They crash through the dome and find themselves facing Gargon the Hutt (who, by the way, only has half a head). The two Jedi present themselves and their mission, and the Hutts pretend to agree to help obey Republic law. In the stands, Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk places a badly worded bet that the Jedi won’t last 15 millicyles before being killed. (He was intending to bet that the Jedi would die, not how fast they would die.) The Hutts have Malakili the beast keeper for the Circus open the door that releases three akk dogs into the arena. Mace tries to use the Force to communicate peace to the sentient creatures as is done on Mace’s homeworld, but he finds that the criminals have altered the akk dogs’ minds. The akk dogs attack, but killing one of the dogs helps keep the other two occupied long enough for the Jedi to leap up to where the Hutts sit. At the same time, Ville is told that “time is up” and he has to run like hell to escape enraged gamblers (including Sebulba, recently arrived from Malastare), who want Ville to pay them for the badly worded bet. As Ville is having to fight his way out of the mass of people, Mace and Depa subdue the Hutts and Circus’ ringmaster. The illegal activities of the Circus Horrificus and their Hutt backers on Nar Shaddaa are over, and the arena will most likely be shut down as well.

(Emissaries to Malastare)

- Elan Mak (actually Kam Nale) finally decides to call off his vendetta against Aldar Beedo, reinventing himself as a diehard Podracer.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- As Supreme Chancellor Palpatine grows in popularity and the turmoil from the Trade Federation situation dies down, many groups head about their daily travels to Coruscant. One such group ends up on Coruscant’s Platform 11-33-D at just the moment when thugs hired by Gordunga attack a scruffy traveler named Pothos. The group fights the thugs off, but Pothos dies. His dying words are to tell the group that the Nova Crystal cannot fall into the hands of Kelth. Curious, the group searches Pothos, discovering a small artifact, presumably the Nova Crystal. But just what the crystal is, where it comes from, or what it can do, will remain a mystery for the foreseeable future.*
  (The Nova Crystal)*

*NOTE: See “On RPG Magazine Stories” in How to Use The Timeline Section.

- With the slow decline of Neimoidian society beginning now that the Trade Federation has lost its franchise, Neimoidian leader Chal Haan writes in his “Encyclical on Historical Greatness” that Neimoidians must rebuild themselves into better beings than they have become, suggesting that they reintegrate themselves into the Duros society that they split off from nearly 25 millennia ago.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- With the Trade Federation now losing much of its holdings, new starfighter designs created by Raith Sienar for which the Trade Federation held the patents become Republic property.
The Republic releases these designs to Kuat Systems Engineering, who is looking for a replacement craft for their long-lived CloakShape fighters. The design concepts from Sienar will eventually be used to create the Delta and Actis series of starfighters that will include the Jedi Starfighters of the Clone Wars era.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Aurra Sing arrives on the second moon of Endor, the “forest moon.” She has been summoned via the bounty hunters guild (of which she is not a member). There she meets a Flib priestess. The priestess tells her that her order summoned Sing via Guildmaster Cradossk because they wish for her to hunt a former Jedi Knight, now pirate, named Reess Kairn. Years ago, the Jedi had returned to Ryloth to find his mate cheating on him, and had killed her and her lover. Knowing that the Jedi would hunt him for his turn to the Dark Side, he fled into piracy, becoming addicted to ryll spice. After attacking a Flib temple, he went into hiding, sending two Shi’ido brothers, shapeshifters who are to appear to be Kairn, into hiding as well. His hope was to keep himself safe by using the other two as decoys. They went between three worlds, one representing liquid (Hoth), one flame (Tatooine) and one sky (Bespin). Sing is to hunt him down and bring him in or kill him, but she may have to go after the two decoys first. She will know the real Kairn by his red, ryll spice-addicted eyes. On Hoth, she finds one of the men lording over bio-stim implanted wampas. She kills him, but he is a decoy. On Tatooine, she easily kills another, but he is also a decoy. On Bespin, she battles thana riders before finally killing the third, only to find that he is a decoy as well. She then realizes that there is another aspect of life—land, which leads her back to Endor. On the moon of Endor, the priestess takes off her Flib blindfold to reveal red ryll-addicted eyes. Kairn had gone to Balmorra and had his sex, face, and species (at least as far as removal of lekku at least) changed in order to become a priestess to atone for his (now “her”) sins. Sing arrives and executes Kairn.

(The Bounty Hunters: Aurra Sing)

- The lone Jedi Knight Darca Nyl arrives on a desolate Outer Rim world, where he quickly witnesses local goons manhandling a young boy. Upon saving the boy, he faces the leader of the ore-mining operation, Samuel, who tells him that his daughter, Leddar, was kidnapped the day before. Since the boy was with her, he wants the boy in his custody. However, he has a proposition for Darca. Darca wants to know where the Dark Jedi named Lycan can be found. Samuel knows where he headed after leaving the world, and he’ll trade that information for Darca going with him to save his daughter at the site of a supposed random drop. Darca agrees, but when they find the kidnapper, it is Royce, Samuel’s old partner.

They found the world together, but Samuel cut him out of the operation, so he took Leddar as a means of getting money that he feels he is owed. Darca subdues Royce, but keeps Samuel from killing him. With Leddar safe, he is given Lycan’s next heading (Molavar), and prepares to take Leddar to safety, while the two older men duke it out. Samuel finally decides that Leddar is more important than Royce, so he tells Royce he can keep the land. Royce, though, pulls Darca’s dropped blaster (which doesn’t work, as he was going to get it fixed at the ore operation). Darca notes that some people just can’t be saved from themselves. As Royce drops the gun and flees, Samuel and Leddar return home. As for Darca, his quest continues. He hooks up with a cargo ship for passage to Molavar, but the crew tries to jump him and take anything of value he has, forcing him to defend himself, which ends with the ship crashing on a nearby planet. Meanwhile, Lycan, using the Force, cheats in games of chance on Molavar, killing those who question him on his cheating. He seems to possibly be suffering from amnesia of some kind, as he is rediscovering his own personality and darkness. Back on the other planet, Darca tries to head for the sound of technology, hoping to find passage to Molavar (again), only to end up running into a girl named Jaren and saving her brother, Ament, from pursuit. Ament is “slow,” but seems loyal and gentle, but he is a large man, possibly capable of great physical harm. According to Jaren, she and her brother (who was along as protection) had tried to sue for peace with a nearby community to end an inter-community feud, but they had been attacked on their way from the community by those who had pretended to want peace. As he gets to know Jaren and Ament, she shows him the strange Force-bound world’s ability to enhance memories, which she can pull up as images in a fire. In the fire, Darca sees the face of a young boy, then freaks out and tells her it’s no one. Later, Ament leaves, not liking what he sees in Darca, and when Darca goes to find him, Darca is attacked by a wild beast. While he is distracted by this beast, another attacks Jaren, but Ament, using his brute strength, goes into an extreme rage, killing the huge beast with his bare hands. Darca has Ament use the fire to show his secrets and learns the truth. Ament was gentle usually, but he had uncontrollable rages, and those rages had led to many deaths. He had been locked up in the nearby community, and Jaren had just broken him out, hence them being on the run and chased earlier. Jaren turns them both over to the authorities before again looking for passage to Molavar, where he intends to fix something broken, much akin to Ament. His trail leads him from Molavar to another world, where he finds himself in the middle of a vast desert, aided by a nomadic scavenger named Tooth, whose people are looking for a place to make their new home. After tracking Lycan for days, he is discovered on private land owned by a man named Byrom and his wife Ensa. Ensa had encountered Lycan in a nearby settlement, and they help point Darca in the right direction. Unfortunately, when an alien named Sleeth comes to collect protection money from Byrom. When he hears of the extortion, Darca steps in and kicks some tail, but it only makes matters worse. Sleeth’s mother is Magon, the local crimelord. Knowing that they are likely to be wiped out soon by Magon’s goons, the couple still send Darca on his way. Ensa believes that Darca can save himself by letting to go the past, just as Byrom should of his days in various wars, but he can’t forgive himself yet. Soon, Magon appears, as expected, but rather than taking on Byrom only, Darca appears with Tooth’s people, who drive Magon off. Byrom needed allies, and Tooth needed a place to settle his people, so it makes for a good arrangement. As for Darca, his search for Lycan continues. A short time later, he finally finds Lycan. We rejoin Darca as he is tracked, wounded, by Lycan, toward a cave with what seems to be Force-enhancing crystals (which will allow him to see visions or hallucinations soon). Finally, the truth of what has transpired throughout the interaction of Darca and Lycan is revealed. Lycan has no memory of who he is. He has been following the Force instinctively to this place, leading Darca there, so that Darca can help him rediscover who he truly is. As for Darca, he is not a Jedi, despite his having a lightsaber. He reveals that he was a mercenary for years, but eventually found love in a woman named Teril. They had a son, Neas, but Teril died during childbirth. Darca had dedicated his life to raising Neas. When Neas was young, fairly recently, a ship crashed near their home. When Darca went to check out the crash, he found that the pilot was a Jedi Knight, who was transporting the Dark Jedi murderer Lycan to Coruscant for trial. Lycan was able to cause the crash, and he escaped, leaving the Jedi to die. The Jedi gives Darca his lightsaber and pleads with him to bring Lycan back into custody. Before he can agree to do so, the Jedi tells him to go to his son. Darca races home to find that Lycan had arrived before him. When Neas held a blaster up to stop the amnesiac Dark Jedi, Lycan killed him. Within two days, Darca had buried his son and destroyed their home, leaving on a quest to hunt down and kill Lycan in revenge. Now, Lycan knows the truth, thanks to Darca, and he can resume his Dark Jedi ways . . . but maybe not. Darca thanks him for being so foolish as to follow Darca into a cave where Darca had already set mines before their arrival. Darca explodes the mines, killing Lycan. He fully intends on dying himself, but a vision of his wife and child telling him not to give up urges him onward. He manages to emerge from the cave. His quest is over, and now he can begin another, to prove that Lycan’s assertion that men are not driven by altruism is false. Darca will become a hero in his own right. (Exact date based on the LucasBooks and Dark Horse internal timeline: 3:10)*
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

(Nomad)

NOTE: This event takes place 6 months (on a 12-month calendar) after the events of The Phantom Menace.

The Jedi [continued]

The Force as a Source of Energy

History and Holocrons [continued]

Significant Battles [continued]

Return of the Sith
The Dark Side [continued]
Dark Jedi [continued]
The Conversion of Count Dooku [continued]
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Darth Plagueis [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Epilogue [continued]
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
Bloodlines [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
Bloodlines [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
"Assassination Attempt Flashback"*
Peril in the Ionosphere (G1 short story: Steve Miller)
Peril in the Ionosphere (G1 short story: Steve Miller)
Starting the Scenario
Aboard the Shuttle
A Routine Trip? Never!
Ending the Scenario
Save the Mantaris! (RPG: Steve Miller)*
Save the Mantaris! (RPG: Steve Miller)*
*NOTE: This adventure was a bonus, presented only on the Wizards of the Coast website.
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett (comic series: Tim Truman)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett, Part I (comic: Tim Truman)
The Chosen One
Arrival at the Jedi Temple
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett [continued] (comic series: Tim Truman)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett, Part II (comic: Tim Truman)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett, Part III (comic: Tim Truman)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett, Part IV (comic: Tim Truman)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett, Part V (comic: Tim Truman)
Outlander: The Exile of Sharad Hett, Part VI (comic: Tim Truman)
The Jedi [continued]
Lightsabers [continued]
Illustrious Lightsabers
Bounty Hunter (video game: LucasArts)
Bounty Hunter (video game: LucasArts)
Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)
Jango Fett: Open Seasons [continued] (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Open Seasons, Part I [continued] (comic: Haden Blackman)
Open Seasons, Part II [continued] (comic: Haden Blackman)
Open Seasons, Part III [continued] (comic: Haden Blackman)
Open Seasons, Part IV [continued] (comic: Haden Blackman)
Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)

Chapter 3

Emissaries and Assassins Omnibus (comic: Timothy Truman & Ryder Windham & Mark Shultz & Henry Gilroy & Haden Blackman)

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)

- Emissaries to Malastare (comic series: Tim Truman)
  - Emissaries to Malastare, Part I (comic: Tim Truman)
  - Emissaries to Malastare, Part II (comic: Tim Truman)
  - Emissaries to Malastare, Part III (comic: Tim Truman)
  - Emissaries to Malastare, Part IV (comic: Tim Truman)
  - Emissaries to Malastare, Part V (comic: Tim Truman)
  - Emissaries to Malastare, Part VI (comic: Tim Truman)

The Nova Crystal (GT10 short story: Bill Slavicsek)

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)

The Bounty Hunters (comic series: Tim Truman & Mark Schultz & Randy Stradley & Andy Mangels)

- Aurra Sing (comic: Tim Truman)
- Hoth (Liquid)
- Tatooine (Flame)
- Bespin (Sky)
- Endor (Land)

Nomad (SWT21/SWT22/SWT23/SWT24 short stories: Rob Williams)

- Nomad, Chapter One (SWT21 short story: Rob Williams)
- Nomad, Chapter Two (SWT22 short story: Rob Williams)
- Nomad, Chapter Three (SWT23 short story: Rob Williams)
- Nomad, Chapter Four (SWT24 short story: Rob Williams)

31 – 29 BBY

- Jorus C’Baoth assists Jedi Master Tra’s M’ins in mediation of a Duinuogwuin–Gotal conflict.
  (Exact date according to Old Senate Library entry: 1\68 to 4\66 P.E.)*
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising)*
  *(NOTE: Please bear in mind that the exact date quoted here (1\68 – 4\66 P.E.) is Zahn’s erroneous dating based on when he believed the Clone Wars took place, and has thus been translated into a corrected date. It is included here for the sake of cross-referencing for those curious. See the “On P.E. Dating” notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology)).

31 BBY

- Lando Calrissian is born.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
- The son of future Concord Dawn Governor Purton is born.
  (conjecture based on Boba Fett is Dead)
- Matt Turhaya is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb’s website)
- Aves is born.
  (conjecture based on Heir to the Empire Sourcebook)
- Aalia Duu-lang is born.
  (conjecture based on Ringers)*
  (NOTE: This assumes that Aalia is 25 in Ringers.)
- Jilan Noor is born.
  (conjecture based on Perlemian Haul)*
  (NOTE: He is in his “early thirties” in the adventure.)
- Junas Turner is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on Escape from Balis-Baurgh)*
*NOTE: This assumes that the biographical supplement to Escape from Ballis-Baurgh is written to be concurrent with the story itself. The wording puts that assumption in doubt, so consider this a rough estimate of his birthyear.

- Andov Syn is born on Kerest.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- F'quallix is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Muc Luck is born.*
  (conjecture based on Death of a Hero)*

*NOTE: This assumes the article is set in the months right after ANH.

- Fynn Torve is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on Heir to the Empire Sourcebook)
- Borsk Fey'lya is born on Kothlis.
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising Sourcebook)
- Pax Chizzik is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- Lorac Nonnairh is born, presumably on Alderaan.*
  (conjecture based on Coruscant and the Core Worlds)*

*NOTE: Lorac is in his “early thirties” when Alderaan is destroyed.

- Two of the many victims of Depa Billaba’s “message” to Mace Windu from Haruun Kal twelve years from now is born. They are a pair of fraternal twins.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
- Walex Blissex designs the first Victory-class Star Destroyer.
  (conjecture based on Imperial Sourcebook)
- Walon Vau has a midlife crisis.
  (conjecture based on True Colors)
- Corlin Quarle Deld colonizes Verkuyl and turns it into a bacta production world under his new company, BactaCo.
  (conjecture based on Conflict of Interest)
- Rolsat “Rolstone” Noviee, a Clawdite, begins pretending to be a Lannik in order to be a Pugil participant.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
- Chas Uliar begins training on the systems that he will use aboard Outbound Flight four years later.*
  (conjecture based on Outbound Flight)*

*NOTE: This goes back to the somewhat oddly-worded information about Uliar’s background. I’m assuming here that when he says it took four years to learn the systems he runs aboard Outbound Flight that he’s dating back from the moment he makes the statement, rather than referring back to some ambiguous four years of post-secondary education, such as the type of four-year institution where Americans earn bachelor’s degrees.

- After the death of the insane viscount Marleaux on Vjun, his wife, later known as “Whirry,” begs the Jedi to take her son, Whie Marleaux, to the Jedi Temple for training to save him from the madness of Vjun and Chateau Marleaux.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- As the clone army is in early production, Rothana Heavy Engineering, a subsidiary of Kuat Drive Yards, is contracted to create vehicles for the army, but this order is not placed by the Republic. It is placed via Kamino itself. To preserve secrecy, billions of credits are provided to find a more direct hyperspace route between Rothana and the destination of the vehicles, Kamino. This development of arms is known as Project Icefang.
  (conjecture based on Order 66 and The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- As the ARC-170 is being secretly developed for the Republic, the PTB-625 heavy bomber is developed by Incom/SubPro.
  (conjecture based on Stay on Target)
- Wilhuff Tarkin, guided by unknown, invisible superiors, comes to Coruscant and, as he makes contacts with those who will later be torchbearers for the New Order, he places a broken droid outside the Jedi Temple. Anakin Skywalker takes it in and repairs it, not realizing that the repaired droid is then acting as Tarkin’s eyes and ears within the Temple. Shortly thereafter, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine reactivates Tarkin’s commission in the Republic Outland Regions Security Force, moving him from Eriadu to Coruscant officially.

• Jango Fett tracks a bounty to Balmorra, only to end up being noticed when he shoots his prey. Rigorra the Hutt’s Razor-Eater droid comes after Fett, nearly killing him and leaving him scarred.

• Neema (da-Boda?) falls to the Dark Side after being misled by a Dark Jedi, Vima. She marries an abusive warlord and is imprisoned when she tries to fight back using the Dark Side. Her mother, Vima-da-Boda comes to her aid, killing the warlord. Vima’s guilt and shock lead her to make herself if not blind to the Force, then at least not “on speaking terms” with the Force. Ironically, this losing touch with the Force is the only thing that will save her when Palpatine’s Jedi Purge takes place. (Proof that every cloud has a silver lining, right?)

• Jedi Master Cin Drallig gives a lecture to Padawans on lightsaber fighting, discussing the seven forms of lightsaber combat. He records another lesson on the marks of contact. The lessons are recorded and will later be recovered for the Jedi Archives of Luke Skywalker’s rebuilt Jedi Order in decades to come. (To be continued below . . . )

• The ecoterrorist group known as the Army of Life has come to Naboo to capture dangerous fauna to introduce into Stend IV’s ecosystem. A group looking for work comes into contact with Del Binjitt at Frundle’s Cantina and are hired to transport a cargo (the dangerous fauna) to Stend IV. They take the Majestic Gundark away from Naboo after nearly being detained by the RSF. Upon arrival at Stend IV, they are confronted by a Gran group led by Jedi Dree-Tekes. The cargo turns out to be clodhoppers ready for an infestation. The Jedi manages to save the colony, while the shippers move on to find another job, which hopefully won’t involve a Jedi this time . . .

• A group of heroes discovers the long-lost crypt of Saalo Morn, a Dark Side Force-user who once had dreams of creating a new Sith Empire. His spirit has been locked within his crypt since just over 1,000 years after the Sith War, and lies in wait for someone to be his vessel or his apprentice to carry out his dreams. Upon entering the crypt, one of the group’s Force-users awakens Saalo Morn though his very presence, and Morn watches them for signs that they could be good apprentices. Upon examining a bas-relief of a helmeted warrior, the warrior in the image springs to life. It is Saalo himself, who disappears shortly after announcing his name and that he is a Dark Lord of the Sith (apparently self-declared), when the heroes attack. With that Guardian Spirit gone, they proceed to the sarcophagus, where another Guardian Spirit awakens to attack them. Saalo lies and tells them that the only way it can be defeated is by calling upon the Dark Side. Upon its defeat, Saalo congratulates them and offers to show them the rest of the way out. In the last room, they find Saalo Morn’s sarcophagus, inside which is his body with the Force-imbued helmet he stole from his master. Saalo uses more illusions to make one Force-using hero think the others are dying, and urges him to put on the Force-amplifying helmet to effectively Force-blast their way out (or some other Force-requiring method of escape). It is unknown whether the hero donned the mask, which allowed Saalo to possess him, and the other heroes saved him from the helmet, or if the heroes immediately realized his deception and attacked Saalo and his helmet, but in the end, the helmet is destroyed, breaking Saalo’s last ties to the physical world, and sending his spirit into the afterlife, or oblivion, whichever truly comes next. One more Sith Lord’s spirit is gone.

• Naboo has become a highly frequented world for tourism and honeymooners, and the Otoh Gunga Challenge bongo race is another crowd pleaser. As the lake commences, Neb Neb Goodrow and Spleed Nukkels, both despised by fellow racer Squidfella Quiglee and other who believe they race too recklessly, make a good showing, until Squidfella begins to slam into Spleed. To recover from the encounter, Spleed and Neb Neb both try the same maneuver to gain the lead, only to end up crashing spectacularly, both ejecting to the surface. Afterwards, Neb Neb and Spleed speak with Cova Burmoose, who tells them he is revoking their licenses. They plead their case in the face of false charges and get a temporary suspension instead, while they do a favor for Boss Nass. The favor turns out to be helping fix Boss Nass’ heyblubber, which is at Lob Dizz’s lab. Also heading to the lab is Major Fassa, currently on leave, who brings a message from Boss Nass after discussing the decline of civility in tourists. Upon arrival, Fassa gives Lob the message, which sends Lob to help on a fake emergency. The message was sent by Squidfella, who has returned to take revenge and “justice” on Neb Neb and Spleed. He fires a torpedo at the lab, but Fassa, Neb Neb, and Spleed make it out in Nass’ bongo in time. They use the craft’s superior capabilities to knock out Squidfella’s, allowing for his capture. After the incident, Neb Neb and Spleed get their licenses back, and Nass expects great tourist traffic from their heroic exploits and their spectacular crash in the race. Captain Tarpals is saddened by the news and asks Nass to consider posting signs to get rude tourists to behave. Nass says he’ll think about it. In the meantime, Neb Neb and Spleed have racing to do. In their next race, they’ll end up crashing again, but the crowds, as always, love a good crash.*

*NOTE: The Essential Reader’s Companion erroneously places this story, which is set after TPM, into 33 BBY, before TPM. It is my assertion that it was meant to be one year after TPM, rather than a year before TPM, and thus should remain where I have had it for a while, here in 31 BBY.

- A damaged vessel arrives at Horn Station, piloted by a human rock miner with a strange rifle that has its regular parts, plus three canisters attached to the top (making it look like a Super-Soaker watergun). In a local cantina, the stuttering, meek human is accosted by an alien named Kerlo. The alien goes for his blaster, but the human manages to whip out his rifle and blasts Kerlo with amazing speed. Another alien, a Rodian, comes to tell the human that he must now duel Shoto Eyefire, the local crime boss. It seems that Shoto, who is a great fastdraw shooter, has run out of opponents and now arranges to battle visitors with fastdraw skills. The contest is held in an auditorium at Shoto’s palace, but Shoto arrives wearing blast armor. The word is given to begin, and the human brings around the rifle, blasting Shoto’s blaster out of his hand and blasting both of Shoto’s knees before he can fire. The human takes the first canister from his rifle and opens it to reveal a green-bladed lightsaber, which he uses to fend off blasts from Shoto’s goons. The second canister is removed to reveal a grenade which the human uses to bring down the auditorium’s glass paneling. After stunning the other goons, the human uses the third canister as a shaped charge and blows up the majority of the palace. The people rejoice at the downfall of Shoto, and the Jedi (who appears to be Obi-Wan Kenobi) leaves the planet, his mission accomplished.*

*NOTE: Whether or not this is Obi-Wan Kenobi is in question. One long-time SWT reader, Jeremy Crist, has also suggested it might be Nejaa Halcyon. The story doesn’t say anything definite.

- The Metatheran Cartel grows in power in secret on Cularin, but their presence is uncovered by Cularin heroes.

  (Eye of the Sun: Cularin Presence)

- The Metatheran Cartel begins eliminating its enemies on Cularin. The people of Cularin slowly begin to fight against the cartel.

  (Eye of the Sun: Resistance Within)

- The Metatheran Cartel settles down on Cularin, taking a heavy-hand with the locals, who make a somewhat successful attempt to break some of the cartel’s power on the world.

  (Eye of the Sun: Revelation)

- A group of Cularin system heroes experiences adventure on Tolea Biqua, encountering Rodians, tunnel racing, and more.

  (Price of Business)

- Nirama hires a group of Cularin heroes to help discover a threat from within his own ranks.

  (Between the Worlds: TopWorld)

- Nirama hires a group of Cularin heroes to help discover the leader of a splinter adversary group, the Cell.

  (Between the Worlds: MidWorld)

- Still needing to take out his adversaries, Nirama sends a group of Cularin heroes into action on his behalf.
Between the Worlds: UnderWorld
- Fesvk Wefos sends a group of heroes to find a missing scientist the Rorkee resort.
- Fesvk Wefos sends a group of heroes to find Depatar in the City of Masks.
- Civil War is barely averted on the floating cities of Genarius.
- Investigators look into a strange rock that has crashed off Greentree Pointe on the moon of Doruuma, after bits of debris plague tourists.
- Work on Uffel shuts down while investigators look into strange storm debris and apparent sabotage.
- An unmanned spacecraft falls from the orbit of Tilnes, the Cularin mining moon, bringing other falling debris to the attention of the underground residents.
- A group of Cularin system heroes helps a local merchant in receiving a consignment for which he cannot be present.
- The Cularin heroes from the previous consignment mission are hired by the head of security of Cupharm, a Cularin pharmaceutical company. Their mission is to seek out valuable research specimens that have gone missing, possible due to an inside job.
- The Cularin heroes recently working for Culpham in the search for missing specimens are hired to track down the missing daughter of one of the Cularin platform city Baron-Administrators.
- A group of criminals invades a temple of a contemplative order in the back streets of Gadrin. A group of heroes must save them without harming the gurus or their documents.
- A group of heroes heads for Varna Biqua to discover the dark legacy of the Metatheran Cartel.
- A group of heroes become entangled in political maneuverings between Gadrin and Hedrett. Gardin’s Governor Chistor seems to be tied into the Metatheran Cartel, with some kind of tie to Senior Counselor Impeveri . . .
- A group of heroes is called to the Tarasin Hiironi irstat to discover the secretes behind an unfamiliar presence in the Ishkik caverns.
- A group of heroes protects an exhibition of valuable artifacts. When robbers attempt to steal one artifact, their leader is killed.
- Having protected a particular artifact from robbery, the heroes are invited to dinner with the artifact’s owner, only to become endangered by a bomb threat at the restaurant.
- The robbers seeking revenge for their leader’s death at an artifact exhibition gives the governor of Hedrett an ultimatum—put those responsible for their leader’s death to death themselves, or the town will be laid waste by a massive explosion. As always, the heroes save the day.
- When Cularin’s Senator announces she is to wed a Jedi Knight from the Almas Jedi Academy, plots begin to dismantle the ceremony. It is up to a group of heroes to stop the plots.
• A group of heroes must work to save the lives of the kaluthin (bio-engineered plants) on Almas in order to preserve the ecosystem. Meanwhile, the Almas Jedi have something major demanding their attention . . .
  (Almas, Sweet Almas: The Kaluthin Are Always Greener)
• After a survival test in the desert region of Almas goes bad, leaving a half-dozen Jedi under Kirlocca unaccounted for, a group of non-Jedi heroes must join in the search for the missing Jedi.
  (Almas, Sweet Almas: Desert Cries)
• The Dark Side influence of the Sith fortress on Almas continues to spread across the world, reaching toward the Jedi Academy, even as several heroes stumble into the fortress and must use their ingenuity and strength to escape and warn the other Jedi of its power.
  (Almas, Sweet Almas: A Dark Fortress)
• A group of heroes is thrust into a dangerous adventure after a dinner with a stranger offering a business proposition . . .
  (Entertainment Factor)
• A group of heroes investigates untoward activity on Ostfrei, which is suspected to be smugglers.
  (Insystem Adventures: Who Goes There?)
• A group of heroes must investigate a “comet broom” business recently established by two Wookiees in the Cularin system.
  (Insystem Adventures: At Your Service)
• A group of heroes is asked to investigate a recent entanglement between smugglers and a Thaereian military ship that ended in the smugglers’ destruction.
  (Insystem Adventures: Jurisdiction)
• Len Markus, acting on Nirama’s behalf, begins trying to gain information about the mysterious asteroid found in the Cularin asteroid belt. He is obviously after more than just knowledge . . .
  (Below the Belt: Philanthropy)
• Smugglers’ Confederation heads Nirama, Len Markus, and Nadin Paal decide to open up the Cularin system’s asteroid belt for exploration by interested parties. A group of heroes is sent into one area of the belt to ensure that it is safe.
  (Below the Belt: Philosophy)
• When several ships in the vicinity of the Cularin system’s asteroid belt come to a dead stop and begin to be pulled toward a massage, dark-auraed asteroid, a group of heroes must head for the asteroid and face its shadowy minions to keep the ships from crashing.
  (Below the Belt: Philology)
• A group of heroes must provide security to a racer in the Eskaron races in the Cularin system.
  (Leek Green)
• A freighter crew for Renna’s Transport Service goes missing, forcing Renna to hire a group of heroes to deliver cargoes for her. This is complicated when the missing crew reappears in the company of the pirate group known as the Brotherhood. The heroes still reach their destination, after some complications.
  (Looking In: Outward Bound)
• A group of heroes, fresh from their own adventures, is nearly stranded in the Thaereian system due to sabotage. Luckily, they make it away alive.
  (Looking In: The Air Up Thaere)
• The group of heroes that had to stop in the Thaereian system are soon sent back to the system’s T-4 planet at the request of the Smugglers’ Confederation and local trading houses. Once there, they discover a massive build-up of machinery, weapons, bacta tanks, and the like, all being handled by an apparent union of the Metatheran Cartel, Thaereian Navy, and shadowy confederates.
  (Looking In: Memories)
• A freighter of exotic cargoes explodes over Edic Bar, seemingly transforming the population below, who begin accessing the Force, which is very strong on the planet. A group of heroes is sent to investigate the strange phenomena.

(No Place Like Home)

- On Nar Shaddaa, Jedi Knight Quinlan Vos is caught in a raging fire, high above the streets. He is suffering from artificially-induced amnesia and does not recall his name, the Jedi Knights, or what has become of his lightsaber and Padawan, Aayla. He escapes the flames only to be attacked by bounty hunters. He leaps to safety and meets Vilmarh Grahrk (Ville), who says he'll help Quinlan escape. They do escape, and in the process, Quinlan’s Jedi reflexes help him to defend himself, even if he can’t consciously count on his Jedi training.

Unfortunately, after he and Ville escape, Quinlan is then held at blaster-point by Ville. Ville had lost big on his earlier bet against Mace Windu and Depa Billaba and now owes a lot of money. He took up a bet to kill Quinlan, since the underground folks on Nar Shaddaa know of his amnesia, but Quinlan keeps him from carrying out Quinlan’s. Two other potential killers enter with Quinlan’s lightsaber and that of Aayla, pretending to be Jedi there to take Quinlan home. Ville blows their cover and Quinlan kills them, reclaiming the lightsabers. With his lightsaber in hand, Quinlan has a rush of memories. He remembers Mace Windu, Aayla, Twi'leks, Ryloth, Glitteryll, and his own name. As he prepares to go find Aayla, Ville makes a new bet. He needs a bigger payoff, so he goes for longer odds. He bets that Quinlan will survive, and if he loses that bet, Ville also dies. It is now in Ville’s best interests that Quinlan survive, so the two set out as a team to find Aayla and get to the bottom of what is going on. Using physical contact with his and Aayla’s lightsabers as a guide, Quinlan pulls images from the Force. He sees Bib Fortuna, Ryloth, his home clan, the phrase glitteryll, and more. He determines that Fortuna must be on Nar Shaddaa, so he and Ville rush off to find him. Upon discovering Fortuna, Fortuna won’t talk and presumes that Quinlan, as a Jedi, won’t rough him up. Of course, Quinlan knows nothing of how to be a Jedi anymore, so he tosses Fortuna around a bit before they have to escape, knowing only that Fortuna is not working for Jabba on this, but someone high up on Coruscant. They race to Ville’s ship (well, it’s not Ville’s anymore, thanks to a bet), the Inferno and essentially hijack it, once Quinlan makes Ville promise to return it to its current owner and pay to buy it back after their mission is over. Ville reluctantly agrees. They escape and head for Kiffu, Quinlan’s homeworld (determined by NT, the Inferno’s droid intelligence). On Kiffu, Quinlan meets with his great aunt, the Sheyf of the Guardians, Tinte. She rants a bit about how it was wrong for him to leave, but promises the family’s support in his efforts. She also warns him that she senses the Dark Side around him. Back on the Inferno, Ville receives a transmission from his cousin, Holmar Grahrk, who promises great rewards if Ville will help him capture Quinlan for a bounty.

Arriving on Ryloth, Quinlan and Ville are met by Quinlan’s old lover, Asante Vos. She takes Quinlan to see Aayla’s uncle, Pol Secura, while Ville is met by Holmar regarding the capture of Quinlan. Quinlan talks with Asante and Pol about how he and Aayla had some seeking glitteryll, but Pol tells them that they found nothing and went onward to Kessel. Pol says that he will give Quinlan the room they stayed in last time, so he can try to take feelings from it. Pol soon confers with a mysterious benefactor (probably Sidious) and is told to kill Quinlan. In the room (which is not the one it should be), Quinlan and Asante talk about his missing past and she suggests that perhaps he’s blocking his own memories. He saw a vision of a person shooting Aayla. Perhaps it was him, and he is blocking out how he turned to the Dark Side. Ville contacts him, sending him into Holmar’s ambush, but Ville saves Quinlan by killing his cousin. He simply sets his cousin up to take a fall and now has a big wager on them making it off of Ryloth alive. They head for the spice mines to see what they can learn of what happened with Aayla and encounter spiders native to Kessel (and the production of glitterstim) inside the ryll mines. (This is how they are making the hybrid drug.) They battle and defeat several spiders, but then Asante shows up and wounds Quinlan. She’s preparing to kill him. It turns out that she is part of the glitteryll operation. She was the person who shot Aayla. And it was she and her associates that gave Quinlan enough glitteryll to wipe out his memories, just as they also seem to have done with Aayla, wherever she might be. She and Pol had been told to kill the Jedi, but they thought that wiping their memories would have the same results, yet save their old friends’ lives. Suddenly, a spider attacks and kills Asante, before Ville kills it to save Quinlan. Now, Quinlan has a name . . . it’s time to go pay another visit to Pol Secura. He and Ville burst into where Pol is dealing with his slave girls. Quinlan faces him and tells him that he knows the truth. Pol admits that Aayla has had her memory wiped as well, and she is now one of the slave girls! Quinlan speaks to her, but she has absolutely no memory of anything other than her name. Pol tells him that her memory had kept returning so she was given more and more of the drug to cleanse her mind. Quinlan threatens to kill Pol if he doesn't reveal the name of his patron. When Pol refuses, Quinlan brushes the Dark Side and uses Force lightning on him. Pol relents and tells Quinlan that the patron is Chom Frey Kaa in the Senate, but Quinlan keeps on frying him. This forces Aayla to save her uncle, instinctively Force-pushing both of the men toward an overhang. Quinlan catches himself to keep from falling, but Pol falls to his death. Aayla runs away in fear and guilt. Quinlan wants to go after her, but Ville refuses to allow him to follow when they both know Aayla does not want him there. Ville and Quinlan head for Coruscant to face Senator Kaa and are contacted en route by Mace Windu, who asks Quinlan to come back to the Jedi Temple and receive retraining. Quinlan refuses to return until he has his revenge on Kaa. Arriving at one of Ville's havens on Coruscant, Quinlan is ready to go after Kaa, but Ville stuns him. When he awakens, he is bound in a room with Kaa, Ville, and two Neimoidian Trade Federation battle droids. Kaa lets slip that it was Ville who took the spider eggs from Kessel to Ryloth for the conspirators and was even the person who took Quinlan from Ryloth to Nar Shaddaa after his mind was wiped. Ville has now brought Quinlan to Kaa and received his bounty. Knowing he now has his credits, Ville turns a 180 and frees Quinlan, fighting with him to capture Kaa. Before Quinlan can kill Kaa, Mace Windu arrives. The two duel until Mace gets it through Quinlan's head that killing Kaa, and killing Mace to get to Kaa, is not the Jedi way. Quinlan agrees to return for retraining, and Mace agrees to have the Jedi Council send for Aayla to begin her retraining as well. Elsewhere, Darth Sidious, the man behind Kaa, knows that Quinlan's actions have cost him, but now that Quinlan has taken his first steps into the Dark Side, perhaps someday Quinlan will make a powerful ally to the Dark Lords of the Sith . . .

(Twilight)

- Quinlan Vos, still recovering from events on Nar Shaddaa and his memory loss, trains with Mace Windu in the undercity on Coruscant with training lightsabers. The lesson involves allowing himself to appear defenseless, while still remaining aware in the Force. (To be continued below . . .)

(Hidden Enemy)

- TCW DATE: Groob and Prav Dijj, a married pair of University of Ketaris xenoarchaeologists, discover the ancient Kwa Star Temple on Ova. They travel to Coruscant to share their findings. (conjecture based on Curse of the Black Hole Pirates)

- Three months after Quinlan Vos' emergence on Nar Shaddaa, the planet Ova, an arriving vessel is destroyed when the planet seems to vanish, with its interior seeming to become a void, sucking the planet and the vessel into oblivion. Shortly thereafter, the Jedi Council sends Jedi Knight Quinlan Vos, still recovering from recent events, to the planet Dathomir. The planet is ruled by Dathomirian Witches, female descendants of Jedi Knights who had been stranded on the world generations ago. The planet is steeped in the Dark Side, making it a dangerous place for Quinlan, but Saesee Tiin has faith in his assignment. Quinlan arrives and is taken as a slave of a group of the witches, as per his plan. He is hoping to get close to the Star Temple, where the witches are carrying out excavation. Ova had a similar temple, which, before it vanished, had pointed to the temple on Dathomir as the main one. What this all means, Quinlan does not yet know, but is determined to discover. Quinlan makes a Givin friend, Yag Shushin among the slaves, and acts as a typical slave, even in the presence of Matriarch Zalem. His first night, as the witches drink and torment their uglier member, Ros Lai, a second group of witches attacks, coming to raid for male slaves. Quinlan fights to stop the invaders, knowing he needs to stay with the first group’s excavation. The invaders are soundly defeated (then executed) when one of the first group appears with a subterine (a laser mining vehicle), created from Yag’s old ship. Yag then explains that the witches are looking for an ancient chamber beneath the temple. Knowing now that the witches had their chance to take a working vessel off-planet, Quinlan realizes that whatever is in or below the temple must be infinitely more important to the witches than mere freedom. Later, the witches try to dig into the Star Temple from underground, sending a guardian wuffa to the surface, where it attacks the slaves. Quinlan allows himself to be swallowed, then uses his lightsaber to kill the creature. This makes him appear worthy to Zalem, so she transfers him to taking care of the captive Kwi. Before he heads to his new post, he sees Los Lai (thought dead), tormented by Vonya. Back on Coruscant, Mace Windu and Saesee Tiin discuss Dathomir. They now understand that the Kwi on Dathomir are degenerate descendants of the Kwa, and elder species that traveled the universe via Infinity Gates. The Star Temples were created to protect the gates from outside influence. The use of one of these devices caused the destruction at Ova. Back on Dathomir, Quinlan understands that the witches are cutting the paws from the Kwi in order to use them to activate Kwa-imprinted consoles to operate Star Temple technology. Quinlan and Yag decide to break from captivity, steal back Yag’s old ship, and stop the witches. They engage in a scuffle with the other slaves at the Kwi cages, killing them and freeing the Kwi. One of the Kwi uses psychometry to communicate with Quinlan, showing him the creation of the Star Temples and how they are booby trapped, which is why the witches are trying to enter from the unguarded lower areas. As the Kwi escapes, Quinlan sees Ros Lai again and follows her, falling into a trap himself. Ros Lai has led him to his doom, or so she thinks. He Force leaps out of the trap and follows Ros Lai, who uses Dark Side magic to change from her previous “Hunchback of Dathomir” look into a strong, healthy, witch. She speaks with her dead father (Zalem’s former mate) through the Force, saying that she will be the instrument of Zalem’s destruction. Quinlan offers to join forces with her, but she refuses, telling him that she doesn’t wish to stop the witches, but let them succeed, then kill Zalem and take over for himself. Quinlan cannot let her do it, but she cannot let him stop her. She begins to choke Quinlan with the Dark Side. Vonya then appears, seeing Ros for the first time as her true self. After Ros kills Leela, Vonya prepares to kill Ros with a Dark Side whirlwind, but Quinlan saves her, hoping for an ally in stopping Zalem. Ros Lai still does not agree to help him, though. Vonya reports the situation to Zalem, even as Quinlan is reminded again that he is to be the guardian of the Star Chamber. Quinlan is attacked and captured by Nightsisters, who bring him before Zalem. They put artery worms in him that will kill him without Nightsister blood, but Yag and Ros arrive to save him in Yag’s old ship. They escape with Quinlan in the ship, using Ros’ blood in a potion to save his life. It may be all for naught, though, as the Nightsisters are hot on their tail, firing torpedoes. Quinlan and Ros manage to cause the torpedoes to explode prematurely, leaving the Nightsisters to assume they are dead. Moments later, the Nightsisters enter the Star Temple and its Stellar Control Station. Yag pilots them in hot pursuit, but they are blasted by Vonya in her vessel. Yag takes the bulk of the explosion, dying, but saving the others. Quinlan takes the controls and blasts Vonya out of the sky. In the Control Station, Zalem makes a Kwi activate the controls. Zalem wants to wipe out the Jedi, so she makes Coruscant her first target. As the weapon’s shockwave hurts toward Coruscant, to accomplish devastation that Zalem calls “Infinity’s End,” Mace Windu and Saesee Tiin can only look on in horror. At the Star Temple, Ros brings Quinlan in as a captive to prove her loyalty to Zalem. To prove her loyalty, she kills Quinlan, or so it seems. She turns on her mother, as expected, killing her, even as the real Quinlan (the dead one was a Nightsister illusion) is surrounded by the other Nightsisters, now loyal to Ros. Quinlan is forced to duel Ros, but manages to make it to the control panel, which recognizes Quinlan as its guardian. Security beams stun all of the Nightsisters, ending with Ros. Quinlan calls the shockwave back, sending it on a course for the Control Station itself. Quinlan takes Ros and escapes just as the wave destroys the Stellar Control Station. Later, on Coruscant, Quinlan meets with Tiin and Windu, who ask why he saved Ros Lai. Quinlan answers that somewhere inside her, he can sense the Light Side, the Force within them all.

(Infinity’s End)

- The Nightsister clans, shattered with the defeat of Zalem, are brought back together by the efforts of one of the clan mothers, Mother Talzin, into a unified Nightsister clan. (conjecture based on Book of Sith)

- Gar-Oth and his battle droids invade the planet of Princess Lourdes, killing her father and many others. Gar-Oth begins plans to solidify his control on the world, but his mystics foresee that someone will come soon to challenge his dominion.
In the period after the Battle of Naboo, Empatajayos Brand, Yaddle's final Padawan, earns the rank of Jedi Knight.

Jedi student Ferus Olin bumps into Anakin Skywalker, while Anakin is looking at the Jedi Temple’s droids. They briefly talk about how Anakin built a droid on Tatooine, prompting Ferus to mention not remembering his own homeworld or family. Anakin tells him that he is lucky not to remember.

Jedi Padawan Yoshi Raph-Elan is promoted to Jedi Knight.

Turran Lonarr comes to Kashyyyk and set up his business, Temporary Droids.

Newly promoted Jedi Knight Yoshi Raph-Elan is attacked by unknown vessels near the world recently subjugated by Gar-Oth. Yoshi is forced to crash land then escape before the vessel detonates. He walks to the nearest town, where battle droids are harassing citizens in the name of Gar-Oth. Yoshi steps in to help one, but his lightsaber was damaged during the crash. He narrowly beats one with a shovel, and then uses the downed droid to get information about Gar-Oth's castle. He sneaks into the castle and discovers beautiful Princess Lourdes, who is about to be forced to marry Gar-Oth to give his reign legitimacy. Yoshi goes with her to meet Gar-Oth, who insists they be wed immediately. Under royal law, the one who survives such a fight may marry her. No living being may help either side . . . but that doesn’t exclude Gar-Oth’s battle droids. Gar-Oth unveils a huge droid, the Goliath, and controls it telepathically to attack Yoshi. While Yoshi deals with the Goliath, Princess Lourdes, trained in swordplay by her late father, goes after Gar-Oth. She is nearly choked to death, but manages to kill Gar-Oth with her blade, even as Yoshi uses the Goliath’s own circuitry to activate his damaged lightsaber and cut out its controls. The Goliath falls, taking out Gar-Oth’s other droids. The day is won. Yoshi believes he may be the Foreseen, the person Gar-Oth’s mystics said would come to destroy him, but the Foreseen can only be a woman. The princess was the Foreseen the entire time. She wishes Yoshi well and asks him to come back to her someday. A short time later, other Jedi arrive and take Yoshi back to Coruscant.

A group of heroes is hired to track down and capture Rycar Ryjerd, a smuggler hiding out in the Obana Belt near Tatooine. After several weeks of investigation, the mercenaries track to him to the Obana asteroid belt near Tatooine. After fighting off mynocks, CloakShape fighters and various other obstacles, the group makes it into Rycar's asteroid, where they track him down. Rycar escapes, though, thanks to his bodyguard, Shub Haloo. Upon escaping in his ship, the Blaze of Glory, he is tracked and attacked by the heroes in their YT-1930, until finally being captured, fulfilling the contract.

On Tatooine, Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk is owed money by Watto. For payment, he takes two pit droids from Watto, but Watto is glad to see the misbehaving droids go. Ville takes a job from Princess Miaria Prrt of Felacat, who needs a ride to her homeworld. Ville takes her, and tries to put the moves on her, but she has warned him to keep from long hyperspace jumps. It seems that long jumps cause her species to become tense, at which time they transform from humanoid into tiger-like creatures. The pit droids misbehave and disable hyperdrive controls, causing them to stay in too long, and Miaria to become a beast. She nearly kills Ville before he disables the pit droids and locks her up in an escape pod, ejecting her. He then tractors the pod to Felacat, where he turns her over to her family, but the family says that talk of money causes them to be tense, so he is forced to leave without any payment. Yet another great Ville day.
Windham)
The Jedi [continued]
Lightsabers [continued]
The Seven Forms
The Marks of Contact

Operation: Clodhopper (wizards.com RPG: Cory J. Herndon)
Operation: Clodhopper (wizards.com RPG: Cory J. Herndon)
Introduction
Rendezvous at Frundle’s
Docking Fees
Accelerated Departure
Showdown at Stend IV
What’s Next?

The Crypt of Saalo Morn (wizards.com RPG: J.D. Wiker)
The Crypt of Saalo Morn (wizards.com RPG: J.D. Wiker)
Introduction
Entry Hall
Crypt
Grand Vault
The Vault of Saalo Morn

Deep Spoilers (G4/SWH short story: Ryder Windham)
Deep Spoilers (G4/SWH short story: Ryder Windham)

Incident at Horn Station (SWT2 short story: Dan Jolley)
Incident at Horn Station (SWT2 short story: Dan Jolley)

The Living Force Campaign (RPGA: Morrie Mullins & Lee Pickler & Jason Nichols & Michael Webster & Megan Robertson)
Eye of the Sun (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
Cularin Presence (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
Resistance Within (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
Revelation (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
Price of Business (RPGA: Lee Pickler)
Between the Worlds (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
TopWorld (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
MidWorld (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
UnderWorld (RPGA: Morrie Mullins)
Clouds of Genarius (RPGA: Jason Nichols & Morrie Mullins)
Head in the Clouds (RPGA: Jason Nichols)
Clouded Paths (RPGA: Jason Nichols & Morrie Mullins)
Into the Storm Clouds (RPGA: Jason Nichols & Morrie Mullins)
Broken Orbits (RPGA: Michael Webster & Morrie Mullins)
Depths of Doruuma (RPGA: Michael Webster)
Something Uffel (RPGA: Michael Webster)
Tilnes Rising (RPGA: Michael Webster & Morrie Mullins)
Oblivion’s Kiss (RPGA: August Hahn)
Law and Order (RPGA: Megan Robertson & Unknown)
Trade Wars (RPGA: Megan Robertson)
Consignment (RPGA: Megan Robertson)
Mix ‘n’ Match (RPGA: Megan Robertson)
Find the Lady (RPGA: Megan Robertson)
Operation Blue Star (RPGA: Unknown)
Among the Stars (RPGA: Unknown)
Blinking Eyes (RPGA: Unknown)
Quarters (RPGA: Unknown)
Halves (RPGA: Unknown)
Holes (RPGA: Unknown)
Law and Order [continued] (RPGA: Megan Robertson & Unknown)
  Revenge is a Dish Best Tasted Cold (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
  Game (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
  Set (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
  Match (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This continuation of the Law and Order storyline was canceled. It is listed here as an historical curiosity.

Among the Stars [continued] (RPGA: Unknown)
  An Official Engagement (RPGA: Unknown)
  Almas, Sweet Almas (RPGA: Unknown)
  The Kaluthin Are Always Greener (RPGA: Unknown)
  Desert Cries (RPGA: Unknown)
  A Dark Fortress (RPGA: Unknown)

Law and Order [continued] (canceled RPGA: Megan Robertson & Unknown)*
  Entertainment Factor (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
  Insystem Adventures (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
    Who Goes There? (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
    At Your Service (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*
    Jurisdiction (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This continuation of the Law and Order storyline was canceled. It is listed here as an historical curiosity.

Among the Stars [continued] (RPGA: Unknown)
  Below the Belt (RPGA: Unknown)
  Philanthropy (RPGA: Unknown)
  Philosophy (RPGA: Unknown)
  Philology (RPGA: Unknown)

Law and Order [continued] (RPGA: Megan Robertson & Unknown)*
  Leek Green (canceled RPGA: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This continuation of the Law and Order storyline was canceled. It is listed here as an historical curiosity.

Among the Stars [continued] (RPGA: Unknown)
  Looking In (RPGA: Unknown)
    Outward Bound (RPGA: Unknown)
    The Air Up There (RPGA: Unknown)
    Memories (RPGA: Unknown)
  No Place Like Home (RPGA: Unknown)

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradely & Welles Hartley)
  Twilight (comic series: John Ostrander)
    Twilight, Part I (comic: John Ostrander)*

*NOTE: This story was released as a Hasbro "Comic Pack" with action figures of Quinlan Vos and Vilmarh Grahrk.

  Twilight, Part II (comic: John Ostrander)
  Twilight, Part III (comic: John Ostrander)
  Twilight, Part IV (comic: John Ostrander)

Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
  Hidden Enemy, Part III [flashback] (comic: John Ostrander)

Infinity's End (comic series: Pat Mills)
  Infinity's End, Part I (comic: Pat Mills)
  Infinity's End, Part II (comic: Pat Mills)
  Infinity's End, Part III (comic: Pat Mills)
  Infinity's End, Part IV (comic: Pat Mills)

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
  Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
    Starc rash (comic: Doug Petrie)
      Starc rash (comic: Doug Petrie)

The Rycar Run (RPG: Brian Campbell)
The Rycar Run (RPG: Brian Campbell)
   The Obana Asteroid Belt
   That's No Moon
   Enemy Fighters, Coming Your Way!
   Rycar's Hidden Base
   He Certainly is Brave

Bad Business (SWT8 short story: John Ostrander)
   Bad Business (SWT8 short story: John Ostrander)

30 BBY
   • Auren Yomm is born.
     (conjecture based on The Roon Games)
   • Anii Degarienne is born on Corellia.
     (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb's website)
   • Ughok Snorg is born.
     (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
   • Pell is born on Haruun Kal.
     (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
   • Black Jack is born.
     (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #3)
   • Kaj Nedmak is born.
     (conjecture based on Crimson Bounty)
   • Kit Swen is born on Dagro.
     (conjecture based on Changing Seasons)
   • Jor Idrall is born on Ryloth.
     (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
   • Gen Tiraan is born on Chandrila.
     (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
   • Malak is born.
     (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
   • Sires Vant is born.
     (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
   • Syal Antilles, daughter of Jagged and Zena, is born on Corellia.
     (conjecture based on Star Wars: X-wing Rogue Squadron--"The Rise of Isard: Masquerade")
   • Morna Faenarm is born.
     (conjecture based on Cracken's Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, abridged)
   • Padra is born.
     (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
   • Amaiza and Jodelle Foxtrain, twins, are born on Ord Mantell.*
     (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)*

*NOTE: This assumes Amaiza is 30 at the time of the defeat of the Cloud Riders on Aduba-3.

   • Jaxxon the Lepi is born on Coachelle Prime.*
     (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)*

*NOTE: This assumes Jaxxon is 30 at the time of the defeat of the Cloud Riders on Aduba-3.

   • Jad Winger dies while serving in the military.
     (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb's website)
   • This year marks the last time that the Skull Queen of Nallastia will wear her ceremonial armor until the coming of the Jedi to Nallastia seven years later.
     (conjecture based on The Hostage Princess)
   • The Veiled Sorority, a group of pirates led primarily by women with rank-and-file membership primarily made of men, is formed by a mysterious human "pirate queen." The queen's identity is kept secret through the use of a sophisticated mask. This mask allows for the illusion (and legend) that the queen is perhaps immortal and leads for an indefinite period. However, the truth is that the mask allows the identity of the actual queen to change without that change being widely known because the mask hides the wearer's face, and queens often act through intermediaries, use voice altering software, etc. to appear to be the same queen as every other. The first of these queens (out of three by the time shortly after the Battle of Yavin) makes the Savrip the flagship of the Veiled Sorority's fleet.

(conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)

- Black Sun Vigo Shiltu the Hutt dies of a massage cellular hemorrhage, cheating Clan Tarnese of its revenge for being double-crossed and ruined by Shiltu.
  (conjecture based on Battle Surgeons)

- Dal Perhi becomes a Black Sun Vigo.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)

- Halagad Ventor has been taken under Bail Organa's wing on Alderaan. He has an affair with Tia Organa and ends up fathering a child, Nial, at some point. It is while off on a hunt for manksa cats with Bail and Tia that his parents, Ean and Zollet Ventor take a brief visit to Okonomo, which happens to be where the last Arkanian scientist who created Zeta Magnus is at the time. Magnus strikes with a hive virus that kills everyone there. In the wake of this Okonomo Tragedy, Magnus eats many of the dead, including Halagad's parents. Halagad, now orphaned, tries to join the Jedi Order at the unconventional age of 17. Jedi Masters Jerec, Ashka Boda, and Djinn Allis all reject him as too old, too reckless, and too attached and obsessed with becoming a Jedi. Bail convinces one of his supporters, a member of Jedi Master Jorus C'Baoth's former Alderaanian delegation, Jedi Everen Ettene, to take Halagad on as her Padawan. She will train him over the years and love him like a mother.*
  (conjecture based on SkyeWalkers)*

*NOTE: Halagad is five years older than Anakin Skywalker, and this happens when he is 17.

- Around this time, the South Anem Spaceport on Nyemari has its equipment replaced or repaired for the last time before the Rebel mission to Nyemari prior to Rezi Soresh's plot to capture Luke Skywalker.
  (conjecture based on Uprising)

- Following in the footsteps of the earlier True Mandalorians, a group of about 300 self-identified "Old Mandalorians" (i.e. True Mandalorians in all but name) known as Clan Awaud, led by Nam Beroya, leaves Mandalore to reclaim their warrior-based, honorable lifestyle, rather than remaining under the leadership of the pacifistic New Mandalorians.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: This is "decades" before Friends Like These, which I have rounded to 30 years, rather than longer, since Teroch notes in the story that "that must have been over twenty years ago," putting the nearest decade mark prior at 30 years. (This is corroborated a bit by also being noted as definitely post-Clone Wars.) That said, Nam's disapproval of what's happening on Mandalore references Satine and Death Watch, the latter of which it refers to as "part of the Shadow Collective," which would not have happened yet if this was prior to the Clone Wars, since the Shadow Collective does not exist until late in the Clone Wars.

- TCW DATE: Miaria Prr comes to power as queen of Felacat. She teaches her people, who are polymorphic and can thus become large cat creatures, to tame their wild sides and take a higher, more intellectual and peaceful path for their culture.
  (conjecture based on The Feral Queen)

- Jav Patrell begins serving on (then later commanding) interdiction ships.
  (conjecture based on Luke Skywalker and the Shadows of Mindor)

- Carlis Rieekan (age 17) joins the Judicial Forces.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Una and Drogue Poot arrive on Machenry Station on the run from Ord Serga officials. Shortly thereafter, Drogue is killed. Una will later remarry to an engineer and they would rechristen the station Silver Station.*
  (conjecture based on To Fight Another Day)*

*NOTE: I know that the second marriage is said to take place a while later than this, but since that could be anywhere within several decades, I just mention it here in passing.

- The Tyia philosophy first enters culture on Revyia.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 12: Aliens—"Enemies and Allies")

- The last of the Parents dies on Dagobah.
  (conjecture based on The Hunger)
• The last Lant Mining Corporation mine closes in the Demar system.
  (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector)
• When Dane’s parents die, Dane turns over their property to debt-collectors and travels to nearby Keren on Naboo to volunteer for the Security Forces. She quickly begins training with the queen’s handmaidens.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Dane, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)
• Finis Valorum emerges from his two years in seclusion, beginning to write an autobiography. He will later aid refugee relief movements.
  (conjecture based on Dead Ends)
• Erbaly Nap’tee begins shopping at Dannar’s Claim. She will continue to do so for the next eleven years, never once seeming to remember who Annileen Calwell is.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
• Deep in debt, gambling addict Romeo Treblanc is worried that he must sell the Galaxies Opera House on Coruscant. Out of the blue, Chancellor Palpatine approaches Treblanc as a patron of the arts and offers to fund the House secretly. In return, all he asks of Treblanc is a private viewing box that is free from eavesdropping.*
  (conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for the Romeo Treblanc, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*
*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. There is no set time for this event. I have simply placed it two years after Romeo attended the Boonta Eve Podrace on Tatooine. It happens sometime between that time and ROTS.
• The Corellian Engineering Corporation releases the Vanguard-class heavy assault gunship.*
  (conjecture based on Starships of the Galaxy)*
*NOTE: All information from this Polyhedron #102 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have assumed that “during the decline of the Old Republic,” could be interpreted as a couple of years after TPM.
• The droid known as Fidelis, owned by the Marleaux family on Vjun, begins waiting outside the Jedi Temple on Coruscant for any sign of a chance to link up with Whie Marleaux and somehow bring him back to Vjun to his mother at Chateau Marleaux.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
• Adi Gallia and her Padawan, Siri Tachi, have a disagreement. Adi cuts Siri loose without recommending to the Jedi Council that she be made a full Jedi Knight. Siri leaves the Jedi Order and wanders the galaxy for a while, eventually joining Krayn’s pirates under the name Zora. This is all a cover, however. In actuality, Siri has been sent by the Jedi Council to infiltrate and help take down Krayn’s operation.*
  (conjecture based on Path to Truth)*
*NOTE: The comic says that this all takes place one year before the story, but the book suggests that it takes place two years before the story, with almost a year between Siri leaving and finally getting into Krayn’s organization. Due to its extra details, I tend to believe the book.
• The mother of Preela Dorat (AKA the wife of Chel Dorat) dies. Preela will be raised by servants and droids while her father is away on naval duty.*
  (conjecture based on Loyalties)*
*NOTE: This assumes that Loyalties takes place the year of ANH and that Preela being “in her thirties” can be rounded to say that she is 35 years old in Loyalties. This then further assumes that her mother dying when she was “very young” can be rounded to when she was five.
• Vergere, a Jedi Knight delving into unsanctioned information, such as Sith philosophy, seeks out Count Dooku, who was also interested in such things. In following Dooku, she is eventually led to his Sith Master, Darth Sidious. Realizing that the Sith Lord is Supreme Chancellor Palpatine, she understands that he could be the most dangerous individual in the galaxy. She attempts to kill Palpatine, but fails, forcing her to lay low for a while, until she can take a Jedi mission that will take her far from Coruscant. Luckily, just such a mission is coming up . . .
  (conjecture based on Betrayal)
• The Jedi Council sends the Jedi Knight Vergere, former Padawan to Thracia Cho Leem, to investigate the intrusion of an unknown spacefaring species into the Gardaji region. She is also given the incidental assignment to see if she can locate the planet Zonama Sekot, which was said to be home to amazing spacefaring vessels, but which, at least according to all Republic knowledge, was merely a legend. On her mission, she finds Zonama Sekot and reports back that it is a forest covered world of tree-like beings and hidden factories. Shortly thereafter, Vergere manages to end hostilities between the "Far Outsiders" (the Yuuzhan Vong) by agreeing to leave with them and study their ways and share her knowledge of the Known Galaxy.

(conjecture based on Rogue Planet and Betrayal)

- As Zonama Sekot leaves Known Space, all of the vessels it had created die from lack of connection to their home planet.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

- TCW DATE: While finally returning to Ketaris after bringing news of the Kwa Star Temple on Ova (now destroyed), Groob and Prav Dijj, a married pair of University of Ketaris xenoarchaeologists, are trapped by the same unique black hole that negates hyperspace travel that has previously captured the Black Hole Pirates. Rather than joining the pirates as everyone else has since the group was founded, they decide to settle on the nearby moon (which the pirates have called Plunder Moon) to grow crops and such for the pirates. While there, they discover another ancient Kwa Star Temple, but they find that the Infinity Gate there cannot be used without being activated by someone with Force ability. They will spend the next eight years hoping a Jedi will finally arrive at their particular black hole.

(conjecture based on Curse of the Black Hole Pirates)

- Galactic Games and Competitions by V. F. G. Corvallin is published, followed by annual updates.

(conjecture based on Galladinium's Fantastic Technology via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Kadann, a former Jedi who had strayed from the Light Side and discovered a special vision-intensive bond with the Dark Side is found by a man named Jedgar. Jedgar had been a gifted Force-seer at the Jedi Temple, but was not taken as a Padawan. He had been sent into the Agri-Corps at thirteen, and had run away to study the Force, specifically the Dark Side, on his own. His visions have led him to Kadann, and Kadann takes him as an apprentice.*

(conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook)*

*NOTE: I place this here to give Jedgar 5 years under Kadann before the Prophets of the Dark Side are formed.

- Kal Skirata heeds Jango Fett's call to come to Kamino. By leaving to help fight someone else's battles, Kal angers his non-Mandalorian wife, Ilippi, who divorces him, cutting all ties between Kal and his family (Ilippi and his two eight-year-old sons).

(conjecture based on Triple Zero)

- Kal Skirata, True Mandalorian warrior, arrives on Kamino, summoned by Jango Fett (for a very hefty fee) to aid in training the clone army being grown there. Skirata has been specifically summoned because a batch of six test clones have turned out "defective" (they have too much free will, basically), and before the Kaminoans can simply kill them and start over, Jango wants Skirata to give his own assessment of these clones. It turns out that the clones are children, only about four years old biologically (two years old chronologically, due to growth acceleration). Skirata, a father himself, is extremely pissed at the idea of killing the kids. He instead takes them under his wing, names them (Ordo, A'den, Kom'rk, Prudii, Mereel, and Jaing), and trains them, treating them (and the other clones, but particularly these clones), as if they were his sons. These six "defective" clones will become the black ops clones known as Null ARC Troopers. (To be continued below . . . )

(Triple Zero)

- On Coruscant, Jedi Knights Peerce, J'Mikel, and J'Mikel's Padawan (Xiann Amersu) are on the tail of Aurra Sing. They come across a slain group of security officers, which is missing one man. Peerce soon finds the man tied up, but is ambushed by Aurra. Aurra kills him and claims his lightsaber, even as J'Mikel and Xiann arrive. They find Peerce's body set on display for them and are also ambushed by Aurra. Aurra duels J'Mikel, who is finally slain. Aurra chooses to spare Xiann so that she can one day become a Jedi, whom Aurra will then slay. The traumatized Padawan is taken to be treated medically (if not psychologically), and the matter is brought before the Jedi Council. While her origins after training are unknown to the Jedi, they do know that Aurra was once the Padawan of the Dark Woman. The Dark Woman, who was called before the Council, wishes to pursue Aurra, but the Council refuses.
Instead, they send Ki-Adi-Mundi, A'Sharad Hett, and Adi Gallia, even though A'Sharad has a possible score to settle with Aurra. Soon, on Talas, Aurra meets with two Quarren (whom she almost kills when they test her with droidekas and she mistakes it as a true attack). The Quarren are Tallet and Lekket, formerly of Mon Calamari. At one time, they were partners with Senator Tikkes in business. Tikkes was taking money from the business for his campaign for the Senate and had then turned over records of his partners’ former dealings with the Hutts, which prompted the Republic Guard to raid the business. When this happened, a Jedi was part of the invading team and a stray blaster bolt that the Jedi blocked ruptured a fuel cell, which caused fuel to sear Tallet’s flesh, forcing restoration through bacta and cybernetics. The Quarren wish revenge on Tikkes and the Jedi, whom they reveal to have been the Dark Woman, Aurra’s former master. The Quarren tell her that the Dark Woman is already investigating on an unclaimed world nearby, where they have also lured Tikkes, who will arrive the next day. Aurra leaves to prepare, but is pursued in her ship by Ki and the other Jedi in their ship. Aurra covertly slips out of her ship in a small fighter craft, though, and attacks the Jedi vessel, seemingly destroying it before Ki, A'Sharad, and Adi can escape. As Aurra races to the target planet, she misses seeing a late-blasting, highly-damaged escape pod being launched from the exploding craft. Inside, all three Jedi are safe, but only the appearance of Tikkes’ vessel in the system manages to save them from a slow death. Aboard Tikkes ship, Tikkes is highly anxious about having the Jedi aboard. He tries to get the Jedi off ASAP, so he orders the ship to a Jedi outpost, but the Jedi will hear nothing of delaying Tikkes further. Thus, when Tikkes’ vessel finally arrives on the target planet (where the Dark Woman is brooding about not being allowed to go after Aurra, and where Aurra has just arrived, pretending her ship is part of a meteor shower), the Jedi are with him. Shortly after setting out from the ship, the Quarren and Jedi discover a series of traps. Above, they recognize the Dark Woman, who is surprised to see the Jedi. Before they can clear up any misunderstandings, one of the Quarren shoots the Dark Woman. As Ki attempts to catch a glimpse of her to see if she is still alive, Aurra arrives on her swoop, her blaster rifle pointed straight at the Jedi. Adi slams Aurra off her swoop with a huge rock. While she is down for a moment, Ki goes after the Dark Woman, Adi prepares to go after Aurra, and A'Sharad is sent into the ship to protect Tikkes and his party. Adi finds the swoop set to explode and barely survives the explosion. Ki finds the Dark Woman, wounded but alive, and they regroup with the wounded Adi and know that the target must be the ship, where Aurra has already made her way inside and confronted A'Sharad. A'Sharad fights with his lightsaber and his fathers, fighting off both Sing and the Dark Side’s call for revenge for his father. In the battle, Aurra reveals that Ki-Adi-Mundi once taught her for a while as well (presumably before she was taken as the Dark Woman’s Padawan). Aurra disarms him and nearly kills him before he grabs a pipe and gives her a bash across the head. Aurra is down for the count. A'Sharad exits to meet the others and tells Ki that the vengeance he felt makes him doubt his own ability to be true to the Force, so he wishes to be freed of his vows and to return to Tatooine. The Dark Woman, who knows a thing or two about inner demons, asks him to stay with the Jedi, and says that she will take over from Ki as A'Sharad’s Jedi Master. They all prepare to leave, but a fire storm provides just enough cover for Aurra to escape. Instead of pursuing her, the Jedi do their duty and get Tikkes to safety. Aurra Sing has been defeated, but remains at large, and a new era in the lives of A'Sharad Hett (now with a new master), the Dark Woman (now with a new Padawan), and Ki-Adi-Mundi (now without a Padawan) has begun.

(The Hunt for Aurra Sing)

While meditating at the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, Quinlan Vos is approached by Xiann Amersu, whose master, J’Mikel, was recently killed by Aurra Sing. Xiann had become a Jedi thanks to Aayla Secura, Quinlan’s former Padawan, and she wants to speak with him. She talks to Quinlan about how his deeds with Aayla inspired her, and also of how Aayla came to her upon hearing of another Twilek-in-training and gave her a Heart of Fire from Quinlan’s homeworld. Aayla now wishes to give it to Quinlan. Upon doing so, Quinlan receives psychometric visions, basically reliving his time with Aayla, filling in some gaps in his memories. A grateful Quinlan now feels a bit closer to his lost Padawan. *

(Heart of Fire) *
Darkness is not killed until 30 BBY. NOTE: The Menace Revealed omnibus places this story in 31 BBY, but that is impossible, since Xiann’s master is not killed until 30 BBY’s The Hunt for Aurra Sing. It must take place here, between The Hunt for Aurra Sing and Darkness.

- Above Kiffex, the Guardians of Kiffu shoot down a blaster-running ship, but not before it can release an escape pod down to the surface of the prison world, bearing Aayla Secura, Quinlan Vos’ former Padawan, who now seeks revenge upon Quinlan for the death of her uncle. She follows the Force through what little memory of the Force she has to a huge temple, where she heeds the call of Volfe Karkko, a Jedi (or Dark Jedi) who is currently in stasis. She releases him . . . On Coruscant, the Jedi Council (and Quinlan) are contacted by Sheyf Tinte of Kiffu, who says that the prison complex on Kiffex has been decimated by unknown attackers. She wishes Quinlan to go and use his psychometric heritage to lift imprints from the compound to discover what happened. The Jedi Council is not sure about sending him, given how close Quinlan walks to the Dark Side, but he is sent anyway, ostensibly to check out a disturbance in the force (Karkko, of course). Quinlan is released onto Kiffex and quickly senses that the compound was attacked by Anzati. The Anzati are still there and attack him, but he is saved when another Jedi enters to fight at his side (the same Jedi seen in the shadows as Quinlan was given permission to go). After the battle, the Jedi reveals himself to be Tholme, the Jedi Master to whom Quinlan was a Padawan, although Quinlan still has no memory of this. They open a storage area to find our favorite Devaronian, Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk. Quinlan attacks him because he now has been told of the action of Ville that had led to Micah Giiett’s death years earlier, which he was not aware of at their last meeting. Tholme stops Quinlan, and Ville tells them he was there looking for blasters to run to the prisoners, but things went bad when the Anzati came. As they leave before more Anzati can come, Quinlan asks just why Tholme is on Kiffex. It is revealed that Tholme is there under orders from the Jedi Council to keep an eye on Quinlan. They make their way to the prison and are shot at under orders from Gorto Draga, but make their way inside and make the guards forget the Jedi were with Ville. While Ville finds a cloak for Quinlan, Tholme tells Quinlan that the major problem he has now is that part of becoming a Jedi is recognizing and facing your greatest fear so that it cannot be a key for the Dark Side to claim you, but since Quinlan lost his memory, he must now face that fear again. When he touches the Clan Vos emblem that once belonged to his mother, he relives his parents’ deaths at the hands of Anzati. He has done this before, just after his parents were killed, when Tinte forced him to touch the emblem to identify their murderers. Tholme reveals how Quinlan first came to be trained under him and how the trauma from first reliving his parents’ death forced Tholme to take him to Coruscant for full training. Both wonder why it was that Tinte, who obviously had him relive the deaths the first time to make him useless to the Jedi, would want him to be on Kiffex now. On Coruscant, a holocron has activated on its own, revealing a great danger to Quinlan, but by this time, there is no way to contact him. Meanwhile, Ville and the Jedi enter the Black Hole cantina in the town of Deadend. Inside, blind Jedi Zao has acted as a cook for the Aqualish Zaga. When Zaga gets angry and tries to kill Zao, Quinlan and Tholme step in, taking out Zaga’s guards. Outside, though, a greater evil approaches: feral Anzati sent by Volfe Karkko and led by Aayla Secura. In the midst of battle, the feral Anzati attack, using a strange “wrapping” attack. Quinlan is somewhat in shock at seeing the Anzati, but he lets his rage build until he can attack. As he does so, Aayla enters, dueling with Quinlan and taunting him, but she cannot kill Quinlan because of a mental command implanted by Karkko. Instead, she takes the Anzati and escapes, but Quinlan refuses Tholme’s attempt to calm him and races after her. He finds her outside on a flying bathwa. She blames him for the death of her uncle, her patron, and says he will die for it, but not yet. She and the Anzati then escape on bathwas. Quinlan accuses Tholme and the Jedi Council of knowing she was there when they sent him, but Tholme explains that such is not the case. Ville brings them three skybikes, and they escape just as Zaga and his backup arrive, right into Ville’s blaster barrage. The Jedi and Ville are attacked in their pursuit by Anzati in the trees, and Quinlan awakens as a captive. He is saved by the Jedi Watchman for this sector, T’ra Saa, who was sent by the Jedi Council to retrieve them when they realized that Volfe Karkko could be involved in the situation. Tholme and Zao rejoin them and they cut Ville down. Unfortunately, Sheyf Tinte “forgot” to tell the patrols to let T’ra Saa through, so she had been shot down on the world, leaving them without a ship. She plays a holorecord from an old holocron from the Jedi Temple to them, explaining Anzati Jedi Volfe Karkko’s corruption to the Dark Side and subsequent defeat and mind-imprisonment on Kiffex. Apparently, Karkko is controlling Aayla and the Anzati, drawing on their essences, which is what is making the Anzati so feral. They agree that Karkko must be stopped . . . and so do Mace Windu, Adi Gallia, and Plo Koon, who, believing that the Jedi on Kiffex may be dead, head out for Kiffex to take on Karkko themselves, while waiting for a hopeful Republic task force. Back on Kiffex, Aayla reports to her new master, the fully restored and resurrected Volfe Karkko, who declares that he will drink the essences (or soup) of the Jedi on Kiffex and then escape the planet, with Aayla as his queen. Outside, as Ville prepares to bring the Inferno to the rescue, the Jedi charge toward Karkko’s base. Meanwhile, Mace Windu and the Jedi reinforcement force blatantly defy Tinte and proceed toward Kiffex. On Kiffex, the Jedi charge into Karkko’s complex, while Ville, aboard his ship, deals with Guardian blasts from orbit. Quinlan makes it into Karkko’s inner sanctum, finally coming face to face with the resurrected Karkko and Aayla. Aayla attacks him. As they duel, Quinlan tries to show her the truth of their relationship, finally deactivating his lightsaber, ready to sacrifice himself. Aayla hesitates, causing Karkko to hit her with Force lightning. Karkko then pounds Quinlan until Quinlan lashes out with Force lightning, showing that he has at least partially allied himself with the Dark Side. Karkko turns it back on him with more force, though, and holds him in a Force grip until the combined telepathic aid of the other Jedi joins with Quinlan, freeing him to reclaim his lightsaber and cut Karkko down. Ville arrives, and they escape in the Inferno, with cover from the Jedi vessels that have finally arrived. Karkko is finished, and Aayla has been saved from herself. On Kiffu, Quinlan stands up to Tinte. As Quinlan decides to go his own way with Ville to find himself for a while, the question remains of what will happen to Aayla. Tholme takes the duty of being Aayla’s Jedi Master. The tale begun with Quinlan and Aayla’s memory loss is finally complete, but Quinlan’s road to full redemption continues . . .

(Darkness)

- On Coruscant, Aayla Secura has returned to the Jedi Temple. She meets with Yoda for the first time since her return. She admits to feeling different than she should, and he reassures her that the Force will point her toward what she needs. She will be whole again. (To be continued below . . .)

(Deadly Hands of Shon-Ju)

- Aboard the Intrepid, en route to Coruscant, Plo Koon helps Aayla Secura to recover some of her buried memories. In doing so, the topic of the Stark Hyperspace War emerges when Plo Koon’s old comrade, Jace Dallin, drops into their quarters to visit Plo. Together with Tholme, Adi Gallia, and Mace Windu, they tell the story of the war to Aayla, hoping it will help her to remember how Quinlan Vos once told her the same tale.

(The Stark Hyperspace War)

- On Nar Shaddaa, Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk tells several scruffy comrades about how he instigated the war between the Republic and the Yinchorri . . . well, at least a Ville-twisted version of what really happened. He basically takes credit for starting the war with the Yinchorri in which Micah Giitt died, all while working for Darth Sidious (named Bobo) in a large plot to distract the Jedi so “Bobo” could steal a secret Jedi treasure, which Ville then steals back. Needless to say, his drinking companions don’t believe a word of it. One of them, though, has a job for him on behalf of a mysterious third party . . .*

(The Devaronian Version)*

*NOTE: If there was any doubt that Ville was lying about the majority of the events his discusses, the second issue of this arc takes care of them. Therefore, the events covered in the generally false flashbacks are not included in their proper place. They never really happened (at least not how he describes them.)

- Shortly before the mission that allows Quinlan Vos to be promoted to the rank of Jedi Master, his own former Jedi Master, Tholme, records his thoughts about Quinlan’s early days when Tholme first found him, along with his more recent trials, up through the defeat of Volfe Karkko. (To be continued below . . .)*

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)*

*NOTE: The guide puts this in 28 BBY, but that makes no sense, given that it is specifically stated to be recorded right before Quinlan is given his promotion, and that is this year, two years before that stated date.
On Ryloth, the death of Pol Secura has led to preparations for the traditional sacrifice of all of the ruling clan members to create a new leadership. Ro Fenn is trying to get out of this obligation, and is working with Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk to undermine the actions of the Jedi sent to mediate the situation—Master Tholme. What Ville does not know, or take into consideration, is that Secura’s blue Twi’lek “slave girl” is none other than Tholme’s Padawan (and Quinlan Vos’ former Padawan from the events surrounding Pol Secura’s death), Aayla Secura. Aayla reports that Ville is intending a move against rival Lon Secura’s son, Nat, very soon. Racing to Nat’s aid, Tholme confronts two Morgukai Nikto goons hired by Ville, Bok and his father Tsyr. Tholme takes them both on, but they use cortosis ore weapons and best him. He is saved when several guards show up, but they are easily wiped out. As the two kidnappers escape, Tholme pursues, leaving a message to have his Padawan go to the spaceport. When she arrives at Lon’s home, Lon does not recognize Aayla, but she identifies herself as Tholme’s Padawan and then as his niece. At the spaceport, the kidnappers reunite with Ville on the Inferno and take off, but Tholme has stowed away on the ship. He is captured by the two Nikto and surrenders, but only after telling Aayla via comlink to get word to the Jedi Council about the Morgukai’s existence (They were thought to be extinct,) and their cortosis weapons. Aayla’s mission is clear: follow the Inferno, save Nat, and return him safely, hopefully with Tholme as well. As for Tholme, he isn’t immediately killed, by Ville’s order. Ville contacts his patron, Kh’aris Fenn to ask what to do about Tholme, and the initial response is to kill him... but Kh’aris’ own patron believes he can be of use to them. Kh’aris defers to his wise better... Count Dooku. Meanwhile, Quinlan is in danger on Ord Mantell, where several bounty hunters have converged on him. He is saved from bad odds when Aayla arrives. She explains the situation to Quinlan. They team up to go complete her mission and rescue Tholme who is even now under torture by Fenn’s droid, unknowing that Fenn is planning to cause Ryloth to secede and follow Dooku when his clan takes leadership. Quinlan and Aayla hunt down Ville, rigging a bet for him at a casino to gain his help. The two Jedi race for Kintan, where Tholme is being held, but the two Nikto take to the skies and blast their ship, forcing the them to crash on the planet. The Morgukai hunt them down, even as, back at the Fortress Kh’aris, Tholme (who had lowered his vitals to appear dead) is deposited in the dungeon with Nat, to whom he promises escape. Elsewhere, Lon Secura accuses Ro Fenn of having something to do with the kidnapping, but Kh’aris Fenn appears, ending negotiations between the two and showing himself as the true power behind the plot. His terms for the return of Nat: an end to his exile (ordered by Lon); the ruling council be disbanded and all power ceded to Kh’aris; and the same being done in all other cities on Ryloth, creating one unified planetary government under Kh’aris Fenn’s rule. Lon agrees, believing the Jedi have failed. As they prepare to leave, Kh’aris promises exile for Ro Fenn in return from allowing Kh’aris to have taken the blame for his crimes in the first place, causing his exile. Ville then shows up, telling Lon not to worry and to do nothing until hearing from the Jedi. Ville may just be starting to think of Quinlan as a friend. Back on Kintan, Quinlan and Aayla battle the Morgukai on rocks in the midst of lava. With Quinlan’s assistance, Aayla leaves the younger Morgukai stranded. Even as his father leaves him to die in the lava flow (to atone for his dishonor), Aayla takes the wounded Quinlan (who was hit with throwing discs during the fight) and escapes. They climb a cliff to prepare for entry into the fortress. As they rest, Quinlan refers to this mission as Aayla’s final test, the one sent by Ville. They soon break into the fortress, only to find themselves cornered on a bridge by Tsyr and his droids. Quinlan sends Aayla to get to Nat and Tholme before killing droids do, while he takes on Tsyr. Things get more complicated for Quinlan as Bok reappears, ready for battle. He managed to survive the elements. As Quinlan engages them, Lon Secura informs Kh’aris that his answer to his demands is “no.” Kh’aris sends the signal for the death of the two prisoners, while he also uses his droids and remote speeder to escape. In their cell, Tholme again takes his death when confronted by a killer droid, then attacks the droid with the aid of newly-arrived Aayla. Aayla reveals herself to be Nat’s cousin, helping to break down his sexist prejudices, instilled in his youth. Back at the bridge area, Quinlan retrieves Tholme’s lightsaber from the Morgukai and uses it to attack them. He beheads Tsyr, but before Bok can take his revenge, Aayla emerges to save Quinlan from Bok. (She has led Tholme and Nat to the ship and returned for Quinlan.) Aayla accepts herself as a true Jedi Knight, no longer an apprentice by lack of trials, and defeats Bok, who subsequently throws himself off a cliff. The Jedi escape back to Coruscant. Meanwhile, Ville has been paid to help Kh’aris escape, while Lon Secura has forced Ro Fenn out to die in the wastes as punishment for his actions. A short time later, at the stronghold of Count Dooku (Darth Tyranus), Dooku confers with Kh’aris and the very-much-alive Bok (who faked his death and saved himself from the fall). Dooku has uses for them both, and Bok has a score to settle with Aayla Secura. Meanwhile, back on Coruscant, a ceremony is carried out at the Jedi Temple. Tholme’s contributions to the training of Quinlan and Aayla is acknowledged, while Quinlan is promoted to Jedi Master and Aayla is promoted to full Jedi Knight. Now, the next stage in their journeys begins . . .

( Rite of Passage )

- A group of adventurers are hired by two Twi’lek nobles, Jer and Gelune Blankuna, to find their son, Ree. Unbeknownst to the group, Jer works for the Desilijic clan of Hutts. Ree is, in fact, not their son, but a young Podracer working for Kaeline Ungasan, a Corporate Sector Authority employee who has been privately moving his own little mining and Podracing operation on Ando Prime into economic areas dominated by the Hutts. Jer is assuming that they can capture Ree and use him to expose and thereby ruin Ungasan. The group, oblivious to all of this, heads for Tatooine, where Ree was seen recently and had participated in the Boonta Eve Classic the year before. After saving a Dug named Benkudi from CSA agents, Benkudi tells them that Ree has gone to Ando Prime, where Ungasan is using Podraces (which cut into Hutt profits) to cover scans for valuable substances to mine (which also would encroach on some Hutt enterprises). Once on Ando Prime, the group discovers Ree hiding on the Podrace “track.” He reveals that he knows nothing of Jer Blankuna, and the group begins to piece the story together just as Ungasan and a bodyguard arrive. Ree leaps to join them and a firefight ensues, which is soon joined by Hutt agents sent by the Desilijic clan and CSA thugs. In the end, the group is relatively unscathed. With the help of a salvaged mineral scanner they purchase from a nomadic Talid, the group has enough evidence to put Ungasan away, and then head off to receive their pay from the Blankunas . . . whom they discover have vanished, relocated by the Hutts. On the up side, Sumda and Jylle Tend, a very nice family of humans from Alderaan, have bought the Blankunas’ lovely orbiting home. I guess that’s not all bad.*

( Snow Job )*

*NOTE: I include this story at 30 BBY because we are told it takes place in the Rise of the Empire RPG era, but also that Ree participated in a Boonta Eve classic about a year before the adventure. Since he was not part of the 32 BBY race, we must assume at least another Boonta Eve Classic during 31 BBY has passed, placing this story in 30 BBY at the earliest.

- Upon arriving on Kashyyyk, a group of visitors are met by K-27, a protocol droid. They see a building on fire and race in, saving Urrurrowo, who tells them it was the work of flame beetles. Upon investigating with Wookiee firefighter Rruurrhurra, they discover evidence that maintenance droids may have been involved. Later, Rruurrhurra is found dead, and, after being interrogated for possible involvement, the heroes discover their ship surrounded by droids. After saving their ship from the droids, which bore flame beetles, the heroes trace the droids back to their source, Temporary Droids, which is owned by Turren Lonarr, a human who is working with Trandoshan saboteurs. They track down Turren and stop him and the Trandoshans, but only after nearly being killed when Turren threatens to release a compound to bring the beetles right to them. Kashyyyk is safe from engineered flame beetle attacks for now.

( Kashyyyk in Flames )

- On Skalokor, Padawan Nason Laric trains with his Master, Niquon. The training is interrupted by the appearance of Borta, a native Dolandu, who has captured an assassin droid that carried a deadly poison. Knowing that the populace may be sick, Niquon heads for the nearby settlement, sending Nason on his first solo mission to Port Kalla on Yabosta, where he is to take the droid to Lowghen Badra for more information. Upon arrival on Yabosta, Nason notices that he is being watched by a young girl with a lightsaber. He meets Lowghen, who tells him that the poison is from a Drethi, a beast engineered as a Jedi-killer. Its venom kills Force-uses when they tap into the Force (perhaps via midichlorians), and the only cure is expired venom. With this information, they head back for the ship, but they are pinned down by Rodian mercenaries. As Lowghen holds them off, Nason escapes to the ship, where he is forced to duel the young woman. He defeats the Dark Jedi, not discovering who hired her, and the two heroes head to Skalokor, where they arrive just in time to kill a Drethi that is attacking the populace and to administer the antidote to Niquon, saving his life. Skalokor now has two protectors, Master and Padawan.

(Jedi’s Legacy)

- Anakin Skywalker (age 12) brings a droid he has built to a training session. It promptly malfunctions, firing lasers everywhere. Fortunately, Mace Windu is able to tackle the droid and deactivate it. Later, Anakin confesses to Obi-Wan that he built the droid to make training easier. Obi-Wan replies that sometimes hardship and challenge are more valuable than ease. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Anakin: Apprentice)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. This is when Anakin is 12.

- A group of heroes receives a distress call from the combine-reaper (harvester) Gevion on Leritor. Upon landing, they discover that the harvester is surrounded by native Sauvax. They also learn that another harvester, the Nellist has gone missing. At the same time, one of the Sauvax villages has been destroyed. Both sides, the human harvesting settlers and the Sauvax, accuse each other of the actions. The heroes negotiate to end the siege of the Gevion, then investigate the ruins of the destroyed Nellist, discovering that it was attacked by offworld technology. They then witness another village being attacked. Following the attackers, they discover that someone is playing both sides against each other. That someone are slavers, gathering slaves from both sides to work in an excavation headed by Profex Rynalla of the University of Sanbraz. They have uncovered a buried starship that may hold Sith artifacts. The heroes help defeat the slavers and, ultimately, bring peace to Leritor.*

(Standoff on Leritor)*

*NOTE: This could take place at any time, but I have placed it here to follow the previous story in the issue, Jedi’s Legacy.

- The Senate passes legislation forcing the disbanding of the Trade Federation’s military forces, which in turn hurts profits for Baktoid Armor.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- Rather than completely destroying or otherwise getting rid of their droid control ships (modified HKD Lucrehulk-class LH-3210 cargo haulers), the Trade Federation makes the centrispheres (cores) detachable under the guise of “dismantling” them..
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)
- The Blackstar Raiders begin plundering backwater outposts in the Outer Rim.*
  (conjecture based on Hired Guns)*

*NOTE: This event takes place “many months” before Hired Guns.

- Medara’s Outpost hires a group of mercenaries to eliminate the Blackstar Raiders. The mercenaries begin spreading rumors of a poorly defended warehouse loaded with valuable supplies, hoping to lure the Raiders in with an easy score. The Raiders are wary, though, and send a member to sneak into the warehouse and confirm that the rumor is true. He is promptly caught by the mercenaries but a firefight breaks out when the other Raiders attempt to rescue him.*

(Hired Guns)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. There is no indication of when this takes place, other than that a Clone Strike miniatures scenario map is used, thus putting it likely to be sometime during the prequel era, perhaps prior to AOTC, but after TPM.

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Triple Zero (novel: Karen Traviss)

Chapter 1

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
The Hunt for Aurra Sing (comic series: Tim Truman)
The Hunt for Aurra Sing, Part I (comic: Tim Truman)
The Hunt for Aurra Sing, Part II (comic: Tim Truman)
The Hunt for Aurra Sing, Part III (comic: Tim Truman)
The Hunt for Aurra Sing, Part IV (comic: Tim Truman)*

*NOTE: This story was released as a Hasbro “Comic Pack” with action figures of A’Sharad Hett and the Dark Woman.

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)

Heart of Fire (DHE short stories: John Ostrander)
  Heart of Fire, Part I (DHE35 short story: John Ostrander)
  Heart of Fire, Part II (DHE35 short story: John Ostrander)
  Heart of Fire, Part III (DHE35 short story: John Ostrander)

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)

Darkness (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Darkness, Part I (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Darkness, Part II (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Darkness, Part III (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Darkness, Part IV (comic series: John Ostrander)

The Clone Wars Digest (comic series: Henry Gilroy & John Ostrander & Jeremy Barlow & Mike Barr & Ryder Windham & Justin Aclin)
  Deadly Hands of Shon-Ju [flashback] (comic: Jeremy Barlow)

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)

The Stark Hyperspace War [continued] (comic series: John Ostrander)
  The Stark Hyperspace War, Part I [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
  The Stark Hyperspace War, Part II [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
  The Stark Hyperspace War, Part III [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
  The Stark Hyperspace War, Part IV [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)

The Devaronian Version (comic series: John Ostrander)
  The Devaronian Version, Part I (comic: John Ostrander)
  The Devaronian Version, Part II (comic: John Ostrander)

  The Jedi [continued]
    Force-Sensitive Abilities [continued]
      Psychometry

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)

Rite of Passage [continued] (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Rite of Passage, Part I [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
  Rite of Passage, Part II (comic: John Ostrander)
  Rite of Passage, Part III (comic: John Ostrander)
  Rite of Passage, Part IV (comic: John Ostrander)

Snow Job (G2 short story: Daniel Kaufman)

Snow Job (G2 short story: Daniel Kaufman)
  Adventure Background
  Arriving on Tatooine
  Ando Prime Juaka Canyon
  Wrapping Things Up

Kashyyyk in Flames (G4 short story: J. D. Wiker)
Kashyyyk in Flames (G4 short story: J. D. Wiker)
   Arrival on Kashyyyk
   An Introduction to Kashyyyk
   A Mystery Blaze
   Aftermath of the Emergency
   The Investigation
   Signs of Foul Play
   Trouble in the Air
   Firm Evidence
   Suspicions Confirmed
   Final Confrontation
   An Insidious Device

Jedi’s Legacy (G10 short story: S. John Ross)
Jedi’s Legacy (G10 short story: S. John Ross)

Anakin: Apprentice (children’s book: Marc Cerasini)
Anakin: Apprentice (children’s book: Marc Cerasini)

Standoff on Leritor (G10 short story: Peter Schweighofer)
Standoff on Leritor (G10 short story: Peter Schweighofer)

Hired Guns (miniatures game: Sterling Hershey)
Hired Guns (miniatures game: Sterling Hershey)

29 BBY
• Han Solo is born to Jonash Solo on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)
• Dash Rendar is born.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars Encyclopedia)
• Soontir Fel is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: X-wing Rogue Squadron--“The Rise of Isard: Blood and Honor—’The Making of Baron Fel’”)
• Fenig is born. She will later be taken in by Jett Nabon and take his last name as her own.
  (conjecture based on A Credit for Your Thoughts)
• Nell Wenn is born on Deysum III.
  (conjecture based on Tasariq: The Crystal Planet)
• Par’tah is born on Moltok.
  (conjecture based on Heir to the Empire Sourcebook)
• Semmin Mandel is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 9: Fragments from the Rim)
• Kerri Lessev is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Morrina Reugus is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Ander Rendarke is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Putten Beatus is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley)
• Covell is born on Corulag.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
• Wildis Jiklip, future mathematical prodigy, is born.*
  (conjecture based on Betrayal)*

*NOTE: This interprets “about Han’s age” to be the same age as Han for her birthdate.
• Bren Derlin is born.*
  (conjecture based on age of actor John Ratzenberger at the time The Empire Strikes Back was filmed)*

*NOTE: I hate having to base entries on the ages of actors who played characters, but, I found an old Star Wars that had John Ratzenberger's age in it, and I decided to toss it in here, if only to remind me to keep an eye out for any SW Universe age information. Consider it a temporary entry until/unless I find an age for the character in lieu of the actor.

- Aris Shen is born to Arend Shen and his wife.*
  (conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)*
*NOTE: This assumes that The Jewel of Yavin is about a year or so after ANH. She is 30 in that story.

- Parc Winger dies while in the military.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb's website)

- Tyrix enters Imperial service.
  (conjecture based on No Disintegrations, Please)

- Around this time, Ovolot Qail Uthan sees her distant cousin, Sessaly, for the last time before the biological weapon Uthan created kills Sessaly and the rest of Gibad.
  (conjecture based on 501st)

- The “sporty red speeder” used by Han Solo and others during their mission to Dathomir over 70 years from now is first constructed around the same time Han Solo is born.
  (conjecture based on Backlash)

- The last fatality-free Podrace for the next seven years takes place.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

- After a year with the queen’s handmaidens, Dane requests transfer to another force. She is made a customs security officer.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Dane, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- Dimeele’s contract as a dancer is to come due this year.
  (conjecture based on Living Force Campaign Guide)

- Chas Uliar graduates from school and signs on as part of the embryonic Outbound Flight Project. The project will take another two years to reach the launch stage.*
  (conjecture based on Outbound Flight)*

*NOTE: We are told in Survivor’s Quest that he was 22 at the time of the project. That would mean that this event takes place when he is 20, rather than 22. It might make more sense for him to be 22 upon signing on, what with references included to four years of training that could’ve been equated to college, but not all Star Wars educational situations are given exact parallels to American education, so I’m erring on the side of caution and assuming the most basic answer here, rather than the more convoluted one that would make him 22 here, rather than 20.

- Toba decides to leave Iron Cesta Flight instead of taking command of it when the offer is made. He purchases a small freighter and R5-R5 and begins work as an independent shipper and smuggler.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Toba, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- Yoda and Mace Windu express their doubts that Anakin Skywalker is ready to take on his first true mission with Obi-Wan Kenobi. The basis for their argument is Anakin’s lack of discipline, but Obi-Wan disagrees.
  (conjecture based on Deceptions)

- At the age of five, Tallisbeth Enwandung-Esterhazy (Scout) learns the Silent Meditation skill from Master Yoda.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)

- Arla Fett is imprisoned for murder. This finally takes her away from the Death Watch that had kept her as a traumatized, brainwashed tool for nearly three decades.*
  (conjecture based on 501st)*

*NOTE: She was in prison for a decade prior to 501st.

- Nas Ghent begins flying starfighters.
  (conjecture based on Walking the Path That’s Given)

- The YT 492727ZED (the future Millennium Falcon) comes into the possession of the Republic Group. Flown under the name Stellar Envoy, the ship is piloted for the next decade by Tobb Jadak and Reeze Duurmun, until a fateful crash with the Jendirian Valley III over Nas Shaddaa immediately after the Battle of Coruscant. Jadak has been a swoop racer, forced to throw a race (by the Rigorra/Groodo Hutt family) because of threats to his family. His loss of face allowed him to be hired by the Republic Group, who could not have hired him if he was still very visible. (The Republic Group also gains quite a bit of money by betting against Jadak in that race.) Reeze Duurmun was recruited by the Republic Group and had no prior contact with Jadak, but the two become fast friends as they work together aboard the Stellar Envoy.

(conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

- Jorus C'Baoth is named ambassador to the Xappyh Sector. (Exact date according to Old Senate Library entry: 812166 P.E.)*

(conjecture based on Dark Force Rising)*

*NOTE: Please bear in mind that the exact date quoted here (812166 P.E.) is Zahn's erroneous dating based on when he believed the Clone Wars took place, and has thus been translated into a corrected date. It is included here for the sake of cross-referencing for those curious. See the "On P.E. Dating" notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology). Please also note that in this case, the date in the source material was a typo. The intended year number was 66, not "62" as it is in the source material.

- Maramere has its last crime until the coming of Sol Sixxa three years later.

(conjecture based on Starfighter: Crossbones)

- Three years after taking Anakin Skywalker as his Padawan, Obi-Wan Kenobi records his thoughts on how Anakin remains a mystery to him in some ways, noting a time when Anakin once said he was not thinking of his own mother but of Obi-Wan's "because someone should." (To be continued below . . . )

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

- Anakin sneaks out of the Jedi Temple to roam the streets of Coruscant by himself for the very first time. The buildings and various aliens are interesting, but Anakin is especially excited when he sees a speeder carrying racing wings. When he asks the driver what they are for, he is told that they are used in garbage pit racing. Anakin watches a race and is impressed by how dangerous it is, which of course leads him to get a set of wings for himself. (To be continued below . . . )* (Anakin: Apprentice)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. This is one week before Rogue Planet.

- In the garbage pits beneath the streets of Coruscant, Jedi Padawan Anakin Skywalker prepares to participate in an illegal garbage pit race. He is taunted by a Blood Carver who knows far too much about him, and who then tries to kill him. Obi-Wan Kenobi arrives to recover his Padawan and ends up joining Anakin in fending off the Blood Carver, whom Obi-Wan wounds. After reprimanding Anakin himself, Obi-Wan takes Anakin with him back to the Jedi Temple. Elsewhere on Coruscant, Raith Sienar, head of Sienar Systems, meets with his old friend, Republic Outland Regions Security Force Commander Wilhuff Tarkin. Supreme Chancellor Palpatine has finally forced a stand-down over the Battle of Naboo, which has forced the Trade Federation to begin disbanding its forces and integrating them into Republic forces under Senate control. In this state of busy affairs, Tarkin has come to Sienar to discuss a mutually beneficial deal. Tarkin is among those who believe that humans are the future of the galaxy, and he is apparently being controlled (or at least given his orders by) very powerful, mysterious, individuals (most likely from Palpatine as Darth Sidious). Among his orders are to keep tabs on the Jedi and discourage any increase in their power. As the two men speak, Sienar, hoping to distract Tarkin’s line of conversation, shows Tarkin the designs for what appears to be a moon-sized battle station with two smaller orbs orbiting it. Tarkin likes the idea. They continue talking about working together for Tarkin’s benefactors, while, elsewhere, Mace Windu dresses down Obi-Wan and Anakin for the garbage pit incident. Master Thracia Cho Leem enters and works against Mace in the discussion, but shows Anakin that his major error is that he totally forgot that the Blood Carver seemed to indicate a conspiracy against the Jedi. To fill Anakin’s need for adventure in order to grow, Thracia asks that Anakin and Obi-Wan be assigned to go to the Gardaji system. A year earlier, Thracia’s former apprentice, Vergere, had gone to the system to investigate the intrusion of an unknown spacefaring species into the area and to attempt to find the legendary planet Zonama Sekot, where great ships are said to be built. A short time after finding the planet, Vergere’s communiqués to the Jedi ceased. Obi-Wan and Anakin are to travel there to seek Vergere and possibly procure one of their amazing ships. The two set out aboard Charza Kwinn’s YT-1150, the Star Sea Flower, not knowing that the ship is of interest to Tarkin and Sienar, who are plotting to have Sienar go to Zonama Sekot and gain a ship to gain political favor for the men. Tarkin and the Blood Carver who attacked Anakin, Ke Daiv, visit Sienar who gives them the tracking codes for the Star Sea Flower, which his company retrofitted. Shortly thereafter, Sienar shows Tarkin a Sekotan ship he came into possession of a while before. The men are anxious to get their hands on another. Sienar is given command of a squadron including his ship, the Admiral Korvin under Captain Kett, and is sent, with Ke Daiv, to follow the Star Sea Flower. At Zonama Sekot, Anakin and Obi-Wan have arrived. They express their desire for a Sekotan ship and are told how great a responsibility it is. They present their willingness to go through trials (and their riches for payment) and are taken to Middle Distance by Gann, who explains to them that the planet is Zonama, but the great symbiosis of life on the world is Sekot. Soon, they meet Sheekla Farrs, who guides them through their introduction to Sekot and into a room where they meet various potential seed-partners. The seeds attach to the Jedi. Three attack to Obi-Wan, but an amazing thirteen attack to Anakin. They will be able to use so many seeds to make an awesome ship. Back on the Admiral Korvin, Sienar has begun to make strides in taking the mission over from Tarkin’s shadow, and turns Ke Daiv to his influence. Back on Zonama Sekot, Obi-Wan and Anakin are excited, but distressed. Sheekla has mentioned the Potentialium, an obscure and rejected offshoot of the Jedi Order, and Anakin senses a coming wave of trial for him. They go to meet the Magister, who appears in an illusory form with various illusory family members around. He wants to ensure that the Jedi are worthy of the honor and responsibility of a ship, and when he is pleased, he sends them away. The Jedi soon go to see Shappa Farrs, who will shape the Jedi’s ship, which will be bonded to Anakin. They then meet Jabitha, daughter of the Magister, who will take them to the Jentari, the final ship-builders. Above Zonama Sekot, Raith Sienar sends Ke Daiv to the surface to request a ship, using a protocol droid that was with the Sekotan ship he had gotten earlier from thieves. On the planet, Anakin and Obi-Wan go to the Jentari, where the Jentari forge the seed-partners, who have grown and changed through each stage, into an exquisite Sekotan vessel. Above, Sienar learns that Ke Daiv has had his ship request rejected and sends Tarkin a message about his taking control of the mission, disrupting Tarkin’s use of Sienar as a simple pawn. A short time later, Tarkin’s hidden programming in the squadron’s droids sends a wave of droid starfighters down to the planet, attacking the ship-building areas. In the attack, which Sienar did not want, Obi-Wan is injured, and Anakin and Jabitha end up held hostage aboard the new Sekotan vessel by Ke Daiv. Ke Daiv orders them into the air. In space, Tarkin arrives with his own vessels, and Captain Kett informs Sienar that he is under arrest. Tarkin then arrives and takes Sienar back to his own command ship, Rim Merchant Einem. On the planet, Shappa and Obi-Wan take off in chase of Anakin, Jabitha, and Ke Daiv. On the way to catch them, Shappa confirms Obi-Wan’s beliefs that Vergere is no longer on the planet (she left with the Far Outsiders whose invasion Vergere was sent to investigate), and that a follower of the Potentialium, Leor, was the first Magister. Obi-Wan also believes the current “Magister” is deceased, killed in the Far Outsider attack, but operating as some form of illusion now. Aboard the Einem, Tarkin berates Sienar for his earlier actions and orders a full-scale attack on the world to take ships. One of their first targets will be Kwinn’s returning Star Sea Flower, called by Obi-Wan. Aboard the Sekotan ship, Anakin tries to talk Ke Daiv into letting them go, but fails. Suddenly, a vision of Vergere, held within the ship (since some of the seed-partners had previously bonded with Vergere), appears and tells Anakin that she has left with the Far Outsiders to learn their secrets, for they are a far more formidable threat than anything ever seen before. (This is most likely a Yuuzhan Vong force.) In need of fuel, Anakin sets the ship down where the Magister’s home was earlier... but all that is there is a blasted hulk. It appears it was destroyed, and the Magister killed, with the Far Outsider attack, and all else had been an illusion. As Tarkin’s forces become more active around them, Anakin tries talking to Ke Daiv again, but Ke Daiv only continues threatening him and Jabitha. Anakin’s rage builds and he cannot control it. He lashes out with the Dark Side and hits Ke Daiv with a force so hard that he dies shortly thereafter in Anakin’s arms. Elsewhere, Obi-Wan is heading for the Magister’s home as well. Anakin and Jabitha enter the home, where Jabitha mourns her father and Anakin makes contact with the “soul,” so to speak, of a new entity—the consciousness of the entire planet, Sekot. Sekot tells Anakin that the first Magister believed him to be the Potentialium of the galaxy, when he was only the essence of the creatures on Zonama. As Jabitha and Anakin leave, they are captured, along with the ship, by Tarkin and Sienar. As the Sekotan ship and Anakin (Jabitha has been left behind) are transported in a small carrier up to where the Einem awaits, Obi-Wan, having found Ke Daiv’s body and becoming even more worried over Anakin, boards the Star Sea Flower, which then gives chase. The Star Sea Flower attaches to the carrier ship and burns into it, letting Obi-Wan in to free Anakin and escape in the Sekotan ship. Kwinn also sets an explosive on the carrier, which goes off as it nears the Einem, destroying the carrier and damaging the larger vessel, though Sienar and Tarkin escape in a pod. Anakin and Obi-Wan make it back to the planet, but are then told that the entire planet is about to escape, via gigantic hyperdrive engines. They make it off of the planet in their ship as the planet vanishes into hyperspace. They head for Seline, an outpost world, and call the Jedi for assistance. Their ship, named the Jabitha, is dying. After the ship passes on, Anakin is in desperate need of support and healing. Thracia Cho Leem arrives and provides just that. Anakin has explored some of his darker side and realized that it is difficult to control. Now he once again deals with loss. The trials and tribulations of Anakin Skywalker are just beginning.

(Rogue Planet)

- Production of Sekotan ships on Zonama Sekot ends.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet)
- Wilhuff Tarkin and Raith Sienar get their crippled fleet back to Coruscant after the battle over Zonama Sekot.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet)
- Uridia, in the process of being strip-mined for uridium, experiences an explosion which destroys nearly 30% of the moon’s matter. The moon is subsequently abandoned until the Ando Project begins during Imperial reign.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Wilhuff Tarkin redeems himself before Supreme Chancellor Palpatine by showing him secret plans for a moon-sized battle station. (These are the plans originally conceived by Raith Sienar, but Sienar does not dispute Tarkin’s actions. He has a bad feeling about the plans.)
  For now, Palpatine officially rejects the concept, but he will secretly pass along the idea to the Geonosians for further development with the help of Bevel Lemelisk, who is tasked with researching the hypermatter technology required to power such a weapon and the structural issues involved . . .
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet, Death Star, and The Essential Atlas)
- Kister writes a letter to Anakin Skywalker. He reminisces about fun times together and tells Anakin that his friends miss him. He’s heard rumors that Anakin is traveling all over the galaxy and is envious. He ends by inviting Anakin to come back and visit if he ever gets the chance.”
  (Dear Anakin)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke Van Horn.

- Twelve years after the hearing that exonerated Obi-Wan Kenobi in the death of Bruck Chun just a year after Bruck’s death, Obi-Wan Kenobi is now the Jedi Knight training young Anakin Skywalker. Recently, the families of people aboard the nomadic vessel known as the BioCruiser have petitioned the Senate for an inspection of the ship, fearing their loved ones are being brainwashed. This matter has fallen to the Jedi, and even though the Jedi Council do not believe Anakin is ready for a true mission, they send Obi-Wan and Anakin as observers (not technically on a mission) to the BioCruiser. They travel to Hilo to rendezvous with the BioCruiser with Obi-Wan’s old friend Jedi Knight Garen Muln. Upon arrival, Garen waits for them on a nearby world while Obi-Wan and Anakin are made to wait, and wait, and wait, hoping to finally get a meeting with the leader of the BioCruiser’s populace, Uni. When they finally get in to see him, though, Obi-Wan is shocked. The man known as Uni is none other than Kad Chun, Bruck Chun’s younger brother, who swore to never forgive Obi-Wan for Bruck’s death. Kad seems to have changed, but still holds a grudge. As does his father, Vox, whom they shortly run into on their way out. Obi-Wan, though, keeps the reason for their hatred to himself until he realizes that telling Anakin might help make their bond stronger. On their inspection of the ship, they soon run into Ardra, who joined when she saw Telos going down the tubes again. She tells them that she and Den ended up getting married, and he is on board as well. They soon run into Den, who is suspicious of Uni, or more specifically of Vox. He tells them that each time the ship goes to a planet, which isn’t often, Vox always leaves, and he has been seen with the tech worker Kern who is always the one who tells them that there’s a problem that require repairs on a planet, even when no repairs really need to be done, allowing Vox off. They go to speak with Kern, and get an idea that he may not be what he seems. Obi-Wan has the Jedi recordkeeper Tnani Ikon, look for info on him, specifically asking her to look into no-names, like the one Qui-Gon Jinn encountered on Centax 2. In the meantime, Den had gotten them Kern’s text-doc and some other files to check their suspicions, and his activities become known to security, who blame Obi-Wan and Anakin. They are taken before Kad/Uni. They are confined to their quarters, but Den soon breaks them out, and Garen is signaled to arrive soon to pick them up, as per Uni’s orders that they depart at once. Tnani soon lets Obi-Wan known that Kern is, in fact, someone who died eight years earlier, and who was a no-name. They search Vox’s quarters and aside from knowing that there’s a large treasury aboard that Vox might be trying to get at, they discover that the ship’s “accidental” stops are all charted in advance by Vox. They take a holorecorder and meet up with Garen, who slips away with them when he arrives. They break the holorecorder’s encryption by using the password UniFy. A notation about a “broken circle” caused them to realize that Vox is still working for Offworld, just that Offworld has gone underground, under different names, thereby being still able to rape and pillage the planet Telos, but without being named as the culprit. They also discover that Offworld ships will soon be surrounding the ship, based on a fake distress call that will be sent as a result of another faked emergency reported by Kern. As a result of the “emergency,” the ship will be evacuated, allowing Offworld to claim its technology and its treasury, furthering Vox’s enrichment and empowerment. They bring the information to Kad, but Vox protests until the Offworld cruisers appear, proving the betrayal. Kad knew nothing of this, and knows now that his father was behind this scheme and the sabotage of the Jedi vessels while they were on Coruscant for the hearing about Bruck twelve years earlier. But what does that mean about Kern? They race to the docking bay and find Kern, who is apparently striking out on his own, despite being paid by Vox or Offworld or both, and stealing the treasury. Kern (whom Obi-Wan recognizes now as the same man who had become “Tarrence Chenati” during the Centax 2 crisis), having sabotaged the BioCruiser, kills Vox (who is given his son’s forgiveness) and escapes in a pod. As Garen and Anakin take vessels into space to fight off the Offworld forces, Obi-Wan and Kad race to save the BioCruiser or to get it to Tentrix before the ship is doomed. Obi-Wan takes out droid invaders, while Anakin and Garen defeat the Offworld ships. The outside threat gone, Kad gets the BioCruiser heading for Tentrix. The ship is nearly doomed when droids enter the bridge, seeking to take it over and kill both Obi-Wan and Kad, but Obi-Wan saves Kad’s life, allowing him to keep piloting. The ship reaches Tentrix safely. The crisis averted, Kad and Obi-Wan forgive themselves and each other for the hatred of each other from the past, and Garen leaves to chase down Kern, who escaped with blueprints for the BioCruiser’s advanced technology. No one quite knows who might’ve been giving Kern his orders if he really was only pretending to be truly working for Offworld, but perhaps they will someday learn. As for Anakin, he’s had his first mission, but he knows that he’s different from other Padawans, and he hopes that somehow he will be able to form the type of bond with Obi-Wan that Obi-Wan had with Qui-Gon. Only time will tell."

(Deceptions)

NOTE: In this story, Anakin wonders if the mission to the BioCruiser is his first real mission. Given that the events on Zonama Sekot in Rogue Planet certainly appear to be a mission, I once placed Rogue Planet after his story, but The New Essential Guide to Characters has confirmed that RP does indeed take place before Deceptions. It was more of a “fact-finding mission” than a true mission, it seems.

- Anakin Skywalker turns thirteen (on Month 4, Day 23). For his birthday, Obi-Wan Kenobi gives him the small stone that Qui-Gon Jinn gave him on his own thirteenth birthday. (conjecture based on The Way of the Apprentice)
- Ten years after he and Qui-Gon Jinn tracked Murk Lundi in pursuit of a Sith Holocron, Obi-Wan Kenobi is drawn back into the search, this time with his Padawan Anakin Skywalker.
Messages are being received all over the galaxy showing Jedi Masters being killed by their students, just as had been done in the days of the Sith War under Exar Kun. The power of the numerous Sith Sects is growing, even as the Sith themselves have begun to make their move for power. The Jedi must know whether or not the Sith Holocron from Kodai has been found, and if it has not, they must claim it before the Sith or their followers can. To do this, Obi-Wan and Anakin must travel with Lundi to Kodai, despite their reservations. They first head for the home of Omal and Dedra, two of Lundi’s best students. Omal is mentally unstable, babbling about the events of ten years ago, while Dedra is more helpful, suggesting that Norval may have had something to do with the Holocron. Meanwhile, Anakin finds a recording of another Jedi being killed, but keeps it to himself, for some instinctual reason. He feels somehow at fault for the death, but cannot understand why. (Perhaps it is a tremor through the Force foreshadowing his future actions?) They head for Kodai, promising Lundi a look at the Holocron (just a look) if he will help them find it. Upon arrival, Anakin finally tells Obi-Wan about the recording, and the older Jedi is angered that Anakin hid it from him. They go into a geyser where the Holocron is said to be, but Norval has gotten to it first. He didn’t get it ten years ago, but he has it now. Lundi laughs about this until Anakin explodes at him, reminding him that if Norval goes through with a deal to get it to the real Sith, the Jedi won’t be the only ones in the galaxy who are destroyed. They track Norval to the space around Ploo II, where they follow his ship, but they are not the only ones present. A strange gray ship, presumably working for Darth Sidious, arrives. Obi-Wan takes a shuttle over to Norval’s vessel, while Anakin handles piloting the other ship. The Sith vessel attacks both vessels, hoping to wipe out the Jedi, even as Obi-Wan confronts Norval. The two duel (yes, Norval has used the Sith Holocron to build a lightsaber, but it is crude and he has no Force-attunement), which ends with Obi-Wan taking out Norval’s saber and claiming the Holocron. When Norval cries out to the other ship that “the Jedi has the Holocron,” the Sith have no more use for Norval and destroy the ship, just as Obi-Wan manages to escape. When he arrives back at the other ship, he finds Anakin holding Lundi, who dies in his arms. The darkness has finally claimed him, and Anakin did not want him to have to die in a cage. The two Jedi return with Lundi’s body to Coruscant. The Sith Holocron that was once King Adas’ own is placed in the Jedi Temple archives, Lundi’s body is turned over to the proper individuals, and the Jedi Council is pleased . . . but the Sith threat is still out there. *

(The Followers)*

*NOTE: This story’s Jedi Apprentice era portion takes place when Obi-Wan is 18, which means it happens in the year 39 BBY. It then jumps ahead to 10 years later, 29 BBY, which is the next time the tide on Kodai changes. However, the novel says that Anakin is 13 in this portion, not 12, as one would expect of 29 BBY, based on TPM. It does, however, fit with the incongruity that his birth month creates for AOTC’s age of 20.

- The Huk War ensues when the Kaleesh species of Kalee becomes embroiled in war with the neighboring Yam’rii of the planet Huk. The Kaleesh warriors are led by the Kaleesh warrior General Grievous. Grievous leads them to near-victory, but then the Huk ask the Republic for help. Fifty Jedi join the Yam’rii in taking on the Kaleesh, leaving the planet Kalee broken under Republic sanctions. In the wake of this, as the conflict with the Huk becomes ever more desperate, the InterGalactic Banking Clan, under San Hill, comes to Kalee, where they provide a great deal of resources . . . for a price. They want General Grievous to work for them in the future as leader of a droid army that Count Dooku and his Separatists are building.

  (conjecture based on Jedi Trial)

- On Kalee, the burden of debt that had been laid on the planet by the Republic after the Huk War has been lifted, but when Grievous discovers that the InterGalactic Banking Clan has done nothing to the Yam’rii of Huk for desecrating sacred Kaleesh grounds, Grievous abandons his IBC contract so that he and his elite warriors can return to start a new Huk War to avenge this sacrilege. On the eve of a new offensive against the Huk, General Grievous boards his shuttle to head for battle.

  (conjecture based on Unknown Soldier: The Story of General Grievous)

- According to one theory on the creation of General Grievous as a part-droid part-Kaleesh being, on the eve of a new offensive against the Huk, General Grievous boards his shuttle to head for battle. As a means of putting Grievous more under their control, the Sith Lords, Darth Tyranus (Dooku) and Darth Sidious (Palpatine), working in league with San Hill and Poggle the Lesser, arrange for the shuttle to “crash” (thanks to an ion bomb) but eject a “grievously” wounded General Grievous to relative safety. The Kaleesh warlord is then subdued (via Force lightning) by Darth Tyranus, who has him sent to Geonosis, where San Hill awaits. The IBC again offers aid to Kallee in order to relieve Kallee of its newest famine and provide resources for their war against the Huk. They will even provide Grievous with a new body, making him “more machine now than Kaleesh,” and use blood from the dead (but preserved) Jedi Master Sifo-Dyas for transfusions into the General. However, in return for this, he will be called upon to lead a droid army that Count Dooku and his Separatists are building. Grievous prefers to die, but when his surviving children are brought before him, he agrees to the deal, requesting only that he be allowed to keep his own eyes. This new cybernetic, near-droid Grievous resemble a Krath war droid, and he soon replaces its barren face with a new death mask that looks like his father’s old mumuu warrior mask. Dooku’s growing movement now has its most powerful secret warrior. Moreover, the success of the experiment will make future “more machine than organic” processes (like that for Darth Vader) possible.

(The Eyes of Revolution)

*NOTE: Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader places this event “a decade” before that story, finally giving us a timeline placement for this. This summary also has some elements from Unknown Soldier: The Story of General Grievous added in for good measure. Also, one should note that in the Star Wars Comics Companion, this story is erroneously referred to as being called A Shell Without a Soul.

- Another theory as to the development of General Grievous into a cyborg is that he voluntarily remakes himself by changing out organic parts for cybernetic ones as a means of enhancing his abilities and making him closer to a Jedi in battle prowess. Whether this theory or the tale of his supposed shuttle crash is true is lost to history.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- TCW DATE: Around this time, the Hutt Cartel places a trio of bounties on difficult targets. The Bounty Hunters Guild sets about hunting them, but they will eventually be captured by Cad Bane instead.
  (conjecture based on Making a Killing)*

*NOTE: This is over a year from Cradossk’s confrontation with Cad Bane over the issue.

- Jedi agricultural specialist Nam Poof begins wanting to visit Kashyyyk. He will be unable to do so until on the run in the wake of the Jedi Purge.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- Several months after counseling Anakin Skywalker after the Zonama Sekot ordeal, Jedi Master Thracia Cho Leem leaves the Jedi Order.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Planet)

- Siri Tachi, former Jedi Padawan, joins up with the pirate/slaver Krayn and takes the name Zora (in an effort to infiltrate the group for the Jedi Council).
  (conjecture based on Path to Truth)

- With the successful creation of the cybernetic General Grievous, Palpatine orders a DD-13 surgical droid for the Palpatine Surgical Reconstruction Center on Coruscant, where Darth Vader will eventually be given his cybernetic transformation.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

  The Chosen One [continued]

  Jedi Training

  The Garbage Pits [flashback]

Rogue Planet (novel: Greg Bear)

Rogue Planet (novel: Greg Bear)

  Chapters 1 – 66

  Coda

Dear Anakin (SWM1 short story: Furi Furi Company)
Dear Anakin (SWM1 short story: Furi Furi Company)

Deceptions [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
   Chapters 11 – 23

The Followers [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
   Chapters 13 – 27

The Eyes of Revolution (SWV short story: Warren Fu)
The Eyes of Revolution (SWV short story: Warren Fu)

28 – 23 BBY

Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
   Jedi Knight [continued]*

*NOTE: This section is basically a very generalized overview of the events of the Jedi Quest book series. (This information was, again, provided by Luke Van Horn.)*

28 BBY

- Bria Tharen, daughter of Renn and Sera, is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- Quayce is born.
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.*

- Roy Harrison is born.
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.*

- Laerron Woern is born on Elom.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Boddu Bocck is born on Commenor.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #2)
- Dawson is born on Tynna.
  (conjecture based on The Great Herdship Heist)
- Daric LaRone is born on Copperline.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- Vimran Trell is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Tandra Marelle is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Bendoli Ballow-Reese is born.
  (conjecture based on Vector Prime)
- Mol Hedron is born on Swarquen.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Bom Vimdin is born on Riflor.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Qan Gindoche is born on Trafflin.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Yarr Gatonne is born on Bonadan.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Urno is born on Haruun Kal.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
- Nykli is born on Haruun Kal.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
- “Chance” Chancellor is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on Mission to Zila)*
*NOTE: He is 36 during the tale, set late in 8 ABY.
- Rees Vinder is born.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)
*NOTE: He is 28 in Friends Like These.
- Vera Beroya is born.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)
*NOTE: She is 28 in Friends Like These.
- Evun is born.*
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)
*NOTE: He is “in his late twenties” in Mask of the Pirate Queen, which is likely set shortly after ANH. I have rounded to him being 28 years old.
- TCW DATE: Ulsee Dijj is born to Groob and Prav Dijj on the Plunder Moon.
  (conjecture based on Curse of the Black Hole Pirates)
- Dal Perhi becomes a Black Sun Underlord.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)
- Several antitrust lawsuits begin to be filed against the Commerce Guild. They will languish in limbo until they are dismissed six years from now when the filing sectors secede from the Republic, giving up any legal right to file suit.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
- Gillam Tarturi’s mother, wife of Berm Tarturi, dies.
  (conjecture based on The School of Fear)
- Jedi Master Maks Leem first sees Whie Marleaux in a botany class when he is five years old.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- At the age of five, Whie Marleaux learns the Silent Meditation skill from Master Yoda.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)
- Around this time, Jax Pavan becomes the Padawan of Even Piell.*
  (conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)
*NOTE: This assumes that he was twelve at the time, as Obi-Wan was when chosen as a Padawan.
- Jorus C’Baoth is one of six Jedi Masters attached to the Outbound Flight Project, which will set out to explore beyond the galaxy the next year. C’Baoth was one of the major architects for getting funding for the project. (Exact date according to Old Senate Library entry: 7\/7\/65 P.E.)*
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising)
*NOTE: Please bear in mind that the exact date quoted here (7\/7\/65 P.E.) is Zahn’s erroneous dating based on when he believed the Clone Wars took place, and has thus been translated into a corrected date. It is included here for the sake of cross-referencing for those curious. See the “On P.E. Dating” notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology).
- Ros Lai, now a former Nightsister, self-publishes a memoir that will become the primary historical account of Quinlan Vos’ actions on Dathomir during the Infinity Gate mission.
  (conjecture based on Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)
- Adacap Zonsoe’s Blackshackle fleet is finally defeated by the rest of the Blazing Chain in an enormous battle. The Blazing Chain will require years to rebuild its strength.
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.
- Around this time, a Warlord leading Lakran troops takes over the planet Kariek, subjugating the Eickarie natives.
  (conjecture based on Fool’s Bargain)
- Around this time, Lira Hardin leaves her native planet of Gall to join the Republic Judicials. She spent nearly three decades involved with weapons or war in one way or another.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)
*NOTE: This is “close to thirty years” prior to Friends Like These, which I have rounded to about 28 - 29 years.
- During the Alderaan Ascendancy Contention, Jedi Jorus C’Baoth goes to Alderaan to help determine the correct succession for the position of Viceroy of Alderaan. After over a month, he and other Jedi determine that Bail Organa is the rightful heir. It is C’Baoth’s presence on Alderaan that convinces Halagad Ventor that he wants to grow up to be a Jedi himself.
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising, Darth Plagueis, Hard Targets, and SkyeWalkers)
*NOTE: Okay, this is a tricky one. The first exact date we were given is a P.E. (11/70 P.E.). See the “On P.E.
Dating" notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology). However, that would translate to around 33 BBY. The event is then referenced in Darth Plagueis in 32 BBY. It is then very shortly thereafter (in terms of publishing) referenced again very specifically in Agent of the Empire: Hard Targets, which puts the 25th anniversary of this event in 3 BBY. So, for now, it would seem that the situation is resolved in this year, though it could very well have been going on for several years before being resolved, thus allowing those other dates to remain at least partially accurate.

- Tol Ferin, Chandra-Fan vice president of Tangan Industries, begins administrating Menelath, the second largest city on Iol.*

  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This is 6 years prior to the Clone Wars.

- With the ascension of Bail Organa to the position of Viceroy on Alderaan (and his position as elected Senator for Alderaan in the Galactic Senate), the Corellian Engineering Corvette CR70 known as the Star of Alderaan (piloted by Captain Jeremoch Colton) is taken as his new consular vessel. The ship is renamed the Tantive IV as a tribute to visiting ambassadors from the Tantive system. (The planet Tantive IV is home to the Tantive Gallery of Progressive Arts, which is a sister gallery to Alderaan's Aldera Museum of Modern Expression.)*

  (conjecture based on Refresher Reading: 20 Things You Didn’t Know About the Tantive IV)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the Alderaan Ascendancy Contention was solved in 28 BBY, per Agent of the Empire: Hard Targets, rather than in 33 or 32 BBY, based on earlier sources.

- Obi-Wan Kenobi takes Anakin Skywalker to Ilum to get Ilum crystals to build his first real lightsaber. (Until now he has used a training one.) While inside a Force-imbued cave, Obi-Wan is forced to relive the memory of Qui-Gon Jinn’s death, and to look into his own fears of failing his Master by failing to train Anakin well. Anakin gathers crystals and faces a vision of Darth Maul, taunting him toward the Dark Side. During the vision, Maul tosses Anakin a lightsaber . . . and when the vision is over, the lightsaber remains. Anakin has built it, guided by the Force, and perhaps the Dark Side vision. The two Jedi are called to the Jedi Temple on Coruscant for a new mission. Supreme Chancellor Palpatine is also present while the Jedi Council tells them that they are to go help keep a Colicoid ship save from the pirate Krayn. Hopefully, a Jedi presence will act as a deterrent, but when Obi-Wan senses Anakin’s need to confront Krayn (based on memories of his mother in terror that he had buried six years earlier, but the cave had resurrected), he almost calls off the mission, but agrees, against his better judgment. Once aboard the Colicoid ship, they are soon attacked by Krayn anyway, and both Jedi manage to take a small shuttle to infiltrate Krayn’s ship in hopes of disabling it and saving the Colicoid vessel. Once aboard, they find slaves being held, but cannot free them at the moment. They disable the ship’s weapons, but are confronted by Krayn’s right-hand-woman, Zora. Obi-Wan knows she is actually his old friend Siri Tachi, whom he believes abandoned and betrayed the Jedi. Before he can truly confront her, he is forced to launch in their escape craft, leaving Anakin, who has shown that he wishes to kill Krayn, behind. Obi-Wan returns to Coruscant and talks to Didi and Astri Oddo, then their contact Gogol, and learns that Krayn is basically in charge of the slave trade and spice manufacturing factories on Nar Shaddaa, which should be led by the moon’s ruler, Aga Culpa, but he’s struck a protection deal with Krayn. The Colicoids, on the other hand, control spice mining on Kessel. The Colicoids and Krayn are in league together to create a monopoly of the spice trade, using slaves from Krayn’s monopoly of spice slaves. Aga Culpa gains as Nar Shaddaa becomes richer. Obi-Wan goes to the Jedi Council and confronts them with his suspicion that Siri hasn’t betrayed the Jedi. The Council confirms this, telling him that she was “disgraced” in order to allow her to infiltrate Krayn’s operation to help take it down. The Council grants Obi-Wan’s request to join her on Nar Shaddaa. On Nar Shaddaa, Anakin has again been made a slave, but his identity has been protected by Siri. He still believes Siri is a traitor, though. Anakin makes a friend in fellow slave Mazie, whose daughter, Berri, is also a slave. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan, under the guise of slave trader Bakleeda, is allowed to visit Nar Shaddaa as an “independent observer” for the Colicoids. Upon arrival, he is nearly killed by Krayn’s Wookiee companion, Rashitah, but he kills the brute. Elsewhere, Anakin learns that Mazie and Berri were captured from Tatooine ten years earlier, and they knew Hala, Amee’s captured mother, and confirms that she was killed to set an example. Anakin vows to escape and destroy Krayn. Siri takes him aside for a bit, but he confronts her about betraying the Jedi, which Krayn overhears. Both are imprisoned in the same cell, but while in the cell, they form a plan. Anakin will work with Mazie and Berri to stage a slave revolt while Siri goes to Aga Culpa to convince him that Krayn is losing control of the slaves, which will be aided by the revolt as evidence, to get Culpa to tell his guards not to stop the revolt. She will then go to the Colicoids to convince them that they can be better off without Krayn, which will leave him abandoned. When Berri brings them their food, they send her off to get their lightsabers. When she returns, the two break out. Anakin works with Mazie to set up the revolt. Siri goes to Aga Culpa and he agrees to tell his guards to back off. Siri then meets with Colicoid leader Nor Fik, even as Fik was meeting with “Bakleeda.” When the revolt begins with a bang, the Colicoids see Siri’s point. Obi-Wan recognizes Siri and the two reunite, heading to the slave areas. They know that Krayn will try to escape and race to his landing platform. Anakin has beat them there, though, and is confronting Krayn. With a look of hatred, and drawing most likely upon his anger than a sense of real justice, Anakin strikes Krayn down. In the wake of the battle, the slaves are freed, and the Colicoids, part of the Republic, take full control of Nar Shaddaa, which allows the Republic to move into the spice factories to rebuild Nar Shaddaa, which may just be another part in Supreme Chancellor Palpatine’s (or should I say Darth Sidious?) moves for more power. Siri is welcomed back into the Jedi, and they all return for home, but once again Obi-Wan has seen Anakin treading dangerously close to the Dark Side.*

(Path to Truth and Jedi Quest)*

*NOTE: This reflects events in both the novel and the comic, which detail the same story. Both are C-Canon.

- Following Anakin Skywalker's first mission (against Krayn), Siri Tachi submits a report on the mission, along with a statement in support of Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin. (To be continued below . . . )

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

- Anakin Skywalker and Tiplee are on their way to Jedi Master Tera Sinube’s class when Anakin begins sensing something “dark” at the Jedi Temple. During the class, he has a vision of being choked by something that is hissing, but no one else senses it or any darkness. That night, he slips out of his room to go to the Jedi Council chamber, where he has sensed the darkness. Once there, shadows merge together into a creature that attacks him, taunting him with comments about future failure and his inability to resist. He is finally able to defeat the shadow creature (and save younglings that were hiding in the room) when he draws upon his memories of Padmé Amidala, briefly touching her in the Force. As the creature disappears, Obi-Wan Kenobi enters, alerted by Tiplee, who saw Anakin leave his room and followed. Neither Tiplee nor Obi-Wan saw anything in the room, and there are no younglings present. It appears that Anakin was having a vision. Once he is safely in bed, Obi-Wan confers with Yoda, who believes that Anakin will understand the meaning of his vision in time.*

(Temple of Phantoms)*

*NOTE: We have no real sense of when this story takes place, other than that Anakin is still training at the Jedi Temple and is relatively young. Given that he uses a lightsaber in this story, I have put it right here, soon after Jedi Quest: Path to Truth. If it is meant to be a training lightsaber, this could be earlier.

- Around this time, Didi and Astri Oddo sell their diner to Dexter Jettster, who has come to Coruscant to comfort a sick relative and sees this as his chance to go legit.

(conjecture based on Galactic Power Brokers)

- Jorj Car’das signs on with Dubrak Qennto’s Bargain Hunter.

(conjecture based on Outbound Flight)

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest [continued] (comic series: Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest, Part I (comic: Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)

Path to Truth [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 – 4

Anakin’s Quest [flashback]*
The Vision [flashback]*

*NOTE: These sections adapt Anakin’s search for his lightsaber crystal in Jedi Quest and Path to Truth.

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
- Jedi Quest [continued] (comic series: Ryder Windham)
  - Jedi Quest, Part II [continued] (comic: Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
- Path to Truth [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Chapters 5 – 9

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
- Jedi Quest [continued] (comic series: Ryder Windham)
  - Jedi Quest, Part III [continued] (comic: Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
- Path to Truth [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Chapters 10 – 16

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
- Jedi Quest [continued] (comic series: Ryder Windham)
  - Jedi Quest, Part IV (comic: Ryder Windham)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
- Path to Truth [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  - Chapters 17 – 20

Epilogue

“Jedi Quest Roleplaying Game Scenario” (canceled RPG book: Unknown)*

“Jedi Quest Roleplaying Game Scenario” (canceled RPG book: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This short article never came to be, and the story of its cancellation appears in The Essential Reader's Companion. Consider it historical curiosity.

“Jedi Quest Interactive Comic” (canceled comic: Unknown)*

“Jedi Quest Interactive Comic” (canceled comic: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This short article never came to be, and the story of its cancellation appears in The Essential Reader's Companion. Consider it historical curiosity.

“Jedi Quest Audio Drama” (canceled audio drama: Unknown)*

“Jedi Quest Audio Drama” (canceled audio drama: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This short article never came to be, and the story of its cancellation appears in The Essential Reader's Companion. Consider it historical curiosity.

- The Chosen One [continued]
  - First Mission

Star Wars Magazine Comics (comic series: Rik Hoskin & Mike Barr & Martin Fisher & Chris Cooper & Robin Etherington)
- Temple of Phantoms (SWMUS2 comic: Chris Cooper)

27 BBY

- Conan Antonio Motti is born.
  (conjecture based on actor Richard Le Parmentier’s age at the time A New Hope was filmed)

- Lune Oddo Divinian is born to Astri Oddo Divinian and Bog Divinian.
  (conjecture based on The False Peace)

- Halla Ettyk is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on The Krytos Trap)

- TCW DATE: Shaeeah is born to Suu on Saleucami. While little is known about her father, she will eventually be the stepdaughter of clonetrooper Cut Lawquane.
  (conjecture based on The Deserter)

- Slar-dan Ti Gardi is born on Ryloth.
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

- Hyzhan Troo is born.*
  (conjecture based on Perlemian Haul)*
*NOTE: She is in her “late twenties” in the adventure.
- Sarin Virgilio is born on Masterra.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
- Pratari Cinn is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Samire Mandel is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 9: Fragments from the Rim)
- Resik is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Fulkrehm Protial is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- A second batch of Jango Fett clones, numbering one million this time, is created on Kamino. The first batch, meanwhile, is now five years old, but appear to be ten.
  (conjecture based Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones”)
- Gallandro becomes a hitman.
  (conjecture based on Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook)
- Vistal Purn, age 12, begins ferrying clients back and forth to his family’s home on Generis.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- After just under three years with the Customs Security forces on Naboo, Dane leaves to become a soldier of fortune.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Dane, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)
- Ygabba, the daughter of Gab’borah Hise, is kidnapped by Gilramos Likbath.
  (conjecture based on Hunted)
- Reija Momen becomes the head of the Intergalactic Communications Center on Praesitlyn.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Trial)
- TCW DATE: A group of Lurmen who follow the pacifistic code of Te Padka leave Mygeeto and settle on Maridun.*
  (conjecture based on The Clone Wars: The Official Episode Guide: Season 1)*
  *NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This is “several years” before the Battle of Geonosis, which I have rounded to 5 years.
- Kinman Doriana becomes an advisor to (and agent of) Supreme Chancellor Palpatine.
  (conjecture based on Outbound Flight)
- Kalebb Orn begins working on Mechis III.
  (conjecture based on Therefore I am: The Tale of IG-88)
- After five years of dwindling sales, Corellian Engineering Corporation ceases production of the YT-1760.*
  (conjecture based on Far Horizons)*
  *NOTE: Far Horizons claims that this is a result, in part, of the introduction of the YT-1300 line, but that makes no sense whatsoever with all of the source material that we have that puts the YT-1300 line launching decades before this. One might think that would mean that this vessel’s dates should be shifted back to where the YT-1300’s dates are, but two sources specifically put the introduction of the YT-1760 around 30 years prior to ANH (either in the year of TPM or two years after, depending on the source). Thus, I am assuming it is simply an error and not including a reference to the YT-1300 in the event listed here.
- Shmi Skywalker is sold by Watto to Cliegg Lars. Shmi and Cliegg had met at Watto’s, and they had begun courting shortly thereafter. They use Cliegg’s son, Owen Lars, to help convince Watto to get an old needle ship ready to sell him. Unfortunately, it requires a Tobal lens, which is very rare, but just happens to be a lovely-looking gift that Qui-Gon Jinn sent to her shortly before Anakin Skywalker was tested for Jedi potential. The trade for the lens is Shmi, and Watto agrees, knowing he can make a bundle if he can sell the ship. Of course, Owen never buys it, but it allows Cliegg to purchase Shmi (so he can set her free and be with her) for real, finally. Oddly, Watto admits that he had turned off Shmi’s explosive control mechanism ages ago, so she was always free to leave, but hadn’t even tried. Later, Shmi puts dull coverings onto C-3PO to finish her son Anakin Skywalker's work on him, as a way of accepting that both he and she are where they belong. Shmi and Clegg are married, making Clegg's son, Owen Lars, Shmi's stepson and Anakin Skywalker's stepbrother.
(conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode II—"Attack of the Clones" and Tatooine Ghost)

- Brathe Winger dies while serving in the military.
(conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb's website)
- The Ungasan Cross Country Podracing event is revealed to be a front for a Corporate Sector Authority mining operation. Podracer Elan Mak is revealed to be crime lord Kam Nale.
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
- Lasro Javeq joins Xizor Fleet Systems and, according to some reports, begins embezzling from the company.
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
- The ORO waste pipeline on Lamaredd begins to threaten the Menahuun's ecosystem. They begin plans to take back their world, or at least their ecosystem, from the settlers of Bartyn's Landing.
(conjecture based on Reckonings)
- In the era prior to the Clone Wars, Arakyd Industries develops the Accelerated Charged Particle repeater gun as a weapon for urban and close combat firefights.*
(conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)*

*NOTE: This is an approximation from the weapon being designed "prior to the Clone Wars," which is pretty ambiguous.

- The Corellian security starship Bright Blast, tasked with hunting down pirates, is only in operation for a few years when a group of pirates trap the ship at Raxus Prime and take it over. They use it to run blockades, calling it the Blockade Bandit, until they are discovered on Raxus Prime and the ship is damaged, causing it to crash land. The pirates abandon the ship to later be discovered by Reom of IsoTech in the years after the Clone Wars.*
(conjecture based on Beyond the Rim)*

*NOTE: This is sometime before the Clone Wars, but the game references the ship running Republic and Trade Federation blockades, which suggests that it is in the era between TPM and AOTC, when the Trade Federation is still around and has been using blockade tactics since at least the Battle of Naboo.

- TCW DATE: When at least three bounties that were being hunted by the Bounty Hunters Guild end up being collected instead by an independent bounty hunter, Cradossk is outraged. However, when he looks into matters, he finds that these bounties had been posted for over a year but never collected due to being so difficult a challenge. He further learns that each bounty was from the Hutt Cartel. He pulls some strings to determine the independent bounty hunter's name and learns that it was Cad Bane. According to Cradossk, he then arranges a meeting with Bane on Ord Mantell to discuss having Bane join the Bounty Hunters Guild, but they agree to part ways amicably. According to Cade Bane (as told to Boba Fett while they were both in prison together during the Clone Wars, Cradossk actually tried to trap and kill Bane, but he failed. Bane could have killed him, but he instead lets Cradossk go for "professional reasons."
(conjecture based on Making a Killing)*

*NOTE: This is sometime before the Clone Wars, but we have no further indication of when it takes place.

- Jedi Knights make their first visit to the Sepan Sector to negotiate for peace in the war between Dimok and Ripoblus.
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
- Sometime during the latter years of the Old Republic, the Republic's Science and Culture Administration announces an open contract for a company to design a land-based mobile research center. The Hyrotii Corporation wins the bid and designs the Mobile Recon/Research Vehicle.*
(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.

- Sometime during the latter years of the Old Republic, the Jumpmaster 5000 (or JM-5K) is designed.*
(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.

- A few years before the Clone Wars, Corellian Engineering Corporation releases the Starbolt assault carrier, sold mostly to mercenary units and planetary defense forces.
(conjecture based on Dangerous Covenants)

- Sometime during the decade leading up to the Clone Wars, Commerce Guild president Shu Mai purchases hundreds of Arakyd Spelunker droids for her exploration division. She soon realizes that they would make great minelayers, so she has them adapted to include, among other things, an illusory camouflage screen. These new modified spy and sabotage droids come to be known as chameleon droids. They will see their first major combat use on Ilum during the Clone Wars.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- Ferus Olin becomes Siri Tachi’s Padawan Learner. He will gain quite a bit of experience between now and the Radnor crisis.*
(conjecture based on The Way of the Apprentice)*

*NOTE: This is a tough one. Ferus obviously becomes Padawan after Siri drops her cover from Jedi Quest: Path to Truth, but Ferus sounds far more experienced than the other Padawan. See the entry regarding his Padawan status at 32 – 31.9 BBY for further info.

- Tru Veld becomes Ry-Gaul’s Padawan Learner. He will be able to go on a few missions before the Radnor crisis.
(conjecture based on The Way of the Apprentice)

- Darra Thel-Tanis becomes Soara Antana’s Padawan Learner. The upcoming Radnor crisis will be her first mission.
(conjecture based on The Way of the Apprentice)

- On the day of the Comet Run Podrace in Mos Espa on Tatooine, Dannar Calwell stops during a run to buy fleek eels in Mos Eisley to help a fellow settler whose speeder is having trouble. They are attacked by Tusken Raiders, who kill Dannar, leaving his widow, Annileen Calwell, and their two children, Jabe and Kallie, to run Dannar’s Claim in the Pika Oasis. Because this is an annual race, and people clear out of Dannar’s Claim to go see the race each year, Annileen will spend most anniversaries of his death alone, until the eight years from now. Tar Lup returns to Dannar’s Claim for a short time, having left a while back to start his own business elsewhere, in order to help Annileen keep the business running while she grieves. To help her deal with the death of her father, Kallie (age 9) spends much of her time tending to the animals at Dannar’s Claim, prompting Annileen to allow her to become the Claim’s primary animal tender.
(conjecture based on Kenobi)

- In the bowels of Coruscant, Padawan Anakin Skywalker (age 14) and Padawan Tru Veld are vying for the same motivator circuit board, while out against instructions, when they are set upon by Manikons. They make it back to the Temple safely, and Tru covers for Anakin. It seems Anakin is making his first real friend at the Jedi Temple. The next morning, the Jedi Council calls four Jedi/Padawan teams together: Obi-Wan and Anakin; Ry-Gaul and Tru; Soara Antana and Darra Thel-Tanis; and Siri Tachi and Ferus Olin. They are to travel to Radnor to organize an evacuation. Radnor is divided into two major cities, Tacto and Aubendo. The former is now the Clear Sector, and the latter is the Isolation Sector, in the wake of a strange toxin that was released into the air and carried directly into Aubendo. The origin of the toxin is not known, but people struck by the toxin in the Isolation Sector are dying rapidly, and the winds will soon change, most likely carrying the toxin to the Clear Sector (Tacto). In response, the people of Tacto are prone to rioting, many officials have fled, and a Republic task force is on its way to evacuate the survivors from the Clear Sector. The Jedi are to go maintain order and make way for the evacuation. They will also, most importantly, carry medicines bound for the Isolation Sector. They set out immediately. Upon arrival in the Clear Sector, they meet Galen, the man heading up the evacuation, and are soon required to take on Battle Droids that are covering looters. The four Masters decide to go into the Isolation Sector, while the Padawans remain behind to help the wounded from the looting and coordinate protection from those looters. Once in the Isolation Sector in their bio-iso suits, the Masters meet Curi, Galen’s sister, who tells them two bits of disturbing news. First, it was Galen and Curi’s lab, where a bioweapon was being developed, that was the source of the toxin’s release. Second, now that they have entered the Isolation Sector, the Masters cannot return to the Clear Sector. The Padawans are on their own. Speaking of the Padawans, tension is growing in their group. Darra is acting as a mediator, while Tru is being pulled in a tug of war between the two dominant personalities of Ferus and Anakin, who act as rivals. Anakin comes up with a plan for them to capture a Battle Droid and use its homing beacon to find the other droids and the looters. They do so, and they discover the droids and the looters, but are discovered themselves. Before escaping, though, the Padawans learn that the looters are waiting for someone to show up and help them take their loot from the planet, safely. After the looters take off, they check out the building, finding a holofile that is marked for the Emergency Command Center. Someone on the inside is helping the looters and perhaps their mysterious pick-up allies. Back in the Isolation Sector, Obi-Wan meets with Dol Heep, an Avoni official who was in the zone (but protected by a bio-iso suit) when the toxin hit. He offers to provide ships from Avon to evacuate the populace, but Obi-Wan is wary, since he knows that the Avoni are aggressive colonizers, who may be planning something devious. The Padawans go to the ECC to speak with Galen, and as they are there, they learn that the Senate ships have been delayed (sabotage, it seems upon later investigation), which means the world will have to turn to the Avoni for help. Meanwhile, the Masters discover a man named Wilk who entered the Isolation Sector to find his wife, but isn't infected by whatever the toxin is. At the same time, the Padawans discover that communication problems on the planet are not caused by the planet's comm network. There's jamming involved, and a communication disruption can mean only one thing—invasion. (I guess it can't mean someone's just screwing with you for shits and giggles in the Star Wars universe. Talk about pessimism, y'know?!) In the Isolation Sector, Avoni ships have landed, but no solution to Wilk's immunity has been found. They learn, though, from Curi, that there's a chance that the accident wasn't an accident. There are files missing from the research that leads her to believe that Galen knew what was going on. They check out the Avoni ships, discovering that they bear Battle Droids of the same model as those used by the looters. Upon returning to Curi's home base, they realize that the toxin is no longer spreading, just killing those already afflicted, which explains Wilk's "immunity." The Jedi and Curi can remove their suits and make their way back to the Clear Sector. They also believe that the Avoni are planning to take over the planet. It seems Galen and Curi were supposed to sell the exclusive rights to the toxin weapon to Dol Heep, but Curi had moral problems with it, so they decided not to, despite Galen's desires. Now, the Avoni seem to be trying to take the world otherwise, while helping the looters, who are helping cause dissent and desperation, so that people will turn to the Avoni. The only question is how deeply Galen is involved. In the Clear Sector, the Padawans have pieced this together based on the fact that the droids are prototypes from another of Galen and Curi's labs, and the lapses that had them stolen and the toxin released are far too coincidental. They catch Ruuin, one of the looter's contacts, and discover coordinates for the landing zone of the Avoni ship coming for the raiders. As the Masters race toward Tacto in airspeeders, they are pursued by an MTT carrying Battle Droids. Meanwhile, the Padawans confront Galen with their accusations and he admits his involvement in helping the Avoni to take over. Curi has arrived and hears this. She then tells the Padawans that their Masters are probably in danger en route. The Padawans race to their rescue, with Anakin and Tru taking over the MTT and ramming through a sheer wall to save their Masters from Battle Droids, while Darra and Ferus come to the Masters' aid in the interim. Later, Curi gets the full story from Galen. When they refused weapon rights to Dol Heep, he had threatened to destroy their business, then during a tour, he had released the toxin. Galen thought he was saving his people, but he was blinded by his own self-interest from the true Avoni plans. As for the planet, rebuilding is ahead, but the conflict that arose from the toxin shows that the world is torn apart by greed and self-interest already. As for Anakin, he has supposedly learned to submit to act as a teammate with others, but Ferus knows better. He'll be keeping an eye on Anakin . . .*

(The Way of the Apprentice)

NOTE: The Essential Reader's Companion lists this story as being in 27 BBY, which uses Anakin's age of 9 in TPM as its basis, rather than his age of 20 in AOTC. This puts it into the early part of this year.

- A few years after the Battle of Naboo, Arakyd Industries releases the Prowler 1000 Exploration Droid. Quite a few are sold to the Republic.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• Several years after Sienar Design Systems was closed, Raith Sienar opens Sienar Advanced Projects, which is basically the same thing under a new name.*
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

*NOTE: I have rounded "several years" to five years after TPM.

• On the run from the Hutt pirate Progga, the smuggling vessel Bargain Hunter (carrying its captain, Dubrak Qennto, plus Maris Ferasi and Jorj Car’das) comes under attack, forcing them to make a jump into the Unknown Regions, where they are saved from Progga by ships from the mysterious Chiss Ascendancy, under the command of Chiss Commander Mitth’raw’nuruodo (Thrawn). They are taken aboard Thrawn’s Springhawk. Over the course of several weeks, they are brought back to a nearby Chiss base, explain aspects of the Republic to Thrawn, and (except for Qennto) begin learning the basics of Chiss society and language. They are, in essence, both prisoners and guests of the Ascendancy. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, egotistical and brash Jedi Master Jorus C’Baoth and his Padawan, Lorana Jinzler, learn that C’Baoth’s “baby,” the so-called Outbound Flight Project that was developed as a mission to explore beyond the galaxy, is in danger of major funding cuts that might scuttle the project. C’Baoth demands that Supreme Chancellor Palpatine do something about this, and Palpatine’s new aide, Kinman Doriana, suggests that successfully dealing with a mining dispute on Barlok might help get C’Baoth enough publicity to get the Senate Appropriations Committee to give him what he needs for Outbound Flight. Unbeknownst to C’Baoth, Doriana is in the thrall of Sith Lord Darth Sidious, whom he doesn’t realize is Palpatine. Doriana is sent to Barlok to work with local rebels to kill the delegates of an upcoming meeting to work out the mining situation. C’Baoth and Lorana are sent to Barlok with Jedi Knight Obi-Wan Kenobi and his 14-year-old Padawan, Anakin Skywalker, to assist them. As C’Baoth deals with official meetings, the other three uncover a plot to attack the delegates, but they are too late to stop it. A missile is fired at the delegation, only to be stopped in a dramatic move by C’Baoth, to halts the missile in mid-air just as it is about to strike its target. C’Baoth dictates terms of a compromise, forcing the issue, and is hailed as a hero for his actions. Sidious’ plans have worked. Outbound Flight will proceed, and C’Baoth will get to have several Jedi “troublemakers” aboard, so that when the mission is destroyed by Doriana and Trade Federation battleships, several impediments to Sidious’ plans will be killed along with it. Back in the Crustai system (in Chiss space), the Springhawk comes upon the nomadic, vicious Vaagari, who have enslaved other races (including the Geroons) and use living beings as shields by placing them in small pod-like sections on the outer layers of their ships. Seeing them as a potential threat, Thrawn goes against what would be the normal Chiss mandates and attacks them, capturing a Vaagari treasure ship, which calms Qennto, who is fascinated with the idea of getting some of the treasure. For their part, Maris and Jorj are less intrigued, but Maris is developing a romantic interest in Thrawn and Jorj is learning many new things, so there’s no race to get back to the Republic just yet. Upon returning to Thrawn’s base, they are quickly met by newly-arrived Aristocra Cha’form bintrano of the Fifth Ruling Family (Fombi), who is somewhat unhappy with Thrawn’s guests. They are soon also joined by Admiral Ar’alani and Commander, also unhappy with Thrawn, along with Syndic Mitth’ras’ safis (Thrass), Thrawn’s brother. Back on Coruscant, the Outbound Flight Project is in preparations for its mission, under the care of technicians like Chas Uliar and Brace Tarkosa. They have been assigned a total of six Jedi Masters (including Justyn Ma’Ning) and eleven Jedi Knights (for a total of 17 Jedi) for the mission. The Jedi Council asks Obi-Wan to go along, taking Anakin with him. They are to keep an eye on the somewhat erratic C’Baoth. With the knowledge that Lorana, now promoted to Jedi Knight, will join them as well, that brings the Jedi total to twenty, along with the 50,000 colonists and a crew under Mon Calamari Captain Pakmillu. (Obi-Wan and Anakin, though, will be leaving before the project vessel, a central supply core surrounded by six dreadnaughts, leaves Known Space, and are there ostensibly to help look for traces of the missing Jedi Vergere, who we know was taken out of the galaxy by the Yuuzhan Vong AKA “Far Outsiders”) Back in the Unknown Regions, Thrawn lays the seeds of the idea that Jorj could be a spy, much to his dismay, but it will help them all later. He also leads the Springhawk into the middle of a battle involving the Vaagari, saving their intended victims, but also managing to secure a Vaagari “gravity projector” (an early precursor to Interdictor technology) that keeps their victims blocked from entering.
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

hyperspace. Soon, the Outbound Flight Project launches, carrying its massive crew and Jedi contingent, including Lorana, who has just learned that one of the men helping with the project (but not going with it) was her own brother, Dean Jinzler, whom she had never met, having been taking for Jedi training as she was. Meanwhile, a force of Trade Federation ships under Vicelord Siv Kav and Kinman Doriana (under the name of “Commander Stratis”) takes off under orders from Darth Sidious to set up an ambush to destroy Outbound Flight. Once Outbound Flight is away, Obi-Wan and Anakin learn some surprising news. Many of the colonist families aboard were chosen because their families have Force-attunement of different levels. C'Baath intends to make Jedi training mandatory for Force-sensitive children to set up a Jedi training facility within the core ship in order to develop a new group of Jedi from older candidates (like Anakin, rather than like normal infant candidates) under his somewhat less than subtle direction. This immediately starts rumblings of dissent throughout the colonists and crew, who don’t like the idea of having their children taken from them. The situation slowly gets worse, as C'Baath’s Jedi dictates begin completely taking over the project, making him, in essence, the Outbound Flight’s dictator. The Jedi are also split on the issue, but with C'Baath in charge, few are willing to stand up to him, and he seems to have a logical answer for everything. Later, the Springhawk and Thrawn’s Chiss Expansionary Defense Force contingent discover Doriana’s battleships lying in wait for Outbound Flight. When Thrawn tries to determine their purpose, the Trade Federation vessels strike first, prompting Thrawn to swiftly kick their asses quite soundly. Much to Kav’s annoyance, Doriana (again, as “Stratis”) allows them to be taken by the Chiss. He knows that their ability to destroy Outbound Flight is now gone, so he sets about trying to convince Thrawn to help them do the job. This comes in a most unexpected way. Doriana tells Thrawn about the threat of the “Far Outsiders” (the Yuuzhan Vong) that have been reported from Zonama Sekot. Doriana’s master (Sidious) knows that the threat is very real, and a Republic vessel like Outbound Flight with its Jedi aboard cannot be allowed to leave the galaxy and possibly make contact with these aliens, as it might prompt the Yuuzhan Vong to attack the galaxy before Sidious has been able to craft it into a strong Galactic Empire that would have a chance to actually defeat the Vong threat. (Kind of makes you wonder if Palpatine was partially on the right track on some things, doesn’t it?) Knowing that the Vong would also end up in Chiss space at some point, he paints Outbound Flight’s mission as a very real threat to the Chiss Ascendancy. Unfortunately, even as Thrawn has Darkvenge, the lead Trade Federation ship, moved to another location, safe from prying Chiss eyes, Admiral Ar’alani has the loot from the Vaagari ship locked down, forcing the humans to remain if they want to get enough extra loot to make up for their late smuggling mission (thereby saving their lives when they see their employers) and they learn that Thrawn is going to be held accountable for the Vaagari incidents. (Thrass is actually trying to look after his brother, as is the admiral, trying to find a way to allow Thrawn to eliminate the potential threat without bringing dishonor upon his family or the Chiss military forces.) En route to its extragalactic voyage, Outbound Flight is contacted by Palpatine, who convinces Obi-Wan (and Palpatine’s future Sith Apprentice Anakin) to leave on another mission, leaving Outbound Flight without much to counterbalance C'Baath’s influence but saving Anakin from its imminent destruction. Back in Chiss space, Jorj is made to believe that with Thrawn in trouble, the humans will be too. He steals a shuttle and heads back to the Vaagari fleet, where he is taken aboard to offer the Vaagari Miskara (leader) a deal. He hands over several captured Trade Federation battledroids (and droidekas) to the Vaagari, explaining how they work. He also offers them information to find Thrawn’s base and attack it. Meanwhile, Thrawn and Doriana use the captured gravity projector to lay a trap for Outbound Flight. The device pulls the Republic ship out of hyperspace, allowing Thrawn to go aboard, explain his intentions (basically “I won’t let you bring harm upon us by making contact with these extragalactic aliens by accident, so stop or be destroyed.”). C'Baath refuses to end the mission, sending Thrawn away. Just then, the Vaagari are also pulled from hyperspace, ending with all three factions (Chiss, Republic, and Vaagari) in one place. When the Vaagari order Outbound Flight to surrender (so that they can steal their droids and such), C'Baath (amid his own crisis of a near mutiny from the regular humans aboard) orders a Jedi battle meld to confuse and stop the Vaagari. Even as he does so, making the Vaagari fighting force less effective, Thrawn launches the Trade Federation droid starfighters against the Vaagari (angering Dorian, who had them there to go after Outbound Flight itself). On the bridge of the lead Vaagari ship, Thrawn’s plan goes into action. Jorj’s “defection” was a ruse to lure in the Vaagari and to get several droids onto the Vaagari bridge, where they now activate and kill the Vaagari leadership. The Vaagari are soundly defeated, but as they are being wiped out left and right, Thrawn orders the Springhawk to strike Outbound Flight, crippling the ship. He gives them one last chance to turn back, but C’Booth, enraged, turns to the Dark Side and uses the Force to choke Thrawn from vessel to vessel. The droid starfighters turn their “attention” to Outbound Flight, though, causing extensive damage and deaths, including C’Booth, saving Thrawn from death. In the aftermath of the battle, the Chiss board the Vaagari vessels and wipe them out, saving Jorj in the process. Aboard Outbound Flight, thousands are dead, but Lorana has been able to get a few survivors into the core, saving them from certain death. Soon, Jorj learns that the Chiss Ruling Families are likely to arrest Thrawn, so he and Thrass race for Outbound Flight, where Thrawn and Ar’alani are surveying the damaged vessels. The Chiss will want Outbound Flight, but any family in control of such technology could throw off the delicate balance of power in the Ascendancy. When Formbi orders Thrawn to be brought to his ship, the Chat Exalted, Ar’alani must obey, so Thrawn and his forces leave Outbound Flight, but Jorj and Thrass stay behind, not under orders, to sneak the ship away to be hidden for safekeeping. As Outbound Flight escapes (weakly), Thrawn, Ar’alani, and Lorana are brought to Formbi. Aboard Outbound Flight, Lorana heads to the main dreadnought bridge alone in order to see if she can save everyone, only to find Thrass and Jorj. They convince her that they can take her and the survivors to a safe place, then arrange for them to eventually return to the Republic, which is certainly better than death aboard a doomed ship. They’ll need someone to speak for them, though, which would be Jorj. They have him take the ship that would’ve been there for Obi-Wan and Anakin to leave with (if they hadn’t left under different circumstances) to head back to Thrawn’s base, while Thrass and Lorana pilot the craft. Elsewhere, Thrawn is exonerated in what has happened through sheer logic, and he uses the gravity projector as a bargaining chip to earn himself some extra favor. Upon leaving and reuniting with Kaw, though, the Neimoidian tries to kill Thrawn, only to end up killing himself, thanks to a reverse force field of Chiss design. Dorian had intended to kill Thrawn as well in order to keep the Outbound Flight massacre a secret, but after seeing Thrawn’s absolute brilliance, he knows that the alien might someday be of use to Darth Sidious. Finally, as things draw to a close, Dorian hires Jorj to help doing some secretive transport (smuggling at times) work for the Republic, and Thrawn is warned not to cross any more lines or he might end up being exiled. As for Outbound Flight, Thrass and Lorana aren’t able to get it to a habitable planet, but they are able to land it on a big hunk of rock, which at least stabilizes it for the time being. Lorana and Thrass both die in the crash landing, but at least the survivors in the core will be able to reach out, repair parts of the ship, and live out their lives away from the Jedi tyranny of Jorus C’Baoth. (Exact date according to Old Senate Library entry: 41:164 P.E.)*

(Outbound Flight)

*NOTE: Please bear in mind that the exact date quoted here is Zahn’s erroneous dating based on when he believed the Clone Wars took place, and has thus been translated into a corrected date. It is included here for the sake of cross-referencing for those curious. It should be noted that Zahn often says “fifty years ago” in Survivor’s Quest when referring to the OFP, but it is often also noted as “fifty-odd years ago.” 50 years before SQ would put the OFP at 28 BBY, which is a year later than this date of 27 BBY, as given in both The New Essential Chronology and Outbound Flight. See the “On P.E. Dating” notation above (which has been updated since the publication of The New Essential Chronology and release of Outbound Flight).

• Shortly after the destruction of the Outbound Flight Project, Jedi Knight Everen Ettene and Padawan Halagad Ventor are assigned to lead an aggressive investigation into the incident. It is during this investigation that Halagad meets Anakin Skywalker.

(conjecture based on SkyeWalkers)

• The Chiss Ascendancy begins preparing the Redoubt as a fallback position in case of a major defeat.*

(conjecture based on Survivor’s Quest)*

*NOTE: This is said to have taken place about 50 years before SQ, but given that it seems to be linked to the events of the Outbound Flight Project, I put it here after that listing, which is also often referred to by a rounded “fifty years ago.”
• Shortly after the destruction of the Outbound Flight Project, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine reveals his Sith identity as Darth Sidious to his right-hand being, Mas Amedda, along with the fact that he ordered the ship destroyed. Amedda, with full knowledge now, pledges his loyalty to Darth Sidious and his cause.
  (conjecture based on The Strangers Among Us)
• Five years after originally meeting on Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi and his 14-year-old Padawan Anakin Skywalker go to Ragoon-6 for a training exercise in the same fashion as the exercises Obi-Wan went on as Qui-Gon Jinn’s Padawan. They land with the Jedi Master Wren, who will leave a trail for them. Their goal is to hunt him down, and Anakin promises to do so in a day’s time. Wren sets out, and once the other two begin following him, they make good time, but end up facing obstacles such as hungry malias. As the hints lead them into greater dangers, far more dangerous than Wren might’ve actually given them, they come across a young girl, Floria, who says that her companions have been killed and their ship burned. The Jedi decide to help her, intending to regroup with Wren, get back to their ship, and get up to the ship to Aaeton that Floria says is in orbit. They begin to believe that Wren is in trouble, then they come under attack by a Tursha bounty hunter using a spray stick. It sounds like he is after Floria, but they’ll later realize he was there for the Jedi. They discover the Tursha’s ship, but a sleeper bomb destroys it. It is only then that another figure appears, and it is revealed that Floria is a bounty hunter too. The other figure is her brother, Dane. The Jedi are somewhat amused at their lack of proficiency, but they give useful information. They and four other hunters (the Tursha, Mol Arcasite, Teleq, and Hunti Pereg) were hired by the rich and mysterious Granta Omega to capture Obi-Wan and Anakin. The four are attacked by Mol, but take out her ship, forcing her to escape on a sweep, giving up. That leaves three more hunters. They follow the clues left by “Wren” into an obvious trap, but once in the trap, they save Wren from Teleq and even lead Teleq into a bird nest that gets him . . . otherwise occupied. They try to use Teleq’s ship, but Dane and Floria have already sabotaged it. They leave Wren in the safety of the ship and return to the Tursha hunter, hoping to use him for information to get a ship they can use to escape, but the hunter is dead. He’s been killed, most likely by Mol, so that Mol could steal his ship and get off the planet. That leaves only Hunti Pereg and his ship to get them offworld, unless they call down Granta Omega. They head up the mountain to where they set up a meeting with Omega. On the way, they find a being paralyzed temporarily. He identifies himself as Hunti, and they others continue on their way. Omega never arrives, though, and they soon come under attack by another bounty hunter. Upon capture, the hunter allows himself to be engulfed and killed by a thermal pool, believing that his fate at his employer’s hands would be worse. Obi-Wan realizes that the dead hunter was Hunti, and the man on the trail was actually Omega, who must have suspected that the Jedi were going to pretend to be captured by Floria and Dane to trick him. They take Hunti’s ship, and land nearby. Hunti had said that Omega gained his power from “the pyramid itself,” reminding Obi-Wan of the Sith holocron from Kodai. He searches the area and discovers a pyramidal Sith artifact. Anakin is unusually drawn to it. They will take it back to the Jedi Temple. They take Wren, Floria, and Dane and go back to Coruscant. The two bounty hunters will enter foster care for rehabilitation, and Wren will be treated at the Temple. After turning over the artifact to the Temple, Obi-Wan and Anakin share a moment at Dexter Jettster’s diner. Anakin understands better that there are things he cannot expect Obi-Wan to be totally open about, while Obi-Wan accepts that his relationship with Anakin must be different from the one he’d had with Qui-Gon. And in the shadows, Granta Omega, who purposely left the pyramid behind for the Jedi to find, watches and waits . . .

(The Trail of the Jedi)
• Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker are assigned to Euceron to meet with Siri Tachi, Ry-Gaul, Tru Veld, and Ferus Olin. Together, they are to use their presence to help keep order at the Galactic Games. The Ruling Power isn’t exactly the poster child for democratic freedom, but with so many senators and big names attending the events, a disaster at the games could be, well, disastrous in such trying political times. As a fight erupts on the street, Obi-Wan and Anakin are joined by Siri and the other Jedi. The Padawans (except Ferus, to an extent) are anxious to see some of the games. Ferus is more worried about keeping an eye on Anakin. They soon meet with Liviani Sarno, head of the Games Council, who brings with her several subordinates, including Bog Divinian and his wife... Astri Oddo Divinian. Obi-Wan is happy to see Astri, but Bog seems to be the typical politician, concerned only with his own aspirations. They learn two interesting things. First, Maxo Vista, hero of the previous Galactic Games, is on the Games Council. Second, there will be an illegal podrace during the Galactic Games. The mention of a podrace starts Anakin’s heart racing. Shortly thereafter, Didi Oddo, Astri’s father and a friend of the late Qui-Gon Jinn, convinces Obi-Wan to go with him to a swoop dealer to help add weight to Didi’s request for his money back. The Padawans head off to do some exploring and check out the game setup, and Anakin manages to slip away from Ferus and Tru to check out the podrace setup outside the city. He interrupts the two sons of former podracer Ratts Tyerell, Doby and Deland, who are working on his old podracer. Anakin offers them advice in their work, which they don’t take, much to their chagrin moments later. Anakin introduces himself, learning that after Tyerell’s loss in the Boonta Eve Podrace six years ago, in which Anakin won his freedom, Tyerell sold their sister, Djulla, into slavery. Now, Djulla is owned by Sebulba. Sebulba is there as well, but it is his son, Hekula who will be racing Sebulba’s podracer (Anakin’s old podracer, sold to him by Qui-Gon) in the illegal race. If Doby and Deland win, though, they will win back Djulla’s freedom. Anakin offers to help the brothers, since he can’t take out his own frustrations against Sebulba now that he is a Padawan. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan and Didi meet with the swoop seller, Uso Yso, who refuses to give Didi his money back. As they leave, Obi-Wan learns that it wasn’t money for a swoop that Didi wanted, but a retraction of a bet he had made on the Galactic Games. He had done so using money Astri and Bog had set aside for some land to settle on, but he had no idea that they would have met the land’s owner at the games and be able to buy the land so soon. Now, Didi needs a way to put the money back where he found it. Obi-Wan leaves Didi to his own devices and finds Anakin at the podrace pit. Obi-Wan scolds Anakin for his involvement, but they are summoned from their discussion by an urgent call from Bog telling them to go to the Official Quarters. They borrow Doby and Deland’s airspeeder to return. They get there only to find that the self-important Bog has called them because his speeder was stolen. Obi-Wan takes Didi aside, guessing it was his doing. He is correct. Didi confesses to having taken the speeder. He has sold it to get more money, this time to bet on a “sure thing.” Obi-Wan asks how he knows it is a sure thing and discovers that Fligh is on Euceron, and Fligh has assured Didi that the obstacle race results have been fixed. Obi-Wan pursues the issue, knowing that a revelation of rigged games in the Galactic Games could spark an inter-culture riot on Euceron that could leave many dead or wounded and be a black eye to Republic public relations. They meet with Fligh, who confesses that he received the information from a being named Quentor. Obi-Wan, Anakin, and Didi then catch an air-taxi, hoping to get to the event before it starts, but the taxi driver leaps out of the taxi, just after setting it on a course to lead the passengers to their doom. The Jedi get the craft back under control, and, after meeting with the security forces about the incident, call Jocasta Nu to have her look up information on Quentor. The Jedi then meet Max Vista and Ruler Three of the Ruling Power, learning that all of the events are timed by one man, Aarno Dering, who is their most likely suspect for fixing the games. They reach Dering’s dwelling, just in time for Dering to race away from the Jedi and end up killed in the street by a hit-and-run. They check a datapad he left and discover all of the events he has set up timers for... including the podrace! Anakin is sent back to the pit to warn the others. Once there, he discovers that the rules have been altered so that they are fed navigation data on the fly, making them navigate and race at the same time. At about the same time, Sebulba recognizes Anakin. The two share some words before Djulla is about to be kicked for speaking up. Deland leaps in, but winds up slammed against a wall, his arm broken. With the injury, Deland won’t be able to pilot the podracer, but Anakin will do so, in order to free Djulla. Back in the city, Obi-Wan learns from Didi that he was unable to buy back Bog’s speeder, so he was going to sell Bog’s datapad to get money to cover the raised speeder price. Obi-Wan checks out Bog’s records, discovering his seating arrangements for various senators. He then learns from Jocasta Nu that Quentor is a bird, an unofficial pet of the Galactic Senate. Knowing Fligh lied to him, Obi-Wan has Didi track him down. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan takes his investigation to Uso Yso. He offers to buy a swoop, but since the place is set up for betting, he able to see Yso’s datapad. The information on bets is the same as the information on Bog’s datapad for seating. Bog is assisting in the plot! He also hears that Anakin is now the new racer for Doby and Deland’s podracer in the illegal race. He heads back and accuses Bog of working to fix the games, but Bog seems shocked. He had set up the skyboxes for the senators by following protocol and going through a man named Besum (whom Obi-Wan recognizes as Uso Yso’s assistant). Obi-Wan heads back out, learning from Didi where Fligh is staying. He contacts Siri and Ry-Gaul for backup when confronting Fligh. While en route, Obi-Wan is contacted by Anakin, who asks his Master to allow him to make the choice whether to follow his instincts and enter the Podrace to save Djulla. Obi-Wan allows him to do so. Arriving at Fligh’s, the Jedi confront him with what they know. He tells them that he was contacted by an anonymous benefactor to bring in Dering as the timekeeper for the Galactic Games. After Dering was hired, he was given information on the “sure things,” but also learned that in one of the events, a disaster is slated to take place, harming, killing, or embarrassing some of the senators present. He doesn’t know who the benefactor was, and the Jedi have no time to pry, as droidekas burst into the room. The Jedi make short work of the droids, then split up to go to the three most likely target events. Anakin, meanwhile, must look out for the Podrace. As Obi-Wan reaches the obstacle course, he sees Maxo Vista addressing the crowd, suddenly recognizing him as the speeder driver who ran down Dering. Maxo Vista is involved in the plot. Astri arrives, telling Obi-Wan that Bog had tried to tell Maxo Vista of what was happening, but found Vista’s room empty. When he tapped into Vista’s files, he discovered that the Podrace is fixed. The fixed racer will receive nav information before the rest, and the lead racer will be taken over by the timing computer as they near a certain point in the track, causing it to drive out of control, causing a major accident and killing spectators. Before they can reveal this information, Vista holds Astri at blasterpoint and forces Obi-Wan through the obstacle course against him. He has set up one of the “hologram” droids to be a real one, set to kill any opposition (in this case, Obi-Wan), but Obi-Wan bests both Vista and the droid, bringing the “hero” down. He is to be turned over to Liviani Sarno. Obi-Wan warns Anakin of the situation, even as the Podrace gets into motion. Anakin is in the lead, trying to use his Force skills to make sure no one else is in position to end up taken over and killed. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan learns from Jocasta Nu that all of the senators who had bets on the fixed events (which they themselves did not place) are in opposition to a move to allow the Commerce Guild control of banking practices in the Core Worlds. They also learn that Maxo Vista is a member . . . and he was sponsored by Liviani Sarno. Sarno is probably also in on the plot. Obi-Wan heads for the Podrace, arriving in time to see Sarno in the crowd using a viewscreen, tapping commands into it, apparently to set off the next stage of the rigged event. Obi-Wan catches her, but it is too late to stop her tampering. Anakin is on his own. Anakin manages to keep from crashing when his steering is knocked out by using Hekula’s podracer as a guide, of sorts. He spins through the finish line, barely surviving the ordeal, but winning Djulla’s freedom. When Hekula and Sebulba confront him, accusing him of cheating, Anakin accuses Sebulba of being behind the plot to fix the race. Obi-Wan assures him that it was not Sebulba. Anakin sees Sebulba as an enemy and has invented guilt in his mind that isn’t really there. It was Doby and Deland who allowed their podracer to be sabotaged. They were in league with Sarno and the others, but they have now vanished with Djulla. Shortly thereafter, the Ruling Power holds a hearing into the fiasco. No one wants to see disgrace brought upon the Games or Euceron, so the whole event is pushed under the rug. Sarno and Vista will not be punished. Didi has fled to safer pastures, refusing to testify. Bog also refuses to testify, having been informed by the Commerce Guild that his silence would guarantee him the spot as his homeworld’s next senator. In the end, lives have been saved, disaster has been averted, but the guilty have not been punished. It is a hard lesson for Anakin to learn, but he must—the good guys don’t always win entirely in the end.*

(The Dangerous Games)*

*NOTE: Anakin is 14 in this story, which, given his birthday on the 23rd day of Month 4, puts it either in the last 8 months or so of 28 BBY or the first 2 months or so of 27 BBY. The Essential Reader’s Companion goes with the latter. Note that The Final Showdown includes a reference to these events, which puts them 6 years before that story, but the ERC notes that this is apparently an error, as it is only a 4 year gap.

- Han Solo is recruited by Garris Shrike. Shrike takes Han aboard, promising that if he is a good worker, someday Shrike will reveal his last name to him.  (To be continued below . . . )

(The Paradise Snare)

• While Boba Fett waits on Kamino, tended to be MU-12, his father, Jango Fett, takes out Black Sun Vigo Antonin.  He then goes to get his pay from Dreddon the Hutt, only to find Dreddon dead at the hands of Zam Wesell, who is there as a slave girl.  She has just killed Dreddon, but she was hired by Antonin, so they are both out of luck.  They leave without trading blows.  Returning to Kamino without his bounty, Jango spends an evening playing with Boba, but must head off for a meeting on Coruscant with a Dug named Fernoo da.  When he arrives, he is challenged by a goon seeking to up his reputation, but after that quick encounter, Jango meets with Fernooda.  He is hired to retrieve a religious idol from Seylott for Fernooda’s mysterious employer.  Jango heads for Seylott, where he steals the idol from a babbling local, who says that “the infant must rest with the father . . . for it is the destroyer of worlds,” which is his way of warning Fett not to take the statue.  Upon leaving, though, Zam corners him and takes the idol.  When a creature attacks, though, Jango takes it back, but saves Zam from the creature.  He takes the idol back to Fernooda, whom he severs all ties with, since Fernooda didn’t warn him that the local guarding the idol would be Force-sensitive.  Even as Jango returns to Kamino and his son, Fernooda gives the idol to his master, a mysterious alien general (Ashaar Khorda) with plans to use the idol to strike at the Republic . . .

(Jango Fett)

• A group of travelers enters Bartyn’s Landing on Lamaredd and are immediately accosted by an old man and challenged to a duel.  Little do they know that this is Byrch Dyshkava, the “Padawan.”  After defeating him in a duel, the old man falls unconscious, and they are met by Chief Mix Liddell, who is surprised to see the object of his mild obsession alive and well and in his own town.  The group goes to the station to give their statements about the incident.  The group receives a reward for the Padawan’s capture, but the longtime medical droid of Bartyn’s Landing, Doc, says the Padawan is dying.  Mix wants to give the group a job scouting around some of the strange happenings lately, but the Padawan gives them more reason to be wary.  The Menahuun, he says, are coming.  The group accepts the job offer and agrees to meet Mix at Miss Mylla’s Saloon the next day.  They begin their mission to get to the bottom of the Menahuun threat, and soon come under attack by Menahuun scouts.  They escape and soon investigate Guther Bartyn’s Tria Blue, which is under heavy guard for some reason.  They are forced to fight more Menahuun by the Tria Blue, until Howe Walwahd, the head guard, helps them.  They finally get to search inside the Tria Blue, but it self-destructs, taking any evidence of Bartyn’s odd activities lately with it.  They then investigate Bartyn himself and are told of how to get into the dangerous mines where odd activities have been reported.  They use the secret Bartyn family tunnel to enter the mining area and get into the old mining complex.  Once through the complex and its security droid, then through Mt. Hugo and into the Menahuun’s Hua’Bal Camp, they are challenged by the Menahuun shaman, Eeytch.  After a fierce battle with Eeytch, the group manages to win a chance at peace.  By winning the challenge, they have begun the steps toward peace on Lamaredd.  How things will go from here remains to be seen . . .

(Reckonings)

• Goontirk of the Madman’s Fortune picks up a mummified Duro, the “Archregent Vardovin IV, Lost King of Duro,” as cargo, but when he hits a plasma storm above Engebo V, the containment unit is damaged, allowing a swarm of millennia-old skekfish to hatch from eggs in the container.  The skekfish kill Goontirk, forcing the vessel to begin a crash landing . . .

(conjecture based on Death, Dirt, and the Nerf Rancher’s Daughter)

• A group of heroes has been hired by Lady Wylla, an Alderaanian noble, to travel to Engebo V to procure nerf steaks from Davengatt’s Double-Zed Nerf Ranch.  En route, their ship is damaged by a plasma storm, forcing them to land for repairs, which they must finish ASAP or risk not meeting the deadline for the steak shipment.  They contract droid CZ-22 to lead repairs on the ship while they head into the Landing.  There, they are met by Gall, the “sheriff” of the Landing, before heading to Lurbi’s Mercantile, a cantina, to find Jaffro Davengatt’s daughter, Nell.  After meeting her, they step outside to discover another ship, the Madman’s Fortune, also damaged by the plasma storm, crashing down toward the nerf herds. They race to the wreck with Nell. At the wreck, they are set upon by skekfish, who are slaughtering the herds and anything else nearby. They escape back to the Landing, only to find the area littered with skekfish-slashers bodies. They continue to Davengatt’s mansion for safety, but Jaffro wants them to leave. He doesn’t have time to be inhospitable, though, as skekfish enter the mansion and kill him. Knowing they cannot stop the infestation, the heroes, Nell, and Gall, escape from the planet aboard the heroes’ ship, which has been fixed by the droids. Lady Wylla won’t get her steaks, but Nell will make it up to her, on the condition that Wylla hire a mercenary ship to bombard Engebo V from orbit to wipe out any traces of the skekfish.*

(Death, Dirt, and the Nerf Rancher’s Daughter)

*NOTE: I place this story here due to its ties to Outer Rim Oreworks, which is prominently featured in Reckonings and Bartyn’s Landing. As the story has no set timeframe, this was as good a place as any.

- At Nell Davengatt’s request, Lady Wylla sends a mercenary ship to blast Engebo V from orbit, eradicating the invading skekfish.

(conjecture based on Death, Dirt, and the Nerf Rancher’s Daughter)

- On Coruscant, the Jedi Council has discovered that General Ashaar Khorda, an Annoo-Dat radical, has come into possession of a mysterious weapon that he intends to use against the Republic, striking against either Alderaan, Corellia, or Coruscant. To investigate, the Council sends Oppo Rancisis to Corellia, Eeth Koth to Alderaan, and Yarael Poof to the lower levels of Coruscant. Meanwhile, bounty hunter Zam Wesell visits the home of Jango Fett and his son, Boba Fett, on Kamino. Zam informs Jango that the artifact he took from Seylott on a contract from Fernooda is actually a Force-based weapon, which is now in the hands of Ashaar Khorda. While it was Jango who recovered the artifact, Zam feels partially responsible for Ashaar getting his hands on it, so she wants to stop him from using it to destroy Coruscant with the Force-disturbance it can create. Jango wants no part in the profitless mission until she points out how many sons just like Boba may die if Coruscant is destroyed. They leave for Coruscant immediately aboard Slave I. On Coruscant, Ashaar meets with Fernooda and their fanatical followers. They are intending to use the artifact in the Coruscant power core to cause the planet’s destruction. Nearby, Jedi Master Poof stops a gang from picking on a young alien, unknowing that the gang then run into Jango and Zam. Zam is appearing to be Fernooda, using her Clawdite shape-shifting abilities. Shifting back into her normal form, she joins Jango in a journey to the power core. In the core, Ashaar and his goons find themselves cornered. To one side, they have Jango and Zam. To the other, they face Yarael Poof. A firefight ensues, wherein the villains are all killed, but not before Ashaar manages to stab Poof. As the artifact begins to fall into the core, Zam catches it with an elongated arm, but it is then up to Poot to use the Force to contain its energies and stop the ensuing destruction of Coruscant. He does so, but only at the cost of his own life. Jango and Zam return the artifact to Seylott, where it will be safe. As our story closes, Jango and Zam return to Kamino, where Boba welcomes him home and the true extent of Zam’s flirtatiousness is still in question, while on Coruscant, a funeral pyre burns for Yarael Poof.

(Zam Wesell)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)

The Way of the Apprentice (youth novel: Jude Watson)

- Prologue
- Chapters 1 – 20

Outbound Flight (novel: Timothy Zahn)

Outbound Flight (novel: Timothy Zahn)

- Chapters 1 – 24

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)

The Trail of the Jedi (youth novel: Jude Watson)

- Chapters 1 – 17

The Dangerous Games (youth novel: Jude Watson)

- Chapters 1 – 21

The Han Solo Trilogy (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)

The Paradise Snare (novel: A. C. Crispin)

- Ylesian Dreams [flashback]
Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
Jango Fett (comic: Ron Marz)
  Jango Fett (comic: Ron Marz)
Reckonings (G7 short story: Cory J. Herndon)
Reckonings (G7 short story: Cory J. Herndon)
  Bandit’s Honor
  The Great Menahuun Hunt
  Bartyn’s Secret
  Into the Krakana’s Maw
Death, Dirt, and the Nerf Rancher’s Daughter (wizards.com RPG: Cory J. Herndon)
Death, Dirt, and the Nerf Rancher’s Daughter (wizards.com RPG: Cory J. Herndon)
  The Arrival
  The Cantina
  The Wreck of the Madman’s Fortune
  Death at the Landing
  Davengatt’s Mansion
Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
Zam Wesell ( comic: Ron Marz)
  Zam Wesell (comic: Ron Marz)

26 BBY

- Natasi Daala is born on Irmenu. She will be raised in a COMPNOR orphanage run by Renatasian nuns on Botajef.
  (conjecture based on Planet of Twilight and The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- Nakaron is born.*
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #4)*

*NOTE: The actual entry says that at the time of Wanted by Cracken, Nakaron was 30 – 35 years old. I just split the difference to 33.

- Aimi Loto is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- TCW DATE: Jekk is born to Suu on Saleucami. While little is known about his father, he will eventually be the stepson of clonetrooper Cut Lawquane.
  (conjecture based on The Deserter)
- Adion Lang is born.
  (conjecture based on A Certain Point of View)
- Ytavarg Aleema is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Regina Bel Typolla is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Shamus Falconi is born.*
  (conjecture based on the Lumrunners)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Falconi was a smuggler for about 5 years before Lumrunners and that the story takes place around SW4.
- Yeorg Captison is elected Bakuran Senator.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)
- Tork Winger enters politics.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb’s website)
- Zegret Wan begins playing professional smashball.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)
- Around this time, Besany Wennen begins tracking down frauds and embezzlers as a Republic Treasury agent.
  (conjecture based on Order 66)
- The future assassin X-7 is born.*
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

NOTE: In Target, we are told his seems to be “a few years younger than Han,” but this would mean his training and shaping took place around when he was in his mid-to-late teens, if the date of 10 BBY for his transformation into “X-7,” extrapolated from his comments in Hostage are correct.

- Typha-Dor sets up a communications outpost on the moon TY44 to keep an eye on possible Vanqor invasion of Typha-Dor itself.
  (conjecture based on The Moment of Truth)
- Telloti Cillamam’n finishes his Apprentice Trials, defeating all of his opponents except Wollwi Enan in lightsaber dueling, only to not be chosen as a Padawan Learner. Instead, he is transferred to the Explorer Corps.
  (conjecture based on Hammer)
- On the maiden voyage of their new ship, Noa Briqualon and Salek Weet crash land their starship on the forest moon of Endor. Salek leaves in search of something to power the ship, but he is captured by King Terak and his marauders soon later, and killed. A search for the missing ship is begun by Jimke Weet, Saleks’ father, but will be called off four years from now.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
- Lord Galen Panos takes on the role of High Lord of House Reena.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)
- A group of X’Ting attempt to get to the vault holding their royal eggs, but the main explorer’s path is cut short at the Hall of Heroes.
  (conjecture based on The Hive)
- TCW DATE: The so-called “Friends of the Republic” contact Senator Bail Organa and begin feeding him information. This comes as Alderaan and Chandrila are negotiating for a joint mining venture on Aridus, and the Friends’ information saves the planets from a diplomatic and humanitarian disaster. During this time, a secure one-way information link via encryption and a datapad is set up between the Friends and Bail Organa.
  (conjecture based on Wild Space)
- Tem Chesko’s health begins failing. Millie, his droid, who has fallen in love with him, takes care of him on their long journey home . . . (To be continued below . . . )
  (Tales from Mos Eisley: Mostly Automatic)
- The Freedom’s Messenger causes confusion at the Battle of Ord Torrenze, allowing Republic forces to win the day. However, in the battle, the ship is highly damaged. The ship, with its crew dying from radiation poisoning, goes down, and will remain unsalvaged until the Galactic Empire’s military build-up.*
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign)

NOTE: For this entry, I’m assuming that the transfer of the Freedom’s Messenger from diplomatic to military duties “when darker times fell on the Old Republic” took place around 32 BBY, that the “Empire’s military build-up” when the ship was recovered took place around 20 BBY, and that I can simply split the difference and assume that six years was spent battling and six years passed before recovery. Fair enough?

- On Maramere, a planet in the Karthakk System, Neimoidian Trade Federation Lord Toat and Ruuk are discussing Toat’s acquisition of a Raith Sienar prototype given to him by Nute Gunray. They discuss the prototype aboard a hovering ocean liner (the Syren) on the peaceful world. They are quickly attacked by pirates led by Sol Sisxa, who is supposed to be dead. Toat is killed, the cargo is stolen, and the vessel is sunk. On Coruscant, one month later, Ambassador Loreli Ro of the Mere speaks with Adi Gallia about tracking down Nym to help go after Sisxa. Adi plays a profile of Nym recorded by Vana Sage for Ro, which explains his actions around the time of the Battle of Naboo. His latest sighting was on Rodia. Meanwhile, on Rodia, Nym and his companions lead a battle between two warring tribes. Upon winning for Jannik and his clan, Nym steals the clan’s prize money. He is in league with Jannik, though. As they split the winnings and Jannik asks for transport away from Rodia, they are met by Ambassador Ro, who asks Nym to return and bring in Sisxa. He is reluctant to return to his home system, but for 50,000 credits, he takes the job. Later, on Maramere, a group of refugees discover the Haunted Strait, but are attacked inside by Sisxa. Meanwhile, the Havoc, Nym’s ship, is under fire by droid starfighters from the Trade Federation, but they manage to escape. Shortly thereafter, though, Trade Federation Lord Ruuk and Sol Sisxa both receive word of Nym’s appearance. Both order surveillance on Nym and his band. Nym, meanwhile, has gotten to Point Modie, where Ro shows him the Sunrunner, an ocean cruiser that they must take in their mission. They head out for the remains of the Syren. While underwater, Nym is attacked by sea creatures, but he recovers the head of Toat’s protocol droid, which reveals the existence of the prototype on the downed vessel, but cannot identify what the prototype is before it speaks its last. Nym’s associate Kole finds the refugee captain alive and well in a local cantina, and they intend to see what he can tell them about Sixxa. Sixxa, though, knows that the captain has been found, and he is ready and waiting for our heroes to arrive. Soon, Sixxa is aboard his ship, the Revenant, hunting Nym’s vessel. As he executes a subordinate for insubordination, Nym is getting a new blaster hand attached where the previous one had been destroyed. They’re on their way to the Invisible Island, where they suspect Sixxa may be. Meanwhile, Lord Ruuk is informed that their spy droid aboard the Sunrunner is working well, and a fleet of Trade Federation Gunboats will go in for the kill soon. They want the prototype back, but don’t want to reveal the true potential of the planet to his superiors yet. On the waters, Sixxa attacks from out of a haze that can only be a cloaked ship. Once he has Nym’s crew in sight, though, Rodians (led by Jannik) emerge from below decks, and Jinkins uncovers a huge cannon taken from Nym’s starship. They get in some good shots, but Sixxa takes out Nym’s new blaster hand. After wounding Jannik, Sixxa escapes back into the haze to his vessel (yep, the prototype was an “ultimate” cloaking device, created using natural resources from the Invisible Island, the true riches of the planet). Nym follows him, followed by his crew. In a heated blade duel, Nym and Sixxa fall overboard. Underwater, out of sight, Nym punches Sixxa, but doesn’t kill him, while above, Trade Federation forces find the ship and begin their attack. Nym and Sixxa emerge from the water, but when they see the Trade Federation forces, they join together to save both of their crews. To stop the Trade Federation from taking the cloaking device, and to save his crew, Nym crashes the Sunrunner into the Revenant, destroying both vessels. Nym and the others get out alive, and Nym says that he has killed Sixxa . . . Three weeks later, Nym and his crew return to the Invisible Island with the spy droid head, which has delivered a message to him. The message is from Sixxa, whom Nym allowed to live. Sixxa has a proposition. Given what the Trade Federation has now done to him and his men, he wishes to join forces with Nym, even going so far as to place himself under Nym’s command, to go up against the Trade Federation. A new partnership is forged, and heaven help the Neimoidians.

(Crossbones)*

*NOTE: While the inside of Crossbones lists it as taking place in 24 BBY, the very first panel of the story itself says that it is six years after the Battle of Naboo, putting it in 26 BBY.

- Mace Windu takes his current Padawan Learner to a dry world, where the natives seem influenced by the ancient Sith. Mace warns the natives to leave, knowing the planet will die soon. The Padawan is surprised that he would help save Sith-influenced people, but they continue their journey. They enter an old temple, where the Padawan is sent to face an enemy Mace has done battle with since becoming a Jedi. The Padawan races into the confrontation when he sees a person in the temple, only to find that his “enemy” is Mace himself. Mace informs him that his actions have shown him to be fearful and angry and to have too much pride. The Padawan has failed his training.

(The Sith in the Shadow)

- On Ord Cestus, Quill engages his relative G’Mai Duris’ mate, Filian, in ritual combat. Filian dies in combat, leaving G’Mai forever threatened by Quill’s lust for power and ruthlessness.

(conjecture based on The Cestus Deception)

Early Victories Omnibus (comic series: Ryder Windham & Bruce Jones & Louise Simonson & Terry Austin & Darko Macan)

Tales From Mos Eisley (comic: Bruce Jones)

Mostly Automatic [flashback]

Starfighter [continued] (comic/video game series: Haden Blackman & LucasArts)

Crossbones (comic series: Haden Blackman)

Crossbones, Part I (comic: Haden Blackman)

Crossbones, Part II (comic: Haden Blackman)

Crossbones, Part III (comic: Haden Blackman)
The Sith in the Shadow (SWT13 short story: Bob Harris)

The Sith in the Shadow (SWT13 short story: Bob Harris)

25 BBY

- Teela Kaarz is born on Mirial.*
  (conjecture based on Death Star)*
  *NOTE: Teela is “nearing twenty-five standard years” as of Death Star.
- Bracsk is born on Baros.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
- Morteos is born on Nar Bo Sholla.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Grelndo Farnor is born on Belnar.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Drolen Antig is born.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #10)
- Barthalemew Windslow is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Flindor Tekkirl is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Tav Breil’ya is born on Kothlis.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
- Villian “Vil” Dance is born.*
  (conjecture based on Death Star)*
  *NOTE: Vil is “not yet twenty-five” as of Death Star, which is set within the year or so before ANH.
- Kal Coorsa is born on Gall.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*
  *NOTE: Due to internal chronological inconsistencies, this birth must be around this time, not once the Empire exists. That will cause a problem with a subsequent event.
- Bryce Agoris is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #6)
- Fidge is born.
  (conjecture based on The Great Heep)
- Stevan Makintay is born on Hargeeva.
  (conjecture based on Firepower)
- Dusque Mistflier is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Ruins of Dantooine)*
  *NOTE: This dates back as follows: The Ruins of Dantooine takes place around 1 ABY, and she has been a bioengineer for “a few months” at that point (say, 0.5 ABY or so), after spending a few years (say, 3) of advanced study, which must have followed a usual university period (say, 4 years), which, presumably, started when she was 18 years old.
- Venra Andsof is born.
  (conjecture based on Welcome to the Jungle)
- Lianna Tagon is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Luminous Bantha)*
  *NOTE: This assumes a date of 4 – 5 ABY for The Luminous Bantha.
- Milessa Kand is born, presumably on Alderaan.*
  (conjecture based on Coruscant and the Core Worlds)*
  *NOTE: Milessa is in her “mid-twenties” when Alderaan is destroyed.
- Milac Troper joins the Diplomatic Corps.
  (conjecture based on Welcome to the Jungle)
- The Brotherhood Mortalis is formed.
  (conjecture based on Special Ops: The Mercenary)
- The Virgillian Civil War begins.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)
• The Jedi Knights begin a three-year campaign against the Iridium in the Atrivis Sector.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• Around this time, Sheeka Tull meets a man named Yondar on the planet Atrivis-7. The two fall in love and get married, with Sheeka helping raise Yondar’s three children, Tarl, Tonote, and Mithail.
  (conjecture based on The Cestus Deception)
• The Dreadnaught Leviathan has up to this point served its worth in the Old Republic driving off pirates. However the Senate lacks consensus on where to send the ship, and it is left patrolling Core worlds.
  (conjecture based on Starships of the Galaxy via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Around this time, Baktoid produces the UH-XH (Heavy) Work Platform.*
  (conjecture based on Special Modifications)*
  *NOTE: This is sometime “before the advent of the Clone Wars,” which I have rounded to 25 BBY.
• Warfare begins between the Helshar and Tumris families of Sathari in the town of Quolas on Arbooine.*
  (conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)*
  *NOTE: This is a generation ago (rounded to 25 years as usual) prior to the story.
• With his wife, Liselle Gault, having left him and his children, Orrin Gault begins to invest heavily in trying to recreate the late Dannar Calwell’s “perfect” water vaporator-produced water. He takes out loans from the Aargau Investment Trust office in Mos Eisley, using his land as collateral, and purchases many GX-9 Pretormin vaporators (to set up what he calls the “Symphony,” a perfect set working in harmony), but when the situation does not immediately produce results, he takes out more loans over the next three years, until the bank will not loan any more.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)
• In the period just prior to the rise of the Empire, Prall the Hutt, head of PharmCorp, manages to take control of the secret “shadow government” that truly rules Nubia.
  (conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)
• Sometime before the Clone Wars, the CDEF blaster pistol from Corellian Arms becomes the standard service blaster for CorSec.
  (conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)
• Sometime before the Clone Wars, the J-7b beamdrill becomes the standard beamdrill for Corellia Mining Corporation.
  (conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)
  *TCW DATE: Smuggler Lalo Gunn finds herself and her droid, 2JTJ (Teejay) stuck on Kynachi, which is controlled by the Trade Federation and Techno Union. She eventually turns her ship, the Hasty Harpy, into a restaurant.
  (conjecture based on Breakout Squad)
• TCW DATE: The Plough Comet causes a drought on the farms in the village of Voteb on Lanteeb. According to their official records, Markl and Yavid, two Lanteeban cousins whose farm is ruined, begin wandering the galaxy before returning to Lanteeb three years later.
  Among their other odd jobs around the galaxy is a stint as lumberjacks on Alderaan. (This is only part of their cover, however, as the “Markl” and “Yavid” who “return” to Lanteeb are actually Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker in disguise.)
  (conjecture based on Siege)
• TCW DATE: Demand for the volatile and poisonous damotite mineral from Lanteeb drops severely. By the time Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi visit one of the nearly-ruined villages, Torbel, the population of Torbel will be cut in half by the lack of mining jobs.*
  (conjecture based on Siege)*
  *NOTE: This is “three or four years” prior to Siege.
• The Republic Group steals the Insignia of Unity (actually a fake) from the Senate Rotunda during renovations, intending to hang on to it until it might be used to rally supporters of democracy to restore democratic rule to the galaxy. (They believe Palpatine will continue taking power until he rules the galaxy.) They do not realize that it is a fake, and they replace this fake with another fake.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- Whie Marleaux, now training at the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, has a dream of the future, in which he, at age 11, is building his own lightsaber. In the vision, he hears someone say that Rhad Tarn is dead.
  (conjecture based on Dark Rendezvous)

- Dayla and Hereven Kev are rescued from their jungle world by two Wookiee outlaws, Fahraark and Friyahrr. Instead of selling them into slavery, the Wookiees end up partnering with the Kevs in a small safari-outfitting and wilderness guide company.
  (conjecture based on Welcome to the Jungle)

- Platt Okeefe will later find a services directory for all 4,527 luxury hotels on Spira during this period, while cleaning out the hold of the Last Chance.*
  (conjecture based on Smuggler’s Log supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5)*

  NOTE: This assumes that the Smuggler’s Log entries are set about a year after ROTJ, which is derived from Platt’s mention of the Pentastar Alignment in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5’s Smuggler’s Log.

- Upon entering the Known Galaxy, Mongei Shai and his Yuuzhan Vong scouting force arrive at Bimmiel. Shai stays behind to gather more information, while sending his ship back. He uses a villip to transmit information about the Known Galaxy for the rest of his life, before dying and being buried by sandstorms.
  (conjecture based on The New Jedi Order Sourcebook)

- One month before his “kidnapping,” Gillam Tarturi visits his family’s vacation home on Andara without his father, who could seem to care less about his son.
  (conjecture based on The School of Fear)

- Three days before Obi-Wan Kenobi’s team lands on Haaridan, the Jedi receive their last transmission from the scientists they have been sent to rescue.
  (conjecture based on The Master of Disguise)

- Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker, Soara Antana, and Darra Thel-Tanis (Soara’s Padawan) arrive on Haaridan, where civil war has raged for a decade. They are supposed to rescue a team of scientists who were caught on the planet when warfare erupted again. Three cease-fires were engineered to get the scientists off the planet, but each time, violence began again, prompting the Senate to send the Jedi to intervene. They enter their target city, Tenuuri, and find the scientists: Dr. Fort Turan; Joveh D’a Alin; Reug Yucon; Talie Heathe; and Tic Verdun. They make their way back toward their ship, but end up caught in the warfare. In one attack, Anakin’s need to be the hero and to protect others causes him to get in the way of Darra, who ends up being shot in the leg by a chemically-charged blast, poisoning her body and losing her lightsaber in the process. They retreat to a village to tend to Darra. As the two Masters head out to knock out enough of the enemy weapons and devices to allow them to escape, Anakin tends to Darra. In the meantime, Tic tries to engage Anakin in conversation, and they discuss the Force. Anakin, it seems, is making an older friend. The Masters manage to best the nearby warriors, discovering that the group, led by Noq Wellflet, was actually paid by Anakin and Obi-Wan’s old foe, Granta Omega, to attack the Jedi. But why is Granta Omega on Haaridan? When they finally return to Coruscant, Obi-Wan speaks with Jocasta Nu about Omega, but Omega’s file tells him very little. It seems that Omega made his money by hunting sources of rare minerals, buying the entire supply, then raising the price on his monopolized stash. When Yoda suggests that Anakin and Soara need distractions from Darra’s condition, Obi-Wan sets them up so that Soara will teach Anakin in lightsaber combat, which is no joke, given that Soara is one of the best and most disciplined lightsaber duelists in the Jedi Order. Her first lesson has Tru Veld attack Anakin unannounced, which gives him a lesson his ego when he lets himself get frustrated in the duel. Anakin’s biggest problem is his ego, she believes. He needs to let it go, but, of course, he won’t. Later, in the medical area, he promises Darra that he will reclaim her lightsaber for her, which is part ego, part promise, despite Anakin’s claim that it is only the latter. Later, Obi-Wan visits Jocasta Nu again, discovering that they know that Omega was born on Coruscant, but no true record exists. He also realizes that Omega could not have known they would be on Haaridan. He must have been there for another reason, possibly tying into the land that the Harridans were fighting over, which is a conflict not over territory but over the titanite, a rare mineral, found beneath the surface. Omega is again in a situation involving rare minerals. Even more, the Titanite can be synthesized down into an essential ingredient in Bacta, and Omega also owns major land plots on Thyferra, where he could control a great supply of alazhi lotion. Omega seems to be trying to corner the Bacta market! They learn that the Senate sent the scientists in order to get a complete picture of where the deposits were, so that they could negotiate a truce from a more knowledgeable position. The scientists weren’t able to make a final report with all of their information because of the conflict, which may have been Omega’s doing, but how could Omega get his own information without an easily-recognized team of his own? They look into universities specializing in such studies and discover that Omega was a student at the All Science Research Academy on Yerphonia, from which he graduated seven years ago. The Academy also lists his true homeworld—Nierport Seven. Obi-Wan heads for Nierport Seven immediately. At the same time, Anakin finishes a training session with Soara and ends up meeting Tic Vurdun. The two discuss her good prognosis and the current situation. Tic mentions that he knows Omega, and Anakin believes he can use Tic’s information to find Omega before Obi-Wan will be able. Again, his ego makes him want to be the hero. On Nierport Seven, Obi-Wan visits a local eatery, where he learns from some patrons that Granta Omega showed up as a three-year-old with his mother, Tura Omega, but left when he was still young. Two years later, Tura died. However, Granta was still able to get into the scientific academy because his mother had found him a patron on Eeropha, the man who is now Senator Sano Sauro, the same man that once faced Obi-Wan over the death of Bruck Chun years earlier. He is pointed to Omega’s home, but finds nothing of value. He returns to Coruscant and speaks with Sauro, who is just as much as asshole now as before. His assistant, though, confirms that Sauro headed the committee that sent the scientists to Haaridan, and a records search notes that Tic was added at the very last minute by Sauro himself. They do a background search on Tic and discover that “Tic Vurdun” is an alias . . . for Granta Omega! And Anakin is meeting with him at that very moment . . . Meanwhile, Anakin meets with “Tic” and his fellow scientist Mellora Falon (a hired goon). He is drugged and tempted in the Dark Side musings of Granta Omega, but when he sees that Mellora has Darra’s lightsaber, he comes around and stands up for himself, just as Obi-Wan bursts in. Anakin is saved, but the two enemies escape. They realize that Granta Omega is after Titanite on Haaridan, where the volcano Kaachtari is about to erupt, spewing Titanite all over for Omega to mine. They ask the Jedi Council for permission to go after Omega, but are nearly denied their request because the Council believes Omega is being manipulated by the Sith Lords, and if they keep an eye on him, they might be led to the Sith Lords themselves. The immediate danger of Omega in control of the bacta supply is too great to ignore, though, and Obi-Wan and Anakin are sent back to Haaridan. Once there, they see Welflet ready to be killed by the eruption, but he refuses to move. They are forced to leave him to go after Omega and Mellora, whom they catch up to near Omega’s ship. Once inside, though, they find themselves trapped, with their enemies escaping. They realize that the ship is actually a ship within a ship and find the real bridge just in time to save themselves. They then take off after Omega and Mellora, nearly getting killed by a great wave released by the eruption. Omega tries to kill Mellora in his escape, but the Jedi save her. Omega escapes, but Mellora points them to Omega’s house on Nierport Seven for information on him. They get there and find a hidden room, but the computers inside are automatically erased upon access. Granta Omega is still out there, and he has covered his tracks well . . .

(The Master of Disguise)

- The mercenary squad based out of the Andaran Leadership School is hired to dismantle security in the Leader’s Advisor’s Chamber on Tierell. The room is unfortunately not empty, and security droids attack the group, forcing them to return fire. Marit Dice’s blasts inadvertently kill the leader of Tierell.
  (conjecture based on The School of Fear)

- Anakin Skywalker (age 16) and his Master, Obi-Wan Kenobi, await word that the Senate has opened files to reveal information about Senator Sano Sauro and his contacts with Granta Omega. Unfortunately, they and their friend, Tyro Caladian, are disappointed when the files remain sealed due to bureaucratic nonsense. The message of the situation is delivered personally by Mas Amedda, who speaks for Supreme Chancellor Palpatine (who, by the way, would benefit greatly in his Darth Sidious persona by allowing a Dark Side cultist like Granta Omega to remain at large). The two Jedi are called to meet with the Jedi Council, as are Siri Tachi and Ferus Olin. The son of Senator Berm Tarturi, Gillam Tarturi, has been kidnapped from the Leadership School on Andara, and the Senator believes that the rival world of Ieria (and its leader, Rana Halion) or a young group of mercenaries in the school may be involved. Obi-Wan and Siri are given separate fact-finding assignments, while Obi-Wan and Ferus are sent undercover into the school to investigate. Soon, at the school, Ferus makes friends with young Reymet Autem, while Anakin meets a girl named Marit Dice. Back on Coruscant, Obi-Wan speaks with Berm, then Tyro, learning that Berm isn't truly close to his son at all, and that Saurno is an enemy of Berm as well. They later track Saurno and Rana to flush them out at a meeting, but they are foiled, forcing Obi-Wan to confront Saurno directly. He makes no admissions. Back at the school, Marit invites Anakin to join her during their free mod. He meets her friends, Rolai Frac, Tulah, Hurana, and Ze. They are the mercenary squad within the school, and they want Anakin to join them. He does so, intending on getting deeper into their ranks to flush them out and find Gillam. Once further into the group, Anakin believes Gillam may have been one of them. He informs Obi-Wan of his findings, but since there have been no ransom demands (only a message saying someone has Gillam), they aren't sure where to continue looking. Obi-Wan then finds that a transfer of payments to the mercenary squad’s Rolai was sent by Rana Halion earlier. This provides a link he needs. He believes their answers are on Andara. Meanwhile, the squad takes a new mission to do a flyby on Andaran holdings to show that the Ierians could destroy them if necessary. This will be done, again, under orders and payment of Rana, but there will be no firing, so no one will be hurt. Anakin will be the pilot. Ferus disagrees with the decision and contacts Siri, but Anakin doesn’t tell Obi-Wan of his plans. Ferus is cut off during his message and vanishes. Anakin has no choice but to continue with the squad, he believes. Shortly thereafter, Siri and a very confused Obi-Wan (about Anakin’s silence) come to save Ferus and Gillam (whom they believe may be still a prisoner in the school itself) while posing as wealthy rulers of another planet. They tour the grounds, finally finding Ferus (with help from Reymet Autem) in a sealed off area. Ferus reveals that Gillam is the one who has “kidnapped” himself, trying to use the situation to discredit his father as revenge for never paying attention to him. Gillam was part of the mercenary squad all along. Another unsent letter on Gillam’s datapad claims responsibility for Gillam’s death. Apparently, Gillam will be using a decoy body in the midst of chaos to escape detection, and that body would seem to be Anakin’s. Meanwhile, Anakin and Marit realize that the squad, under Rolai, is intending on actually firing in their mission, starting a war between Andara and Ieria. The two disagree, but Marit turns on Anakin and the squad hold him at gunpoint as Gillam, the true leader of the squad, arrives. As Obi-Wan, Siri, and Ferus arrive to save him, they are too late. Anakin has tapped into the Force in a way that only Jedi Masters usually can and has defeated the entire team and their starfighter all by himself. The day is won, and Gillam’s datapad will diffuse the situation, but Obi-Wan is both fearful of Anakin’s power and angry with his Padawan for abandoning Ferus to go with the squad. For now, Obi-Wan’s trust in Anakin is stretch to near the breaking point.

(The School of Fear)

*NOTE: Anakin is 16 in this story, but The Essential Reader’s Companion gives the story a date of 25 BBY, instead of 26 BBY. That means that this must take place within the first two months of the year.

- After several missions, Anakin Skywalker still hasn’t earned back Obi-Wan Kenobi’s full trust. He muses on this a while, finally having a vision of freeing his mother, shackles falling to the ground, and the phrase “the one below remains below.” Not knowing what this means, he goes to ask Obi-Wan about it. They are met by Yoda, who suggests that it might have different meanings than Anakin believes. However, the term “the one below” refers to Yaddle, often known as “the one below” from Koba (misspelled in this story as “Koda”). It appears that the Force has chosen Anakin and Obi-Wan to accompany Yaddle on her mission to the planet Mawan. A civil war caused the world’s populace to go underground, where the social order reversed, top-to-bottom. However, the Senate wishes to set up a Provisional Committee to help bring the people back above ground and form a working government, much to the opposition of three crimelords running the world, Decca the Hutt, the mysterious “Striker,” and Feeana Tala. The three Jedi head to the world, with Republic advisors and a guide named Euraana Fall. Upon arrival, they are met by two tunnel workers, higher ups in the new social order, named Swanny and Rorq. Anakin and Obi-Wan go underground with them, hoping to scout out the criminal operations. They first go to a market session held by Feeana, but are quickly discovered as Jedi. Luckily, she agrees that she is a Mawan first, criminal second, so she will take her troops up to the surface to keep the peace, while the Jedi deal with Decca and Striker, as long as she gets amnesty. The Jedi head for where Decca is holding a party after capturing territory from Striker, but, again, they are caught in a pitched battle when Striker’s troops attack. Anakin is nearly blasted by a thermal detonator. Instead, he is captured and brought to Striker’s lair . . . Meanwhile, Obi-Wan and Yaddle make plans to disable a power substation to get Striker’s attention and follow his goons back to his base. Little do they know that Anakin has arrived at Striker’s base, where he discovers that “Striker” is actually Granta Omega. Omega tempts Anakin with freedom for his mother. Anakin refuses to be lured in, but the offer is tempting. Omega seems still in his search to draw out the Sith, but Anakin starts to believe that it is more about him than the Sith this time.

Back at the substation, Yaddle and Obi-Wan take it out, as planned. Obi-Wan plans to track Striker’s reinforcements back to Striker’s base, while Yaddle makes plans to go get the Mawans and start them in their move toward the surface. Shortly thereafter, though, they are contacted by Anakin. Omega wants to see Yaddle. She’ll trade her meeting with him for Anakin’s freedom. Upon arrival, Anakin’s shackles are released as in his vision, and Omega reveals that he has a bioweapon ready to strike wherever he chooses. Yaddle has no choice but to run into an airshaft that is launching the weapon and follow it into the sky, where she uses the Force to capture the entire essence of the blast, sucking it into herself, imploding into nothingness. Jedi Master Yaddle is dead, and Anakin will forever blame himself for her death. As Omega said, “The one below remains below.” He tells Obi-Wan, and they contact Coruscant. Yoda comes to see her resting place, but there is not much time to mourn. Decca and Omega have formed an alliance (Decca has transports, while Omega has fuel). They intend to attack the surface, which is giving Feeana second thoughts. The Jedi hatch a plan. They use Swanny and Rorq’s tunnel knowledge to flood the fuel tubes with waste water, disabling all of the transports. As the Jedi enter the staging area, they give chase to Omega, who is teamed up with Feeana! She thinks that Omega will win now, so she’s saving her own butt. However, as Omega tries to escape, he flings Feeana to her near-death. Anakin saves her, but no one can save Obi-Wan from the truth Omega reveals to him: Granta Omega is the son and heir of Qui-Gon’s nemesis and former Padawan, Xanatos! Before Obi-Wan can capture him, Omega escapes. A world is being rebuilt, a Jedi Master is dead, and the legacy of Xanatos remains . . .

(The Shadow Trap)*

*NOTE: This novel mistakenly calls the world of Yaddle’s imprisonment “Koda” instead of “Koba.” Also, Anakin is 16 in this story, but The Essential Reader’s Companion gives the story a date of 25 BY, instead of 26 BY. That means that this must take place within the first two months of the year.

- A memorial service is held for Jedi Master Yaddle at the Jedi Temple on Coruscant.
  (conjecture based on The Moment of Truth)
- Typha-Dor loses contact with their communications outpost on the moon TY44.
  (conjecture based on The Moment of Truth)
- While Anakin Skywalker still deals with his feelings of responsibility in the death of Yaddle, he and Obi-Wan Kenobi are sent to the Uziel system, where the planet Typha-Dor remains the only holdout against the great power in the system, Vanqor. Communication has been lost with a remote outpost for Typha-Dor, where a monitoring team are to determine any invasion threats, suggesting that Vanqor may be intending to attack Typha-Dor and solidify their power. When they are shot down, trying to land on the outpost moon, TY44, they have to hike through snowy landscape to finally reach the base. They are welcomed by the team at the base, led by Shalini and her husband, Mezdec. They claim that their communications officer, Samdew, had been a traitor, broadcasting information to Vanqor. He tried to kill Mezdec, which forced Mezdec to kill him. Now, they have a disk with the disposition of the Vanqor fleet, which is, in fact, ready for an invasion of Typha-Dor. They must get the information back to their home planet. Anakin fixes their only transport, at least enough to fly, and they take off for Typha-Dor. En route, though, they realize that Mezdec was lying about Samdew being the traitor, just as Mezdec, with the disk of invasion information, jettisons himself in an escape pod, bearing their only proof of the impending invasion. They make it as far as Vanqor, but end up crashing in the wilderness and coming under fire. Anakin is given the disk, but all but Obi-Wan are captured. Anakin is taken to the Zone of Self-Containment, where gas and drug treatments keep prisoners content and docile, so they won't want to escape. Anakin's effects are taken, along with the disk, and stored away for him, while he spends time in contentment, his guilt over Yaddle's death being overshadowed for the time being. A woman, the doctor who created the Zone, comes to see Anakin, given his early resistance to the Zone's effects, but he feigns no knowledge of the Force, despite her curiosity. Soon, Obi-Wan arrives at the facility and breaks Anakin out, reclaiming the disk as well. In their escape, they are forced down into gundark territory. Obi-Wan ends up in a gundark pit, forcing Anakin to snap out of his denial over Yaddle's death and fight against the Zone's conditioning. Anakin saves him just in time (an event he will later recount just before being reunited with Amidala before the Battle of Geonosis). Luckily, they are also soon joined by Siri Tachi, Ferus Olin, Tru Veld, Clee Rhara, and Ry-Gaul. Together, they take two ships to Typha-Dor, where they find that Mezdec has already arrived and given the invasion plans to the government. Knowing Mezdec is a traitor, they know that he has given the government false invasion plans to set a trap for Thypa-Dor's forces. They inform General Bycha of this, allowing Typha-Dor's forces to lay their own trap, forcing Vanqor's ruler to negotiate a peace for mutual benefit. Peace has been brought to the Uziel system, but questions remain. When Obi-Wan discusses the Zone of Self-Containment with Anakin, they realize that the doctor who visited Anakin, the one experimenting with mind control and curious about the Force, is none other than Qui-Gon Jinn's old nemesis Jenna Zan Arbor, now free from prison. Now, the Jedi have a new mission: find Jenna Zan Arbor and stop whatever insidious plans she may have. She has fled the Zone on Vanqor, though. And so, the chase is on . . . *

(The Moment of Truth)*

*NOTE: Anakin is 16 in this story, but The Essential Reader's Companion gives the story a date of 25 BBY, instead of 26 BBY. That means that this must take place within the first two months of the year.

* When the Republic Cruiser Radiant IX sends out a distress call from the Hoth system's asteroid field, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker investigate. They find the ship crashed on an asteroid and the entire crew dead, though not because of the crash. They find a woman survivor, who claims to be Alysun Celz, the pilot. She tells them that they were transporting a Dark Jedi named Et Rex back to Coruscant. While checking on the ship's damage, Obi-Wan is discovered by Et Rex, who claims to still be a Light Side Jedi. He reveals that Alysun is actually a Dark Jedi, who framed Et Rex as a Dark Jedi when he refused to follow her. Anakin, alone with Alysun, is blasted by Force lightning, leading Obi-Wan to leap in to help upon his return, only to be caught in the lightning as well. They are saved when Et Rex intervenes with a pair of bat-like creatures, who help them subdue the Dark Jedi for transport back to Coruscant, where Obi-Wan and Anakin will testify to help clear Et Rex's name.

(Poison Moon)

* The planet Thonner is settled.

(conjecture based on Race for the Tessent)

* Wilhuff Tarkin's Republic Star Destroyer discovers the Omwati race. Tarkin recognizes their intellectual potential and keeps the discovery hidden, so as to exploit them for his own purposes later in his career.

(conjecture based on Alien Anthology)

* Sampo's is cited as best restaurant on Commenor.

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)

* Rostek Horn begins preserving Hal Horn's Jedi heritage for his posterity by storing Jedi knowledge in the genetic structure of flowers.

(conjecture based on I, Jedi)

* Upon first contact with the Republic, the Ayrou renounce their il Madri religion. They declare their accumulated wealth taboo, and the Ur-Chapterhouse is transformed into the Society for Self-Actualization. In this transformation, the Ayrou tessent idol, often confused with that of Alsaka, is lost.

(conjecture based on Race for the Tessent)

- Around this time, the idea of individual planetary security forces for worlds begins to lose support, and the security forces weaken.

(conjecture based on Rebellion Era Sourcebook)

- The planet Isis, a world outside the fringe of the Republic, is found and explored by Alderaanian scouts. Several native life forms are found and contacted, including a nomadic crystalline people called the Gutretees. Bail Organa, at this time the First Chairman, decides to keep information about this world secret, known only to his political allies--sensing this world could become an important ace in the hole in this time of growing turmoil.

(conjecture based on The Isis Coordinates via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Media darlings Jobal Rapier and Yari Cranna get together, ostensibly just to inflate each other’s popularity.

(Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 10:9)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)

- Darth Sidious makes contact with Kadann, a former Jedi who had strayed from the Light Side and discovered a special vision-intensive bond with the Dark Side as part of his studies in the religious cult started by Darth Millennial, known as the Dark Force. Sidious (Palpatine) offers Kadann the chance to serve him with his visions. Kadann is made Supreme Prophet of the Dark Side and surrounded by other Dark Side adepts. This group, which included Jedgar, becomes known as the Prophets of the Dark Side (a twisting of how the order’s founder had considered himself a Prophet of the Dark Force) and sets up bases on Coruscant and Bosthirda. Over time, Kadann also comes to take over the care of Azrakel, a Force-sensitive youth who was experimented on by Palpatine. He helps forge Azrakel into a great warrior, but Azrakel grows to hate Kadann as much as Palpatine over the years. The Prophets of the Dark Side are a secret kept from Darth Vader, based on Dromund Kaas.*

(conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook and Evil Never Dies: The Sith Dynasties*)

*NOTE: I place this here to give internal politics time to cause the “Blackhole” situation listed at 20 BBY.

- Roworr is now a Republic scout but finds that slow-growing anti-alien sentiment among humans is causing him to be discriminated against, though only subtly. He begins considering a career as a bounty hunter.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game profile for Roworr, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)

- Kubaz information technology reaches its peak.*

(conjecture based on A Free-Trader’s Guide to the Planets)*

*NOTE: This is an estimate, since the Kubindi section of the article uses local years, not standard years.

- Shamus Falconi’s grandmother, a pirate, captures a 300-year-old ship, which she renames the Lumrunner.*

(conjecture based on the Lumrunners)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Falconi started smuggling 5 BBY and that his grandmother had a pirate career of about 20 years, which ended just as Falconi was entering the smuggling profession.

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)

The Master of Disguise (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 – 17

The School of Fear (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 - 16

The Shadow Trap (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 – 16

The Moment of Truth (youth novel: Jude Watson)

Chapters 1 – 18

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)

Poison Moon (DHE short story: Michael Carriglitto)

Poison Moon, Part I (DHE44 short story: Michael Carriglitto)

Poison Moon, Part II (DHE45 short story: Michael Carriglitto)
24 BBY

- Biggs Darklighter is born on Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)

  NOTE: Biggs is said to be five years older than Luke.

- Blaine Hanscom is born.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game)

- Jovan Vharing is born.
  (conjecture based on The Longest Fall)

- Arjon F.M.P. is born on Ord Mantell.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 6: Tramp Freighters)

- Jerresk is born on Calamari.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Beyla Rus is born on Tibro.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Tamo Lan is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #10)

- Lady Valarian is born on Toola.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley)

- Jan Ors (later AKA “Jan Strange”) is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives and The Dark Forces Saga, Part II: Unsung Heroes of the Light)

- Shenir Rix is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)

- Keleman Ciro is born.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign)

  NOTE: This interprets “early thirties” as 32 years old.

- Kaiya Atrimetrum is born.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign)

  NOTE: This interprets “early thirties” as 32 years old.

- Han Solo is actively begging for Garris Shrike. At about the same time, Padra, another of Shrike’s “rescuees” is promoted to full-fledged pickpocketing. Han hopes to be pickpocketing soon. (To be continued below . . . )
  (The Paradise Snare)

- Due to elbow injuries, Garcy Flugg misses his first hi-lo ball game. He will miss another fourteen games before opting for a mechno-arm two years from now.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)

- Dane has his first run-in with Robior Web.
  (conjecture based on Legacy of the Jedi)

- Varan Gault dies in an accident on Tatooine. His twin, Veeka Gault, begins to live life to extremes.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)

- Gloamer opens up a repair business in one of the Calwell garages at Dannar’s Claim on Tatooine. He will develop it into a thriving business from just a single rented bay.
  (conjecture based on Kenobi)

- The Military Creation Act, which would create a standing army for the Republic, is created. It will be held up in bureaucratic procedures for the next two years before a final vote date is set by Supreme Chancellor Palpatine.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

- On Haruun Kal, Besh is taken prisoner by the Balawai and tortured. He loses fingers and his tongue in the ordeal.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
• On Haruun Kal, the Korunnai begin keeping their grasser herds separated into small groups to keep them from being easy targets for Balawai assaults.
  (conjecture based on Shatterpoint)
• Around this time, Jula Shryne and the crew of the Drunk Dancer (hired by Darth Tyranus) make a hardware run to a facility on the moon of Jaguada. This experience will come in handy five to six year later when on the run with Roan Shryne and Olee Starstone.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)
• Sampo’s is cited as best restaurant on Commenor for the second year in a row.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
• Chentu Chek joins the Bounty Hunters Guild.*
  (conjecture based on The Bounty Hunter Code)*
*NOTE: This assumes that the copy of The Bounty Hunter’s Guild Handbook that was owned by Greedo was published in the year prior to ANH, and that Chentu’s tenure in the Bounty Hunters Guild was updated for that edition.
• Arakyd Industries accuses Viper Sensor Intelligence Systems of using Arakyd probe droid designs when creating their own prototype XPLR-R unit.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 11:5)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• As Padmé Amidala’s second four-year term ends, term limits force her not to seek re-election (even though there is a movement to amend the constitution to allow her to remain in office). Jamillia is elected Queen of Naboo. As for Padmé, she is elected to the Galactic Senate, after being asked to serve by Jamillia.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
• TCW DATE: Rush Clovis becomes the Republic Senator for Scipio.
  (conjecture based on Senate Spy)
• TCW DATE: New Senator Padmé Amidala meets another first-year senator, Rush Clovis of Scipio. The two have a brief romantic relationship.
  (conjecture based on Senate Spy)
• After being elected to the Galactic Senate, Padmé Amidala is allowed to continue using the Naboo Royal Cruiser and a smaller Royal Yacht. The Royal Starship she used when she was the queen is retired, while a new, almost identical version is created for Queen Jamillia.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)
• Jar Jar Binks, having used his heroism in the Battle of Naboo to become part of the Rep Council, then ambassador to Theed, decides to follow Padmé Amidala to Coruscant.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
• On Coruscant, a group of assassins (Maash, Vela, a Yuzzum, and others) meet with the legendary assassin Kelsara Llenkch, with whom they are to work on a new contract. They have been hired by someone on what will be the Separatist side in the upcoming Clone Wars to give their side an advantage as the war begins. Their mission is therefore to assassinate Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. Palpatine will soon be attending an event being held by Senator Padmé Amidala’s Naboo delegation. At the site of the event, Gregar Typho is handling security arrangements (including sentinel droids that are activated with the push of a big red button), while Jar Jar Binks offers his “advice” along the way (having been specifically recommended as a security advisor by Palpatine). While Typho does a security sweep, Jar Jar is asked to check on the kitchen to see how the cooks are doing. He inadvertently overhears members of the assassin team, now dressed as cooks, talking about the dead bodies of the real cooks. He races off to warn Typho. Just after Typho calls in an all-clear for his latest sweep, Kelsara orders her sniper to shoot him. Jar Jar narrowly saves his life by tackling him (by actually just running into him in clumsy fashion). Unfortunately, Typho is briefly knocked out. Jar Jar grabs the remote for the droids, activates them, but is then held at blasterpoint and told to drop the remote. He does so, causing it to activate again, which leads to the droids taking down all of the assassins. In the end, Palpatine thanks Jar Jar for foiling the plot on his life and rewards the Gungan by suggesting that he become the Junior Representative for Naboo in the Galactic Senate. Jar Jar excitedly takes the offer. The Sith now have an easily-manipulated dupe that trusts Palpatine in the Senate.*
  (Too Many Cooks)*
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

*NOTE: The actual comic just puts this shortly before the Clone Wars, but given that we already have a date for when Jar Jar becomes a Representative, it only makes sense that it be here, about two years prior to AOTC.

- On the recommendation of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine, Jar Jar Binks is elected to the Galactic Representative Commission to represent the Gungans.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters and Too Many Cooks)
- The day after Jar Jar Binks saves the life of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine by foiling an assassination plot, The Coruscan HoloNet reports (in an article by Tho-Masfran Ciss) on the event.
  (conjecture based on The Coruscant HoloNet in the UK Star Wars Magazine #4)*

*NOTE: As noted in another entry from this item, it makes no sense for a newspaper in this era to refer to itself as being established in “48 BBY,” since they would have had no reference point for such a dating system. While that obvious error carries over The Clone Wars Magazine, so does the inconsistency in how to spell “HoloNet” (as two words or one). Moreover, this story happens before the Clone Wars, as the comic specifically notes, yet this issue that reports on that event the very next day has an advertisement about defeating evil by supporting “our clones,” which makes zero sense, given that the clone army would not have been revealed yet.

- Sebulba, now free of his suspension from Podracing, embarks on a “revenge tour” around the Podracing Circuit.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- After his second four-year term as Supreme Chancellor ends, Palpatine should be stepping down because of term limits. Instead, a series of engineered crisis situations allows him to continue on as Supreme Chancellor for two more years before he will be granted emergency powers.*
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones”)*

*NOTE: Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84 would put this event back in 26 BBY, which really makes very little sense, as it’s supposed to be happening because of the Separatist movement. I’m keeping the event here until I can figure out what’s going on, and I’m also not worrying with the information surrounding it on the same page until I know for sure that the dates are meant to be correct. (It also completely changes the date for the Outbound Flight Project on that same page. I’m a bit wary, given how many other sources contradict the RHNN article.)

- TCW DATE: Almost immediately after becoming a senator, Padmé Amidala begins working with Bail Organa on various committees. She also becomes friends with his wife Breha Organa.
  (conjecture based on Wild Space)
- Dhar Bullwin betrays his Scitrok master and kills him, taking his place as leader of the Warriors. He spends the next twenty-five years of his life searching for the treasures of Koda’s World.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 8: Scouts via TimeTales, verbatim)
- Count Dooku, former Jedi Master of Qui-Gon Jinn, emerges from seclusion, reappearing on Raxus Prime. He begins to form a separatist movement within the Republic, under orders as Darth Tyranus from Darth Sidious. The separatist movement is part of his mission for Sidious. He will slowly gather the support of over a hundred worlds, plus the Trade Federation, Techno Union, and their ilk, to create the Confederacy of Independent Systems. He will use this to sow the seeds of separatism in the Republic, forcing the Republic to move toward military action against the Confederacy, thereby giving Sidious/Palpatine the justification he needs to create a clone army (created under Tyranus’ authority on Kamino) to fight the Confederacy’s advanced battle droids (created under Tyranus’ authority on Geonosis). His speech, broadcast by hijacking a communication station in the Tion Hegemony, is later referred to as the Raxus Address.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
- As Dooku begins to rally outlying systems to join his Confederacy of Independent Systems, Veroleem begins secretly supporting the CIS despite officially remaining neutral.*
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn.

- With the birth of the Separatist movement and Geonosis being on the Separatist side in the growing divide, Republic scientist Bevel Lemelisk will grow fearful that the Death Star project’s plans and research remain on Geonosis, putting them in Separatist hands. For reasons unbeknownst to Lemelisk, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine seems unconcerned…
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)
With the birth of the Separatist movement, some pro-Separatist designers on Mon Calamari (Dac, Mon Cala) begin developing the Providence-class battleship by revising designs of the Rendili Dreadnought.*

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)*

*NOTE: This is likely meant to be during the Clone Wars, rather than before it, but I figure that they needed time to do the redesign. The appearance of the Providence in Kinect Star Wars' story mode also negates the possibility of this design being done after the Clone Wars begin.

With the birth of the Separatist movement, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine “reluctantly” agrees to stay on as Supreme Chancellor, rather than ending his service after eight years, in order to deal with the Separatist crisis.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

With the reappearance of Count Dooku on Raxus Prime and the emergence of the Separatist movement, Quinlan Vos begins creating a network of spies among the Separatist ranks.

(conjecture based on Sacrifice)

As the Separatist crisis begins to build, a tibanna gas boom causes Cloud City on Bespin to become a major source of the gas. Lutrillian Baron Administrator Ulumahal oversees the transition of Cloud City from an illegal mining operation into a booming cultural center, reshaping the city’s image and economy.

(conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)

As the Separatists secretly prepare for war against the Republic, the Geonosians set up droid foundries on Xorrn. However, the geology of Xorrn makes traditional Geonosian spires that project up from the ground impractical, so they reverse the design and dig downward into the planet to create their droid foundries.*

(conjecture based on Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: This could be any time prior to the Clone Wars but after the Separatists actually emerge as a faction.

When Senate Intelligence Bureau agent Wullf Yularen finds his anti-corruption activities too successful, he makes powerful enemies within the Bureau and the Senate, which ends in him being sidelined. Fortunately, he has gotten the attention of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine, who picks him for a special unit to investigate corruption and Separatism. Unfortunately, the Senate sees this special unit as a threat to its own power and makes sure that the new unit is starved for funding. The unit falls apart, and Yularen takes an early, forced retirement to Anaxes, where he will stew until the Clone Wars.*

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)*

*NOTE: We do not have a definite date for this, so it could be any time during Palpatine’s time as Supreme Chancellor, but he is reactivated “soon” for the Clone Wars, and since Dooku has just declared his cause in this year, I thought activities regarding separatism would likely spring from that event.

Sensing that war is imminent between the Republic and the Separatists, Kuat Drive Yards continues building Republic weapons technology on well-protected facilities like those on Rothana.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)

Senator Garm Bel Iblis argues the legality of secession in the Senate.

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

Ludi Billane is born to Jonava Billane on Ord Thoden. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 11:10)*

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)*

*NOTE: I usually note births first, but this time, we have an exact month of birth, so I integrated it into the normal flow of events.

As the Separatist threat becomes clearer, Senatorial Guard Captain Prid Shan demands additional funding to create a separate offshoot of elite Senate Guards, who become the red-clad Supreme Chancellor’s Guard, the precursor to the Emperor’s Royal Guard.

(conjecture based on Galactic Power Brokers)

The Clawdites of Zolan approach the Separatists for aide in starting a civil war to free them of Zolander oppression. One early in-road for the Clawdites is the fact that Zam Wesell, a Clawdite bounty hunter, is working, at least tangentially, for the Separatists.

(conjecture based on The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Clawdites)

Around this time, Fi (future Republic Commando member of Omega Squad) learns zero-gravity maneuvering skills.*
NOTE: This date assumes that Fi was in one of the early batches of clonetroopers. Either way, we are told that he is 16 in clone years (8 in chronological years) at this point.

- On Coruscant, Senator Jheramahd Greyshade, son of Murglak and senator for the Commonality, is assassinated and tossed from his window. Senate Guard Zalin Bey informs her ex-partner Sagoro Autem and his new partner, Isaru Omin, that they are being called to Supreme Chancellor Palpatine’s office. There, they discover that Jheramahd Greyshade has been replaced by his cousin Simon Greyshade. Simon has been assigned two Jedi (Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker) as protection, while Sagoro and Isaru are to investigate Jheramahd’s death. Sagoro is rather rude to the Jedi, not believing in their “mumbo-jumbo,” but Isaru is at least cordial, having been found to have Force talent at two years old, but being unable to train at such a late age. As the two Guardsmen leave, they head for where Sagoro’s wife, Sula, has informed him that his son is in trouble. It seems that his son, Reymet, has gone with his girlfriend, Riao, and little sister, Lissa, to participate in illegal garbage pit racing—a sport soon to be raided by the government. The Guardsmen go to the race area, where they arrive just as the judicials begin their raid. The Guardsmen take Reymet and Lissa into “custody,” but leave Riao to be taken away, much to the children’s anger. Meanwhile, Simon Greyshade contacts his benefactor, Venco, who has made an agreement with Simon. Simon gets a Senate seat (thanks to Venco helping assassinate Jheramahd), and Venco gets Simon to vote his way on the upcoming Financial Reform Act, which may spell the separation of several systems from the Republic. Simon is toying with Venco about which way he might vote, but Venco reminds him that he can easily be replace in the same fashion as his predecessor. As Simon leaves his room after the conversation, his droid attacks him, forcing the Jedi to defend him. At the Autem household, Sagoro and Reymet are in a shouting match over Riao and how Sagoro thinks that Reymet is soiling their family name (several generations of Guardsmen) with his actions, just like Sagoro’s brother did. Moments later, Sagoro’s brother (speak of the Devil) arrives . . . It’s Venco. Sagoro is not happy to see his brother, whom he considers a disgrace for betraying the Senate Guard code. Venco tries to convince Sagoro to help him because he is dying, but when Sagoro is called to the scene of the droid attack, he orders Venco to get out of his home as well. At the crime scene, the Jedi and Guards discover that the droids were being controlled by a sophisticated device that allows the owner to move them with his or her thoughts. While the Guards keep investigating, the two Jedi go with Greyshade to a reception being held in his honor. Soon, at the Judicial lock-up, Venco finds Reymet arguing for Riao’s release, unsuccessfully. Venco bribes a guard to get Riao free, and in return Reymet uses Sagaro’s access codes to get someone close to Greyshade . . . At the reception, Greyshade is flirting with a mysterious lobbyist named Princess Tsian. When Tsian wants to go out to the balcony to be alone with Greyshade, Anakin allows it, but only after Greyshade plays on his emotions. The Guards, however, have discovered that Tsian is a hired assassin. They inform Obi-Wan, but by that time, small bladed droids are already attacking Greyshade on the balcony, at Tsian’s command. The Guards and Jedi save Greyshade, and the Guards take Tsian into custody. Her incapacitation, though, means that the contract is open to any other bounty hunter, so another one named Keluda attacks them on their way back to Greyshade’s residence. Obi-Wan and Anakin race around in a speeder to avoid Keluda until Obi-Wan knocks him from his speeder and holds him up with the Force, threatening to let him fall to his doom if he doesn’t tell the Jedi who hired him. Keluda tells them it was Venco Autem, just before firing on Obi-Wan . . . and falling to his death. (Dugs aren’t that smart at times, I guess.) The Jedi head off to speak to Sagoro Autem, who is interrogating Tsian. The Jedi tell the Guards that she is working for Venco, and Sagoro, who is as surprised as anyone, is removed from the case. As the investigation continues, Tsian is in a holding cell, but receives a communication from Venco through the implants that allowed her to control the droids. He has a plan for her escape, and he wants her to create a diversion so that Venco can take care of Greyshade himself. Venco leaves to make more plans, telling Riao and Reymet to stay there before they can escape offworld together. Reymet can’t just leave without saying goodbye to his mother, though, so they head for home. Meanwhile, Sagoro is doing his own investigating, but heads home as well. A short time later, as Greyshade enters the Senate on his platform, with only a Guard with him, assuring his safety. Tsian’s escape goes into action, causing chaos at the holding cells. Meanwhile, Sagoro returns home and tries to convince Reyment not to leave, but when Reyment mentions Venco, Sagoro goes off. He tells Reyment that Venco is behind the assassination plot he is investigating, then learns that Reyment gave Venco Sagoro’s access code. Sagoro reports this to Isaru. As he races to help stop Tsian, his wife tells Reyment and the others to pack. If Reyment stays, he’ll be an accessory to murder. Back at the Senate, the Jedi and Guards outside the Senate are under attack, but the real threat is inside, as the Guard on Greyshade’s platform reveals himself to be Venco and holds Greyshade at rifle-point. Sagoro appears, forcing them into a firefight from one floating platform to another. Venco argues that he wants to make a difference before he dies, which is why he put the plot in motion. He wonders how Sagoro could side with corrupt Senators, but Sagoro counters that he doesn’t care for the Senators, but the institution and its principles deserve to be defended. With that, Sagoro shoots and kills Venco, saving Greyshade. In the aftermath, it seems that perhaps there were other hands at work, as Palpatine laments that the activity that day makes a vote useless, and other systems are already separating from the Republic over the issue (which fits right into his plans as Darth Sidious, doesn’t it?). Later, Sagoro allows Reyment and Riao to escape from Coruscant. Isaru wants to arrest Reyment, but Sagoro holds a blaster on him. If anyone is to answer for recent events, it will be Sagoro himself. He has given his son the last gift he can give—freedom.*

*NOTE: Again, Dark Horse’s internal time notations are inconsistent. The interior front cover of this issue places it at 23 BBY . . . then the very first text box of the story itself places it eight years after the Battle of Naboo (24 BBY). I prefer to go by the story itself, not the interior notation, until such time as the discrepancy is resolved.

At the Jedi Temple, Mace Windu recounts the story of how he came across the crystal that he used to create his electrum lightsaber, then begins training the young Jedi students how to build their own lightsabers.

(Stones)

One night while Anakin Skywalker is prowling the streets of Coruscant by himself, he sees a group of teenagers at the entrance to a cargo tunnel. When he asks a girl named Oollie what is going on, she says that a swoop race is about to begin. Anakin watches and sees how dangerous the races are when one of the swoops crashes and explodes. Excited, Anakin acquires his own swoop and tinkers with it until it is the fastest swoop of any of the racers. He begins racing almost every night and soon acquires an underground reputation as the racing Jedi. One night, Anakin is challenged to a race by Drako, the four-armed Codru-Ji leader of the Hawk-bat gang, who has never lost a race. Anakin begins sensing danger through the Force, but ignores it. He shows up for the race, only to see that the normal racing officials have been replaced by members of the Hawk-bats. The race begins, and once they are out of viewing range of the racing fans, Drako pulls out an ion blaster and shoots Anakin’s swoop. Out of control, Anakin’s swoop crashes into a cargo carrier. Just barely able to leap free in time, Anakin survives, but has lost his swoop. (To be continued below . . . )*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. There is no indication of when this takes place, other than that it is between Path to Truth and AOTC. I have put it here, just two years prior to AOTC, to move it along a bit from the previous flashbacks.

An unknown Jedi has been interfering with the operations of Akris Ur’etu, head of the criminal Skar’kla Consortium. Cad Bane has been hired to stop him, protecting Akris. When the Jedi attacks, Bane watches him closely and follows him through Akris’ base, but he allows the Jedi to kill Akris because he has realized that the “Jedi” is actually just a normal bounty hunter, who has managed to use technological means to simulate Jedi abilities. Rather than kill the fellow bounty hunter, Cad Bane allows him to live, provided he shares the secrets of his technology with Bane. Bane knows that war is on the horizon, and he intends to make his fortune in it. Such technology as rocket boots will go a long way in helping him do just that.*

*NOTE: The story itself does not pin down its year, only providing vague clues. The Essential Reader’s Companion, however, has pinned it down to circa 24 BBY.

(Reputation)
• For months (supposedly six, but see the note below), Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker have been hunting Jenna Zan Arbor, with no success. Now that Anakin has shown his true fears about being the Chosen One, the bond between Master and Padawan has been able to heal from recent troubles. Now, thanks to their friend, Senate aide Tyro Caladian, they know that Zan Arbor has gone to Romin, where the ruler, Roy Teda, allows criminals to hide out without fear of extradition, if they pay large fees. Not surprisingly, Teda is a patron of Senator Sano Sauro, a frequent thorn in Obi-Wan’s side. They learn, though, that two thieves, Slam and Valadon, have recently been captured after escaping the Greylands Security Complex on Tentator. With this news, assuming they can keep it a secret, Obi-Wan can impersonate Slam, while Siri Tachi impersonates Valadon, and the two of them, along with Anakin and Ferus Olin, can infiltrate Romin and apprehend Zan Arbor, extradition laws be damned. They arrive on Romin at the Teda Landing Platform in Eliior, where they are welcomed by one of Teda’s men, Becka. They bear witness to the near paradise lifestyle within the city walls, knowing that despite the large bribes paid to the government, none of the workers or children outside the walls will ever see the money. They pay Zan Arbor a visit, offering her a cut in a major job, if only she will join them. Unfortunately, she doesn’t take the bait, dropping a hint that something even bigger is in the works. Meanwhile, as “Slam” and “Valadon” are making their offer, Anakin and Ferus search for anything unusual in the city, only to be kidnapped and taken to meet with the leader of the anti-Teda resistance, Joylin, who offers to pay the “criminals” to help them get into the city and take over. They will help give the “criminals” what they need to get sensitive files at Teda’s upcoming party, then they can use that info to facilitate a hopefully bloodless coup. They can simply use the info in the files to lock the government leaders in their homes and quarters, letting them take over. After speaking with their Masters, the Jedi decide that they should help, but files broken into at Zan Arbor’s bring greater fears to the mission, as they learn that Zan Arbor is in league with Granta Omega. They are certain they need to help the resistance now, so they can trick Zan Arbor into fleeing with them, then take her back to Coruscant. At the party, they learn that Becka is in league with the resistance, and they’re able to get the info they need, but not before learning that the real Slam and Valadon are on the planet, though they haven’t met Teda yet. The Jedi get out and get the resistance the codes they need in exchange for Zan Arbor’s capture. Unfortunately, when the coup begins, Zan Arbor and Roy Teda escape capture and the coup isn’t as bloodless as they’d hoped. To get the fugitives back, Joylin, now in charge, says that he’ll begin killing government officials that are now his hostages if the two don’t return to be taken into custody. The Jedi tell him they won’t allow this, finally revealing their true identities, but Joylin won’t back down. They receive a message meant for “Slam and Valadon” from Zan Arbor and Teda, who want to get off-planet. They go to meet with the two fugitives, but are interrupted when the real Slam and Valadon arrive. The Jedi are discovered, as Zan Arbor recognizes Anakin from six months earlier and Obi-Wan reveals that he is the young Padawan she met decades earlier. The Jedi are taken into custody, but one prison breakout later, they are met by an arriving Jedi backup group, consisting of Mace Windu, Bant Airen, and Garen Muln. They capture Zan Arbor and Teda, then convince Joylin to stop the executions and be a bit more rational, but Zan Arbor and Teda are released, just to get them out of Joylin’s hair. As Zan Arbor escapes, the Jedi know that she could lead them to Granta Omega. Instead of recapturing her, they allow her to escape. Obi-Wan and Anakin will now be hunting down bigger prey, Granta Omega . . . but Omega knows they’re coming . . . *

(The Changing of the Guard)*

*NOTE: Anakin is 17 in this story, but The Essential Reader’s Companion gives the story a date of 25 BBY, instead of 26 BBY. That means that this must take place within the first four months of the year. However, this is a contradiction, since the story is also said to take place 6 months after The Moment of Truth, which must, due to the ERC date and Anakin’s age, be within the first 2 months or so of 25 BBY. As such, it is impossible for 6 months after The Moment of Truth to put this story into 24 BBY at all, as it would be, at the very latest, still months away from the year change. I am assuming that the six month calculation is now considered erroneous, since the ERC has altered the date, presumably based on Anakin’s age.

• Tracking Jenna Zan Arbor and Roy Teda (who are now in league with Slam and Valadon, and who are allies of Granta Omega, the son of Xanatos), Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker, Siri Tachi, and Ferus Olin arrive on Falleen, where they quickly discover a secret operation in a Blackwater factory, where Zan Arbor’s “Zone” is being tested for conductivity through water. With the help of a local reporter-turned-activist, Mazara, they are able to get into the facility and find the testing area and information stating that one stage of the project had been shut down, while another had begun. They are unable to search anymore, though, as the factory implodes, covering all evidence of Omega and Zan Arbor’s experiments.

Knowing that Roy Teda (and likely his other allies) has now left Falleen, the Jedi are ready to pursue, but are called to Coruscant instead. Upon arrival, they speak with Mace Windu and learn that an anti-Jedi faction has grown in power within the Senate, led by Obi-Wan’s old friend Astri’s husband, Bog Divinian. Now, a hearing is taking place, in which Roy Teda, newly arrived on Coruscant looking for sanctuary, is testifying that the Jedi helped lead a coup that overthrew his rightful government. Granted, this was not the Jedi’s goal, but they did aid in a sense, and Bog’s questioning of Obi-Wan during the session makes it clear that he’s twisting things against the Jedi. Afterword, Obi-Wan meets with Astri, who tells him of she and Bog’s three-year-old son, Lune. Astri seems afraid for her son for some reason . . . There is a ceremony to commemorate the start of the All Planets Relief Fund very soon, which will include a speech by Supreme Chancellor Palpatine (who is using any chance he can get to suggest to Anakin that he is special and should have greater say in various matters and should do whatever is necessary, despite limits placed on him by the Jedi Order), along with the presentation of a huge treasury worth of vertex to the All Planets Relief Fund, which will be taken directly into a vault at the Bank of the Core. When investigating a presumed hideout for Omega and Zan Arbor, they come up drawing a blank, minus some spices from Dexter’s Diner. Upon heading to the diner, they end up meeting Astri inside and learning that she is part of the Relief Fund. They also learn that Bog was apparently picking up food there to take to Omega and Zan Arbor in hiding. Upon checking out a speeder that a mysterious woman (likely Valadon) had paid Dex to park behind his diner for easy access during the ceremony, they discover a strange blue thread, but have no idea where it came from. The airspeeder, however, had been parked (before Dex moved it), over a water system access point, which makes them realize that Zan Arbor must be planning to use the Zone of Self-Containment through water to disrupt the Fund ceremony. The Jedi would appear to be helpless, and the Senate Guards would be “Zoned” into ineffectiveness. In response, the Jedi urge stronger security of the ceremony, and, in order to gain Astri’s assistance, they bring Didi Oddo and her son, Lune, to Coruscant to be with her. It appears that Bog had threatened to take her son away forever if she didn’t help him against the Jedi. Now, she intends to leave him, and she gives the Jedi copies of his personal note recordings, which they begin researching. When the ceremony takes place, the vertex is just about in custody when Obi-Wan notices a torn hem on one of the blue Senate Guardsmen’s robes, he realizes that the blue thread in the airspeeder behind Dex’s Diner was from that hem. The two people “guarding” the vertex are actually Slam and Valadon. He and Anakin quickly take them into custody, but something clicks into place, now that they notice that there was no attempt to get into the water system. This was a diversion. The real action, the one thing that would make sense for Bog Divinian to be practicing a nomination speech for Sano Sauro in his personal notes, must be an assassination attempt on Palpatine! They also realize that the water system wasn’t the transmission means for the Zone after all. They had misinterpreted the information from Falleen. The water transmission tests had failed. Zan Arbor was going to use air this time. In theory, this would mean sending the Zone influence into the Senate itself, allowing for the easy assassination of Palpatine during a vote on whether or not the Jedi should be banned from Senate activities (argued fiercely between Bog and Bail Organa). Then, with so many anti-Jedi supporters present (and the others lulled into the Zone), they could easily elect Sano Sauro, Bog’s patron, as the new Supreme Chancellor. Obi-Wan orders Anakin to stay with Palpatine and heads into the air tunnels (but when Ferus and Siri show up, Anakin and Siri head off after Obi-Wan, while Ferus stays with Palpatine). In the tunnels, Obi-Wan finds Granta Omega and Jenna Zan Arbor on a speeder. He manages to chase after them, but they release seeker droids to go after and kill numerous pre-programmed senators. Racing to the Senate, the Jedi attempt to save Palpatine. Ferus is the only one guarding Palpatine, but the others soon arrive. Roy Teda is killed in the ruckus, as is Obi-Wan’s old friend Tyro Caladian, whom he’d asked to investigate Bog’s recordings . .
and who had only shortly before contacted Obi-Wan about a great darker, higher power behind current events. It would appear that Tyro was targeted, even though he was only an aide, to cover up whatever he’d found. As for Palpatine, he is saved by the Jedi, and as a result, the anti-Jedi motion is defeated. As for Granta Omega and Jenna Zan Arbor, they manage to escape in a starship, but not until after Anakin manages to injure Zan Arbor by slicing into their viewport and sending the hot pane of the viewport onto her. (She’s injured, not dead.) And so, Granta Omega and Jenna Zan Arbor are once again on the run, while Roy Teda is dead, Bog Divinian and Sano Sauro’s action has failed, and Anakin is again being prodded toward arrogance and the Dark Side by Palpatine himself, in whom Obi-Wan, upon physically touching the Chancellor’s arm, had sensed a strange repulsive darkness that he has, quite unfortunately, shrugged off as nothing . . .*

(The False Peace)

*NOTE: This must be in the last week or so of this year, since The Essential Reader’s Companion puts this story in 24 BBY, but the next story, The Final Showdown, which is set only days after these events, in 23 BBY.

- A Jedi in a G-9 Rigger visits Haruun Kal and notes in his log how odd it is to be on Mace Windu’s homeworld and finding a culture so unlike him. (Exact date of report: 11:17:9)*

(conjecture based on Force and Destiny Core Rulebook)

*NOTE: Yes, I know there are only supposed to be 12 months in a Star Wars year, but the date does indeed say “17” in the months place.

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
The Paradise Snare [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
Ylesian Dreams [flashback] [continued]

Star Wars Magazine Comics [continued] (comic series: Rik Hoskin & Mike Barr & Martin Fisher & Chris Cooper & Robin Etherington)
Too Many Cooks (SWMUS2 comic: Chris Cooper)

Honor and Duty (comic series: John Ostrander)
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
Honor and Duty (comic series: John Ostrander)
Honor and Duty, Part I (comic series: John Ostrander)
Honor and Duty, Part II (comic series: John Ostrander)
Honor and Duty, Part III (comic series: John Ostrander)

Stones [continued] (SWT13 short story: Haden Blackman)
Stones [continued] (SWT13 short story: Haden Blackman)

A Double Life [flashback]
The Deadly Race [flashback]

Reputation (SWI136 short story: Ari Marmell)
Reputation (SWI136 short story: Ari Marmell)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
The Changing of the Guard (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 17
The False Peace (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 21

23 BBY

- Page is born on Corulag.

  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)

- Ton Phannan is born on Rudrig

  (conjecture based on information provided by Aaron Allston to TimeTales via Nathan Blumenfeld)

- Fionna Flannis is born.

  (conjecture based on Craken’s Rebel Operatives)

- Around this time, Connor Freeman is born. He is the son of an escaped Jango Fett clone from Kamino and an unknown woman.
(conjecture based on Jango and Boba Fett)

- Maniac is born.*
  (conjecture based on Cracken's Rebel Operatives)*

*NOTE: This refers to the character actually named "Maniac." Surely we all know that with the abundance of villains in the Star Wars universe, there's a maniac (not just a sucker) born every minute.

- Lavek Talstin is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken's Rebel Operatives)

- Dair Haslip is born.
  (conjecture based on Whispers in the Dark)

- Lyda Skims is born.*
  (conjecture based on Alliance Operative Field Dossier: Skimmer)*

*NOTE: She is 24 in her dossier, which is based on information concurrent with The Cries of Alderaan. Since The Cries of Alderaan tie into the Galaxies MMO, I have chosen to place that story with the tie-in novel The Ruins of Dantooine in 1 ABY. That means that Lyda is born here in 23 BBY.

- Alva is born.*
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)*

*NOTE: She is "in her early twenties" in Mask of the Pirate Queen, which is likely set shortly after ANH. I have rounded to her being 23 years old.

- Londrah is born on A'El.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Ten Dorne is born on Sluis Van.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Lar Maendin is born on Vastrip IV.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Rodin Baem is born on Hoylin.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Moxin Tark is born on Bandonia.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- The Windsinger disappears.
  (conjecture based on Starships of the Galaxy)

- Jedi Ace pilot Jaizen Suel, a renegade who has since cut of ties with the Jedi council, cruises the galaxy apprehending piracy and slavery in her CloakShape fighter Dawn's Raider.
  (conjecture based on Starships of the Galaxy via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Tremayne begins studying to be a Jedi under Jedi Master Dav Kylanu.
  (conjecture based on Dark Vendetta and Prey)

- Supreme Chancellor Palpatine (presumably secretly) uses Hell's Hammers to crush opposition within the Old Republic.
  (conjecture based on Imperial Sourcebook)

- Sampo's is cited as best restaurant on Commenor for the third year in a row.
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)

- A new species of worrt, called space wortts, appears in the asteroid belts near New Plympto and Antar. They're enormous (first discovered when one eats a Rodian), so it becomes popular amongst hotshot pilots to fly close enough to the asteroids to catch sight of one and perhaps shake off any mynocks clinging to the ship as food for the wortts.*
  (conjecture based on Space Worrts)*

*NOTE: This information was provided by Luke van Horn. Luke notes that there is no time frame given for when this happens, though it happens "recently." I looked up the article myself and found a note at the bottom that suggest using Komari Vosa (from Bounty Hunter) in a campaign if space wortts aren't enough. Between that and the date of the article (November 21, 2002), I am convinced that the "present" for the article is sometime around Attack of the Clones, so "recent" would perhaps be here in 23 BBY.

- TCW DATE: Around this time, Anakin Skywalker sets a new record for distance with a Force leap at the Jedi Temple, smashing Mace Windu's record by nearly fifteen meters.
  (conjecture based on Stealth)

- A memorial is completed on Quermia for the fallen Quermian Jedi Master Yarael Poof. Mace Windu and Kit Fisto are in attendance at a ceremony for its dedication, but will soon be called away to assist Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker, and Bultar Swan on Nallastia.
  (conjecture based on The Hostage Princess)
- Clive Flax sees Eve Yarrow at the Galactic Luxury Cruiser Convention. This will allow him to identify “Flame” as Yarrow five years from now.
  (conjecture based on Reckoning)
- Shortly before the eruption of the Clone Wars, Arakyd Industries becomes a member of the Techno Union.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- Sometime in the final years of the Republic, the Undicur jumpspeeder is released by Kuat Vehicles.
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)
- Sometime in the final years of the Republic, SoroSuub introduces the GLX Firelance blaster rifle.
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)
- Sometime in the final years of the Republic, the GU-series “Guardian” police droids are produced by Cybot Galactica for the Coruscant Security Force.
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)
- Around this time, Lord Cronal takes the codename “Blackhole” to represent his following of the Way of the Dark, then goes to Dromund Kaas, where he infiltrates and begins to secretly dominate the Prophets of the Dark Side. Cronal had previously lived among the Sorcerers of Rhand at the Nihil Retreat in the Perann Nebula, from whom he learned about the Way of the Dark, Darksight, the One Truth, and other elements of the Dark philosophy.*
  (conjecture based on Luke Skywalker and the Shadows of Mindor)*

  *NOTE: This must be sometime between the founding of the Prophets of the Dark Side and when Jerec learns of them from Cronal AKA Blackhole.

- After approximately 8.5 years, the ARC Trooper prototype Alpha-02 (Spar) learns of the exploits of Jango Fett, the template that created him on Kamino. Upon hearing of Jango, memories from Jango’s life flood into Spar’s mind. Spar escapes from Kamino with the help of Mij Gilamar, heading for the Outer Rim, where he will wander until the outbreak of the Clone Wars. Eventually, word of Spar’s exploits will get out to other clones, some of whom will decide to leave the Grand Army of the Republic (many of whom will be executed by Clone Intelligence for this act of “treason”).
  (conjecture based on The History of the Mandalorians and Order 66)
- At some point prior to the Battle of Geonosis, a Jango Fett clone known as the “Mandalorian Anomaly” is trained on Kamino as a Republic Commando. He is trained by one of the best Mandalorian instructors (but not Jango Fett), whom he kills with his bare hands when the two butt heads. The clone takes the name of the Mandalorian destroyer god, Kad Ha’rangir, and uses “Kad” forward and backwards to create a name for himself: “Kaddak.” He is locked away and experimented upon to determine how the cloning process could go so wrongly. In captivity, he talks of destroying everything and rebuilding it again. He builds up his strength and body mass, also tattooing his name all over his body in Aurebesh. While in his cell, he is once delivered food by CT-5539, whom he refers to as a “slave.” Later, Kaddak disappears. Rumors say that he was terminated after the tests were completed, but others claim that he had escaped. While struggling to survive later during the Clone Wars, CT-5539 will follow Kaddak’s example of claiming a name for himself (“Hock Marsuum”) and choosing to either escape or die in captivity (in his case, the captivity o the cave in which he survives after being left for dead by his Jedi general).
  (conjecture based on Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows)
- Shortly before the Clone Wars, Accutronics attempts to capitalize on the popularity of the Go-Corp/Utilitech WA-7 waitress droid by producing its own knock-off, the TDL-501 (“Teedle”).
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- Shortly before the Clone Wars, Incom and Subpro launch the ARC-170, the Aggressive ReConnaissance Fighter, which is adopted by the Republic’s localized armed forces.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- The Kuat Drive Yards ARC-40b scout-reconnaissance fighter is developed and launched as an escort fighter for the ARC-170.
  (conjecture based on Savage Spirits)
- Shortly before the Clone Wars, the Rodian part-owner of the Far Orbit Resort on Athiss buys out his Ithorian partner, the resort’s original founder, and expands it into the Far Orbit Resort and Lodge to include big game hunting.

(conjecture based on Lost Knowledge)

- Shortly before the Clone Wars, MandalMotors produces the HH-87 Starhopper starfighter.
  (conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)

- Shortly before the Clone Wars, the InterGalactic Banking Clan seizes Plut Design Systems over unpaid debts. This gives the IBC control of the Phlutdroid series, which is then contracted out to Holowan Mechanicals. The Phlutdroids are then renamed the “IG” series, referring to the “InterGalactic” in the IBC’s name. The IG droids, based on Muunilinst, bear elongated heads and narrow bodies that resemble the Muuns of Muunilinst (and the IBC). The IG lancer droid becomes an early symbol of the line’s innovation, but the company has blueprints for 99 different droids that Phlut Design Systems was working on for Project Phlutdroid, numbered IG-1 through IG-99. (The first originally-commissioned droids based on similar construction will be General Grievous’ MagnaGuards, numbered IG-100, since they are the 100th in that design series.)
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- Senator Simon Greyshade and some of his fellow young senators form a clique devoted to airspeeders. Simon himself has a custom-built Narglatch XJ-6 speeder (which Anakin Skywalker will steal in pursuit of Zam Wesell shortly before the Battle of Geonosis).
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

- On Florrum, pirate Hondo Ohnaka and his goons (Finn Tegotash, Dagu Flask, Goru, etc.) make plans for a new caper. They intend to target the Salin Mariner while it is traveling from Lianna to Botajef. Instead of simply attacking the ship, Hondo will become a passenger as “Rondo Rosada” (import-export magnate and art collector) to determine who the best hostages would be before arranging their capture and ransom. He is to be joined by Turk Falso and Peg Leg Piit, who will be posing as sanitation workers on the ship, belowdecks. Once aboard, he meets his table-mates for dinner. They include Fume Pachoola, Pelf Pachoola (his daughter), Pelf’s Kobarian swamp dogs (Higgs and Twiggs), entrepreneur Sibs Monchan, real estate magnate Usk Hafra, and small businessman Dix Tarfait. When the plot begins, the ships is pulled from hyperspace by mines, but the captain won’t allow anyone from their decoy ship aboard. It turns into a blasting situation anyway, and Hondo is able to get to an escape pod with Fume, Pelf, her dogs, and Tarfait, making them his prisoners when they launch. Unfortunately, due to lies about how much money Tarfait has and how much Pelf’s fiancée would really pay to get her and her father back, all they get out of the ransom upon releasing them all is eight cases of Vasarian brandy and a nice new coat, once belonging to Fume, that Hondo will wear from this day forward. *
  (Hondo Ohnaka’s Not-So-Big Score)*

*NOTE: The placement of this story is based on information obtained by speaking directly with Jason Fry, the tale’s author. He notes that it is prior to Hondo’s appearance in The Clone Wars, but how much earlier was never pinned down. As such, I have place it just before the Clone Wars begin, here in 23 BBY.

- Days after the attack on the Senate, the Jedi have managed to track Granta Omega and Jenna Zan Arbor to the ancient Sith burial world of Korriban, where a society of Sith followers had sprung up millennia before, leaving a society that, at the moment, has no official Republic ties. The Jedi Council chooses to send eight Jedi (four Masters and four Padawans) to Korriban: Obi-Wan Kenobi; Siri Tachi; Soara Antana; Ry-Gaul; Anakin Skywalker; Ferus Olin; Darra Thel-Tanis; and Tru Veld. Before going, they are informed that the Jedi Order is considering accelerating the pacing of Padawan instruction to give them their Trials earlier. They have chosen their first candidate for this program, but it isn’t Anakin, but Ferus. Anakin is highly frustrated and envious of this situation, causing him to constantly snipe at Ferus and question his actions for the entirety of their Korriban mission. Upon arrival on Korriban, the Jedi make contact with a local, Teluron Thacker, who points them to the black marketeer Auben, who might have information on Omega and Zan Arbor. When Anakin and Ferus approach her, they end up being attacked by Commerce Guild droids, forced to retreat with Auben into an ancient Sith monastery, followed by the other six Jedi. During the battle with the droids, they find their way through the monastery, eventually reuniting, but only after Anakin and Obi-Wan track a mysterious figure that they know... instinctively to be a Sith Lord. They find Auben dead on the ramp of the Sith’s ship, but they find a recording in her possession that proves that Omega and Zan Arbor are there to join with the Sith and finally learn his true identity. With the chance to stop their two targets and also possibly learn the identity of the Sith Lord (either the one who was teamed with Darth Maul, who killed Qui-Gon Jinn, or a new partner to the surviving Sith . . . so, for our purposes, either Darth Sidious or Darth Tyranus), they continue after Omega, through the Valley of the Dark Lords (which they can only reach via a speeder that Thacker delivers, though he’s reported it stolen, resulting in a brief chase by other authorities). In a lull in the action, Anakin notices Ferus helping fix Tru’s lightsaber, which Anakin had already augmented, but which was losing power in battle. It is fixed, but Ferus and Tru break the rules and keep it from the Jedi Masters. Anakin, knowing that he needs to check the flux aperture to ensure that it won’t have problems after Ferus’ modifications, is so annoyed that Tru seems to have gone to Ferus instead of him, that he forgets to look into the lightsaber. Later, the chase leads them to Omega and Zan Arbor, who are near to their meeting with the Sith. Battling against blasterfire, Sith visions, Sith creatures, and Sith zombies, they have to fight for their lives. In the conflict, Tru’s lightsaber starts to die. Rather than let Tru be overcome, Ferus trades lightsabers with him, taking the damaged one. When it finally goes out, Darra leaps into the line of fire between Omega and Ferus, saving him, but giving her life in the process. As the other Jedi look after the dying Darra, Anakin and Obi-Wan charge after Omega. Anakin is kept at bay by a booby trap, but Obi-Wan makes it to Omega. Getting past Omega’s overheated E-web, he manages to knock the man into a wall, nearly knocking him out . . . nearly. Even as Anakin rejoins his master, having saved himself from the booby trap, Omega tries to attack them, forcing Obi-Wan to kill him. With his dying breath, Omega taunts Obi-Wan with the fact that Omega knows the Sith Lord’s true identity, and when things bear themselves out, Obi-Wan will wish that he had known as well (seeing as how it’s Supreme Chancellor Palpatine that is acting as Darth Sidious and calling all the shots for both sides in the escalating dark times). In the end, Omega has been killed, but so has Darra. The Council ends its early promotion program, and Ferus has chosen to leave the Jedi Order. He didn’t tell the truth about Tru’s lightsaber, and that mistake ended in Darra’s death. He tells Anakin, but when the two confront each other, yet again in a battle of wills, Tru is present as Anakin makes it obvious that he knew about the lightsaber problem but didn’t say anything.
Ferus leaves the Order, while Tru stays, but Anakin has lost Tru’s friendship forever. But he will find a way to bury that loss, just as he must bury that of Qui-Gon, his mother, and others.*

(The Final Showdown)*

*NOTE: Anakin is almost 19 in this story, which places it in the first two months or so of this year, which is where The Essential Reader’s Companion has put the story. Given that it is only days after events in The False Peace, which is listed in the ERC as being in 24 BBY, this story must be literally within the first week of this year.

- On the planet Kuat, Boba Fett enters the encampment of freedom fighters that are trying to be freed from slavery. Boba is used as a ruse and bait to allow Jango Fett to descend upon the encampment. Larbo, the leader, tries to hold Boba at blasterpoint, but Jango saves him, as he also destroys the encampment. As the Fetts leave the world, they inform Darth Tyranus (Count Dooku) that his allies on Kuat are safely free from anarchist attacks. Boba, meanwhile, has technically begun his training and has exceeded Jango’s expectation. Dooku is happy to hear that another Fett may be ready to fight at his command, even as Boba has had to learn the lesson that the way of the warrior is to show no mercy in battle, even if the target’s cause seems just.

(The Way of the Warrior)

- Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker are to meet with King Sha-Mar Ma-Dred of Kashir (a world of thieves, basically) about bringing Kashir into the Republic. When they meet Ma-Dred, Anakin is shocked to see his four sexy wives—Tiarri, Kheann, Mirrix, and Ashala.
During the meeting, Ma-Dred asks them to help guard the turbolift to his wives’ quarters to keep them safe (and from running off to explore Coruscant). Later, Anakin realizes that one of the wives has stolen his lightsaber. He sneaks out through a refresher window and up into the wives’ quarters. He is told by the other wives that Ashala stole it. He then sneaks into the room she shares with Ma-Dred, where she tries to seduce him. He stays true to the oath he took to the Jedi, and she confesses that she did steal it, but someone must have stolen it from her. Anakin slips out as guards arrive. When he returns to Obi-Wan, his Master gives him his lightsaber. Obi-Wan had used the Force to reclaim it when Ashala stole it, but kept it as a lesson in trust for Anakin. They must trust each other. Anakin’s second lesson: the lightsaber is his life, and he must not lose it again. It is only after the lesson that Anakin tells him about his adventures out the window . . .

(A Jedi’s Weapon)

• A ship from the Fondor Space Control has been sent to find an overdue Nallastian vessel, but instead of finding the Nallastian ship, they find what appears to be the legendary vessel known as the Sun Runner. Before they can do anything about it, though, they lose power and are pulled toward the vessel . . . Later, Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi are sent by the Jedi Council to investigate. They arrive in the Republic vessel Unitive, led by Captain Pietrangelo. On Fondor, they meet the third member of their team, Jedi Knight Bultar Swan. Swan tells Obi-Wan and Anakin the story of the Sun Runner, the Nallastian colony vessel thought lost for four millennia with three power gems aboard. Now, it seems it has been found, but there is question as to where the ships that found it are, and as to who can claim it. Fondor claims the ship as theirs, due to a message received from the Space Patrol vessel, but Nallastia claims the vessel, owing to a signal from the missing Nallastian vessel, which sends its message eight hours before the Space Patrol ship. Both Nallastia and Fondor have sent recovery vessels, but the two original finder vessels are missing. The three Jedi proceed to the derelict’s location to meet with Fondor’s Senator Rodd and Nallastia’s Margravine Quenelle. They all meet aboard the Unitive, while it is attached to the apparent Sun Runner, but a burst of energy knocks out their power, while the Sun Runner begins to move again, possibly on a collision course for Nallastia or Fondor. Obi-Wan and Anakin use a Headhunter and CloakShape Fighter to go out and try to stop the Sun Runner. The Jedi make it around and into the Sun Runner, encountering memory-wiped droids programmed for security only. They learn that the crews of the two lost vessels are being held inside and that the ship is on a collision course for Fondor. They free the crew and discover the vessel to be an elaborate replica. On their way out, to stop the ship from crashing into Fondor, they destroy it, but in the resultant explosion, Anakin is knocked toward Nallastia and is forced to eject to the surface. On Esseles, Boonda the Hutt speaks with his father, Groodo, reporting the “theft” of his replica from their shipyards. Of course, Groodo already knew this. It was all part of a plot to use the ship as a kamikaze into the Fondor Shipyards. Meanwhile, on Nallastia, Anakin is attacked by a jungle creature . . .

(Hunt the Sun Runner)*

*NOTE: Anakin’s age is given as 18 in this story, which would suggest a placement at either 24 BBY (dating back from Anakin being 20 in AOTC) or 23 BBY dating forward from Anakin being 9 in TPM. We have been led to believe that Anakin turns 10 during the course of TPM (approximately), so this story could simply take place very early in the year 23 BBY, before Anakin has his birthday that makes him 19 years old. That case would seem to be borne out by the mention in The Hostage Princess, which takes place consecutively with this story and The Cavern of Screaming Skulls, of Yarael Poof dying four years earlier, which was in Zam Wesell back in 27 BBY. Thus, early 23 BBY it is! (This also works out with Boba Fett’s age as 9 years old in Jango Fett vs. the Razor Eaters.)

• On Nallastia, Anakin Skywalker takes out the jungle creature about to have him for dinner. Above, aboard the Unitive, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Bultar Swan signal the Jedi Council for reinforcements for the situation, then Obi-Wan, Bultar, and the Margravine Quenelle head for Nallastia to rescue Anakin. Unbeknownst to them, Senator Rodd of Fondor contacts Groodo—he’s in on the plot. On Nallastia, Anakin meets young Klay Firewell, whose parents, Tattyra and Hondu Firewell, have been captured during their zoological expedition by Nallastian warriors. The Firewells are being held by the person Klay says is the ruler of Nallastia, the Skull Queen (rather than the Margravine). The two set out to rescue Klay’s parents. Anakin and Klay make it to the Skull Queen’s fortress on Mount Octan just as the Firewells are tossed between three Trinity Stones with magnetic energy between them. Without the power gems that were supposedly lost with the real Sun Runner, the Firewells will die. When Anakin tries to confront the Skull Queen, holding her at lightsaber-point, it turns out that the woman he holds is actually Princess Calvaria. The real Skull Queen, who arrives with Obi-Wan and Bultar, is Margravine Quenelle, Calvaria’s mother. The Margravine tells them that the power gems were not lost with the Sun Runner, but hidden on Nallastia.

*NOTE: Anakin’s age is given as 18 in this story, which would suggest a placement at either 24 BBY (dating back from Anakin being 20 in AOTC) or 23 BBY dating forward from Anakin being 9 in TPM. We have been led to believe that Anakin turns 10 during the course of TPM (approximately), so this story could simply take place very early in the year 23 BBY, before Anakin has his birthday that makes him 19 years old. That case would seem to be borne out by the mention in The Hostage Princess, which takes place consecutively with this story and The Cavern of Screaming Skulls, of Yarael Poof dying four years earlier, which was in Zam Wesell back in 27 BBY. Thus, early 23 BBY it is! (This also works out with Boba Fett’s age as 9 years old in Jango Fett vs. the Razor Eaters.)
She tells them a riddle to where they reside. Obi-Wan and the Skull Queen head out after the gems, discovering all three, with Obi-Wan impressing the Skull Queen in the process. They make their way through the Cavern of Screaming Skulls to get the gems, then take them back in time to save the Firewells, who quickly leave Nallastia. The Jedi remain, knowing that the reason the Firewells were captured was that they weren't given permission to land, since Fonder officials like Senator Rodd, who granted their passage, have no jurisdiction on Nallastia. The Jedi spend an evening at a ceremony in their honor after the quest for the stones, only to be met with a surprise—both the Skull Queen and Princess Calvaria arguing over who is going to marry Obi-Wan.

(The Cavern of Screaming Skulls)

- As Bultar Swan is quite amused, Princess Calvaria and the Skull Queen continue to argue over who will wed Obi-Wan Kenobi. Obi-Wan tries to explain that Jedi cannot marry, but they use the example of Ki-Adi-Mundi against him. Finally, the women decide to have a duel to determine who will marry him. As they prepare, Calvaria heads off. Little do they all know that the plot against Fonder continues. Boonda and Groodo the Hutts have arrived to join with Senator Rodd. They have brought Hurlo Holowan, the woman who designed the droids from the false Sun Runner. She has brought several more droids, who are calling themselves the Droid Control Army. They are there to take over the spaceport. As the droids head there, other activities are taking place on Nallastia. Anakin has been told by Bultar, after having a nightmare, that Jedi don't have nightmares. Anakin rejoins the other Jedi as a ship bearing Mace Windu and Kit Fisto arrives. Mace goes to the Skull Queen to put a stop to the duel, but it turns out that Calvaria has taken a ship and fled to the spaceport. She is set to marry Prince Alto of the Raptor Clan, whom she has never met; but she wants instead to marry the man she loves, a spaceport grunt named Rench. She has been pretending to be an aide to her mother named Klara, so her royalty cannot change his feelings for her. They meet, but as soon as they do, the droids attack. They get out a distress call to Nallastia. Mace, Kit, and Bultar take off for the spaceport to stop the droids. Armed with the power gems from atop the Trinity Stones, they get through the spaceport's defenses. They take out most of the droids, but the others hold Calvaria hostage. She is taken away from the spaceport, toward where the conspirators await, but Mace takes a Delta-6 starfighter and manages to save her. When they are all reunited, Calvaria is surprised to learn that "Rench" is actually "Alto," doing the same thing that she was. They will be able to live happily ever after. As for Rodd, though, that may not be possible. His schemes against Fonder's spaceport has put the plans of Darth Sidious and Darth Tyranus in jeopardy. There is only one solution. Dooku (Tyranus) is to hire Jango Fett to remove Rodd from playing field.

(The Hostage Princess)

- Jango Fett arrives on Kamino after hunt for a munitions dealer in the Panna system. Before he can settle back in and spend time with his son, Boba, he is contacted by Darth Tyranus, who wants him to collect three live bounties: Senator Rodd; Groodo the Hutt; and Hurlo Holowan. He allows Boba to come with him this time. Meanwhile, unbeknownst to Jango, Wat Tambor of the Techno Union has placed a bounty on the same three individuals, only dead, with Cradossk, the head of the Bounty Hunters Guild. Cradossk takes his son, Bossk, with him on the hunt. Inevitably, both father and son teams end up seeking out Rodd on Fonder, where the Trandoshans get to him first, but he escapes to his ship and sets out for Groodo's compound on Esseles. This brings the two parties into contact, as Jango stuns Bossk (with Boba back aboard Slave I). Cradossk suggests that they work together, but Jango refuses. The Fetts head for Esseles, followed (after some fixing of sabotage carried out by Boba) by the Trandoshans. The Fetts arrive first. After Jango avoids a dangerous Razor Eater (a type of killer droid), he gathers info on Groodo's compound at a local bar. He learns of a mine shaft that will lead him right into the compound. Fett reaches a room holding Rodd, Boonda (Groodo's son), and a Razor Eater. He ends up finding out that Groodo and Holowan aren't on Esseles at all. He takes Rodd prisoner (unconscious in a rolled rug) and returns to Slave I, but Bossk, quite the idiot, is there to have Jango meet with Cradossk. Bossk has no idea it was Jango who stunned him on Fonder, nor does he realize that one of his targets is in the rug. He allows Jango to put the "rug" on the ship, then they go meet Cradossk. Cradossk is just wanting to offer Jango a position in the Guild, which, of course, he won't accept. However, when Jango returns to the ship, Rodd is still in his holding pen . . . but Boba is nowhere to be found . . .

(Jango Fett vs. the Razor Eaters)

- Bossk returns to Cradossk with Boba Fett as his captive, even as Jango Fett tracks the dimwitted Trandoshan bounty hunter down. Jango subdues Bossk and takes Boba back, but Cradossk has smelled Boba enough to know that he is Jango’s son (well, clone, but, y’know, who in the world would make that their first assumption?). Jango decides to take Boba back to Kamino and take care of some business that would allow him to keep Boba safe from Cradossk, but he still has to get Hurlo Holowan and Groodo the Hutt. Luckily, they are met at Slave I by shape-shifting Clawdite bounty hunter Zam Wesell, with whom Jango has worked before. Jango subcontracts with Zam so that she can go after Holowan (for the full bounty), while he takes Boba to Kamino and makes plans to find Groodo. Zam steals an expensive vessel on Esseles and makes her way to Kuat, where Rodd reveals Holowan is likely holed up, even as Bossk steals one and heads off himself. For Zam’s part, she stole hers because she knew it would get her arrested as she arrives at Kuat. Bossk, well, he just didn’t think it through, but he ends up captured as well. As Zam frees herself from her cell and slips her way onto a transport to the city near where Holowan’s lab is located, Bossk frees himself . . . and is then captured again, stuck in a holding cell as Zam continues her mission. Continue she does, sneaking into Holowan’s grounds as Holowan herself, then, upon being discovered, blasting her way through and capturing Holowan. She steals Holowan’s ship and escapes Kuat with the droid designer, whom she delivers to Jango. Jango, meanwhile, has gotten Boba back to Kamino and now has a package to deliver to Bossk . . . a package that causes Zam to scream in repulsion and terror . . .

(The Shape-Shifter Strikes)

- With her job done, Zam Wesell departs from Jango Fett’s company, as Jango heads for Balmorra, where Groodo the Hutt, his final target, has been hiding out with his brother, Rigorra, the so-called “warlord of Balmorra” (who has now made Groodo a warlord as well). Meanwhile, Count Dooku (AKA Darth Tyranus) has discovered that it was Wat Tambor of the Techno Union that put the bounty on Senator Rodd, Hurlo Holowan, and Groodo that is being carried out by Cradossk and Bossk. He persuades Tambor to call off the bounty, and Tambor informs Cradossk of the situation. Cradossk then sends bounty hunter Skorr to free Bossk from prison on Kuat, but Bossk refuses to call off the hunt, seeing it as a chance to get payback on Jango Fett. Skorr and Bossk head for Balmorra as well. On Balmorra, Jango arrives and realizes he could use some help getting into Rigorra’s compound. Luckily, he soon finds himself face to face with fellow bounty hunter Aurra Sing, who is there to settle a personal score with Rigorra. They agree to help each other break into Rigorra’s compound. They do so, blowing up a comm tower, but ending up subdued by (and I kid you not) a flower that leaps up into their faces, putting poison down their throats and knocking them out. Soon, Bossk and Skorr follow, only to also be captured and given the poisoned flower treatment. The four hunters end up being put into an arena with underground passages and the like, filled with booby traps, as amusement for the two Hutts. To survive, a hunter must reach a series of droids that each bear one of the three antidote components to the flower’s poison. Otherwise, they’re all dead. Jango manages to get the advantage and make it through the traps, gathering all three components and saving himself, while holding enough back to save Aurra when he sees her next. Aurra appears behind him as he enters the arena itself and looks like he’s about to be killed by a Razor-Eater. He gives her the antidote and races off to subdue Groodo, even as Skorr and Bossk emerge, both having body chemistries that naturally battled the poison. Jango subdues Groodo, Bossk, and Skorr, while Aurra takes Rigorra for her own vengeful desires. Jango puts Groodo in a new cell aboard Slave I and drops them all off to collect the bounty from Count Dooku. Dooku actually likes the three captives’ inventiveness, but didn’t like what they tried to do with it in destroying Fondor. He “offers” the three of them the chance to join in his own plans, lest they don’t leave the room alive. They agree. Meanwhile, Jango brings Skorr and Bossk to Cradossk, again refusing to join his guild. He also presents Cradossk with the package that had freaked Zam out earlier . . . It is a coffin containing what looks like a dead Boba Fett, killed by his own father. Of course, it is actually just a clone, but it allows Jango to protect Boba, since Cradossk can’t use him against Jango if the Trandoshan believes that Boba is dead. And so, Jango returns home to Kamino and his son.

(The Warlords of Balmorra)

- A bounty hunter tracks down Boro Nill, capturing him, despite his guardian droids.*

(Droid Showdown)*

*NOTE: This story could take place anywhere in the prequel era, but I include it here around the period of the Star Wars Adventures stories that the source material (Star Wars Adventures Magazine) came with, simply out of convenience to the reader.

- A Jedi Knight manages to save Senator Ister Paddie of Sermeria from an assassin droid.*

(Protect the Senator)*

*NOTE: This story could take place anywhere in the prequel era, but I include it here around the period of the Star Wars Adventures stories that the source material (Star Wars Adventures Magazine) came with, simply out of convenience to the reader.

- About a month after his encounter with Hondo Ohnaka, Sibs Monchan’s firm, Monchantics, has its initial public offering on the Mileva Stock Exchange.

(conjecture based on Hondo Ohnaka’s Not-So-Big Score)

- Senators Char Bibbeck and Jonas Wallen begin wagering on whether or not certain systems will secede. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:4)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)

- Hologram Fun World reports that the queue waiting for the Anywhere Room attraction is in the thousands, which is seen as a sign of economic good times for the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:4)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- The Jedi discover an apparently orphaned Force-sensitive baby on the planet Ord Thoden after a major groundquake. Unknowing that the baby is Ludi Billane, daughter of Jonava Billane, who is very much alive, the Jedi take the infant back to the Jedi Temple on Coruscant, giving her the name Aris-Del Wari. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:7)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

- A Xizor Transport Systems freighter explodes at the Baobab Merchant Fleet Complex on Manta. A five-month investigation ensues. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:8)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

- Two years, six months, and three days before the final battle on Drongar during the Clone Wars, the planet Equanus in the Nharl system is decimated by solar flares that cook the world and kill all of the native Equani species except those that were off-world, which will never be enough to repopulate a new homeworld. The cause of the unusual solar blast is the testing of a very early prototype for the Death Star’s superlaser, which is being tested by the Republic, even though the station itself will be in early conceptual development on Geonosis (based on the battle planetoid concept originally considered by Raith Sienar), a world firmly within the sphere of Separatist influence. (Just another cross-pollination of deadly information, thanks to having one Sith Lord controlling each side in the growing Separatist/Republic conflict.) It is this devastation that will bring Klo Merit to become a spy for the Separatists and Black Sun during the Clone Wars.

(conjecture based on Jedi Healer)

- Jar Jar Binks accidentally deactivates the sky dome at the opening of the Endangered Shreebird Aviary. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:10)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

- The University of Aldera begins investigating Dean Halcor Raystel, based on student complaints. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:10)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

- The Exargan Mining Authority’s year-end inventory reveals a discrepancy of over 200,000,000 tons of doonium ore, prompting scrutiny from the Mining Guild. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 12:10)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- For the first of at least two consecutive years, the Outer Rim Regional Circuit of podracing has its first race at Mos Eisley on Tatooine.*

(conjecture based on Kinect Star Wars: Podracing)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the Boonta Eve Classic in the game is in 14:4 and that we can date back each race to approximately one month before the next race, since this is one year prior to the start of that podracing series.

- Sometime around now is when Fizzik last visits the underworld dwelling of his distant brother, Trillot, on Ord Cestus.
  (conjecture based on The Cestus Deception)

- Shortly before the outbreak of the Clone Wars, Padawan Olee Starstone, apprentice to Jedi Master and librarian Jocasta Nu, is allowed to do some fieldwork to gain experience. It is during this fieldwork that she first meets Jedi Master Bol Chatak, who will eventually become her new Master during the second year of the Clone Wars.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- Shortly before the outbreak of the Clone Wars, Jedi Roan Shryne is first sent to Murkhana to take down former Black Sun vigo Cash Garrulan, but they discover him to be a good source of intelligence. In fact, he has been warning the Republic about Count Dooku’s Separatist build-up for a long while now and will soon be proven right in his warnings.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- After Count Dooku’s separatist movement sparks the Battle of Antar 4, forcing many Gotals to flee to Atzerri, Jedi Master Mace Windu speaks out on the activities, claiming that despite leaving the Jedi Order, Dooku’s training as a Jedi should prove that he could not possibly be behind the more violent separatist factions. Also as a result of the same battle, public opinion begins to turn toward the People’s Inquest, who want Jedi financial records.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:F1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Numbers 48 and 52)

- TriPlanetary Press releases Gunray on Top, a biography of Nute Gunray written by his mistress Lora Besh, and Holding Back the Tide, an autobiography of Finis Valorum. The Gunray book leaps onto bestseller lists for at least the next two months, while the Valorum book will not break the top 100 by that time.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:1:14)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

- Baktoid Armor issues its annual statement for the last fiscal year, showing that they are taking in the same amount of raw materials as in previous years, but have produced far less product. They say that this is so that they can diversify in the future. Sermerian Senator Lanus Wrede accuses Baktoid of shipping those materials to secret Outer-Rim plants outside of Republic jurisdiction (like Geonosis, perhaps . . . ?). This prompts a 3-month investigation.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

- Food shipments to Kabal end, due to taxation making it an increasingly cost-prohibitive market for the Trade Federation.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

- Jedi Master Ludwin Katarkus, Master Everen Ettene, Padawan Danyawarra, and Padawan Halagad Ventor are sent to broker peace in the Virgillian Civil War.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

- TCW DATE: Four months before the Battle of Geonosis, Talia Moonseeker, Padawan to Jedi Master Va’too, becomes a full Jedi Knight.
  (conjecture based on Wild Space)

- The Ubiqtorate is formed from a conglomeration of the Republican Security Organization, the Senate Bureau of Intelligence, the Interstellar Consortium on Technology, and the Special Acquisitions Branch of the Library of the Republic.
  (conjecture based on Imperial Sourcebook)

- With the secession of Sy Myrth forthcoming, Republic vessels bound for Sy Myrth begin to be denied passage.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:3)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

- Contact is lost between the Jedi Council and the Jedi envoy sent to broker peace in the Virgillian Civil War.
  (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:8)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

- HoloNet News announces the secession of the Bimkall Sector from the Republic.
  (Exact
The Corporate Alliance arrests clerk Denlace Sachoore, who has been embezzling from the Alliance. Denlace had been storing information in a cranium-implanted vessel drive, which they trace back to an asteroid, from which unknown parties are sending out raids on Corporate Alliance data-stores. The Corporate Alliance decides to take immediate action and will do so one month from now. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

The People’s Inquest, a lobbyist group wanting records pertaining to the funding of the Jedi Order, sets up a camp outside the Jedi Temple. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

The Commerce Guild begins issuing Cease and Desist orders against Vespula Manufacturing & Exports for patent and copyright violations. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)

Jar Jar Binks accidentally destroys a Kime Enanrum-original ice statue at a gala fundraiser in the Jade-district of Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:27) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

Jonava Billane comes forward as the mother of baby Ludi Billane, who was taken by the Jedi as Aris-Del Wari when discovered, apparently without living parents or guardians. Jonava petitions to have the baby turned over to her. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:27) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

The planets Ando and Sy Myrth officially announce their secession from the Republic. This is done via droid proxy in the Senate, as Senator Po Nudo of Ando and Toonbuck Toora of Sy Myrth decline to attend the Senate session. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

Jedi Knights Empatajayos Brand, Bultar Swan, and Chellemim Chuovvick arrive in the Sepan Sector to negotiate for peace between the worlds of Dimok and Ripoblus. Hostilities cease for the month that the Jedi are in the area. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

With the secession of Ando from the Republic, Freespan Starlanes Transport doubles the number of flights schedule to Ando in order to take advantage of the mass Aqualish exodus from Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

Industrial Automaton announces that it is ending production on its R5 astromech droids. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

This week, the following publications were HoloNet News’ best-sellers: Carving the Republic: The Real Story of Count Dooku by Andevor Javin; The Lost Twenty: Dooku’s Rise (Unauthorized) by Professor H. Hrush; Warm Thoughts for Invertebrates by Dxulinian; Kholemi Elaru by Patjak Sonn; and Night Mynock by Rogar Farnoster. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

The Republic Measures & Standards Bureau debates calendar reform. At this point, there are at least 20 different dating styles in the Republic, including the Judiciary’s 10-month standard calendar, the 11-month Alderaanian calendar, and so on. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)
The Coruscant Weather Control Network (WeatherNet) announces that in an effort to extend the mating cycle of the declining hawk-bat population of Coruscant, the summer season will begin early, starting on Month 3, Day 23, 22 BBY. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

Proconsul Shren Whist announces the banning of Podracing on Caprioril, which is a great victory for the lobbyists of the Ratts Tyerell Foundation. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

HoloNet News reports that the Priole Danna Festival on Lamuir IV will go forward, despite the turmoil in the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

The Jedi envoy sent to broker peace in the Virgillian Civil War is declared lost. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

The Stark Veteran Assembly speaks out against Senator Padmé Amidala for her remarks in opposition to a Republic military build-up. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

Smashball analyst Kav Muja publicly blasts both junior league smashball officials and the secessionist movement. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

HoloNet News announces that better security measures are now in place to prevent any future slicing of the free edition, as took place three days earlier. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

The Bureau of Ships and Services announces an advisory to travelers near the Sisar Run, due to increased violence on behalf of the Nikto Cult of M'dweshuu. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

During his State of the Union Address, Duros Chief Representative Officer Hoolidan Keggle criticizes TriPlanetary Press for referring to the Duros and Neimoidians as the same species in the Encyclopedia Galactica, despite the fact that the cultures have been separated by many years of independent development. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:28)

Jedi funeral services are held for Master Ludwin Katarkus, Master Everen Ettene, Padawan Danyawarra, and Padawan Halagad Ventor. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:29)

An unregistered (and therefore illegal) bounty is discovered to have been placed on the head of Count Dooku of Serenno, the head of the separatist movement. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:32)

By this time, Senator Padmé Amidala has finished the last week of her antimilitarization speeches, which ends on Chommel Minor. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:2:33)

A Wookiee vessel is attacked over one of Trandosha’s moons, sparking a blockade of Trandosha by Kashyyk until the bodies can be returned. The situation exacerbates tensions between the two worlds, prompting the planning of a Jedi peacekeeping mission to the area. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:1)

A Kazellis-class light freighter is launched, just a few months prior to the Clone Wars. It is the only ship to be produced by the Kathol sector’s Kazellis Corporation. The product is launched with great fanfare.
(conjecture based on Savage Spirits)

- While meditating, Anakin Skywalker asks Obi-Wan Kenobi if he ever misses Qui-Gon Jinn. The conversation becomes a lesson to Anakin in the concept of parenthood. *
(conjecture based on Betrayal)*

*NOTE: Anakin looks much like he does in AOTC here, but that is our only indication of when this takes place.

- TCW DATE: Late in this year, Bail Organa tries to talk his friend, Doctor Tryn Netzl from going back to Alderaan to take a position at one of the world’s more modest universities.
(conjecture based on Stealth)

- In the months leading up to the Clone Wars, Polo Se’lab, the Senator from Bothawui, begins abstaining from most politically sensitive votes, hoping to avoid embroiling his homeworld in the war he suspects is coming.*
(conjecture based on The Clone Wars Campaign Guide)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.

Hondo Ohnaka’s Not-So-Big Score (SWI144 short story: Jason Fry)
Hondo Ohnaka’s Not-So-Big Score (SWI144 short story: Jason Fry)

Jedi Quest [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
The Final Showdown (youth novel: Jude Watson)
Chapters 1 – 23

The Way of the Warrior (SWT18 short story: Peter Alilunas)
The Way of the Warrior (SWT18 short story: Peter Alilunas)

A Jedi’s Weapon (SWT12 short story: Henry Gilroy)*
A Jedi’s Weapon (SWT12 short story: Henry Gilroy)*

*NOTE: This story first appeared as the 2002 Free Comic Book Day Star Wars comic.

Betrayal [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie)
Betrayal, Part III [flashback] (comic: Scott Allie)

Star Wars Adventures (youth novel series: Ryder Windham) Hunt the Sun Runner (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapters 1 – 10

The Cavern of Screaming Skulls (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 11

The Hostage Princess (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 9
Epilogue

Jango Fett vs. the Razor Eaters (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapters 1 – 9

The Shape-Shifter Strikes (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 12

The Warlords of Balmorra (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Introduction
Chapters 1 – 18

Droid Showdown (SWAM5 short story: Unknown)
Droid Showdown (SWAM5 short story: Unknown)

Protect the Senator (SWAM7 short story: Unknown)
Protect the Senator (SWAM7 short story: Unknown)

22 – 21.8 BBY

- Zu and Zan Pike are born on Epicanthix.
(conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire)
- Haanen Felean is born on Klatooine. (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
- Ostan Atur is born on Low'n. (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #10)
- Kyle Katarn is born on Sulon to Morgan and Patricia Katarn. (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire and The Dark Forces Saga, Part I)
- Cooper Dray is born.* (conjecture based on Death-Hunter)*
- Brahle Logris is born. (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Kendo is born. (conjecture based on Death Star)
- Mair Koda is born. (conjecture based on The Draw)
- Veema is born.* (conjecture based on Dark Journey)*
- Sapphire is born. (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Bron Kand’lar is born. (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Mygo Skinto is born. (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Daelar vuv Tertarmek is born. (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Ivhin Jayme is born.* (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)*
- T’Charek Haathi is born.* (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)*
- Yuma Zannen is born. (conjecture based on Peekoine Opera Blues)
- Kai Konnik’s book Beach of Stars wins the Galaxis Award for best novel this year. (conjecture based on Battle Surgeons)
- Kornell “Uli” Divini graduates from Coruscant Medical and goes to spend one year as an intern at the “Big Zoo,” Galactic Polysapient on Alderaan. Shortly thereafter, a good friend of Uli’s dies in Mos Espa on Tatooine during a battle between a couple of bounty hunters that she was too close to. (conjecture based on Jedi Healer)
- Around this time, Annileen Calwell last rides a dewback until riding one when meeting Obi-Wan Kenobi three years from now. (conjecture based on Kenobi)
- By this time, A’Yark has lost another son and lost an eye to infection that came after a wound. That eye has been replaced by a crystal given to A’Yark over a decade earlier by Sharad Hett, her brother-in-law (of sorts). (conjecture based on Kenobi)
- Around this time, a group of Gamorreans is abandoned by their smuggler allies to guard an old hideout. They will eventually create their own primitive village. (conjecture based on Marooned)
- Around this time, Orrin Gault begins trying to get the Aargau Investment Trust to loan him more money, but they will not do so. He will soon inadvertently take a loan from Jabba the Hutt via an intermediary who does not immediately identify this new benefactor.
- The musical number Vissecant Variations by Bann Shoosha is released and is quickly recognized as one of the great musical works of the millennium. (conjecture based on Kenobi)
- Shortly before the Clone Wars, the Anoat system is settled by humans under a Figg Excavations charter. (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)
- Both Tyanna Tymb and Alara Fax enter the SoroSuub Business Academy. Both are quite talented, which irritates Tymb to no end, since she thinks Fax should be inferior to her in business skills (since Fax is human). Tymb fakes befriending Fax and then gives her a data card study aid altered to show the answers to an upcoming test. “Caught cheating,” Fax is expelled from the academy. While working for various disreputable individuals (e.g., Jabba, Talon Karrde), Fax plans her revenge against Tymb.* (conjecture based on Adversaries)

*NOTE: This assumes that the main bulk of Bill Slavicsek’s Adversaries: Characters for the Star Wars New Republic Campaign is set during 4 ABY, during “the height of the Galactic Civil War.” It also assumes that Tyanna and Alara enter the SoroSuub Business Academy at age 18, which is conjecture based on modern American college entry.

- A Sy Myrthian passenger liner, the Elegant Wake, leaves Coruscant, bound for Sy Myrth. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:3) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- Boelars Bribbs is elected President of the Sullustan Council and CEO of SoroSuub Corporation. His first duty will be to table a new amendment giving SoroSuub shareholders double the voting voice of non-shareholders. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:6) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- Supreme Chancellor Palpatine sets the date for a vote on the Military Creation Act. The date set is Month 5, Day 16, 22 BBY. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- As a result of the date for the Army Vote being set, the 575 members of Chandrila’s Public Safety Commission walk off of the job for 48 hours. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

- On Coruscant, Skyroute D25D is rerouted for approximately one week to allow for the creation of a new refuse launch port for the Coco District. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- A three-hour melee takes place between Houk and Weequay immigrants at Coruscant’s Eastport processing station. This leaves 15 dead and 45 wounded. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- The partnership between Incom and Subpro comes to an end, ostensibly due to Subpro’s losses (but actually because they are alien-owned). Their last creation is the Z-95AF4, the final ship in the joint-venture Headhunter line, although Incom purchases the full rights to the line. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46 and The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Due to faulty Fabritech 7Y4 sensor suites, the Lantillian ShipWrights corporation recalls all Lantillian GX1 Short Haulers with serial numbers TRE-0034 through TRE-5215. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- Riots break out in Shoribus, the capital of Kabal, due to lack of food shipments. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7) (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)
- On Commenor, the Annual Mid-Rim Domesticated Sub-Sentient Show makes galaxywide news via HoloNet News when the Best in Show wilwog, Itipiniwi, begins yipping at its master’s excitement, causing it to be eaten by the second-place finisher, a Kashyyk
The exiled members of the Church of Infinite Perception take over the planet Pergitor in a bloody coup. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

A BoSS network relay discovers that the Sy Myrthian passenger liner, the Elegant Wake, has been scuttled by Merson pirates. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

The exiled members of the Church of Infinite Perception take over the planet Pergitor in a bloody coup. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

Grav-ball superstar Deme Tryshyn signs an endorsement deal with Ardees Beverage Company worth 3.1 billion credits. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:7)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

On the grounds that it would be dangerous to return her to her birth-mother, the Jedi refuse a request to return baby Ludi Billane (known to the Jedi as Aris-Del Wari) to her mother, Jonava Billane. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:8)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)

Baktoid Armor issues a statement announcing that it will close its plants on Foundry, Ord Cestus, Telti, Balmorra, and Ord Lithone. This comes shortly after an investigation into accusations made by Senator Lanus Wrede leads nowhere . . . except for the suicide of Wrede due to political disgrace. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:8)*
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 46)*

*NOTE: This news item was subsequently reprinted as the opening page of The Cestus Deception.

As Baktoid Armor fails, many of its designs are sold off, including the homing spider droid, which become the Commerce Guild's "spider tank."
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

Garm Bel Iblis and Corellian Diktat Shyla Merricope hold closed-door meetings about Corellia's stance on the Military Creation Act. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:9)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

The Mechanical Liberation Front on New Bakstre attempt to liberate a shipment of Vindicator XM-15s, only to end up destroying a 25-kilometer area of Havridam City and killing all 14 activists. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)

King Ebareebaveebeede of the Squib society on Skor II issues a Grand Proclamation, which will be the first of three (the latter two of which will take place over the next two days). (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:12)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

The superluminal collision of an Arcon Multinode container vessel with micrometeorites in the Corulag-Jatir Hyperroute scatters debris that clogs the route the next few weeks. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:12)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

Calius Sal Leejoo experiences a major earthquake on Berchest. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:13)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

King Ebareebaveebeede of the Squib society on Skor II issues a Grand Proclamation in which the Jedi are referred to as “koovy.” (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:13)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)

Senator Garm Bel Iblis of Corellia enacts the Contemplanys Hermi clause in the Constitution to allow Corellia to close its borders and pull out of the Military Creation Act vote. With the enactment of this ancient clause, not used in 450 years, only native and naturalized Corellians are allowed into or out of the sector without CorSec approval, trade vessels must stop outside the sector and have their cargoes brought into the system by the Corellian Merchant Guild, all off-duty CorSec personnel are activated, and all non-Corellian businesses in the sector must now abide by the rules previously noted, often requiring them to join the...
Corellian Merchant Guild. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:13)
   (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• Corellia’s borders officially close. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
   (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
• Kuat Drives Yards and the Jedi Order unveil the Aethersprite-class Light Interceptor model known as the Delta-7. The Delta-7 has been designed as a Jedi starfighter, based on recommendations from Jedi Master Saesee Tiin, who championed the idea of a Jedi starfighter corps, and original designs from Jedi Master Adi Gallia. The new model features a built-in astromech (stripped down to bare components in order to fit in the small craft) and a TransGalMeg hyperdrive booster ring (the Syliure-31), although other specifications for the vessel are immediately classified. The ship is first presented for public display at a ceremony including Adi Gallia, Aayla Secura, and Kuat Senator Risi Lenoan. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
   (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• Sometime around this time, an industrial incident on Gyndine requires R4-P17 to be completely rebuilt. The new R4-P17 is so successful in its activities that the Jedi Order incorporates R4 units into its Delta-7 Aethersprite Starfighters (and eventually Eta-2 Actis Interceptors). R4-P17 will become the droid for Obi-Wan Kenobi’s Delta-7 (and later Eta-2 until the Battle of Coruscant).
   (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)
• Sometime around this time, the Kuat Systems Engineering Rho-1 Limulus-class courier vessel enters production. It is related to the Delta-7 Jedi Starfighter, with which it shares a cockpit design, and the later Eta-class Jedi Interceptors.
   (conjecture based on The Star Wars: The Menace Revealed)
• Jango Fett teaches his cloned “son” Boba Fett about the nature of fear by having him face off with a Bayleg to secure one of its teeth. After this point, it is said that Boba need not know fear again. While leaving the planet, Jango is contacted by Count Dooku (Darth Tyranus), who hires him to hunt down a mysterious helmeted man with information that could compromise their cloning operation on Kamino. They are to seek him out at Talos on the planet Atzerri. Boba joins Jango for the hunt, acting as a sniper. When Boba’s shot barely misses the target, Jango tracks him and takes him down physically, only for the man to remove his helmet to reveal himself to be a fully-grown clone of Jango himself. The clone reveals himself to have escaped from Kamino. Jango kills him, fulfilling his mission, but he then discovers the clone’s wife and child (Connor Freeman). Jango collects Boba and leaves, but he sets up an account in Connor Freeman’s name to use as he grows, which Connor will believe was set up by his father, not Jango. Jango promises to tell Boba about what happened one day, but his death at Geonosis cuts short that promise. (To be continued as more issues are released . . .)
   (Jango and Boba Fett)
• Obi-Wan Kenobi is sent to Albecus from Coruscant to deliver a message to allies on the world. Anakin Skywalker is left behind, and Obi-Wan thinks he might be jealous of Obi-Wan getting to fly the new Jedi Starfighter. En route, Obi-Wan is attacked by Jango Fett in Slave I, forcing him to enter an asteroid field and put the ship into attack mode to force Jango’s retreat. Obi-Wan continues to Albecus, but the question of who was flying the attacking ship will be one that stays with Obi-Wan for the next two months . . .
   (Full of Surprises)
• In a Point/Counterpoint article for HoloNet News, Republic Judicial Terrinald Screed argues for the Military Creation Act, while Caamasian Senator Eeshrin O’Hyne argues against it.
   (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
   (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• The Senate enacts a 15% surtax on all passenger liner travel. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
   (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• The Intergalactic Banking Clan announces that they have experienced their 18th straight quarter of increasing profits. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
• King Ebareebaveebeedee of the Squib society on Skor II announces that they will remain with the Republic, despite the current secessionist crisis. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• The University of Sanbra announces that it has discovered that the red giant Demophon will likely go supernova within the next 50 to 75 years. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• Two University of Coruscant data hubs are overloaded by trillions of protest images from students arguing that Ludi Billane be returned to her birth-mother. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• The General Ministry Institutes on Mriss are informed that budgets for next year will be cut by up to 60%. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• The Greenputt Governing Council announces the creation of the Non-Sentient Greenputt Tour (NSPGT). (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• Dates and locations for the traveling “Cradle of the Galaxy” museum exhibit of pre-Republic era artifacts are announced. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• University of Aldera’s Dean Halcor Raystel is suspended by Provost Dalus Othona, due to frequent complaints, propositions made to two female students, Ryll addiction, and so on. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• Xizor Transport Systems is cleared of wrongdoing in the explosion of a freighter at the Baobab Merchant Fleet Complex on Manda. The fault is laid at the hands of captain Lasro Javeq, and once XTS is cleared, Xizor gives five million credits to charities for the victims and their families. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• As Galactic Cup of Limmie play begins, Coruscant loses to Fondor, while Kothlis defeats Ord Mantell, Ralltiir defeats Tralus, and Yag'Dhul defeats Kinyen. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:14)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• The Spotty Conveyor, a Trade Federation vessel taking radioactive waste to dump on PDC3141-02, leaves the Inner Rim. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• It is announced that the Outer Rim HoloNet Expansion will be delayed for at least a year. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:20)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• HoloNet News issues a statement apologizing for announcing the secession of the Bimkall Sector. The sector, it seems, doesn’t actually exist at all. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• Supreme Chancellor Palpatine makes a public address on the HoloNet aimed at Count Dooku of Serenno. Palpatine invites Dooku to talk personally to end the separatist crisis. He suggests Bothawui as a neutral meeting place for such a conference. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• The Bureau of Ships and Services announces that the Corulag-Jatir Hypreroute is currently closed so the Trade Federation can clean up the mess of an accident on Month 3, Day 12, 22 BBY. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• Anti-Military Creation Act Gravlex Med Senator Horox Ryyder steps down as Senator, naming Gravlex Med President Zo Howler and his Secondary, Fo Kuna, as his successors. He makes the transfer in an informal ceremony on Gravlex Med, where Bail Antilles and Bail Organa give him the Royal Chalcedony of Alderaan in honor of his services in the name of peace. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- On Kip, Zorba Desilijic Tiure is sentenced to approximately 45 standard years in the Girigard Subsurface Correctional Facility for the illegal removal of ulikuo stones. Upon his sentencing, the Hutts launch their own investigation, while his son, Jabba the Hutt, leaps in and seizes Zorba’s holdings on Nar Shaddaa, Shaum Hii, and Tyne’s Horky, supposedly to protect them. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

NOTE: We get this information from a direct news report via HoloNet News. However, a contradictory date of 15 BBY is given for this same event in The New Essential Guide to Characters.

- After a hyperspace accident due to faulty relativistic shielding, Bosbit Matarcher emerges from hyperspace, 190 years after he went into hyperspace. He is now technically 225 years old, but doesn’t look a day over 35. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

NOTE: The article suggests that he was 35 when he went into the future (sort of), and he is now 225 years old, but in his quote, Bosbit says it was 200 years later. I chose to assume that he was rounding when he said 200 years.

- The Corporate Alliance attacks a compound in the Fakir sector, where unknown parties have been creating and sending cyborgs to raid Corporate Alliance data-stores. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- The People’s Inquest’s request for records pertaining to the Jedi Order’s funding (on the basis that the people have a right to know how their taxes are spent) is denied on the grounds of security. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- Essence announces that they will be featuring Jonava Billane, mother of Baby Ludi Billane, on the program’s Month 5, Day 2, 22 BBY episode. A feature on Mas Amedda is rotated to later in the year to make room. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- Blob racer Vob Bitas is killed after being found to be cheating on the Fondine Raceways. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- Core World Critics Association President Jaysa Namoor criticizes several forthcoming films (without having ever seen them) at a gathering of critics. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- A suspicious package addressed to Senator Ister Paddie and President Dibra Born is received at the Semerian First House. It contains an effigy of Chancellor Palpatine that is crawling with stone-mites. The First House is shut down for three hours as a result. The Semerian Bio-League contains the problem. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- Jedi Master Oppo Rancisis arrives on Trandosha with Caamasi and Alderaanian peace officers for the beginnings of peace talks between Trandosha’s Speaker-Above-All Hadocrassk and Kashyyyk’s Senator Yarua. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

- The Spotty Conveyor, a Trade Federation vessel taking radioactive waste to dump on PDC3141-02, is forced to hold off on its unloading when the University of Sanbra discovers unicellular life on the world. The dump is called off by a temporary injunction, but the ship is only five days away from the radioactivity endangering the crew. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:21)

(Conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
The Coruscant Weather Control Network (WeatherNet), in an effort to extend the mating cycle of the declining hawk-bat population of Coruscant, begins the summer season early. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:23)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 45)

Rotar Lopani flees Coruscant with sensitive diplomatic datapads. Jedi Knight Reeft is sent after him, as is bounty hunter Tosinqas, unbeknownst to Reeft. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:25)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)

The Spotty Conveyor’s rad-dampening shielding presumably fails, endangering the crew. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:26)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)

Supreme Chancellor forms the Loyalist Committee to deal with the Separatists. The committee includes Bail Organa, Orn Free Taa, Aks Moe, Darsana, Zo Howler, Ister Paddie, Padmé Amidala, Ronet Coor, Lexi Dio, and Havriso Looruya. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

The Refugee Relief Movement opens up shop on Alderaan, with several notable faces like Finis Valorum helping break ground. Refugees begin flocking to Alderaan from Separatist worlds. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

Senator Lott Dod is injured in a five-speeder collision on Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

The Sluis Sector secedes from the Republic and joins the Separatists. The neighboring Seswenna sector affirms its loyalty to the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

Kailio Entertainment buys the rights to the Baby Ludi Billane story. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

Baroness Sanya Tagge reaffirms Tepasi and the House of Tagge’s loyalty to the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

A nutball woman named Latika Garboren raises a fuss when some pastebread ends up looking like a Sith acolyte emblem. Dherik Rule investigates. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

A study on pollution on Coruscant reveals that ten species are in danger due to pollutants not accounted for in governmental environmental regulations. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

The Andoan Free Colonies reaffirm their loyalty to the Republic, despite Ando’s secession. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

Hearings begin regarding the Eastport brawl on Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)

Jedi Knights Empatajayos Brand, Bultar Swan, and Chellemim Chuovvick return to Coruscant after a diplomatic mission to Dimok and Ripoblus in the Sepan Sector, but as they arrive, hostilities resume in the Sector, this time over the issue of secession. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• The House of Tagge announces a “Heroes of the Republic” promotional campaign for Biscuit Baron restaurants, in which holocubes featuring notable historic figures will be placed into boxes of QuickSnack and QuickSnackLite for a month. The promotion will begin in one week. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• The search for Salek Weet, who was lost with Noa Briqualon four years ago, is called off when Salek’s father must declare bankruptcy. Unbeknownst to Salek’s father, Jimke Weet, Salek and Noa have been stranded on the forest moon of Endor. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• HoloNet News reports that a Jedi force led by Belsed-Qan Idan and Kit Fisto in the Atrivis Sector has finally stopped the Iridium pirates after a three-year campaign. The battle is won due to the presence of the Monitor III and a squadron of Delta-7 starfighters, but Jedi Knight Aruden Kej is killed in the battle. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:28)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• On Er’stacia, Mace Windu finds a full scale civil war taking place. The Er’stacians are fighting over a large stone statue. To stop the fighting, Mace carves the statue into hundreds of tiny pieces. Not exactly the most diplomatic solution, but it seems effective.
(Puzzle Peace)
• Zo Howler and Fo Kuna officially take over Horox Ryyder’s vacated place in the Galactic Senate. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:30)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• The House of Tagge’s “Heroes of the Republic” promotional campaign at Biscuit Baron begins. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:3:33)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
• The “Cradle of the Galaxy” exhibit comes to the Cambriele Exploration Auditorium on Raltiir. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:1)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 47)
• Essence airs an episode featuring Jonava Billane, mother of Baby Ludi Billane. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:3)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 48)
• After eighteen months of a dispute over design theft, Arakyd Industries forcibly takes over the headquarters of Viper Sensor Intelligence Systems on Vulpter. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:3)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• After the takeover of the Viper Sensor Intelligence Systems on Vulpter, VSIS is absorbed into Arakyd Industries. This allows Arakyd to release its new Viper probot, using what was once proprietary VSIS technology.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• In Nuna-Ball League competition, Serv-O-Droid RIC beats Accutronic’s B1 team in an 81-57 win. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:3)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• HoloNet News chef Gormaanda features Glowblue Noodles and Chav in her column, despite the fact that many ingredients have become harder to come across due to recent secessions and such. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• While on a diplomatic mission to speak with the InterGalactic Banking Clan on Aargau, Senator Aks Moe of Malastare is killed when his sabotaged speeder explodes. Malastare expresses its outrage, citing the absence of Jedi watchman Belsed-Qan Idan on Aargau. Idan had been reassigned to the Atrivis Sector to deal with the Iridium pirates and was thus unable to stop the assassination. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• Alder Roty, a Sorcerer of Tund, begins playing shows on Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• Medical ethics come into question when a Troig Saprah named Dwuir asks to be surgically separated from his Saprin, Tabb. Dwuir says that Tabb is suicidal and a danger, but the surgery would be dangerous and most likely kill Tabb for Dwuir's sake. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• A garbage launcher malfunctions in the Desrini District on Coruscant causing it to collapse, killing at least 48 sentients. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• The Priole Danna Festival is canceled, due to the cancellation of several musical performances. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• The Lahara Sector secedes from the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• As a result of the capture of a Thalassian slaver on Gyndine, four members of the Senate are implicated in the slave ring. These include: Tikkes of Mon Calamari; Bufus Ritsomas of Till Chroios; Danry Ledwellow of Er'kit; and Wuja Wojaine of Pydyr. All four are suspended and set to await trial. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• The Legislative Youth Program on Chandrila holds a mock Senate session, where the young students vote on the Military Creation Act. The act passes by a narrow 52% to 48% margin, which was partly the result of one person's absence, suggesting that the vote may be close in the galaxy at large and just how the loss of several influential people could turn the vote. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• Peace talks between the Trandoshans and Wookiees, presided over by Jedi Master Oppo Rancisis, come to an abrupt end when it is revealed that a Trandoshan push for Senate representation is being backed by the Trade Federation. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• Thanks to a grant from Republic Sienar Systems, the Ministry of Science is able to continue its research into translational hypermatter energy applications, which, unbeknownst to them, is leading up to the technology that will allow the Death Star to be born. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• The Supreme Chancellor’s Loyalist Committee empowers Senate Bureau of Intelligence Director Armand Isard to reform the organization. He creates the first Crisis Branch in 60 years. The first act of the Crisis Branch is to fire 32 remote intelligence subdirectors, ostensibly to improve the system. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• Controversy emerges when the Spotts TradeChip Company decides to issue a series of TradeChips based on famous Jedi. The Jedi Order denounces the profit-making venture, pointing out flaws like Yoda being said to be of the Lannik species. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• Nuna-Ball League commissioner Lysko Buelia suggests that the league may expand next season. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)
• The Quickwit is fired upon near Ando, prompting some senators to suggest that it is an act of war. The fact that it was fired upon by droid starfighters causes many to accuse Lott Dod and the Trade Federation of arming factions for profit at the expense of peace. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:4)
• The Separatists end food shortage riots on Kabal by dropping food shipments, earning the movement the gratitude of that planet. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4)

• Twenty university students form a mob and enter the Jedi Temple to protest the situation regarding Baby Ludi Billane. The mob is turned back and arrested by Jedi Council members Ki-Adi-Mundi and Plo Koon. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:10)

• Tanjay IV Representative Nemrileo irm-Drocubac dies in an aircar crash. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:10)

• A brawl erupts between Ohh Bronna and Corwin Kaezeb during a Dejarik tournament on Arkania. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:10) *

*NOTE: This assumes that new releases of HoloNet News come on the first day of the week, making this date "last weekend" for stories released on 13:4:11.

• Republic Sienar Systems announces their endorsement of the Sienar Advanced Systems twin ion engine design (based on the engines developed for the Sith Infiltrator), the engine type that will later allow the TIE starfighter line to emerge. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• Essence airs an interview with Gideon Tarkin. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• In the Political Pit airs an episode featuring RCLU Chairbeing Dotswa Ween, actor Reridan Reksiss, Representative Jar Jar Binks, and recording artist Gaeriala Boosin. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• The season finale of The Scarlet Pirate airs. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• Quest for Quasar fans start griping about the fact that Harlan Ottekvar, who was cast as Lord Baltharog in the film adaptation of the story, is 0.05 meters shorter than the character is said to be in a sourcebook. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• In a special feature, Ebenn Q3 Baobab publishes a supplement to the Galactic Phrasebook & Travel Guide about Snivvians on HoloNet News. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• Senator Tikkes, under suspicion of ties to a slave ring, jumps bail and escapes from Coral City on Mon Calamari. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• Sy Myrthian co-host Brookish Boon accuses the Loyalist Committee of being a shadow government, running the Republic outside of Senate control. Kinman Doriana rebuts the accusation on Amberdawn, a rival morning show. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• HoloNet News runs an advertisement for the M31-Speeder, suggesting that it is a newly released model. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• Media darlings Jobal Rapier and Yari Cranna-Rapier break up, now that there’s no need to help inflate each other’s reputations. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

• In response to an outbreak of Brainworm Rot Type A in the Manarai Heights district of Coruscant, officials warn that overcrowded ports are increasing the risk of viral infections among travelers. As part of a move to stop the spread of such viruses, particularly Brainworm Rot Type A, Neimoidians are segregated in the ports, much to the anger of Senator Lott Dod and Neimoidian supporters. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- Dug activists seeking their own Senate representation and an end to Gran rule on Malastare disrupt the funeral for Senator Aks Moe. Many are arrested, while Acting-Senator Ask Aak is taken to safety. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- Investigators discover that the bomb that killed Senator Aks Moe in his speeder earlier in the month was DNA-targeted to the Senator and composed of parts from Baktoid Armor Workshop. The current suggestion is that the Separatists were behind the assassination. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- As a result of increasing refugee immigration to Coruscant and overcrowding of ports, the Coruscant Ministry of Ingress places greater restrictions in immigration, now requiring a Core World Visa, Coruscant identi-tags, a BoSS Core Worlds operating license, a Perlemian standard passport, and proof of planetary citizenship. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- The Coalition of Automaton Rights Activists criticize Arakyd Industries, saying that their new Vindicator XM-15 “brilliant” missiles are so advanced that their droid brains should be considered sentient beings. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- Senators Char Bibbeck and Jonas Wallen are discovered to have been wagering on whether or not certain systems would secede for the past year. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- After missing 15 games in two years due to chronic elbow injuries, Garcy Flugg opts to accept a mechno-arm, donating his original arm to the hi-lo hall of fame. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:11)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- Funeral services are held for Tanjay IV Representative Nemrileo irm-Drocubac. Palpatine himself attends. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:12)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 51)
- The planet Null is one of the first planets to join the Confederacy of Independent Systems. (conjecture based on Legacy of the Jedi)
- Just before joining the Separatist Movement, the Techno Union reorganizes to resemble the Trade Federation in a successful bid for Senatorial representation.*

(conjecture based on The Clone Wars Campaign Guide)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.
- When the Techno Union officially joins the Confederacy of Independent Systems, it takes its members, including Arakyd Industries, with it. However, agents of Republic Supreme Chancellor Palpatine contact Arakyd CEO Hordis Boil to have Boil spy on Techno Union foreman Wat Tambor. Boil does so, and, in return, the clone army that is secretly being built on Kamino is outfit with Arakyd products (such as the Prowler 1000) that are purchased by the Republic through a shell company.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- Having been sent to Ansion by the Jedi Council, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker are nearing Ansion. En route, Anakin has a dream of losing his mother, Shmi, but upon awakening has little time to reflect upon it. They have arrived at Ansion. (To be continued below . . . )

(Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones”)
- The Jedi Council sends Ludi Billane (Aris-Del Wari) with a class of 19 other Jedi children to the academy on Kamparas. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:17)
- During an illegal performance of the Circus Horrificus on Nar Shaddaa, an arqet runs amok, killing 12 audience members. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:17)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- Zegret Wan scores twice in a smashball match against the Belsavis Kretch, bringing his total to 43 goals in 35 games, which he hopes to turn into 50 goals in 50 games, tying a record set by Maur “Hyperspace” Howins 38 years ago. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:17)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- Essence retransmits an episode featuring Jonava Billane, mother of Baby Ludi Billane. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 50)

- The agriculturally rich worlds of the Abrion Sector withdraw from the Republic, providing the Separatists with near self-sufficiency in foodstuffs. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- TCW DATE: When the Abrion Sector secedes, the planet Ukio does not go with it. Instead, it remains loyal, for now, thanks to favors called in by Jedi Master Yoda.
  (conjecture based on Act on Instinct)

- A Rodian play entitled The Trickery of Vosdia Nooma is released as propaganda for Senator Onaconda Farr’s support of the Military Creation Act. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- Sate Pestage announces that Palpatine is in great health and will not take a vacation before the Military Creation Act vote, as rumored. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- Senator Simon Greyshade of Vorzyd makes a motion to collect Republic tax revenue through government-subsidized casinos in his sector. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- In what may become a move hazardous to his health, Senior Senate Bureau of Intelligence official Vyn Narcassan announces that he has found a secure communications node on Coruscant that not even Palpatine would have the authority to create. The node self-destructs upon being found, but suggests a conspiracy within the government. (Perhaps this is a node belonging to Darth Sidious.) (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- Carida publicly backs the Military Creation Act. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- The annual “Mobquet Presents: Fastest Land Beings” competition is won by Yopaxtul, Pumav, Jomo, Shimer Londalin, and Tuner Ryna in their respective competitions. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- In an attempt to silence pro-separatist propaganda from the Sluis Sector, the Senate Bureau of Intelligence shuts down the Sluis Sector’s HoloNet node. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 52)

- A coalition of ten worlds (Naboo, Monastery, Kalarba, Cerea, Sneve, Bimmisaari, Durkteel, Ord Tessebok, Garos IV, and Ord Varee) loosen their immigration restrictions in order to help taken in some the refugees fleeing Separatist worlds. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
- Larisselle Chatrunis is named Miss Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
- The Exargan Mining Authority is fined for failure to disclose revenue to the Mining Guild. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
- Hologram Fun World reports that the queue waiting for the Anywhere Room attraction is down to under 400, which is seen as a sign of economic hard times for the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
- On Atzerri, Gotal guerillas calling themselves the Roshu Sune, a militant faction of the Gotal Assembly for Separation, hijacks a hopper filled with passengers, one of whom is Gotal Emissary Nathanjo Nirrelz. They pass along a pre-prepared Articles of Secession statement as their only demand thus far. The move has been made to push Antar 4, not Atzerri, into secession. The Jedi Council dispatches Sarrissa Jeng to negotiate. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:18)
- On Tatooine, Shmi Skywalker Lars, Cliegg Lars, Owen Lars, and Beru Whitesun go about their day to day life, as Shmi wonders what is happening with her son, Anakin Skywalker, who is turning twenty. A Meanwhile, the other contender for most loved woman in Anakin’s past, Padmé Amidala is on Naboo with her family. While talking to her sister, Sola, and watching Sola’s children, Ryoo and Pooja, Padmé is made to wonder about when she will finally do something for herself and her own heart instead of her sense of duty. She soon meets with Quarsh Panaka, who is now Queen Jamillia’s head of security, and Captain Gregar Typho, about security procedures to protect her from angry spice miners. Back on Tatooine, things are about to take a fateful turn. Cliegg and Owen notice signs that Tusken Raiders are coming near the human settlements. The next morning, when Shmi is out gathering mushrooms from the vaporators, she is taken by Tusken. The Lars family organizes the other settlers into a band to go after her. Their attempt goes horribly wrong. The Tusken set a trap for them, using razor wires to slice them as they approach on their fast-moving swoops. Only four of the thirty in the band escape, including Owen and Cliegg, but Cliegg has lost a leg to the trap. As for Shmi, she has not been rescued . . . (Exact date of report via comments in AOTC novelization and later Lucasfilm confirmation: 13:4:23)
- The Senate and the Judicial Department place export restrictions on Stygium cloaking technology from Aeten II in an effort to slow the proliferation of such technology. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:24)
- As the Naboo Moon Mining Union is pushed aside in favor of refugees in the Kwilaan starport on Naboo, captain Calquad Dominé refuses to move his ship, the Pickaxe from its berth, forcing the Sluissi Wanderlust to divert to Naboo. This is just another sign that tensions with these spice miners is mounting. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
- The planet Leria Kerlsil loosens immigration restrictions to take in refugees, but announces that it will only allow in single males with a net worth of 740,000 credits or more. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
- Honors students in a subadult school are discovered with death sticks, suggesting to the Jade School Board that (gasp!) drug abuse is not limited to the lower-level students. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)

- Ask Aak is officially sworn in as Ask Moe’s replacement as Senator of Malastare. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- On Atzerri, an attempt to free Gotal Emissary Nathanjo Nirrelz and 24 other hostages of the Roshu Sune ends in disaster. Nirrelz is freed, but 12 hostages and 5 guerrillas are killed, along with Jedi Knights Anyyard-Wo Shissan and Kaloor Cofi. Jedi Sarris Jeng takes the Jedi corpses to the chapter house on Aleen. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- Dyslogia Twang publishes a special feature entitled “Sightings by Twang” on HoloNet News, which describes the Refugee Relief Movement fundraiser on Alsakan attended by Padmé Amidala, Finis Valorum, and others. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- Mettez Roi’s efforts to organize the illegal spectator combat sports of the galaxy into one Galaxy Gladiator Federation begin to fall apart due to rule conflicts between different potential members. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- Coruscant’s Monument Plaza is temporarily closed after an anonymous tip suggests that the Separatists may attack the plaza. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- Jedi Knight Reef returns to Coruscant from his hunt for Rotar Lopani with the bodies of both Lopani and bounty hunter Tosinquas. Tosinquas had appeared on Brentaal IV and killed Lopani, then turned on Reef, who was forced to kill him. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- The Tynna Central Government Building is destroyed by stone mites. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- Jujiran Halbeet discovers fellow Given worker Gavrilonnis Tejere tampering with the Yag’dhul Ambassadorial Landing Platform at the Yag’dhul Embassy on Coruscant. Tejere is stopped with the aid of Mace Windu and Yoda. An investigation into the planned sabotage is launched, led by Jedi Knight Qu Rahn. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:25)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 53)
- The House of Tagge’s “Heroes of the Republic” promotional campaign at Biscuit Baron ends. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:33)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 49)
- The Scarlet Thranta, a Judicial corvette under Captain Zozridor Slayke, goes rogue. The crew intends to make an offensive against the Separatists. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:4:35)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
- The Rodian soldier Grudo signs on with Captain Zozridor Slayke, who is calling his new anti-Separatist force the “Sons and Daughters of Freedom.” (conjecture based on Jedi Trial)
- As the Separatist crisis builds, Tannon Praji closes Coruscant to new immigration. This decision leads to frequent political attacks, as he is painted in the media as a trillionaire who coldly decides peoples’ fates.*
(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Tannon Praji, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- Senator Orn Free Taa of Ryloth jokes about Lott Dod’s skyway accident on Amberdawn, eliciting an angry response from the Trade Federation Senator. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- Senator Onaconda Farr of Rodia accuses Loyalist Committee member Havriso Looruya of funding Separatist activity. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- Count Dooku is spotted in the Gree Enclave. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:1)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- After three months of Cease and Desist orders against Vespula Manufacturing & Exports for patent and copyright violations, the Commerce Guild sends bounty hunters from the House Salaktori guild to destroy the company’s offices. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- With the transmission of Articles of Secession by Senator Daggibus Scoritoles, Yag’Dhul secedes from the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- The University of Sanbra discovers the longest space slug yet (80-meters) in the Borkeen Belt. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- Ignar Ominaz wins the Tasjon swoopracing competition, despite pressure from Serji-X Arrogantus, who is only behind by two points. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- 24 Corellian Sector Jedi Knights, including Nejaa Halcyon, return to the Republic, putting their vows to the Republic and Jedi Order above sector loyalty. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- The Senate Bureau of Investigation confirms accusations that Loyalist Committee member Havriso Looruya has been funding Separatist activity. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- The Gran populace on Malastare, fearing Dug activities and remembering the death of Aks Moe, increase security at the Pixelito starport, utilizing surplus Trade Federation PK units. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- The Colonies begin to experience an increasing food shortage as a result of the Separatist crisis. Luckily, the InterGalactic Banking Clan and Techno Union offer some assistance. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- A new study from the Parking Conservation Fund finds that within the next 45 years, parking lots will be “extinct” on Coruscant. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- Reports reach Holonet News that Count Dooku is no longer in the Gree Enclave, but his presence there earlier in the week have been confirmed. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
- Holonet News confirms that the missing Scarlet Thranta Republic starship has gone rogue, intending to take on the Separatists on their own. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:2)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 54)
Aboard his starship, Captain Cavik Toth, a mercenary with a high-stakes reputation, is contacted by Count Dooku (AKA Darth Tyranus). Dooku wants Toth to act as a sort of middle-man between Dooku and a secret Trade Federation project, which is intent on creating a new type of weapon of mass destruction. That weapon, trihexalon (Dragon’s Breath) is being developed in the Karthakk system, which is currently under Trade Federation control. Elsewhere, on Coruscant, Adi Gallia and Saesee Tiin put Adi’s new prototype Jedi Starfighter, a newly modified version of the Delta-7 Aethersprite, through its paces. Adi is called to Mace Windu, who sends her to check out the Trade Federation activities in the Karthakk system. They believe the Neimoidians are building weapons, but aren’t sure what kind. She is given advice to hook up with allies of the pirate Nym and his outfit, since they have been fighting an only marginally successful battle against the Trade Federation in the system for years, and they could be valuable allies. Adi is sent to meet with Nym’s associate Reti in the Ruby Nebula. Upon meeting, they are attacked by Trade Federation starfighters, but manage to get back to Maramere, Nym’s current base, which is under attack by Federation vessels. They hook up with Nym, who isn’t terribly happy to have a Jedi with them, but when Adi helps to drive off the Federation vessels (well, some of them) and liberate prisoners from the Trade Federation’s Space Station 1138, Nym changes his tune, somewhat. With the Maramere base now under Trade Federation control, the pirate group, along with Adi at their side, turns around and attacks the Trade Federation installations that spring up, finally driving off the Federation with the death of their local leader, Harro Ruuk, whom Nym personally kills in a battle with Ruuk’s own submarine (yeah, Nym’s bombs blasted that bad boy up pretty good). Unfortunately, the battle may be won, but the larger campaign continues, as the trihexalon project moves further ahead. Toth and Balla (his second-in-command) arrive at the Dragon’s Breath research facility, discovering that the weapon is fulfilling its potential, but the production schedule is not. He decides to simply test the trihexalon by killing all of the Neimoidians present and takes over the project himself . . .

(To be continued below . . .)

The Commerce Guild is growing in power. Its president, Shu Mai, meets with Senator Mousul of Ansion and other conspirators to outline plans to topple the Republic. They are working toward the secession of Ansion, which, owing to Ansion’s treaties, will bring other planets out of the Republic in its wake. Shu Mai and Mousul are doing their best to manipulate events on Ansion in their favor, little knowing the true identity and power of Shu Mai’s benefactor. Meanwhile, on Ansion, Jedi Master Luminara Unduli and her Padawan, Barriss Offee, are attacked by goons hired by Bossban Soergg the Hutt. They had come to the planet to seek a peaceful treaty between Ansion’s Unity of Community (city-dwellers) and the nomadic Alwari clans, but it seems someone wants to stop them from succeeding. They are saved by the arrival of Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker. Together, the four Jedi are to make peace between the two sides, both of whom believe the Senate is supporting the other side. The results of peace between the Ansonians will make or break the Jedi’s mission to keep Ansion within the Republic. Shortly after the attack, Soergg reports his goons’ failure to his employer—Shu Mai. Later, they meet with the Unity of Community. They convince the leaders to accept a sharing of half the prairie lands with the Alwari if the Alwari will also agree, thus cementing the peace. They are sent on their way to meet with the Alwari, but the representatives of the government are not exactly optimistic for their success. A short time later, one of the Unity leaders, Kandah, passes along information about the Jedi’s movements to Soergg’s majordomo, Ogomoor. It looks like the Hutt will have other chances to stop the Jedi. If they can be kept away long enough, the government will vote for secession without their report. Before the Jedi can set out from Cuipernam (the capitol), two mentally-challenged goons (Bulgan and Kyakhta) kidnap Barriss in a local marketplace. As the other Jedi search for her, she finds herself alone with Bulgan, while Kyakhta goes to report her capture. She uses the Force to clear Bulgan of his mental problems, giving him back a normal life. When Kyakhta returns, she gives him the same treatment, and the two clanless Alwari become Barriss’ newest allies. They regroup with the other three Jedi, even as Soergg learns of their betrayal and sets new plans in motion. The Jedi and their two Alwari allies take off out over the landscape on suubatars, seeking the Borokii overclan. After several encounters with dangerous wildlife (and a further push toward a secession vote back in Cuiernam), the Jedi troupe comes upon the Yiwa clan. After providing the Yiwa with entertainment, they are pointed in the direction of the Borokii. Along the way, they soon encounter the Gwarran, small cousins of the Alwari. They befriended in particular, Tooqui, who goes along with them as they continue their search for the Borokii. The troupe now numbers seven. They soon come upon the Qulun clan, but are drugged by strange perfumes. The Qulun have been paid by Soergg to keep them from getting back to Cuiernam in time to stop a rapidly-approaching secession vote. Tooqui escapes, though, and manages to save them in the midst of a stampede he has caused. Their quest continues, but things are becoming more desperate, for, unbeknownst to them, a date is being set for the secession vote. It is no longer a matter of waiting until the Jedi return, but hoping the Jedi will return in time for the vote. Finally, they meet with the Borokii, who ask them to prove their worthiness by cutting hair from the mane of an albino surep. Luminara volunteers for the dangerous task, and finds herself leaping from back to back of the animals. On her way out of the surep corral, though, she falls, and the other Jedi must race in to save her. She makes it out with the hair, though, and the Borokii will hear their proposal. They agree to the terms of the agreement if, and only if, the Jedi will join them in “dealing with” the rival Januul clan. They Jedi cannot take a side in the conflict, especially if it means wiping out the other clan, but since they only said “deal with,” not “destroy,” the Jedi use the battle situation to talk sense into both sides, using their Jedi abilities to keep the sides from wiping each other out, and forcing peace talks. The sides agree to work together, and they will give an as yet unseen gift to the Jedi. The seven race back to Cuiernam, where the vote will soon be held, even though the Commerce Guild is nearly ready to force secession with or without Ansion. Upon arrival, they find all comm channels jammed. They race to speak to the Unity, but are attacked along the way. They barely escape, but make it to the hall in time to present their case, flanked by guardsmen from the Borokii and Januul clans—their gift from the clans. Ogomoor bursts into the proceedings to betray Soergg, but is shot by Soergg, who is present. Barriss accuses Soergg of her kidnapping, but without Ogomoor, no evidence exists except for the words of Bulgan and Kyakhta. Finally, the agreement between the Alwari and Unity is confirmed. Ansion will not leave the Republic. In the wake of this news, Shu Mai ensures that all of those conspirators who are pushing for immediate secession are silenced, then contacts her benefactor to report what has taken place. Her benefactor, Count Dooku, is not disturbed. Things are proceeding well . . . (Exact date, based on Holonet News #54 and Attack of the Clones novelization: 13:4:16 – 13:5:2)*

(The Approaching Storm)*

*NOTE: I have chosen, for the moment, to keep this summary intact, with the exact date being listed as a span of several weeks, until I have the time to skim through TAS again to determine exactly when all of the other related dates from Holonet News would fit in relation to TAS events. Expect a more exact separation of this summary in a future release.

- In the years after Darth Maul’s defeat on Naboo, the Jedi sense the Dark Side growing in the galaxy. They have set up more training posts around the galaxy to prepare the next generation of Jedi for struggles to come. Jedi Master Marva Zane takes a group of Padawans to Kashyyyk to study the Force. The group consists of Ara Barotta, Zeetara Maan, Kasi Sha’ril, Fenella Druce, Kai Rees, Tren Alvar, Dar Singe, and Cho Zeh’bra. While en route, the Padawans practice with training lightsabers. They arrive at Kashyyyk and are surprised to find Mace Windu, Yoda, and Obi-Wan Kenobi (via hologram in Obi-Wan’s case) waiting for them. Yoda, Mace, and Obi-Wan sense something dark coming in the future for these Padawans. As Mace returns to Coruscant, Yoda works with two of the Padawans on an obstacle course that the Wookiees have been using to train themselves. The training is interrupted by the arrival of B1 battle droids in the forest and starfighters overhead. The Jedi race for the Wookiee village aboard speederbikes, blasting droids as they go. Once Yoda and the Padawans arrive at the village, Yoda heads off on his own, leaving the Padawans to work together in pairs to take on the droids (B1 and B2 droids). They discover the source of the droids, a group of Trandoshan hunters. They reunite with Marva, defend Wookiees in the village, then head for the beach (through B1’s, B2’s, and droidekas), which the Trandoshans have overrun. They commandeer Trandoshan airspeeders and allow Marva to get aboard the Trandoshans’ ship to set thermal detonators inside. Recognizing that the weapons and droids are unusual for the Trandoshans, Marva and Yoda agree that there is something more behind the Trandoshans’ move. While Yoda returns to Coruscant to consult with the Jedi Council in person, Marva and the Padawans join the Wookiees (including Chewbacca) in repelling a second wave of Trandoshan forces, which includes slave ships and droids armed with electrostaffs. While Marva leads a holding action, Chewbacca and the two Padawans attempt to get clear and get word to the Jedi of the second attack. The two Padawans and Chewbacca escape on an airspeeder to a YT-2400 freighter, the Star Runner. While Chewbacca gets it ready to launch, the Padawans face two tattooed Darksiders in lightsaber combat, then escape aboard the ship, where they meet protocol droid TC-38. The quartet work together (with the Padawans manning weapons and Chewbacca flying) to get through enemy ships above Kashyyyk and make it into hyperspace. Once in hyperspace, they are contacted by Mace and Yoda, who reveal that Kashyyyk was not the only training facility that has been attacked. Others have been hit as well, and Marva is now missing. They are ordered to Felucia to join in the defense of other Jedi trainees there. They engage enemy ships over Felucia as well, and they land the Star Runner aboard the Providence, where they then engage enemy droids and Trandoshans. They make their way through the ship, discovering that several Padawans are being held aboard, but Marva is not listed as a prisoner. They also discover a massive invasion force aboard the flagship they have boarded. They find the captive Padawans, who tell them that the Trandoshans are allied with the Gossam for a major offensive somewhere soon. They also reveal that Marva was with them until they were captured, but then Marva disappeared. The Padawans battle more droids and Trandoshans, until Marva appears and joins them, destroying several MagnaGuard droids. When cornered by droidekas, she cuts a hole in the floor to allow our heroes to escape from more droids and the strange, red-helmeted darksiders. Marva orders Chewbacca to take TC-38 and the formerly captive Padawans back to the Star Runner, while Marva and the two Padawans that accompanied Chewbacca work together to destroy the ship and its cargo. They destabilize the ship’s core and battle their way back to the Star Runner and escape just in the nick of time, as the flagship explodes. Caught in the shockwave of the explosion, they crash on the surface of Felucia. When they contact Yoda, the sketchy hologram is able to provide them enough information for them to know that Felucia is in the hands of the Commerce Guild. They are to join with a local resistance cell. They fight their way through more Trandoshans (having to leave TC-38 and Chewbacca to fix the ship), then an entire armed camp of them, before meeting local (and human) resistance leader Mak Pra and his Felucian allies. He informs them that the Gossam (under Commerce Guild leader Shu Mai) are intending some kind of attack with trihexalon gas. They carry out an attack the next day on the Commerce Guild’s local fortress, taking out its shield generators. They fight their way through the base (filled with droids and Trandoshans, plus a couple of hooded guards), finally reaching the base’s archives, where they download the attack plans, confirming that it is a weaponized trihexalon agent, and their target is the Senate on Coruscant. The three Jedi try to escape to rejoin Mak Pra and the others who are holding back more attackers, but they emerge to find Mak and his few remaining soldiers held prisoner and Shu Mai gloating over their capture. The Jedi are taken to Shu Mai’s barge, while Shu Mai briefly contacts her superior — Count Dooku (who has become Darth Tyranus since the events on Naboo). The Jedi are to be tossed into a sarlacc, but Yoda, Chewbacca, TC-38, and Mak Pra (apparently having escaped Shu Mai or having been considered too useless to keep prisoner) arrive aboard their repaired Star Runner and turn the tables, giving the Jedi back their lightsabers and battling their way to freedom . . . until the arrival of two apparent Zabrak Nightbrother Sith Apprentices (spares under Dooku, perhaps): Darth Ror and Darth Kern. The two Padawans take out the two foes, then rejoin Marva and Yoda. Shu Mai escapes, however, and Yoda urges Marva and the Padawans to chase after Shu Mai. The Star Runner (piloted by Chewbacca and Marva) and new Jedi Starfighters (flown by the two Padawans) blast through Commerce Guild forces in space, clearing the way for Yoda’s fleet of Venator-class Star Destroyers. They destroy the command ship, then jump to Coruscant to stop the Subjugator (a ship of the same class as the Malevolence and the Devastation that carries the trihexalon weapon). They find themselves not just facing the Subjugator but amid a massive battle over Coruscant. They fly their starfighters into the Subjugator, destroying its central core, then escaped as it explodes, ending the trihexalon threat. At a ceremony shortly thereafter, attended by Yoda, Mace Windu, TC-38, and Chewbacca, Marva officially grants both Padawans the rank of Jedi Knight.*

(Jedi Destiny: Dark Side Rising)*

*NOTE: Okay, this is a strange one. This is the story mode for Kinect Star Wars. It was originally said to be a long story that would span from 32 BBY through Revenge of the Sith in 19 BBY. However, that is impossible, given how the story flows pretty much straight through without any big time jumps or breaks. It is definitely after TPM, since the Jedi training places have been set up in the wake of Darth Maul’s defeat on Naboo. However, the final battle over Coruscant involves Jedi flying Jedi Starfighters (Delta-7 Aethersprites) and fighting alongside Venator-class battleships. The only way this even remotely makes sense, given that this is all pre-AOTC apparently, is for this to be in the same general timeframe as Jedi Starfighter, so that the technology can exist in experimental fashion, but not be officially part of the “Grand Army” that does not yet exist. Seriously, though, the continuity issues here are just “ugh.” Also, I should note that I keep referring to the Padawans that are the main characters without names because you can choose from any of the Padawans in the initial group to be your player character and his/her partner (or second player character).

- On Naboo, Captains Quarsh Panaka and Gregar Typho bring word to Padmé Amidala that it seems Count Dooku is intending an alliance with Trade Federation Viceroy Nute Gunray. They will have to be cautious when they visit Coruscant for the Military Creation Act vote. Meanwhile, on Tatooine, Owen Lars has built a hoverchair for his father, Criegg Lars, who lost his leg in the search for Shmi Skywalker Lars. The trying times for the Lars family continue . . . (Exact date of report via comments in AOTC novelization: 13:4:26)

(Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones”)

- While still assisting Nym and his “Revenants” on Maramere, Adi Gallia and Nym’s Toydarian associate Reti receive a distress call from fellow Maramere local Loreli Ro, who informs them that strange missiles are coming in from orbit. It seems that Cavik Toth, head of the Trade Federation and Separatist “Dragon’s Breath” project, is now testing trihexalon by launching his weapons of mass destruction at Nym’s current home planet. After shooting the missiles out of the sky and engaging Toth’s own starfighter group, known as Sabaoth Squadron (though there’s a lot more than one squadron of them), Adi contacts Mace Windu of what has transpired. She is advised to remain on Maramere with Nym’s people to further protect them and investigate the threat. Meanwhile, Nym and his associate, Jenkins, take out a Trade Federation mining facility on Maramere’s Mount Merakan, which they learn is mining ores that will be used for the creation of trihexalon. The heroes track a convoy from the mines to the planet Nod Kartha, where they discover a trihexalon factory. The heroes take on Trade Federation and Sabaoth forces over the world, finally only getting through when one of Nym’s vessels, the Kethor, is damaged beyond repair, and its mortally wounded captain, Orasi, sends it into a generator that is powering shields to the factory. They have also taken out several orbital guns, which Nym takes note of. The heroes head to the surface, where Nym leads a party to blow up the factory’s facilities from the inside, while Adi takes on parts of the factory from the outside. Finally, the threat is eliminated. There shall be no more trihexalon coming from Nod Kartha. (To be continued below . . .)

(Jedi Starfighter)

- As the Separatist crisis intensifies, the Jendirian Valley’s cargo holds are refit to handle refugees to profit from the refugee crisis that is developing. (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

Holonet News runs a story regarding the forthcoming Military Creation Act vote. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)

- Blue Senate Guards are forced into violence to disperse crowds protesting outside the Senate Rotunda. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)

- Stone mites claim Ord Tiddell as their next victim. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)

- Jedi Knights Tassida Judrelle, Quarmall, and Stass Allie take down a salt smuggling cartel on Cona, which was run by Lojrak Shrag and Godiban Bakoosta. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)

(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• Industrial Automaton caps their astromech hover rocket warranty at 20 years, instead of their original "lifetime" guarantee. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• A Jedi task force is sent to stop the Scarlet Thranta’s private war with the Separatists. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• After a pro-Separatist uprising ends in the death of Jedi Knight Bodis Ker Vitan, Cadinth begins wavering on whether or not to secede from the Republic. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• Jedi Knight Joclad Danva loses in Teras Kasi to Phow Ji. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)*
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)*
*NOTE: This event is later also referenced in Battle Surgeons, where Phow Ji becomes the Drongar combat instructor for the Republic.
• The Coruscant Energy Commission increases rates by 0.4 credits, the largest credit-per-parajoule increase in over 60 years. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• With Havriso Looruya’s expulsion from the Loyalist Committee, he is replaced by Onaconda Farr of Rodia. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• After last month's refuse cannon misfire, the Desrini District of Coruscant is now plagued by huge numbers of dianogas, which have killed at least 25 homeless beings. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• Personnel Director Lanyss Gutierrace of the Judicial Department is discharged due to anti-alien bias. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• A bulk freighter called Tanderoff’s Trove is stopped at Eriadu and found to have 144 InterGalactic Banking Clan hailfire droids aboard, bound for the Separatist world of Praesitlyn. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:9)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 55)
• On Kamino, Jango Fett trains Boba Fett in how to fly the Slave I and target enemies. Before they can train more, he is contacted by Count Dooku, who needs Padmé Amidala killed. Jango contacts Zam Wesell to join him in the mission and prepares to leave. Boba will be watched by Tuan We. (To be continued below . . .)
  (Jango Fett: Bounty Hunter)
• On Kamino, Boba Fett amuses himself with books from Whrr, the unseen librarian. One day, his father, Jango Fett, is given a new job from the man Boba knows only as “Count Tyranus” (Count Dooku AKA Darth Tyranus). Jango must be away for five days on a new mission with Zam Wesell. (Exact date of report via comments in Boba Fett: The Fight to Survive: 13:5:14)*
  (The Fight to Survive)
*NOTE: Given that the five-day trip includes time to get both to and from Coruscant, I am cutting that in half to determine when Jango actually leaves from Kamino.
• Supreme Chancellor Palpatine addresses the public, again insisting that his negotiations with the Separatists will end tensions peacefully. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:15)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
• Separatist forces in the Lahara sector attack the Rescue Corps ship Iron Tether when it enters Separatist space. In response, a Jedi task force led by Jedi Master Darrin Arkanian is sent as a border patrol. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:15)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
• The day before the attack on Padmé Amidala upon her arrival on Coruscant, Boba Fett meets with Zam Wesell at the Outlander Club to finalize details of their mission to kill her for Count Dooku. (To be continued below . . .)
(Jango Fett: Bounty Hunter)

Blood Ties (comic series: Tom Taylor)
- Jango and Boba Fett, Part I (comic: Tom Taylor)
- Jango and Boba Fett, Part II (comic: Tom Taylor)

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
- Full of Surprises (comic: Jason Hall)
  - Full of Surprises (comic: Jason Hall)

Puzzle Peace (SWT13 short story: Scott Beatty)
- Puzzle Peace (SWT13 short story: Scott Beatty)

The Prequel Novelization Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: Terry Brooks & R. A. Salvatore & Matthew Stover)
- Attack of the Clones (novel: R. A. Salvatore)
  - Prelude

Starfighter [continued] (comic/video game series: Haden Blackman & LucasArts)
- Jedi Starfighter (video game: LucasArts)
  - Training
    - Flight
    - Basic Targeting
    - Advanced Targeting
    - Secondary Weapons
    - Force Powers
  - Act I
    - A Deadly Plot
    - The Informant
    - Unlikely Allies
    - Prison Break
    - Turning the Tides
    - Dragon’s Breath

The Approaching Storm (novel: Alan Dean Foster)
- The Approaching Storm (novel: Alan Dean Foster)
  - Chapters 1 – 16

Medstar (novel and SWI/SWH short story series: Steve Perry & Michael Reaves)
- Jedi Healer [flashback] (novel: Steve Perry & Michael Reaves)
  - Chapter 1 [flashback]

The Approaching Storm [continued] (novel: Alan Dean Foster)
- The Approaching Storm [continued] (novel: Alan Dean Foster)
  - Chapter 16 [continued]
  - Chapters 17 – 18

Kinect Star Wars (video game: LucasArts & Microsoft Game Studios, et al)
- Kinect Star Wars (video game: LucasArts & Microsoft Game Studios, et al)
  - Jedi Destiny: Dark Side Rising
    - Kashyyyk
      - Missions 1 – 9
    - Providence
      - Missions 1 – 6
    - Felucia
      - Missions 1 – 6

The Prequel Novelization Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: Terry Brooks & R. A. Salvatore & Matthew Stover)
- Attack of the Clones [continued] (novel: R. A. Salvatore)
  - Chapters 1 – 3

The Prequel Novelization Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: Terry Brooks & R. A. Salvatore & Matthew Stover)
- Attack of the Clones [continued] (novel: R. A. Salvatore)
  - Chapter 3 [continued]
Starfighter [continued] (comic/video game series: Haden Blackman & LucasArts)
Jedi Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)

    Act II
    Poisoned Skies
    Mount Merakan
    Hammer and Anvil
    Demolition Squad
    Jedi Valor
    Dragon’s Den

    Father and Son
    A New Mission

Boba Fett (youth novel series: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
Survival (youth novel: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
The Fight to Survive (youth novel: Terry Bisson)
   Chapters 1 – 3

    Partners

21.8 BBY

- Achk Med-Beq, Dannl Faytonni, and Llollulion escape from the Moderate Security Ward of the Coco Penitentiary on Coruscant. They will eventually make their way to the nightclub where Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker confront Zam Wesell and bear witness to that confrontation. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

- Presuming that the Military Creation Act will actually be voted on today, Holonet News runs a story on the split in the Loyalist Committee over the vote. Ask Aak, Bail Organa, Onaconda Farr, and Ronet Coor appear to be in favor of the Act, while Padmé Amidala and Lexi Dio will likely oppose it. Orn Free Taa’s opinions seem ambiguous, but it is likely that he will support it as well. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

- Above Coruscant, a Naboo Royal Cruiser, flanked by three N-1 Starfighters approaches the planet. Upon landing, Senator Padmé Amidala (disguised as an N-1 pilot) and Captain Typho, her head of security, have but a moment to be amazed at their safe landing before an explosion rocks the Royal Cruiser. Padmé rushes to Cordé, her handmaiden double, who dies in her arms, fulfilling her duty as a decoy. Even as Typho races her to safety, Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi and his Padawan Anakin Skywalker emerge into the spacelanes above Coruscant, returning from Ansion. In the Senate, Supreme Chancellor Palpatine begins to deliver an announcement of Padmé’s death when she and the others emerge into the center of attention aboard her platform, revealing that she has survived. She speaks eloquently against the creation of a Republic Army, but the vote is deferred until a later date. Shortly thereafter, Palpatine meets with Jedi Masters Mace Windu, Ki-Adi-Mundi, and Yoda about his intentions to negotiate a peace with Count Dooku and his Confederacy of Independent Systems (the Separatists). Padmé, Typho, Dormé, Jar Jar Binks, Mas Amedda, Horox Ryder, and Bail Organa enter the office and the discussion. Everyone but Padmé agrees that she should agree to take on protection in the form of Obi-Wan and Anakin. A short while later, Obi-Wan and Anakin head for her apartment, where they are reunited with Jar Jar first, then Padmé. Anakin is immediately intoxicated by Padmé, having dreamt of her for ten years. It is apparent that Anakin is already in love with her, but she has a hard time at first seeing him as anything other than the little boy from Tatooine. She does not like the idea of having protection, but relents. That night, two meetings take place. First, bounty hunter Jango Fett meets with Zam Wesell, who is working for him, giving her poisonous kouhuns to kill Padmé, now that Zam’s attempt to kill her on the landing pad has failed. Meanwhile, Yoda and Mace Windu meet and determine that Yoda will attempt to skirt the Dark Side in order to sense the near future of events already unfolding with the assassination attempt. Later in the evening, Anakin speaks with Padmé about capturing the would-be assassins when they make another attempt. Obi-Wan does not like the idea that they are using Padmé as bait, but, sure enough, an ASN-121 assassin droid soon appears outside Padmé’s room, releasing the kouhuns into the room. As they approach her on the bed, the Jedi sense danger and spring into action. As Anakin slices the kouhuns, saving Padmé, Obi-Wan dives through the high-story window, grabbing the droid and letting it carry him (electric shocks and all), toward its master, Zam. Upon reaching Zam, though, she shoots the droid, destroying it and sending Obi-Wan falling several stories before he is caught by Anakin, who has commandeered Senator Simon Greyshade’s custom speeder. They give chase as Zam takes off in her own. Eventually, they seem to have lost her, but Anakin is merely waiting for the right moment. At that moment, he leaps from the speeder down several stories and right onto the top of Zam’s speeder. She knocks his lightsaber away, but Obi-Wan catches it from below. Anakin forces Zam down onto street level, where she comes to an abrupt stop, so to speak, then escapes into a nightclub. Obi-Wan joins Anakin as they enter, giving him back his lightsaber and reminding him that it is his life. Obi-Wan wonders if Anakin will be the death of him, but Anakin assures him that he does not want to cause Obi-Wan pain. He loves his Master like a father figure. Inside the club, Obi-Wan heads for the bar, where he causes Elan Sleasebaggano to rethink his death stick-dealing life, while Anakin searches the crowd for the Clawdite (shape-shifting) Zam. Zam approaches Obi-Wan from behind, earning her a severed hand when he spins with his saber ready. They try to find out who hired her to kill Padmé, but she is shot with a strange dart by an assassin in silver True Mandalorian armor, who then flies away. Zam dies on the spot. In the aftermath of the night’s events, Anakin talks to Palpatine about trying to convince Padmé to leave Coruscant, while, at the Jedi Temple, Obi-Wan laments Anakin’s arrogance and, on Tatooine, Shmi Skywalker remains a bloodied, tortured prisoner of Tusken Raiders . . . Later, Jango returns to Kamino. He tells Boba about Zam Wesell’s death. He also gives his son a black electronic book, which Boba is to open and use to find his way in the galaxy if and when Jango dies. He is enjoying spending time with Boba Fett, his “son,” when Kaminoan Tuan We informs him that it is time to take another genetic sample from him, as began ten years earlier. Meanwhile, Anakin, R2-D2, and Padmé set out from Coruscant for Naboo, while Dormé stays behind in her place. Obi-Wan also intends to leave soon, but first, he must decide where to begin his investigation. To do this, he runs an analysis on the dart at the Temple Archives, to no avail. He then tries his old contact Dexter Jettster, who tells him that it is a Kamino saberdart and that the Kaminoans are cloners. Getting rough coordinates for the planet from Dexter, he returns to the Temple to check out the planet in the Archives with the help of Jocasta Nu. While Obi-Wan heads for the Temple to continue his investigation, Anakin and Padmé discuss the concept of love and how it fits into the Jedi lifestyle aboard the Jendirian Valley where they are posing as peasants or refugees. They then arrive on Naboo and discuss the situation with Queen Jarillia, finally agreeing to visit Padmé’s family and hide out at a lake retreat. At the Jedi Temple, Obi-Wan learns a bit more about the Separatist leader Count Dooku, one of the Lost Twenty, the only twenty Jedi Knights to ever leave the order. It is said that Dooku was tired of the corruption in the Republic and its use of the Jedi as tools, so he left. She also informs him that Kamino does not exist in the records. A gravity well exists where it should be. Obi-Wan goes to where Yoda is training some younglings, and the younglings realize that the planet is still there, hence the gravity well, but someone has somehow managed to erase it from the Jedi Archives. Obi-Wan sets out at once for Kamino. On Naboo, Anakin finally meets Padmé’s parents, Jobal and Ruwee, along with Sola and the kids. They have a nice family dinner, where their feelings for each other seem apparent to everyone but Padmé. Sola even goes so far as to say so, increasing Padmé’s inner conflict. The next day, they go to the Lake Country, where, while talking on a balcony overlooking the water, Anakin and Padmé kiss for the first time. Padmé apologizes, and the situation remains unresolved. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan has taken his Delta-7 with his droid, R4-P, to Kamino, where he lands on the main city-over-the-water, Tipoca City. He is not prepared, though, when a Kaminoan named Tuan We (the same one who spoke with Jango earlier) meets him, saying that they have been expecting him. He is taken to see Prime Minister Lama Su, and it is in this meeting that the mysteries of the situation begin to be revealed. He tells Obi-Wan that 200,000 units are ready, with another 1,000,000 on the way. He is referring to a clone army. It seems that approximately ten years earlier, just after the Battle of Naboo, Jedi Master Sifo-Dyas, who died shortly thereafter, had secretly come to Kamino to commission the creation of a clone army for the Republic, which seems rather odd given that the Military Creation Act is only now being debated. As Obi-Wan continues to inspect the facilities on Kamino, Anakin and Padmé share a day outdoors on Naboo (during which he suggests an affinity for a dictatorial type of government), where they continue to see their feelings for each other grow, then have dinner together. At the dinner, Anakin asks how he can make this work, but Padmé knows that he could be expelled from the Jedi Order for an attachment to her, and they both know that trying to hide their relationship and having to live a lie would destroy them. It seems, for now, that the budding relationship is off. Back on Kamino, Obi-Wan continues learning about the situation. They had opted not to use a Jedi for the clone template, it seems, and instead used bounty hunter Jango Fett. Other than being paid well for his services and for remaining on Kamino as much as possible to act as a source of samples, all that Jango asked for was one unaltered clone for himself. This clone, which did not have the benefit of accelerated growth or training, was to be raised by Jango as his own son—Boba Fett. Meanwhile, Jango and Boba have discovered the Delta-7 and know a Jedi is on Kamino. Thus, they are somewhat prepared when Tuan We brings Obi-Wan to see Jango. Obi-Wan tries to prod Jango for information, only to discover that Jango had never heard of Sifo-Dyas. He was brought into the project by a man named Tyranus on one of the moons of Bogden. Tuan We clarifies that Sifo-Dyas said to expect Jango, then Jango was apparently sent by Tyranus right as Sifo-Dyas said. Obi-Wan leaves for the moment, but Jango knows that it’s time to leave Kamino for a while. After their meeting, Jango tells Boba to get ready to leave. While Jango heads for Slave I, Boba races to return library books to Whrr, accidentally giving Whrr the black book that Jango gave him. While Obi-Wan keeps investigating and the Fetts get ready to leave Kamino, Anakin has another dream of his mother in pain, so he takes Padmé (to not technically disobey his orders to protect her) and heads for Tatooine. They speak to Watto, who tells them of how Shmi was sold to Cliegg Lars, then married him later, so they head for the Lars’ home. They are met by Beru Whitesun, Owen Lars, and Cliegg, who tell them of how Shmi had been captured by Tusken Raiders a month earlier. Knowing she is still alive, Anakin sets out on Cliegg’s swoop to save her. On Coruscant, Yoda and Mace receive a transmission from Obi-Wan, informing them of the clone situation. They tell him to apprehend Jango for questioning, but they all wonder how Jango (whom Obi-Wan recognized by armor sticking out of a closet) could be tied into both the attempt on Padmé’s life and the creation of the clone army. Could Padmé’s support against the Military Creation Act have been that strong? On Kamino, Obi-Wan races to capture Jango, only to find their apartment empty. He heads for a landing pad, where Jango, in full armor, and Boba are preparing Jango’s ship, Slave I, for a quick escape. Obi-Wan rushes in to stop him, lightsaber ignited, and Jango attacks. As Obi-Wan battles Jango, Boba uses Slave I to fire on Obi-Wan as well. Finally, Obi-Wan and Jango seem to fall off the edge of the city into the sea, but Jango soon emerges. He joins Boba in the ship for a quick escape. Obi-Wan is still alive, though, and at the last moment, he pulls himself up onto the platform and puts a tracer on Slave I. Obi-Wan pursues Jango and Boba to the asteroid belt near Geonosia, where the Fetts again believe they destroy Obi-Wan, but Obi-Wan has simply fooled them with a bit of faked debris. Once the Fetts make for the surface, Obi-Wan follows. Meanwhile, back on Tatooine, Padmé speaks with C-3PO about the last few years, then helps him get sand out from inside the panels that Shmi had added to him a few years ago. As for Anakin, he continues tracking the Tusken Raiders. On Geonosis, Obi-Wan is nearly taken out by a creature as he makes his way along a rock face. He witnesses numerous Battle droids being made. Another army is being created. He finally makes it into a cavernous area, where he spies a group of conspirators below. The group includes Count Dooku, Trade Federation Viceroy Nute Gunray (whose support Dooku has gotten by promising to have Padmé killed, which explains Jango and Zam), Senators Toonebuck Toora of Sy Myrth and Tesselk of Mon Calamari, Shu Mai of the Commerce Guild, San Hill of the InterGalactic Banking Clan, Wat Tambor of the Techno Union, and Passel Argente of the Corporate Alliance. Dooku and the Separatists look to be gathering support from some of the most powerful financial powers in the galaxy for their move against the Republic. But if this is the threat that Sifo-Dyas had commissioned the clone army for on Kamino, then is it just coincidence that Jango Fett is seemingly working for both sides? On Tatooine, Anakin finds the Tusken camp and frees Shmi, only for her to die in his arms. In his grief and rage, he slaughters the entire Tusken settlement, including all of the women and children. He has given in to the Dark Side as never before. During his slaughter, though, he misses hearing the voice of Qui-Gon, speaking to him. Yoda, deep in meditation, senses Anakin’s actions and does hear Qui-Gon, but this creates even more questions, as Yoda cannot understand how this could be true. Qui-Gon is dead, and there is no existence after death . . . is there? If there is, then the Jedi of this time period have no working knowledge of it. Soon, Anakin returns to the Lars’ home with his mother’s body. Anakin is filled with grief, rage, and self-hatred as he speaks with Padmé. He knows that what he did was wrong, and he is very sorry. He simply couldn’t control himself. He promises to Padmé and himself that he will someday be the most powerful Jedi ever. He later promises that he will never fail her as he did his mother. They hold a funeral for Shmi, and Cliegg gives C-3PO back to Anakin. After the funeral, they receive a transmission from Obi-Wan, who needs it relayed to Coruscant. He is reporting about the situation on Geonosis when the transmission is interrupted by Obi-Wan (who was spotted by Boba Fett during an outing in which he defied his father) being captured by Destroyer Droids. Mace tells Anakin to remain as Padmé’s bodyguard, and he nearly obeys that order, but Padmé launches them toward Geonosis, telling him that it is his job to protect her, and whether he likes it or not, she is going to save Obi-Wan, so he’d better go with her. Thus, Anakin, Padmé, R2-D2, and C-3PO make way to Geonosis. On Coruscant, Mace, Yoda, and Jar Jar meet with Palpatine and members of the Loyalist Committee. They all agree that time is of the essence. Jar Jar will act in Padmé’s place to move to give Palpatine emergency powers to handle the crisis. On Geonosis, Obi-Wan is held in a force field and is soon visited by Count Dooku. Again, mysteries begin to unravel. Dooku asks Obi-Wan to help him. He says that the Republic is under the control of the Dark Lords of the Sith, particularly Darth Sidious, and he urges Obi-Wan to join him as he believes his old Padawan, Qui-Gon Jinn, would have done. Obi-Wan refuses to do so, causing Dooku to decide to leave his fate to Geonosian justice, which means he’ll be sentenced to death soon enough. Arriving on Geonosis, Anakin and Padmé (followed against orders by the droids) venture into the caverns, where they enter the Super Battledroid factory. In the factory, they are set upon by Geonosians. Anakin’s lightsaber is destroyed, and both humans are captured. At the same time, C-3PO falls onto an assembly line, where his head is removed and placed on a Battledroid body, and a Battledroid’s head placed on his body. R2-D2 tries to find a way to help the other droid. Anakin and Padmé are brought before Dooku, who tries to convince her to join his cause. When she refuses, he tells them that she and Anakin will now join Obi-Wan’s fate. Back on Coruscant, the Senate is called to order and Jar Jar makes his motion. It is carried with the backing of Padmé’s supporters. Supreme Chancellor Palpatine now has emergency, near dictatorial powers, and promises to create a Grand Army of the Republic, which, of course, means putting the clone army on Kamino to use. Their first mission will be against the Separatists. On Geonosis, Anakin and Padmé, in a kangaroo court, are sentenced to death, much to Nute Gunray’s delight. They are to be taken to the arena (at the Golbah Pit) to be killed for sport. Padmé warns Archduke Poggle the Lesser that it could mean war, but he shrugs it off. As Anakin and Padmé are moved into the arena, she professes her love for him. They are then reunited with Obi-Wan, each tied to a pole in the arena. As a reek, a nexu, and an acklay (actually an acklay subspecies that has been mutated by the Geonosian atmosphere) are released into the arena, Padmé leaps atop her pole (thanks to a wire to unchain herself) and the Jedi leap into action. They have no lightsabers, but that doesn’t keep them from taking over the reek, ready to ride to safety. In the spectator box, Jango is surprised by a purple lightsaber at his throat. Mace has arrived. Dooku taunts him with certainty that the Jedi cannot win, but 100 Jedi emerge from the crowd, lightsabers ready. Dooku, however, calls upon the Super Battledroids. The battle within the arena begins. Anakin and Obi-Wan are given lightsabers, while Padmé gets a blaster. Mace takes on Jango, as Boba is told to wait in safety. As the battle rages in the arena, many Jedi and droids are cut down. R2-D2 recovers C-3PO’s head and body, reattaching them. Mace and Jango battle fiercely, until Mace decapitates him, sending his now-empty helmet toward where Boba discovers it. He takes it and escapes the arena after a quick run-in with a clone soldier, one of Jango’s “fake” sons. The Jedi are soon fought into a circle, surrounded by droids. Dooku believes he has won, but several Republic gunships appear overhead, landing in the arena to pick up the Jedi. Yoda has arrived with the clone army from Kamino aboard massive Acclamator-class Republic assault ships. As the Battle of Geonosis rages, Padmé falls from the ship she is riding in with Anakin and Obi-Wan, but Obi-Wan convinces Anakin that it is more important to follow Count Dooku, whom they saw escaping on a speeder (unknowing that he bears the plans for a secret ultimate weapon project that the Geonosians, were preparing to build for him, the Death Star, which was being worked on with the help of Bevel Lemileisk and others, who will later continue working on the project’s prototype under Wilhuff Tarkin). They catch up to him. Anakin wields a green lightsaber, while Obi-Wan holds a blue one. Anakin races in, against Obi-Wan’s wishes, trying to take on Dooku first. Dooku hits him with Force Lightning, sending him to the ground. Obi-Wan leaps in, dueling Dooku, but is soon defeated and disarmed. Anakin then returns to the battle, dueling Dooku, but losing ground. Obi-Wan, unable to duel himself, sends his lightsaber to Anakin, who then fights the Count with two sabers. Dooku is the better, though, and Anakin soon loses the lower half of his right arm in the battle. Just as Dooku is about to finish him off, the doors behind them open, and Count Dooku’s former Jedi Master, under whom he acted as Padawan, enters—Yoda. Yoda turns aside Dooku’s Force Lightning, then they duel. Yoda is the better, wearing Dooku down, but Dooku sends a column hurtling down toward Anakin and Obi-Wan, forcing Yoda to leap in to save them, while Dooku escapes in his ship. Elsewhere, the battle ends, with the Republic forces victorious. As things wind down, Boba buries his father and stashes his Mandalorian armor where he can retrieve it. He reaches Slave I, then heads for Kamino to retrieve the black book from Whrr. Fleeing from Geonosis, Dooku muses about his early days of lightsaber training under Yoda, and makes a mental note to speak to his master, Darth Sidious, about Anakin’s skill. He arrives on Coruscant and greets Sidious, using his other title, Darth Tyranus. Everything is proceeding as they have planned. Meanwhile, Yoda laments that the Clone War has begun, while, in secret, Anakin and Padmé, while returning her to Naboo, are secretly wed. They hold hands, Padmé with her two of flesh and blood, Anakin with one of flesh and one a new droid replacement of his own creation, and kiss to seal their marriage. The union that will help tear down the Republic has been forged, and the Clone Wars have begun . . . (Exact starting date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)*

(Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones” et al)*

*NOTE: By “et al.” in this case, I am including the flashbacks from Betrayal and any other small references to events “off-screen” in the film or novelization, such as the Toys-R-Us comic Machines of War. I should note that the starting date given here was first established via HoloNetNews.com and was also repeated on the map for TPM in the Essential Atlas as part of the dates I submitted for the project.

The Prequel Blu-Ray Trilogy (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)

Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones” (movie: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)

Opening Logos
Attack the Clones
Return to Coruscant
Chancellor’s Meeting
Old Friends
Assassins
Speeder Chase
Into the Club
New Assignments
Traveling Incognito
Dex’s Diner
Jedi Archives
“Encouraged to Love”
Yoda and the Younglings
Return to Naboo
Audience with the Queen
Kamino Arrival
Meeting Lama Su
Stolen Kiss
Inspecting the Clones
Teasing a Senator
Jango's Apartment
Forbidden Love
Obi-Wan's Report
Nightmare
Obi-Wan vs. Jango
Back to Tatooine
Asteroid Chase
Lars Homestead
Anakin's Search
Dooku's Separatist Plot
Tusken Camp
Out of Range
"You're Not All-Powerful"
Enemies Revealed
Obi-Wan Captive
Emergency Powers
Droid Factory
Love Pledge
The Arena
"This Party is Over"
Yoda's Cavalry
Clone War
War Room
Duel with Dooku
Master Yoda
"Well Done, Lord Tyranus"
"Begun, the Clone War Has"
Secret Union
End Credits

The Prequel DVD Trilogy (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)
Star Wars: Episode II—"Attack of the Clones" (movie: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)
Opening Logos
Attack of the Clones
Return to Coruscant
Chancellor's Meeting
Old Friends
Assassins
Speeder Chase
Into the Club
New Assignments
Traveling Incognito
Dex's Diner
Jedi Archives
"Encouraged to Love"
Yoda and the Younglings
Return to Naboo
Audience with the Queen
Kamino Arrival
Meeting Lama Su
Stolen Kiss
Inspecting the Clones
Teasing a Senator
Jango’s Apartment
Forbidden Love
Obi-Wan’s Report
Nightmare
Obi-Wan vs. Jango
Back to Tatooine
Asteroid Chase
Lars Homestead
Anakin’s Search
Dooku’s Separatist Plot
Out of Range
“You’re Not All-Powerful”
Enemies Revealed
Obi-Wan Captive
Emergency Powers
Droid Factory
Love Pledge
The Arena
“This Party is Over”
Yoda’s Cavalry
Clone War
War Room
Duel with Dooku
Master Yoda
“Well Done, Lord Tyranus”
“Begun, the Clone War Has”
Secret Union
End Credits

The Digital Theatrical Prequel Trilogy [continued] (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)*
Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones” (movie: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)*

*NOTE: This represents the digital theatrical release of Attack of the Clones. This version includes the “happy couple” holding flesh and droid hands at the end of the film.

The Non-Digital Theatrical Prequel Trilogy [continued] (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)*
Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones” (movie: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)*

*NOTE: This represents the non-digital theatrical release of Attack of the Clones, missing the “happy couple” holding flesh and droid hands at the end of the film, which was found in the digital release.

The IMAX Experience Prequel Trilogy [continued] (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)*
Star Wars: Episode II—“Attack of the Clones” (movie: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)*

*NOTE: This represents the release of Attack of the Clones, subtitled The IMAX Experience, which was only available in IMAX theaters. It did not include any of the restored materials in the home video releases, but it did include the “happy couple” holding flesh and droid hands at the end of the film, which was found in the digital release. This version of the film, which up until now sounds very much like the digital theatrical release, was then cut down by nearly 30 minutes to fit onto the 2-hour limited IMAX projectors. This is the most edited-down version of Attack of the Clones to date.

The Prequel Novelization Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: Terry Brooks & R. A. Salvatore & Matthew Stover)
Attack of the Clones [continued] (novel: R. A. Salvatore)
Chapters 4 – 24
Epilogue

The Prequel Comic Adaptation Trilogy [continued] (comic trilogy: Henry Gilroy & Miles Lane)

Attack of the Clones (comic series: Henry Gilroy)
  Attack of the Clones, Part I (comic: Henry Gilroy)
  Attack of the Clones, Part II (comic: Henry Gilroy)
  Attack of the Clones, Part III (comic: Henry Gilroy)
  Attack of the Clones, Part IV (comic: Henry Gilroy)

The Photo Comic Prequel Adaptation Trilogy [continued] (comic trilogy: Tokyopop & George Lucas)
  Attack of the Clones (comic: Tokyopop & George Lucas)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 6 [continued]
  Chapters 7 – 9

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 4

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children's book: Catherine Saunders)

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children's book: Catherine Saunders)
  Increasing Frustration
  Powerful Friend
  Unstopable Feelings
  Turning to the Dark Side

Attack of the Clones (video game: LucasArts & THQ)

Attack of the Clones (video game: LucasArts & THQ)

Attack of the Clones Movie Storybook (children's book: Jane Mason & Sarah Hines-Stephens)

Attack of the Clones Movie Storybook (children's book: Jane Mason & Sarah Hines-Stephens)

  Attack of the Clones

The Complete Saga [continued] (youth novel: Jason Fry)

The Complete Saga [continued] (youth novel: Jason Fry)
  Episode II: Attack of the Clones

The Legendary Yoda [continued] (children's book: Catherine Saunders)

The Legendary Yoda [continued] (children's book: Catherine Saunders)
  Wise Yoda
  Yoda to the Rescue
  Epic Duel
  High General Yoda

Ultimate Duels [continued] (children's book: Lindsay Kent)

Ultimate Duels [continued] (children's book: Lindsay Kent)
  Conflict on Kamino
  Battle on Geonosis

Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children's book: Catherine Saunders)

Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children's book: Catherine Saunders)
  Dangerous Mission
  Clever Jedi
  Bounty Hunter Duel
  An Enemy Revealed
  The Battle of Geonosis
Jedi Duel

Star Wars Annual 2007 [continued] (children’s book: Pedigree Books)

- C-3PO [continued]
  - Attack of the Clones
    - Journals 1 – 8
- Darth Vader [continued]
  - Attack of the Clones
    - Journals 1 – 12

Star Wars Annual 2009 [continued] (children’s book: Pedigree Books)

- Message Recording 7583: Anakin Skywalker
- Message Recording 7584: Anakin Skywalker
- Message Recording 7599: Obi-Wan Kenobi
- Message Recording 7586: Padmé Amidala
- Message Recording 7600: Jar Jar Binks*
- Message Recording 7591: Anakin Skywalker
- Message Recording 7593: C-3PO
- Message Recording 7594: Padmé Amidala
- Message Recording 7601: Mace Windu
- Message Recording 7602: Yoda

*NOTE: There is no indication as to why this entry by Jar Jar is out of numerical order, though it is presented here chronologically.

Star Wars Annual 2012 [continued] (children’s book: Pedigree Books)

- Attack of the Clones

Star Wars Annual 2013 (children’s book: Pedigree Books)

Star Wars Annual 2013 (children’s book: Pedigree Books)
- Attack of the Clones

Star Wars Annual 2014 [continued] (children’s book: Pedigree Books)

- Attack of the Clones

Ultimate Missions [continued] (miniatures game series: J.D. Wiker)

Clone Strike [continued] (miniatures game: J.D. Wiker)
- Elusive Assassin
- Face of the Enemy
- Kamino Confrontation
- Geonosis Infiltration
- Vengeance on Tatooine
- Geonosis Rescue
- Galactic Gladiators
- Enter the Jedi
- Send in the Clones
- Count Dooku’s Escape
- A Lesson from the Master

Battle in the Arena (children’s book: Justine Fontes & Ron Fontes)

Battle in the Arena (children’s book: Justine Fontes & Ron Fontes)

*NOTE: There is very little story to this item. It is a journal for the buyer, but it contains a few tidbits from Anakin.

Attack of the Clones (children’s book: Patricia C. Wrede)

Attack of the Clones (children’s book: Patricia C. Wrede)

LEGO Star Wars [continued] (video game series: LEGO)

LEGO Star Wars: The Complete Saga [continued] (video game: LEGO)
- LEGO Star Wars: The Video Game [continued] (video game: LEGO)
- Attack of the Clones
Discovery on Kamino
Droid Factory
Jedi Battle
Gunship Cavalry

LEGO Star Wars III: The Clone Wars (video game: LEGO)
Prologue: Geonosian Arena
Count Dooku
Battle of Geonosis

LEGO Star Wars: The Complete Saga [continued] (video game: LEGO)
LEGO Star Wars: The Video Game [continued] (video game: LEGO) Attack of the Clones [continued]
Count Dooku

LEGO Star Wars Mobile [continued] (video game series: THQ)
LEGO Star Wars Mobile [continued] (video series: THQ)

LEGO Star Wars: Attack of the Clones (children’s book: Elizabeth Dowsett)
LEGO Star Wars: Attack of the Clones (children’s book: Elizabeth Dowsett)

Trouble in the Galaxy
Welcome to the Jedi
Jedi Protection
Assassin Adventure
The Clone Army
Stop That Bounty Hunter!
The Droid Army
Dark Secrets
Jedi to the Rescue!
The Battle of Geonosis
Dooku’s Escape
Lightning Duel
Dooku’s Master
Time to Celebrate!

CONCURRENT TO SW2

- Emil Kereage’s transport business goes under, thanks to poorly-worded regulations passed by the Prackla Trade Council, just after the Battle of Geonosis.*
  (conjecture based on Hero of Cartao: Hero’s Call)*
  *NOTE: Hero’s Call says this is after Geonosis, but also two years before Hero’s Call, which takes place one year after Geonosis. Obviously, both of these can’t be true, so I choose to go with the date dictated by circumstances, rather than the reference to “two years.”
- Dr. Gidoo Zehow of the Rhinnal State Medical Academy criticizes false claims in Columus Tourism’s latest campaign, which claims health benefits from low gravity on Columus. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
- A squadron of Jedi Starfighters (Delta-7 Aethersprites) are sent to Phelar Port on Eriadu, as one of the first lines of defense against the growing Separatist movement. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
- The Sluissi government backhandedly offers to assist the Judicial Department in hunting down the Scarlet Thranta, which is in Separatist space. The Republic considers the offer, but does not yet take action, fearing the Separatists may be planning a trap. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
- With the secession of several Mid Rim and Outer Rim sectors, over 2,000 pending antitrust suits against the Commerce Guild must be dropped, since those sectors no longer have the benefit of being covered by Republic law. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
  (conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)
- Cybot Galactica announces that it will be replacing the Universal Socket Interface in its next droid line (due later this year) with an Advanced Appendage Bus, which will allow parts to be interchanged only with fellow Cybot Galactica droids. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

• Barada Rakul and the crew of the Moulee-rah Patogga, which was caught at Xizor Transport Systems with a hold full of illegal ryll spice, are held in custody, despite the outrage of the Hutts. Originally, the Desilijic Clan denounces the action, but when it is revealed that the transport was owned by the Besadii Clan, they are left to rot. The Besadii Clan, meanwhile, maintains their innocence, insisting that the Desilijic Clan purchased the ship 30 years ago, but have destroyed records that would prove it. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

• Salliche Ag corporation sues Dasobo Meats for intellectual property theft regarding genetically engineered gornt meat. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

• Balmorran Arms signs a deal to provide weapons for the Melody Fellowship. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

• Lannik Pugil participant Rolsat “Rolstone” Noviee is revealed to actually be a Clawdite. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

• Holonet News is present to cover Amidala’s triumphant entrance into the Senate after her presumed assassination. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)

• On Coruscant, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker practice against numerous droids at the Jedi Temple, shortly after their return from Ansion. As they finish, they are met by Plo Koon and Mace Windu, who inform them that the Jedi Council has an important mission for them (the protection of Senator Padmé Amidala).

(Practice Makes Perfect)

Anakin Skywalker is in his room at the Jedi Temple when Obi-Wan arrives and, after scolding Anakin for working on a droid rather than meditating, informs him that they have a new mission: to protect Senator Padmé Amidala. Obi-Wan leaves to prepare for the mission, and while Anakin is packing, he bumps his journal, which opens to a sketch of Padmé that Anakin had drawn years before. This prompts him to realize how much he has changed since meeting her, as he reflects on adventures he had as a Padawan. An hour later, Obi-Wan returns. Anakin says he is ready to leave, but Obi-Wan notices that his lightsaber hasn’t been packed. After a lecture about how important a Jedi’s lightsaber is, they leave for Senator Amidala’s apartment. On the way, Obi-Wan explains that their mission is only to protect the Senator, not to track down her attempted assassin. Anakin protests, but Obi-Wan insists that this is an instance where obedience to the council is to be favored over creating a challenge for oneself.*

(Anakin: Apprentice)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. This is the framing story for the book.

• Magaloof steals an airspeeder, hoping to become a criminal in Coruscant’s underground. He presents it to crime boss Hat Lo, which gives him admission into Lo’s gang.*
(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Magaloof, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• Within half an hour of its being stolen by Anakin Skywalker, Simon Greyshade’s custom speeder is recovered. The speeder’s theft is attributed to the disoriented Reymet Autem, son of Greyshade’s senate security guard, Sagoro Autem. Reymet is taken into custody, but while he is in custody, someone (presumably someone acting on Anakin’s behalf, or Anakin himself) returns the speeder from its holding area to its rightful parking slot at the Senatorial residence tower, from which Anakin originally stole it. (Exact date of report via HoloNet News: 13:5:16)*
(conjecture based on HoloNet News, Volume 531, Number 56)*
NOTE: Given that Holonet News is based on Coruscant, we must assume that this was a late edition, since it covers events here which take place on the first night shown in AOTC.

- Jango Fett arrives back on Kamino, where he tells Boba about Zam Wesell’s death. He also gives his son a black electronic book, which Boba is to open and use to find his way in the galaxy if and when Jango dies. The next day, he will awaken to discover a Delta-7 in Tipoca City. . . . After meeting with Obi-Wan Kenobi, Jango Fett tells Boba to get ready to leave. While Jango heads for Slave I, Boba races to return library books to Whrr, accidentally giving Whrr the black book that Jango gave him. Boba heads back to Slave I, just in time for Obi-Wan to arrive . . . (The Fight to Survive is continued below. This ends the summary for Jango Fett: Bounty Hunter.)

(The Fight to Survive and Jango Fett: Bounty Hunter)

- Zelebitha Effhod, First Minister of the Coruscant Ministry of Ingress, dies from Quannot’s Syndrome. Tannon Praji is elevated to First Minister in his place. (conjecture based on Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Praji: A Cartel of Genes)

- Without him realizing it, Anakin Skywalker’s confession to Padmé Amidala about slaughtering the Tusken Raiders is overheard by C-3PO. After Padmé’s death three years from now, C-3PO will wonder if he could have prevented her death and Anakin’s fall if only he had spoken up about what he had heard to someone who could have intervened to save Anakin from his dark path. (To be continued below . . .)

(Memory Loss…)

- Yoda sends a group of heroes to Geonosis to capture Count Dooku’s secret plans to destroy the Republic, which he has hidden somewhere in the battle arena. Once the heroes arrive in the arena, a hologram of Dooku appears and taunts them. The entry to the arena the heroes used quickly closes and other doors open, releasing battle droids to attack. The heroes fight off the droids and, after a quick search, find the secret plans hidden in the balcony.

(Count Dooku’s Challenge)

- A group of heroes, sent by Yoda, have found Count Dooku’s secret plans to destroy the Republic in the balcony of the battle arena on Geonosis. Before they are able to escape, Jango Fett arrives and closes all the exits to the arena. Trapped in the arena, the heroes destroy the battle droid guards and eventually manage to knock out Fett as well.

(Jango Attacks!)

- After knocking out Jango Fett, a group of heroes, sent by Yoda, try to escape the Geonosis battle arena with Count Dooku’s secret plans to destroy the Republic. Unfortunately, they are captured and the plans are returned to Dooku. Yoda contacts the heroes through the Force and urges them to keep Dooku occupied until he can arrive with his newly acquired clone troops. The heroes do as instructed, fighting Dooku, Jango Fett, and battle droids, and are eventually rescued when Yoda arrives.

(Escape from the Battle Arena!)

- After only a short bit of celebration over their victory on Nod Kartha, Adi Gallia and her newfound allies, Nym and the Revenants, are forced to part ways. As Nym and his people reclaim parts of a disabled Trade Federation orbital gun to bring back to their base and use as their own, Adi is summoned to Geonosis, where Obi-Wan Kenobi has gotten himself into a bit of trouble. Upon arrival, Adi is met by fellow Jedi Siri Tachi, who flies another Jedi Starfighter. Together, they help defend the arriving Republic battleship, carrying the first wave of the Republic’s new clone army. Meanwhile, at Lok, Nym’s former base, the pirates retake their old base there, setting up the orbital gun on the world’s moon to protect themselves. All is not as it seems, though, as Nym soon finds that this base is now a refueling depot. They use the gun on the moon to blast the depot. With the help of newly-arrived old ally Vana Sage, Nym’s forces drive back the Trade Federation and retake the base on Lok, only to face Cavig Toth’s second-in-command, Bella, with Sabaoth Squadron fighters at her side. They end up destroying the Sabaoths, killing Bella, but Toth himself, the man behind the trihexalon plot, escapes. They track his heading . . . to Geonosis! As Toth nears the world, Adi is warned of Toth’s arrival, causing her to take Siri and return to orbit, instead of helping cover ground forces. In space, they find that Toth’s forces have arrived with more Sabaoth fighters and trihexalon WMD deployment craft. They intend on attacking the Republic’s clone troopers with Dragon’s Breath. Seeking to stop such an attack, Mace Windu directs several other Jedi (Saesee Tiin, the Dark Woman, Bant Eerin, Jaisen Suel, A'Sharad Hett, and Rannik Solusar) to head into orbit as well. There, the combined Jedi force, along with more help from Nym, Vana, and the rest of Nym’s pirate group, is able to take out all but the last of Toth’s destroyers. As the rest of the Jedi are needed below, only Adi and Siri remain above with their allies to take on the last destroyer, allowing the other Jedi to return to the surface. Shortly after they do, Adi and the others take out the last destroyer, prompting Toth to emerge on the scene in his own vessel. Toth challenges Adi to a duel of starfighter combat, but the boisterous servant of Dooku fails to best Adi, ending in his own death. The conflict with Cavik Toth and trihexalon is finally over . . . (To be continued below . . .)

(Jedi Starfighter)

• As the Jedi and Republic Clone Army transports approach Geonosis (seen as Adi Gallia and Siri Tachi guard them in space), Mace Windu and Luminara Unduli are sent to the surface of Geonosis to clear the way for legions of Jedi to get into the Geonosis arena, where Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi are being held. They take out several planetary guns to allow shuttles full of Jedi to land, then escort the Jedi transports to the arena. Shortly after the conflict in the arena ends with the Jedi taking to the skies, Mace Windu leaves his ground forces to fly a Republic gunship in taking out escaping Techno Union vessels, then pilots a ground unit to protect the tanks that are taking out the Trade Federation droid ships. After the ground battle is under control, though, Mace learns that Yoda has followed Dooku, Anakin, and Obi-Wan into Dooku’s lair. Mace tries to follow, but is set upon by Sith Acolytes, who are piloting strange new ground assault vehicles. He defeats them, even as Dooku escapes after the disarming (heh) of Anakin and his duel with Yoda. The Battle of Geonosis is over, but the war has just begun . . . (To be continued below . . .)*

(The Clone Wars)*

*NOTE: This summary is for the video game, not the television series or other various projects with the same name.

• As the Battle of Geonosis begins, a group of Republic Commando clonetroopers known as Delta Squad will be instrumental in taking down Separatist infrastructure on the planet to make the battle a success. The squad’s leader “Boss” (RC-1138) sets down on Geonosis and begins to gather his squadmates from their various drop positions. First, he regroups with the team’s demolitions (and sarcasm) specialist, “Scorch” (RC-1262). They proceed into a Geonosian spire and catch up to the squad’s slicer, “Fixer” (RC-1140). After tearing through some battle droids and Geonosian warriors, they finally meet up with the squad’s resident killing machine (or nutcase, depending upon your point of view), “Sev” (RC-1207). Together the Deltas then hold off the enemy while Sev snipes Sun Fac’s fleeing vessel, knocking it out of the sky. Their mission isn’t over yet, though. They are ordered to proceed into a nearby droid factory, which they destroy, all by their ass-kicking lonesome. They then infiltrate a Trade Federation core ship, helping stop the droid onslaught. All in all, it’s a pretty good first day for Delta Squad . . . (To be continued below . . .)

(Republic Commando)

• During the Battle of Geonosis, Jedi Tu’ala experiences flashbacks to the time when her Master gave his life to save an ambassador. She uses this lesson in selflessness to save the day, in a sense, when she allows a Battle droid to kill her, instead of taking aim on Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker, and Padmé Amidala.

(The Lesson)

• During the Battle of Geonosis, the Republic Commando Theta Squad, made up of four Commandos (Taler, Vin, Jay, and Darman, by their nicknames), is nearly wiped out while trying to take out Geonosian holdouts. Only Darman survives. Unbeknownst to him at the time, Darman is not alone. Elsewhere, three other squads are decimated, leaving three other lone surviving Republic Commandos (Niner, Fi, and Atin), all of whom will later be assigned with him as part of the new Omega Squad during a mission to Qilura. (To be continued below . . .)

(Hard Contact)

• Clonetrooper CT-1266 is blasted, but survives. He regains his senses to discover himself in a big hold, from which he destroys several Separatist droids and vehicles. By accident, he creates a hole in Separatist lines for AT-TEs to move through. After the battle, he will receive a commendation, though he would argue that all he did was fall into a hole. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- During the Battle of Geonosis, General Grievous is unleashed against the Republic for the first time. He spirits the Separatist Council to safety, cutting down various Jedi, including Ur-Sema Du, in the process. With all Republic eyewitnesses dead, Grievous’ existence remains a secret for the time being.

  (conjecture based on Unknown Soldier: The Story of General Grievous)

- During the Battle of Geonosis, Jedi Master Ekim Ryelli’s Padawan, Lumas Etima, is killed. Ryelli also loses two fingers when a droideka blasts his hand and the lightsaber in it. He will refuse a prosthetic in memory of those lost on Geonosis.

  (conjecture based on Hammer)

- As Dooku makes his escape from the arena on Geonosis to where he has stashed his Solar Sailer (and thereby sends himself toward his fateful confrontation with Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker, and Yoda), he sends a group of droids, led by Dark Jedi Sev’Rance Tann, to ensure that no one will stand in his way. A Jedi group, including Echuu Shen-Jon (a former Padawan to Mace Windu) and Echuu’s Padawan Stam Reath, discovers Sev’Rance. When Stam attacks her, Sev’Rance manages to kill Stam, then escape. As a result of Stam’s death, Echuu begins to drift toward the Dark Side and depression.

  (conjecture based on Clone Campaigns)

- On Geonosis, Yoda considers the dangers ahead before heading back to Coruscant, while Mace Windu remains behind to mop up after the battle comes mostly to a close. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Wild Space)

- While Anakin Skywalker is in surgery to receive his new arm, Obi-Wan Kenobi files a report for the Jedi Council about the Battle of Geonosis. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

- On Geonosis, Yoda considers the dangers ahead before heading back to Coruscant, while Mace Windu remains behind to mop up after the battle comes mostly to a close. Anakin Skywalker has been brought to the Jedi Temple’s Halls of Healing to be tended to under Jedi Master Vokara Che. Padmé Amidala tries to see him, earning herself a rebuff from Vokara and Obi-Wan Kenobi. Yoda, meanwhile, arrives back on Coruscant and immediately heads for Supreme Chancellor Palpatine’s office to report on the battle, being joined by Senator Bail Organa along the way. In the meeting, Bail is given a new role as the head of a new Security Committee, which is meant to at least partially replace the Loyalist Committee. Yoda then heads back to the Jedi Temple, where he checks on Anakin and sends Obi-Wan to tell Padmé that she and Anakin need to keep their distance, for Anakin’s sake. He does so, and she not only tells him (false) that she will stay away from Anakin, but also that Shmi Skywalker died on Tatooine. Obi-Wan’s initial reaction is to act as a friend to Anakin, but Yoda advises him to remember that Anakin needs a Jedi Master, not a friend. (After Anakin becomes a knight, Obi-Wan will ignore this warning and act as more of a brother to Anakin than a mentor.) Obi-Wan then goes to see Anakin, who is shocked by his new prosthetic arm and blames Obi-Wan for not heeding his vague visions about his mother. Anakin is obviously deeply scarred by the events of the previous days, both physically and mentally. The only positive side is that the Jedi are acquiescing to Padmé’s request to have Anakin escort her home so that she can sever their ties, when, in actuality, she and Anakin will be secretly married on Naboo. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Wild Space)

- During the wedding of Anakin Skywalker and Padmé Amidala, C-3PO and R2-D2 discuss the need for secrecy. C-3PO notes that he has kept diplomatic secrets for years (which must have been in his previous incarnation, since he has not had to do so since being rebuilt by Anakin and kept by his mother on Tatooine for a decade), so he is certain he can keep the couple’s marriage a secret. As for R2-D2, he notes that no one is ever listening to what R2 units have to say anyway . . . (To be continued below . . . )
(Memory Loss...)

The Decoy*

*NOTE: This portion of the story basically adapts part of AOTC without much new information, hence the lack of a summary segment.

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
Practice Makes Perfect (comic: Jason Hall)
Practice Makes Perfect (comic: Jason Hall)

A New Mission
Remembering
Droid on the Rampage [continued]
The Garbage Pits [continued]
Anakin’s Quest [continued]
The Vision [continued]
A Double Life [continued]
The Deadly Race [continued]
A New Challenge

The New Plan*
Jedi Alert*
A New Hunter

*NOTE: The first two chapters in this portion of the story basically adapt part of AOTC without much new information, hence the lack of a summary segment for those. The third chapter is essentially a retelling of Jango’s return to Kamino, as seen in The Fight to Survive.

Boba Fett [continued] (youth novel series: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
Survival [continued] (youth novel: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
The Fight to Survive [continued] (youth novel: Terry Bisson)
Chapters 4 – 9

Boba Fett [continued] (youth novel series: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
Survival [continued] (youth novel: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
The Fight to Survive [continued] (youth novel: Terry Bisson)
Chapters 9 – 13

Jedi vs. Jango (SWAM1 short story: Unknown)
Jedi vs. Jango (SWAM1 short story: Unknown)

Star Wars Magazine Comics [continued] (comic series: Rik Hoskin & Mike Barr & Martin Fisher & Chris Cooper & Robin Etherington)
Memory Loss... [flashback] (SWMUK comic: Chris Cooper)

Geonosis Battle Arena Advanced Missions (miniatures games: J.D. Wiker)
Geonosis Battle Arena Advanced Missions (miniatures games: J.D. Wiker)
Count Dooku’s Challenge (miniatures game: J.D. Wiker)
Jango Attacks! (miniatures game: J.D. Wiker)
Escape the Battle Arena! (miniatures game: J.D. Wiker)

Betrayal [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie)
Betrayal, Part I [flashback] [continued] (comic: Scott Allie)

Precipice (SWH short story: Chris Cassidy)
Precipice (SWH short story: Chris Cassidy)

Arena Attack! (SWAM3 short story: Unknown)
Arena Attack! (SWAM3 short story: Unknown)

Starfighter [continued] (comic/video game series: Haden Blackman & LucasArts)
Jedi Starfighter [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
   Act III
      Tug of War
      Escort to Geonosis
      Cannon Fodder
      Attack of the Clones
      Heart of the Storm
      The Jedi Master

The Clone Wars (video game: LucasArts)
The Clone Wars (video game: LucasArts)
   Geonosis
      The Rescue Begins
      Infiltration of the Arena
      The Battle of Geonosis

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Republic Commando (video game: LucasArts)
   Geonosis
      Prologue
      Extreme Prejudice
      Infiltrate the Droid Foundry
      Destroy the Factory
      Advance to the Core Ship
      Infiltration of the Core Ship

The Lesson (SWT14 short story: Adam Gallardo)
The Lesson (SWT14 short story: Adam Gallardo)

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Battlefront [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
   Historical Campaigns [continued]
      Clone Wars [continued]
         Geonosis
            Battle of Geonosis

Battlefront II (video game: LucasArts)
   Rise of the Empire Campaign
   Fall of the Old Republic
   Geonosis
      Attack of the Clones

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Hard Contact (novel: Karen Traviss)
   Prologue

The Essential Guide to Warfare [continued] (essential guide: Jason Fry & Paul R. Urquhart)
The Essential Guide to Warfare [continued] (essential guide: Jason Fry & Paul R. Urquhart)
   Begin, the Clone Wars Does
   Clone Trooper Falls in a Hole

Menace Revealed Omnibus [continued] (comic: Timothy Truman & Jason Hall & Haden Blackman & Ryder Windham)
Machines of War (comic: Jason Hall)
   Machines of War (comic: Jason Hall)

Dooku Death Match (canceled SWAM4 short story: Unknown)*
Dooku Death Match (canceled SWAM4 short story: Unknown)*
   *NOTE: This short article never came to be, although it was referenced in later issues as if it had been published. Consider it historical curiosity.

Most Precious Weapon [continued] (comic: Hall)
Most Precious Weapon [continued] (comic: Hall)

Boba Fett [continued] (youth novel series: Terry Bisson & Elizabeth Hand)
18.8 BBY

- After three long years of relentless fighting, the Clone Wars are nearly at an end. The Battle of Coruscant rages in the skies over the capital world. Supreme Chancellor Palpatine has been kidnapped from the Jedi’s protective care by General Grievous and taken aboard Grievous’ flagship, the Invisible Hand. Help is on the way, though, as the legendary pair of Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi and Jedi Knight Anakin Skywalker is on the way, having received an emergency transmission from Palpatine just before his kidnapping. Now, they are charging into battle on a course from Tythe. As they burst onto the scene leading Red Squadron (Obi-Wan as Red Leader and Anakin as Red Five), they are forced to take on numerous Separatist starfighters, including tri-fighters and vulture droids. When Obi-Wan’s newer-model starfighter (an Eta-2 Actis Jedi Interceptor) is nearly incapacitated (and his droid, R4-P17, is destroyed) by a series of buzz droids, Anakin is able to help him get his ship just enough under control to careen into the docking bay of the Invisible Hand. Anakin follows in his own starfighter, similar to his trip inside the Trade Federation vessel during the Battle of Naboo. Together, the two Jedi begin slicing their way through battle droids on their way toward Grievous’ quarters, where Palpatine waits, shackled to Grievous’ throne-like chair. Meanwhile, in those quarters, Count Dooku, leader of the Confederacy of Independent Systems, confers with Palpatine. Palpatine is, of course, Darth Sidious, the reigning Dark Lord of the Sith. Dooku, as his Sith Lord apprentice, Darth Tyranus, is at his side, as ever, working their machinations upon the Republic, intending on crafting it into a pro-human Empire (thanks, in part to the Separatist leadership other than Dooku being all aliens). Dooku believes that they intend on letting Anakin and Obi-Wan enter the room. Dooku would then kill Obi-Wan in front of Anakin, allowing Anakin’s rage to dip into the Dark Side. He would then take Dooku into custody, ending the war and saving Palpatine. Dooku would get immunity from prosecution when he suddenly discovers the true depth of the Separatists’ war crimes during the Clone Wars. Anakin, then, would become the leader of a new Sith army, created to serve the New Order. Dooku, however, is mistaken. He is just being used, as Sidious uses everyone. Obi-Wan and Anakin finally enter the room, seeing Palpatine as a prisoner. When Dooku enters, the three do battle, two blue lightsabers against one red Sith saber. Dooku is able to incapacitate Obi-Wan, leaving him under a fallen platform. Anakin, though, is not as easily defeated. He presses his advantage, even as Palpatine urges him on (prompting Dooku to wonder if Sidious has lost his mind or if he has betrayed his apprentice). Anakin follows Palpatine’s prompting, finally cutting off both of Dooku’s hands, leaving him on his knees, defenseless. At Palpatine’s command, Anakin beheads Dooku, killing the Sith Apprentice and paving the way for himself to later take his place. Anakin is shocked by his own actions, but Palpatine tries to reassure him of the necessity of Dooku’s death. Anakin then frees Palpatine, puts an unconscious Obi-Wan over his shoulder, and they begin their escape. Unfortunately, their escape through shifting passages on the wounded vessel leads them, along with the newly-arrived R2-D2 (who had been calling a rescue ship that will never arrive using a signal beacon in the hangar bay), to be captured again by General Grievous’ MagnaGuards and droids. The droids take the quartet to General Grievous on the bridge. Once there, they leap into action. Anakin, R2-D2, Obi-Wan, and even Palpatine (to a degree) do battle with the droids, tearing through them. Grievous, though, orders Palpatine nabbed from under wherever console he was using for cover and taken to his escape pod. Before they can do so, though, the ship reaches the point of being unable to escape destruction. As the ship begins to burn in Coruscant’s atmosphere and fall apart, Grievous smashes open the front viewport, leaping out through it in the massive winds that result, using a cable to bring himself onto the hull of the ship, allowing him to get to the bridge’s escape pods from the outside and escape the ship’s impending doom. He also sends the other escape pods away empty, leaving no way for Anakin, Obi-Wan, Palpatine, and R2-D2 to escape. It is a violation of his orders to allow the Supreme Chancellor to come to harm, but he simply believes that Sidious, whom he doesn’t know is Palpatine himself, will forgive him the decision later.

Luckily, they are able to contact the RSS Integrity. Lorth Needa, aboard the Integrity, contacts Yoda, who helps organize a way to handle the controlled crash of the Invisible Hand. They land it harshly, but it is a landing they can walk away from. The four of them leave the ship and are met by Mace Windu. Mace tries to keep Palpatine in the dark as to their search for Darth Sidious. Mace doesn’t trust him, and he senses the Dark Side amid the ties in the Force (the interweaving of shatterpoints) that bind himself to Palpatine and Anakin. Palpatine suggests the importance of capturing Grievous now that Dooku is gone. Mace says that they will make capturing Grievous the Jedi Order’s priority. Obi-Wan and Anakin head off on their own. During their trip to the Jedi Temple, Mace expresses his concerns over Anakin’s relationship with Palpatine and trust issues with both. They have circumstantial evidence that traces Sidious to Palpatine’s inner circle, and they believe that the timing of the attack on Coruscant and Palpatine’s kidnapping was no accident. Mace believes it was to divert attention from the possible capture of Sidious. Meanwhile, Anakin and Palpatine are to head off together toward the Senate. On their way toward the building, Anakin finds Padmé. Padmé, though, is hiding a secret from the world and now must reveal it to Anakin. When he sees her, he senses that something is wrong. He senses someone coming between them and becomes angry, thinking briefly that she is fooling around on him. Instead, she reveals to him that, yes, someone else is involved . . . their child. Padmé is pregnant with their unborn child. Anakin is excited, just as she is, but who knows how such a birth will affect their secret marriage? If the Jedi learn that he is with her, he would be expelled from the Jedi Order. That night, though, their happiness is attacked by a dark vision in the Force. Anakin has had a dream, or a vision, of Padmé dying during childbirth. He resolves that nothing else matters but finding a way to save her. He knows that if he were to become a member of the Jedi Council, as his power and abilities sound make a given outcome, then he will be granted the rank of Jedi Master. As a Master, he could access the Sith artifacts and information in the Jedi Temple Archives, which have been kept locked to all but Masters since the Lorian Nodd incident decades earlier. Meanwhile, politics continues to be another battlefield of the Clone Wars. The Senate is about to pass a new law that would turn over direct control of the war (essentially a title of Supreme Commander of the Army of the Republic) to Supreme Chancellor Palpatine. This would also include complete authority over the Jedi Council, which at this point still rests with the Senate. Worse yet, the control over the Jedi Order would allow Palpatine to, in theory, call for the disbanding of the Jedi Order itself. Amid the discussions on the issue, it becomes apparent that the Jedi Council does not trust Palpatine, and they are wary of Anakin’s relationship with the man. They want to essentially use Anakin to spy on Palpatine, since they believe that Darth Sidious is very likely among his top advisors. Elsewhere, General Grievous informs Nute Gunray and the Separatist Council on the planet Utapau that their new hiding place on Mustafar is complete. They are to leave Utapau immediately for this new, secret base. Soon, Anakin meets with Palpatine, who fills Anakin in on his various suspicions that the Jedi Council is after power and may be plotting against him. To protect against this, now that the law has been passed that has put him in control of the Jedi Order, he appoints Anakin to be his personal representative on the Jedi Council. Meanwhile, the political maneuvering continues. Another law has made regional governors (Moffs) the controlling power in their systems, rather than their senators. A group of Senators, including Fang Zhar, Bail Organa, and Mon Mothma are beginning to gather fellow Senators into a group to oppose Palpatine’s growing power and move for the removal of such power from his hands. They want Padmé to be with them as well, but they are unsure of her because of her friendship with Anakin. They finally decide to ask her to join them. At the Jedi Temple, Anakin arrives to take his place on the Council, but the situation is anything but welcoming. He is allowed on the Jedi Council, but he is not granted the rank of Jedi Master (and thus access to the Sith archives that might provide a clue as to how to save Padmé in some forbidden teaching somewhere). What’s more, they want Anakin to serve on the Council (as ordered) and also spy on Palpatine for them. Later, Anakin and Padmé discuss the situation with Palpatine, the Senate, and the Jedi Order, and they seem to be increasingly on opposite sides of the issue, she on the side of the Senate and Jedi and him, without realizing it, on the side of Palpatine against the Jedi Order, or at least the Jedi Council. Shortly thereafter, Anakin joins Palpatine at a Mon Calamari ballet, where Palpatine further reveals his beliefs about the Jedi plotting against him. Palpatine has already figured that Anakin had been asked to spy on him, and he claims to have nothing to hide. He suggests that the Sith, whom he studied quite a bit since the Jedi revealed what Dooku had told Obi-Wan about Darth Sidious controlling the Senate, were after power, but so are the Jedi. He makes a convincing case for the idea that the Sith are not evil, but another, simply different philosophical order dedicated to the Force. Among the stories he tells Anakin is the tale of Darth Plagueis the Wise (Darth Sidious’ AKA Palpatine’s very own Sith Master). Plagueis had delved so far into the Force that he eventually learned to master life and death, being able to cause life to spring forth by manipulating midichlorians and, yes, using that same power to extend his own life in a form of virtual immortality. Unfortunately, Plagueis had taught this knowledge to his own Sith Apprentice (Palpatine, but Anakin doesn’t know that, of course), who then killed Plagueis. Seeing the potential to save Padmé in this knowledge and hoping that the story is more than just a legend, Anakin wonders if it is a power that can be learned. Palpatine simply answers, “Not from a Jedi.” The next morning, Obi-Wan visits Padmé, suggesting to her that she is perhaps too close to Anakin. He knows they both love each other, but he also knows that Anakin has many trials facing him, and he would not be whole if he left the Jedi Order. He asks her to consider her actions, and his, very carefully, not ever knowing that they are already married. A bit later, the Jedi Council decides to send a Jedi out to hunt down General Grievous, whom Clone Intelligence has tracked to Utapau, but they won’t send Anakin, who might be powerful enough to handle it. Instead, they will send Obi-Wan. Anakin has to stay behind the keep an eye on Palpatine. Obi-Wan leaves for Utapau with his Republic force (including a new Jedi Interceptor and R4-G9). (The Jedi hope that with so many Jedi gone on missions, such as Obi-Wan to Utapau, Ki-Adi-Mundi to Mygeeto, and Yoda to Kashyyyk, Sidious will reveal himself on Coruscant to be set upon by Mace Windu, Agen Kolar, and Anakin.) As for Anakin, he remains behind and is soon invited by Palpatine to attend a meeting that he is having with the Delegation of 2000, representatives of 2000 Senators that are petitioning for the removal of much of his power very soon, those who are wary of his rule becoming a dictatorship. Among them is Padmé, taking the “wrong” side in Anakin’s mind. To make matters worse, Palpatine has suggested to Anakin when alone that the Jedi Order has begun a plot to assassinate him, which might be done with the help of several anti-Palpatine senators that might be under Jedi control. This Delegation of 2000 would be that group if it is true, and his own wife is among them! A short time later, Obi-Wan lands on Utapau, where General Grievous has, quite obviously, set a trap for Obi-Wan. Upon landing his Jedi Interceptor, leaving his clone troopers (under Commander Cody) ready for action above, Obi-Wan sets out on a varactyl named Boga, expecting to likely meet his death in Grievous’ Separatist-fortified area, filled with battle droids. (Oddly, he had always assumed that he would die with Anakin present.) Obi-Wan confronts General Grievous. Obi-Wan is set upon by Grievous’ droids, yet his is able to defeat many and still continue forward. Impatient, Grievous orders his forces to strike against the Utapau settlement (Pau City) itself, bringing Obi-Wan to bring down his Republic force to engage the Separatist force. The Battle of Utapau has begun. Back on Coruscant, Palpatine tells Anakin that the Jedi are about to make their move, within the next hours, making Palpatine the first to be arrested and executed before others in the Senate follow. He claims that it is a plot that has been in the works for generations, through which the Jedi Order will take over the Republic itself. He claims that the Jedi will have to take over the Senate first, and the Jedi, right now, more serve a few Senators than the Senate itself. He refers to the Delegation of 2000 roster from their petition as a roster of traitors to the Republic. He says that only those 2000 on the roster will be free from arrest when the Jedi make their move. He even drives the point home by suggesting that Obi-Wan met with the leaders of the Delegation behind Anakin’s back (since Anakin had sensed Obi-Wan in Padmé’s quarters from his meeting with her and the other Senators also in the quarters from their previous meetings, but not from the same meeting). Palpatine points out that by betraying him, Padmé has betrayed Anakin as well . . . and he has always known about their relationship, thanks to a loose-lipped member of the Naboo clergy. He has silently supported their relationship by never revealing his knowledge. Palpatine offers Anakin anything that he wants . . . anything at all. He gives Anakin the chance to leave the Jedi Order and be his friend and student. Palpatine then reveals that the legend of Darth Plagueis is real . . . and he, Palpatine, was Plagueis’ Sith Apprentice. Palpatine . . . is Darth Sidious. Anakin draws his lightsaber immediately, as everything finally falls into place. Palpatine/Sidious reminds Anakin that he has always been Anakin’s friend, that theirs is only a philosophical difference, and, yes, that he may be the only hope Padmé has of survival. Anakin has deactivated his lightsaber and is listening to Palpatine, who is trying to convince Anakin that he is the Chosen One, but that Palpatine is his chance to break away from prophecy and choose his own destiny, as he has always desired. Anakin decides to reveal Palpatine’s identity as Sidious to the Jedi Council. Sidious tells him that this will be the excuse the Jedi are looking for to overthrow him and take over the Republic. It comes down to a question of whether Anakin is loyal to the Jedi Order or the Republic, whether he loves Obi-Wan or Padmé more . . . Back on Utapau, Obi-Wan, the true lightsaber master of the Jedi Order, personally duels, blade to blade, with Grievous, taking on numerous lightsabers at once, slicing apart the saber hilts (and even Grievous’ fingers). Grievous runs for it, using an incoming blast of energy as cover. Obi-Wan gives chase on Boga as Grievous escapes on his wheelbike. Obi-Wan pins Grievous down near his escape ship, Soulless One, sending the wheelbike off a cliff. The two again fight one-on-one, Grievous’ holdout blaster against Obi-Wan’s confiscated MagnaGuard staff. Finally, when Obi-Wan sees at Grievous’ mercy, Obi-Wan pulls Grievous’ discarded blaster to his hand and fires into an open armor panel on Grievous’ chest, killing the living Kaleesh organs inside. General Grievous is dead, but the Battle of Utapau continues. With the knowledge that Grievous and Dooku are both gone, the Jedi Council decides that it is time to confront Palpatine and have him cede his emergency powers back to the Senate. Anticipating that Darth Sidious might intervene (and not realizing that Sidious is Palpatine, as Anakin has not been able to tell them yet), the decision is made for four Jedi Masters to go to Palpatine’s office. The quartet will include Jedi Council members Mace Windu, Agen Kolar, Saesee Tiin, and Kit Fisto. They confirm the decision with Yoda, then prepare for action . . . but before they can move, the door opens. Anakin enters, out of breath. He tries to make them promise to only arrest the Supreme Chancellor, not kill him. As he looks at Anakin, Mace sees that Anakin is no longer part of a series of shatterpoints with Obi-Wan and Palpatine . . . Anakin himself was the shatterpoint that could bring about upheaval in the galaxy itself. Finally, Anakin reveals to them Palpatine’s dual nature as Sidious. In Mace’s mind, he realizes that the Republic has already fallen to the rule of the Dark Lord of the Sith. Mace orders Anakin to wait in the Jedi Council chamber until they deal with Sidious. Via hologram transmission, Mace contacts Yoda on Kashyyyk again, revealing the truth that Anakin revealed. They will take back the Republic. In Palpatine waits for the Jedi to come for him. The Jedi prepare the Temple for combat with Republic forces, arming everyone, including any Padawans, and putting Shaak Ti in charge of security. As the four Jedi Masters leave for their date with destiny, Anakin fights against his urges to somehow ensure that Palpatine survives, knowing he needs Sith knowledge to save Padmé’s life. At Palpatine’s office, Sidious recovers his lightsaber from one of his statues, hiding it away again, just as the four Jedi Masters barged in, setting off a series of audio recording devices. Meanwhile, Anakin decides to go to the office as well (flying a DC0052 Intergalactic Airspeeder), arguing his way past Shaak Ti, claiming that his participation is his right as the Chosen One. At the office, as the recording devices roll, Palpatine plays his role well, playing innocent, even as Mace accuses him of being a Sith Lord. Palpatine doesn’t flat-out deny being a Sith Lord, but instead strikes out at the Jedi. (In a recording released later, presumably doctored, he argues that even if he is a Sith Lord, he would be protected by freedom of belief in the Republic. He argues that any kind of arrest for that would be persecution, and the Jedi seem ready to take him by force.) He cuts down Kit, Agen, and Saesee, then duels Mace one-on-one, even as Anakin nears the office. Anakin arrives to find three dead Jedi Masters as he slashes his way into the office. Inside, Mace Windu, Jedi Master and creator of the Vaapad variant of Juyo, duels against Darth Sidious, Dark Lord of the Sith. Mace allows himself to go into Vaapad, submerging himself in the Dark Side, to face the Sith Lord, helping to feed into the Dark Side in the room . . . and then outside, as they both moved out onto the ledge outside the office, half a kilometer in the air. Once outside, Mace is able to follow a shatterpoint through the Dark Lord’s fear to discard Sidious’ saber. Now holding Palpatine at his mercy, Mace says that Palpatine is under arrest. Palpatine surges at the notion that Mace thinks that it is his fear that Mace senses. He blasts Mace with Force lightning, but Mace reflects it back at him, creating a circuit of energy, neither defeated. Both of them call toward Anakin for help, and Anakin makes his choice, even as Mace grows in confidence, knowing that Palpatine trusts Anakin and that trust is the shatterpoint to the Sith. Finally, Sidious gives in, letting the lightning end and feigning surrender. Mace, though, will not accept surrender. Seeing that Mace will not allow Palpatine to stand trial, knowing that Sidious controls the government, including the Senate and courts, Anakin has only one choice. As Mace swings to attack, Anakin severs Mace’s saber-hand, even as Sidious blasts Mace with another burst of Force lightning, sending him over the edge. Mace Windu, revered Jedi Master, is dead. Anakin has made his choice and chosen Padmé . . . and Sidious. The Jedi are traitors, just as Palpatine (who now stands as a wrinkled, Force-ravaged being) said. Now, Palpatine needs his help to continue to root out the traitors in order to protect Palpatine and, by extension, Padmé. To Anakin, it is no choice at all . . . he accepts his Sith apprenticeship as the new Shadow Hand, even though Palpatine tells him that Darth Plagueis is the only Sith to have mastered control of life and death. He simply says that, together, they will find it. Darth Sidious dubs his new Sith Apprentice with a new name, “Darth Vader.” Vader’s first task will be the sterilization of the Jedi Temple, then the assassination of the Separatist leadership in their base on Mustafar. Only then can the Sith rule the galaxy forever in a New Order of peace. Darth Vader, Anakin Skywalker no more, returns to the Jedi Temple, this time with brigades of clonetroopers at his command. He kills the gatekeeper and steps into the Jedi Temple, where he then kills Jocasta Nu and many other Jedi (including Serra Keto, Cin Drallig, and even Padawans like Whie Merleaux). Meanwhile, on Utapau, the clonetroopers under Cody are encouraged to see Obi-Wan return to their landing craft, where Cody returns his recovered lightsaber to him so he can return to battle. No sooner does Obi-Wan leave than the clones receive a transmission from Palpatine to execute “Order 66,” the secret, pre-planned order to exterminate the Jedi. The Jedi Purge has begun. On Mygeeto, Galactic Marine clones under Commander 1138 (Bacara) kill Ki-Adi-Mundi. On Felucia, Aayla Secura falls to Commander Bly’s troops. In the skies of Cato Neimoidia, Plo Koon is blasted in his Jedi Starfighter by Captain “Jag” Jai’galaar, whom he himself had chosen to be a pilot during the trial runs of the ARC-170e. On Saleucami, Stass Allie is gunned down on her speederbike. On Kashyyyk, Luminara is killed and Quinlan Vos is fired upon and presumed dead, but Yoda is able to kill his would-be assassins (Commander Gree of the 21st Elite and another trooper) and escape. On Coruscant, the Senate declares martial law, and the Jedi Temple, which is now burning, is cited as the heart of a Jedi uprising against the Republic. Seeking to help, Senator Bail Organa lands on the Temple roof and orders Captain Raymus Antilles to ready his backup personal ship, the Sundered Heart (which both Captain Antilles and Captain Colton command, jointly), for possible emergency launch. Even as Bail watches, despite being held back by clones under Commander Appo, a ten-year-old Jedi emerges, slashing through clones until being cut down by blasterfire. Bail is targeted for death as well, as they are to leave no witnesses. Bail runs for it, taking his speeder back into the sky. (He is actually allowed to go by Sergeant Fox, the lead clone on the roof, who had lost his stomach for battle during the slaughter.) He orders Antilles to steal the Jedi homing beacon from Saesee Tiin’s ship, then tells him to prepare to leave the capital world. On Utapau, every available weapon is aimed at Obi-Wan Kenobi when Commander Cody receives Order 66. Boga is killed, but Obi-Wan manages to escape the barrage. Back on Coruscant, Anakin (and R2-D2) land at Padmé’s veranda in his Jedi Interceptor. He informs her that the Jedi have been outlawed and all Jedi are being required to turn themselves in to the Republic. He also tells her that she needs to distance herself from the Delegation of 2000 to save herself from being targeted based on the company she has kept in the past. Luckily, Anakin’s position will allow him to save her. He gives her the “happy” news that they can be together now, happy and a family, now that the Jedi Order is no more and there is no need to hide. Without much ado, Anakin (and, again, R2-D2) launch in his Jedi Interceptor to complete his mission of death on Mustafar. Elsewhere on Coruscant, Bail and Antilles make plans to head for Kashyyyk in hopes that Yoda might have survived Order 66. On Utapau, Obi-Wan confiscates Grievous’ now-abandoned Soulless One and escapes the planet. Near Kashyyyk, the Sundered Heart spots an escape pod launched from the planet by Wookiee warriors Tarful and Chewbacca (yes, that Chewbacca), bearing Yoda, who had escaped clones on Kashyyyk with the Wookiees’ help (including pretending to be a bizarre jungle creature, rather than a Jedi Master). The little Jedi Master is saved. In space, Obi-Wan tries to make contact with any allies, making contact with Bail. They rendezvous in space. Obi-Wan fears that Anakin has died along with the others when the Jedi Temple was attacked. They determine that they must return to Coruscant, despite its being a trap for all Jedi, so that they can change the Temple’s beacon to tell Jedi to stay away, rather than that the war is over and to come home, as Anakin had set it to broadcast during his raid. The Senate has been called into session by Mas Amedda anyway, though, so they all have to return. Meanwhile, Vader arrives at Mustafar. As Anakin heads for the Separatist hidey-hole, the final signal to stand down all of the droid armies across the galaxy is completed. Sidious tells them via hologram that the Separatist leaders will now receive their reward . . . as Vader enters and begins slaughtering every last one of them. On Coruscant, Bail, Yoda, and Obi-Wan stride forward without trying to hide, using mind tricks to get past a few Senate Guards and enter the Senate itself. In the downlevels near the Jedi Temple a hunchback with a Jedi baby approaches a group of Republic troopers. Unfortunately for them, the “baby” is Yoda, and the hunchback is Obi-Wan. They continue to seek out the Jedi beacon. Meanwhile, Palpatine speaks out to the Senate. He claims that the Jedi deformed him and left him with his new visage during the attempted “assassination.” He now calls upon the Republic to destroy the destroyers, having spent the entire afternoon giving evidence as to the Jedi’s treachery. To ensure peace, he claims that they have already become an empire in all but name. Now he declares that transformation in name as well as the Galactic Empire, under the leadership of Emperor Palpatine, ruler for life alongside the power of the Galactic, nay, “Imperial” Senate. It is a New Order based on safety, security, justice, and peace. Today is the first, the original, Empire Day. Amid the Senate, Padmé and Bail discuss what is happening. Padmé convinces him to vote for Palpatine and convince Mon Mothma to do the same. They must work from within the Imperial Senate, even if it takes decades to overthrow this new Empire. At the Jedi Temple, Yoda and Obi-Wan set about taking out numerous clones, as if they were ghosts amid the halls. The bodies of the Jedi are everywhere, but they find bodies felled by a lightsaber, not just blasters. Yoda already knows who carried out the carnage. Obi-Wan cannot bear to accept what he too knows must be true. They then reset the Jedi recall beacon that is set to bring any remaining Jedi back to Coruscant to now tell any remaining Jedi to escape and hide. Now, the two known remaining Jedi Masters, Yoda and Obi-Wan Kenobi, must take on the two Dark Lords of the Sith, Sidious and Vader. As Yoda heads for Palpatine’s office, Obi-Wan sneaks to Padmé’s apartment. Padmé, whom Obi-Wan now realizes is pregnant by Anakin, won’t help him find and kill him. Obi-Wan leaves. Shortly thereafter, Padmé and C-3PO leave as well, heading for Mustafar. Obi-Wan, though, is spying at the time, as one might expect. He stows away on her ship as she leaves Coruscant. Even as the ship comes to land on Mustafar, Yoda steps toward destiny on Coruscant as well. He enters Sidious’ office, confronting the Dark Lord. Yoda begins reaching for his lightsaber as Sidious strikes against him with Force lightning. . . . Back on Mustafar, Padmé is reunited with Anakin. She holds him, still loyal to him after all that has happened, but he is not the man she knew.

Anakin believes that he is doing what he is doing for the greater good. He is securing peace now, and when Palpatine, the public face of the Empire, makes himself the most hated man in the galaxy, Anakin will rise up and kill him, taking power and ruling benevolently. Finally, Obi-Wan emerges from the ship. Vader believes that she purposely brought him there. As punishment, he uses the Force to choke her, intending to kill her rather than letting Obi-Wan have her . . . On Coruscant, Yoda, with the Light Side of the Force and all of its dead Jedi symbolized in him, engages Sidious, who now bears his own holdout lightsaber, with the Dark Side and all of its dead Sith masters symbolized in him . . . On volcanic Mustafar, Vader releases Padmé, then he and Obi-Wan ignite their lightsabers and the duel begins. As they do so, C-3PO and R2-D2 bring Padmé aboard her ship . . . On Coruscant, Yoda and Sidious enter the Senate chamber and begin fighting amid hovering podiums, even as Yoda starts to realize that he would not be able to defeat his adversary. Yoda tries to disengage, but takes a blast of Force lightning and falls to the base of the Senate chamber. Yoda escapes, even as an alert goes up to capture the fleeing Jedi Master, who is charged with attempted assassination. Sidious cannot wait, though. He orders a shuttle readied to take him to Vader’s aid. Even as he does so, Yoda escapes the building and flies off with Bail Organa in Bail’s speeder . . . Back on Mustafar, the duel continues, intense and personal, as the two move inexorably closer to open rivers of molten lava. When the superstructure collapses, they battle, swinging on cables before heading to solid metal again, part of a structure being pulled outward toward a lavafall. Obi-Wan leaps to safety, using a platform moving along the lava flow as a landing point, which he then guides toward the shore, even as Anakin, aboard a faster repulsorlift droid, charges toward him above the lava, moving between him and the shore. Anakin leaps aboard the platform, continuing the duel, before Obi-Wan leaps away, landing on the shore, just barely. Anakin, overconfident, leaps toward Obi-Wan . . . but he isn’t fast enough. Obi-Wan’s next saber moves, guided by the Force, sever both of Anakin’s lower legs and his remaining fully-human arm, leaving Anakin to try to save himself by clawing at the sand with his mechanical hand . . . It isn’t enough. As Anakin calls to him for help, Obi-Wan takes up Anakin’s saber with his own and tells Anakin that he was the Chosen One, meant to destroy the Sith, not join them. In the end, Obi-Wan loved him like a brother, but the Master could not save his former Padawan. Even as Sidious’ shuttle arrives to land nearby, Obi-Wan leaves Anakin to die, refusing to kill a helpless man. Instead, he chooses to run back to Padmé’s ship, where he finds Padmé badly injured by Anakin’s attack. He launches for space, never looking back. In the short time that follows, Sidious pulls Vader from certain doom, willing him to live. Elsewhere, on the asteroid colony of Polis Massa, Yoda speaks through the Force to the spirit of Qui-Gon Jinn, lamenting his own mistakes and those of the Jedi Order. Qui-Gon offers to teach him, over time, to enter the Force and retain his own individual essence. Now, Yoda shall become Qui-Gon’s apprentice. In the surgical theater, Padmé is dying, just as Anakin’s vision foretold. Rather than giving birth to one Skywalker heir, she is giving birth to two. First comes a boy, whom she names Luke. Next comes a girl, Leia. Padmé, though, has fallen back in consciousness, telling Anakin, though he is not there to hear, that she is sorry and she loves him. Fading away, she tells Obi-Wan that she knows there is still good in him, as she holds something, the jappor snippet that Anakin gave her when she was only fourteen. With that, Padmé Amidala passes away. Yoda, Obi-Wan, and Bail confer on what to do now. They decide to send Padmé back to Naboo for burial, disguised as if she is still pregnant. The two children will be separated and hidden away, not to be instructed in the ways of the Jedi until such time as the Living Force brings Obi-Wan or Yoda back to them. Bail offers to adopt Leia as his daughter with his wife Breha.
on Alderaan, as they have considered adopting a daughter for years. Luke will be taken to live with the closest thing to kin that he has, the Lars family on Tatooine. Obi-Wan will go to Tatooine also to keep an eye on Luke, fulfilling an obligation to his greatest friend. Yoda believes that these two will someday be the foundation of a new Jedi Order. As for Bail, he will do as Padmé wished and blend into the Senate, while working behind the scenes against the Sith. Yoda suggests to Obi-Wan that he has something that Obi-Wan should learn while in solitude from Yoda’s new Master and Obi-Wan’s old Master, that same secret of Force identity that Qui-Gon’s spirit promised to teach Yoda. As for C-3PO and R2-D2, they were owned by Anakin and Padmé, thus the property now of Leia, but while Bail will take them with him to Alderaan, he orders Antilles to have C-3PO’s memory wiped. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, surgical droids finish reconstructing their patient. More machine now than man, Darth Vader lives again. His first words are to ask for Padmé. Sidious informs him of what will be his truth for years to come, that Anakin himself killed her. And now, his power is nothing compared to what it was. His anger destroys the droids around him and the surgical table, but he cannot harm Sidious. Sidious is all he has left. Finally, as our tale comes to a close and the dark era of the Empire begins, a funeral is held for Padmé Amidala on Naboo, attended by many dignitaries, including Sio Bibble and Naboo’s Queen Apailana. (While at the funeral, Captain Typho swears to avenge her death, as he was in love with her, though she never knew it.) A small Jedi Master on Dagobah makes his new home. A baby girl is brought to her new family. After a short trip to Nar Shaddaa, where the Soulless One is sold for passage to Tatooine, a baby boy is brought to his new family by the Jedi Master that will watch over him. And two Sith Lords, aboard a Star Destroyer with Governor Wilhuff Tarkin, look upon the first superstructure of a massive spherical battle station, the size of a small moon . . . The Sith’s revenge is complete. (Exact starting date based on the LucasBooks internal Clone Wars Timeline: 16:5)*

(Star Wars: Episode III—“Revenge of the Sith” et al)*

*NOTE: By "et al," in this case, I am including any tales that merge directly into the events of the film and thus don’t need their own summaries below in the “Concurrent to SW3” entry. I should also note that the reason that I specifically note that Anakin is flying a DC0052 Intergalactic Airspeeder (which is a nitpicky fact) is because I was one of the two people who, together, wrote the Official backstory for the speeder in a 2006 What’s the Story? contest for StarWars.com Hyperspace members. A series of specific dates for this story were created for HoloNet News starting with Insider #84, then repeated in various sources. Later, Karen Traviss’ revised those dates into a series of contradictory dates with her novel Order 66. When putting together dates for the Essential Atlas, I was able to contact Leland Chee and determine that, yes, the original dates are correct, not Traviss’ later dates. Thus, ROTS begins on 16:5:20. Unfortunately, a typo in an email between me and Jason Fry said “15:5:20” instead of “16:5:20,” and that typo ended up transferred into the Essential Atlas itself on the ROTS map. Suffice to say, 16:5:20 is the correct starting date.

The Prequel Blu-Ray Trilogy [continued] (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)

Star Wars: Episode III—“Revenge of the Sith” (movie: George Lucas)

Opening Logos
Revenge of the Sith
Battle Over Coruscant
General Grievous
Rescuing the Chancellor
Confronting Grievous
Happy Reunions
Grievous on Utapau
Bad Dreams
Counsel with Yoda
The Chancellor’s Request
On the Jedi Council
Secret Assignment
Not the Chosen One?
Seeds of Distrust
Tragedy of Darth Plagueis
Kashyyyk
Brothers’ Farewell
A Hero Lost
Arrival on Utapau
Obi-Wan vs. Grievous
Jedi War Council
Sidious Revealed
Utapau Chase
Mace Learns the Truth
Anakin’s Fatal Decision
Mace vs. Sidious
Rise Lord Vader
March on the Jedi Temple
Order Sixty-Six
Time to Leave
“Wait for Me”
The Heroes Regroup
Birth of the Empire
The Terrible Truth
Obi-Wan Confronts Padmé
Padmé’s Departure
“You’re Breaking My Heart”
Yoda Visits the Emperor
Battle of the Heroes
Yoda vs. Sidious
Narrow Escapes
Immolation
The Emperor Arrives
Secret Delivery
Birth and Rebirth
Darth Vader Awakes
The Future of the Twins
A New Hope
End Credits

The Prequel DVD Trilogy [continued] (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)

Star Wars: Episode III—“Revenge of the Sith” (movie: George Lucas)
Opening Logos
Revenge of the Sith
Battle Over Coruscant
General Grievous
Rescuing the Chancellor
Confronting Grievous
Happy Reunions
Grievous on Utapau
Bad Dreams
Counsel with Yoda
The Chancellor’s Request
On the Jedi Council
Secret Assignment
Not the Chosen One?
Seeds of Distrust
Tragedy of Darth Plagueis
Kashyyyk
Brothers’ Farewell
A Hero Lost
Arrival on Utapau
Obi-Wan vs. Grievous
Jedi War Council
Sidious Revealed
Utapau Chase
Mace Learns the Truth
Anakin’s Fatal Decision
Mace vs. Sidious
Rise Lord Vader
March on the Jedi Temple
Order Sixty-Six
Time to Leave
“Wait for Me”
The Heroes Regroup
Birth of the Empire
The Terrible Truth
Obi-Wan Confronts Padmé
Padmé’s Departure
“You’re Breaking My Heart”
Yoda Visits the Emperor
Battle of the Heroes
Yoda vs. Sidious
Narrow Escapes
Immolation
The Emperor Arrives
Secret Delivery
Birth and Rebirth
Darth Vader Awakes
The Future of the Twins
A New Hope
End Credits

The Prequel Trilogy [continued] (movie trilogy: George Lucas & Jonathan Hales)
Star Wars: Episode III—“Revenge of the Sith” (movie: George Lucas)

The Prequel Novelization Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: Terry Brooks & R. A. Salvatore & Matthew Stover)
Revenge of the Sith (novel: Matthew Stover)
The Age of Heroes
Victory

Anakin and Obi-Wan
Dooku
The Way of the Sith
Jedi Trap
Grievous
Rescue
Obi-Wan and Anakin

Seduction
Fault Lines
Padmé
Masters
Politics
Not from a Jedi
The Will of the Force
Freefall in the Dark
Death on Utapau
Revelation

Apocalypse
The Face of the Dark
The Face of the Sith
Chiaroscuro
A New Jedi Order

The Prequel Comic Adaptation Trilogy [continued] (comic trilogy: Henry Gilroy & Miles Lane)
Revenge of the Sith (comic series: Miles Lane)
  Revenge of the Sith, Part I (comic: Miles Lane)
  Revenge of the Sith, Part II (comic: Miles Lane)
  Revenge of the Sith, Part III (comic: Miles Lane)
  Revenge of the Sith, Part IV (comic: Miles Lane)
*NOTE: This issue was released as a Hasbro “Comic Pack” with action figures of Obi-Wan Kenobi and Bail Organa.

The Photo Comic Prequel Adaptation Trilogy [continued] (comic trilogy: Tokyopop & George Lucas)
  Revenge of the Sith (comic: Tokyopop & George Lucas)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapters 10 – 12

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 6

Battle Above Coruscant (video game: THQ)
Battle Above Coruscant (video game: THQ)
Grievous Getaway (video game: THQ)
Grievous Getaway (video game: THQ)
Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
  Order 66 (video game: THQ)
    Cato Neimoidia
    Mygeeto
    Utapau
    Kashyyyk
    Coruscant, Jedi Temple
  Revenge of the Sith (video game: THQ)
  Revenge of the Sith (video game: THQ)

Revenge of the Sith Interactive Play-a-Sound (children’s book: Matt Kelly)
Revenge of the Sith Interactive Play-a-Sound (children’s book: Matt Kelly)

Revenge of the Sith: Plug it in and Play (video game: Jakks TV Games)
Revenge of the Sith: Plug it in and Play (video game: Jakks TV Games)
  Droid Invasion
  Coruscant Attack
  Grievous Onslaught
  Gunship Battle
  Utapau Chase
  Turret Defense
  Yoda’s Escape

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
  The Dark Side Wins
  The End of Anakin
  Rebuilding Darth Vader
  Padmé’s Secret

Revenge of the Sith Movie Storybook (children’s book: Alice Alfonsi)
Revenge of the Sith Movie Storybook (children’s book: Alice Alfonsi)
  Revenge of the Sith

  Revenge of the Sith
    Revenge of the Sith, Part I
    Revenge of the Sith, Part II
    Revenge of the Sith, Part III

The Complete Saga [continued] (youth novel: Jason Fry)
The Complete Saga [continued] (youth novel: Jason Fry)
  Episode III: Revenge of the Sith

The Legendary Yoda [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
The Legendary Yoda [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
  Turning Point
  Order 66
  Jedi vs. Sith
  Yoda’s Sadness
  Protecting the Future
  Into Exile

Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
  The Battle of Coruscant
  Jedi Wisdom
  Cyborg Duel
  The Jedi Purge
  Epic Duel
  Into Hiding

Ultimate Duels [continued] (children’s book: Lindsay Kent)
Ultimate Duels [continued] (children’s book: Lindsay Kent)
  Rescuing Palpatine
  Battle of Utapau
  A Sith Lord Revealed
  Close Contest
  Master and Apprentice

  C-3PO [continued]
    Revenge of the Sith
      Journals 1 – 10
  Darth Vader [continued]
    Revenge of the Sith
      Journals 1 – 13

  Message Recording 9863: Anakin Skywalker
  Message Recording 9872: Padmé Amidala
  Message Recording 9873: Anakin Skywalker
  Message Recording 9889: Obi-Wan Kenobi
  Message Recording 9896: Darth Vader
  Message Recording 9914: Obi-Wan Kenobi
  Message Recording 9915: C-3PO
  Message Recording 9916: Bail Organa

Ultimate Missions [continued] (miniatures game series: J.D. Wiker)
Ultimate Missions [continued] (miniatures game series: J.D. Wiker)
  Revenge of the Sith [continued] (miniatures game: J.D. Wiker)
    Rough Landing
    Flagship Fight
The Noose Tightens*
*NOTE: This is an adaptation of the deleted scene where Anakin and Obi-Wan meet Grievous before finding Palpatine.

Deep Trouble*
*NOTE: This is an adaptation of the deleted scene, which is still in the comic adaptation, where Anakin and Obi-Wan escape into a tunnel filling up with fuel.

Cat-and-Mouse
Dead End
Boxed In
So Close
Yet So Far
Clever Little Droid
Artoo’s Escape
The Grievous Trap
Topsy-Turvy
Battlefield: Kashyyyk
Conflict on Utapau
Last Stand on Utapau
Darth Sidious Revealed!
The Jedi Betrayed
Ki-Adi-Mundi
Obi-Wan Kenobi
Aayla Secura
Barriss Offee
Quinlan Vos*
*NOTE: The Quinlan Vos scenario does not require that Quinlan die, thereby sticking to continuity.

Luminara Unduli
Yoda
Following Orders
The Dark Jedi
Attack on the Jedi Temple
Deception on Kashyyyk
Grim Homecoming
Sith Treachery
Lightsabers in the Senate
Clash of the Jedi
Fate of the Jedi

Battle for the Republic [continued] (video game: THQ)

Separatist Missions [continued]
Battle of Coruscant
Republic Missions [continued]
Battle of Coruscant
Battle of Felucia
Battle of Kashyyyk
Battle of Utapau

The Hunt for Grievous: Jedi Trainer (video game: THQ)*
*NOTE: This is a recreation of Obi-Wan tracking Grievous on Utapau. It is a video game that some have claimed is on cellphones, while others recognize it only for its appearance on the website of Skittles candies several years ago. Some claim the title is Jedi Trainer, others claim it is The Hunt for Grievous, and others claim a combination of the two with a colon in between, though they disagree in which order those two titles should take. That’s a lot of confusion for a simple game that amounts to a candy advertisement . . .

LEGO Star Wars [continued] (video game series: LEGO)
LEGO Star Wars: The Complete Saga [continued] (video game: LEGO)
LEGO Star Wars: The Video Game [continued] (video game: LEGO)
Revenge of the Sith
Battle Over Coruscant
On Coruscant, Kal Skirata and his “clan” work to figure out how to get everyone off of the planet. Etain Tur-Mukan, Kom’rk, Jaing, and Prudii are all already offworld, but they have a total of 21 (22 with baby Kad Skirata) to account for. They will use a combination of Kal’s Aay’han and Bardan Jusik’s Aggressor to get to safety. By this point, Palpatine has been kidnapped, so things are kicking into overdrive. Kal contacts Enacca on Kashyyyk to have her snatch up Etain and bring her to back to evacuate with them. Later that day, one group escapes in the Aggressor. Now only half (or so) of their clan remains. They are simply awaiting a few late arrivals . . . (To be continued below . . . )*

*NOTE: The Order 66 novel places this event on day 1,085 after Geonosis, but as we have already seen that Karen Traviss’ dates for ROTS events are derived from her incorrect (or overwritten, as the case may be) date for Order 66 itself, we cannot use her exact dates for this event. Suffice to say, it happens once Palpatine has been kidnapped, on the same day he will be saved and Grievous will flee.

As the Battle of Coruscant rages, the 501st Legion is called to serve as ARC-170 pilots in the absence of more experienced pilots. They help fight off Separatist vessels, allowing Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker to make their way to the Invisible Hand. (To be continued below . . . )

(Battlefront II)

X1 and X2 leave the surface of Coruscant to rejoin the battle in space. There, they act as wingmen to protect Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi as they head for the Invisible Hand, taking out some turbolasers to protect the two Jedi. Once the Jedi are aboard, they focus their attention on a nearby Separatist cruiser that is coming to the Invisible Hand’s aid. They take out the ship by the time Anakin and Obi-Wan escape from the Invisible Hand with Palpatine. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Elite Squadron)*

*NOTE: This segment appears only in the Nintendo DS version of the game.

- Droids of the Confederacy of Independent Systems, including super battle droids, assault droids, and assassin droids engage Republic clonetroopers, heavy troopers, and clone sharpshooters in battle aboard Grievous’ flagship. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Mobile Squadrons)*

*NOTE: There is no indication at all when this takes place, since it is a pretty simple cellphone game without a story. However, the fact that the flagship is question is very likely the Invisible Hand, and the other level for this era is the Jedi Temple, I’m assuming that it is meant to take place during the opening of ROTS. Apparently, some clones must have gotten aboard elsewhere in the ship.

- The Stellar Envoy (known later as the Millennium Falcon), flown by Reeze Duurmnun and Tobb Jadak arrives over Coruscant as the Battle of Coruscant is in full swing. They are to meet with the Republic Group at the Senate building, if only they can get down to the surface. They decide to follow the front half of the now-split Invisible Hand (piloted by Anakin Skywalker) toward the surface. Once they are there, they arrive at the Senate, just after Anakin, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Supreme Chancellor Palpatine arrive in a small shuttle bus. They meet with Republic Group representatives Senator Des’sein, Senator Largetto, Senator Fang Zar, and Jedi Master J’oopi Shé. They had hoped to keep the Stellar Envoy one day, after having flown her for a decade, but they are to deliver the ship to an Antarian Ranger named Folee on Toprawa, who is to take custody of the ship (which J’oopi briefly modifies in some fashion unknown to the pilots). The ship will be the key to finding a treasure that will, according to a mnemonic device “restore Republic honor to the galaxy.” Their activities are noted by Intelligence Director Armand Isard, who has the meeting split up and the senators arrested. Jadak and Reeze escape in the Stellar Envoy, barely making it into hyperspace, damaged. They emerge over their best bet for safety, Nar Shaddaa, but they are on a collision course with the Jendirian Valley III, a much larger ship. They reach the escape pods, just as the ship comes back to life, seemingly of its own volition. They are launched in the pod, just as the two ships collide . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Millennium Falcon)

- During the Battle of Coruscant, an explosion on the surface kills Jahan Cross’ mother and separates Cross from his sister, Jens, who is taken away by “maggots” (beings from the undercity.

(conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)

- During the Battle of Coruscant, the Separatist destroyer Vanguard Flare is destroyed. Its commanding officer, Romar Kek, escapes in another ship.

(conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)

- The day after the Battle of Coruscant, Iaco Stark and his family leave the Commerce Guild. He and his family flee to the Corporate Sector.

(conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)

- Two and a half days before the issuance of Order 66, the Battle of Saleucami is over. The heroes of the battle prepare to part ways. Quinlan Vos will head for Boz Pity, then on to Kashyyyk, while Aayla Secura goes to Felucia. As for K’Kruhk and Jeisel, they are heading to Mygeeto to join with Ki-Adi-Mundi’s team. However, during their travel, they are set upon by Separatists, forcing them to seek safety at the Jedi Academy in the Bogden system . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Parallels)

- Padawans Zoi and Iguni are excited to see Anakin Skywalker at the Jedi Temple, who is a hero for rescuing the chancellor and defeating Count Dooku. Afterwards, Iguni visits Zeami, who is still in recovery from the wounds she sustained in the battle. He apologizes for his lack of discipline, which led to her injuries. She forgives him, but he still feels guilty and so pledges to become stronger in the force so that he can always protect his friends. He devotes himself to his studies and lightsaber practice, repeatedly dueling Mace Windu. After a few days, Mace notices and compliments him on his improvement. Later, Iguni works up the courage to approach Anakin in the temple and ask what makes him so strong. Anakin responds by asking why Iguni wants to be strong. To protect his friends, he replies. Anakin sympathizes with the motive, and claims that it is his desire to protect those he loves that makes him strong. He stops himself before he admits that he would do anything to protect his loved ones. As he walks past Iguni to leave, Iguni has a vision of the future: Anakin will fall to the dark side and murder countless Jedi, perhaps even Iguni himself...*

(Evil Eyes)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke Van Horn.

- On Felucia, Aayla Secura, Ekria, Barriss Offee, and Zonder infiltrate Shu Mai’s private facility, while Commander Bly and his clonetroopers provide cover, only to find that she has been gone for days already. With their mission an apparent bust, they patch into the HoloNet to see what is happening on Coruscant. They are relieved to hear that the Battle of Coruscant is over, and Grievous’ Invisible Hand has broken in two and plummeted into the atmosphere. They, of course, also learn that Obi-Wan Kenobi and Anakin Skywalker’s arrival helped lead to the victory, which impresses Zonder. Their toyng with the computer system initiates a hidden protocol, which causes gas to spread, forcing a hasty retreat, even as the facility is set to self-destruct. It explodes just after everyone gets to safety. (To be continued below . . . )

(Reversal of Fortune)

- After finishing up on Saleucami, Quinlan Vos moved his troops to Boz Pity. Now, with actions on Boz Pity also wrapping up, he is sent to Kashyyyk to join with Luminara Unduli.

(conjecture based on Hidden Enemy)

- Coruscant security rebuffs offers of various offworld security experts, who are on Coruscant to speak at a security workshop, to assist during the Battle of Coruscant. The workshop is canceled and the speakers are given free passes to a variety of Coruscant entertainment shows to pass the time. Janu Godalhi, appalled by the obvious inefficiencies and holes in Coruscant security attends a performance of Squid Lake at the Coruscant Galaxies Opera House. There, he is disgusted by the lax security, particularly since he notices Chancellor Palpatine in attendance.*

(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Janu Godalhi, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- K’Kruhk and Jeisel, along with their clonetroopers, arrive at the Jedi Academy in the Bogden system, where they are welcomed by Jedi Master Du Mahn and her youngling Hawkbat Clan. After some time spent patching up their ship and a nice dinner with everyone present, the clonetroopers receive Order 66 and turn on the Jedi. Du Mahn is killed while guarding the children, then K’Kruhk and the younglings escape as Jeisel sacrifices herself in a thermal detonator explosion to keep them safe. Now the question becomes where to go from here . . .

(Parallels)

- Delta Squad receives their last orders for the battleship takedown. They are to split up in four different high trees, where each will take command of a heavy artillery emplacement, which they can use to fire on the ship, taking down its shields and making it vulnerable to further attack. They do so, breaking off as they get to each weapon, leaving Boss alone to get to the final one. Together, they take out the ship’s shields, completing their mission, but the attack doesn’t end there. As more fire is rained down on the area, the Deltas are recalled to Boss’ location for extraction. Scorch and Fixer make it there, but Sev comes under fire. Under orders, though, they are forced to evacuate without Sev. With their pod brother assumed dead, they learn the truth of what has taken place. Their mission was simply to confirm the presence of the Separatists on the planet, opening the door for a full-scale Republic invasion of Kashyyyk. Yoda informs the troops involved that Wookiees are to be saved and helped, but more so now than ever before, the war has come to Kashyyyk . . .*
action in their escape to Mandalore. On Coruscant, Kal Skirata’s clan continues to make preparations to get the last of their number off the planet. That night, Quinlan Vos arrives on Kashyyyk from Boz Pity, adding to the forces that are also going to include Yoda. Delta Squad, still on Kashyyyk, engages the Separatist forces, but Sev is lost and considered MIA.

Shortly thereafter, Enacca, following Kal’s orders, removes Elain Tur-Mukan from combat to send her back to be with the rest of her extended Skirata family. Before leaving, she transmits her acceptance of Darman’s marriage proposal. (To be continued below . . . )

(Order 66)*

*NOTE: The Order 66 novel places this event on day 1,087 (and then 1,088) after Geonosis, but as we have already seen that Karen Traviss’ dates for ROTs events are derived from her incorrect (or overwritten, as the case may be) date for Order 66 itself, we cannot use her exact dates for this event. Suffice to say, it happens approximately midway between the flight of Grievous from Coruscant and the issuance of Order 66.

• On Kashyyyk, Quinlan Vos is sensing the Force to a much larger, healing extent than he has recently. It is helping him return, somewhat, to the man he was before his memory was erased twelve years earlier. He is on the planet with Luminara Unduli, near the village of Palsaan, rather than with Yoda’s troops. They are with a Wookie elder from Palsaan, Gumbaeki. With their troopers, they take out a large Trandoshan slaving operation, but droids with the operation emerge to make things more difficult. They are saved when the droids are destroyed by the Inferno, marking Vilmahr “Ville” Grahrk’s “triumphant” return into Quinlan’s life. Ville has been traveling with Gumbaeki’s grandson, Chak. The Clone Commander with them, Faie, wants to take Ville into custody for trafficking with the Separatists, but Quinlan countermands that standing order. Quinlan interrogates the surviving Trandoshan, Kanniss, who reveals that they are there to capture Wookiees that might hold the secrets of the Claatuvac Guild, a secretive group that holds the key to many unmapped hyperspace routes, which would be of great advantage in the war. When Karniss tries to escape, though, Faie kills him, rather than allowing the Jedi to subdue him. Later, Quinlan and Ville catch up on each other’s activities. Ville has gotten on the bad side of both sides of the war, but he has supposedly grown to value his friends, Quinlan included. He allows Quinlan to use the Inferno to place a holocomm call to Khaleen, who is pregnant with his child. Quinlan intends to leave the Jedi Order as soon as the war ends so that they can raise the child together. While left inside the ship alone, Quinlan, who still has access to the ship’s systems from his previous time with Ville, asks the ship’s artificial intelligence, NT, to tell him how they arrived at Kashyyyk. What he discovers reveals that Chak himself is a member of the Claatuvac Guild. Just as he discovers this, Ville emerges behind him, pointing a blaster at his head. Quinlan gets the upper hand, forcing a standoff that leads both to stand down. He learns that Ville isn’t trying to steal the hyperspace routes, nor did he bring the Separatists to Kashyyyk. The Separatists followed some accidental comments made by Chak to Kashyyyk. Chak is Claatuvac apprentice to the Claatuvac leader, his grandfather Gumbaeki. Quinlan begins to understand, but soon learns that the discovery of Claatuvac symbols on assembly hall artwork has led Commander Faie to insist that the Wookiees turn over the hyperspace route secrets to the Republic military. Quinlan orders Faie to remain quiet about the issue, widening the rift between general and commander. Shortly thereafter, Yoda arrives. Quinlan and Luminara advise him of the Claatuvac situation, and Yoda agrees that it should be kept secret for now. Soon, the Battle of Kashyyyk begins and rages along the shoreline. During the battle, Ville and Chak take the Inferno into the fight on the Wookiees’ side, only to get shot down. They are, however, saved from Separatists by Quinlan. As the battle winds down, Order 66 is issued. Luminara is shot by her own troops, and Yoda manages to escape. At the same time, Quinlan is blasted by his own forces . . . but despite extensive injuries, Quinlan survives. Upon hearing troopers discussing the need to find him and confirm his death, Quinlan begins to understand their betrayal. He makes it to safety, still hunted by Faie, but he is now determined to discover what has happened to his fellow Jedi (especially Tholme and T’ra Saa, who was with Khaleen, the mother of his child). First, though, he will hunt from the Light Side, the Dark Side, whatever he needs, in order to escape. Now, he hunts those who hunt him. Chak informs Ville of Quinlan’s situation, prompting the two allies to seek out their wounded friend. Meanwhile, Quinlan takes out more troopers, amid flashbacks to earlier days, which clear his mind of darker thoughts of revenge and force him to focus on saving Chak’s people from an upcoming Republic bombardment, courtesy of Commander Faie.
Chak finds Quinlan and leaves to go get Ville for help, but before Chak can return, Faie finds Quinlan. The Jedi leaps into action... A short time later, one of Faie’s troopers finds Ville standing next to a Jedi funeral pyre. Ville informs the trooper that Quinlan killed Faie, but then Ville killed Quinlan. The trooper lets Ville live and departs... (To be continued below...)

(Hidden Enemy)

- Shortly before the next stage of the Battle of Mygeeto, Ki-Adi-Mundi reflects on the sacrifice of Jedi Rivi-Anu, remembering her sacrifice as a means of preparing to go into battle with his clonetroopers under Commander Bacara.

(To the Vanishing Point)

- On Felucia, clonetroopers under Aayla Secura (including members of the 501st Legion) battle Separatist forces. Aayla proves herself to be a loyal ally to the 501st members there, making one soldier later remark that he hoped that when she died in Order 66, the death was swift. Those members of the 501st are soon recalled from Felucia. Shortly thereafter, members of the 501st Legion help break the Separatist blockade around Kashyyk, allowing further Republic forces to arrive, including Jedi Master Yoda, who will help to turn the tide of battle. Other members of the 501st will head for Utapau to back up Obi-Wan Kenobi in his strike against General Grievous. Others will make their way to Coruscant to join Darth Vader in his “pacification” of the Jedi Temple. (To be continued below...)

(Battlefront II)

- As the Clone Wars enter their fourth year (having passed the third anniversary of the Battle of Geonosis on the day Obi-Wan Kenobi set out for Utapau), a Jedi Explorer Corps expedition to Nicht Ka on the edge of what was once Sith Space is underway, including Jedi Master Ryelli, pilot (and failed Padawan) Telloti Cillmam’n, and astrogators Staguu Itincoovar. While Staguu remains with their Pathfinder, Ryelli and Telloti investigate a strange stone building on the otherwise uninhabitable surface. As Ryelli studies ancient markings on a wall, Telloti explores on his own, lost in doubts and frustration over not having his own lightsaber, not being chosen by Ryelli as an actual Padawan, and not being likely to be able to take advantage of the Clone Wars to prove himself in combat and right the perceived wrong of not becoming a Padawan. He discovers the ancient armor of Shas Davos AKA Warb Null, still bearing the throat slash scar and missing right lower arm from the ancient warrior’s battle with Jedi Ulic Qel-Droma during the Freedon Nadd Uprising. Noticing the warrior’s unusual, ancient lightsaber (with a regular green blade emitter and a hidden red emitter in the opposite end), he touches the blade and armor. This causes his mind to fill with images from the life of Warb Null, including his death. When he awakens, he finds that he has unknowingly stripped of his own clothes and donned the armor. Ryelli finds him just as he finishes putting it on, and when he warns Telloti to take it off, the boy’s anger and frustration reach the surface. The two duel. Telloti has the advantage until Telloti uses the blade’s secret second emitter to kill Ryelli when he is put off balance. Moments after Ryelli’s death, Staguu comms them. Word has come that the Clone Wars have ended, and a recorded message from Supreme Chancellor Palpatine is ordering all Jedi to return to Coruscant for further information. Telloti destroys the comlink, then returns to the ship and kills Staguu. The Clone Wars may have ended, but there are other places and other ways that he can make a name for himself and seek glory. He will seek out secrets of the Dark Side under a new name: Malleus, the “Hammer of the Dark Side.”*

(Chopper)

*NOTE: This story’s author, Ed Erdelac, informed me that the intent is for Malleus to be donning his armor around the same time that Anakin is being dubbed “Darth Vader” by Sidious, putting this story just after the third anniversary of the war. That is why the story can refer to the Battle of Geonosis as three years ago, yet also refer to the war as being in its fourth year.

- While attempting to discover the identity of Count Dooku’s Sith Master by delving into the Jedi Archives at the Jedi Temple, Sha Koon, niece of Plo Koon, feels the death of Plo Koon during Order 66. She witnesses Anakin Skywalker (Darth Vader) killing Jocasta Nu and escapes into the tunnels beneath the Jedi Temple, which she’d learned about from Jocasta Nu’s final Padawan. She will remain there for a while, waiting to face Vader... (To be continued below...)

(Seconds to Die)
On Utapau, a signal reaches Shu Mai to inform her of the destruction of her facility on Felucia. She laments to the other Separatist leaders that they are not going to ever be able to go home. They assure her that they only have to hold out until their “great weapon” (the Death Star) is complete, but they all know that will take years, so counting on it to turn the tide is a pipe dream. Grievous finally arrives and tells the Separatist Council that they are to be moved to Mustafar for their safety. Back on Coruscant, in a meeting that includes (either in person or via hologram) Mace Windu, Anakin Skywalker, Yoda, Ki-Adi-Mundi, and Aayla Secura, Aayla informs the others that when Shu Mai’s facility was destroyed, it also sent toxins into the ecosphere, which will poison the world within four days. She asks for more clones to help save the planet. (They are interrupted by Commander Cody’s report that Obi-Wan Kenobi has engaged General Grievous, which causes them to send Anakin to inform Palpatine of the situation.) Outside the chamber, on his way to deliver the news to Palpatine, Anakin is approached by Drake Lo’gaan, Master Corobb’s former Padawan, who offers to go with Anakin when he leaves to track down Grievous. Of course, Anakin has to tell him that it is Obi-Wan that has already been sent, so Anakin won’t be going. Outside the Jedi Temple, Anakin catches up to Stass Allie to give her updated orders. She is to deliver aid to Aayla on Felucia, then head for Saleucami, where there is a risk that, despite the recent Republic victory there under Aayla and Quinlan Vos, the Morgukai may lead a takeover as the war winds down. Anakin thanks her for helping save Padmé during the attack on Coruscant, then promises to build her a new speeder when the war is over. With that, he assigns Drake to accompany Stass to Felucia. A while later, on Felucia (after Stass Allie arrives, drops off reinforcements, then leaves again), the Jedi task force splits up. Barriss Offee and clone Lt. Inc will lead a squad to Har Gau, Aayla and clone Commander Bly will head for Nlango with a squad, and a team led by Ekria, Zonder, Drake, and clone Lt. Galle will head for Jiaozi. The attacks go off simultaneously. Lt. Inc is killed and Barriss is surrounded by droids, but the Jiaozi team is more successful, as Ekria is able to stop the spread of the toxin at their target station. As for Aayla, she and Bly find the entrance to their target, but everything is silent and seemingly unguarded. Sensing trouble when they cannot raise Barriss or Aayla, Ekria, Zonder, and Drake check in on security cameras and discover that Bly is getting an encrypted transmission from Coruscant, but it is encrypted with a Separatist, not Republic, code. While they try to descramble the code, Barriss calls to the clones to assist her, but are they coming to save her, or kill her? The coded transmission from Coruscant is Order 66, Darth Sidious’ secret command to begin the Jedi Purge. When Barriss orders them to fire (intending for them to help her), they do fire . . . upon her! Seconds later, Aayla is gunned down by Bly and his companions. Only then does the transmission become decoded for Ekria, Drake, and Zonder to hear. It is the execution of Order 66. Shortly thereafter, even as they try to grieve for a moment, another transmission comes in. This one is a signal from the Jedi beacon at the Jedi Temple on Coruscant. It states, in the voice of Palpatine, that the war is over, and all Jedi should return to Coruscant. Fearing the worst, they switch the screen to show the view from Lt. Galle’s helmet camera . . . and he’s right outside their door . . . Luckily, they manage to escape (as they all appear later in Recruitment.)

(Reversal of Fortune)

On Coruscant, Ordo learns that General Grievous has been killed by Obi-Wan Kenobi. Before he can relay the news to the rest of the Skirata clan, Order 66 is issued. Our heroes go into overdrive, trying to find a way to get off of Coruscant and protect their own. Maze, one of Arligan Zey’s highest ranking clones, appears to kill the old Jedi. Etain Tur-Mukan arrives on Coruscant, forcing the others to engage in a dangerous action to try to keep her from being caught by Palpatine’s authorities. They are able to find her, but when she uses her lightsaber, revealing herself to be a Jedi, in order to save clones from being killed by some Padawans that are being captured under Order 66, she herself is killed for her efforts, leaving Darman without a wife to help raise their son, Kad. In the struggle that ensues, Niner is gravely wounded, and Darman refuses to escape without him. When our heroes finally make their escape into space, Darman and Niner have been left behind by their own choice. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Order 66)*

*NOTE: The Order 66 novel places this event on day 1,089 after Geonosis, but as we have already seen that Karen Traviss’ dates for ROTS events are derived from her incorrect (or overwritten, as the case may be) date for Order 66 itself (this very day), we cannot use her exact dates for this event. Suffice to say, this is the day of Order 66.

- On an unnamed planet, the Republic blasts away at Separatist droids, only to end up decimating local settlements in the crossfire. One such settlement was home to a young boy named Evan, who is found by Aiwhas Squad, a team of Republic Commandos (Sarge, Zag, Tyto, and Di’kut). They save Evan’s life and get him to the safety of a refugee camp, where Evan is excited to see a real life Jedi, General Traviss. Moments later, Order 66 comes through, and the Commandos kill Traviss right in front of Evan. As they told Evan earlier after saving him, they just follow their orders without question.

  (Orders)

- Aboard a damaged Separatist starship, a Jedi Master leads his clone troops just as they receive Order 66.*

  (*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. It is quite vague, but the summary is actually perhaps even longer than the original scenario’s one-sentence explanation."

- As part of Order 66, the Imperial 481st Legion is sent to Ilum to wipe out any remaining Jedi found there.

  (conjecture based on Nexus of Power)

- As Order 66 continues to be carried out, droids of the Confederacy of Independent Systems, including super battle droids, assault droids, and assassin droids attempt to enter the Jedi Temple, but they are forced to engage Republic clonetroopers, heavy troopers, and clone sharpshooters in battle, as the troopers still consider the droids their enemies, even if they, thanks to the Sith, are really on the same side against the Jedi now. (To be continued below . . . )*

  (Mobile Squadrons)*

  (*NOTE: There is no indication at all when this takes place, since it is a pretty simple cellphone game without a story. However, the fact that the flagship is question is very likely the Invisible Hand, and the other level for this era is the Jedi Temple, I’m assuming that it is meant to take place during ROTS. I have tried to make the idea of droids fighting clones inside the Jedi Temple as plausible as possible with this explanation."

- On the night of Order 66, as the killing continues, Jedi Knight Jax Pavan meets Gray Paladin Laranth Tarak.

  (conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)

- Jedi Master Sev and his Padawan, Joc, arrive at Ragmar V with their clonetroopers, intending on taking the planet as a staging ground for a strike against the Separatist targets nearby. While Sev stays aboard their ship, Joc leads clones under Sergeant Remy to a town where the locals, led by a man with a cybernetic eye, refuse to give up their land to the Republic and let the Republic bring the war to Ragmar V. Before Joc can do anything about this, Order 66 comes through. The clones attack him, forcing him to cover with the local leader, who helps him against the clones, only to become a target himself. With Sev dead above, the clones descend upon Ragmar V, as Joc and his new allies charge into battle against the traitorous clone troops.

  (Order of Outcasts)

- On Kashyyyk, clonetroopers have turned on the Wookiees (thanks to their protection of the Jedi, presumably). As a group of clones strike at the Wookiees, they find themselves drawn into the Kashyyyk depths, where they are set upon by native creatures and finished off by Tarfful and Chewbacca. This battle is over, but a new war is just beginning.*

  (Descent)*

  (*NOTE: I’ve placed this story here in order to make sense of it. Chewie and Tarfful are in it, but they’re fighting Republic troops, not Separatist ones. I can only presume that this must be at some point after the clones turn on the Jedi, as it would seem that the Republic and Wookiees were allies throughout the Clone Wars otherwise. I’m assuming here that the “battle” that is over is the Battle of Kashyyyk, and the war that’s beginning is the war against the Empire, in a figurative sense."

- X1, X2, and Jedi Master Ferroda have been quickly sent to quell an uprising on Cato Neimoldia (perhaps left in the wake of Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi’s mission to the planet, or perhaps as part of Plo Koon’s team there). While there, they take out some Separatist satellites and ground weapons, then land and infiltrate Nute Gunray’s palace. They shut down a computer that deactivates all of the linked droids Gunray had protecting the palace, but then Order 66 comes through. X2 is unsure about orders to kill their longtime ally, Master Ferroda, but X1 has no such reservations. He attacks Ferroda, along with other troopers, forcing the confrontation. X2 engages as well, but the turning point arrives when Ferroda gravely wounds X1. To protect his brother, X2 kills Ferroda. As Ferroda dies, he suggests that X1 is falling under the sway of the Dark Side. This would seem odd, given that X1 and X2 are clones, but they do not yet understand that they are clones of Jedi Knight Falon Grey, and X2 himself has already exhibited some Force-attuned combat and leaping abilities . . . (To be continued below . . . )*

(Elite Squadron)*

*NOTE: This segment is more or less the same, no matter which version (DS or PSP) is examined.

- On Murkhana, Jedi, including Master Saras Loorne, Roan Shryne, Bol Chatak, Padawan Olee Starstone, and others, with the aid of clones under, among others, Commander Salvo, are on a mission to destroy or deactivate a major source of the CIS Shadowfeed propaganda network. With information from a captive member of the CIS Vibroblade Brigade, Roan Shryne and the Ion Team trooper known as Climber make it inside the transmitting station, taking out those inside. It would've been easier, though, to have just let Salvo order blasts from the incoming Republic vessel Gallant. After the strike, the Jedi confer while the clones do the same. That's when Climber and his comrades, Ras and Trace, receive Order 66 and learn that they are to kill the Jedi. The trio of clones "captures" Roan, Olee, and Bol, but they let them escape, owing to past loyalty and questioning of orders that is somewhat unlike most clones. Unfortunately, the helpful clones pay for their betrayal when Commander Salvo finally arrives to continue the hunt for the missing Jedi . . . Shortly thereafter, while on the run and intending to follow the Coruscant Jedi Temple's beacon telling them to return to Coruscant, they are surprised to receive a different signal, telling them to avoid Coruscant at all costs (thanks to Obi-Wan Kenobi's reprogramming). They are then almost immediately captured by Imperial forces, though they rid themselves of their lightsabers and Jedi items in order to be taken prisoner as common insurgents, rather than executed on the spot as Jedi . . . (To be continued below . . . )*

(Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- The day after Order 66, on Mandalore, the surviving Kal Skirata's new family that were able to get off of Coruscant unit with members of Yayax Squad, Ny Vollen, and others at their secret refuge at Kymirorut. They are all distraught over the death of Etain and the loss (MIA, not KIA) of Sev on Kashyyyk and the duo of Niner and Darman on Coruscant. They hold a funeral for Etain, then begin to care for the living, as they make a deal with Dr. Ovolot Uthan that they hope will help save the clones from their accelerated aging. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Order 66)*

*NOTE: The Order 66 novel places this event on days 1,090 – 1,094 after Geonosis, but as we have already seen that Karen Traviss' dates for ROTS events are derived from her incorrect (or overwritten, as the case may be) date for Order 66 itself (the day before these events), we cannot use her exact dates for this event. Suffice to say, this summary's events begin the day after Order 66 and continue for approximately one week. Given that ROTS only continues for approximately five more days after Order 66, this summary only goes that far before splitting into the next section.

- Just as the Separatists are surrendering in the Clone Wars, Shea Hublin is graduating from Republic Navy flight school after a quick five months.
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Republic HoloNet News releases a Special Inaugural Edition to commemorate the formation of the new Galactic Empire. This will be the last update to Republic HoloNet News, which will now be replaced by Imperial Holovison.
(Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)*

(conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- Republic HoloNet News reports that COMPOR (the Commission for the Preservation of the Republic) has been replaced by a new organization, COMPNOR (the Commission for the Preservation of the New Order).
(Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)*

 (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.
With the declaration of the New Order, about half of the Senators who signed the Petition of 2000 quickly remove their names. This is fortunate for them, as arrests are imminent for some of the signers. (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

Republic HoloNet News reports that sixty-three senators have been arrested on charges of conspiracy and treason in the wake of the “Jedi rebellion.” At this time, the latest names added to the list of traitors are Ivor Drake of Kestos Minor, Streamdrinker of Tynna, Shea Sadashassha of Herdessa, Tanner Cudaman of Fennix, Grebleips of Brodo Asag, and Fang Zhar of Sern Prime. (Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)* (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- Republic HoloNet News reports that the Trade Federation, under Acting Viceroy Sentepeth Findos, has now been nationalized as part of the Empire. The organization will be dissolved and merged with other companies, as will many other Confederacy allies. (Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)* (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- With the Trade Federation now nationalized, it abandons its operations on Teagan, which will eventually be acquired by the native Devon, who will create the Teagan Tech Consortium. (conjecture based on Dead in the Water)

- With the nationalization of what is left of the Trade Federation, the Old Duros Sector on Nar Shaddaa falls into the same state of disrepair as surrounding areas that had not been dependent upon the Trade Federation. (conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)

- Republic HoloNet News reports on the new regional governors, Moffs, who will now be a direct link between various sectors and the Emperor himself. Among the first Moffs announced to the public are Wilhuff Tarkin, Denn Wessex, and Marcellin Wessel. (Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)* (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- Republic HoloNet News urges citizens to register their names, political persuasion, and weapons with Imperial authorities for the greater good.” (Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)* (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- Republic HoloNet News urges citizens to help the new Empire by being clone donors, joining the military, joining COMPNOR, becoming “eyes” for the Empire, and, if an alien, registering for what will eventually amount to slave labor. (Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)* (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- Republic HoloNet News runs a point/counterpoint feature on how the Empire should deal with the Corporate Sector. (Exact date of report via Republic HoloNet News: 16:5:241)* (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)*

*NOTE: This event takes place on 16:5:241 on a 12-month calendar. That puts right at the very end of ROTS.

- Jahan Cross finally finds his sister, Jens Cross, but she is already dead. He heads back up out of the undercity of Coruscant to discover that the Empire has been created and that the Jedi manipulated the entire war to kill Palpatine and take over the government. This solidifies Cross’ own loyalty to the government and propels him on a path that will eventually make him an agent of Imperial Intelligence. (conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)

- Upon learning that his memory is to be wiped, C-3PO is shocked and concerned. He first tries to convince Raymus Antilles that Bail Organa must have meant R2-D2 should have his memory wiped, not C-3PO. When Raymus is called away to the bridge of the Sundered Heart, he gives R2-D2 the task of wiping C-3PO’s memory. For old time’s sake, R2-D2 has them get cleaned up, as ordered, before performing the memory wipe. While doing so, C-3PO reminisces about how he and R2-D2 kept the secret of Padmé Amidala’s wedding to Anakin Skywalker and how he became a valued member of her Senate staff after the wedding. He wonders aloud whether they could have saved her wonders aloud if he could have done more to help Padmé if he had spoken up after overhearing Anakin’s confession to hear about killing the Tusken Raiders that led to Shmi Skywalker’s death. Just as C-3PO is laying down on the inclined table that puts his head beneath the device that will erase his memories, a black “protocol droid” emerges, revealing that it has been on the ship waiting patiently for good intelligence to emerge, so that the droid, a bounty hunter and information broker, could make money off of selling secret information from aboard the ship. After hearing C-3PO’s musings, he believes that C-3PO’s memory banks will make him a fortune if sold to the Empire. He zaps R2-D2, leaving him out of the fight, then struggles with C-3PO, who realizes that the memories he carries of Padmé and Anakin could be used by the Empire. During the struggle, he mentions danger to the twins, which means that now the droid could also, even without C-3PO’s memories, reveal the existence of children of Padmé and Anakin. Unwilling to let himself be the cause of danger to Luke and Leia, C-3PO grabs the protocol droid and pulls them both into the machine, activating it. Both droids have their memories wiped. As they are removed, C-3PO’s “life flashes before his eyes” as memories replay before deletion. The memories, more good than bad, are uplifting to C-3PO, but finally they are gone. C-3PO, his memory wiped, greets R2-D2 as if for the first time. He is ready to perform his primary function, buried within his new programming: to go program binary load lifters on the ship. Of the pair, only R2-D2 now carries memories of Anakin and Padmé.

Memory Loss...

- In his journey from the Tantive IV at Polis Massa to take Luke Skywalker to the Lars Moisture Farm on Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi arrives on Nar Shaddaa aboard Soulless One with baby Luke. He knows that Jedi Masters Tholme and T’ra Saa had been here before Order 66 and hopes he might find them alive, but his primary goal is simply to sell the ship and book passage to leave for Tatooine. Calling the ship “Spineless One” as a joke about how many times General Grievous fled from battle, he is pointed to Paolo’s Chop Shop by a shady individual, Shnozitski. En route to the shop, he encounters former Jedi Vima Da Boda, who speaks to him a bit and gives him a hand-made child carrier to wear on his back, though it bears the name of her lost child, Neema. At the Chop Shop, he sells the ship to its proprietor, Zegundis. While trying to leave, a group led by Shnozitski tries to rob him, having set him up, but he holds his own for a bit and is then “saved” by a pair of lightsaber-wielding figures in cloaks, which he initially thinks must be Tholme and T’ra Saa. However, his problems are just beginning. The “Jedi” are not Jedi at all but Dark Jedi. One (Fomadu) is Bpfasshi and tracked down Tholme and T’ra Saa and sent them to kill the Jedi as payback for their role in slaughtering the Bpfasshi, though they don’t seem to have succeeded yet. The second Dark Jedi is Mei, whose master (and father) was among the Jensaarai (and Sith acolytes) that Anakin Skywalker, Nejaa Halcyon, and Obi-Wan took down on Susevfi. She is here for revenge of her own. Like a bloodwolf protecting its cub, Obi-Wan battles them both. He eventually kills Fomadu and faces Mei, who gains a brief upper hand if he wants to keep Luke safe. He is willing to give his own life to fulfill her quest for vengeance if she will promise to deliver Luke to Owen and Beru Lars. When he refuses to fight anymore, she threatens to kill Luke with her lightsaber, but Luke appears to instinctively use Force telekinesis to activate Anakin’s lightsaber that is tucked into the carrier from Vima, which ignites and kills Mei. Luke is amazingly strong in the Force, as Obi-Wan can already tell. He boards a ship to Kwenn Space Station for the next leg of his journey, glad to be away from the Smuggler’s Moon.*

Lone Wolf

NOTE: This happens while Obi-Wan is en route to Tatooine with Luke. Given that he leaves on 16:5:27 and arrives on 16:5:28, this is presumably on one of those dates, unless the dates have been altered to provide more breathing room for Obi-Wan’s travel. This also definitely takes place in the gap on page 100 of The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi

- While aboard the Space Slug, Senator Dewell Bronk is on the run from the Empire, having refused to remove his name from the Petition of 2000. Now, this member of the Delegation of 2000 cannot lift a finger to help fellow passengers when harassed by thugs for fear of getting caught. Fortunately, a woman he wants to help is helped by a "young father" who is aboard with "his child" (Obi-Wan Kenobi, bearing Luke Skywalker to Tatooine). Upon arriving at a spaceport, ready to switch to another ship for the next leg of each of their journeys, the two find trouble: an Ortolan is being harassed by Imperial troopers. It is a trap, though, meant to play on Dewell's selflessness and draw him in for capture. Fortunately, Obi-Wan steps in and takes down the troopers. Dewell decides to return to the Senate and renounce his old beliefs in public, while holding to his beliefs in private, until the time is right to act upon them. He hopes that Obi-Wan too will somehow find a way to continue helping people.*

(Incognito)*

*NOTE: This happens while Obi-Wan is en route to Tatooine with Luke. Given that he leaves on 16:5:27 and arrives on 16:5:28, this is presumably on one of those dates (likely the 27th), unless the dates have been altered to provide more breathing room for Obi-Wan's travel. This also definitely takes place in the gap on page 100 of The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi, since by then he is on the final Tatooine-bound vessel of his journey.

- Aboard a transport to Tatooine on the last leg of his journey there with Luke Skywalker, Obi-Wan Kenobi is present when a pair of podracers, Ark "Bumpy" Roose and a Dug (presumably Sebulba) are insulting each other. When Bumpy sends a bottle toward the Dug, he misses, and Obi-Wan catches it. The Dug starts to realize that Obi-Wan might be a Jedi, but Obi-Wan uses the Force to put him to sleep. He keeps to himself for the rest of the journey.*

(The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi)*

*NOTE: This happens while Obi-Wan is en route to Tatooine with Luke. Given that he leaves on 16:5:27 and arrives on 16:5:28, this is presumably on one of those dates (probably the latter), unless the dates have been altered to provide more breathing room for Obi-Wan's travel. This also definitely takes place after Incognito, since this is the last leg of his trip to Tatooine.

- Having arrived on Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi (still bearing Luke Skywalker) uses data provided by R2-D2 to seek out the Lars Homestead. He seeks final details on the location at a bar in Anchorhead, Junix's Joint, where local resident Wyle Ulbreck is drinking. While Obi-Wan is asking for directions, a group of young "hooligans" (Veeka Gault, Mullen Gault, Zedd Grobbo, and Jabe Calwell) arrive. The kids, having been drinking already, offend a Wookiee patron, who smacks Zedd into a table with several Rodian thieves who work for Jabba the Hutt. A fight ensues briefly, but Obi-Wan asks Wyle to hold his "package" (Luke), then uses cover of darkness (taking out the lights) to put a quick end to the scuffle, leaving the Rodians dead and the others knocked out. Obi-Wan retrieves Luke and makes a hasty exit. As for Wyle, he is drunk and will have only vague memories of the encounter. Obi-Wan delivers Luke to his step-uncle and step-aunt, Owen and Beru Lars, after which he settles into a small hovel nearby (knowing he will likely need a more permanent home farther away at some point). That evening, he meditates, attempting to make contact with Qui-Gon Jinn, telling Qui-Gon about the events of the day and the Lars' acceptance of Luke. (Exact date: 16:5:28) (To be continued below . . . )*

(Kenobi)*

*NOTE: This takes place in the gap on page 103 of The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi. Some of the details are carried over from the last paragraphs on that page, which don't really need their own summary or title listing.

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)

Order 66 [continued] (novel: Karen Traviss)
Chapter 15 [continued]
Chapter 16

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)

Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
Fall of the Old Republic [continued]
Coruscant Orbit
A Desperate Rescue

Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: N-Space)
Act I [continued]
Coruscant [continued]
Revenge of the Sith (video game: LucasArts)

Cutscenes
- The Battle of Coruscant

Story Missions
- Rescue Over Coruscant

Cutscenes [continued]
- One Bad Situation to Another

Story Missions [continued]
- An Explosive Development

Cutscenes [continued]
- Never an Elevator When You Need One

Story Missions [continued]
- Peril in the Elevators

Cutscenes [continued]
- Next Time We Take the Stairs
  - This Time We Do It Together

Story Missions [continued]
- Settling the Score

Cutscenes [continued]
- Sharing the Same Fate

Story Missions [continued]
- It’s Not Over Yet

Cutscenes [continued]
- Prepare for Attack
  - Artoo to the Rescue
  - Confronting Grievous

Story Missions [continued]
- The General’s Right Hand

Cutscenes [continued]
- Grievous Escapes

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)

Mobile Squadrons (video game: THQ)

Clone Wars
- CIS*
  - Grievous’ Flagship
  - Galactic Republic*
  - Grievous’ Flagship

*NOTE: These two factions are likely fighting each other at the same time, but I have to put them in some sort of order when I list them, so I arbitrarily listed the CIS faction first.

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

- Chapters 2 – 4

Dark Times (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)

Parallels (comic series: Mick Harrison)
  - Parallels, Part I (comic: Mick Harrison)

Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)

Reversal of Fortune [continued] (SWH comic: Paul Ens)

Webstrips 85 – 110

Evil Eyes [continued] (SWM short story: Nao)

- Evil Eyes [continued] (SWM1 short story: Nao)

Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)

Parallels [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison)
  - Parallels, Part I [continued] (comic: Mick Harrison)

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Republic Commando [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Kashyyyk [continued]
    The Final Strike
    Epilogue

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Order 66 [continued] (novel: Karen Traviss)
  Chapter 16 [continued]
  Chapter 17

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)
  Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
    Hidden Enemy, Part I (comic: John Ostrander)
    Hidden Enemy, Part II (comic: John Ostrander)
    To the Vanishing Point [continued] (CWA6 comic: Matthew Fillbach & Shawn Fillbach)

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
  Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
      Fall of the Old Republic [continued]
      Felucia
      Heart of Darkness
  Hammer (SWI147 short story: Edward Erdelac)
    Hammer (SWI147 short story: Edward Erdelac)
  Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
    Reversal of Fortune [continued] (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
      Webstrips 111 – 119
  Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Rise of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
      Cutscenes [continued]
      Bidding Farewell

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)
  Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
    Hidden Enemy, Part II [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
  Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
      Fall of the Old Republic [continued]
      Kashyyyk Orbit
      First Line of Defense
      Kashyyyk
      A Line in the Sand

Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Rise of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Story Missions [continued]
      Investigating Utapau
    Cutscenes [continued]
      A Bold Move
    Story Missions [continued]
      The Cavalry Arrives

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
    Fall of the Old Republic [continued]
    Coruscant
    Knightfall

Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
Reversal of Fortune [continued] (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
Webstrips 120 – 124
Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Bonus Missions
      The General's Protectors
      Grievous on the Run
    Cutscenes [continued]
      Chasing Grievous
    Story Missions [continued]
      Showdown with Grievous

Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
Reversal of Fortune [continued] (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
Webstrips 125 – 151
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)
  Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
    Hidden Enemy, Part II [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)

Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Cutscenes [continued]
    Dark Versus Light
    Story Missions [continued]
    The Dark Side of the Force
    Cutscenes [continued]
      The New Apprentice
      Marching on the Temple

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
    Fall of the Old Republic [continued]
      Coruscant

Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Story Missions [continued]
    The Hunt Begins
    Cutscenes [continued]
      Turning on the Beacon
      Serra, the Apprentice
    Story Missions [continued]
      The Final Lesson

Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Cutscenes [continued]
      The Time Has Come

Purge (comic series: John Ostrander & Haden Blackman & Alexander Freed)
  Seconds to Die [flashback] (comic: John Ostrander)

Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
Reversal of Fortune [continued] (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
Webstrips 152 – 169

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Order 66 [continued] (novel: Karen Traviss)
Chapter 17 [continued]
Chapters 18 – 22

Orders (CWA4 comic: Ryan Kaufman)
Execute Order 66 (miniatures game: Sterling Hershey)
Execute Order 66 (miniatures game: Sterling Hershey)

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Mobile Squadrons [continued] (video game: THQ)
Clone Wars [continued]
CIS [continued]*
   Jedi Temple
Galactic Republic [continued]*
   Jedi Temple

*NOTE: These two factions are likely fighting each other at the same time, but I have to put them in some sort of order when I list them, so I arbitrarily listed the CIS faction first.

Order of Outcasts (CWA5 comic: Matt Jacobs)
Descent (CWA4 comic: Haden Blackman)

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: Rebellion)
   The Clone Wars [continued]
   Cato Neimoidia
Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: N-Space)
   Act I [continued]
   Cato Neimoidia

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)
Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
   Hidden Enemy, Part II [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
   Hidden Enemy, Part III [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)

Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader (novel: James Luceno)
Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader (novel: James Luceno)
   The Outer Rim Sieges
   Chapters 1 – 8

Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
   Story Missions [continued]
   Attack of the Clones
   Cutscenes [continued]
   Escaping Utapau

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Order 66 [continued] (novel: Karen Traviss)
Chapter 23 - 24

Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Revenge of the Sith [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Cutscenes [continued]
   Arrival on Mustafar
Story Missions [continued]
   Assassination on Mustafar
Bonus Missions [continued]
   The Mustafar Lava Challenge
Cutscenes [continued]
   Taken Care of Rendezvous in Space
Story Missions [continued]
   Aftermath in the Temple
Bonus Missions [continued]
   Size Matters Not
Cutscenes [continued]
   Security Recordings
   Showdown on Mustafar
Story Missions [continued]
   A Friendship in Flames
Cutscenes [continued]
   The Circle is Now Complete

Coruscant Nights [continued] (novel trilogy: Michael Reaves)
Street of Shadows (novel: Michael Reaves)*
   Prologue*
   *NOTE: This event is noted briefly within the Revenge of the Sith summary.

Star Wars Magazine Comics [continued] (comic series: Rik Hoskin & Mike Barr & Martin Fisher & Chris Cooper & Robin Etherington)
   Memory Loss… [continued] (SWMUK comic: Chris Cooper)

Lone Wolf (short story: Abel G. Pena)
Lone Wolf (short story: Abel G. Pena)
Incognito (SWI143 short story: John Jackson Miller)
Incognito (SWI143 short story: John Jackson Miller)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
   Chapter 6 [continued]

Kenobi (novel: John Jackson Miller)
Kenobi (novel: John Jackson Miller)
   Prologue
   Meditation

18.8 – 0 BBY

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Rise and Fall of Darth Vader [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
   Chapter 13

The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
The Story of Darth Vader [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
   The Rise of Darth Vader*
   *NOTE: This is an overview of the era between Episodes III and IV.

Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
Obi-Wan Kenobi: Jedi Knight [continued] (children’s book: Catherine Saunders)
   Ben Kenobi*
   *NOTE: This section is basically a very generalized overview of Obi-Wan hiding out on Tatooine between film trilogies. (This information was provided by Luke Van Horn.)

18.8 – 18 BBY

* Having escaped to Dagobah, Yoda settles near the Dark Side cave left from the death of a Bpfasshi Dark Jedi. He uses its Dark Side “signature” in the Force to counterbalance and otherwise hide his own strong Light Side presence from the senses of the Sith Lords.
(conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

- While Kal Coorsa is child, his father is killed while fighting against the Empire. His mother will raise him alone until her death when he is twelve.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: There are quite a few internal inconsistencies in this RPG adventure (see the notes with the summary for its main storyline for more on how those issues might affect dates). Kal’s father is supposed to be killed while fighting the Empire when he is an infant. However, the story necessitates that Kal is at least 25 by the time of Friends Like These, which is set between ANH and ESB (or at least between ANH and ROTJ). Thus, if his father is killed when he is an infant, then his father can’t be killed by the Empire, as it doesn’t exist yet. On the other hand, if his father was killed by the Empire, then he would be a child but not an infant. I have been forced to go with the latter explanation, hence referring to him here as a child instead of an infant.

- Samona is born to Harovan Toth and Tisha Rostek. (At about the same time, Toth joins an anti-Empire infiltration team with the as yet unofficial rebellion movement against Palpatine.)
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11)

- Around this time, Galen Marek is born to Jedi Knight Kento Marek and a female Jedi Knight. They go into hiding on Kashyyyk in the wake of Order 66.*
  (conjecture based on The Force Unleashed II)*

*NOTE: It is not clear if this was a forbidden relationship prior to Order 66 or a very quickly-formed relationship afterward. It could also be that Galen’s parents were part of a Jedi splinter group like the one Calista Masana belonged to. All we do know is that the Star Wars Databank specifies him as being born around 19 BBY, which either means soon before or soon after ROTJ.

- In the wake of the “Jedi Rebellion,” the official story put out for public knowledge is that the Jedi had tried to assassinate Palpatine to take over the Republic. (Supposedly, their motive was that Palpatine wouldn’t immediately step down when the Jedi declared that the war was over with Grievous’ death, rather than waiting to see if the fighting was actually going to end.) They are also said to have engineered the Clone Wars, since the Separatist leader, Count Dooku, was a former Jedi, and it was a Jedi, SiVo-Dyas, who ordered the creation of the Republic’s clone army. (Supposedly, the troopers were short-lived thanks to their accelerated growth, but this was fine for the Jedi because they wouldn’t need the troopers once they had overthrown the Republic instituted a Force-worshipping theocracy in its place.) The plot of the Jedi was foiled by Palpatine and his right-hand man, Darth Vader, whom no one is to know is Anakin Skywalker. The cover story is that Anakin died while defending the Jedi Temple, fighting on the side of the evil Jedi. Palpatine orders the creation of new lines of capital ships and starfighters in the war’s aftermath, under the auspices of preserving the peace. He, meanwhile, uses his disfigurement to distance himself further from the Senate and the public. As for Darth Vader, he is given a jet black Jedi Interceptor as his personal starfighter, along with a black astromech, while Sienar Systems works on a new TIE Advanced starfighter based on his personal specifications. As for the Separatist leaders, there is still no confirmation that they are dead, but the fact that they were all aliens helps Palpatine’s new Empire to crack down on aliens, giving preferential treatment to the “loyal” human race. There is also talk of building an Imperial Palace for the Emperor, his advisors, and the Royal Guard, along with various statues to the man who “saved” the Republic and founded the Empire. As for any Jedi who have survived, Palpatine does not have them all hunted down just yet, allowing some to go into hiding, which he sees not as them escaping him, but as humbling themselves before the Sith’s power after a millennium of arrogance.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- The Senate rotunda is closed for repairs in the wake of the duel between Yoda and Darth Sidious.
  (conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #84)

- During rebuilding on Coruscant, it is discovered that the Insignia of Unity in the Senate rotunda is a fake. With the Republic having become the Empire, however, Palpatine does not care to track down the original, nor does the Senate at this point, so the issue remains unresolved.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

- Approximately three months before relocating to Coruscant, Ves Volette experiences a peaceful day on Caamas. It is this day that will appear to him in the form of a memnis when The planet is decimated.*

(conjecture based on Street of Shadows)*

*NOTE: This date is a rough one, given that it is difficult to accurately place Street of Shadows in relation to dates provided by Sue Rostoni and Typho’s involvement in Death on Naboo.

- Sate Pestage informs the Squibs that they cannot look for salvage among the wrecks from the Battle of Coruscant.

(conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #65)

- Fresh out of the Quelii Sector Academy, Firmus Piett is assigned to the Imperial Navy’s forces patrolling the backwater worlds of the Ciutric Hegemony with veterans of the Ciutric Planetary Security Forces. Many in the region have taken bribes over the years to ignore pirate and smuggling vessels, but Piett refuses to do so. Fortunately, Moff Pensar Luc is the Hegemony’s new governor, and he is rather reform-minded. Piett is assigned to a special task force of officers Luc can trust and tasked with cleaning up the Ciutric space lanes.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Janu Godalhi, security expert from Teth, is shocked by Order 66. His previous dealings with Plo Koon convince him that the public accusations of a “Jedi Rebellion” are false. His knowledge of the Jedi and his historical expertise lead him to believe that Palpatine is actually at the center of an old conspiracy to be named Emperor, although he keeps these conclusions to himself.*

(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Janu Godalhi, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- The destruction on Mustafar following the duel between Darth Vader and Obi-Wan Kenobi is ruled an “industrial accident.” As a result of the destruction of several parts of the facility there, prices for dolovite rise to 760 credits per barrel.

(conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #65)

- The Caamas Rainbow of Sunshine Festival is canceled.

(conjecture based on Republic HoloNet News in Star Wars Insider #65)

- Mika the Hutt (Mika Anjiliac Chiera) create a new form of spice, known as Tempest, which is highly addictive. Supplies will dwindle over the years approaching the Battle of Yavin.*

(conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)*

*NOTE: Personally, I think this is an error in Lords of Nal Hutta. The story in which Tempest appears in a major way is Scourge, based on Tempest Feud, and that story is set in 19 ABY, whereas the reference in LONH points to the drug being created in 19 BBY. On the other hand, it notes that supplies dwindled “in recent years,” based on LONH’s presumed “present” of about two years after ANH, so who knows exactly what the writers were thinking when referring to this apparently-updated backstory?

- Nick Rostu is given the choice of swearing allegiance to the new Galactic Empire or being branded a traitor. He chooses to kill his superior officer, Colonel Majjen, and escape, going underground.

(conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)

- In the wake of Order 66, a Jedi Master who will eventually give a final mission to Jax Pavan goes underground. Jax Pavan does as well.*

(conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)*

*NOTE: This Jedi Master is no longer Even Piell, due to his death in The Clone Wars.

- In the wake of Order 66, the Gray Paladin Laranth Tarak, who had a lekku blasted off by clonetroopers, begins acting as a sort of freedom fighter on Coruscant.

(conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)

- In the wake of Order 66, clonetrooper Bellows finally awakens and is shocked when he learns about Order 66 being carried out. Unsure of what to do now and why his clone brothers acted so strangely against the Jedi, he instead decides to go into hiding with the help of Lira Hardin. (As far as Bellows is concerned, he served the Republic, and the moment it became the Empire, he was no longer duty-bound to continue to serve.)

(conjecture based on Friends Like These)

- In the wake of Order 66, TH-313 (Captain Tacker) in Jorra on Cato Neimoidia is glad that the Jedi Council did not have time to send Jedi to replace Suljo Warde, Jiv Durael, or Kaddo Moll, thereby allowing him to avoid carrying out Order 66. He will spend years wondering how his brother clones could have betrayed their own Jedi comrades.
In the wake of Order 66, Commander Jaxsinne Tamm, an intelligence officer, works to use data trails to hunt remaining Jedi. She will come to see this later as her greatest sin.

In the wake of Order 66, the inhabitants of Auratera choose to deny the existence of the Acablas Ruins and the Force vergence there. They delete all records of the ruins’ existence in hopes of remaining free of the Empire.

As a result of Order 66, the bodies of Jiv Durael and Kaddo Moll, slain by Suljo Wrede on Cato Neimoidia, are never recovered from the Sankar Palace, which remains mostly untouched until after the Battle of Yavin.

In the wake of Order 66, the Nautolan teras kasi religious order known as Salai Kasi (the Hidden Hand) is targeted as well as a threat. An assassin known as Edge is sent to wipe out the group. He succeeds in wiping out all of the Hidden Hand, until only its leader, Neaed Fisto (family member of Kit Fisto) and three initiates (Eaden Vrill, his sister Eawrn, and their cousin Nautif) are left. Edge attacks again, and Neaed gives his life to allow the three initiates time to escape. They (incorrectly) believe Edge dead and all take up separate lives, until they can find a way to strike back against the government that ordered their deaths.

In the wake of Order 66, the droi d known as “Bug-Eyes” (10-4TO) supposedly disappears on Coruscant, bearing information that could help damage the Empire.

In the wake of Order 66, the many Jedi Knights and their families living on Peekoine are exterminated (rumors of a few survivors persist for years, though). The planet becomes increasingly important to shipping routes of the Imperial military.

Around this time, Thakba Besadii Diori purchases six battle droids on the black market: 2D4, 2D5, 3D1, 3D4, 3D7, and 9B2. He sets them to work at the Oridelve Incorporated mining operation on Gavos.*

 Damien Tantrellius, Jedi Knight, suffers a massive trauma which causes total amnesia. In the ensuing years, he becomes a great actor.*

 Around this time, Black Sun assassin Kaird acquires enough power to be an operative in the running to be the next Vigo.

During the Jedi Purge, the Jedi Academy on Almas is destroyed.

With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine sends Imperial (formerly Republic) ships to a Separatist cybernetics development deep space station near the Salvara system. His forces attempt to conscript the cyberneticists there, led by the Arkanian scientist Cratala, to be on his personal medical staff. The scientists refuse and instead escape with Captain Rel Harsol on the Banking Clan Munificent-class star frigate Sa Nalaor, which had been stationed as the lead ship in a small fleet in the area to protect the research station. Harsol has foreseen this possibility and made arrangements with Cratala to leave for the planet Cholganna (hidden by the Chol Nebula in the Chol System of the Outer Rim Territories), where Cratala and her scientists would develop more technology and Harsol would provide protection and a connection to both legitimate and illicit markets for the technology through Harsol’s ally, IsoTech founder Ropok. They take some of the cyberneticists’ working prototypes and Cratala’s core staff members and escape, but the Imperials (possibly fearing a new cyber war, the rise of an Outer Rim warlord with such technology, or simply thinking that they were chasing down another fleeing Separatist commander) give chase in a series of battles at hyperspace stops along the Perlemian Trade Route and into the Outer Rim. Just as the Sa Nalaor prepares to make its last hyperspace jump from the end of the Perlemian Trade Route to Cholganna, Imperial turbolaser fire from pursuing vessels damage the Sa Nalaor, which makes the jump to hyperspace anyway. It arrives over Cholganna far too close to the planet’s gravity well. Sublight engines fail and the ship begins a crash landing. During their descent, they are able to launch a jury-rigged hyperspace message pod that is meant to reach Ropok on the Wheel. (For his part, Ropok is still in possession of Harsol’s protocol droid, IT-3PO, who was left with him to help set up their illicit trading.) Some crew make it to the escape pods, only to wind up alone on the surface to die amid its environmental and creature dangers. Others, including Harsol and Cratala, remain with the ship. Many of them survive the crash and set up an settlement (known as the “Retreat”), using battle droids from the ship and wreckage from the ship. Unbeknownst to the crew, the message pod reverts to normal space near the Wheel but then suffers a power failure that leaves it undiscovered for many years. Of the 200 crew of the Sa Nalaor, which included about half droids and half organics, only about 30 of the organic crew members will survive the crash and the next two decades on the planet. (Thousands of compressed battle droids are destroyed in the crash.) From time to time over the years, explorers stumble upon the lost ship’s crew, only to be killed by battle droids or cybernetically-enhanced creatures to keep the location a secret. The scientists have no desire to work for the Empire, especially Cratala, who fears the horrors she could create for the Empire worse than she fears her own death. Some of the survivors attempt to reach the fortune in Republic credits (soon to be useless during Imperial times) in the ship’s hold, but it is out of reach. However, the ship still carries a lot of precious metal samples in the captain’s own vault, which he had planned to use in making deals for more of such substances. (These ingots are moved to his new quarters.) As for IT-3PO, Ropok pretends that the droid belongs to him (eventually thinking of him as an equal partner in deal-making), until the droid will eventually move into the possession of Ropok’s son and IsoTech successor, Reom (who, along with his sister Shira, will not give IT-3PO the same influence as their father did). The Imperial Security Bureau will investigate the case for years to come, often shifting the task from agent to agent. Few will see it as a worthwhile mission, especially after the death of Ropok in Imperial custody years later, but no one will have the guts to approach the Emperor personally about ending the task, which was under his direct orders originally and thus can only be canceled with his approval.

(Conjecture based on Beyond the Rim)

- The day after Obi-Wan Kenobi delivers Luke Skywalker to Owen and Beru Lars, Kal Skirata decides to visit Concord Dawn soon with Arla Fett in hopes of finding some relatives that might be able to help her recover from the trauma of her time as a prisoner. Walon Vau, meanwhile, intends to return to Kashyyyk to look for Sev, who remains MIA. Kal also makes amends, finally, with his daughter, Ruusaan. (To be continued below . . . )

(Order 66)*

*NOTE: The Order 66 novel places this event on day 1,095 after Geonosis, but as we have already seen that Karen Traviss’ dates for ROTS events are derived from her incorrect (or overwritten, as the case may be) date for Order 66 itself (1,089 days after Geonosis), we cannot use her exact dates for this event. Given that ROTS only continues for approximately five more days after Order 66, this is presumably the next day after ROTS ends.

- In the wake of Order 66, clone troopers seek out Jedi survivors on the icy world of Toola. Their quarry, it seems, is headed for Ithaqua Station. In that very city, Jedi Master Kai Hudorra and the late Jedi Master Simms’ Padawan, Noirah Na, are trying to find safety. While Noirah deals with the loss of her master during Order 66, they both need to find a way offworld. Hudorra heads into the local port on his own, stealing money as necessary. When troopers arrive to check for possible Jedi hiding among the denizens, he uses his Force powers to incite the locals to rise up against the intruding troopers. Meanwhile, on the planet New Plympto, Jedi Master Dass Jennir is hunted by the troopers that were formerly under his command. He finds himself encountering a local Nosaurian named Bomo Greenbark. The two nearly decide to kill each other, but they become allies when they realize that the clones are their common enemy now. Bomo takes Dass to his people, but they immediately pull their weapons, claiming that he has brought them a Jedi to kill. Luckily, their leader takes Bomo’s side and orders Dass released. Commander Rootrock and Dass discuss the situation, along with each side’s motives during the war. Dass is invited to stay and help, but he needs to go to Coruscant to check for more Jedi survivors first. After that, he promises to return if that is where the Force guides him. Meanwhile, back on Toola, Hudorra and Noirah get passage to Coruscant. Both they and Dass arrive and are in a crowd outside the Jedi Temple as stormtroopers burn Jedi materials on the front steps. A Jedi in the crowd tries to stand up to them, but he is shot and killed. After the Jedi’s death, Hudorra destroys his lightsaber and Noirah’s, sending Noirah, no longer a Jedi according to Hudorra, on her way, hopefully that she can survive on her own. As for Hudorra, he and Dass meet and discuss their plans. Hudorra plans to wait in hiding until the Jedi Order might one day rise again. Dass, meanwhile, understands that he is essentially on his own. He chooses to follow his own path, as directed by the Force . . . and he returns to New Plympto to help Rootrock and Bomo in their struggle against the Empire. (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal Clone Wars Timeline: 16:5:30)*

(Into the Unknown)

NOTE: The events in this story take place 2 days (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith, which ends on 16:5:28, according to Leland Chee. I should also note here as a continuity comment that the opening of this issue flashes back to Revenge of the Sith, but it shows the deaths of Stass Allie and Plo Koon in slightly different scenarios (only slightly altered) from what we saw in the final film, probably based on earlier drafts of the script or something.

- On Mandalore, Kal Skirata suggests that Fenn Shysa become the new Mandalore in order to stave off a full-scale Imperial invasion of the planet. They continue taking in other refugees, including some defecting clones and Jedi like the forthcoming Tallisbeth Enwandung-Esterhazy and a Kaminoan Jedi, Kina Ha. Meanwhile, at the Centax 2 Imperial Army Training Center, Darman and Niner are alive and well, but they are now serving as Imperial Commandos, hoping to someday find a way to escape to join the rest of their extended family on Mandalore. Also among the Imperial Commandos are the remaining members of Delta Squad (Boss, Scorch, and Fixer). Back on Mandalore the very next day, Fenn Shysa becomes the new official Mandalore. Life, even after Order 66, goes on. *

(Order 66)

*NOTE: The Order 66 novel places these events on days 1,096 – 1,097 after Geonosis, but as we have already seen that Karen Traviss’ dates for ROTS events are derived from her incorrect (or overwritten, as the case may be) date for Order 66 itself (1,089 days after Geonosis), we cannot use her exact dates for this event. Given that ROTS only continues for approximately five more days after Order 66, this is presumably 2 – 3 days after ROTS ends.

- One week after Darth Vader is reborn as “more machine than man,” he builds a new lightsaber, based on a combination of Darth Sidious’ design and his own designs as Anakin Skywalker, while aboard a Star Destroyer in the shadow of the under-construction Death Star.

  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- Less than one week after the Jedi Purge strikes the Jedi Temple, Coruscant-based media outlets begin distributing The Private Journals of Mace Windu, which are actually Imperial propaganda, developed using bits and pieces of actual Mace Windu recordings and fabricated materials.

  (conjecture based on Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

- Very soon after the declaration of the new Empire, a resistance movement begins forming on Coruscant, known as Whiplash, formed by normal sentients and a few Gray Paladins. One of their early members will be Nick Rostu.

  (conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)

- Tannon Praji is appointed as Second Minister of the Coruscant Ministry of Ingress, as one of Palpatine’s first new appointments as Emperor.

  (conjecture based on Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Praji: A Cartel of Genes)

- Emperor Palpatine’s reorganizations of governmental organizations results in the Coruscant Ministry of Ingress answering to the Imperial Center military police.
Emperor Palpatine creates the Galactic Banking Network.

Tannon Praji moves his wife and daughter, Maree and Onnelly Praji, to Byss.

Various Imperial (formerly Republic) captains are called to Coruscant for a briefing, including Sagoro Autem. They are addressed by Emperor Palpatine and introduced to Darth Vader, who Force chokes Captain Jace Dallin for speaking out about his doubts as to the Jedi Order's "betrayal" of the Republic. Sagoro is appalled, but he's not sure what to do about it. He considers his family, whom he lost years ago when he helped them flee from Coruscant.

He was turned in by his own former partner, Isaru Omin, and imprisoned, until a Jedi mission led to his freedom. He misses his wife, daughter, and son (Reymet). The door to his quarters chimes, only for his visitor to be Isaru! Isaru informs his former partner that Sagoro is on a list of Imperial officers to be "purged" very soon. Isaru himself was sent to check on him and allow for his arrest. Instead, Isaru is warning him out of former loyalty to Sagoro and loyalty to the Republic (not the Empire). Sagoro escapes, but Isaru is executed by Vader for his betrayal. Sagoro turns to the lowlife pilot Ch'ord Sy'fon for help getting off Coruscant.

Meanwhile, Vader hires several bounty hunters (including the Shistavanen Severian, the Dug Tartuta, and a masked human named Evan Hessler). They are sent after Sagoro. Severian finds him first, but was followed by Tartuta, who severs one of the Shistavanen's arms. While Sagoro evades Tartuta, the Dug is shot by Evan. Sagoro races for Ch'ord's ship, only to be tackled by Severian (one-armed but still alive). He kills Severian, but he is then caught at blasterpoint by Evan. Evan pulls him back into the shadows, even as Imperials arrive, looking for him. When Sagoro refuses to come along quietly with Evan, the bounty hunter removes his mask, revealing himself to be . . . Reymet! Sagoro's son, now a smuggler and information broker, has come to rescue him from his fate. Together the two Autems escape from Coruscant for a long-awaited family reunion. (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal Clone Wars Timeline: 16:5)*

(Loyalties)

NOTE: The events in this story take place 2 weeks (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith.

Three weeks have passed since the birth of the Galactic Empire. Former Omega Squad members Niner (now healed from his injuries during Order 66) and Darman (still grieving but trying to ignore his feelings over the loss of his wife, Jedi Knight Etain Tur-Mukan) are now part of the Imperial 501st Legion's Imperial Commandos. They have become part of Squad 40, along with two other clone commandos, Ennen and Bry. Their duty is to capture or kill the remaining Jedi or their sympathizers, along with any other dissidents (such as Kal Skirata's growing clan of defectors and insurgents on Mandalore). Their first mission takes them to Celen, where they are to take down an Antarian Ranger named Jilam Kester, only to find themselves battling an actual Jedi Knight, Iri Camas. Camas, who was once the direct superior officer of the clone commandos, is able to help the Ranger escape, but he does so at the expense of his own life, setting off explosives that kill him, along with Bry, Squad 40's first casualty. Bry is replaced by Rede, who is not a clone of Jango Fett but instead a Spaarti cylinder clone from Centax-2. Things continue to become more complicated when Jaller Obrim passes a chip with important (and possibly compromising) data to Niner to get back to Kal, which Niner keeps from Darman, given that he can't be sure how Darman would react to just about anything right now. Their first commander, Sa Cuis, is soon replaced by Roly Melusar, whom they actually grow to like, mostly based on his resentment toward Force-users. During one mission for Melusar, Squad 40 kills a suspected Jedi, only to find that he was a common criminal who happened to have gotten his hands on a lightsaber. This serves as the last straw for Ennen, who has been depressed since the death of Bry. Ennen commits suicide. Things are bleak, but hope survives in the form of Darman's son, Kad, who is with Kal Skirata on Mandalore at their secret "base" at Kyrimorut. There, Kal and the others (including Bardan Jussik, the slowly-falling-for-Kal Ny Vollen, the Nulls, and others) hatch a plan to extract Niner and Darman. Ny flies Ordo and a small team to Coruscant to get them, only for Darman to decide that he can best keep his son safe from Imperial hands by staying on the inside with the Imperial Commandos. Niner, refusing to leave without Darman, stays behind as well, though he's rather pissed about it. The only thing that the team is able to return to Mandalore is the datachip that Obrim had given Niner. Meanwhile, also on Mandalore, Dr. Olovot Qail Uthan is shocked when one of her own viruses is released on her home planet, Gibad, because they won't join the Empire. Her previous motivations to help stop the clones’ accelerated aging is now tempered by a desire for revenge. She decides to work on a virus that could be let loose on Coruscant, but she designs an antivirus to the bioweapons she has already left in Imperial hands. The Skirata clan, with Fenn Shysa’s blessing, spread the antivirus around Keldabe to keep Mandalore safe from future Imperial retribution. While there, Mij Gilamar is approached by newly-returned Death Watch member Dred Priest, who had abused the clones on Kamino to an extreme degree. Mij, who is growing ever more fond of Uthan, kills Priest and dumps his body. Mij is not the only one becoming fond of Uthan. Another new arrival considers her like an older sister: Jedi Tallisbeth Enwandung-Esterhazy (AKA “Scout”), who arrived earlier with the long-lived Kaminoan Jedi Kina Ha. Ny brought them in part because Kal believes that Kina Ha’s genetics might help save the clones from their aging problem, but they slowly become part of the broader Kyrimorut lifestyle. If the idea of Kal being fine with a Kaminoan and Jedi under his roof was a shock, the next major new arrivals are even more surprising. When our “heroes” undertake a mission to extract clonetrooper Maze ends in the extraction of both Maze and the presumed-dead (at Maze’s hand) Jedi Master Arligan Zey, Kal nearly blows his top. Zey, though, is now a broken man, and his former Master-Padawan relationship with Bardan just makes things all the more disorienting. Luckily, the clan finds a new home for the Jedi (if their memories of Kyrimorut’s location can be wiped) with offshoot Jedi Master Djinn Altis (who, by the way, still has Hallena Devis with him). When Darman learns of the deal with Altis, the presence of Jedi at Kyrimorut, and the presumed (yet probably imaginary) danger those pose to Kad, he decides to make it his mission to wipe out any Jedi who could be a threat to his son. Darman, at least for now, is totally on board with Roly Melusar and the 501st’s mission to take down Force-sensitives. The emotional rollercoaster continues for Darman . . . (Exact date of the start of this story: 16:6)"

*NOTE: The events in this story begin 3 weeks after Revenge of the Sith.

- Just a few weeks after the end of the Clone Wars, Imperial military hero and Academy Headmaster Gentis visits Imperial Center (Coruscant) for a military council. While between meetings, he comes upon the Imperial Crematorium, where the bodies of countless dead Imperial officers and troopers are reduced to ash. He sees this as the consequence of Palpatine being in power and begins making plans to use his own Academy classes to develop a coup to bring down Palpatine before he can lead to the deaths of countless more military personnel.
  (conjecture based on Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison)
- As the Clone Wars end, no more Corellian “Jedi Credits” are produced.
  (conjecture based on Power of the Jedi Sourcebook)
- With the ascension of Palpatine to Emperor, the woman who will one day become High Inquisitor Hydra sees her calling in serving him. She sets out on a months-long quest to find her way into the Imperial ranks, where she will eventually gain Darth Vader’s attention as an Inquisitor and spy for him on others.
  (conjecture based on Reckoning)
- As the Clone Wars end, the failing Rebaxan Columni, having filed for bankruptcy, offers the Empire its entire run of MSE-6 “mouse” droids to the Empire at a “fire-sale” price.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- For harboring a Jedi, Darth Vader destroys a colony on Talasea.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Squadron)
- Ishshaddik dies on a run to Nar Hekka.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- In the wake of the Battle of Coruscant, Nas Ghent, an ace Separatist pilot, vanishes from sight.
  (conjecture based on Walking the Path That’s Given)
- In the wake of the Battle of Coruscant, Kaminoan Prime Minister Lama Su recognizes that Palpatine has created a second, independent clone army. So as to protect Kamino, the cloners begin preparing their combat-trained Jango Fett clones to protect Kamino itself from the Empire if necessary.

(conjecture based on Order 66)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Emperor Palpatine forms the Imperial Inquisitors to help seek out and destroy the last vestiges of the Jedi Order.
  (conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, the trend of Force-users begins shifting toward so-called “Force warriors,” individuals with no formal Jedi training, and away from formally trained Jedi.
  (conjecture based on Power of the Jedi Sourcebook)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, surviving members of the Jedi Service Corps are imprisoned on Byss by Palpatine until converted to the Dark Side.
  (conjecture based on The Jedi Path)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, it is believed that no more Jedi healers have escaped death.
  (conjecture based on Power of the Jedi Sourcebook)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, very few training lightsabers remain in existence.
  (conjecture based on Power of the Jedi Sourcebook)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, very few Antarian Rangers remain, having been hunted down in a similar fashion to the Jedi. Those that remain disband and go into seclusion to escape death.
  (conjecture based on Hero’s Guide)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, the Empire outfits some troops who are not Force-attuned with a special type of Force Detector device, a pair of paddles, which utilize thaissen crystals from Mimban to detect Force-attunement in individuals. This allows more than just Force-sensitive Inquisitors to seek out and destroy the last vestiges of the Jedi.
  (conjecture based on Power of the Jedi Sourcebook)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, the copy of the Jedi textbook known as The Jedi Path that was once owned by Yoda, Thame Cerulian, Dooku, Qui-Gon Jinn, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Anakin Skywalker, and Ahsoka Tano is claimed by Darth Sidious (Palpatine) as a spoil of war. While the book itself is not unique, Palpatine keeps and studies it due to its unique lineage that runs through to include his own new Sith apprentice, Darth Vader, and Anakin Skywalker’s former Jedi Master and Padawan.
  (conjecture based on The Jedi Path and comments by Dan Wallace on his blog)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Jedi survivor K'Kruhk takes a new Padawan and heads for a place of refuge known as the “Hidden Temple.”
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Chronology)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Jedi survivor A'Sharad Hett returns to live among the Tusken Raiders of Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Chronology, The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi, and Claws of the Dragon)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Jedi survivor Jeisel becomes a fugitive, pursued by bounty hunters and agents of Darth Vader.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Chronology)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Baran Do Sage Master Tokra Hazz worries that the Baran Do Sages may be wiped out. He orders some of the Sages into hiding until deciding to create a massive underground facility to keep a cell of Baran Do Sages (believed dead to those on the surface) safe from any future purges.
  (conjecture based on Outcast)

- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Jedi Knight Hylon and his Padawan, Dendro, join with the Ovoni rebels of Otavon XII.
  (conjecture based on The Hidden Blade)

- Lord Torbin is appointed as the first Grand Inquisitor.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)

- As TIE fighter and early X-wing designs become more popular, the Byblos G-1A starfighter series declines in popularity.
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

(conjecture based on Harbingers of Doom)

- With the successful operation to save Darth Vader, Emperor Palpatine orders hundreds of thousands of DD-13 surgical droids for Imperial garrisons.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- Owen and Beru Lars begin telling their neighbors that the child they are raising is Luke Skywalker, not hiding his birth name. They do say, however, that the “Skywalker” is a reference to Owen’s beloved, deceased stepmother, Shmi Skywalker, rather than putting the focus on him being the son of Anakin Skywalker.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Chronology)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the remains of several octuptarra “virus droids” wind up in the depths of Coruscant, where a mutated version of the virus they carry causes Sashay and other avian aliens to have an unfortunate outbreak of molting. Many of the surviving octuptarra droids end up on Uba IV.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, C-3PX becomes Imperial property. The droid will eventually be assigned to Admiral Terrinald Screed on Roon.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, most of the deactivated B1 battledroids from the Separatist droid army are taken as spoils of war by the Empire.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Ultra Battledroids virtually disappear, but some will end up in the urban-warfare training zone at the Imperial Academy on Carida.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, all remaining annihilator droids are taken in by the Imperial Department of Military Research. Many will find their way to Palpatine’s citadel on Byss.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, tens of thousands of crab droids are seized from a Techno Union factory on Tar Morden. Many will eventually see use in life-fire stormtrooper exercises on Carida.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the Empire seizes all remaining dwarf spider droids, using them against Separatist holdouts and political dissidents that are encouraging the earliest stirrings of rebellion against the Empire.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the Empire puts a ban on cloning technologies, leading species who rely on cloning for perpetuation of their species to turn to smugglers to acquire illegal technologies to continue to develop as species.
  (conjecture based on Fly Casual)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Kinyen surrenders to the Empire. Imperial garrisons are deployed to Kinyen’s offworld quarters.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the Colicoids leave Colla IV and resettle in places like the Tion Cluster. Most of their droids are deactivated, but some find their way into private security companies in the Corporate Sector and onto the black market.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the remaining Pollux assassin droids return to the depths of Kashyyyk, where Pollux Poi died millennia earlier.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the genetically altered Nelvaanians created by the Techno Union are fully integrated back into Nelvaan society. They will continue to pass on their altered genes into future generations, resulting in more burly males, though it would appear that females of future generations are free of the effects of this genetic engineering.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- In the wake of the Jedi Purge, Cerean psychopath Del Korrot begins serving Palpatine in hunting down remaining Jedi. Eventually, though, the nutball will begin killing randomly, justifying those kills as latent Force-sensitive beings, prompting the Emperor’s ire. Palpatine will send Darth Vader, who kills Korrot.
(conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook)
• In the wake of the death of General Grievous, several of his remaining MagnaGuards go their own ways. IG-153 and IG-182 will eventually become bodyguards to Grand Moff For-Atesee. Two others will eventually be captured by IG-71 for the N-K “Necrosis” experiment. IG-179 will become chief lieutenant to the Iron Knight Luxum during the war with the Yuuzhan Vong.
(conjecture based on The Story of General Grievous: Lord of War)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, Cerea officially readopts is isolationist stance for decades to come.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)
• TCW DATE: In the wake of the Clone Wars, Cad Bane’s reputation as a “bad guy” that was mostly due to him frequently going up against the Jedi is somewhat rehabilitated into something more positive, since the Jedi are now seen by the galaxy as traitors to the government.
(conjecture based on Making a Killing)
• Sometime soon after his memory wipe, C-3PO has his “first job,” programming binary load lifters.*
(conjecture based on Star Wars: Episode IV—“A New Hope”)*
*NOTE: I can’t believe I never thought of this. Kudos to Andrew Gilbertson for realizing that this item missing!
• Just after the Clone Wars, Elexia Nis’tar is appointed administrator of Haven, the largest mining city on Iol.*
(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn.
• In the aftermath of the Clone Wars, the Empire enforces a ban on the mining of rubat crystals (which can make lightsabers stronger and more intense) on Phemis. This is being done as a means of having the security (and legal rationale) in place to capture anyone trying to acquire the crystals, such as Jedi who might have survived Order 66.
(conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, Cloud City’s Parliament of Guilds chooses a new Baron Administrator, Ellisa Shallenge. Her goal is to keep the city producing tibanna gas under the cover of being mostly a tourist destination. To handle the technical tasks of administering the city, she needs someone willing to undergo cybernetic modification to connect with the Floating Home computer system of Cloud City. She finds such a person in a Cloud City prison, a young thief named Lobot, who is cybernetically enhanced to run Cloud City. He will remain with the city, even when it later changes hands to a new Baron Administrators, including Dominic Raynor and Lando Calrissian.
(conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)
• In the aftermath of the Clone Wars, Shoola the Hutt takes over Port Tooga in the Listehol System, a former Techno Union space station with ancient alien origins.
(conjecture based on Dead in the Water)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, the Mining Guild of the Empress Teta system (ostensibly the rulers of the system) and its ruler Emperor Alor Keto are not punished for their allegiance with the Separatists when they swear loyalty to the Empire. The Empire makes the Empress Teta a key point in the Imperial Hyperspace Security Net as a checkpoint to control unauthorized access into the Deep Core Security Zone. As such, official records are propagated that use various names for the system: Empress Teta, Koros or Koros Major (a much earlier name), and even Cinnagar (its main city). All of this is meant to help create confusion to help lessen non-essential traffic into the system even further. The system also becomes a major supplier of carbonite to the Empire.
(conjecture based on Nexus of Power)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, the Mining Guild of Mustafar takes over most of the heavy industry that the Techno Union previously controlled on the planet.
(conjecture based on Special Modifications)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, mining operations on Vlemoth Port are nationalized by the Empire. Rather than controlling the planet outright, the Empire sells it off piecemeal to independent merchants. Over time, Vlem Hill will reacquire the planet quietly by buying each piece back from those independent merchants.*

(conjecture based on Friends Like These) *

*NOTE: This is “decades” before the Clone Wars, which I have rounded to 30 years.

- Miralukan Jedi Master Jerec (former Padawan to Jocasta Nu and former Master of Padawan Ameesa Darys), having been on a mission to find rare artifacts in far corners of the galaxy, returns to mainstream Republic space and finds the Jedi Order all but destroyed. He flees to the Unknown regions, but is pursued by Inquisitor Antinnis Tremayne until being captured. Jerec turns to the Dark Side and offers his services to the Emperor, offering also to corrupt a group of Jedi who were on long-range missions beyond the Jedi Purge’s reach. Jerec found them and turned them to the Dark Side, creating the first of his followers, a group which would grow until his eventual defeat on Ruusan. The group of Dark Jedi was charged with seeking out ancient Jedi and Sith artifacts for Palpatine. As for Jerec, he takes Sith tattoos on his jaw, in much the same fashion as Darth Maul had borne such tattoos all over his face over a decade earlier. Jerec begins studying the Dark Side religion of the Prophets of the Dark Side and soon learns of the existence of the Valley of the Dark Side from Lord Cronal (Blackhole).

(conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook, The New Essential Guide to Characters, and The Dark Forces Saga, Part VI: Outcasts and Megalomaniacs Welcome)

- In the wake of Order 66, General Grievous’ remains (and his Soulless One starfighter, once it is found on Nar Shaddaa) are taken to a secret facility on Utapau under Emperor Palpatine’s orders.

(conjecture based on The Story of General Grievous: Lord of War)

- Inquisitor Jerec hunts down the Jedi Shadows (the last remnants of a team of Jedi investigators that were bent on rooting out any signs of the Dark Side). Of the Jedi Shadows, all are killed except for Maw, a vain Boltrunian Jedi Knight that had never taken a Padawan, nor earned the rank of Jedi Master, due to his own selfishness. Rather than kill Maw, Jerec turns Maw to the Dark Side, just as Antinnis Tremayne had turned Jerec. Maw begins serving Jerec.

(conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part IV: Of the Crudest Matter)

- The Ubiqtorate and the Imperial Navy form the Special Navy Forces.

(conjecture based on Supernova via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Dannen Lifehold stows away aboard Captain Twolz’s smuggling freighter. When he is discovered, he is allowed to work for passage aboard the ship and ends up becoming “the son Twolz never had,” staying with Twolz for the next five years*

(conjecture based on Breaking Free)*

*NOTE: This entry assumes that Dannen Lifehold and Krell worked together on Alderaan for 3 years. The actual Breaking Free biography of Dannen Lifehold says “a few years.”

- Taj Junak, a Jedi Knight on Mrllist, is killed by Imperial forces after peacefully surrendering himself in return for the safety of the Mrllist Academy.

(conjecture based on Star Wars: X-wing Rogue Squadron--“The Phantom Affair”)

- Planetary Safaris discovers Barab I and hides the sentience of the indigenous Barabels from the authorities to make use of the planet as a hunting ground.*

(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races)*

*NOTE: This event may no longer fit here chronologically. An RPG article entitled Making a Full Recovery, written by Craig R. Carey, Jason Fry, and Dan Wallace, claims that the planet was “discovered” in 20 BBY, presumably by Planetary Safaris (excluding the original Jedi contact centuries earlier). However, Ki-Adi-Mundi is sent there in Wild Space during the year 22 BBY. The original Galaxy Guide comments put this sometime early in the Imperial era, while that same article by Carey, Fry and Wallace claims that the planet was incorporated into the Empire six years after its “discovery.” Either way, sometime between 23 and 18 BBY, this event happens. Beyond that, I guess we can’t be too specific at this point.

- Palpatine orders the study of the nature of life by Borborygmus Gog and Mammon Hoole. Unbeknownst to Hoole, Gog and Palpatine are intending to destroy the population of Kiva with the subject of the study. The genocide is carried out and the Kivan populace is no more. Hoole goes into self-imposed exile.

(conjecture based on Army of Terror and The Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- Early in his reign as Emperor, Palpatine instructs the Imperial Security Bureau and Inquisitors to conscript assassins from the Defel and Nightsisters of Dathomir.

(conjecture based on Book of Sith)

- Sometime during Palpatine’s first year as Emperor, he compiles the Book of Sith by combining his own writings with works by Sorzus Syn, Darth Malgus, Darth Bane, Mother Talzin, and Darth Plagueis. The section by Sorzus Syn is material found in the Jedi Archives after the attack on the Jedi Temple, and the material includes notes by Yoda and Mace Windu. (Sorzus Syn’s own Sith Holocron, however, has been in Sith hands since the time of Darth Bane. A replica of her Sith Holocron, though, was allowed to be captured by the Jedi Order to act as a spying device with a shrouding spell over it, once placed in the Jedi Archives.) The journal of Darth Malgus was acquired by Palpatine “decades ago” from an antiques dealer. The writings of Darth Bane and Darth Plagueis are from the Sith Archives that came into Palpatine’s control upon the death of Darth Plagueis. The work by Mother Talzin (entitled Wild Power) is acquired by one of Palpatine’s Inquisitors, who had gone to Dathomir in an attempt to capture Force-sensitive slaves. Sidious will return to the volume in future years, making notes in the text, before having it stored away within a secret chamber in MountTantiss on Wayland. He passes some of the material from Darth Malgus’ journal to Darth Vader in hopes that Malgus’ lessons as a favored soldier for the Sith Emperor of millennia ago might help Vader become a better soldier for Palpatine as Emperor. Palpatine himself has begun writing a portion that he will add to the end of the book, the basis for his later works The Book of Anger, The Weakness of Inferiors, and The Manipulation of Life (later referred to as The Creation of Monsters).

(conjecture based on Book of Sith)

- Darth Vader offers aid to the Noghri of Honoghr in return for their servitude. He then orders his minions to further contaminate the world’s ecosystem in order to keep them in practical debt to the Empire.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- Republic News is renamed Imperial HoloVision.

(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 9: Fragments from the Rim)

- Emperor Palpatine begins to cut off exploration into new territories to cement his grip on the citizens of the Empire.

(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 8: Scouts)

- The Museum of the Galactic Republic (on Centares, not the one on Coruscant) is closed by Palpatine.

(conjecture based on Vader’s Quest)

- Around this time, Thakba Besadili Diori purchases six battle droids on the black market: 2D4, 2D5, 3D1, 3D4, 3D7, and 9B2. He sets them to work at the Oridelve Incorporated mining operation on Gavos.*

(conjecture based on Debts to Pay)*

*NOTE: This is 20 years before Debts to Pay and assumes that Debts to Pay is about a year or so after ANH.

- An Imperial Star Destroyer under Captain Vasque Mirlan crashes on the relatively primitive planet Weik. The Star Destroyer is stuck in the heart of the Ordan Spine Mountains with only its command tower sticking out prominently up above the landscape. Imperials emerge and try to take over the superstitious people of Weik, but Vossport’s armies muster at Karnik Valley to strike back. They are being decimated when a quartet of Jedi arrive and defeat the Imperials, killing Mirlan. With nowhere else to go safely after Order 66, the Jedi ask that their only reward be to take control of the “tower.” The crashed Star Destroyer becomes known as the Adamite Tower, and the Jedi train others in using the Force to eventually become the Paladins of the Adamite Tower, Force-users protecting the people of Weik.*

(conjecture based on Nexus of Power)*

*NOTE: We have no specifics on when this happens, but it is “in decades past” as of the present of Nexus of Power (just after ANH), yet deals with Imperials, so it must be pretty early in this era.

- Trooper HOB-147 of the Light Brigade floats in space in his damaged ARC-170. Rather than dying, though, he is found by a spacer named Hurd Coyle. Coyle brings the trooper aboard and nurses him back to health, but he also tells the trooper about Order 66 and the Jedi now being enemies of the clonetroopers . . . just before the trooper breaks out of his room and finds that Coyle is transporting a ship full of Jedi Younglings. Having more heart than one might expect, the clone steps up when they are boarded by troopers, vouching for Coyle and his ship. He leaves with the troopers to return to service, but allows the Jedi aboard to survive, hiding their secret from the other troopers.

(Salvaged)

- A starship illegally fleeing the core systems is ordered disabled by Darth Vader. He and his troops then board the vessel and begin taking control. One of the passengers is a Jedi. She realizes that escape in a pod is equivalent to surrender and so must fight off the boarders, repair the ship and attempt to flee again.*

(Vader’s Pursuit)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. It takes place sometime during the Jedi Purge and, thus, sometime shortly after ROTJ.

- On Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi exists in a state of grief. He grieves for Anakin Skywalker, whom he believes dead, and he laments that he failed his former Padawan to the point that Anakin’s last words to him were of hatred. He is continuing his mission to look after Luke Skywalker, going to visit the Lars moisture farm daily to keep an eye on him. He is also awaiting contact from Qui-Gon Jinn in the Force, but his former Master has not yet spoken to him. One day, he happens to arrive at the Lars farm to see Owen and Beru Lars outside with baby Luke, discovering that numerous water vaporators that they need to survive have been stolen by Tusken Raiders. While Beru argues that it is too dangerous to go after them, Owen intends to gather other neighbors and go after the Tusksens, despite what the Tusken’s did to Shmi Skywalker and Cliegg Lars (who survived such an attack, but lost a leg). Knowing that Luke will need both Owen and Beru to protect him, Obi-Wan takes it upon himself to track down the Tusken. He follows in the footsteps of Anakin, in a sense, in that he tracks down the Tusken through the desert, eventually finding their current camp. Knowing what the Tusken did to Anakin’s mother, but not knowing what Anakin did to them after she died, Obi-Wan wells up with anger and a sense that if he couldn’t save Anakin, he could certainly serve his old friend by taking revenge upon the Tusken for what was done to Shmi, essentially following the exact footsteps that Anakin took in slaughtering the Tusken he’d encountered. Qui-Gon’s teachings float up in Obi-Wan’s memory, though, causing him to turn away from that anger. Instead, he rues their traditional fighting ability by slicing off their gear, leaving them exposed. He then leaves, returning the vaporators to the Lars farm the next morning. While Owen is annoyed that Obi-Wan, whom he knows as “Ben,” interfered in their family business, he does thank the Jedi. And thus, Obi-Wan’s patient watch continues . . . *

(The Last One Standing)*

*NOTE: This story says that Obi-Wan has not talked with any other person in “months,” but that cannot be the case, as he does not know that Anakin/Vader has survived, which he learns in Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader, which is very closely tied to events in Path to Nowhere and Purge. It is logically impossible for Obi-Wan to have not spoken with anyone in “months” under these circumstances.

- Just weeks after the creation of the Empire, the Emperor orders Kuat Drive Yards to begin design work on what will come to be known as a Super-class Star Destroyer. It is to be designed by Lira Wessex as part of Project Sarlacc, beginning on Kuat, then later on Coruscant and Byss. The prototype will be destroyed before leaving drydock years later, but the success of Wessex’s designs will prompt the Empire to order the creation of four initial vessels: Darth Vader’s Executor at Scarl; the Reaper at Kuat; the Aggressor at Kuat; and the Brawl at Scarl.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Under the rule of the Old Republic, slavery was abhorred and outlawed galaxy – wide, although it did exist and was ignored in the fringe of the outer rim territories. With the rise of the Empire, and the Emperor’s anti - alien stance, the laws upholding the rights of sentient beings slackened. With the passing of Imperial Decree A-SL-4557.607.232, which legalized procurement of slaves under certain conditions, slaving guilds rose to prominence. The once secret Guild of Zygerrian Slavers went public, and prospered under the Empire’s rule. Other slaving groups competing with the Zygerrians are the Thalassians and the Karazaks. Members of the guild receive a “patch” of space in which to operate in return for their membership fees. The guild guarantees that only two or three other slaver territories would overlap. The guild structure streamlined the bureaucratic process allowing the Zygerrians to obtain Slaver Permits. The Twi’leks of Ryloth tended to use the business - like Zygerrian guild
The Zygerrians organize themselves into clans. One of the most influential clans is the Pr'ollerg, leaders of the Zygerrian Slaver Syndicate. The Zygerrian Slaver Syndicate is a loose confederation of pro-slaving bounty hunters acting as a bounty hunting guild. Their activities often resemble outlaw banditry. Live acquisitions brought back to the Syndicate are often sold into slavery. The Syndicate is ruled by the ruthless Pr'ollerg clan, dictating who hunts what acquisitions where. Their estimated membership of 2,000 comprises mostly younger hunters who work for lesser pay. They specialize in bounties under 5,000 credits. Most others in the business regard the Zygerrian Slaver Syndicate as a bunch of thugs, hoodlums, and murderers. The Syndicate operates in the Outer Rim Territories, out of the world Kazarak. Membership requires a private initiation fee (rumored to be between 2,000 - 5,000 credits). The fee is sometimes waived for those with relatives in the organization.*

(conjecture based off of various Official sources, borrowed with thanks, from Christopher McElroy's TimeTales)*

NOTE: This is one of the most impressive investigative efforts I've yet seen in Star Wars timeline-generation. Kudos to Chris for this great explanation of the revival of the slave trade under the Empire.

- The Imperial Star Destroyer (originally classified as the Imperator-class Star Destroyer, technically) begins production to replace the Venator- and Victory-class models. The first off the line is the Executrix, followed by the Exactor.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- Shortly after Darth Vader builds his new lightsaber, but before he heads for Murkhana, Vader is given command of the second Imperator-class (or "Imperial") Star Destroyer to be launched, known as the Exactor.
  (conjecture based on Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)

- Early in the Imperial era, Jareth Sartoris, age 16, kills his abusive father, then lies about his age to sign up for Imperial service, never looking back.*
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)*

  NOTE: This one is tricky. Sartoris served the Empire for "decades," according to Death Troopers (1 BBY), but the Empire hadn't been around for "decades" by that point. I have thus pushed the event as far back as possible to still have it be the "Empire" that he joined, approximately 18 years prior to the comment being made in Death Troopers.

- Shortly after the founding of the Empire, the planet Ord Radama comes under Imperial rule as a staging point for further pacification of the Outer Rim. The new Imperial Governor renames the Mala Opera House the "Imperial Opera House" and begins allowing only Imperial-sanctioned productions, which means a marked decrease in non-human performances, much to the annoyance of the local Devlikk population.
  (conjecture based on Onslaught at Arda I)

- In the chaos of the transition between the Republic and the Empire, Ellor Orgraal, a low-level bureaucrat, swaps his lusterless credentials for those of a deceased bureaucrat, giving himself a stellar record that he is able to use to increase in stature over the next two decades, eventually leading him to be the Imperial Governor of Ord Radama, based in Livien Magnus.
  (conjecture based on Onslaught at Arda I)

- In the early days of the Empire, the Empire contracts with BlasTech to produce the SE-14C blaster pistol, a fully-automatic version of the SR Combat Pistol used by Separatist battledroids during the Clone Wars.
  (conjecture based on Forged in Battle)

- Shortly after the end of the Clone Wars, Darth Vader visits Serenno, holding the leaders of the Great Houses responsible for backing Dooku in the war. He calls together the heads of those houses and their immediate heirs, requiring the heirs to kill their fathers to take over leadership of the houses. (Rodas Borgin is the first to kill his own father.) This event becomes known as the Cleansing of Serenno. Adan Dooku, meanwhile, is able to retain the Dooku title and house leadership, since his family had left for Alderaan when Adan’s uncle, the Sith Lord Dooku had retaken the Count Dooku title. He has returned to Serenno, and Vader forces the new heads of the Great Houses to swear fealty to the newly-minted Count Adan Dooku.
  (conjecture based on Hard Targets)

- One month after the birth of the Empire (shortly before being Darth Vader is sent to Murkhana), Jedi Master Tsui Choi, who had escaped Order 66, is hunted down by Imperial... stormtroopers on Eriadu. He takes out all four of the troopers tracking him before being approached by another escaped Jedi, Bultar Swan. Choi is taking a very passive view on the fall of the Jedi, believing that it might be the will of the Force. Bultar, meanwhile, is in contact with other former Jedi who oppose the Emperor, who intend to somehow take the fight to the Empire. She invites Choi to attend a meeting on Kessel with her, even if only to listen to what they have to say. On Coruscant, Darth Vader kills Jedi prisoner Dama Montalvo during an interrogation. Vader is fixating on the need to destroy the remaining Jedi, especially his former master, Obi-Wan Kenobi. Palpatine tells him to let it go for now, but he doesn’t listen. When he is informed of the Jedi meeting on Kessel and that Obi-Wan is rumored to be attending, he sets out to confront the Jedi. Shortly thereafter, the meeting takes place on Kessel. It is being held by a Jedi named Shadday, but several are in attendance, including: Roblio Darté; Sia-Lan Wezz; Ma’Kis Shaaalas; Koffi Arana; Jastus Farr; and, of course, the duo of Choi and Bultar Swan. The Jedi debate whether taking the fight to the Empire is an act of the Dark Side and whether the Dark Side perhaps is the correct path after all, given how the Sith were able to use it to take over the Republic. It becomes a moot point, though, as Shadday has used a false rumor that Obi-Wan would be there as an “invitation” to another guest . . . Darth Vader. She intends to lure Vader to their meeting, then have the eight combined Jedi assassinate the Sith Lord. When Vader arrives, things don’t exactly go as she’d planned. Sia-Lan Wezz charges Vader, only to be stabbed through the chest and have her lightsaber-wielding hand severed. Koffi is Force-pushed out of the way, even as Vader delivers a killing slash to Ma’Kis. Jastus is able to get in a slash at Vader’s right side, forcing him to leap away briefly. He is then confronted by Shadday, who wields a cortosis blade, rather than a lightsaber. Contact with the blade causes Vader’s lightsaber to be useless for a short time, but he simply uses the Force to pull Shadday to him and snaps her neck. Now armed with Shadday’s cortosis sword, Vader leaps down at the other Jedi, shorting out the sabers of Roblio, Jastus, and Koffi before Choi delivers a slash that cuts off Vader’s right lower arm, taking the cortosis blade with it. Bultar then manages a slash to Vader’s left leg. Vader claims to surrender, but Koffi refuses to believe it. When Bultar tries to make him back off, Koffi activates her lightsaber, killing her. Koffi then leaps at Vader, sabers raised, but Vader uses the Force to lift up his severed hand, still gripping the cortosis blade, and sends it through the air, plunging the blade into Koffi’s chest. Vader then claims Bultar’s saber from the dead Koffi, using it to fend off flying debris, sent his way by the combined efforts of Jastus, Choi and Roblio. Vader is pounded over and over again, dropping him to his knees, but the timely arrival of his stormtroopers puts the Jedi on the defensive. The troopers manage to kill Justus and Roblio with blasterfire, while Choi leaps through the air in an attempt to land next to the troopers, lightsaber drawn. Unfortunately, Vader uses the Force to catch him in the air, freezing him in mid-leap. Choi isn’t out of it, yet, though. He throws his lightsaber, delivering a cut to Vader’s mask that exposes his right eye. In doing so, though, he removes his only means of defense, and the troopers blast him. In the wake of the slaughter of the eight Jedi, Vader returns to Coruscant. The damage to his armor is repaired and his severed arm, the arm that he’d first had replaced after the Battle of Geonosis and which he then augmented after the mission to Nelvaan, is reattached, retaining that small element of his days as Anakin Skywalker. Palpatine uses Vader’s disobedient act of going to Kessel to spread rumors that Vader actually tracked down the Jedi himself and killed fifty of them, rather than just eight. Vader is again told to put aside his life as Anakin and his fixation on Obi-Wan. The time for growing their Empire is at hand. (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal Clone Wars Timeline: 16:6)*

(Purge)*

*NOTE: The events in this story take place approximately one month (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith.

- The purging of Imperial military officers with possible anti-Imperial sentiments is confirmed by Admiral Mulleen.
  (conjecture based on The Path to Nowhere)
- Shortly after the Clone Wars, Jedi Master Dorin Se’ol arrives on the planet Volik along with his wife and students to rebuild the abandoned colony and chase off the smugglers and pirates. Eventually (though there is no indication of when), Darth Vader learns of Se’ol’s Jedi
On Tatooine, a Tusken Raider group led by A’Yark (AKA “Plug-eye” to the locals) attacks the homestead of the Bezzards. The Bezzard patriarch’s father, Lotho Pelhane, is killed, but the rest of the family is saved by a group of settlers led by Orrin Gault (AKA “The Smiling One” to A’Yark), who are using the so-called “Settlers’ Call.” The Settlers’ Call is a sort of protection system. Orrin has set up a loudspeaker (or series of them) with a krayt dragon call to scare off Tusksens from the Pika Oasis area, and he has set up a means of using that warning system to call for other settlers to come help their fellow residents in the case of a Tusken attack. This is all paid for with the so-called Settlers’ Fund, money taken in by Orrin as a sort of public trust, paid into by everyone who is a member and thus protected by the whole in case of a Tusken raid. In celebration of their “victory,” they head to Dannar’s Claim, a local store (the one-stop-shopping place for the area, including its own area for dining and drinking). Dannar’s Claim is owned by Annileen “Annie” Calwell, whose husband, Dannar Calwell, had been killed by Tusksens eight years earlier. Dannar had also been a close business associate and best friend of Orrin, who is now still close with (but not in a relationship with, despite everyone else’s assumptions of hidden feelings between them) Orrin as well. Their families (Orrin’s daughter Veeka Gault and remaining living son Mullen Gault, and Annileen’s two children, Jabe Calwell and Kallie Calwell) are often thought of as very close to one family by the locals. In fact, Orrin’s current business venture is to try to replicate an accidental set of circumstances that caused Dannar’s moisture vaporator (“Old Number One”) to create some of the best-tasting water anyone on Tatooine has ever tasted. It is upon Old Number One, atop Dannar’s Claim, that the actual Call loudspeaker has been attached. The others may be celebrating, but Annileen is angered because she never gave Jabe permission to join Orrin’s posse and put himself into danger. When, upon seeing Orrin and Annileen arguing, Kallie brings up how they should simply get together and stop dancing around it, Annileen scolds her, prompting Kallie to take one of the young dewbacks being raised (and rented out as livestock) at the Claim and race off. When Annileen learns that Kallie is gone, she grabs another dewback and gives chase, knowing that Kallie is heading for territory where sarlaccs have been spotted. The chase nearly ends in disaster when Kallie loses control of her dewback, but Obi-Wan Kenobi (going under the name of “Ben” and having just moved into an abandoned home in the Jundland Wastes nearby) races onto the scene on his eopie (Rooh) and saves her and Annileen (who has been endangered trying to save Kallie). Thus, the Jedi trying to be inconspicuous has put his secret in danger (as he will tend to do for a number of weeks) by having a hard time putting away his “Obi-Wan” persona in favor of the mild-mannered “Ben” he is trying to be. He introduces himself as “Ben” but won’t give his last name. He says he was going to Bestine for vaporator parts, so they tell him about Dannar’s Claim being much closer, then he rids off on Rooh. Unbeknownst to them, they have been seen by A'Yark, who saw the use of the Force by Obi-Wan, but the Tusken instead believes that the Force-user (or “Ena'grosh”, “Airshaper”) is actually Annileen, not Obi-Wan ("Hairy-face"). (A'Yark remembers Sharad Hett, hence knowing how to interpret seeing the Force in use.) A'Yark believes that the settlers should not be allowed an “Airshaper” as an ally, especially with the weak and dwindling nature of the Tusken Raiders in the area. Annileen must die, and they know that Airshapers can die, thanks to the death of Sharad Hett. That night, Obi-Wan again tries to commune with Qui-Gon in the Force, nothing the Oasis nearby and unsure whether he will ever visit there. Three days later, Kallie is already sharing (and embellishing) the story of Ben’s heroism and is trying to figure out who “Ben” might be. Orrin, having feelings for Annileen, tries not to appear to be affected by the Calwell women’s interest in this new stranger. He is then called away to help Wyle Ulbreck (the man who unknowingly saw some of Obi-Wan’s heroics when he still had Luke Skywalker with him back in Anchorhead a while ago) when his speeder gives out on him. Orrin is trying to convince Wyle, with his large plot of land and ample money to join the Settlers’ Call, but he stubbornly refuses to do so, as usual. Meanwhile, a Jawa sandcrawler arrives at the Claim, and Annileen, who needs to be able to make a living to keep open the store, since it is such a major part of keeping the Plaka Oasis alive financially, gives standard orders that no one else is to trade with the Jawas outside her place but her, though she will sell items she might get at low markups to them later if they prefer. Surprisingly, “Ben” emerges with Rooh, having hitched a ride with the Jawas. He needs parts, of course, but Kallie’s stories make him a bit of a sensation. To get him out of the limelight when he appears uncomfortable, Annileen lets everyone trade with the Jawas and takes him aside. They fill an entire bin with items he’d need to survive in his new home. It is going well, until Mullen Gault, Veeka Gault, and Zedd Grotto (whom Obi-Wan has already confronted in Anchorhead, though they have no way to recognize him) arrive and start bad-mouthing Obi-Wan. When Veeka advances on Obi-Wan, Kallie tries to zap her with an electroprod that she uses with the animals, Annileen tries to avoid letting that happen. This and Obi-Wan’s intervention inadvertently leads to the prod zapping Obi-Wan’s metal bin that Mullen has taken. In the ensuing chaos, Obi-Wan grabs the vaporator parts but leaves the bin, quickly plops down some credits, and takes on Rooh. Upon hearing about this while out with Wyle, Orrin orders his children to apologize and clean up. He spots Obi-Wan crossing Gault land to get home and decides to try to bring Ben into the Settlers’ Fund. In the ensuing conversation, Obi-Wan learns about the Call (and the trick that Tusken are afraid of fake krayt dragon calls), the “Symphony” (Orrin’s GX-9 Pretormin vaporators with which he is close to replicating Dannar’s accidental vaporator setup on Old Number One to create “Gault’s Sparkling Seven”), the circumstances of Annileen’s husband’s death (killed by Tusken while helping a stranded speeder driver), and a bit more about the circumstances of what happened to Shmi Lars (Shmi Skywalker, Anakin Skywalker’s mother). Obi-Wan already knew some of the story, thanks to Padmé, but she never shared about Anakin’s slaughter of the Tusken (which Orrin doesn’t know about and thus cannot share either). That night, Obi-Wan meditates again, holding Anakin’s lightsaber, recovered on Mustafar, and wondering whether Anakin might have had more perspective and been able to listen to reason if he had only been allowed to grow a bit older before being tempted by the Dark Side. Seven days later, Orrin borrows money (as usual) from the petty cash at Dannar’s Claim and heads for Mos Eisley in an attempt to become the water provider for the Lucky Despot. While she is gone, she heads out in her old landspeeder to find Ben’s home and deliver the bin of goods he paid for, not realizing that she and the Claim are being watched by A’Yark and the Tusken. She arrives to find Ben dealing with a bantha that is ramming his home, apparently thinking that the home is its mother (because, y’know, with all that hair, banthas can’t see well). Annileen calms and redirects the bantha away. They talk again, and she invites him to visit the Claim in four days, when it will be somewhat quiet due to everyone leaving to go see the Comet Run Podrace in Mos Espa. Unbeknownst to Annileen and Ben, the bantha is found by the old Tusken warrior Gr’Karr, who sees it as an omen. By smell, though, A’Yark realizes it has been in contact with Annileen. Between this and her riding a dewback, A’Yark starts to think that the Airshaper communes with animals in Tusken style, suggesting that the Airshaper might not have to die. Perhaps the Airshaper might join the Tusken in the way that Sharad Hett did. The bantha is not to be ridden, due to its connection to the Airshaper, but it is suggested that the young, newly-minted warrior A’Deen, A’Yark’s own son, should be allowed to claim it. Instead, when the warrior H’Raak questions A’Yark’s authority, A’Yark kills him and gives his bantha to A’Deen. (This is against the Tusken tradition that banthas must die when their riders die, but these Tusken’s must move away from traditions or craft new ones if they are to survive these days.) That night, Obi-Wan again meditates to Qui-Gon (who still isn’t responding), this time about how he cannot seem to find peace, no matter how peaceful or alone the setting seems to be. Four days later, Annileen is looking over a datapad that still includes an application she had intended to send twenty years ago to join a zoological expedition authorized by the University of Alderaan that would have traveled ten planets in two years as part of an exobiology program. (She had been planning to apply around the time her father lost his land and she began working at the Claim, before she fell for Danner.) Having given up on that dream and feeling somewhat trapped by her responsibilities to the Claim, she throws the datapad over the nearest dune, only for Obi-Wan to retrieve it. He has taken her up on her invitation. They talk a bit, and Obi-Wan realizes that this is the anniversary of her husband’s death. The man he had stopped to help when he was killed by Tusken had been someone on the way from that year’s Comet Run. They decide to break Annileen’s tradition of working on this day alone (well, except for the drunk and sleeping Wyle and contented Bohmer who are there as patrons) and instead let Ben cook for her there at the Claim. When a pair of crews from the race that belong to rival Hutts begin a fight, the Comet Run is ends early, sending the reveling (and mostly drinking) fans back to the Claim for more “fun.” Just as they arrive, Annileen is setting out to drive Obi-Wan and Rooh back to his home in her speeder, and a speeder driven by the drunk Veeka with Jabe as passenger crashes into it. Orrin has brought back the Devaronians from the Lucky Despot as well to show them the Claim and woo them, but filey (and Annileen’s anger) is cut short when Bohmer emerges from the building with a knife in his back, a Tusken behind him! The situation erupts quickly as the Tusken attack. With this being the Call’s home base, no one has thought to keep their Call remotes handy to activate the fake krayt howl. In the battle, one of the Devaronians is killed (ending any hope of Orrin making a deal with them), Old Number One is early destroyed (and its precious settings lost) during an attempt by the Tusken to destroy the Call loudspeaker, and the battle inside the store (basically just Wyle against Tusken with a blaster from the store only ends when Obi-Wan enters, takes out the cameras, and takes down the Tusken, leaving the drunken, dazed Wyle to be able to take credit for the victory. A’Yark demands that Annileen leave with the Tusken, but Annileen finally activates the Call, sending all of the Tusken’s (except A’Yark) running for their lives. (Unfortunately, some are heading in the wrong direction, toward the dangerous Hanter’s Gorge.) Fortunately, Bohmer will be able to be cared for by Doc Mell (after Obi-Wan secretly tends to him with the Force). Wyle starts bad-mouthing the Call because it didn’t immediately help (which was a fluke of it being race day and the home base), and the loss of the deal with the Devaronians puts Orrin in a worse place financially. Recognizing himself on the losing end of circumstances, Orrin quickly forms a posse to get retribution by following and attacking the Tusken. When Annileen realizes that Jabe has gone with them (again), she and Obi-Wan race off to make sure he is not killed. Rather than a tense battle, the duo bear witness to a slaughter of Tusken by the settlers, which makes Annileen feel bad, rather than good, which Obi-Wan believes is a good sign. As they watch, a dying Tusken emerges and falls on Obi-Wan, but he is dead by the time he is moved off of him. In hopes of ending the conflict, Obi-Wan takes the dead young Tusken, A’Deen, to the other Tusken, returning their dead. It is during this “transaction” when Annileen realizes that A’Yark is not a man but a woman, A’Deen’s mother. A’Yark nearly attacks them in retribution, but she sees Obi-Wan’s lightsaber in his cloak (unseen by Annileen) and speaks the word “Sharad.” Obi-Wan realizes that this must be A’Yark, formerly K’Yark, the “sister” of K’Sheek, the wife of Sharad Hett and mother of A’Sharad Hett. They depart in a sort of temporary truce. Orrin claims victory for the settlers, even though some, like Zedd, are too injured to remain active in the near future, and Annileen has even more questions about Obi-Wan than she did before. As for A’Yark, she now knows that it is Obi-Wan, not Annileen, who is the Force-user, and she resolves to find something Obi-Wan cares about, so that she can use it as leverage to make Obi-Wan join the Tusken’s as Sharad Hett once did by choice. Annileen takes Ben home, returning to again scold Jabe for joining Orrin’s posse without permission. As for Ben, he meditates again, referring to the “intrepid Annileen” and then to himself jokingly as the “intrepid Kenobi.” Unfortunately, he is meditating out loud, as he usually does, and Kallie has snuck away from the Claim to see her mother and Ben at his home, only to arrive after Annileen has already left. She hears enough to know that he meditates while “talking” to someone, that he holds something while doing so (Anakin’s lightsaber), and that his last name is Kenobi, making him “Ben Kenobi.” Fortunately, “Kenobi” is a pretty common name, even on Tatooine, so his identity is not immediately evident. (It also raises questions that he might be crazy.) The next day, Obi-Wan returns to the Claim to pick up Rooh, only to find the denizens knowing his last name. During his visit, Bojo Boopa and two Gamorreans, working for Jabba the Hutt, arrive to see Orrin. After a brief meeting, they leave, and Orrin lies about them being gangsters wanting protection money, so he can save face. He lets Annileen use his speeder as well, since hers is still with Gloamer to be repaired. Ben slips out again, forgetting the keg of water he came to pick up (which was to replace one he was trying to take with him on the day of the attack that was busted). He again meditates that night, vowing that he will not return to the Claim, since trouble follows him there. Days later, a group of Tuskenst steals a new vaporator from Wyle Ulbreck’s land and brings it to A’Yark, who is unsure how they would ever actually use it, since they do not know how. Wyle complains to Orrin about the stolen vaporator, but he still will not join the Settlers’ Fund. The next day, Orrin visits Annileen, giving her a special birthday surprise. He has arranged or former Claim employee Tar Lup to stand in for Annileen for the next day (even though her birthday is the day after) so that she can go to Mos Eisley with Kallie and Jabe for the day. He also gives her an envelope to open later in the evening when Orrin is around again. Orrin seems to be actively trying to woo her, more so than he has openly before. That night, Obi-Wan meditates again, still trying to contact Qui-Gon with no luck. The next day, Obi-Wan heads for Bestine via the Pika Oasis with Rooh to get a coolant pump, only to run into the Calwells in their LiteVan (used for Claim business usually), who are on the way to Mos Eisley on her birthday trip. The envelope contained instructions to visit Delroix Speeders in Mos Eisley to pick up a JG-8 luxury landspeeder for Annileen, paid for (or, as it turns out later, leased) by Orrin. When they tell Obi-Wan that the owners of the shop he is to visit are actually on Naboo for a week for their son’s wedding and that the best bet to get a coolant pump fixed would be a shop in Mos Eisley, Obi-Wan is drawn into the Calwell’s trip without meaning to be. Unbeknownst to Annileen, Orrin has his own plans in motion this day. While Tar Lup handles the Claim, Orrin secretly makes copies of her financial records there, then he, Mullen, and Veeka head into Mos Eisley themselves. Back in Mos Eisley, the Calwell kids have fun amid an Ithorian wedding celebration in Kerner Plaza, and Annileen lets them stay a bit, while she and Obi-Wan sit at a nearby café. She again presses him for information about himself. When they see stormtroopers (which Obi-Wan pretends not to recognize because they aren’t quite in clone armor), he pulls his hood up to hide even more. Meanwhile, the Gaults visit the Aargau Investment Trust office in Mos Eisley, which will not help him financially, but do confirm the circumstances under which the bank could help him out. The Calwells (and Ben) then pick up the new landspeeder, and when they notice Owen and Beru with Luke nearby, Obi-Wan uses the Force to cause the landspeeder to rocket forward, accidentally leaving Kallie behind for a moment. When Jabe stop the vehicle, they notice Orrin (without the kids) being frisked before entering a building (Jabba’s local business office and townhouse). While Annileen and Jabe go back for Kallie, Ben investigates. Inside, Orrin meets with Mosep Bineed (who often stands in both for and as Jabba in his business dealings), Boopa, and the Gamorreans. As it turns out, Orrin borrowed money from a bank for the Pretormins and the plan to harvest and sell great water, but when that never came to be, he kept borrowing until he borrowed from an individual working for Jabba. Now, he is in debt both to the bank and to Jabba, but his payments have been a little short to Jabba’s goons lately. (He has even been using Settlers’ Fund money to deal with the situation, and it is not enough.) With the Empire now having replaced the Republic, the Hutt’s are a bit wary and starting to hoard their cash, so they are calling in the debt. Orrin will have one day to pay double a single payment amount, with only two weeks to repay the entire amount. Because he has been off on payments already, though, they intend to subject him to a nerve disruptor briefly. Obi-Wan breaks in and stops this from happening, saving Orrin without being seen. This leaves a dead Gamorrean on top of Mosep, but even after Orrin removes the corpse to help Mosep, the deadline still stands. Orrin is now desperate. (He has also left his comlink in the building, so when Annileen tries to contact him, she gets a Gamorrean instead.) Outside, Jabe finds Mullen and Veeka as Orrin emerges, claiming that he had been chasing a lead on someone to sell water to, and they turned out to be a bad choice, so he is leaving a bit rouged up. Ben returns, pretending to have found nothing and to be arriving after all is already over. Orrin, out of nowhere, then proposes to Annileen! He claims the two of them have been putting off such a thing, though it is more him interested in her than anything mutual. She asks for time to think it over, then the Gaults return to their home with Jabe (who supposedly is just going to visit and eat dinner, but Orrin has a plan and needs Jabe to replace Zedd, who is laid up from his injuries from the Tusken attack and now hooked on Wookiee painkillers that he took by accident), Kallie takes the LiteVan back to take care of the animals at the Claim, and Annileen takes Ben and Rooh back to his home. She asks Ben what he thinks about her marrying Orrin, and he continues to keep her at arm’s length. She realizes that the horrible ting had something to do with someone, which he mentioned to her in an earlier conversation, happened when he was there and thus happened to him too, in a sense. Ben admits to even having been the cause. Even though she is interested in Ben, and he cares for her in his own way, he cannot be with her, and he cannot be close to anyone anymore. After she leaves, he again meditates, this time realizing that he has been tested with regard to relationships before (Siri Tachi, Satine, et al), but while the Jedi teach their members to be able to live without romantic love, they never prepare a Jedi for what it would be like to live without any sense of community, which is what Obi-Wan is missing now that the Jedi Order basically no longer exists. He starts to piece things together that he saw during the Tusken raid and posse’s retribution and realizes something else that Orrin has been up to. That very evening, Orrin, Mullen, Veeka, and now Jabe (pulled into this to replace Zedd) dress up in disguise as Tuskens (using gear taken from dead Tuskens) and attack the home of Wyle and Magda Ulbreck, intending to force them to join the Settlers’ Fund by putting them into so much danger that they could not help but join. Obi-Wan arrives to drive them away, which works, after a fashion. Orrin, Veeka, and Mullen escape, but Obi-Wan sees Orrin unmasked (or at least Orrin believes he does). When real Tusken begin to attack, the Gaults leave Jabe behind . . . Orrin returns to the Claim to see Annileen, to whom he confesses his financial situation. He also reveals that he will be killed if he cannot pay Jabba, but if he and Annileen get married, he could use her saved money and the income from the Claim (and the Claim as collateral) to have enough money to pay off Jabba and pull himself out of his financial mess. He reveals that he knows about her finances from sneaking a copy of her records. Rather than wanting to help, Annileen feels betrayed (rightly so), and pushes him away. He then suggests that he could marry Kallie instead and solve part of the problem that way, and she hits him. Kallie arrives, catching a bit of this, and is also angry, but he stops them in their tracks by telling them that Jabe is dead. Meanwhile, Obi-Wan and A’Yark meet in the aftermath of the Ulbreck attack. A’Yark confirms that the leader of the false attack was Orrin. A’Yark also has Jabe and wants to kill him, but Obi-Wan make a deal to save Jabe’s life. He has a plan that can bring Orrin to justice (by Tusken or settler ways), and he will do so . . . or he will join the Tusken if he fails. He must leave Rooh and Rooh’s newborn (yes, Rooh turned out to be pregnant and had a child a few days earlier) with the Tuskens briefly as he sets up the plan. Jabe is healed a bit by Obi-Wan, then sent back to the Claim, where he delivers a message to Orrin from Ben before the Orrin leaves: “Turn back now.” (The fact that Ben saved Jabe also means that Ben is alive, having recognized Orrin, so Ben must be killed to be kept silent.) Jabe then tells Annileen (who is amazed and grateful to see him alive) the truth about their activities at the Ulbrecks’ farm. Jabe has now seen the truth of the Gaults’ nature. That night, Obi-Wan breaks into Orrin’s home while Orrin is gone and gathers information on his activities and financial situation. He also realizes, based on information from A’Yark, that this was not Orrin’s first fake raid. In fact, he has made several, each time then carrying out a “reprisal” attack on real Tusken, ever since the deaths of many Tusken three years earlier (which he doesn’t know yet was was at Anakin’s hands) caused them to pull back, leaving the settlers feeling no need to pay for the Call. In fact, he had attacked the Bezzards once, because Lotho would not join the Call. Even after he did, though, he was so weak that when a real attack came, Lotho was killed. He visits Annileen, telling her all of this and offering her a chance to help him stop Orrin’s activities, but it will mean that the Calwells’ life at the Claim will end, so she must trust him and follow his instructions to the letter. Later that night, Obi-Wan meditates. He tells the unresponsive Qui-Gon that he is putting an end to things, but he cannot be involved like this with locals anymore. His struggle is the question of how his Ben persona can live if the true Obi-Wan beneath will not allow it. He must rectify the current situation, then retreat into himself and his home, for better or worse. The next morning, Orrin uses the Settlers’ Call to bring everyone together into a sort of army. He riles them up to have them get “retribution” for the attack at Wyle’s home. (Wyle, in fact, has joined the Settlers’ Call after the attack.) He talks about Ben as a Tusken ally and “traitor” to the people of Tatooine, marking him as another enemy to be killed, even though Wyle thinks he saw Ben helping protect his home, not attack it. For her part, Annileen speaks with Gloamer and arranges for him and Lar Tup to buy Dannar’s Claim, effective the next day. She hears the last of Orrin’s speech as they set out to go after the Tusksens and Ben. Annileen then calls Orrin’s lost comlink, which is still in the hands of Jabba’s goons, and tips them off about Orrin heading out with an “army.” Orrin’s army spots Ben and follows him into Tusken territory. Ben disappears, then uses a fake krayt call of his own to send a bantha stampede, arranged by A’Yark, into the settlers’ landspeeders. Ben then sends the swoop he was riding (the one Jabe had at the Ulbrecks’ the night before) down to Orrin, bearing a package made of the clothing and weapons that Orrin had taken from the Tusksens, which Obi-Wan took from Orrin’s home hours earlier. He uses his own “loudhailer” to accuse Orrin of his misdeeds for all to hear, but Orrin claims to be fine financially with all the money he would ever need. Unfortunately for him, this is overheard by the newly-arrived Mosep, who has brought more of Jabba’s goons and Annileen. Mosep believes that someone owing the Hutts and desperate might try to run or to fight back, and running off into unsettled territory with his own army is certainly making Orrin look like he is running out on his debt. Mosep rescinds the last five hours of Orrin’s time to pay and orders him to pay now. While watching this, Ben admits to A’Yark that he had not expected Jabba’s people to be there, but he will still see justice done. A’Yark mentions the Hutts as part of the past that helped to weaken the Tusksens, then again mentions the attack three years ago, the details of which finally make Obi-Wan believe that Anakin was likely behind it. Nearby, the fact that Orrin is working with the Hutts, combined with statements from Annileen, make the settlers turn on Orrin. He tries to escape in his speeder, but one of Mosep’s goons blows it up with a cannon. With no love for the Hutts and a desire to make Orrin see the settlers’ own form of justice for his actions, Wyle then shoots the cannon and the goon handling it (Jorrk), instigating a firefight between the settlers and Jabba’s minions. Orrin grabs Annileen as a hostage, then he, Veeka, and Mullen steal the luxury landspeeder he leased for her and race toward where Obi-Wan waits with the Tusksens, pushing the speeder to its limits. As they near, A’Yark hurries the evacuation of young Tusksens from the area, and Obi-Wan laments that Orrin just will not heed his warnings to turn back from the path he is following. Once clear of the fray, Orrin stops near a “forest of stones” (rock pillars) and gets out to confront Obi-Wan, simply firing in the general direction of where he thinks Obi-Wan might be, even though Obi-Wan’s voice is coming from different directions. Veeka and Mullen remain with Annileen and are ready to shoot her, despite their father’s instructions not to do so, since she is still valuable to them. Obi-Wan uses the Force to cause rocks to begin tumbling down, injuring and driving back Orrin. A’Yark attacks Mullen and Veeka, injuring Veeka and sending her fleeing but wounding Mullen gravely before bludgeoning him to death. Even as Ben confronts Orrin to urge him to turn himself in or otherwise give up, though, another krayt call is heard – a real one. The rocks falling and fake call earlier has awakened and drawn a real krayt dragon! Annileen helps A’Yark get the young Tusksens to safety, while Obi-Wan draws his lightsaber and is forced to fight and kill the krayt to protect everyone else, revealing his secret to Orrin (only). Orrin taunts Ben that he knows who Ben is now – a Jedi – and he will turn him over to the Empire. Ben could kill him but does not, sensing that Orrin has little time to live anyway. Orrin runs back to the speeder and, shocked by seeing Mullen’s body and no Veeka in sight, slams it into drive on its last legs. It surges forward, but A’Yark stands it its path. The Tusken throws her gaderffii stick into the windshield, making it impossible for Orrin to see his path. The speeder slams into A’Yark, who is still holding onto the hood when the entire speeder goes over a cliff edge. The speeder and Orrin tumble down, and Orrin is presumed dead by Obi-Wan and Annileen, but A’Yark survives by grabbing the cliff edge and getting help from the duo. Annileen has a million questions, but Obi-Wan simply reminds her to meet him at his home that night after she has all of her affairs in order. As Obi-Wan races off to his home, Annileen exits the immediate area to find a makeshift celebration in process: the settlers have forced Mosep and Jabba’s other goons to retreat. Veeka is being tended to by Doc Mell. Annileen returns to the Claim and her children. By that afternoon, Obi-Wan’s comments about the Calwells’ life being over here are coming true. As everyone starts to let their own mistrust and anger about the Gaults come forth in the wake of Orrin’s apparent demise and the exposure of his activities, Veeka and Zedd try to stick up for the Gaults by claiming that Jabe was with them on far more than just one raid and that Annileen always knew about Orrin’s plots. Few actually believe them, but when Annileen’s financial records are found at Orrin’s home (because he copied them earlier), and they see how much Orrin had bought (and taken advantage of) from the Claim, questions slowly arise as to how close the two families were. Perhaps Annileen was truly innocent, but are her children? Was Dannar? With little hope of ever truly reclaiming the community’s good will, she says goodbye to the Claim one last time, gives the LiteVan and her old speeder to Gloamer in exchange for a pair of swoops, and heads out with her kids to Ben’s home. There, he reveals his plan for them: he has transmitted Annileen’s decades-old application to the University of Alderaan and pulled strings through a contact on the planet (Bail Organa, though he does not say so) to make sure that Annileen is accepted. Her university education and zoological expedition of ten worlds in two years will begin soon, taking off from Naboo. There will be a university slot open in the coming years for Kallie, and Jabe can find more opportunities on Naboo (or Alderaan) than he could on Tatooine. Moreover, he has arranged first class passage on the Lady of Bestine for them, so that they can go to Bestine (the planet, not the city) and then onward to Naboo. The surprise, though, is that Ben is not going with them. Annileen protests. She wants Ben with them, with her, but he cannot leave. He claims to have his own family, a child that he must look after. The two finally agree that he has been hiding things from her, lying by omission and by leading her on perhaps, and she needs honesty, not someone hiding things from her, right now. She stops protesting and agrees to go. The Calwells head in to Mos Eisley, give one swoop to Delroix Speeders to make up for the luxury speeder that was leased and won’t be returned, then sell the other swoop and send the money to the Claim to be distributed amongst the Settlers’ Fund members to partly make up for money lost because of Orrin. As the Calwells take flight to leave Tatooine, Annileen consoles Kallie, explaining that she had given up her own dreams and those of her children in order to keep Dannar’s dream alive after he died. She felt chained by her responsibilities, but she has now “done her time” and can leave without guilt. Ben, though, has some unknown responsibility that he is unwilling or unable to forsake. He has not yet “done his time” and thus cannot yet leave. She feels sorry for him, but she at least understands that much about him now. As for Orrin, he survived the crash, saved by the Tusken and made into one. A’Yark forces him to fix the vaporator they stole from the Ulbrecks’ so that these Tusken can be the only group with their own water vaporator. Orrin is so shocked and appalled by his circumstances that while he does get it working, he refuses to speak (so that the sound of his own voice through a Tusken filter won’t confirm this horror) and will soon die as his mind and hope break down into nothing. As for Obi-Wan, he has made peace with his place in the universe now, and he has made his choice. He settles in for more meditation.

(Kenobi)*

*NOTE: This portion of the Kenobi novel (everything but the prologue) takes place within the gap found on page 110 of The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi. This is also “weeks” after ROTs, as of day 15 of this portion of the novel, as Annileen had spoken with someone “weeks” ago, who informed her that the Republic had changed into the Empire.

• While Emperor Palpatine deals with matters of state, reported by his adviser Sate Pestage, Darth Vader deals with his own doubts about the righteousness of Palpatine’s actions. He wonders if Darth Sidious will soon reveal what good they will be able to do with their newfound Imperial power, or if he will simply continue to use that power to acquire and new Separatists on New Plympto (the Nosaurians, led by Captain Bomo Greenbark and betrayed Jedi General Dass Jennir, who survived Order 66) and Imperial clonetroopers (now “stormtroopers”) rages on. Now, though, with the arrival of troops from the Imperial 501st, the tide is turning against the Nosaurians. Thus, Bomo and the rest of the native fighters send their families on a desperate evacuation, in hopes that they will reach the spaceport and escape, while the fighters themselves fight to hold off the stormtroopers long enough to give them a fighting chance at fleeing New Plympto. Bomo, for his part, says goodbye to his wife (Mesa) and daughter (Resa) before rejoining Dass on the battlefield. During the battle that follows, Dass and Bomo end up falling down a massive hole left by an uprooted tree, leaving them out of the fight. Later, as they emerge, the troopers under Commander Vill are gone, but so are their hopes for the survival of the Nosaurian forces. Only Dass and Bomo have survived, despite the Nosaurians surrendering to the 501st. Soon, Dass and Bomo make it to the spaceport and discover far too many ships still there for the evacuation to have taken place as planned. They get aboard a starship called the Uhomele, where they meet its crew: Captain Schurk-Heran; pilot Crys Taanzer; navigator Lynalisar K’ra Snyfflinmatta (“Sniffles”); Mezgraf; Ko Vakier; engineer Meekerdin-Maa; and assistant engineer Janks. When they inquire about the refugees, they learn the horrible truth: the Imperials captured them all and intend to sell them to slavers. Darth Vader himself soon learns this, when he contacts his stormtroopers on New Plympto, discovering that their ship has been retasked for the slave transportation, prompting memories of his slave life in the Sith Lord. On New Plympto, to help get the Uhomele off of the planet, Dass steals stormtrooper armor, then steals a starfighter, using it to blast at landed ships, pretending that the Empire is wanting to destroy them all. This prompts all of the ships to take off, giving them a chance to escape in the chaos. They do so, then set their sights on the horrific slave world of Orvax IV . . . On Coruscant, Palpatine orders Vader to Murkhana, explaining that slavery is necessary for now because it is a merciful alternative to simply eliminating all of the former Separatists and their peoples . . . Back aboard the Uhomele, Bomo faces the question of what to do if he faces the question of freeing his wife and daughter, only to have to leave his fellow Nosaurians behind. Dass also reminds him that the others have no stake in the cause, so they can’t expect them to lay down their lives. However, the bulk of the crew agrees to help in their mission, for various reasons. Soon, they set down on Orvax IV, where they work their way toward the slave pens. The find the pens, but when Mezgraf helps to stop a charging creature, his arm becomes exposed, showing the tattoo that he had borne as a slave himself. The authorities are called, but Dass, who has yet to reveal himself as a Jedi to his new comrades, uses Jedi mind tricks to save them from arrest. They get to the pens, only to be attacked by authorities, but they defeat them handily. Bomo, though, is shocked to learn that slavers came for his daughter Resa that morning and took her away. His wife, Mesa, meanwhile, had tried to save Resa, only to be killed in her efforts. Knowing that a group would be too hard to conceal, Dass orders the others to take Bomo back to the ship, while he goes in search of Resa alone. He eventually discovers the slaver who sold her, Orso Meeto. He breaks into Orso’s quarters, extracting the name of the buyer, Dezono Qua of Esseles, by force, then, knowing that only killing Orso will keep him silent, Dass kills him, stepping away from his Jedi teachings. With the information in hand, the Uhomele heads for Esseles. Soon, Vader has arrived for his mission on Murkhana, where he hopes to hunt down surviving Jedi, while seeking out clonetroopers that disobeyed Order 66. As for the Uhomele, they have arrived at Esseles, and Dass has gotten the name of the man who purchased Resa, Dezono Qua. The entire crew battles their way into Qua’s estate, only to discover that Qua has killed . . . and eaten . . . Resa already. Before Bomo can kill Qua and carry that for the rest of his life, Dass fires the shots that kill Qua for his cruelty. In his anger after Dass kills Qua, Bomo reveals to the others that Dass is a Jedi. They leave, it seems, without him, while he instead takes Qua’s own ship to continue on his own path, which may very well simply be a path to nowhere."

(The Path to Nowhere)"

“NOTE: The interior timeline notation for this story simply lists it as taking place “approximately nineteen years before the Battle of Yavin.” We can pin that down more specifically, though, based on Palpatine’s mention of Vader’s mission to Kessel in Purge and his new mission, which we are told is to Murkhana, as seen in Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader.
When Wilhuff Tarkin orders a contingent of Imperial troops to land on Kashyyyk and take custody of a Wookiee facility, the duty falls to Captain Janzor and his men. The troops are almost all clones. Three are older “model” clones (Tak Bazierre, Oswald Strepp, and Dalia). The rest are GeNodes, clones bred with fierce loyalty to the Empire, a hard-wired inability to realize that they are clones, and different personalities (unlike the Clone Wars era clones). One of the GeNodes is Milo Stranger, whose friend and fellow corporal, Wayson Dower, is one of the few troops that aren’t clones (or so he believes, due to programming). The force takes the Wookiee outpost they were sent to capture, but then they are routed and face battles on the run. Eventually, though, they learn the horrible truth. Their mission, in which the vast majority of troopers have died, was only a ruse. The Empire used them as a diversion, while a true invasion force landed elsewhere. Kashyyyk is now official under imperial rule.*

*NOTE: Given this story’s focus on the subjugation of Kashyyyk, I have moved it here at the suggestion of Luke van Horn.

Darth Vader, angered with how his mostly-mechanical body forces artificial limitations upon him, is trying to fight through his anger and regain some of his lost power. He is sent aboard his Imperial Star Destroyer, the Exactor, to Murkhana, where he is to punish Ion Team’s clones for helping Roan Shryne, Bol Chatak, and Olee Starstone escape Order 66. He doesn’t realize, when a crowd of prisoners is witness to the clones’ impending execution, that the three escaped Jedi are actually in the crowd itself. As he prepares to execute the clones, Bol Chatak emerges, her lightsaber ignited. She duels Vader, trying to stop him, as Ion Team escapes. It is all for naught, though. Vader, whom Roan doesn’t recognize, of course, cuts down Chatak, and is then informed that Ion Team has been recaptured to be sent to prison on Agon Nine. Roan explains to Olee that her former master’s actions were foolish. He uses a mind trick on the troopers guarding them to allow himself and Olee escape into Murkhana City, but when the count of prisoners turns up two missing, Vader takes it upon himself to seek out the two missing prisoners, who are obviously the two missing Jedi. Meanwhile, Roan and Olee make it to former Black Sun vigo and intelligence resource Cash Garrulan. Roan had first been sent to Murkhana to take down Cash, only to find that he became a great source of intel for the Republic. Cash sets them up with a way to escape the planet, but after the Jedi are gone, he is discovered by Vader, 501st Legion trooper leader Commander Appo, and other troopers. He tells Vader that the Jedi are trying to escape on a ship called the Dead Ringer. When the Imperials leave, he then makes his own escape plans, knowing he has just lied to an agent of the Emperor. When the Exactor tries to stop the Dead Ringer, they instead find two non-Jedi stowaways on board. At the same time, the Jedi are with one of Cash’s contacts aboard a CloakShape fighter. With Cash’s own space skiff adding to the confusion, both Cash’s ship and the CloakShape bearing the Jedi escape into hyperspace. Vader orders pursuit ceased. If the Jedi are so eager to hide, he decides, he will let them do so, for now. The CloakShape soon rendezvous with the Drunk Dancer, which Cash had set up to help them get to Moxssak. However, Roan is startled to learn that the ship’s captain, Jula, is his mother! After explaining how Roan was taken away with his father’s (but not his mother’s) blessing as a child to be trained as a Jedi, Roan and the Drunk Dancer crew begin dealing with these revelations. However, they are stopped short when Olee manages to find the signal of a ship of Jedi on the run. Jula agrees to help her son and the errant Padawan save the Jedi, if only to keep him aboard a while longer. They manage to save the Jedi shuttle from Imperial pursuit, bringing six new Jedi aboard. Among them are: Siadem Forte; Forte’s Padawan, Deran Nalual; the masterless Padawan Klossi Anno; Padawan-less Master Iwo Kulka, and agricultural specialist Jedi Jambe Lu and Nam Poorf. They were all on Dellalt after a Jedi 913 signal, and they realize, after discussing their situation for a while, that if they could access the Jedi Temple’s computer remotely, they could determine whether or not other Jedi were being lured into 913 traps. They do so from an abandoned Separatist facility on a moon of Jaguada, but their access to the Temple Archives is noted by Vader and Armand Isard, both of who are at the Temple at the time. They are set upon by Imperials, but manage to escape. In the wake of the Archive access, they have data on various Jedi that they hope they can find alive and enlist to battle the Empire. While Olee is all for this, Roan is not. He intends to stay out of the fight for now, knowing that the Jedi Order is, in effect, already dead. Rather than going with the other Jedi as they head out on their missions, he remains with Jula and the Drunk Dancer. (This is also in part due to a debt he owes to Cash Garrulan for getting them off of Murkhana . . . Cash was found and killed shortly thereafter.) A short time later, the Drunk Dancer is hired to help get former Senator Fang Zhar back to Sern Prime without attracting Imperial notice. He is on Alderaan, having been granted asylum by Senator Bail Organa. Darth Vader and others are sent to Alderaan to get him back, even as the escape raid goes down. Vader meets with Organa, who is trying to hide baby Leia and his wife from Vader, even as he realizes, based on the name, that this must be Anakin Skywalker in the suit, having survived his battle with Obi-Wan Kenobi on Mustafar. As the Dancer team is about to get Zar out of there, Vader confronts them. Roan covers their escape, but Zar is killed by Vader’s thrown lightsaber, which also injures Jula. They escape into hyperspace, but Roan’s presence has again infuriated Vader, who wants to track the last of the Jedi. He is now given Palpatine’s permission to do so . . . Weeks later, Olee Starstone’s group of Jedi crusaders arrives on Kashyyyk, having sought out possible Jedi survivors to no avail on Saleucami, Boz Pity, and Felucia. They meet with a local human contact for the Wookiees, Cudgel. Unbeknownst to them, they were tracked there. Vader (aboard the Exactor) arrives for a meeting with Imperial Moff Wilhuff Tarkin aboard Tarkin’s Executrix (the Exactor’s older sibling ship). Tarkin informs Vader of the Jedi on Kashyyyk, hoping that Vader will be able to use this indiscretion on the Wookiees’ behalf to justify using Wookiees as slave labor for the incredibly slow construction process for Tarkin’s pet project, the Death Star. Vader, Commander Appo of the 501st, and other Imperial troops arrive on Kashyyyk and begin battling the six Jedi and the Wookiees that rise up against Imperial domination. All of the Jedi except Olee are killed, leaving her to face Vader alone. Just as she is about to be killed by the Sith Lord, Roan Shryne, having been kept apprised of her activities by the Drunk Dancer crew, appears. He kills Appo and squares off with Vader, while Olee gets survivors of the assault to ships. Olee and others (including Chewbacca) get many survivors to safety, even though Kashyyyk is being ravaged by blasts from orbit and ground forces. Back below, Vader and Shryne duel, but he is no match for the Sith Lord. Just before he is killed, he is told the truth—that Vader is Anakin Skywalker, the so-called “Chosen One.” Shryne dies, but he knows that the Force will live on, despite what the Sith are doing to the galaxy . . . In the wake of the subjugation of Kashyyyk, Vader now has a new goal to live for, the destruction of the Jedi and the accumulation of more power, making him more Palpatine’s servant. As for Olee, she, Cudgel, and Chewbacca will remain with Jula and the Drunk Dancer crew for a while, then begin nipping at the Empire’s heels where they can, particularly if they can find where many enslaved Wookiees are being taken. As for the rest of the galaxy, they are given their first glimpse of Vader’s mysterious visage on news feeds. Rumors take various shapes as to who and what Vader might be, but on the backwater world of Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi sees Vader for what he truly is . . . Anakin Skywalker, not dead on Mustafar as Kenobi had believed. He wonders if Vader will come for Luke, but the spirit of Qui-Gon Jinn assures him that Vader will not set foot on Tatooine. It is the source of everything that would cause the Anakin side of Vader pain. Luke will be safe there under Obi-Wan’s watch . . . as the rest of the galaxy continues to fall into darkness . . . (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal Clone Wars Timeline: 16:6 – 16:7)*

(Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader)*

NOTE: The events in this story take place 4 weeks to 2 months (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith.

- Jedi Knight Sha Koon, hiding in the catacombs beneath the Jedi Temple, contacts Darth Sidious, claiming that she wishes to become his Sith Apprentice. She claims to want to kill Darth Vader and take his place. Sidious sends Vader to her, and the two duel. She believes she can help the future, but she learns in a vision during the instant she dies at Vader’s hand that Vader will redeem himself, the Jedi will return, and the future does not in any way depend upon her sacrifice. She dies at peace, and Vader, sadly, did not share her vision, or he might have known that the future would depend upon Anakin Skywalker atoning for his dark deeds.

(Seconds to Die)
Darth Vader is sent to the planet Otavon XII to protect a new factory (Imperial Outpost RD778083) that is constructing All Terrain Armored Transport (AT-AT) walkers (which will eventually fade from service for a while). Attacks by the local Ovoni resistance has put the factory at risk. After taking out a group of attacking Ovoni, Vader assures the local commander, General Crik, that he has the situation in hand. Vader reports to Emperor Palpatine, who advises that he follows his orders and remain at the outpost, rather than hunting down the Ovoni or their leader, whom Vader senses may be a surviving Jedi Knight. When a clone stormtrooper returns to the outpost, dying, and reports that the enemy does have a Jedi, Vader disobeys his orders and sets out alone to face this threat, taking a small probe droid with him. Vader finds a small group of Ovoni, including the Jedi Padawan Dendro, who intend to make it to Mount Dijandi. Vader kills them all, including Dendro, then contacts Crik. There have been no more attacks on the outpost yet, and Crik suggests that the Padawan’s master might be at Mount Dijandi, since Dendro mentioned a ship to escape that may be hidden there. Vader is set upon by other Ovoni, who leave a small transmitter that calls a huge Sugati beast to kill him. Vader, however, frees himself and destroys the transmitter. The creature is then called away by something else . . . Vader finally finds Hylon, Dendro’s Jedi Master. There never was a starship, and it has all been a setup. Vader disarms Hylon, who then reveals a hidden blade and disarms Vader, only for Vader to pull out the lightsaber he took from the fallen Dendro and kill Hylon. Vader has failed is his mission, though. While he was being occupied by Hylon and the Ovoni, the Ovoni were able to get a transmitter to the outpost, which drew the Sugati to the base. The entire base is destroyed by the time Vader arrives. Emperor Palpatine then arrives himself on a shuttle, surveys Vader’s failure, and leaves him behind, telling him to spend some time meditating on his failure on the planet."

(The Hidden Blade)"

*NOTE: There is no indication as to when this story takes place in relation to other events in this year. We know only that it is in 19 BBY and probably takes place after Seconds to Die (only because it is the next one-shot in this quasi-series). I should note that the locals are known as “Ovoni” in the comic itself, but the “opening crawl” on the interior cover page calls them the “Otavi” instead.

Darth Vader and Imperial stormtroopers travel to the planet Vaklin to put an end to its Jedi-led insurgency. They track Jedi Cho’na Bene into the Howling Ruins, but the Jedi and insurgents wipe out many of Vader’s troopers and escape. Back in the capital, Vaklin Zenith, Imperial Security Bureau officer Major Oniye Namada briefs Vader and other Imperial officers present on Vaklin’s affinity for the Jedi, since the Jedi Order “saved” so many of Vaklin’s children from life in the mines since they were taken to be Jedi. The public currently backs the insurgency. Vader then tortures a captured Jedi Knight (whose Jedi Master was killed by Vader on the twelve-bladed satelitte of Shrokaan, above Vaklin) for information. During the interrogation, Cho’na and insurgents attack the Imperial base, using a bomb in a mouse droid to hit the command room before entering in hopes of saving the interrogated Jedi, who had just divulged that Cho’na was encamped beneath the Temple of Imperfect Repose, which could be a lie. In the chaos, the Jedi Knight gets free, but Vader kills him. Unfortunately, while the rescue attempt has failed, the natives see the dead Jedi as a martyr and Cho’na as a hero. Emperor Palpatine is displeased with Vader’s current situation and insistence that bombardment could win if all else fails. Palpatine wants the planet for its resources, and he reminds Vader that the Empire is not yet strong enough to rule through fear alone. Vader must think like a ruler, rather than as a soldier. Quite to her surprise, Namada is called to see Vader, who requests that she teach him about the Vaklin natives so that he can undermine their beliefs in the Jedi and conquer Vaklin in that fashion. In her own personal log, Namada refers to this as the beginning of “the Purge.” One of Namada’s first acts for this new push is to destroy the Jedi statues in the city, replacing those images of former heroes with a new Imperial education center to educate all of Vaklin’s children for the betterment of themselves and the community. There is even a program set up to present offworld opportunities to graduates. Vaklin’s Northward Park, which was planted from cuttings from Neti Jedi Uro Koo, is cleared to make room for a new security station. The Backways, remembered for the activities of Ki-Adi-Mundi during the Clone Wars, are finally cleaned up and rebuilt. Citizens named after Jedi are required to legally change their names. Darth Vader leads his stormtroopers into ancient ruins, where he kills tuk’ata that were gifted to the world by Jedi beast master Kanzhei Opu. He then orders the bombardment of the ruins, leaving them mostly devastated. An injured Cho'na Bene finally faces Vader then, and Vader defeats him without killing him, just breaking him and leaving him in an area with quickly-poisoning air. Cho'na eventually escapes, but when he gets into public, he appears to be a drunk and is shot by Namada in front of many witnesses, making him an embarrassment. Overall, the operation has managed to wipe much of the Jedi legacy from the planet and replace it with enough new Imperial interests that the memory of the Jedi will eventually fade, as is the plan for the rest of the galaxy. The Jedi Purge must not just be about killing the last of the Jedi but of removing their memory from the galaxy."

(The Tyrant's Fist)

NOTE: There is no indication as to when this story takes place in relation to other events in this year. We know only that it is in 19 BBY ("a few months" after ROTS) and probably takes place after The Hidden Blade (only because it is the next story arc in this quasi-series).

- Having recognized Darth Vader as Anakin Skywalker on the news, Obi-Wan Kenobi is disheartened. With the counsel of Qui-Gon Jinn’s spirit, he purchases a journal to keep observations of the Force and other things that Luke Skywalker might need to know some day. (To be continued below . . .)

(The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi)

- Publicly, Kashyyyk is placed under martial law and Wookiee enslavement begins in earnest. (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia and The Essential Guide to Planets and Moons)

- Nikaede Celso, a Wookiee female born into nobility, is smuggled off of Kashyyyk by her parents. (conjecture based on When the Domino Falls)

- Mammon Hoole and Chlar Kotchmin attempt to study the arachnor species. Kotchmin suffocates in a web during the encounter. (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- The Abinyshi species is supposedly wiped out by a species-wide civil war. In actuality, the Empire, having come to Inysh for kalonterium reserves, has enslaved the populace and decimated the world’s ecosystem through mining. What little is left of the species cannot survive long on their ravaged world. (conjecture based on Alien Encounters supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #14)

- Roganda Ismaren and her brother Lagan were among the Jedi children taken during the attack on Belsavis. Inquisitor Ameesa Darys skewers Lagan before Roganda’s traumatized eyes, but lets the young girl live. Vowing never to be killed like her brother was, Roganda begins using her natural beauty, cultivating skills of seduction. She sleeps her way into the Imperial Court, eventually becoming one of a cadre of professional concubines for the Emperor. (conjecture based on The Emperor’s Pawns and via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Many of the larger forces of the Sector Rangers are usurped by the Imperial machine, others simply fell through the cracks, and remained separate enforcement agencies. The Sector Rangers were a loose association of local system police forces which filled the gaps in the galactic law enforcement system, and were created by the planetary governors of the Old Republic. The Senate authorized the formation of the Sector Rangers in an effort to bring law enforcement to newly colonized worlds quickly and efficiently. The Jedi Knights couldn’t be everywhere, so the Sector Rangers held sway in their own systems. (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Garlan Limoth, a Senator, was one of the small group which supported Senator Palpatine of Naboo, shortly before the Battle of Naboo and Palpatine's election to Supreme Chancellor. However, when Palpatine declared himself Emperor and instituted the New Order, Senator Limoth withdrew his support. He died almost immediately afterward in a tragic accident. Unlike his father, Senator Garlan Limoth, Marsh Limoth never withdrew his support of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine when he declared himself Emperor. Marsh turned his back on his father, and was rewarded for his loyalty with a posting as Moff Nebin Cray's personal assistant. Cray hated being "assisted" by someone hand-picked by Emperor Palpatine, and was the first to nominate Marsh for the position of colonial governor of Goroth Prime. It was Cray's "sacrifice" which allowed Marsh to gain the governor's position, since he gave a glowing recommendation. Governor Limoth operated as a true supporter of the New Order, despite claims from his peers that he was only serving at Governor for his own personal gain.

(conjecture based on Goroth: Slave of the Empire via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Palpatine orders a large section of the HoloNet shut down, and puts the rest under Imperial control in order to censor the public's news. At about the same time, he also officially renames Coruscant "Imperial Center."

(conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)

- With the closing of most of the HoloNet, private courier services immediately begin filling the communications gap.

(conjecture based on Retreat From Coruscant)

- Lord Cronal, a Dark Side advisor to Palpatine and member of the Emperor's secretive Prophets of the Dark Side grows to surpass his peers in the Prophets and is target by the Prophets for termination, but Palpatine takes him on as a new operative. Codenamed "Blackhole" (a name he had already been using for himself, unofficially) Cronal will soon give himself completely to the Dark Side and divination (actually the Way of the Dark), which will grow to take great toll on his body, leading him to be reduced to a life-support chamber in but a decade or so.

(conjecture based on The Emperor's Pawns and The Dark Forces Saga, Part V: Two Peas in a Pod)

- After three years, Magaloof is released from prison. Realizing he isn't suited to be a criminal, he returns to Almek to start life over.

(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Magaloof, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What's the Story?)

NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- Picaroon C. Boodle, the Kowakian monkey-lizard companion of smuggler Az-Iban, is taken into custody on Eriadu for quarantine, when he is suspected of carrying Cyborrean rabies. Meanwhile, the Gamororean Thok betrays his brother Gorc to Imperial forces. Both Picaroon and Gorc are sent to become part of scientist Tuzin Gast's "Project Chubar" experiments, but Lord "Blackhole" Cronal takes both of the Force-sensitive "subjects" for his own experiments. They are bent to the Dark Side and mutated to become the "Brothers of the Sith," Gorc and Pic, who will eventually serve Dark Jedi Jerec.

(conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part V: Two Peas in a Pod)

- Palpatine orders the creation of the Alien Protection Zone on Coruscant in response to vocal opposition to the Empire's anti-alien sentiments.

(conjecture based on Wedge's Gamble)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Emperor Palpatine declares the Morgukai warrior Nikto culture to be an outlawed religion. Thereby allowing for the extermination of any remaining Morgukai and Morgukai clones.

(conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds and Lords of Nal Hutta)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Boba Fett comes into possession of a Mandalorian Battle Legionnaire droid (BL-17), which he keeps as an aide until encountering R2-D2 and C-3PO years later on the planet Boonta.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, many CSS-1 Corellian Star Shuttles, which were used extensively during the Clone Wars, wind up in private hands.

(conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Kuat Drive Yards' A-7 Hunter Interceptor is produced in the market for inexpensive starfighters. They are a prominent Imperial starfighter until pushed out of that position by the less expensive Sienar Fleet Systems TIE Fighters that are gaining in popularity.

(conjecture based on Dangerous Covenants)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Kuat Systems Engineering's Alpha-3 Nimbus "V-wing" Interceptor line is phased out in favor of TIE fighters. Thus, the Q7-series astromech droids from Industrial Automaton that were created specifically for the V-wing also fall out of favor.
(conjecture based on Stay on Target)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, Slayn & Kopril’s H-60 Tempest Heavy Bombers cease production.
(conjecture based on Stay on Target)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, Hoersch-Kessel Drive’s R-41 Starchasers cease production.
(conjecture based on Stay on Target)
• In the wake of the Clone Wars, local military forces that intend to stand up to (or be able to stand up to if necessary) the Empire begin scrambling to purchase capital ships. This creates a new market for old Rendili StarDrive’s Neutron Star-class bulk cruisers.
(conjecture based on Dangerous Covenants)
• The Healer’s Guild ceases to exist in the early days of the Galactic Empire.
(conjecture based on The Free-Trader’s Guide to Sevarcos)
• Palpatine arranges for the permanent exile of over 30,000 nobles, who were opposed to his New Order.
(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 6: Tramp Freighters)
• Palpatine’s xenophobia (or at least racism to non-human species) sparks a popular sentiment of High Human Culture, a “human supremacy” doctrine that becomes a backbone of the New Order.
(conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game)
• As High Human Culture develops and the Empire becomes anti-alien, the Gossam are particularly hard hit, due to their previous ties to the Commerce Guild and, by extension, the Confederacy of Independent Systems. Gossams are banned from setting foot on Coruscant, and those on their homeworld of Castell are soon enslaved. Those already on Coruscant when the decree comes down are arrested or must evade capture. Of those who evade capture, many will become founding members of the anti-Imperial Whiplash movement.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species and Desperate Allies)
• Shortly after the death of Count Dooku, Aurra Sing disappears. She has, in fact, been imprisoned on Oovo IV. She will be there when Darth Vader decides to recruit her to find Jax Pavan.
(conjecture based on Street of Shadows)
• The Trunsks develop their own hyperdrive, but their ability to travel the galaxy is cut short when Emperor Palpatine institutes the New Order. Declared a slave species, the Trunsks are made the centerpieces of many intergalactic circuses and gladiator fighting rings, despite the fact that they are intelligent and independent.
(conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #14 via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Soron Hegerty and her father are conscripted into Imperial service.
(conjecture based on Supernova via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• A sale of used starships takes place on Raed-7. The previous owners of the ships were mostly individuals killed during the Clone Wars, whose property was confiscated or otherwise salvaged.
(conjecture based on The Desperate Mission)
• With the rise of the Empire, the two major bacta cartels on Thyferra, the Zaltin and Xucphra, make arrangements with Imperial authorities to protect their trade, which brings them up to be the most powerful bacta cartels in the business for years to come.
(conjecture based on The Business of Bacta)
• Shortly after the Clone Wars, the Far Orbit Resort and Lodge on Athiss slowly loses business for its resort, as the Empire brings stability to the galaxy. As a result, it is the hunting lodge portion of the business that will keep it afloat in the coming decades.
(conjecture based on Lost Knowledge)
• With the rise of the Empire, most Consular-class Light Assault Cruisers are destroyed or mothballed. Some will return to service nearly two decades later in service to the Rebel Alliance.
(conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Core Rulebook)
With the rise of the Empire, most battledroids are outlawed, though many worlds will simply use “police droids” instead for security. The Neimoidians of Cato Neimoidia, however, will almost entirely eschew the use of police droids and rely instead on sentient security personnel, so that they can further distance themselves from the stigma of being the species most closely associated with the Trade Federation. (This has given them a reputation of not just being on the losing side but also of hiding behind their droids instead of putting themselves at risk.)
(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

With the rise of the Empire, the resistance led by the “Phantom of Gall” (Jans Coorsa) continues battling outside forces, this time in the form of the Empire.
(conjecture based on Friends Like These)

With the rise of the Empire, Gladiator I-class Star Destroyers, formerly used as escorts along heavy battle lines, are changed to independent, long-range patrol crafts.
(conjecture based on Friends Like These)

With the rise of the Empire, the Zygerranian Slavers Guild’s monarchy, led by Atai Molec, makes a deal with the Empire. The Empire will not shut down the guild, and in return, the slavers will restrict their operations to the Outer Rim only. The Zygerrians will soon renew their ties to the Hutt clans and become major suppliers of enslaved Togrutas, Theelins, and Twileks.
(conjecture based on Friends Like These)

With the rise of the Empire, the warfare on Cato Neimoidia is at an end, but it has been so devastating to the city of Jorra, that there will never be enough funds to truly rebuild the entire city. Instead, only the upper levels are rebuilt, while the dorsal “underside” is effectively abandoned. However, Jorra is far more pro-Empire than even the rest of Cato Neimoidia (as they try to rebuild their reputation from the Clone Wars), due to their hatred for the Jedi, thanks to the actions of Suljo Warde and the Republic during the war.
(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

With the rise of the Empire, Onrein Hasar, the lone survivor of Jedi Knight Suljo Warde’s attack on the Trade Federation delegation in Jorra on Cato Neimoidia, finds her prospects for advancement limited due to the outcome of the Clone Wars. She reinvents herself, starting a criminal enterprise known as the Whitescar Syndicate in Jorra, taking control of other local criminal enterprises and gangs.
(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

With the rise of the Empire, publicly-accessible information about the location of Korriban (AKA Moraband) is erased. The Empire pressures the Bureau of Ships and Services (BoSS) into removing astrogational data on the planet as well. When daring astrographers try to chart the Horuset system, including Korriban, in the future, they will “go missing.”
(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

With the rise of the Empire, the patronage system in the city of Reles (the only city) on Spintir is dismantled. The result is a growing gap between the rich and poor.
(conjecture based on Lure of the Lost)

With the rise of the Empire, the Republic’s Fifth Fleet becomes the Imperial Fifth Fleet, soon known as Shadow Hand Command.
(conjecture based on Force and Destiny Core Rulebook)

With the rise of the Empire, the Cosians of the planet Cosia become very isolationist in hopes of protecting their traditional societal beliefs from the imposition (or even accidental influence) of Imperial dogma.
(conjecture based on Disciples of Harmony)

With the Rise of the Empire, the Sathari of Quolas on Arbooine try to convince Reeve Gel Marcolf to relinquish his power over the town and return control to the native families, but he refuses to do so, maintaining power through instinctive use of the Force to bend wills, which he simply considers natural leadership talent.
(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

The EF76 Nebulon-B Frigate enters service from Kuat Drive Yards as a replacement for Class-C Frigates. It sees entry into the Imperial Navy in the era of Victory- and Imperial-class Star Destroyers.
  (conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Core Rulebook)
• With the revelation of the supposed Jedi Rebellion, Toydarians feel that their suspicious about Force users since the assassination of King Katuunko by Savage Opress have been justified. They quickly begin voicing their lack of support for the Republic, but since it immediately turns into the Empire with the Declaration of the New Order, they very quickly begin fearing reprisals for such rash anti-Republic proclamations. In an effort to gain Imperial support (and forgiveness, in case their comments drew Imperial ire), they form the Toypadarian Royal Guard with the mission of hunting down and eliminating Force users.*
  (conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)*

*NOTE: I have had to sort of interpret things here because the revelation of the “Jedi treachery” and declaration of the Empire happen essentially at the same time, yet the sourcebook specifically refers to the Toydarians withdrawing support from the “Republic,” not the “Empire,” then fearing reprisals after the Declaration of the New Order.
• With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine orders all of what was once the Sith Empire closed to all but his Dark Side Adepts, who will, over the years, journey into that area of space to uncover information about the First Order of the Dark Lords of the Sith in order to help in Palpatine’s rule as the most powerful current member of the Second Order of the Dark Lords of the Sith.
  (conjecture based on From the Files of Corellia Antilles)
• With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine begins reorganizing the Imperial (formerly Republic) military. He is the Commander-in-Chief, while the highest organizational body will be Imperial High Command, which oversees the space-based Imperial Navy, land-based Imperial Army (free of clones), separate Imperial Stormtrooper Corps (with all remaining clonetroopers as its backbone), Imperial Department of Military Research, Imperial Diplomatic Corps, Imperial Engineering Corps, Imperial Survey Corps and Exploration Corps (organized together), Imperial Surgical Corps, and Imperial Military Police.
  (conjecture based on Imperial Handbook)
• With the rise of the Empire, the Mobile Recon/Research Vehicle, due to its armament and speed, begins to be considered outdated in favor of the AT-ST.*
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.
• With the rise of the Empire, rumors begin to spread that some Jedi who survived Order 66 have hidden on the Unknown Regions planet Durace, but no evidence of any survivors is found.*
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn.
• With the rise of the Empire, Quarsh Panaka becomes Moff of the Chommell sector.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)
• With the rise of the Empire, Bothan Clone Wars veteran Arkhan Brem’tu sees that renewed war is inevitable one day against this new regime. He begins a twenty year process of traveling with like-minded individuals to set up rebel cells in the galaxy that will later be pat of the Rebel Alliance, of which Arkhan will play a minor role in forming.
  (conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Beginner Game: Arkhan Character Folio)
• With the rise of the Empire, Tarast Voon and his family go into hiding to keep his Force-sensitive nature from being discovered by the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Force and Destiny: Beginner Game: Tarast Character Folio)
• With the rise of the Empire, the brand new Arakyd Helix-class interceptor is outlawed due to its firepower, maneuverability, and speed. The first models are only barely off the assembly line and to their new owners when the Empire orders them destroyed or stripped down to comply with this new ban.
  (conjecture based on The Last Jedi)
• With the rise of the Empire, the Wookiee Claatuvc Guild consolidates all of its Main Archive data stacks by downloading them into miniature HoloGrids. These are then given to the bravest navigators of the guild, and all records in the Main Archive are removed, so that the Empire cannot get their hands on the hyperspace routes when (not if) the Empire comes to Kashyyyk to rule.
(conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

- With the rise of the Empire, Utapau comes under Imperial control. In response, Pau’ans begin leaving the planet in large numbers, until the bulk of Pau’an society exists in a diaspora, rather than on Utapau. This temporarily ends the close relationship between the Pau’ans and the Utai, who remain behind.
(conjecture based on Disciples of Harmony)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Slayn & Korpil T-6 shuttle that was so heavily used by the Jedi Order finds no place in the new Imperial fleet. Most are “mothballed.”
(conjecture based on Disciples of Harmony)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Consular-class light cruisers that were so heavily used by the Jedi Order find no place in the new Imperial fleet, though they are still used heavily by local governments across the galaxy.
(conjecture based on Disciples of Harmony)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Frozians of Froz, known for their sense of honor and deep integrity in civil service, openly reject the Empire’s form of government.*
(conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)*

*NOTE: The planet will be punished for this, and for supporting the Alliance to Restore the Republic, by bombardment from orbit from Grand Moff Naomi Dargon. While that would make sense here, alongside their initial anti-imperial stance, the specific naming of the Alliance to Restore the Republic in the source material suggests that the payback must come after that organization officially exists.

- With the rise of the Empire, the peaceful people of Xyquine II protest in non-violent ways against Imperial rule, including speeches, academic papers, and non-violent protests by young people.
(conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)

- With the rise of the Empire, GU-series “Guardian” police droids are phased out by the Coruscant Security Force in favor of more aggressive droids and stormtroopers.
(conjecture based on Endless Vigil)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Centrality becomes Imperial territory. However, by the time of the Battle of Yavin, Palpatine will hand over de facto control of the territory to Rokur Gepta of Tund.
(conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

TCW DATE: With the rise of the Empire, the Shahmistha of J'doytzin III is one of the first to experience retribution from the Empire for past actions that annoyed Palpatine.*
(conjecture based on Siege)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Sidious makes good on his own musings in Siege.

- With the rise of the Empire, the remaining planetary security forces are all absorbed into one Imperial Navy.
(conjecture based on Rebellion Era Sourcebook)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Baxel Sector is created, using Teth as its central system. Hutt Space will be ruled (officially, at least) from Teth as the Empire expands its power base.
(conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)

- With the rise of the Empire, Imperial Intelligence orders the blockading of Zolan in an attempt to keep the Clawdites confined to one planet. Any hopes of ending their subjugation have died with Count Dooku, whom the Clawdites had approached early in the Clone Wars for help in overthrowing Zolander control.
(conjecture based on The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Clawdites and The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- With the rise of the Empire, the planet Vulpter is blockaded. Even food shipments are forbidden, leading to widespread rioting and famine. This will cause the Rebel Alliance to be welcomed on Vulpter in the decades to come.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- With the rise of the Empire, most Nazzar return to their home systems and ignore the galaxy at large.
(conjecture based on Power of the Jedi Sourcebook)

- With the rise of the Empire, the new Moff of the Churnis sector declares all existing alliances and treaties null and void, returning the planet Ansonian to obscurity.

(conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

- With the rise of the Empire, Chedak Communications finds its business floundering, thanks to the Emperor’s communications restrictions.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Nubian Design Collective goes underground to keep its more experimental designs out of Imperial hands.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

- With the rise of the Empire, Emperor Palpatine allows the Prophets of the Dark Side to begin training agents known as the Emperor’s Hand, Emperor’s Eyes, and Emperor’s Reach. Only two Emperor’s Eyes will ever be created for Palpatine. The first is the Dathomir Nightsister High Priestess Merilia (who will eventually be Kashyyyk’s darksider guardian). The second of the Emperor’s Eyes will eventually be a mutant called Triclops, whom, unbeknownst to all but a scant few, is actually Palpatine’s own son (and a great disappointment).

(conjecture based on Evil Never Dies: The Sith Dynasties)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, most of the AT-TE (All-Terrain Tactical Enforcer) models are decommissioned by the Empire.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

- With the rise of the Empire and its presence on Naboo, the Otoh Gunga Bongameken Cooperative scales back its production.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

- With the rise of the Empire and its presence on Naboo, Gungan doctor Stitchy, court physician for Queen Apailana, loses his practice.

(conjecture based on Fists of Ion)

- With the rise of the Empire, Chandrila is allowed to mostly self-govern, though the Empire will appoint Governor Grandon Holleck and Moff Kohl Seerdon to the world. Holleck is a Clone Wars veteran who is ill-equipped to deal with the political machinations of the Chandrilans.

(conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)

- With the rise of the Empire and the death of Shu Mai on Mustafar, the Commerce Guild is absorbed into the Empire.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- With the rise of the Empire, the Imperial Office of Criminal Investigation (IOCI) becomes the official agency to post bounties for the Empire via the Imperial Enforcement DataCore. A bounty posting is referred to as a Notice of Civil Remandation (NCR). The moment an NCR is issued, the individual targeted is branded an outlaw and stripped of all rights of Imperial citizenship. It is from these postings that the Bounty Hunter Guild will get most of its work in the next couple of decades. Bounty hunters will now carry an Imperial Peacekeeping Certificate (IPKC), which replaces the Republic Certificate of Deputization. The Bounty Hunters Guild is given access to three former Jedi chapter houses to use for training. While their locations are a closely guarded secret, they will be on Kamparas, Bogden III, and Telos. A new edition of The Bounty Hunters Guild Handbook will soon be released, known as the Imperial Edition with text updated to reflect new Imperial guidelines. It will see at least three Imperial Edition releases (including this first one) by the era shortly before the Battle of Yavin, and the first chapter (“The Basics” by Gleed Ontondon) will not change its text for at least three editions in a row (possibly starting with this first Imperial era release) as of the edition owned by Greedo prior to the Battle of Yavin. The Imperial Edition (or a later printing of that edition) will bear a new forward by Cradossk to introduce the Imperial Edition’s purpose in relation to Imperial laws.

(conjecture based on The Bounty Hunter Code)

- With the end of the Commerce Guild, Iaco Stark buys various products from the defunct group, using them as the foundation to create Rossum Droidworks (RDW) in the Corporate Sector.

(conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)

- With the rise of the Empire, an Emblem of the Republic no longer hangs in the Hall of Justice on Alderaan.
• With the rise of the Empire, the Empire takes over mining operations on Gedi 4, which was previously managed by a front company owned by the Besadili Hutt clan. (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

• With the rise of the Empire and the death of Wat Tambor on Mustafar, the Techno Union is absorbed into the Empire. (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

• With the Techno Union absorbed into the Empire, Baktoid Combat Automata is absorbed with it. However, a number of executives and engineers quit and form a new company, Baktoid Industrial Systems. One of their earliest projects is an experimental four-legged walker, known as the Baktoid Versatile-Athletic "Zalaaca" Walker. Very few of these will ever be produced, and nearly all will wind up in Rebel hands as a belated "thank you" for anti-Imperial elements granting asylum to fleeing Baktoid employees. (conjecture based on Forged in Battle)

• With the rise of the Empire, Meysen Kayson becomes the object of unwanted Imperial attention. He decides to go into hiding and gives the rights of his Greel Wood Logging Corporation to his associate, Xenon Nnaksta, who in turn hires more anti-Empire consultants in the Empire.* (conjecture based on The Greel Wood Haven)

*NOTE: The Greel Wood Haven uses the term pro-Alliance several times to speak of anti-Empire groups, but it is clear by the suggested timing of these events that it is not the Rebel Alliance at this point, but simply anti-Empire rebels.

• With the advent of the Empire, Wroona gains tactical importance. Soon, an Imperial garrison is constructed on the surface, and a large stardock is constructed in orbit. (conjecture based on Smuggler's Log supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #7)

• Frowning on self-expression, the Empire closes down many theaters and orchestras. Peekoine, regarded as the center of culture and entertainment in its sector, is particularly damaged by this decree, as only a few of its entertainment centers are allowed to remain open. (conjecture based on Peekoine Opera Blues)

• With the rise of the Empire, Harovan Toth seeks out and joins a fledgling rebellious group on Reynon. Shortly after joining the group and relocating to Dantooine, Harovan meets Tisha Rostek. The two are married. (conjecture based on Cracken's Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11)

• With the rise of the Empire, the activities of the Ailon Nova Guard are cut down to mainly just ceremonial duties. (conjecture based on Special Military Unit Intelligence Update)

• With the rise of the Empire, Czerka Corporation is brought under Imperial control. (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)

• With the rise of the Empire, Bersin Sekolah, a Republic scout, retires and moves to Tasariq. (conjecture based on Tasariq: The Crystal Planet)

• With the rise of the Empire, Toth Harovan becomes part of one of the first rebel factions in the Empire. (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #15 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• With the rise of the Empire, pirate Lamuu Bianco opens his Port Bianco in the Tapani Sector to all spacers with an invitation. (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• With the advent of the New Order, Carlist Rieekan joins the earliest movement in rebellion against the Empire, operating from Alderaan. (conjecture based on Who's Who in Echo Base)

• With the rise of the Empire, treaties negotiated with the Old Republic on Elom are revoked, allowing the enslavement of the Elom and their previous slave masters, the Elomin, again to mine lommite.
• With the enslavement of the Elomin, the enslavement of Haninum Tyk Rhinann is manumitted so that he can serve as an aide to Darth Vader.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Twilight)
• With the rise of the Empire, the Imperials take an interest in Gravlex Med, where the Gravlex Launchworks begins to be used to dispose of hazardous materials into the system’s sun. Eventually, the Launchworks’ capacity will be overwhelmed, causing the Empire to simply dump the materials on the planet itself, turning it into a wasteland. The few surviving Anx are scattered across the galaxy.
  (conjecture based on The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Anx)
• With the rise of the Empire and its anti-alien sentiments, the pacifistic Priapaulin begin to turn to non-violent resistance when they encounter such policies.
  (conjecture based on The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Priapaulin)
• With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine sets up a personal retreat on Naboo, which will eventually be controlled by Chamberlain Kaja Or’Zee. In the meantime, Boss Nass, the Gungan leader, slowly becomes a sympathizer in movements against the Empire. The Hutts also expand their presence on Naboo in the years after the birth of the Empire, with Jabba the Hutt sending Gorr Ebelt to control the world’s trade.
  (conjecture based on Who’s Who in Star Wars Galaxies)
• With the rise of the Empire, Nym’s homeworld of Lok comes under Imperial rule. Nym begins working against the Empire shortly thereafter.
  (conjecture based on Who’s Who in Star Wars Galaxies)
• With the rise of the Empire, Arakyd Industries becomes the Empire’s primary droid manufacturer.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
• With the rise of the Empire, Golan Arms begins to lose much of its profitable business, but does supply a limited number of weapons to Imperial forces. However, disputes between the company and the Empire will eventually push Golan Arms to join with the Rebel Alliance in their struggle against Palpatine.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
• With the rise of the Empire, Kuat Drive Yards is quickly granted many important Imperial contracts.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
• With the rise of the Empire, Merr-Sonn Munitions is able to avoid nationalization by having its holdings diversified over many subsidiaries.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
• With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine orders the razing of numerous worlds that are known for their lightsaber crystals, just to be sure that any surviving Jedi will be unable to get their hands on ready sources of new lightsabers.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
• With the rise of the Empire, the Republic credit is replaced with the Imperial credit, but it is still backed by the InterGalactic Banking Clan, without whose backing the galactic economy might collapse. The middle-man between the Muuns of Muunilinst who run the IBC and the Empire is to be Riklon Tost.
  (conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)
• With the rise of the Empire, the Empire turns the previous Republic influence over the InterGalactic Banking Clan into secret control over the IGBC, even though it is supposedly still run by its Core Vive. Control is tight and unconfirmed officially, but it is obvious to those on the planet. (Those entering the system are also under no illusions, given that the Empire has sent Moff Boyse and the Star Destroyer Exchequer to keep an eye on things and “advise” the Core Five.) This causes a growing movement of radicalized, anti-Imperial Muuns. Most will lean toward economic and corporate crimes, rather than outright violence. Meanwhile, Imperial Intelligence cells are secretly installed within the Banking Clan to drive some of its decisions in ways that are less profitable at times, yet more in keeping with Imperial goals (whatever those may be at any given time).
• With the rise of the Empire, Senator Simon Greyshade declares a state of emergency in the Commonality, allowing the Empire to seize much of the profits from Vorzyd 5 (AKA “Gambler’s World”). Imperial troops raid the Wheel, the gambling establishment, which is then turned over to Greyshade himself.

(conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)

• With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine purges all information regarding the planet Thule from galactic records. Thule and its Sith devotees will remain a tool for the Sith to use in the future, not the Empire.

(conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)

• With the rise of the Empire, the planet Orto will be taken over as a source of raw materials, and the Ortolan population will be forbidden from leaving the planet, though plenty will be taken offworld as slaves. In truth, the Ortolans will not be totally under Imperial control and will do business with both sides in the later Galactic Civil War.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

• With the rise of the Empire, the people of Pantora are split over how to deal with the new government. The society gradually divides into three primary factions: appeasers who wish to work with the Empire to gain security; traditionalists or republicans who wish to hold to the ideals of the Republic and later back the Rebellion; and expansionists who want to see Pantora expand in its own right to shore up its position, even if that means treaties with nearby slavers and spice traders, whom most Pantorans find deplorable. Left mostly alone by the Empire due to the planet’s location, the Pantorans will slowly build up a navy to deal with criminal elements in the system, though the ruling Assembly, is concerned that if it grows too large, the navy will attract Imperial suspicions.

(conjecture based on Endless Vigil)

• With the rise of the Empire, Refugee Relief Movement spokesperson, Zabrak Kaysil Verwood, realizes that she and her sister, Elibet Dav, are likely to be targets for assassination, so they go underground. They will become the first Zabraks in the movement that becomes the Rebel Alliance.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

• With the rise of the Empire, the planet Emberlene comes under attack by neighboring planets that it had forced to side with the Separatists. As a result of the attack, which is carried out by mercenaries, the planet is devastated (mostly from orbital bombardment). In the wake of this devastation, the Eleven Elders of the People on Emberlene form the Mistryl Shadow Guards to go out into the galaxy and act as bodyguards, warriors, and such, in order to help pay for the continued survival of the people of Emberlene. (The Mistryl themselves are taught a different story, though, being told that Palpatine attacked Emberlene because the planet was rebellious against him.)

(conjecture based on Hero’s Guide)

• With the rise of the Empire, Palpatine has the Jedi wing of the Galactic Museum closed off entirely. The Annals of the Republic hall is renamed “The New Order: The Glories of the Next Thousand Years.”

(conjecture based on Coruscant and the Core Worlds)

• With the rise of the Empire, Ryloth will become home to a thriving slave trade. The Force-sensitive Boc Aseca will be one of these slaves, made the manservant of Vice-Admiral Terrinald Screed.

(conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part IV: Of the Cruelest Matter)

• With the rise of the Empire, most members of the Republic Group are arrested or killed. Former Senator Des’sein survives, becoming a business consultant with Lestra Oxic, a lawyer who had once defended many people during the Clone Wars that were charged with treason by Palpatine. Oxic and Des’sein become good friends over the years.

(conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

• In the earliest days of the Empire, dissidents and malcontents on Arda II begin to band together and make alliances with other dissident groups that pass through their sector on the way to worlds like Belderone. These dissidents come under the leadership of General Ran...
Niall (an Imperial Navy officer who defects after seeing Imperial atrocities against citizens of Mon Cala, taking his ship, the Pride of Stars and his crew with him), his senior advisor Setenna Hase (who has turned on the Empire after seeing her mentor, the Ithorian philosopher Borroset, killed), and Commander Qurno (who has turned after seeing the Empire bombad cities on Ralgos). They establish a base in an abandoned mining operation on nearby Arda I. They will act against the Empire as much as possible until eventually being drawn into the Rebel Alliance after its formation. Their actions will include the Fallex Crisis, when they help the people of Fallex overthrow their Imperial governor.*

(Note: All of the Age of Rebellion materials are relatively soon after ANH, and this group has been active for "two decades" when the Onslaught at Arda I adventure takes place. Given that ANH is only 19 years after ROTS, we have to assume that the adventure must be about a year (at the very least, to keep things as close as possible to other AOR materials) after ANH, which would mean that the group formed very soon after ROTS. Of course, this is also sometimes referenced as "several" years ago, and the dates in the book are not internally consistent, so . . . take this as an approximation, at best. Setenna would only be 14 here, but the adventure says she appears older and more mature than her age and that she was born near the end of the Republic, so it makes sense . . . just barely.)

- In the earliest days of the Empire, the planet Ord Radama, a former Separatist world, comes under Imperial control. Crackdowns on dissidents will create peace on the world. The Empire will eventually put Ellor Orgraal in as governor, passing up the noteworthy father of young Var Narek. While Var's younger brother, Aleo Narek, will grow up without much memory of his family's former glory and be content to live as a shopkeeper in the capital city of Livien Magnus, Var, being the elder brother, resents family's treatment by the Empire and soon joins the rebellious cell forming on Arda I.*

(Note: All of the Age of Rebellion materials are relatively soon after ANH, and this planet has been under Imperial control for "two decades" when the Onslaught at Arda I adventure takes place. Given that ANH is only 19 years after ROTS, we have to assume that the adventure must be about a year (at the very least, to keep things as close as possible to other AOR materials) after ANH, which would mean that the planet came under Imperial control very soon after ROTS. Of course, this is also sometimes referenced as "several" years ago, and the dates in the book are not internally consistent, so . . . take this as an approximation, at best.)

- Shortly after Palpatine's creation of the Empire, opposition leaders in the Senate realize that armed resistance will eventually be required. The Empire, in order to forestall open resistance, begins restricting the purchase of heavy blaster weapons. Fortunately, the senators are able to stockpile heavy blasters, mostly SSK-7s, before the Imperial clamp down is fully in place.*

(Note: All information from this Challenge Magazine #40 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn.)

- With the Rise of the Empire, the orbital shipyard Duro Delta 12 falls to running at less than half capacity.*

(Note: This item, submitted by Luke Van Horn, is from the Bonus Orbital Shipyard Map, perhaps better known as the "web enhancement" for the Rebellion Era Sourcebook.)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Orman Tagge of TaggeCo meets Rom Mohc, a former Republic Grand Army officer and now Imperial officer. The two combine their interests in droid troopers and try to build upon the supposed failure of the L8-L9 combat droid that TaggeCo created early in the Clone Wars. Together, they develop the Z-X3 experimental droid trooper for the Empire, based on the look of stormtroopers and the concept of a hazardous environment soldier (similar to the L8-L9's mission). Unfortunately for Mohc and Tagge, the defeat of the Separatist droid army is still too fresh in people's minds, and instead of buying the Z-X3 line, the Empire creates radtrooper and zero-g spacetrooper classifications to handle the environments where the Z-X3 would have been used. The Z-X3 droids that have been built are ordered to be recycled, but many end up in private hands. As for Mohc, he will keep up his interest in droid troopers and eventually create the Dark Trooper in the era of the Battle of Yavin.

(Note: All information from this Challenge Magazine #40 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn.)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, several dozen damaged manga subfighters that have been left on Mon Calamari form their own underwater community (school), drawing energy from seafloor mining platforms operated by the Quarren. The droids form a loose affiliation with the...
Quarren, hunting ocean predators in exchange for repairs and ammunition.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- In the wake of the Clone Wars, Outland Transit Station, damaged during the raid by Montross that had killed Rozatta during his crusade against Jango Fett, is repaired and refurbished by the Besadii Hutts.
  (conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)
- With the end of the Clone Wars, demand for war materiel built on Viska declines, leading to a drop in the planet’s population and economic depression.
  (conjecture based on A Day at the Auction)
- With the end of the Clone Wars, SoroSuub Corporation ceases production of the Cutlas-9 patrol fighters that they had supplied to the Separatists.
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)
- K’cri Elban, a respected hero of the Clone Wars, retires from military duty and goes underground shortly before Palpatine’s rise to power as Emperor. He eventually establishes “K’cri’s Café” on Cloud City, and was known on the outpost as a good guy at heart.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 2: Yavin and Bespin via TimeTales, verbatim)
- Iktotch (Iktotchon) and its precognitive natives is one of the first worlds struck by the Jedi Purges. The Iktotchi attempt to pull back, but their system is blockaded.
  (conjecture based on Alien Anthology)
- During the Jedi Purges, the Quermians pull completely out of the Quermia system.
  (conjecture based on Alien Anthology)
- During the Jedi Purges, the Mecrosa Order discovers that the Sith Holocron of King Adas (recovered from Kodai by Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi and sent to the Jedi Temple archives) has been moved to the holocron library of House Pelagia. The Order’s greatest agent, Sir Nevil Tritum manages to steal it, killing the three House Pelagia Jedi Guardians of the library.
  (conjecture based on Evil Never Dies: The Sith Dynasties)
- During the Jedi Purges, Darth Vader’s raids on Force-sensitive children become merged with old stories of Corellia’s “Lord Nyax” figure.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Stand)
- Galen Derlin was one of the most famous Senators of the Old Republic, and a close friend of Bail Organa. He withdrew from politics altogether when Emperor Palpatine rose to power, returning to his homeworld of Tiisheraanin, in order to get away from the corruption of the Empire. However, he was hunted down and assassinated by Imperial forces as a reminder of the power of the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)
- With the end of the clone wars, Shadow Squadron is disbanded. One of its pilots, Shadow Eleven (Contrail) is assigned to a new unit under a non-clone officer.
  (conjecture based on Vader Adrift)
- With the end of the Clone Wars, Eedund Cus will consider himself an “unrepentant Separatist” for decades to come.
  (conjecture based on Fists of Ion)
- With the end of the clone wars, production of the Kuat Drive Yards All Terrain Reconnaissance Transport (AT-RT) comes to an end.
  (conjecture based on Savage Spirits)
- With the end of the Clone Wars, the Separatists trying to turn the remains of the Nova Defiant into a base on Innton II flee the planet, leaving the base unfinished for the Rebel Alliance to find years later.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)
- TCW DATE: With the end of the Clone Wars, Moralo Eval’s “Box” for testing bounty hunter recruits becomes a Bounty Hunter Guild testing facility on Serenno.
  (conjecture based on The Bounty Hunter Code)
- Alderaan becomes a world of peace, placing all of its remaining weapons aboard the Another Chance and sending the ship into perpetual hyperspace.
  (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)
As the Empire gains power, garrisons are placed on Zabrack-inhabited worlds, including Darth Maul’s homeworld of Iridonia. This unifies the Zabraks of each world against the Empire.

Two months after Order 66, a Jedi Master is hunted by Imperial stormtroopers on Coruscant. He is assisted by the intervention of Clone Wars veteran Nick Rostu, who is now part of a resistance movement known as Whiplash. Nick and his men are too late, though. They take out the troopers, but Piell is mortally wounded. Before dying, he gives Nick a mission to pass on to Even Piell’s former Padawan, Jax Pavan. He is to seek out the droid 10-4TO (“Bug-Eyes”), which is said to be carrying information vital to Whiplash. It is Nick’s duty to carry that message to Jax. Meanwhile, Jax has become a bounty hunter, working with Rokko the Hutt. When a deal goes back, he is forced to defend himself, revealing his Jedi abilities to escape. He grabs what he needs from his home, knowing the stormtroopers will likely be on their way soon. They arrive, but the somewhat suicidal Jax is saved by Nick, who intervenes. The two escape, and Nick gives Jax the Jedi Master’s final request. At the same time, other parties are in motion. Reporter Den Dhur is on Coruscant with I-5YQ (I-Five), the sentient droid that once belonged to Jax’s father, Lorn Pavan, and now searches for Lorn’s son. Black Sun operative Kaird is vying for a spot as a new Vigo, so that he can have the power and prestige to leave the crime world behind and return to his homeworld of Nedij, but he is competing with Prince Xizor for the title, and the fight is about to get dirty as he intends to find Bug-Eyes and discredit Xizor in the process. Darth Vader is also involved, knowing the location of Bug-Eyes and wanting Jax (specifically) captured for some unknown reason. He relays this information through his increasingly uncomfortable aide, Haninum Tyk Rhinann. Back in the Coruscant slums, Jax, now alone, enlists the aid of the Jedi-esque Gray Paladin (Force user that uses blasters and such, rather than just lightsabers) Laranth Tarak in finding Bug-Eyes. The two of them decide that the best course of action is to pay Rokko a visit and use his contacts to find the droid, intending on giving him some of the reward. Den and I-Five also decide to pay Rokko a visit when they see a recording of Jax facing off with Rokko’s goons from earlier. At the same time, Nick is ambushed and captured, then taken to meet with Rhinann, who threatens to wipe out his clan back on Haruun Kal if he does not lead Jax to Bug-Eyes (using a location provided by Vader) to be captured. At Rokko’s base, I-Five impresses Rokko with his card playing abilities, which Den is using as their way into the Hutt’s good graces. When I-Five leaves the room briefly, he runs directly into Jax, who is about to leave. He tells Jax that he knew Jax’s father, but Jax, who has only ever known the Jedi, is too bitter to listen. He pushes his way past I-Five. They are forced to all escape Rokko’s place, once he is frustrated with them all and their duplicity in coming to him. They leave, but Jax and Laranth attempt to take off without I-Five and Den. The latter catch up to the former, eventually having to flee from local authorities looking for Jax on Vader’s orders.

Neaby, Kaird, who had tried to discredit Xizor and failed, has been sent by Black Sun Underlord Perhi to take down Xizor for his overly ambitious goal of becoming the head of Black Sun. Kaird tries to assassinate Xizor, but he fails and is captured by Xizor and Bug-Eyes, whom Xizor controls. Soon, our four heroes are met by Nick, who leads them to where they find Xizor with Bug-Eyes and the captive Kaird. They then follow Xizor’s ship to the Factory District, an area crawling with feral droids (yes, droids that have gone “nuts” from neglect and alterations upon each other, among other things). Xizor has brought Kaird to see Perhi . . . sort of. He reveals an early model Human Replica Droid (HRD) of Perhi. They have come to the lab where Xizor is having such droids made to serve his purposes in taking over...
Black Sun. Xizor intends to send Kaird to kill Perhi (or make it look like that), while he returns with Bug-Eyes and his previous data as a hero. These plans are briefly interrupted when Nick breaks away from the others and steps up to Xizor, even as Vader receives data that locks their position. Vader and Rhinann (who was intending to escape from Vader’s employ, having just stolen a Sith Holocron) head for the Factory District in another vehicle. As for Nick, he thinks he can get one over on Xizor, but the Falleen uses his pheromones to influence Nick into doing his bidding and taking them to Jax and the others. Xizor stuns and captures our heroes, but in the ensuing battle of wills, all hell breaks loose. With various people trying to control Bug-Eyes with his “secret” control phrase, and Jax’s lightsaber moving from Xizor’s possession to Jax’s, even as Jax uses a lightsaber he had discovered, the brief confrontation ends with Xizor escaping, Bug-Eyes severely damaged (and his CPU taken by feral droids, with any data it might contain), Nick severely injured, and Vader on the way. They drop Jax’s lightsaber to hit the building’s power core, which should cause it to explode. As they are all escaping (including Kaird), they run headlong into Rhinann, who has escaped Vader and pleads to go with them. With no time to argue, they take him and all escape on the Far Ranger, the ship Vader had given Nick after his capture. The building explodes, but they all figure that Vader is still alive. Later, this new “team” (Jax, Laranth, Den, I-Five, Kaird, Rhinann, and a healing Nick) discuss recent events. Rhinann reveals that Bug-Eyes was always a ruse, never containing any real data at all. He does not know, though, why Vader was so obsessed with finding Jax. Jax, unknowingly handles a sample of Pyronium that was a gift from Anakin Skywalker years ago, a last reminder of Jax’s life as a Jedi. They recognize the Sith Holocron that Rhinann gives Jax as the one that Lorn tried to get his hands on years ago. After all is said and done, they intend to stay on Coruscant to fight for those in need, using Kaird’s offered funds to do so. Finally, as things die down, Jax, whose opinions have changed over the course of the mission, finally allows I-Five to tell him all about his father.

(Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal timeline: 16:7)

(Jedi Twilight)*

*NOTE: The events in this story takes place approximately two months (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith. Oddly, while almost every reference in the first few chapters places the story at two months after ROTS, the references in the chapter that introduces Jax seem to point to three months after ROTS. I have chosen to go with the more frequent time references. Moreover, Sue Rostoni has stated that the story takes place “18.8 BYB,” which (if we assume they are saying that ROTS is at 19 BBY, rather than 18.8 BBY, as the numbers actually dictate) would mean 0.2 years (or perhaps two months) after ROTS. She has, however, said that she does not think that the decimals actually mean “tenths of a year” (which is what Leland Chee says they mean), so we are left to wonder exactly what she meant by that. I should also note that the Jedi Master (who is unnamed now) was once Even Piell, but his death in The Clone Wars has caused this to be retconned to just be a Jedi Master, not Piell. Piell is still said to be Jax Pavan’s former Jedi Master, however.

- In the aftermath of his confrontation with Xizor, Jax Pavan learns all that he can about which sentient species use pheromones to manipulate other sentients.

(conjecture based on Street of Shadows)

- Two months after Order 66, the crew of the Uhumele are on Pizkoss, but they are being hunted by stormtroopers. Bomo Greenbark and “Ratty” literally run into fellow crew member Janks, just before the ship arrives to save them. However, only Bomo and Ratty escape. Janks is captured by the Imperials. In space, the crew prepares to sell their secretive cargo on Mimban, but they can’t reveal its contents to Bomo, who feels left out. As they are en route, Crys Taanzer tells him about why she hates the Jedi for taking her son (who was then presumably killed in Order 66). She doesn’t realize that he son, Kennan is alive and well with K’Kruhk and several other surviving Jedi students. Soon, the crew heads for Mimban, where they attempt to sell their secretive cargo to Haka. Haka betrays them, but then hired goon Lumbra betrays them all again. The result is an ensuing firefight. During the commotion, “Sniffles” is killed, and Lumbra gets away with the cargo. Haka captures the crew, who reveal that Lumbra stole decoy cargo, rather than the real thing. Haka then decides to torture them for information to get the real cargo. As for Lumbra, his ship sustains heavy damage when the package is opened and explodes. They are forced to seek a safe place to land, which just happens to be the jungle moon of Mimban, where K’Kruhk and the Padawans landed as well... Back at Haka’s base, Bomo lets his autonomic functions drop enough to play dead, allowing him to escape. He catches up with Crys and hatches a rescue plan...
K’Kruhk intervenes to heal her. K’Kruhk then confronts the kidnappers, killing them all to save the others, but drawing on darkness to do so. He agrees to help Case find a safe place for the younglings, but he will then leave, so that his continued presence is not a constant reminder of what he had done and the fear of him that he saw in the younglings’ eyes. On Mimban, Bomo and Crys catch up with Ratty. They free the others and kill most of Haka’s men before heading back to the ship and its mysterious cargo . . . (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal timeline: 16:7)*

(Parallels)*

*NOTE: The events in this story takes place approximately two months (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith.

- Admiral Garoche Tarkin and his command go missing on Atoa in the “Ghost Nebula” while hunting insurgents.*

(conjecture based on Darth Vader and the Lost Command)*

*NOTE: This is one month prior to DVATLC, but we don’t have an exact month for that story, since we only know that it is in 19 BBY sometime after The Hidden Blade.

- Three months after Palpatine becomes Emperor, Janks, the captured crewman from the Uhumele, is interrogated by Darth Vader about the ship and its mysterious cargo . . . Three weeks later, Captain Schurk-Heren finally reveals to Bomo Greenbark that the cargo is something called the “Jebble Box” that was found 1,400 years ago on the planet Jebble. Wars have been waged over it, but no one really knows what is inside. The crew is angry that Janks was captured and Sniffles died over this unknown “treasure” of a cargo. They intend to sell it to Fane Peturri, a historian and scholar, but Peturri turns them over to waiting Imperials, led by Vader. After viewing a recording made by Marn “Gryph” Hierogryph and Zayne Carrick nearly four millennia ago, they now know that the Jebble Box is actually Sith Lord Dreypa’soubliette, holding Celeste Morne and the Muur Talisman inside. Vader opens it, releasing Celeste from her torture of millennia, but it does not free her from the talisman, whose creator, Karness Muur, still appears to her in spirit form. She quickly questions Peturri about the state of the galaxy once she knows how long she has been “gone,” and when Peturri identifies Vader as a Sith, she draws her lightsaber and engages him in a duel. Unfortunately, Celeste alone is no match for Vader, and the spirit of Karness knows this. He urges Celeste to let Vader kill her, but she knows that this will unleash Vader on the galaxy with the Muur Talisman, dooming the galaxy to a nightmare. She is spared briefly when Vader notices Peturri trying to escape. Peturri was hired by Palpatine to spy on Vader, knowing this was an attempt by Vader to gain the power necessary to overthrow his Sith Master. Peturri doesn’t have time to die at Vader’s hands, though, as he transforms into a rakghoul under the power of the Talisman. As Heren frees himself and his comrades, Celeste allows herself to tap into the Talisman’s power to transform the assembled stormtroopers into rakghous to attack Vader. Knowing he cannot win this round, Vader escapes. Meanwhile, the crew of the Uhumele races for the safety of their ship, but Crys Taanzer, the only human of the group, and, it seems, the only one not immune to the power of the Muur Talisman, transforms into a rakghoul, forcing Heren to kill her. The rest of the crew escapes, as does Vader, leaving Celeste trapped on the planet with numerous rakghoul stormtroopers to serve her, while the spirit of Karness is just as trapped as she is . . . (This crossover series continues in the pages of Rebellion.) (Exact date, based on the LucasBooks internal timeline: 16:8 – 16:9)

(Vector)*

*NOTE: The events in this story takes place approximately three months (on a 12-month calendar) after Revenge of the Sith. It is listed as spanning into the next month, though, since everything after Janks’ interrogation is three weeks after the interrogation.

- Three weeks after Darth Vader’s encounter with Celeste Morne, surviving (yet somewhat disgraced) Jedi Knight Dass Jennir is on Cato Neimoidia, seeking work. Accompanied by H2, the former pilot droid of Dezono Qua (the man who killed Bomo Greenbark’s daughter and ate her on Esseles, who was then killed by Dass), he knocks out others who are seeking a job from a woman named Ember Chankeli. She hires Dass to clear out unsavory elements from her hometown on Telerath, which is a job Dass accepts when he learns that there are slavers involved. Dass heads for Telerath, even as Darth Vader arrives back on Coruscant for the first time in 50 days. More importantly, it is now three weeks after he tried to recruit Celeste Morne, and he fears that Emperor Palpatine may know of his disloyal act. Palpatine does not mention it, though he taunts Vader with the fact that Dass Jennir, a Jedi, was once a member of the Uhumele's crew. He sends Vader to Bandomeer to crush a rebellious group of miners. Dass arrives on Telerath at Noua, where he gains the loyalty (through extra credits) of a local transport boat pilot, Fish. Apparently the area is overrun by spice runners and slavers (only the latter of which Ember mentioned). Dass heads for where the slavers are using combat to enlist new members, though few can stand up to Demanna, the slavers' top warrior. When a young man, Dado, tries to fight Demanna, Dass interferes with a blaster, not realizing that blasters are not allowed, only swords. When one of the slavers tries to kill Dass with his own blaster (even though he knows better than to use one), Demanna kills him, then punishes Dado by cutting off his right hand. The auditions are done for the day, but Dass still plans to join the slavers in order to destroy their organization from the inside. Meanwhile, Darth Vader is on Bandomeer, troubled by Palpatine's choice not to originally make him privy to Dass Jennir's survival. Speaking of Dass, he speaks with Ember about both the slavers and local spice-runners, but she seems only concerned about the slavers. He is expected to lay low, but after helping Dado's mother take care of the injured boy for a bit, Dass decides to go check out the spice-running operation on the second moon of Telerath. He has no idea that Ember is actually in league with the spice-runners and their leader, Ken-Kiba. He also does not know that Demanna has spoken with Boss Musori of the slavers about trying to hire Dass (which is what he wants) or kill him if he refuses to join them. When Dass arrives at the moon facility of the spice-runners, he finds that there are several Nosaurian slaves there (the very ones Dass came to save!). He takes on a bunch of Ken-Kiba's thugs with a blaster, considering that after years of being a peacekeeper, he will now become a peacemaker. He takes out the thugs, then frees the Nosaurians, who are allowed to leave with the spice-runners' ships to start a new life elsewhere. As for Dass, he uses a knife to send the spice-runners a message. On Bandomeer, Darth Vader discovers that the stormtroopers (or clone troopers at least) have a contingency order (like Order 66) to take Vader out one day if necessary . . . Back on Telerath, Ember is angry that Dass was out all night, but then she is happily surprised to see that Dass has been met by Demanna, who offers him a job and takes him to meet Boss Musori. He manages to prove himself, only to immediately purposely insult both Demanna and Musori before leaving. Later, Ken-Kiba's goons from the other gang bring Dass to meet with Ken-Kiba, whom he tells that the slavers destroyed their refinery (which Dass himself, of course, destroyed). It looks like his plans to start a gang war are going as expected. Meanwhile, Dado leaves his mother to sell Dass out to Musori by telling him that Dass is working for Ember. Elsewhere, on the planet Kidron, the crew of the Uhumele deal with the losses of Crys Taanzer, Janks, and "Sniffles." Bomo Greenbark is disgusted with captain Schurk-Herens' drunkenness and wishes that somehow they would be able to reuni ted with Dass. Bomo is soon approached by Deyghor Sahdett, who notes that they have a mutual acquaintance . . . Back on Telerath, Dass returns to the hotel, only to learn that Dado has run off to join the slavers. He stops Dado before he can join them, just as the slaver gang attacks the spice-running gang in the very conflict that Dass had intend to use to save the community from both gangs. Musori is captured by Ken-Kiba (who is angry over the loss of his brother at the refinery). Demanna escapes. However, before Musori can be killed, Ember arrives and reveals the truth about Dass setting them all up. Ken-Kiba's men confront Dass at the hotel and beat him up, but he escapes through a trap door to be recovered by Fish, his local guide. Ember and the others in the hotel are locked up by Ken-Kiba as co-conspirators with Dass, and his men are ordered to find Dass. Dass awakens in Fish's home, where he is updated on where everyone is currently located, then cuts his hair, shaves off his beard, and retrieves his lightsaber from H2, who has been shot by Ken-Kiba's men and barely returned with Dass' own sword (and the lightsaber inside of him). When Ken-Kiba and his men take Fish prisoner, Dass races away to free all of the prisoners from the gang. He is confronted upon finding Ember by Demanna, who wants satisfaction for the dishonor Dass has brought upon him. Dass, back in Jedi mode, tries to let Demanna leave, but he draws his sword, forcing Dass to disarm him (literally cutting off the lower part of his sword arm). He lets both Demanna and Ember live, then heads for where Ken-Kiba has Fish held for interrogation. He saves Fish from whipping, then ignites his lightsaber to engage the full might of Ken-Kiba's force. Meanwhile, back on Kidron, the mysterious Deyghor Sahdett has revealed himself to be a Jedi, an acquaintance of Dass. When Imperials attempt to attack the crew for their associations with Dass, Sahdett saves them with some lightsaber combat. The crew may have another Jedi aboard after all . . . (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal timeline: 16:9)

(Blue Harvest)*

*NOTE: The events in this story begin approximately three weeks (on a 12-month calendar) after Darth Vader’s encounter with Celeste Morne in Vector, placing it just shy of 5 months after ROTS. (The fourth issue also confirms that it has been “four short months” since the Empire declared victory and peace.) One should note that this summary includes both the regular Dark Times: Blue Harvest issues and the two online prequel segments that were originally found on MySpace Dark Horse Presents and were later reprinted as Blue Harvest #6.

- Approximately 17 days prior to meeting Ember Chankeli, Maddie and her brother Yan are outside on Prine when a slaver raiding party comes. Yan is killed, and Maddie is taken captive with the slaver caravan.

(conjecture based on Out of the Wilderness)

- Dass Jennir and Ember Chankeli leave Telerath for the Vondarc system. They are attacked by an Imperial warship, the Harvester, and forced to crash on Prine. (To be continued below . . . ) (Exact date of the start of this story, based on the LucasBooks internal timeline: 16:9)

(Out of the Wilderness)*

*NOTE: The This takes place two weeks before Out of the Wilderness, just after Blue Harvest. I am treating it as a separate summary because there is such a gap between both parts.

- Darth Vader learned that his prisoner, Janks, had been with Dass Jennir, one of the last of the Jedi. Before he can act, however, the former refueling depot (now prison) ISO-L8 is infiltrated by assassin Falco Sang and his droid. Sang finds and kills Janks, then escapes, even as Darth Vader himself arrives and seeks to stop him. Two days later, the crew of the Uhumele (and the Jedi Deyghor Sahdett) arrives on Telerath, site of Dass Jennir’s latest exploits. They meet Fish, Dass’ old ally on the world, and they learn that Dass and Ember Chankeli had left two weeks earlier to go to the Vondarc system, where Ember claimed to have family. Unbeknownst to the others, Dass and Ember were forced to crash land on Prine, where they have been for two weeks. One night, Ember, fed up with being stranded, finally reveals to Dass that she has no family on Vondarc. She simply wanted to use its busy port city to start a new brothel business. Annoyed with each other, they stop and make camp, but they do remain together for survival. On Coruscant, Vader reports back to Palpatine, who is angered that he interrogated Janks to seek information about Dass. The Emperor has his own plans to deal with the remaining Jedi, but he does allow Vader to go after the assassin who killed Janks (Sang, whose identity is currently a mystery to the tale’s other players) because Sang used Imperial databanks to search for Janks’ location, indicating a security breach. Sang, meanwhile, arrives on Prine, having tracked Dass’ ship. The killer sets out to find Dass. On Vondarc, the Uhumele crew breaks into the local Imperial outpost and steals sector logs that can help them find Dass. Back on Prine, Ember runs afoul of a group of slavers while Dass is checking on their surroundings, forcing him to plan a rescue. Ember meets a fellow captive, Maddie, who tries to take care of Ember while in the slave caravan. Elsewhere, the crew of the Uhumele uses the data they stole to track Dass to Prine. Sang, already on Prine, nearly catches Dass (even as Vader learns of the data theft on Vondarc). Dass, however, has as mission of his own; he charges at the convoy, lightsaber blazing, to rescue Ember. He reaches their vehicle, but Sang reveals his position by saving Dass by taking out a slave (because no one is to kill Dass but Sang). Upon reaching Ember and being introduced to Maddie, Dass is interrupted when Sang takes out a repulsorlift on the vehicle, causing Ember to fall over the side, still in her chains. With Sang closing in, Dass is forced (and ordered by Ember) to escape with Maddie and H2, leaving Ember behind. Sang takes Ember prisoner to use as bait to draw Dass back in. During one conversation, he suggests that they act like they are married and/or in love. As Dass helps Maddie leave for safety, H2 (based on comments from Maddie) asks Dass the same question. Finally, that night, Dass finds Ember tied up as bait, as Sang’s droid aims his rifle to take out Dass upon approach. A figure that is apparently Dass approaches, moving right into the trap. It is actually H2, who is blasted out of the air, as Dass goes after Sang himself. Dass subdues him, and he reveals that he was hired by the family of Dezono Qua (the man who killed Bomo Greenbark’s daughter and ate her on Esseles, who was then killed by Dass) to go after Dass, and he was using H2, who was once Qua’s droid, to keep track of him without H2’s knowledge. H2 had stopped transmitting briefly on Telerath, but Dass was still using Qua’s ship, which also allowed him to be tracked. Sang mocks Dass by bragging about killing Janks of the Uhumele crew, then has his droid fire on Ember. H2 flies in to the way, taking most of the blast, allowing only some of it to reach the pole Ember is tied to, which it goes through to hit her in the back. When the droid is about to shoot Dass as he mourns Ember, he deflects the shot back, destroying the droid. Sadly, Dass was never strong in Jedi healing arts. As Sang tries to run away, Dass cannot heal Ember. Others are on the way, however. Dass awakens from collapsing in grief and injuries aboard the Uhumele, which arrived shortly after he passed out. He is reunited with the crew and forgiven by Bomo Greenbark, though he has to reveal that Janks is indeed dead. Bomo reveals that Sniffles and Crys Tanzeer are also dead. Bomo also reveals, though, that their new Jedi ally (whom Dass never really knew before), Sahdeet, has managed to heal Ember! As things wind down aboard the ship, Ember and Dass express their feelings for each other, and the crew fill him in on their recent adventures, including the menace that is Darth Vader. Speaking of Vader, he arrives at the site of Dass’ crash to find Sang, who he Force chokes, promising an interrogation about Dass in the days to come . . .

(Out of the Wilderness)

NOTE: The events in this story begin approximately 4 months (on a 12-month calendar) after ROTS.

- A few months after the “disappearance” of the Sa Nalaor (its actual crash on Cholganna), rumors begin to circulate about the ship that paint it as a Confederacy treasury ship, loaded with credits, precious metals, and high-ranking Separatists. Adventurers will search for the ship for two decades to no avail. Most believe that the ship disappeared into Wild Space. (conjecture based on Beyond the Rim)

- Imperial HoloVision presents a new casualty report on Jedi traitors, based on a document entitled Casualty Report: Order 66 presented to Palpatine includes: Plo Koon; Aayla Secura; Ki-Adi-Mundi; Stass Allie; Luminara Unduli; Barriss Offee; Traavis; Jocasta Nu; Cin Drallig; Whie Marleaux; Zett Jukassa; Tsui Choi; Bultar Swan; Koffi Arana; and Roan Shryne. (Exact date of report via Imperial HoloVision: 16:9:28) (conjecture based on Casualty Report: Order 66)

- Approximately two months before the death of Ves Volette, Ves and his partner, Dejah Duare, relocate to Coruscant.*

NOTE: This date is a rough one, given that it is difficult to accurately place Street of Shadows in relation to dates provided by Sue Rostoni and Typho’s involvement in Death on Naboo.

- After only a few months with Imperial Intelligence, having once worked for Republic Intelligence, Lorz Geptun leaves Imperial service. He has learned a bit of the truth behind the so-called “Jedi Rebellion” and wants no part of the Empire. He becomes an information broker, but he will eventually join the Rebel Alliance. (conjecture based on Luke Skywalker and the Shadows of Mindor)

- On Coruscant, Darth Vader endures maintenance on his cybernetic body parts, during which he fantasizes about life with Padmé Amidala and the son he now believes was never born. He is called before Emperor Palpatine, where he is given a new mission. Moff Wilhuff Tarkin’s son, Admiral Garoche Tarkin, has gone missing (as of one month earlier) with his Star Destroyer in the “Ghost Nebula” (the Atoan System) while hunting insurgents. Vader is to find him, but Tarkin is not happy with the choice of Vader as Palpatine’s agent, thanks to Vader losing the AT-AT factory on Otavon XII due to his obsession with destroying the remaining Jedi. Vader is sent to find Garoche Tarkin along with two battalions of the 501st (under Commander Voca) and Captain Shale. They arrive at Atoa and blast their way through local resistance before meeting a strange woman: the Lady Saro, High Priestess of Atoa, who offers to help them find whatever they seek. Vader orders dissections of Atoans to learn their biological secrets, and Saro offers to help them find Garoche if Vader declares her queen of the Ghost Nebula. Captain Shale is less agreeable than Vader, but Vader asserts his dominance (for now, at least). In dreams, though, Vader is still haunted by what might have been, including having dreams/visions of himself and Padmé convincing the Republic to make Anakin their new Jedi ruler, with their son, Jinn, at their side. (Remember: Anakin didn't know that Padmé would have twins, just that she was pregnant.) He decides to agree to Saro's demands, so long as she pledges loyalty to the Emperor. She agrees, and they take starfighters up to Garoche's ship, which seems to have been damaged heavily from the inside. They are attacked by several starfighters, but Vader captures and interrogates one pilot. He learns that Garoche is being held on an unnamed world covered in oceans of hot tar. In conversation with Palpatine, though, the two Sith decide that Wilhuff Tarkin would be a stronger ally if his son were to die in the line of duty, as hate would consume him. Vader orders Voca to prepare for their ground assault as a distraction, as the true strike will be a stealth attack. The attack goes off as planned, but, with many of the frontal assault forces destroyed, Vader is surprised to find Tarkin gone for at least a week. A protocol droid with a bomb is all that has been left for them. They take over the entire floating city, then destroy it as a lesson, as Vader considers charges against Tarkin. He awakens that night to find Captain Shale's storm commandos ambushing him in his quarters. Vader kills the commandos, but not before learning that Shale has gone into the heart of the system to find Garoche and save him from Vader, whom Shale rightly believes intends to kill the admiral. Before they can go after Shale, the Star Destroyer is rocked by explosions — sabotage. Before abandoning ship, they try to take Lady Saro with them, only to find that Shale has already taken her. Only Vader, Voca, and nine of Voca's troopers survive to land on the surface, where they then come under attack by Shale's men. Two men with flamethrowers attack Vader, weakening him enough for Saro to blast him with a stunner, while Voca's men are killed by Shale and his troopers. Vader awakens as prisoner of Garoche, who claims to be in mutual love with Saro, who will now rule the system (with Garoche at her side), now that Vader has been duped into wiping out her political rivals. In chains, Vader has a vision of Padmé (which has happened a lot during this mission), who tries to leave him there alone. He rages against this and frees himself, then battles his way through Saro's guards, defeating Shale, while Saro and Garoche head for safety. Shale activates a bomb vest he wears, nearly killing Vader with him, and then Vader gives chase. While trying to catch up with Saro and Garoche, he again encounters a vision of Padmé, who confronts him with how he killed her. Vader admits to killing her, killing Anakin (so to speak), and hating himself for what he has done. She vision of Padmé forgives him, but then he learns that it was actually Saro messing with his mind, ever since the mission began. Seeing others' pain and where they need forgiveness is her gift. Saro tries to convince Vader to let her and Garoche go, if not for them or Vader's sake, then for Saro's unborn child (presumably Garoche's child). Vader refuses, Force choking Garoche to death, then bringing down the tunnels around them, burying all three of them. Saro, Garoche, and their unborn child die in the destruction, and Vader is recovered days later, returned to Coruscant, and congratulated for his success. Garoche Tarkin's father is now even more devoted to the New Order, and Vader is ready for his next mission.

\textit{(Darth Vader and the Lost Command)}

- After an extremely fast curriculum, the first graduates from the six Imperial Academies (Carida, Corulag, Raithal, Arkanis, Prefsbelt IV, and Coruscant) are ready for their special graduation ceremony on Coruscant. Cadet Laurita Tohm is the valedictorian from Raithal, honored as such by Headmaster General Gentis at the ceremony. (Gentis is a hero of the Clone Wars, who face off with the Confederacy's Burning Ember armor division and won. He also evacuated 6,000,000,000 people from Mirak Major and executed the three Jedi with him personally when the Jedi plot to overthrow Palpatine was discovered.) After graduating, Laurita (who has burn wounds on his face) is promoted to Lieutenant. During a night out after the ceremony, Laurita's friends, Shen and Caul, convince him to stay out for an hour to socialize. While out, he encounters Gentis, who gives him his new assignment to Grand Moff Tarkin's fleet, a project so secret that even Gentis does not know what it is. Gentis orders Caul and Shen (both Ensigns now) to keep an eye on Laurita so that he is safe to take his new position. Caul and Shen convince Laurita to sneak down to where TIE fighter prototypes are berthed, so that they can take them on an unauthorized "test flight" that might be Laurita's only chance to be a starfighter pilot. Laurita enters one, but then his friends lock him in and leave, supposedly to keep him out of trouble. He is forced to use the prototype’s ejection seat to escape and finds himself landing amid a terrorist attack. Hundreds of Imperials are being killed by masked attackers. In this battle, he sees Darth Vader in action and understands how he could inspire a man to feel invincible alongside him. As the battle rages, Laurita removes the facemask from a fallen attacker, only to discover that it is Shens, who, barely alive, tells Laurita that if he was ever truly loyal to Headmaster Gentis, Laurita must help Shens and the attackers to complete their plot . . . to kill Emperor Palpatine . . . Laurita refuses, joining Vader in seeking out the Emperor. They find him in his chamber, the victim of a necrotic virus that has been released by the conspirators. Apparently, Gentis has corrupted most of his students to his side, intending on killing the Emperor to stop him from sending any other soldiers to their deaths like cannon fodder. Trachta, a third individual with a breathing mask (alongside Laurita and Vader), is there with the Emperor and insists (as the Emperor agrees) that they must get Palpatine away from Coruscant to heal. They know, though, that they cannot go to any Imperial world, since they have no idea where else Gentis’ treachery has spread. Before they can leave aboard Darth Maul’s reclaimed Scimitar (Sith Infiltrator), Gentis and Vader travel to the Jedi Temple, now closed. There, they access a recording of Anakin Skywalker (Vader, though Laurita doesn’t know this) questioning the Jedi Council about why many of the major Separatist leaders he has captured during the Clone Wars are vanishing without a trace after being turned over to the Council. From the recording, they learn that the secret Jedi prison (since the Second Great Schism), known as Prism, can be found in the mass shadow of the sixth moon of Diab. To Vader (i.e. Anakin), this proves that the Jedi were keeping secrets and scheming against the Republic, since they did not trust to even reveal this to the Supreme Chancellor. En route to Diab in the Scimitar, Trachta and Laurita share their own sources of disfigurement. In Laurita’s case, it was a Separatist attack that killed his family at their tibanna gas facility. In Trachta’s case, he was disfigured by the thermal detonator of a Jedi who had joined Dooku’s Separatists. From Coruscant, Gentis contacts other Imperial leaders, claiming to have clamped down on the attackers and having gotten Palpatine to a secure location to recover. Much to Gentis’ annoyance, Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin intends to come take command on Coruscant until the Emperor recovers. Soon, Vader, Trachta, and Laurita discover the Prism space station. They kill the single incommunicado Jedi there and take down the station’s various guardian droids then get Palpatine to medical treatment for the virus, identified as the Aorth-6 virus. While viewing prisoner records, Laurita notes that Anakin Skywalker captured about half of the prisoners, which prompts Vader to praise Anakin (himself) as one of the Jedi’s most skilled generals. When asked what happened to Anakin, Vader lies (or tells the truth “from a certain point of view”) and claims to have killed Anakin himself. As Palpatine recovers, Trachta finds the Jedi who disfigured him among the prisoners and begins to savagely beat him. Laurita also hatches a plan, which he presents to Vader: they can retake Coruscant if Vader will allow him to release all of the Prism prisoners. Laurita’s plan is to offer them all pardons if they help, but Vader instead turns them loose to attack each other in a fight to the death, where only the survivors will join them for a chance at freedom. Laurita is saved from General Ur’Loach by Captain Shonn Volta, a Separatist sniper. (She was caught during a plot to assassinate Riyo Chuchi). Vader recruits imprisoned Jedi-hunter Baron Nax Cirvan, a former Jedi himself. Out of 207 prisoners, 33 emerge ready to fight, while 174 were left dead on the floor. Trachta notes to Laurita that he can only be a pawn to Vader, who is himself a blunt instrument. Trachta offers him a chance to lead alongside Trachta one day, if he ever come around to that realization himself. Meanwhile, Gentis makes plans to capture Tarkin when he arrives at Coruscant. He will then be interrogated for information about the Death Star, then executed. The plan is then to announce the Emperor dead and have Gentis’ allies declare him the new Emperor. In speaking with Volta, with whom he is intrigued; Laurita learns of her skills in plotting space routes. They make plans to intercept Tarkin. Later, when Tarkin’s shuttle arrives on Coruscant, it has already been intercepted by Vader’s team. They emerge from hiding to attack Gentis’ forces. In the battle that ensues, Laurita himself kills Cadet Caul Gentis, the headmaster’s last remaining son (as the others have been sent to their deaths on missions for the Emperor, prompting this rebellion). Palpatine, emerging from the shuttle healed, fries Gentis with Force lightning, ending his insurrection. Gentis’ followers are all executed. Trachta is promoted to Grand Moff. Trachta intends to give the Ghost Prison prisoners their freedom, while Vader wants them eliminated as a threat. Laurita suggests sending them into the Corporate Sector with warnings never to return, on pain of death. When they take off, however, the ship explodes, set to do so by Laurita on orders from Vader, much to Trachta’s anger. Laurita is promoted to Admiral and plans to live on to serve the Emperor with Volta as his companion and junior officer. Unfortunately for Laurita Tohm, the Emperor has suggested to Vader that Laurita could make a good second-in-command if Vader were to ever fail. Thus, Vader calls Laurita to a final meeting, during which he provides his final lesson – to never suffer rivals. He then hurls Laurita over the railing high above Coruscant to his death.*

(Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison)*

*NOTE: This is a few months after ROTS, but we are given no more specific date. A reference to the events of Darth Vader and the Lost Command puts this at least after that story and likely before In His Image.

- A wealthy man whose son was killed by Darth Vader when he violently interrupted Vader’s forced renegotiation of his family’s mining operation contracts, seeks out a ninth assassin to send after Vader, having already sent eight others. (Three were killed before reaching Vader, one was killed by Vader himself, and the other four either took his money and ran or died as well.) He takes a security team into the secret lair of the assassin he wishes to hire, so that he can see the assassin for himself. He claims to like to see those he works with, which provides the assassin with a payment idea. The assassin agrees to go after Vader for payment up front, which includes taking both of the employer’s eyes and ears. Soon, a Venator Star Destroyer picks up a mysterious pod, which holds a suicide bomber, who blows up in the hangar, only for the pod to have a tracking device that allows a large energy beam from the moon below to blast the Star Destroyer and literally cut it in half. On Coruscant, Darth Vader is called before the Emperor, only to immediately Force push Palpatine out of the way and send his throne out of the window, where it explodes from a bomb placed on it. After killing several of the Imperial Guards who failed to protect Palpatine, Vader orders the rest to secrecy and heads out to confront whomever is behind this plot, someone so powerful in the Dark Side that it is clouding the Sith’s ability to foresee such acts against the Empire. Several days later, Vader enters a cantina, where he confronts a pilot whom he suspects in bringing the bomb to Coruscant. The suspect turns out to be another suicide bomber, who explodes as Vader tosses him away, all while being observed by the “ninth assassin.”

Palpatine, via comm, reveals to Vader that the symbol on the bomber’s chest (a heinsnake) is from an ancient cult that is said to have been dead for eons. It was said to possess powerful “dark magic” and to have been based at a temple on a small moon that was abandoned thousands of years ago due to “abnormalities.” Vader heads for the moon (the site of the Venator bombing and destruction), where he and two Imperial Guards face jungle creatures before finding a graveyard of at least two crashed Venator Star Destroyers (and the most recent one still as debris in orbit). By the time Vader reaches the ruins (with the same circular heinsnake symbol as on the terrorists), one Guard is dead at the hands of a creature, and another, left behind, has been killed by the assassin, who stalks Vader but decides to wait for Vader to leave the ruins to make his move. The ruins turn out to be occupied and in better shape than it appeared inside. Inside, he meets a priest who calls the place the Temple of the Headless Snake. The priest shows him the weapon that was used to blast ships in orbit, which is referred to as the Basis. It provides protection, energy for growing crops, and more. He then shows Vader wall drawings from thousands of years before the Headless Snake followers came to the planet. The markings show a being that looks like Vader killing two snakes and cutting off the head of a third. The first two die, yet the one without a head lives on forever. He visits the High Priests, who elaborate that they believe Vader to be the one who can slay the Jedi and Empire “snakes” and finally bring chaos to the galaxy, as they desire. Vader takes the “Empire snake” talk as treason and orders them to admit their role in the assassination attempt on Palpatine, but they simply bow and await death without admitting anything. They believe it will give even stronger belief to their brothers. He orders them to show him how the Basis works, for which he must undergo a purification ritual. During the ritual, he is shown a vision of watching himself kill Obi-Wan and Palpatine, then essentially ruling the galaxy with his chest plate replaced by the Headless Snake symbol. The High Priest claims to offer Vader freedom: no masters, no codes, no empires, just the use of his own powers for his own glory and to create the chaos that is ultimate freedom. He is finally taken to where custodians watch over the strange Basis beam, which emanates from a large circle in the ground, beneath a large focusing crystal that Vader first believed was the Basis itself. In the circle, there is a crystal of some kind, which seems to also help focus the beam. Vader takes the crystal, which seems to be needed as part of a sequence of them, as in lightsabers. He takes it, knowing it can amplify the power of such a beam by a factor of trillions. The prophecy reads that when the three stars align, as they are now, Vader will “bring glorious chaos to all who seek it.” Well, the order seems to be seeking chaos, so he walks away, taking the crystal and misaligning their focusing device, which causes the Basis beam to wreak havoc on the temple, blowing it to bits and killing the followers inside. The powerful Basis continues its destructive torrent, beginning to destabilize the entire moon. Amid that chaos, the assassin pursues Vader, but he is spotted and tries to escape to his ship, where Vader intercepts him. A brief physical battle ensues, in which Vader utterly defeats the assassin with what seems to be little effort. Vader then steals the assassin’s ship to escape the moon as it explodes. Vader uses its flight data to go to the site where the wealthy man had hired the assassin and kills the assassin’s middleman. He then meets with Palpatine at an undisclosed “safe” location and turns over the crystal. Palpatine will send the crystal to Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin to use with the Death Star project. As Vader leaves, tracks down, and kills the assassin’s employer, Palpatine knows that Vader is truly loyal to him for as long as he allows Vader to serve him. He has had his chance to sew chaos and be his own master, and he has chosen obedience instead.*

(Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin)*

*NOTE: This is a few months after ROTS, but we are given no more specific date. No, the assassin, the wealthy man, the assassin’s middleman, the moon, and the doomed Star Destroyer are never given names. Yes, that’s asinine.

- Clonetrooper CT-5539, now calling himself “Hock Malsuum,” left for dead by a Jedi General after receiving a blaster wound to his face and falling from a Republic gunship, hears stories about Darth Vader, someone who seems to hate the Jedi as much as he does. He leaves his work on a farm (on the world where he was abandoned), having worked off any debt to the farmer there who helped him months ago, and goes on a quest to find Vader. His first stop is a town that is having an Imperial celebration for having captured a Cerean Jedi. He soon enlists with the Imperial military, becoming a stormtrooper. His actions gain the attention and praise of his superiors. He is promoted to the rank of commander and earns Vader’s trust. Soon, the “Shrouded Offensive” begins on the planet Ostor in the Outer Rim. A Separatist society there is to be brought into the Empire. Vader commands the mission, but he stays on his Star Destroyer, does not order reconnaissance (out of overconfidence), and he puts General Rohn in charge of the ground forces. Hock is among the ground forces on foot, so close to the enemy that he can see the local Separatist leader, General Atticus Farstar. When Rohn takes an insult as bait and sends in the troops, Hock realizes that it is a trap, but Rohn will not pull back. In an attempt to save the rest of the troops, Hock gets aboard Rohn’s walker and kills him, but by the time that happens, his Imperial ground troops have been decimated by Farstar’s people. When Vader and Hock are brought before the Emperor to answer for the failure on Ostor, Hock lies to cover for Vader by blaming Rohn for the lack of recon. The Emperor accepts that Rohn was the reason for the defeat and orders a more personal approach next time. As they leave, Vader asks Hock to be his wingman in a starfighter during their next strike on Ostor. Vader continues to put more trust in Hock. When the new battle commences, Vader (in a black Eta-2 Actis-class light interceptor) and Hock (in a V-wing), lead ARC-170s in the air, while ground troops proceed as well. The people of Ostor have an energy shield over their city, though, and they now have allies, who fly V-19 Torrent starfighters. When most of the Torrents leave the battle, Vader realizes that he has left the Star Destroyer above without starfighter cover. He takes most of the ARC-170s back to defend the ship, while Hock leads the rest of the starfighters to cover the ground forces. Hock takes it upon himself to go after the ace pilot of the lead Torrent. The pilot, who turns out to be Kaddock, shoots Hock down. Hock awakens with his wounds cared for. He is inside the city in the enemy base. He speaks with the three leading from the control room: Lima Starcourt (a lawyer from Coruscant who was too big on individual rights for the Empire), Reebo Keen (one of the first settlers on Ostor), and Phootla Veer (a minor celebrity who came to Ostor seeking peace and quiet). They argue the case for freedom and democracy, while Hock argues for the unity the Empire can bring. Hock grabs a pipe to attack the trio, but they note that others would just take their place to give leadership and hope. Hock drops the pipe but then heads for their power center, where a few disrupted power lines knock out the city's shield. As Kaddak leads citizens out to stand against Vader and his clonetroopers that are marching on the city, Hock grabs Kaddak by the shoulder, only then starting to realize that Kaddak is not the monster he once thought he was, just an independent clone. The two fight in such a spectacle that even Vader holds back his troops a moment to allow it to play out. Kaddak, fighting for a cause, nearly beats Hock, until Hock, fighting for survival (something he is familiar with) kills him with a rock. Vader then helps Hock back up, and the battle proceeds. However, it is an absolute slaughter, of a kind that starts to change Hock's view of the Empire and Vader. When Vader finally reaches the room where Hock had awoken alongside other injured soldiers from the other side, Hock is at his side. Hock tries to simply order the veterans to give up peacefully, but a triple amputee that Hock met upon waking makes a point of sitting up in the face of Vader's gaze, as do everyone else, even those without limbs or any ability to fight. Vader kills two of them, but Hock yells for him to stop. He tosses down his blaster and tries to convince Vader not to act, but Vader merely pauses a moment before continuing. Hock, for his part, walks away in disgust. In the years to come, he will be a farmer, not a soldier, marrying a woman named Telia. He will write a journal of his experiences, but once his story is complete (and Telia is pregnant), he will give up that past and burn the journals. Hock is truly his own man now.

(Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows)*

*NOTE: The dates for this story are both vague and contradictory. The credits page says, "The events in this story take place several months before and a few months after the events in" ROTS. (Yes, it says "events...takess," so subject-verb agreement is out the window.) That would suggest that the story's present is around this time, probably after Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin, the writer's previous Vader story. The credits page info would then put the flashbacks to the Clone Wars sometime in the year before ROTS. However, there is a point in the story where Hock's narration says that by the time he left the farm to go look for Vader, he hadn't fired a blaster in "more than two years," which, even if referring to the battle in the flashback (so he never fired a blaster after that), certainly puts the flashbacks over a year before ROTS. (The information simply doesn't match up.) I am, for now, taking the story's word for its timing, not the credits page, since the story's information would fit with the early version of the clonetrooper armor seen in the flashbacks. I should also note that the "present" part of the story has some of its own very vague jumps in time, such as between Hock returning to civilization and then very quickly being shown as a stormtrooper getting a promotion in the span of issue #2.

- Jedi Master K’Kruhk, Padawan Chase Piru, and the Younglings whom K’Kruhk saved in the wake of Order 66 arrive at the planet Arkinnea in the Expansion Region, looking for sanctuary. They crash down on the planet, claiming that the younglings are orphans, under the care of K’Kruhk and Piru, whose ship was attacked by pirates. They meet local Imperial Commander Teron and Captain Relik, who is over the handling of refugees for Arkinnea. Supposedly, they will eventually have a number chosen among the refugees, so that they can be relocated to the Freeland for colonization. Meanwhile, Darth Vader is on Coruscant, where rebuilding is taking place after Gentis’ failed coup. Under Vader’s orders, Lieutenant Gregg has been putting Falco Sang, the bounty hunter captured while hunting Dass Jennir. Vader also has the Empire looking out for the Uhumele in an attempt to find Dass, but he has not yet been found. On Arkinnea, K’Kruhk and the group are unexpectedly reunited with Jedi Master Zao, who recognizes that there is a danger at the refugee camp, and they must soon flee to protect the younglings, who may be the future of the Jedi Order. They sneak out of the refugee camp that evening, but Relik sends his goons after them. They eventually find themselves in a valley where it appears that the refugees have not been resettled; instead, Relik’s men (without the Empire’s knowledge, it seems) have been killing and dumping the refugees, rather than truly helping them. (Apparently, the militia is taking out their anger against their world’s treatment by the Separatists upon anyone they please, including those who were Republic citizens during the war.) The sight of the dead causes youngling Sidirri to learn toward the Dark Side, something that is only increased when they witness another ship full of refugees being dumped with no way to save them. When the militia pilots spot them below, they attack, forcing K’Kruhk to help Zao and the others escape, then lead the militia away on his own. He finally uses the Force to cause the militia ship to crash to a fiery explosion. Meanwhile, Teron’s request for additional resources has been denied on Coruscant (by an indifferent Darth Vader), so he contacts his fellow officer, Captain Denimoor on the Tenacious, enlisting his aid in the name of the general they served together under on Saleucami. (Even after the Tenacious diverts to Arkinnea, Vader does not care to know about it, since it seemingly has nothing to do with hunting Jedi.) As the militia closes in on Zao, Piri, and the others, K’Kruhk takes out militia on his own, then races to help them, even as the larger Jedi group makes a stand with the surprise assistance of beastly native creatures (the “wild men”). The larger group is protected in escaping by Zao, who raises a large chunk of stone as a shield, but then Sidirri, heavily traumatized by these experiences, uses the Force to push it over to squash the militiamen. The wild men then bow to the “J’ehdai.” Near the dumping site for the refugees, Teron and Denimoor observe from a gunship, recognizing that the militia have much to answer for. Denimoor’s Tenacious and various gunships and starfighters come into the atmosphere, arresting the militia for the murder of Imperial citizens. As they are taken away, Teron stays behind and meets with K’Kruhk, who has been observing from nearby. He reveals to K’Kruhk the circumstances of Order 66, the deaths of younglings at the Jedi Temple, and the notion that while the Empire is crushing any dissenting voices, there are many in the military who fought alongside the Jedi and believe that they are not enemies of the Empire, but that the Empire is an enemy of the rightful Republic. Each year, Teron says that he will bring supplies to K’Kruhk and the other Jedi on the planet, so that they can live in peace and survive. Their survival gives Teron hope, just as an Imperial officer with honor gives K’Kruhk hope. When contacted by Lt. Gregg to see why the Tenacious diverted to Arkinnea, Denimoor makes him seem ridiculous for even suggesting that a Jedi might have been involved, thereby helping protect them as well. With the help of the wild men, these Jedi will create a new, safe place to live in what was once an Old Republic era Jedi enclave on the planet. (To be continued below . . .)

(Fire Carrier)“

*NOTE: The events in this story begin approximately 4 months (on a 12-month calendar) after ROTS. This story also references The Hidden Blade and Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison, guaranteeing that it takes place after those tales.

- Now reunited with the crew of the Uhumele, Jedi Dass Jennir is surprised to find its captain, Schurk-Heren proposing a bold move, a strike to assassinate Darth Vader, given that the crew believes that the Empire cannot be struck down directly, nor can Emperor Palpatine, who now has even more security after Gentis’ attempted coup. However, Vader is a key part of the new Empire and seems to be going all over the galaxy and somewhat obsessed with finding Jedi, such as the one on Otvon Twelve, as Jedi Beyghor Sahdett reports. The crew is all behind such a strike, but Dass is not sure. His own dip toward darkness that killed Dezono Qua had the unforeseen consequence of nearly getting Ember Chankeli (Dass’ lover) killed and did get Janks killed, even while in prison, by Falco Sang. Ember is with Dass, whatever he decides, and when he finally sees recordings of Vader on Otavon Twelve, Kashylyy, and the like, he is willing (provisionally, at least) to help, and he believes he knows where to find another Jedi who might be willing to join them. Before he tries, though, he stops by Ratty’s quarters, where he is fixing H2, damaged by Falco. He asks Ratty to get him parts for something that he cannot share with the rest of the crew. Meanwhile, Falco remains in the facility on Coruscant that Vader had created in order to test and train him. He tries to escape, but Vader stops him, threatening to demote Lieutenant Gregg for not being able to stop his escape himself. Later, while Gregg is looking for information on Jedi activity in hopes of pleasing Vader, Emperor Palpatine contacts Gregg and learns more of Vader’s activities in pursuit of information on Jedi, then orders Gregg not to inform him of that conversation . . . Several weeks later, the Uhumele crew continues to search for the Jedi ally that Dass thinks might join them. For his part, Dass is still learning about relationships and has to remember that he needs to tend to Ember as much as he keeps spending time with Ratty about what he wanted Ratty to find for him. Bomo is suspicious of this and confronts Dass, but Dass uses the Force to remove Bomo’s memory of the conversation. On Coruscant, Falco is allowed to accompany Gregg to where Vader has brought his ship. Vader wants Dass, just as Falco Darth Vader, now entirely comfortable in his altered body, is sent by Palpatine to Arkanian Microtechnology in the Parmel Sector of the Outer Rim. He is screening new potential candidates to act as clone templates for the growing stormtrooper legions of the Empire. So far, no one has been able to make a clone of a clone, so with Jango Fett gone, the cloned trooper ranks are in need of a new source. To this end, Vader has been sent to check on Arkanian Micro’s progress. . . but it is also a test. Palpatine has sent his current Hand (now known as the “Emperor’s Hand”), Sa Cuis, to kill Vader. It is a test, of course, and Palpatine hopes for Vader to survive and come out stronger and angrier, more focused. After checking the facility with his aide, Lieutenant Lekauf, Vader senses an impending attack. He orders Lekauf to get down, then takes out all of the would-be assassins sent by Cuis except for one. That other is blasted by Lekauf from his position on the ground. Seeing Lekauf's loyalty, Vader suggests testing Lekauf's use as a clone template, alongside other experiments to try to clone a Jango Fett clone. As Lekauf offers up his tissue sample, Vader leaves on his own to hunt down the Dark Jedi that he sensed led the assassin team. He finds Sa Cuis armed with two lightsabers. The two engage in a duel, while Cuis, who Vader knows was sent by Palpatine, refuses to give up the name of his employer. Vader bests Cuis, but even then, Cuis won't talk. Admiring this loyalty and Cuis' other abilities, Vader has a tissue sample taken from him to create a new legion of cloned stormtroopers . . . then promptly beheads Sa Cuis. Vader returns to Coruscant stronger and more focused . . . His master's test of his resolve and abilities was a success.*

(In His Image)

*NOTE: When I asked Karen Traviss when this story took place, she said “a few months after the end of Dark Lord, in Vader's first year or so as a newbie Sith.”

- Antinnis Tremayne is sent by his Jedi Master, Kylanu, to study under Darth Vader and become one of Palpatine's agents. Kylanu has bought Palpatine's lies of wanting to create peace in the galaxy. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Dark Vendetta)

*NOTE: Apparently, this is why Tremayne is in custody on Byss when we meet him in Recruitment.

- Darth Vader and Darth Sidious arrive on Byss, where construction proceeds on a retreat for Emperor Palpatine. Vader begins to realize that his own power has been invigorated since their arrival, despite the recent injuries and alterations that he received in the wake of the duel on Mustafar. The two Sith Lords are drawing upon the live energy of the workers to feed their own Dark Side powers. They haven't yet uncovered the secret of immortality, but Sidious promises that they will. They can, however, use those energies to help slow the decay of Palpatine's body. As for managing the Empire, Palpatine suggests that they needn't be everywhere to control such a vast Empire. Instead, the Senate and local governors will do their bidding, and, at times, they will have other servants to send. At this statement, Palpatine reveals to Vader his plans to use captured Jedi students and twist them to the Dark Side to serve them. Vader is shocked, since there can only be two Sith at a time, but Sidious simply considers these new Darksiders as extensions of Vader's will, since he will train them, not Sith in their own right. Thus begins the corruption of the captured Jedi, including one in particular named Antinnis Tremayne . . . Meanwhile, on Coruscant, the Padawan Drake Lo'gaan is using the Force to cheat in a game of chance, gaining money to survive. When he is caught cheating, fellow Padawan (and Felucia survivor) Zonder emerges to save him from the authorities. As they make their escape, they are nearly caught, until their fellow Jedi-in-hiding, Ekria, emerges, helping defeat the Imperial troopers chasing them. Unfortunately, in the heat of the moment, Drake uses the Force to push a few troopers around, revealing himself to be a Jedi. Ekria is not happy about this, but Drake sees it as no big deal. Soon, as they split up again to find work, Zonder is directed to construction (which is for aliens), while Drake is brought to a COMPNOR meeting, where he witnesses a speech by the new Inquisitor Tremayne (yes, the Jedi has turned to the Dark Side). Tremayne later trains with other pupils of Vader, during which he reports to Vader that a Jedi is on Coruscant. A short time later, Drake (under his COMPNOR alias of “Jodd Sonta”) meets with Zonder and Ekria to talk about their present situations. Ekria disapproves of Drake working with COMPNOR. Zonder, meanwhile, has found construction work and will soon be sent off-world to Emerald Splendor Estates to do more work. Later, Tremayne become suspicious when Drake's background doesn't check out. Meanwhile, Drake is working a loading platform when he meets a future settler to Emerald Splendor Estates on Byss named Onnelly Praji. Drake becomes infatuated with her, but he is soon blasted away from his musings when he learns that the workers for Emerald Splendor Estates are not going to Byss after all. It's a one-way trip to their deaths or at the very least slavery, according to a fellow platform worker. He races to find Zonder or Ekria to warn them of what Zonder is facing. He is pursued by stormtroopers that were sent to find him by Tremayne. Drake finds Ekria living a good life as the beneficiary of a Qiilura widow's fortune. Ekria has used some of that fortune to build up an arsenal, which she and Drake use, while in disguise, to sneak aboard the ship that Zonder is on.
Unfortunately, Tremayne is there as well. While Ekria warns Zonder of the situation and he, in turn, warns his fellow "workers," Drake duels Tremayne, besting the Inquisitor in one-on-one combat. As he races back to his comrades, though, the ship begins to lift off, under Tremayne’s orders. Our heroes and a few that they are able to convince to come with them are able to get to a skiff that Ekria has purchased that’s waiting in the bay. Before they can leave, though, Drake races back to find Onnelly to tell her the truth. Just as he does, Tremayne enters with troopers, forcing Drake to escape by slashing his way out of a viewport. The day is won, and our heroes have escaped, but Tremayne and the Inquisitors are still out there. Drake, though, now understands that the Republic can still use a Jedi . . . even if neither the Republic nor the Jedi Order still exist.

(Recruitment)

- This year, the Empire presses a three-prong push into the Rim. The first front, known as the Ciutric theater, sees Admiral Terrinald Screed’s Crimson Dagger Command goes after Separatist holdout forces that had abandoned Muunilinst and Mygeeto and joined with pirates and Thalassian slavers, using funds from Celanon and Serenno. Screed triumphs over them at the Battle of Vinsoth, then pursues them to Binquaros. Screed leaves Hurst Romodi’s ground forces to press the remaining enemies at Binquaros in a long siege, while Screed pursues their ships until destroying them at Bimmel. While Screed is away from Binquaros, other Imperial forces have defeated pirates and Mandalorians in the Salin Corridor, and they now attack Screed’s forces from behind at Botajef. These new enemies also break Romodi’s siege on Binquaros. The newly-freed enemies from Binquaros attempt to escape into the Unknown Regions, but one of their pirate allies betrays them to Screed and Romodi, who catch them at Vardoss and destroy them. The second Outer Rim front is at Sy Myrth, where Sy Myrthian leader Toonbuck Toora has continued to fight, reactivating resources and soldiers to do so. The Twelfth Sector Army out of Charros, under Admiral Adar Tallon and General Jan Dodonna, defeats this Sy Myrthian Insurrection, though a few remnants of this battle will keep fighting against the Empire from the Kreetan Narrows region of Hutt Space, leading the Empire to seize the region itself to put an end to it. The third front this year is against the Sith Lords’ previous pawns, the Trade Federation. Technically, there should no longer be a Trade Federation, since its resources were signed over to the Empire by Acting Viceroy Sentepeth Findos. However, Customs Vizier Marath Vooro has refused to acknowledge this fact and controls remaining Trade Defense Fleet assets at Enarc. An Imperial fleet under Octavian Grant wipes out this threat, capturing Vooro in the Hook Nebula.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- As the Empire’s military grows, the wreck of the Freedom’s Messenger is recovered. The ship is renamed the Renegade and assigned to Kentor Sarne of the 15th Deep Core Reserve Fleet.

(conjecture based on The Dark Stryder Campaign)

- Sate Pestage is made Grand Vizier of the Empire.

(conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook)

- Aboard the Starwayman, Booster Terrik and his partner Llollulion are in trouble. They are being pursued by the Strikefast, under the command of Imperial Captain Voss Parck. They are at the border of Unknown Space and make a hyperspace jump to avoid the Star Destroyer. They emerge with the Strikefast still on their tail and head for a small planet. Flying over the planet’s surface, they see a small encampment. They land and go into hiding. Back near the encampment, an Imperial team arrives, led by Colonel Mosh Barris. The dwelling is empty, and they begin preparing to search for the smugglers. They discover that the dwelling belonged to an unknown alien, so Unknown Alien Encounters orders apply. Barris and Wyan discover that a TIE fighter that crashed during the pursuit has been found by the alien or the smugglers. The pilot’s suit is filled with grasses and such, but the pilot is gone. They assume it is a primitive ritual and call for a troop carrier with stormtroopers to come immediately. They continue to search and set up a base camp, when they begin being harassed. They discover, when the grass-filled armor explodes, that the helmet is missing its comlink. They assume the alien has taken the comlink and check another recent dead body, only to find it still has a comlink. They block the frequency of the original missing comlink and... continue. As time goes on, even more Imperials are being killed or vanishing, so Barris orders a retreat. They arrive on the Strikefast and, on a hunch, Parck and Barris wait in the darkened hangar, until the alien, stowed away on the troop carrier, emerges from the ship. They corner him and ask how he did all he did on the world. The alien, named Mitth'raw'nuruodo, tells them the brilliant strategic moves he used to defeat the Imperials and to sneak on the ship. He was sneaking aboard, hoping to steal a ship to return to his people (which we later learn are the Chiss), who had exiled him for wanting to make a preemptive strike on an enemy in Unknown Space. Parck, impressed by Mitth'raw'nuruodo’s skills, offers him the chance to join Imperial service, which will give the Empire a great strategist (even if he is an alien) and allow Mitth'raw'nuruodo to combat threats to his people within Imperial boarders. Mitth'raw'nuruodo agrees, but his name is so long that, to help the run-of-the-mill Imperials, he shortens it . . . to Thrawn. Elsewhere, Terrik and his partner prepare to escape, now that the Imperials have left with their new recruit.

(Mist Encounter)

- Emperor Palpatine recognizes Thrawn’s skills (as he had already noted from two failed attempts to recruit him during his days with the Chiss), and provides Academy facilities for Thrawn within the normally xenophobic Empire.
  (conjecture based on Specter of the Past)
- Coruscant HoloNet reporter Keets Freely is one of the first to ask why Palpatine is grabbing more and more power while smiling at the public and claiming to be protecting them. As a result, he is one of the first targeted as an enemy to the New Order and forced to go underground on Coruscant as one of the Erased.
  (conjecture based on Underworld)
- Dexter Jettster is targeted as an enemy to the New Order. His diner is destroyed. Dex goes underground as one of the Erased on Coruscant.
  (conjecture based on Underworld)
- Imperial forces enter the Tapani Sector. Upon arrival at Pelagon, three Imperial Star Destroyers are faced with the Pelagia Star, which withstands their firepower. It is damaged beyond repair, but still is not damaged enough to send it crashing to Pelagon. After the Imperials have taken control of the planet, the ship, now in a standard orbit, is rechristened Pelagia’s Moon and used as a space station, though the nobility of Pelagon still desire to one day fix the ship/station and make it the flagship of a Pelagian battle fleet once again.*
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)*

*NOTE: The exact dating of this event is tricky. I place it here because we know that the Empire will be around by the end of Revenge of the Sith, and we can assume that the Empire hit during its early days.

- Chel Dorat, a captain in the Old Republic Navy and later the Imperial Navy, is promoted to the Imperial General Staff.
  (conjecture based on Loyalties)
- In the wake of the Clone Wars, the pirates that have operated around Yag’Dhul are driven away. Their base will become a way station for those attending the planet’s starship races. Eventually, when a space station begins construction, the local militia will put an end to the races, but the base will remain a prime location for gambling.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- As the Jedi Purges continue to wipe out the Jedi Knights, Palpatine has his Imperial Scientists (including Umak Leth, Borborygmus Gog, and Lord Cronal—former Prophet of the Dark Side “Blackhole”) work on creating technologies that would bridge the Force and science. This eventually leads to several “advancements.” Gog gets his hands on Ssi-ruuvi entechment technology, thanks to a small Ssi-ruuvi vessel somehow acquired by Raith Sienar. Using that technology, he is able to create an Essence Stealer that will come to be used on Nespis VIII. Building on studies by Jenna Zan Arbor, the Empire discovers that Mandalorian Iron, originally from the planet Mandalore, has the ability to block the Force somewhat, leading to the creation of the Universal Energy Cage. (Some will speculate that trees on Myrkr that were apparently transplanted from Mandalore many centuries ago could have contained enough trace Mandalorian Iron to have led to the development of the ysalamiri and, as an after-effect, the evolution of the Force-hunting vornskysrs.) Another innovation of Zan Arbor, the Force Detector, is also used to hunt down Jedi, but are soon all given over to Lord Cronal (former Prophet of the Dark Side “Blackhole”), who uses lightsaber technology to create a new version that will allow one to determine not only a level of Force potential but also one’s propensity toward the Dark Side by using Thaissen crystals found on Circarpous V. Most of these Force detectors will be destroyed in years to come, though.

(conjecture based on Droids and the Force)

- As the Jedi Purges continue, the Iron Knights are among the first to fall outside of the first few strikes of Darth Vader.

(conjecture based on Droids and the Force)

- As the Jedi Purges continue, bounty hunter Dalan Oberos, who made an enemy of the Jedi Order by taking down Jedi for Count Dooku and the Separatists, cements his reputation by helping the Empire hunt down remaining Jedi.

(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

- On Coruscant, six months after the creation of the Inquisitors, Imperial Inquisitor Tremayne and his henchmen have killed another Jedi, Niebur Boton, and they have promising leads on other Jedi targets. Darth Vader urges him along, trusting the Inquisitors to destroy the remaining Jedi while he focuses on the creation of Palpatine’s New Order. Elsewhere, Kodo Finn and his wife Aleema are attacked by the Nashtah gang, only to be saved by three fugitive Jedi, Zonder (under the name Paws), Drake Lo’gaan, and Ekria (under the name Blue), who are currently eluding Tremayne. When Finn’s wife appears on the news, talking about how they were saved, Tremayne realizes that he has a lead on the three Jedi.

Meanwhile, Xizor Transport Systems head Prince Xizor is plotting his ascendancy to the position of Black Sun Vigo, hoping to capitalize on the structural flaws in Black Sun left after the murder of the Black Sun leadership by Darth Maul decades earlier, the effects of which are still being felt. It was Xizor who ordered the Nashtah gang to attack Kodo Finn to deliver a message to him, but the Jedi foiled his plans. He calls for a bounty hunter (Boushh) to kill the Finns. Zonder and Drake arrive at the Finns’ residence, just as the hunter arrives to kill them. Their quarrel is interrupted by the appearance of Imperials under Tremayne. Zonder and Drake escape with the Finns. They learn that Koto has been working with the Tagges to undermine Xizor. In order to get Xizor off the Finns’ backs, Koto and the Jedi head to Xizor Transport Systems, where they are able (after a scuffle with some droids) to meet with Xizor himself. They tell Xizor how TaggeCo manipulated Koto, and Koto provides Xizor with TaggeCo starship traffic information in order to be allowed to leave Coruscant alive. Xizor, though, knows who they really are, and he takes it upon himself to visit Tremayne. Tremayne discovers Xizor in a questionable sexual (or at least nearly sexual) situation with Inquisitor Lanu Pasiq. He then introduces himself to Tremayne, informs him that he knows of Tremayne’s background, and threatens to expose his obsession with Drake and the others to Darth Vader. He does, however, reveal to Tremayne what Tremayne’s real first name is (Antinnis), which serves to help show that Xizor does have information resources that could be helpful. Tremayne agrees to provide information about Vader (whom Xizor already considers a rival for power) in exchange for Xizor’s help in hunting down Drake, Zonder, and Ekria. The fugitive Jedi trio now have another powerful enemy, but no matter how powerful Xizor and Tremayne are, they know that it will never truly be over until they confront Darth Vader himself. (Exact date: 16:11)*

(Prey)*

*NOTE: This story takes place approximately 6 months after Revenge of the Sith (well, after Reversal of Fortune) which would put it around 16:11 on a 12-month calendar.

- Emperor Palpatine sends an Inquisitor to Veroleem on a classified mission. Afterwards, Palpatine begins banishing criminals and political enemies to the planet.*

(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn. This is “several months” after ROTS.

- On Coruscant, Xizor meets with Inquisitor Tremayne, trading him the captured Selonian Jedi Zonder for making sure that Vader views a holorecording Xizor wants him to see. Tremayne then interrogates and tortures Zonder, which brings Vader through his cries and the Force. Vader is given Zonder’s affects (including the recording). He allows Zonder’s situation to be transmitted, which lets Ekria and Drake Lo’gaan view the scene as Vader kills Zonder in combat. Vader then views the recording, which shows Baron Orman Tagge trying to basically take Vader's place of power with the Emperor, which allows Vader to see Tagge as a rival, pitting them against each other, which feeds into Xizor's own bid for power. Vader has the recording destroyed and offers help to Tremayne in bringing Drake back to him alive. Vader then contacts the troopers Bly and Galle, who were with the Jedi on Felucia during Order 66. They report on the survival of Ekria and Drake, then help track them, even as the two Jedi hunt down Vader, finding him on a landing platform. Drake leaps to the platform and strikes at Vader, but Vader's Noghri bodyguards subdue him and bring him aboard Vader's shuttle. Vader uses lies about the "Jedi coup attempt" on Drake, then takes Drake with him when he visits Orman Tagge at TaggeCo, even as Ekria has followed them and is undercover at the office. Vader Force chokes Tagge for his ambitions, but rather than killing him, he blinds the man. As he does so, Ekria yells out, attacking them. This frees Drake, but Ekria takes many blasts. Drake then duels Vader, only to find himself stabbed and falling to his presumed death. In the aftermath, Vader believes them both to be dead, but Ekria had arranged much of the whole scenario, allowing her to take her own death and save Drake from failing. They return to Selonia to give Zonder a proper burial, then, knowing they are listed in official records as deceased, Ekria and Drake are Jedi no more.*

(End Game)

NOTE: Until we have a more specific date for End Game, I am placing it here after Prey, so we can keep the story somewhat continuous.

- The Empire deposes the legitimate ruler of the planet Bellassa, installing an Imperial governor and garrison. A group of anti-Imperial rebels called the Eleven, led by Ferus Olin and Roan Leads, take part in a popular uprising against the Empire, but they are violently put down. During the crisis, the father of Trever Flume is killed. With his mother also dead, killed during the Clone Wars, Trever is left as an orphan at age twelve. As for the Roan and Ferus, Roan is captured and treated with neurotoxins, while Ferus is able to escape to stay with their first legal client, Dona, in a mountain home. A pilot named Weasy will manage to get away from Bellassa and carry a tale of the situation to the Mos Eisley cantina, where his words will be overheard by Jedi-in-exile Obi-Wan Kenobi.

(conjecture based on The Desperate Mission)

- On Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi is restless. He has been charged with protecting Luke Skywalker, his former Padawan Anakin Skywalker's son, who is living with Owen and Beru Lars. He continues to meditate and get in vocal contact with Qui-Gon Jinn via the Force, but he cannot see Qui-Gon in spirit form, nor can he help the feeling that he should be out there doing something to help the galaxy. He gets his chance when he overhears spacers in the Mos Eisley cantina discussing recent events on the planet Bellassa. The Empire has deposed the planet's governor and installed their own puppet government and garrison. Not only that, but they have put the planet on a lockdown while trying to capture one of the two leaders of a recent uprising against the new Imperial government on Bellassa. One man, Roan Lands, is in custody already, but his partner escaped. His partner, Obi-Wan discovers, is none other than Ferus Olin, former Jedi Padawan! Obi-Wan follows Qui-Gon's guidance and heads for Bellassa. Once there, he tries to get more information on the partnership of Olin and Lands, a local law firm, so he can figure out what happened to Ferus and where he might be. When he tries to ask at a local tailor's, he is forced to flee quickly during a stormtrooper raid. In doing so, he commandeers a grav sled piloted by a young boy. The boy, it seems, was stealing clothing from the store to sell on the black market, including some Imperial uniforms. The boy is Trever Flume. His mother and father are both dead. (His mother died during the Battle of T'olan in the Clone Wars, and his father died during the recent uprising against the Imperial forces in the capital city of Ussa.) Obi-Wan learns that Ferus often helped Trever, so the boy might feel an urge to return the favor. (No such luck.) Trever, for a fee, takes Obi-Wan to the local med clinic, where Roan Lands has been taken. He sneaks in, using the Force to get past guards, then finds Roan's room. There he also meets Dr. Amie Antin. He learns that Roan has been heavily drugged, perhaps as torture rather than to sedate him. When the Empire comes to collect Roan, she helps Obi-Wan get him out of there and to the Eleven (the local resistance that Ferus and Roan led) before they can be captured by an Imperial Inquisitor named Malorum, who is working for Darth Vader. The Eleven are angered that she brought a stranger to them (even though she thought he Twilight dates in relation to Order 66 must be in error. Otherwise, Death on Naboo story seem to take place later. place immediately after this story (as a direct continuation), to it being nearly a year since Order 66 makes the would put it.

*NOTE: We were first told that this story takes place approximately 6 months after
...

At the Red Twins spaceport, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Trever Flume, and Ferus Olin slink around, hoping to avoid capture by bounty hunters Boba Fett and D’harhan. They manage to escape, but Fett follows them as they escape to the planet Acherin, where Obi-Wan’s friend and fellow Jedi Garen Muln had been stationed with the Republic forces during the Clone Wars
(and Order 66). They are forced down by Raina Quill, a commander in the Acherin resistance. Acherin was a Separatist world, fighting against the Republic, which did fall, but the Empire that rose in its place is worse, so now the resistance fights the Empire in the Republic’s place. Raina takes them to the city of Eluthan, where they speak with Toma, the resistance leader. When the Empire arrives to destroy the city (and possibly the entire planet) as punishment for their resistance and a warning to others, the resistance fights valiantly, but it is a losing battle. Finally, Obi-Wan, Trever, and Fesus manage to get Raina and Toma off of the planet with them. They find shelter on a hidden asteroid (with its own atmosphere) amid a space-borne energy storm. It is while seeking shelter there that Obi-Wan learns from Toma that Garen Muln is, in fact, alive. Toma had hidden Garen during Order 66, when he saw what was happening. Once the Inquisitors left Acherin, Garen left and headed to the Jedi lightsaber crystal caves on Ilum. They are at a crossroads now. They need to contact Garen,

(The Desperate Mission)*

*NOTE: We were first told that this story takes place approximately 6 months after Revenge of the Sith, which would put it around 16:11 on a 12-month calendar. However, frequent references in Dark Warning, which takes place immediately after this story (as a direct continuation), to it being nearly a year since Order 66 makes the story seem to take place later. Given that Gregor Typho makes his last appearance (technically, not counting an N-Canon appearance in Star Wars Galaxies) in Street of Shadows, which must take place after his appearance in Death on Naboo, I have to assume that this six month date is at least close to accurate, so the Dark Warning dates in relation to Order 66 must be in error. Otherwise, Street of Shadows takes place far too long after Jedi Twilight to fit with information provided by Sue Rostoni about when it takes place.

- At the Red Twins spaceport, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Trever Flume, and Ferus Olin slink around,

- By avoiding bounty hunters Boba Fett and D’harhan. They manage to escape,

- But Fett follows them as they escape to the planet Acherin, where Obi-Wan’s friend and

- Fellow Jedi Garen Muln had been stationed with the Republic forces during the Clone Wars

- (and Order 66). They are forced down by Raina Quill, a commander in the Acherin

- Resistance. Acherin was a Separatist world, fighting against the Republic, which did fall, but

- The Empire that rose in its place is worse, so now the resistance fights the Empire in the

- Republic’s place. Raina takes them to the city of Eluthan, where they speak with Toma, the

- Resistance leader. When the Empire arrives to destroy the city (and possibly the entire planet)

- As punishment for their resistance and a warning to others, the resistance fights valiantly, but

- It is a losing battle. Finally, Obi-Wan, Trever, and Fesus manage to get Raina and Toma off of

- The planet with them. They find shelter on a hidden asteroid (with its own atmosphere) amid a

- Space-borne energy storm. It is while seeking shelter there that Obi-Wan learns from Toma

- That Garen Muln is, in fact, alive. Toma had hidden Garen during Order 66, when he saw

- What was happening. Once the Inquisitors left Acherin, Garen left and headed to the Jedi

- Lightsaber crystal caves on Ilum. They are at a crossroads now. They need to contact Garen, and Ferus wants to build a new lightsaber, both of which point them to Ilum. However, Obi-Wan knows that Inquisitor Malorum has been poking around Polis Massa, and he needs to ensure that the Empire doesn't learn about Anakin Skywalker's twin children. It is decided that Obi-Wan will go to Polis Massa on his secret mission, while Trever and Ferus head for Ilum. As for Raina and Toma, they will remain on the asteroid for now. Soon, at Polis Massa, Obi-Wan speaks to Maneeli Tuun, who informs him that Inquisitor Sancor, is there. Despite pretending to be a member of the staff, Obi-Wan is unable to entirely cover their tracks. Luckily, when Obi-Wan gives chase to the escaping Sancor, the Inquisitor is killed. Their secret is safe, but the death of an Inquisitor might mean more scrutiny at Polis Massa.

Meanwhile, Trever stays behind on the ship as Ferus enters the caves on Ilum and faces Force visions that give him a greater understanding of himself. Inside, he finds Garen, battered but alive, even as Imperial stormtroopers notice their presence and begin attacking the caves to destroy them. Garen gives Ferus his lightsaber, without a crystal, which Ferus then replaces, accepting his role, in a sense, as a Jedi Knight, despite having left the Temple so long ago. They manage to escape (with Trever) to the asteroid in the storm. Obi-Wan joins them there, but their quest again has alternative routes. Obi-Wan needs to get back to Tatooine to keep an eye on Luke as he promised. Garen, though, knows that a Jedi named Fy-Tor-Ana had been to Ilum as well, and she is apparently being held as a prisoner on Coruscant. Obi-Wan returns to Tatooine, while a new resistance, including those from Acherin and Ussa, begins to form on the asteroid. As for Ferus, he and Trever head for Coruscant, on a mission to rescue Fy-Tor-Ana . . .

(Dark Warning)

- En route to Coruscant to rescue Fy-Tor-Ana, Ferus Olin and Trever Flume are in need of a pit stop for fuel. Ferus feels drawn to the former Sith world of Korriban, where they stop for fuel at Dreshdae. While there, Ferus hears the whispers of Sith ghosts through the force, suggesting that he stay and learn from them so he can be more powerful. Trever's presence, though, helps Ferus see through that lie and stay on course with the Light Side. Also while on the world, they see wanted criminal Jenna Zan Arbor getting transport to the Valley of the Dark Lords. One has to wonder what Zan Arbor is doing on Korriban once again . . .

(Ghosts of the Sith)

- Upon arriving on Coruscant, Ferus Olin and Trever Flume sneak into the Jedi Temple via one of its damaged spires, only to find it crawling with stormtroopers under Inquisitor Malorum's command. They discover that, despite rumors planted by Palpatine to bribe Malorum, he is not there. They also learn that Malorum's office is in Yoda's old quarters. Soon, they also hear witness to Darth Vader arriving and bickering with Malorum, who wants to take Vader's place as the Emperor's right hand man. Malorum is warned to stop looking into Polis Massa, but he'll keep doing so, just to defy Vader's directive. Vader also, somewhat sarcastically, suggests blowing up the Jedi Temple, which would force Malorum to move all of his data and other materials, but it was not a serious suggestion. Ferus and Trever are discovered and forced to flee, but they eventually find their way to the old site of Dexter Jettster's diner. The diner has been closed, but a passing former patron points them to where Dex is now holed up with other "Erased" individuals, those who have had their identities cleared from records to hide from the Empire. Among them are Keets Freely (a reporter), Oryon (a former Republic spy), Rhya Talooin (former Senator from Agridorn), Tyro Caladian's cousin Curran Caladian, and others. Having overheard that Malorum was intending on wiping out the Erased, using a spy within the ranks of such people, they know that they need to escape. Dex suggests that they find their way to a rumored location called "Solace," which is supposedly a safe, undeveloped place either on the crust of Coruscant or beneath it. Dex stays behind to point other Erased in their direction, while Ferus leads the Erased into the depths of Coruscant. While down there, they are set upon by bandits, but in the skirmish, Trever is nearly eaten by a stone slug. Later, while resting in a surface-level inn, Trever realizes that he saw something when the slug pulled him down. They all return to the hole that Trever had been pulled into and find an old underground transit system, albeit inoperative. They are met by a strange, hooded individual, who simply calls himself/herself the "Guide." The Guide claims to have been to Solace and back again and offers to take them there. They follow and get there, only to have the Guide turn them over to the people there. It would seem that they are safe and cared for only because the Guide brings unsuspecting fellow Erased people there to be hijacked or mugged. When Ferus pulls out his lightsaber, the Guide stops them. The Guide is actually Solace, not a place but a person, named for how he/she is aiding the few Erased that were first taken under to safety. Solace then reveals herself to be none other than Fy-Tor-Ana, who has given up Jedi ways and gone below where she can care for those few people, all of whom look up to her. She even does some bounty hunting to make ends meet for the group. Ferus is amazed that “Solace” is so eager to get rid of her Jedi heritage, since he is just now reclaiming his. Ferus tells Solace that there is a spy among the Erased. Solace suggests breaking back into the Jedi Temple to get into Malorum’s office and steal data that would show them the identity of the traitor. This works fine for Ferus, who has contacted Obi-Wan recently and needs to see what Malorum has dug up about Polis Massa and the death of Padmé Amidala. They use a reconfigured mole miner that Solace crafted to make their way into a service turbolift shaft that was created for the Temple during the Clone Wars (hence Ferus not knowing it existed before). They get inside, only to find that Malorum’s office had been emptied. Malorum is going to blow up the Temple, just as Vader had sarcastically ordered. In doing so, he could blame it on Vader and curry the Emperor’s favor. They manage to stop the bomb that would have destroyed the Temple, but it draws Imperial attention. Solace and Trever escape, but Ferus remains behind so as not to slow them down. In the wake of the Temple break-in, Ferus is interrogated by Malorum and sent to an Imperial prison world. As for Solace and Trever, they begin plans to find and rescue Ferus, but as they arrive back at the Erased encampment, they find it under attack . . .

(Underworld)

- On Coruscant, Inquisitor Malorum is called to talk by Emperor Palpatine for destroying the Jedi Temple (or at least a big part of it). As a result, he is even more determined to somehow undermine Darth Vader’s power and boost himself back up in Palpatine’s eyes. He heads back down into the depths of Coruscant to confirm the death of the Jedi Solace, but Solace, Trever, Oryon, and most of the others have escaped, despite the treachery of Duro, who sold them out to the Imperials. They all make it back to Dexter Jettster’s hideaway, where they begin plotting to somehow rescue Ferus Olin from custody. As for Ferus, he has been taken away to Dantamo Prison, an infamous place of misery, where he quickly gets on the bad side of Prisoner 67, the most feared prisoner there . . . but also discovers a hidden ally among the prisoners, who turns out to be the industrial spy Clive Flax, whom he’d run into on Bellassa before reclaiming his Jedi birthright with Obi-Wan Kenobi. Ferus and Clive manage a hasty, if almost botched, escape aboard a transport, but are pursued as they do so. Luckily, the Erased (with Trever) arrive just in time and save them. Ferus, though, has other problems. Word has trickled in to Keets Freely (one of the Erased) that Inquisitor Malorum is on his way to Theed on Naboo on some kind of investigation. Not knowing why it is important, but knowing that Obi-Wan was very concerned about any investigations on Naboo, Ferus races to Naboo to somehow stop Malorum from discovering whatever secret Obi-Wan is helping keep hidden. Meanwhile, on Naboo, Malorum tracks down Ryoo Thule, the late Padmé Amidala’s grandmother, who presided over part of her funeral. Ferus and his comrades make it to Naboo as well, and are pointed in the right direction by Gregar Typho, Amidala’s former security chief. They know that Queen Apailana is anti-Empire, but they can’t ask much of her. They simply ask that when they request it, she cut off all communications from Naboo for a short time. Elsewhere on Naboo, Malorum interrogates Ryoo, discovering that Ryoo believes that Padmé’s child (singular, mind you) is alive. When she cannot provide information as to where the child might be, he kills her. Malorum escapes just as our heroes arrive, but with the aid of the Gungans and the communications blackout, Ferus leads an assault on the Imperial battalion on the world. As the battle progresses, Ferus pursues Malorum into the very same reactor area where Darth Maul killed Qui-Gon Jinn, only to be subsequently killed by Obi-Wan. As they duel, Ferus gains the upper hand, sending Malorum to his death, plunging into the same depths that Darth Maul’s bisected body had fallen years earlier. Obi-Wan secret, whatever it might be, is safe. In the aftermath, the Theed hangar has been nearly destroyed and must be rebuilt, but the battle has been won and the Naboo will be able to handle any reprisals from the Empire, for now. Most of the Erased will agree to head for the Rainbow Nebulæ to join the fledgling resistance movement that Ferus has set up there. As for Ferus, he receives a message via the HoloNet from Emperor Palpatine. Ferus can have amnesty if he will meet with the Emperor himself. . . Is it an offer Ferus can afford to refuse?

(Death on Naboo)

- Emperor Palpatine orders the destruction of Caamas. A group of Bothans helps the effort by sabotaging Caamas' planetary shields. The truth behind the event will not be known for decades. Other planets begin taking Caamasi refugees. The HoloNet puts forth Palpatine’s propaganda that the decimation came from leftover Separatist actinium bombs that had been drifting since the end of the war. Many Caamasi, including artist Ves Volette, begin seeking out the truth of the event.*

*NOTE: This one is a bit tricky. It seems to have already happened as we begin Street of Shadows, but after we learn about it, we then see Caamasi and Jedi characters feeling its effects. I am putting it here, just before the start of Street of Shadows. If only to make it blend together well, since my summary of Street of Shadows is somewhat vague so as not to be hampered by Michael Reaves’ various errors in the book.

- With thousands of alien officials on Coruscant now considered fugitives, Bothan embassy official Undersecretary Varesk Bura’lya seeks the help of Whiplash to get off of Coruscant via the Underground Mag-Lev. Whiplash assigns Jax Pavan to the mission. (conjecture based on Street of Shadows)

- The Empire replaces the 481st Legion at Ilum with a new joint forces mission of the Imperial Navy and Army. The army sets up a garrison on the surface, while the navy blockades the planet in orbit. With the Jedi mostly gone and access to Ilum’s lightsaber crystals cut off, knowledge of the system (which was already kept off most starcharts) fades. (conjecture based on Nexus of Power and Ilum profile on wizards.com)

- Several months after the clash between Jax Pavan (and his comrades) and Black Sun’s Xizor, Jax and his comrades help Bothan official Varesk Bura’lya find safety aboard the Big Score as part of Whiplash’s so-called “Underground Mag-Lev.” After the mission, Jax laments his lack of a lightsaber, even though he has a run-of-the-mill vibrosword and the lightwhip from Nick Rostu. As his friends note this desire for a lightsaber, Haninum Tyk Rhinann provides him with a Velmorian energy sword that he was able to buy via an auction. It isn’t a lightsaber, but it will do for now. Our troupe is soon approached by Dejah Duare, the Zeltron partner of the famous Caamasi light sculpting artist Ves Volette. Volette had recently felt the destruction of his world by the Empire, just as Jax and Laranth Tarak had. Now, Dejah thinks that Ves could be unsafe on Coruscant. She hires Jax to help get the two of them offworld via the Underground Mag-Lev, but when they head for Ves’ home, they find him dead, stabbed. Imperial Sector Police Prefect Pol Haus investigates the case, casting a suspicious eye on Jax and his companions. Jax, I-Five, Den Dhur, and the others investigate on their own, interviewing one of Ves’ greatest patrons, Baron Vlacan Umber and his wife Kirma, whose protocol droid is by their side during the interview. Jax senses no deceptions, so they continue their investigation. Den, while also seeking out information and lightsaber parts, impersonates a police officer (getting arrested and bailed out by Jax, using a generous line of credit being provided by Dejah’s inheritance). In doing so, he learns that two of Ves’ sculptures were stolen by Spa Fon and sold by Shulf’aa on Coruscant. Since Spa Fon is a local, they pay him a visit, and, while they learn very little, Jax bests Spa Fon’s Cathar bodyguard, Sele, in combat, earning him Sele’s service. As leads begin to dry up, they learn that Kirma Umber had been spotted around Ves’ home, and then Sele brings information about the Umbers’ vehicle being seen there on the night of his death. Calling Pol Haus to join them, Jax has the group meet and reveal the truth at the Umbers’ home. Vlacan had spent a ton of money on Ves’ artwork, to the point where their credit was damaged. Kirma knew about this, but she was still confident in her husband. She was, however, angered by his attracting to the Zeltron Dejah (as if he could help it, given her pheromones). She went to see Ves to try to keep Vlacan away from Dejah, only to leave angry. The couple’s protocol droid had followed her, seeing her distress, and had tried to protect the Umber household by confronting Ves. In the ensuing confrontation, the droid had killed Ves. When discovered, the droid decides not to bring dishonor upon the Umber household and wipes its own memory.
With the case solved, it seems that it is time to get Dejah off of Coruscant. During the investigation, however, other events have been afoot. Captain Gregar Typho from Naboo has arrived on Coruscant in search of information about Anakin Skywalker, thinking that Anakin was the last person to see Padmé Amidala alive. He manages to learn that Anakin is considered dead (on Mustafar), but then that a Sith Lord was on Mustafar around the same time. He believes that it must be Darth Vader that killed both Padmé and Anakin. Having investigated the ruined Jedi Temple and run into Aurra Sing there (hired by Darth Vader and saved from prison on Oovo IV to hunt down Jax), Typho walked away with one of Aurra’s trophy lightsabers and the knowledge that Vader wants Jax. When he runs into Jax at a Whiplash meeting, he recognizes Jax and begins making his own plans. Even as Aurra goes after Jax, fighting with Laranth instead at first, Typho makes contact with Vader, using a taozin skin nodule to make himself invisible in the Force. When he meets Vader, claiming to be giving him Jax, Typho doesn’t have Jax at all. Instead, he tries to assassinate Vader, but Vader captures him, breaking his body and killing him, but only after learning of Typho’s unrequited love for Padmé. As for Aurra, she catches up with Jax, Laranth, Dejah, and the others at the spaceport, attacking them. Laranth is gravely injured, but Jax defeats Aurra, seemingly sending her to her death at the spaceport’s construction site (though she somehow escapes, as she will be around in the decades to come). In the aftermath of this encounter, Dejah decides to stay on Coruscant with the group, but Laranth will leave the group due to unrequited affections for Jax, whom she believes is starting to have an interest in Dejah. They also receive a package, sent by Typho. He has presented Jax with the lightsaber taken from Aurra, believing that a true Jedi should have one. As Jax set his sights on finding Anakin Skywalker, whom the Force has told him is alive, so that he can return his pyronium nugget someday, and as Jax deals with I-Five’s recent revelations that his father Lorn Pavan was killed by a Sith and that I-Five holds the last bota sample in the galaxy inside his torso, it appears that our heroes’ quest for justice has only just begun . . . But Rhinnann has a quest of his own, one that ends in great power, and he believes that somehow I-Five is the key . . .

(Street of Shadows)*

*NOTE: The events in this story takes place “several months” after Jedi Twilight. Sue Rostoni has said that Jedi Twilight is 18.8 BBY, while Street of Shadows is 18.46 BBY, which, in Holocron Continuity Database terms, means that there is approximately a 4 month gap between Jedi Twilight and Street of Shadows. This would also translate into only about 4 – 5 months after ROTS (if ROTS is at 18.8 BBY) or just over 6 months after ROTS if we are assuming that these dates were assuming a simple 19 BBY date for ROTS, as most do. Either way, it is only a few months after Jedi Twilight. The placement of this novel has had to be tweaked a bit, though, because Gregar Typho dies in this story, which must be after he helps in Death on Naboo. (His death here also contradicts his appearance in Star Wars Galaxies, but we can probably safely assume that his Galaxies appearance is now apocryphal N-Canon.) It also seems to have been Reaves’ intention that Aurra Sing die in this story, but she obviously does not, as she will return in the Legacy of the Force series. Sue Rostoni has since deemed it “very plausible” that Aurra somehow survives and then goes into hiding until her LOTF appearance, and C-3PO is merely speculating with incomplete data when he suggests that she escaped from Oovo IV during the Yuuzhan Vong invasion, when she has secretly been free and in hiding ever since Street of Shadows. Moreover, this novel constantly fouls up the dates for the Clone Wars, The Phantom Menace, and Michael Reaves’ own Shadow Hunter and Medstar novels. (Some of those errors were on the same page and yet used different erroneous dates, such as the events of TPM on page 223 being cited as 42 BBY and then 37 BBY, neither of which is correct.) A forum poster claiming (yet never confirmed) to be Michael Reaves, took responsibility for these mistakes on TheForce.Net at one point, and Sue Rostoni, responding to a direction question I asked via the official Star Wars website’s forums, took responsibility upon herself, referring to this as just one of those “stupid” mistakes that somehow get past several editors. The date errors will be perpetuated in Patterns of Force, directly affecting how one is to interpret the ending of that novel . . .

- Aurra Sing somehow survives her encounter with Jax Pavan and escapes from Coruscant.
  (conjecture based on Street of Shadows)

- Kajin Savaros, one week from turning 15, heads for Coruscant.
  (conjecture based on Patterns of Force)

- Ro-San Borokki joins the Bounty Hunters Guild.*
  (conjecture based on The Bounty Hunter Code)*

*NOTE: This assumes that the copy of The Bounty Hunter’s Guild Handbook that was owned by Greedo was published in the year prior to ANH, and that Ro-San’s tenure in the Bounty Hunters Guild was updated for that edition.

- Former Jedi Padawan Ferus Olin has been called before Emperor Palpatine on condition of safe passage. He heads for Coruscant alone to meet with the Sith Lord, Mas Amedda, Sly Moore, and Wilhuff Tarkin. He is told that the BRT variant supercomputer (Platform-7) that runs the capital city of Sath on the planet Samaria. Given Ferus’ expertise in computer systems (which the Empire knows about from his days on Bellassa), Palpatine wants him to go to Samaria and fix the problem, working with Imperial Advisor Bog Divinian (who is a pawn of Senator Sano Sauro, a member of Palpatine’s inner circle who wants to become his right-hand man, replacing Darth Vader). Ferus tries to refuse, but he is told that his old partner, Roan Lands, and the woman who helped save him on Bellassa, Dona Telamark, have been captured on charges of conspiracy against the Bellissan government. If he fixes things on Samaria, they will be freed. He agrees, reluctantly. As he leaves, he manages to spread word to his undercover Erased allies about what is going on, allowing them to help in their own ways. As he heads for Samaria in an Imperial vessel, Solace (Jedi Fy-Tor-Ana) takes Trever Flume and Oryon to Bellassa to hunt for Roan and Doma, while Keets Freely and Curran Caladan stay on Coruscant to dig for information. On Samaria, Ferus meets with Bog and the Samarian Prime Minister, Aaren Larker. He quickly understands that if the computers are brought up and running again, it will give the Empire control over Samaria. While he wrestles with this, he continues to actually hunt for the saboteur (though whether he’ll turn that person in when he finds them is still up in the air). On Bellassa, Solace, Trever, and Oryon pose as a wealthy Coruscanti trio and make contact with the Eleven (the underground on Bellassa). They learn that Roan and Doma are being held aboard an Imperial starship known as the True Justice, which is meant to be a space-roving location for speedy court proceedings, away from any help for the accused. Back on Samaria, Ferus discovers that someone used the identity of a dead child to purchase a ship to get off the planet, but is likely still stuck on the world. This person, going under the alias of “Quintus Farel,” is likely the saboteur. With the help of Clive Flax (flying an airspeeder for him), Ferus does away with an Imperial spy droid following him, then the two make their way to the home of the woman that sold “Quintus” the ship. Unbeknownst to Ferus, Bog has been tracking him for Sauro, using a tracking device on his shoe... which he finally discovers and sends off on a passing vehicle. While Ferus and Clive follow the ship’s previous owner’s lead that places “Quintus” at the Fountain Towers, the Bellassa team steals an Imperial shuttle and takes off to find the True Justice. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Keets and Curran, working at Dexter Jettster’s hideout for the Erased, discover the connection between Bog Divinian on Samaria and Sano Sauro’s pet project (the True Justice). They head for the Senate building and break into Sauro’s office, gathering computer data on the ship and transmitting it to Solace, just before they are captured by security and held for Sauro. Elsewhere, Solace’s team uses the information from Coruscant to pose as a judge and legal agents for the Empire. They board the True Justice, hold a trial, of sorts, for Roan and Doma, then manage to take out the skeleton crew of humans and droids. Roan and Doma are safe. When this news reaches Sauro, he is forced to handle it, which leaves Bog on his own, forcing Palpatine to send Darth Vader to Samaria to clean up Sauro and Bog’s mess (and keep an eye on Ferus). On Samaria, Ferus and Clive discover the hiding place (a tower under construction) of “Quintus”... and find that the saboteur is actually Astri Oddo, formerly Astri Divinian. The old friend of Obi-Wan (and acquaintance of Ferus) had left Bog, but he and Sano Sauro want their son, Lune, because he is Force sensitive. (Sauro seems to have the notion of capturing Force-sensitive children to turn to the Dark Side for Palpatine.) She used her computer skills to screw up the capital city, with the Prime Minister’s help, in order to help protect Lune and purge the city’s records of potentially damaging information on anti-Imperial protestors and other elements. Unfortunately, they are not safe. Even as they figure out what to do next, Imperials arrive to begin a search for them. Luckily, just as Vader is arriving with his troops, the True Justice also arrives, allowing Solace, Trever, and Oryon to get to Ferus, Clive, Astri, and Lune first. In a firefight that follows with stormtroopers (but not yet Vader), Ferus is able to help get the others to safety aboard the True Justice, which blasts off into space. As for Ferus, he has the information he needs to fix the computer system (while protecting the information that Astri and Larker intended to hide), so he simply walks out of the building, speaking with Vader on his way, not ever realizing that Vader is his old “rival” Anakin Skywalker. On Coruscant, Keets and Curran are rescued with the help of an old waitress droid, WA-7, working with Dex. All seems to be well, but Ferus is now still in the employ of the Sith. He decides to remain in Palpatine’s employ for the time being, allowing himself to be a double agent, hoping to help bring down the Empire from within.*

(A Tangled Web)

*NOTE: Ferus sarcastically comments to Palpatine that the Empire was declared a couple of months ago. However, this must just be sarcasm, as this story has to take place after the previous LOTJ books. He also refers to having seen Bog Divinian for the last time ten years earlier, which is also an extreme rounding, since that was only six years earlier.

- Ferus Olin has managed to fix the BRT droid computer in Sath on Samaria, thereby earning his supposed amnesty from Emperor Palpatine. However, he now finds himself in the employ of the Sith Lord, trying to act as a double agent. Imperial Advisor Bog Divinian is now claiming credit for Ferus’ work in fixing the local resistance’s sabotage (carried out by his own estranged wife, Astri Oddo), as a means of gaining more power for himself and removing himself from under Sano Sauro’s thumb. To make matters worse for Ferus, the Emperor arrives on Samaria to check out the situation personally, which pits Ferus against Darth Vader in an unwanted competition for the Sith Master’s favor. Bog, for his part, is engineering a vote of no confidence in Prime Minister Aaren Larker, intending on having himself elected (or appointed) in Larker’s place. As part of this plot, he is playing on the current rivalry between Samaria (which excels in manufacturing massive computer systems like the BRT) and its neighboring world Rosha (which specializes in incredibly small machines and computers). A Roshan delegation, including Robbyn Sark, is on Samaria to negotiate a trade agreement, but Bog has been manufacturing discontent against the Roshans, who, up until now, were welcome guests on the world (which Bog still pretends is the case). Upon arrival, Palpatine gives Ferus a new mission. He is to seek out the local resistance in Sath and offer them amnesty in return for ceasing their “terrorist” operations. Ferus accepts, if only so that he can meet the resistance and offer to help them if he can. It is certainly a better option than letting Vader rampage through the city, killing any members he finds. Meanwhile, on the asteroid that has become the base for Ferus’ rebel allies, things are getting frustratingly dull. The rebels there now include: Trever Flume; Toma; Raina; Dona; Garen Muln; Solace; Oryon; Clive Fax; Astri Oddo; and Lune Oddo. Trever is perhaps the most frustrated, so when he learns that Toma is in contact with Flame, the leader of a resistance movement known as Moonstrike, he sees a chance for excitement. Flame was a wealthy woman on Acherin, who is now hoping to use her wealth to organize various resistance movements into one larger force. Someone will need to get into contact with her. Knowing that he would never be chosen by the group, Trever steals their only starship and heads off to meet Flame on Samaria, where she is hoping to hook up with the local resistance and/or Ferus. At a social function for Bog on Samaria, Ferus encounters both Vader and Larker. Vader requests briefings from Ferus, but Palpatine had ordered him to report only to the Emperor himself, shutting Vader out of the loop. As for Larker, Ferus hopes he can help him get in touch with the resistance, but Larker refuses to trust him. Instead, Ferus follows Larker’s aide, Dahl, when he leaves, eventually finding the resistance. (Well, they find him sneaking around.) Once he proves his intentions, he gets to know several members (Dinko, Nek, and Firefolk). He extends Palpatine’s “offer,” but also extends one of his own to help them. He learns that Bog is bribing his way to the top, and the resistance plans to reveal this when they have enough proof. Luckily, the personal droid (PD) that Bog was given at the recent social function was reprogrammed by the resistance, so it is gathering evidence for them. Ferus leaves, having learned of a now-dead resistance location to turn in to the Empire to keep up appearances. Upon return, Ferus is again confronted by Vader. In a quick verbal joust, Vader tosses out a comment that strikes Ferus to the core: “I know you.” While he still doesn’t know that Vader is actually his old Padawan rival Anakin Skywalker, he does start to suspect that Vader is not a Sith Apprentice that was kept secret like Darth Maul, but could instead have been a Jedi Knight who was turned to the Dark Side by the Emperor. Elsewhere on Samaria, Trever crashes down in his stolen ship and is set upon by locals. Luckily, Flame is there with her own speeder. She saves him, and the two concoct a plan to prove their worth to the local resistance . . . by stealing Bog’s droid, which is exactly what they shouldn’t do. Shortly thereafter, Bog is escorting the Roshans when they seem to come under attack by Roshan droids (sent by Bog to make himself look good and engender fear of the Roshans). At the same time, Trever and Flame swoop in and yank away Bog's droid. Ferus gives chase, discovering the identity of the thieves. He tells them that the droid is necessary and returns with it, putting in a good word for them with the resistance later. As for Bog, he can't use the droids as an excuse to speak against the Roshans, based on testimony from Ferus that exonerates them. Soon, Vader, who has just come from a conversation with Palpatine in which the Emperor expressed confidence in Ferus actually joining them, gives Ferus a new assignment. He is to seek out the person who stole Bog's droid. When Ferus tries to avoid the job, Vader tells him that if he doesn't find the thief and bring him in, Vader will call in a battalion of Imperials that are waiting secretly in Imperial vessels in the system and institute mass arrests. One overheard conversation later, though, Ferus discovers that the mass arrests have already been ordered, and he knows the Roshans will be first to be arrested.

Ferus races to the resistance leaders, who are already meeting with Trever and Flame. They finally figure out that the reason that the Imperials want to stop the trade agreement between Samaria and Rosha is because the technology of both words (macro and micro systems) could be used to transfer huge amounts of information, making it impossible for the Empire to control information and force propaganda where they see fit. It would be a great technology with which to help start a galaxy-wide rebellion. As the group separates, Ferus, Trever, and Flame head for the Roshan delegation to get them safely off of Samaria with Trever and Flame on Flame's ship. Meanwhile, Dinko, Nek, and Firefolk head for the Hall of Ministers to use the information they've gathered on Bog to discredit him and block the vote of no confidence in Larker. The rescue goes off without a hitch, but the rest of the plan starts to go awry. Vader orders the HoloNet on Samaria shut down, stopping the broadcast of the evidence against Bog. The no confidence vote goes through, leaving Larker out of office and Bog the new Prime Minister in his place, putting Samaria into the Empire's pocket. Bog has convinced other legislators that any evidence was concocted as part of a Roshan plot against him, and his first act has been to outlaw all personal droids, claiming that they can be used by the Roshans to spy on Samarians. While Trever and Flame get the Roshans off of Samaria and head for Rosha, Ferus returns to Sath, where he is met by Aaren Larker, who tells him to take him into custody as the supposed thief, so that Ferus doesn't lose face and so that the weight of the charges against Bog can be increased a bit by Larker's own backers. Ferus argues against this, but Larker forces the issue. In the aftermath, things go from bad to worse. Within two days, Larker is charged, tried, and convicted, then sent to a prison where he is promptly killed by another inmate, no doubt on Imperial orders. Dinko is arrested, and Ferus cannot seem to reach Nek or Firefolk. Just as the HoloNet is restored before Bog's inauguration, Ferus sees the frightening sight of news footage from Rosha. Citing the supposed attempt on Bog's life and other incidents, the Samarians have launched attacks against Rosha, including the spaceport where Ferus sees the wreckage of Flame's ship. The battalion that Vader had in waiting was for Rosha, not Samaria. Vader had been bluffing. Now, the Roshan delegation that Ferus helped escape is dead, and he fears that Flame and Trever are dead too. He might wish that were the case one day, as Trever and Flame are alive and in hiding on Rosha, where Flame tells Trever that it looks like the Samarians knew where they'd be arriving, placing doubt in Trever's mind as to just whose side Ferus is really on now... into her plan for a galaxywide resistance known as “Moonstrike.” Their meeting is interrupted, though, when they are assaulted by Imperials. Only Trever and Flame survive. They decide to continue their mission by contacting the relatively high-profile resistance group, the Eleven, on Bellassa, Trever’s homeworld. They first steal a ship and return to their asteroid base to reunite with their allies . . . but it’s not quite that simple. Trever had stolen their only ship to go after Ferus, when he’d met Flame. Thus, there are some trust issues to be resolved upon meeting. Meet they do, though, and they are welcomed back into the fold. The group will again split up. Raina Quill and Toma will remain on the base with Oryon and Garen Muln. Solace (former Jedi Knight Fry-Tor Ana) and Clive Flax will take Astri Oddo and her Force-sensitive son, Lune Oddo Divinian, to Coruscant to hide out with Dexter Jettster to keep him from his father, Bog Divinian, who now rules Samaria and Rosha. Meanwhile, Roan Lands, Dona Telamark, Trever, and Flame will go to Bellassa to hook up with the Eleven. Soon, the Bellassa team sets down (after a cold Imperial reception) and goes about linking up with Trever’s old contacts and the resistance, including Eleven leaders Amie Antin and Wil. They decide that they need to contact Ferus if possible, so they can find out what is happening with the Imperials . . . On Coruscant, the Coruscant group reunites with Dex and other members of the Erased, including Keets Freely and Curran Caladian. They also learn about rumors of what sounds like a Jedi loose on Coruscant. They soon go out looking for the Jedi, eventually finding him. It is Jedi Master Ry-Gaul, who now joins them. Back on Bellassa, Ferus learns that the Empire is retooling the factories to work on some kind of massive project, on which many scientists are working as well (many by having their families held hostage). Soon, Ferus meets secretly with Roan, detailing what he knows and deciding they all need to get into the base to seek more information. Ferus arranges with Russell Wake, the security chief who is sympathetic to the Eleven, to have the power out for fifteen minutes, allowing them to get in and out. Now they just have to wait for the right moment. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Lune is noticed on security cameras while playing, which alerts the Imperials, since Bog wants him brought to him and is using all of his resources, including Sano Sauro, head of the Imperial Naval Academy, to get him back. Just as they all reunite near Dex’s Diner, Imperials swoop in and kidnap Lune! Back on Bellassa, Ferus learns more about the secret project, including its likely construction location, Despayre. (We realize now, if we hadn’t before, that the “secret weapon” being produced in bits and pieces on Bellassa and other worlds is, of course, the Death Star superweapon.) Roan, Amie, and Trever will sneak into the base that night. They do so, splitting up, with help from Ferus. They discover that the Empire is working with bioweapons expert Jenna Zan Arbor on some kind of toxic project as well, but when Ferus has to go look for Trever, he knows something is wrong. He gives Trever important info that was found by Roan to get out if they can’t get out together. Ferus then returns to where he left Roan and Amie, only to find Vader apprehending them (after having killed Russell Wake). Vader kills Roan in front of Ferus to provoke him and gets his wish. Ferus lashes out with his lightsaber at Vader, only for Vader to subdue him. Only the arrival of stormtroopers causes Vader to let Ferus live, instead of killing a fellow servant of the Emperor. Amie and Ferus are taken into custody. Meanwhile, Trever is able to get out with the help of a young woman who was going to escape herself, but sends him out instead because he has given her hope. In the wake of the chaos, the game is reorganized one more time. Even as Trever and Flame return to Coruscant and join with the others in planning to rescue Lune by letting Trever enlist in the Academy where Lune has been sent, Ferus is offered the chance to lead the Emperor’s team that is tracking down errant Jedi in return for learning greater Force secrets. With the chance of being able to find and hide more Jedi and to gain enough power to destroy even Darth Vader, whomever he is under that mask, Ferus agrees . . .

(Secret Weapon)

- Jax Pavan and his associates continue to help people on Coruscant via Whiplash and their own initiatives. When Jax and I-5YQ (I-Five) receive a visit from Tuden Sal, the man who was supposed to have taken the Sith Holocron and I-Five to the Jedi Temple for Lorn Pavan after Lorn faced off with Darth Maul. Tuden, whom I-Five is not at all happy to see, now works with Whiplash. Now, he has a plan that would utilize I-Five’s special sentience: only a droid could get close enough to assassinate Emperor Palpatine. Our heroes have a lot to consider before deciding whether to support or oppose such an operation. These are not their only concerns, though. The Inquisitors have been hunting Jax on orders from Darth Vader, who wants the pyronium nugget that Anakin Skywalker once gave to Jax. One Inquisitor, Probus Tesla, has been tracking Jax, but Vader now sets him on a hunt for I-Five, believing that I-Five may have another item Vader desires: the bota sample that was entrusted to him on Drongar. The sample is also coveted by Haninum Tyk Rhinann, their quiet ally and former aide to Vader, who seeks to touch the Force for the first time by using the bota’s power to increase one’s connection to the Force. Soon, Jax and Larantha Tarak (a Gray Paladin Jedi ally) seek out the source of strong Force ripples, only to find a young man, Kajin “Kaj” Savaros battling Inquisitors. After Kajin wipes the floor with the Inquisitors on pure instinct, Jax helps the boy, intending to train him, which may well be his new mission in life now that the Jedi are all but extinct. As Jax begins training Kajin, they learn two important facts: their sometimes-ally, sometimes-annoyance Prefect Pol Haus wants to help them to get Kajin to safety (but can they trust him?); and the light sculpture of the late Ves Volette, former lover to another of their group, Dejah Duare, can actually hide one in the Force when in their proximity. They intend to set up a special place for Kajin at Volette’s studio, where Kajin can be safe from discovery, despite his extreme Force powers. The group continues to debate the assassination plan, but they remain split: Rhinann and Den Dhur (I-Five’s presumptive best friend) vote against it based on the danger it presents, but Dejah votes for it, even as Jax abstains. Jax has set up a meeting with the leader of Whiplash, Thi Xon Yimmon, and he wants Yimmon’s thoughts before he votes. Upon meeting Yimmon with Laranth, Jax learns that they can trust Haus, as he is a member of Whiplash, and that Tuden Sal’s plan, while sound, is not necessarily a good idea if motivated by vengeance, nor would it be a good idea if it would turn Jax or his allies into just another mirror image of the Empire’s way of dealing with its enemies. In order to protect his friends, Jax votes against the plan, but when he asks what his father would have done, I-Five plays a pre-recorded message from Lorn to Jax regarding Lorn’s actions against Darth Maul. Jax believes his father would have taken action to help the galaxy, rather than playing it safe, so Jax chooses to also act heroically, going along with the plan. Having had their discussion, Jax and I-Five discover that Dejah and Rhinann have left with Kajin. While out for a walk after being cooped up for so long (and not knowing they could trust Haus yet), they are attacked by the Inquisitors. With the help of their allies, they are able to escape again, but Tesla senses I-Five in the Force, which Jax also soon realizes, which means that I-Five couldn’t carry out the assassination as planned. They have bigger problems (yet again), however: Den Dhur has left for Sullust to be with the love of his life, so they are short one ally (one “short ally,” one could say); and Vader reveals to Tesla that there is a spy in Jax’s group. The group makes further plans, intending to send Kajin to Yimmon for his own safety, while the assassination plan is revised to include I-Five and Jax himself, disguised as an Inquisitor, with the bota as a possible last minute backup plan to make Jax powerful enough to take on Palpatine. While heading for Yimmon, Kajin and Laranth are attacked and captured, based on insider information. Kajin is taken to the base of the Inquisitorius, who begin to try to brainwash him into being an Inquisitor. Intending to rescue both Laranth and Kajin from the Imperial Security Bureau base nearby, they are shocked to find that Kajin has been moved, but Jax can sense Laranth inside in pain. With Rhinann as the go-between, Jax offers Vader I-Five and the bota in exchange for the freedom of Laranth (whom he has realized a true affection for and vice versa) and Kajin. Kajin, though, has been brainwashed into thinking that the Jedi are the enemy. When the meeting (i.e. rescue strike) takes place, Jax enters as a disguised Inquisitor, along with Rhinann. Palpatine is supposed to also be there, but I-Five recognizes him as only a hologram. Vader is the only Sith present, holding Laranth captive with Kajin at his side. Dejah reveals herself to be the traitor, breaking Jax’s cover. Dejah had been trying to be with Jax for a while now, drawing from his Force attunement like a drug. When he realized this and stopped it from happening, she turned to another willing source: Tesla. I-Five, his personality restored from brief dormancy, strikes at Vader after revealing that he does not have the bota any longer. Instead, as Vader strikes at Jax, Laranth reveals that she has the bota. She gives it to Vader, who also reclaims the pyronium nugget from Jax. Together, these will purify Vader’s connection to the Force and grant him immense power, using a process from the Sith Holocron that Lorn Pavan had once protected (which Vader does not have, but in his overconfidence, he tries anyway). When Vader puts the bota into his system, he experiences not an extreme connection to the Cosmic Force that he can control but instead has what is later described as a “bad trip.” He loses control, lashing out with tendrils of Force energy, until everyone, endangered, races to safety as Whiplash operatives also arrive, including Den, who had decided to devote himself to his friends, rather than his love, which is where his heart and spirit really directed him. Rhinann, for his part, falls with Vader from a blasted portion of the wall, feeling the Force at last before dying. In the aftermath, Kajin is sent to be among the Silent on Shili, while Jax blames himself, in part, for not realizing that Dejah was betraying them. Jax and Laranth are not sure where to go from here as far as their personal relationship, but they will continue working together, as Jax intends to stay on Coruscant to continue his work with Whiplash. As for Vader, he is very much alive, and now Jax knows, based on Vader requesting that he “return” rather than “give” the pyronium to him, that Vader is indeed Anakin. After a brief touch with the Cosmic Force, a sort of confirmation of what he is doing with his life, Jax proceeds to help their next client, but his story, it appears, is far from over.

(Patterns of Force)*

*NOTE: The events of Street of Shadows have been said to be 18.46 BBY, while Patterns of Force is 18.3 BBY. Since those numbers are the Holocron Continuity Database’s actual decimals, not month notations, that means that approximately two months have passed. (It also puts Patterns of Force around 6 months after ROTS, given that ROTs is right about 18.8 BBY.) I should also note that the ending suggests two reasons for Vader’s “bad trip.” Either the Force is too powerful for one being to truly touch without having a “bad trip” experience, or Vader had his “bad trip” because the bota was around twenty years old, dating back to the Clone Wars. Unfortunately, that latter explanation relies on Michael Reaves’ repeated mistakes in this novel series regarding when the Clone Wars took place in relation to these novels. Thus, it doesn’t actually make any logical sense. We are left to either accept the first explanation or assume the bota could go bad after only a few years (which may very well be possible).

- Queen Apailana of Naboo insists that any Jedi are still friends of Naboo. In doing so, she has thumbed her nose at the Empire, frustrating, among others, Inquisitor Malorum. Eventually, this cannot be tolerated. The Empire cracks down on Naboo for harboring fugitive Jedi by sending the 501st Legion to assassinate Apailana. They do so, and ensure that the next monarch is pro-Empire. (To be continued below . . . )

(Battlefront II)

- Eight months after the apparent death of Quinlan Vos on Kashyyyk, friends gather to view a recording that Quinlan made in his holocron during the Kashyyyk battles. Among those gathered are the Wookiee Claatuvac Guild leader Gumbaeki, Gumbaeki’s grandson Chak, Jedi Master T’ra Saa, Jedi Master Tholme, and Khaleen Hentz. (T’ra Saa and Tholme had been with Khaleen on Nar Shaddaa, away from clonetroopers, when Order 66 was carried out, and they escaped with her from there to their current hideout.) As they near Quinlan’s final declaration of love for Khaleen, a voice calls out to stop the playback. They all turn to see Vilmarh “Ville” Grahrk enter . . . with Quinlan, very much alive! The body that Ville had burned on Kashyyyk was that of a clonetrooper, used to fool the clones into believing Quinlan was dead. He had then taken Quinlan to be healed with bacta for a long while. Now, the lovers Quinlan and Khaleen are reunited, and she can introduce him to their newborn son, Korto Vos. He is a child of the Force, and Quinlan swears that the darkness will never touch him. (Exact date based on the LucasBooks internal Clone Wars Timeline: 17:1)*

(Hidden Enemy)*

*NOTE: This portion of Hidden Enemy takes place 8 months (on a 12-month calendar) after ROTS.

- Months after the creation of the Empire, Nahdennis Praji, now of age, enlists in the Imperial military.

(conjecture based on Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Praji: A Cartel of Genes)

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)

Order 66 [continued] (novel: Karen Traviss)

Chapter 25

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)

Into the Unknown (comic: Welles Hartley)

Into the Unknown, Part I (comic: Welles Hartley)*
NOTE: This story was released as a Hasbro “Comic Pack” with action figures of Commander Keller and Galactic Marine.

Into the Unknown, Part II (comic: Welles Hartley)

Republic Commando [continued] (video game/novel series: Karen Traviss & LucasArts & THQ)
Order 66 [continued] (novel: Karen Traviss)
  Chapter 26 – 27

Honor and Duty [continued] (comic series: John Ostrander)
Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley)
  Loyalties (comic: John Ostrander)
  Loyalties (comic: John Ostrander)

Imperial Commando (novel series: Karen Traviss)
501st (novel: Karen Traviss)
  Prologue
  Chapters 1 – 16

“Imperial Commando, Book II” (novel: Karen Traviss) [canceled]*
NOTE: This novel was supposed to be written by Karen Traviss, but with her departure from Star Wars writing in August 2009, followed by her subsequent pulling back from this specific novel (that she had intended to finish) in December 2009, the fate of this novel was left up in the air. For a while, Sur Rostoni stated that another author would be hired to write it, but it was announced in July 2010 that the novel had indeed been canceled.

Salvaged (CWA9 comic: Matthew Fillbach & Shawn Fillbach)

Vader’s Pursuit (miniatures game: Sterling Hershey)
Vader’s Pursuit (miniatures game: Sterling Hershey)

The Last One Standing (LOTJ/SOTJ short story: Jude Watson)
The Last One Standing (LOTJ/SOTJ short story: Jude Watson)

Purge [continued] (comic series: John Ostrander & Haden Blackman & Alexander Freed)*
Purge (comic: John Ostrander)*

NOTE: This issue was released as a Hasbro “Comic Pack” with action figures of Bultar Swan and Koffi Arana.

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 7

Kenobi [continued] (novel: John Jackson Miller)
Kenobi [continued] (novel: John Jackson Miller)

The Oasis
  Chapters 1 – 5
  Chapter 6
    Meditation
  Chapters 7 – 10
  Chapter 11
    Meditation
  The Killing Ground
  Chapters 12 – 20
  Chapter 21
    Meditation
  Chapters 22 – 23
  Chapter 24
    Meditation
  The Bright Center
  Chapters 25 – 26
  Chapter 27
    Meditation
  Chapter 28 – 34
  Chapter 35
Meditation

The Rift
Chapters 36 – 39
Chapter 40
Meditation
Chapters 41 – 46
Chapter 47
Meditation

Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)
The Path to Nowhere (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley)
  The Path to Nowhere, Part I (comic: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley)
  The Path to Nowhere, Part II (comic: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley)
  The Path to Nowhere, Part III (comic: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley)
  The Path to Nowhere, Part IV (comic: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley)
  The Path to Nowhere, Part V (comic: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley)

Pax Empirica (short story: Steven L. Kent)
Pax Empirica (short story: Steven L. Kent)

Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Dark Lord: The Rise of Darth Vader [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
The Emperor’s Emissary
  Chapters 9 – 16
Imperial Center
  Chapters 17 – 35
Kashyyyk
  Chapters 36 – 49
Epilogue
  Chapters 50 – 54

Purge [continued] (comic series: John Ostrander & Haden Blackman & Alexander Freed)
Seconds to Die [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
The Hidden Blade (comic: Haden Blackman)
The Tyrant’s Fist (comic series: Alexander Freed)
  The Tyrant’s Fist, Part I (comic: Alexander Freed)
  The Tyrant’s Fist, Part II (comic: Alexander Freed)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 7 [continued]

Coruscant Nights (novel trilogy: Michael Reaves)
Jedi Twilight (novel: Michael Reaves)
  Life During Wartime
    Chapters 1 – 21
  As Above, So Below
    Chapters 22 – 36
Feral City
  Chapters 37 – 46

Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)
Parallels [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison)
  Parallels, Part I [continued] (comic: Mick Harrison)
  Parallels, Part II (comic: Mick Harrison)
  Parallels, Part III (comic: Mick Harrison)
  Parallels, Part IV (comic: Mick Harrison)
  Parallels, Part V (comic: Mick Harrison)

Vector [continued] (comic series: John Jackson Miller & Mick Harrison & Rob Williams & John Ostrander)
Volume I [continued] (comic series: John Jackson Miller & Mick Harrison)
  Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)
  Vector [continued] (comic series: John Jackson Miller & Mick Harrison & Rob
Williams & John Ostrander
Vector, Part V (comic: Mick Harrison)
Vector, Part VI (comic: Mick Harrison)

Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)

Blue Harvest (comic series: Mick Harrison)
Prologue (comic: Mick Harrison)
Prologue, Part I (MSDHP18 comic: Mick Harrison)
Prologue, Part II (MSDHP19 comic: Mick Harrison)
Blue Harvest, Part I (comic: Mick Harrison)
Blue Harvest, Part II (comic: Mick Harrison)
Blue Harvest, Part III (comic: Mick Harrison)
Blue Harvest, Part IV (comic: Mick Harrison)
Blue Harvest, Part V (comic: Mick Harrison)

Out of the Wilderness (comic series: Mick Harrison)
Out of the Wilderness, Part I (comic: Mick Harrison)
Out of the Wilderness, Part II (comic: Mick Harrison)
Out of the Wilderness, Part III (comic: Mick Harrison)
Out of the Wilderness, Part IV (comic: Mick Harrison)
Out of the Wilderness, Part V (comic: Mick Harrison)

Darth Vader and the Lost Command (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Lost Command, Part I (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Lost Command, Part II (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Lost Command, Part III (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Lost Command, Part IV (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Lost Command, Part V (comic series: Haden Blackman)

Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison, Part I (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison, Part II (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison, Part III (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison, Part IV (comic series: Haden Blackman)
Darth Vader and the Ghost Prison, Part V (comic series: Haden Blackman)

Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin (comic series: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin, Part I (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin, Part II (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin, Part III (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin, Part IV (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Ninth Assassin, Part V (comic: Tim Siedell)

Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows [continued] (comic series: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows, Part I [continued] (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows, Part II [continued] (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows, Part III [continued] (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows, Part IV [continued] (comic: Tim Siedell)
Darth Vader and the Cry of Shadows, Part V [continued] (comic: Tim Siedell)

Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)

Fire Carrier (comic series: Randy Stradley)
Fire Carrier, Part I (comic: Randy Stradley)
Fire Carrier, Part II (comic: Randy Stradley)
Fire Carrier, Part III (comic: Randy Stradley)
Fire Carrier, Part IV (comic: Randy Stradley)
Fire Carrier, Part V (comic: Randy Stradley)

A Spark Remains (comic series: Randy Stradley)
A Spark Remains, Part I (comic: Randy Stradley)
A Spark Remains, Part II (comic: Randy Stradley)
A Spark Remains, Part III (comic: Randy Stradley)
A Spark Remains, Part IV (comic: Randy Stradley)
A Spark Remains, Part V (comic: Randy Stradley)
In His Image (VTUG short story: Karen Traviss)
In His Image (VTUG short story: Karen Traviss)
Dark Vendetta (SWGM8/SWH short story: Eric Trautmann)
Dark Vendetta [flashback] (SWGM8/SWH short story: Eric Trautmann)
Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
Recruitment (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
  Webstrips 1 – 121
The Adventures of Thrawn (AJ/SWH short stories: Timothy Zahn)
Mist Encounter (AJ7/SWH short story: Timothy Zahn)
Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
Prey (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
  Webstrips 1 – 62
Evasive Action [continued] (SWH comic series: Paul Ens)
End Game (SWH comic: Paul Ens)
  Webstrips 1 – 88
The Last of the Jedi (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
The Desperate Mission (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 20
Dark Warning (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 17
Ghosts of the Sith (SWI88 short story: Jude Watson)
Ghosts of the Sith (SWI88 short story: Jude Watson)
The Last of the Jedi [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
  Dark Warning [continued] (youth novel: Jude Watson)
    Chapter 18*
    *NOTE: Technically, Ferus returns by this chapter just briefly, which means Ghosts of the Sith must take place between Chapters 17 and 18, but I have written the summaries such that a tiny little one-chapter summary for this section is not necessary.
The Last of the Jedi [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
Underworld (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 16
Death on Naboo (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 22
Coruscant Nights [continued] (novel trilogy: Michael Reaves)
Street of Shadows [continued] (novel: Michael Reaves)
  Planet Noir
    Chapters 1 – 13
  Rites of Passage
    Chapters 14 – 30
The Last of the Jedi [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
A Tangled Web (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 22
Return of the Dark Side (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 18
Secret Weapon (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 21
Coruscant Nights [continued] (novel trilogy: Michael Reaves)
Patterns of Force (novel: Michael Reaves)
  Prologue
    Sins of the Father
      Chapters 1 – 17
    Ties That Bind
      Chapters 18 – 29
Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
Rise of the Empire
Naboo

Imperial Diplomacy

Republic [continued] (comic series: Peet Janes & Jan Strnad & Tim Truman & John Ostrander & Pat Mills & Doug Petrie & Haden Blackman & Randy Stradley & Welles Hartley & Welles Hartley)
Hidden Enemy [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)
    Hidden Enemy, Part III [continued] (comic: John Ostrander)

18 BBY

- Corran Horn is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on I, Jedi)
- Gariel Captison is born on Bakura.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- Breth Gart is born on Agamar.
  (conjecture based on The Farlander Papers)
- Kell Doran (AKA Kell Tainer) is born on Sluis Van.
  (conjecture based on information provided by Aaron Allston to TimeTales via Nathan Blumenfeld)
- Mirax Terrik is born on Corellia.
  (conjecture based on I, Jedi)
- Platt Okeefe is born on Brentaal, assuming that the birthdate on her captain’s license, “13:7:17,” cannot be trusted and that she lied about her age and was really sixteen when she got it.
  (conjecture based on Platt’s Starport Guide)
- Stavin Thaal is born on Carida.
  (conjecture based on Mercy Kill)
- Shira Elan Colla Brie is born.*
  (conjecture based on Lumiya: Dark Star of the Empire)*

*NOTE: This assumes Shira was the same age as Luke.
- Kristoff Stonelaw is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Draw)*

*NOTE: This assumes Kristoff is 18 in The Draw.
- Thera Morrow is born.*
  (conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)*

*NOTE: This assumes that The Jewel of Yavin is about a year or so after ANH.
- Liadden is born on Moer.
  (conjecture based on A Free-Trader’s Guide to the Planets)
- The granddaughter of General Deerian is born.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- Erik Lauderslag is born.*
  (conjecture based Rebel Bass)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Erik is not the oldest of the Far Cry band as of Rebel Bass, and that Rebel Bass takes place 2 BBY.
- The boy that will eventually be known as Kad Solus is born into slavery under Thalassian slaver Nok, who is expanding his business on Tatooine at this time.*
  (conjecture based Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Kad being “young” (a reference frequently made) in Friends Like These would make him about 18, just barely an adult.
- Hannis D’lund is born.*
  (conjecture based Rebel Bass)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Erik is not the oldest of the Far Cry band as of Rebel Bass, and that Rebel Bass takes place 2 BBY.
- Denel Moonrunner is born to Lorn and Artis Moonrunner.
  (conjecture based on The Occupation of Rhamalai)
- Dack Ralter is born on Kalist VI.*
(conjecture based on Who’s Who in Rogue Squadron)*

NOTE: This assumes Dack is 21 in ESB like Luke.

- Jake Farrell leaves the Empire, finally understanding its true oppressive nature.*
  (conjecture based on Rebel Assault Gamebook)*

NOTE: Rebel Assault has a questionable status in the continuity. According to Leland Chee, some of the story fits, while other elements do not. That makes me wonder if the information in its guide, the Rebel Assault Gamebook, should be taken seriously. For now, we can figure that this information is correct, since the character exists in some of the in-continuity segments.

- Lord Bal Jaset begins serving on Coruscant as a Court advisor.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)
- Ansan Talam begins mining on Tasariq.
  (conjecture based on Tasariq: The Crystal Planet)
- Mitth’raw’nuruodo (Thrawn) graduates from the Caridian academy.
  (conjecture based on Mist Encounter and Specter of the Past)
- Bast Castle is built on Vjun.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire II)
- Jedi Master Plett turns his well on Belsavis into a Jedi sanctuary.
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)
- Mardoc the Hutt takes over as the Grand Council of Hutts’ Executive Secretary.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
- In the era soon after the Clone Wars, the Jiramma Hutt clan attempts to expand operations on Cato Neimoidia, led by Darga the Hutt, but operations are unsuccessful due to local rebel activity.
  (conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)
- The Empire comes to Verkuyl, taking it over from BactaCo.
  (conjecture based on Conflict of Interest)
- Around this time, after only a few years of production, the Kazellis-class light freighter from the Kathol sector’s Kazellis Corporation ceases production entirely, due to unfortunate business decisions. It will have been the only ship produced by the company before it folds.
  (conjecture based on Savage Spirits)
- Kuat Drive Yards sells the Delta starfighter and unarmed vessel line to Sienar Fleet Systems.
  (conjecture based on Survivor’s Quest)
- Around this time, the Secutor-class battle carrier (technically a Star Destroyer design) enters the Imperial Navy.
  (conjecture based on Stay on Target)
- Giju, the Herglic home planet, is one of the first targeted by the New Order.
  (conjecture based on Alien Anthology)
- With the rise of the Empire, the planet Thisspias is bombarded by Imperial warships, and an overzealous Imperial governor soon assassinates the Blood Monarch and imprisons the crown prince, prompting a rebellion that is subdued by Imperial firepower. Rebels soon free the crown prince, which prompts the governor to threaten to annihilate all of the Thisspiansians. An Emperor’s Hand is sent to assassinate the governor and keep a bad situation from becoming worse. The planet is then placed under military quarantine, though some natives will escape to join rebel movements and, ultimately, the Rebel Alliance.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- Palpatine orders the creation of the Eye of Palpatine and a base on Pzob with troops ready to board the vessel at a moment’s notice in an effort to destroy remaining Jedi Knights. The ship is stopped by Jedi Knights Callista Masana (later “Callista Ming”) and Geith. Callista’s “spirit” remains onboard to keep the ship from fulfilling its mission. Palpatine, angered by the failure, sends the ship’s designers to Neelgalmon for a nice stay in the sand mines, and sends a new task force to blast Plawal.
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)
- As clonetroopers are slowly phased out of the Imperial military, some form mercenary companies. One such group is the 1st Platoon, who keeps their Clone Wars era name, including clonetroopers Zeke, Oake, Jayk, Rafe, Tojo, and others. They, like other clones, end up taking their “retirement pay” by stealing weapons to kick off these mercenary endeavors.
(conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)

- With Sienar Fleet Systems and Kuat Drive Yards gaining Imperial support and regulations prohibiting or limiting the sale of military-grade systems to non-governmental and non-Imperial parties, Corellian Engineering Corporation loses too much money on its Starbolt assault carrier to keep producing the model.
(conjecture based on Dangerous Covenants)

- After a while of living in different places and taking jobs from various clients, Clan Awaud, led by Nam Beroya, finally settles on Vlemoth Port and sets up Arumorut as their new home. This is mostly due to Nam and other members of the clan wanting to put down roots after years in the field. One of the first contacts they make is the Gnaaz tribe of Talz on the planet.*
(conjecture based on Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: While they left Mandalore “decades” before Friends Like These, which is clarified as definitely “before the Clone Wars,” they have only actually been at Arumorut for about two decades as of Friends Like These, so they obviously did not go directly there. I have rounded to make nearly two decades into 18 years.

- The mining colonists on Iol desire to break away from Tangan Industries and form a new independent state, but the company negotiates an agreement to improve living conditions, which increases both morale and productivity.*
(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke van Horn. This is “as the Empire gains power over most of the galaxy,” which is up for interpretation.

- This year, the Empire continues its multi-front campaign to pacify rebellious regions. One such campaign sees Admiral Wullf Yularen's forces take on a union of Zygerrian slavers, Tervig slavers, and Sikurdian pirates. Yularen's large force stands strong against the pirates at the Battle of Sagma, interdicted Zygerria (allowing an Imperial diplomat, backed by stormtroopers, to force a peace settlement with the Zygerrians), and continually enacts raids on Tervissis. A second, simultaneous campaign becomes known as the Noolian Crisis. After the fall of Ando to the Empire, Aqualish and Harch raiders, backed by secret anti-Imperial interests, manage to seize Nooli, Galboron, and several outlying worlds in Bothan Space. They are crushed by a task force led by Captain Par Lankin at the Battle of Galboron.
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- On Kashyyyk, the parents of Galen Marek, both Jedi, are discovered by Trandoshan slavers. In the battle that ensues, Galen’s mother sacrifices herself so that his father, Kento Marek, can get the boy to safety. Unbeknownst to either of them at the time, the encounter between the Trandoshans and the Mareks alerts Darth Vader to the presence of Kento and Galen on Kashyyyk. Vader will soon come for them . . .

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Darth Vader comes to Kashyyyk to solidify the Imperial presence there. He discovers Jedi Master Kento Marek living with the Wookiees. He kills Kento in front of his son, Galen Marek, but the boy uses the Force to snatch away Vader’s saber, showing great Force potential. Rather than letting his troopers kill the child, he kills the troopers and secretly takes the child back with him. He will raise Galen Marek as his own secret Sith apprentice, codenamed “Starkiller.” (To be continued below . . . )*

(The Force Unleashed)*

*NOTE: Kento says that Vader killed his master “years ago,” which makes no sense whatsoever, unless he means the Sith in general or somehow thinks that Vader existed before Anakin actually becomes Vader, perhaps through disinformation.

- Cradossk hides in a freezer to hide his life signs from a bounty, which he then kills for 100,000 credits. This event becomes part of the first chapter of his memoir, Making a Killing. (Exact publishing date: 17:6)*
(conjecture based on Making a Killing)*

*NOTE: This event is “a month ago,” from the perspective of Making a Killing and assumes that it is published very soon after being written.

- Anooba Press on Coruscant publishes Making a Killing by Cradossk, head of the Bounty Hunters Guild. At some point in the future, he will give a copy of the book to Boba Fett. He will cross out the book’s dedication to Cradossk’s own son, Bossk, and instead dedicate it to Boba in a hand-written note that states that he wishes Boba, not Bossk, were his son. (Exact
On Nar Shaddaa, mechanic Bammy Decree makes a deal with up-and-coming crime boss Rej Taunt, who wants a ship. Bammy has discovered the salvaged remains of the Stellar Envoy (the future Millennium Falcon), a YT-1300 freighter (YT-1300f). He accepts a fee to repair and modify the ship for Rej (with the help of individuals like young Shug Ninx), and he very nearly misses his deadline in doing so. In the end, he combines the Stellar Envoy’s YT-1300f parts with parts from a YT-1300p, creating a hybrid craft, which he further modifies for Taunt. A short time after receiving the ship (renamed the Second Chance), Rej is contacted by one of Dal Perhi’s Black Sun lieutenants, putting him in touch with an intermediary with the Colicoids to purchase buzz droids (Pistoekas) to work in Black Sun chop shops. Unfortunately, the trading mission goes terribly wrong when the crew is slaughtered by Colicoids after one exposes his neck. In space, the buzz droids become active, seemingly on their own (activated by the ship’s computer that uses Colicoid parts), and they jettison them into space . . . into the path of the Imperial vessel Overseer that thinks they are attacking the larger craft. The Second Chance is impounded at Nilash III. Rej is arrested, and while there are calls for the death penalty, a military trial sentences him to life in prison instead. Rej puts a bounty on Bammy’s head, forcing Bammy to go into hiding for two years. Rej will be shuffled from prison to prison (including Oovo IV, Agon IX, Fodurant, Delrian, and others) until finding himself on Carcel two years later. (To be continued below . . . )

*NOTE: This portion of the story refers to the events of the Darth Maul comic book series as 13 years earlier, which is an obvious error, as that happened at least 14 years earlier, shortly before The Phantom Menace, rather than a year after the film. (Uhm, yeah, because Darth Maul was “halved” by then . . . duh.)

After a rough first winter at their new, hidden Jedi settlement on Arkinnea, K’Kruhk, Zao, and the others are helped by a shipment, as promised, of supplies from Imperial Officer Teron. (To be continued below . . . )

Nardo Sau, a xenoarchaeologist, is one of the new breed which springs up during the early years of the New Order. Unlike historians such as his chief rival, Angrail Ryhl, Sau was in the business to sell his discoveries to the highest bidder. Sau developed ties to several major corporations, and obtained a great deal of corporate sponsorship, something he used to get past the Imperial bureaucracy to obtain licenses before Ryhl could. Most of Sau’s largest customers were on the planet Coruscant, and were private citizens or corporations with Imperial ties.

(conjecture based on Heroes and Rogues via TimeTales, verbatim)

Around this time, Shea Hublin, now assigned to the Imperial Star Destroyer Destrier, makes a name for himself as a V-wing pilot with the 77th Wing, while fighting smugglers, pirates, and Separatist holdouts on the Great Gran Run.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

Xenosurvey & Measurements Limited produce a variety of planetary exploration and scouting probes.

(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 2: Yavin and Bespin via TimeTales, verbatim)

Imperial forces clear out the pirates plaguing the planet Copperline.

(conjecture based on Allegiance)

Sometime after being sold to Vice-Admiral Terrinald Screed as a slave, Boc Aseca is discovered by Inquisitor Jerec. Jerec orders Screed to turn Boc over to him for execution, but Jerec really takes Boc into his custody as a servant, pushing his hatred for humans even further. This opens Boc up to the Dark Side, allowing Jerec to convert the slave Boc Aseca into the formidable Dark Jedi “Boc the Crude.”

(conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part IV: Of the Crudest Matter)

Jaxxon leaves Coachelle Prime with a rickety freighter. He soon settles on Nar Shaddaa and begins working with a mercenary group in the Corus system.*

(conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)*

*NOTE: This assumes Jaxxon is 30 at the time of the defeat of the Cloud Riders on Aduba-3.

As the Empire begins to tighten its grip on Malastare, Darth Vader leans just how easily the Dugs are to manipulate.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- In the weeks leading up to Thi Xon Yimmon leaving Coruscant, Whiplash is targeted by the Empire several times. In two such instances, it is only the intervention of Prefect Pol Haus tipping them off to a coming strike, that saves the rebel organization. One strike uses photonic charges and battledroids to kill indiscriminately at and around Sil’s Place. Such events cause Yimmon to believe that he should leave Coruscant, so that perhaps the Empire will focus on hunting him and take some of the heat off of Whiplash on Coruscant. As preparations are made to take Yimmon to Dantooine, Jax Pavan is called to meet with the Cephalon Aoloiloa, who provides cryptic warnings regarding indecision and loss. Also in preparation for the mission to relocate Yimmon, Jax and Laranth Tarak construct a new lightsaber for Jax, so that he can store away the Sith lightsaber he previously used on Coruscant.

(conjecture based on The Last Jedi)

- Sometime during the era of the Galactic Empire, the Empire strips the Tion Hegemony of its rimward possessions, creating the “new” Indrexu and Keldrath Sectors.

(conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)

- Months have passed since Jax Pavan’s encounter with Darth Vader. At the moment, Jax is unsure whether Darth Vader, whom he knows to be Anakin Skywalker, is still alive after that encounter. Still with Whiplash, Jax, Den Dhur, Laranth Tarak, and I-Five (I-5YQ) use the Far Ranger to relocate Whiplash leader Thi Xon Yimmon off of Coruscant. They are wary of doing so, but after recent events on Coruscant, it seems safer to move him to Dantooine. (Tuden Sal is holding down things on Coruscant, along with Prefect Pol Haus, acting as an “inside man.”) This is made all the more worrisome for Jax due to a Cephalon (Aoloiloa) giving him several cryptic warnings (in their way that fits their perception of time and confuses pretty much everyone else), the most worrying of which is: “Choice is loss; indecision is all loss.” Flying as a transport ship, they use this as a cover to stop on Toprawa to make contact with the Antarian Rangers through their contact, Aren Folee. (Meanwhile, Jax and Laranth are growing ever closer, suggesting that they are heading for romance, despite Jedi teachings on Jax’s part.) Upon leaving Toprawa to continue to Dantooine, they come under attack by Imperial vessels commanded by Vader. The Far Ranger is boarded by Vader and stormtroopers. In the confrontation, Vader seems to toy with Jax and Jax faces indecision (which will lead him to believe that the Cephalon’s warning was right and the rest of the problems come from his indecision). Yimmon is taken by Vader. Laranth is killed and dies in Jax’s arms, and I-Five’s “body” is destroyed, leaving his head (and thus his personality) intact. Jax and Den escape with I-Five’s head in an escape pod, which is picked up by Antarian Rangers. The Far Ranger itself is destroyed, pulled apart by the gravitational anomalies of the Twins. They are taken back to Toprawa, where Aren introduces them to the Rangers’ settlement, Mountain Home, and base, Foothill. Jax is shocked to find that they have a Delta-7 Aethersprite Jedi Starfighter that they salvaged. They meet Degan Cor, who shares leadership with Aren. They are worried that a spy might have tipped off the Empire to where they were going, but they are even more concerned about whether Vader will be able to break Yimmon (who seemed to have compartmentalized his mind and rendered himself unconscious to save himself from Vader using the Force on his mind during the attack on the Far Ranger). If Yimmon breaks, all of Whiplash could fall. For Den’s part, he takes I-Five’s parts to the young Rodian tech expert Geri, who sets I-Five up with a new body: a pit droid. They also meet Sacha Swiftbird, a former podracer, who helps set them up with a new ship, which they name the Laranth. Before they can leave, I-Five comes up with another idea, so Geri sets him up with a modular brain case so that he can transfer himself from the pit droid to other bodies, including an astromech that can interface directly with the Laranth. They head back to Coruscant, believing that of the two groups of Imperial ships that left the Twins after the Far Ranger attack, it makes the most sense that Vader would take Yimmon to Coruscant for interrogation. They also need to make contact with the rest of Whiplash in person. (For now, it should be noted that Jax also has some objects that he saved from the Far Ranger, including his missai tree in a smart pot that also hides the Sith lightsaber he previously used before building a new one for himself, along with the pyronium given to him. by Anakin and the Sith Holocron that was handed down from his father through I-Five.) Upon arriving, they are “arrested” in their cover identities by Pol Haus (now fully committed to Whiplash’s cause), who uses the “arrest” to divert them to Whiplash’s new “base,” a train that moves all around in unused areas of the old maglev system of Coruscant. They meet with the Whiplash leadership council, consisting of Tuden Sal, Sheel Mafeen (famous poetess), Fars Sil-at (owner of Sil’s Place), Dyat Agni (a singer), and Acer Ash (a black market trader). In the month since they left, things have shifted. Whiplash is in danger of collapse, so Tuden Sal is pushing for a decisive blow to the Empire while the Imperials think they are reeling from the loss of Yimmon. They will not, however, agree to providing massive resources to rescue Yimmon, which means that Jax and his crew will have to do it alone if they are going to make it happen. (Haus and Sheel do not agree with the decision, so they will help Jax if they can without Tuden knowing about it.) Upon learning from Pol that Vader is indeed on Coruscant and seen at the ISB headquarters, Jax covertly (using a recently-retired lieutenant’s ID) gets into the ISB headquarters and gets a glimpse at Vader’s ship without tipping off the Inquisitors, but he finds that Yimmon is not there, probably not on Coruscant at all. He must be wherever the other Imperials ships went after the Twins. They head for Mandalore, the likely stop-off point for those Imperials, where they need to get information through Black Sun (which now dominates parts of Mandalore under Xizor in the wake of the clashes between the Death Watch, Shadow Collective, and New Mandalorians). They meet with a contact Tuden Sal suggests, Tyno Fabris. Jax pretends to be the man who killed Jax Pavan and took the pyronium and Sith holocron from him. Jax believes that the secret to using the pyronium, which Vader wants, must be locked away in the holocron, which he has been unwilling (and unable) to access himself. The pyronium is said to be able to contain energy in almost unlimited amounts, but one must learn how to release it. Fabris brings Xizor in on the discussions, which freaks Jax out, given their previous encounters. However, now Xizor is willing to provide Jax with what he needs to get to Yimmon, including his location, but in return he essentially wants Jax to owe him. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Tuden Sal begins planning an attack to assassinate Emperor Palpatine at his villa upon learning that he will be there while Vader is offworld. When he realizes that Haus must have known this as well and did not share that information (for fear of Tuden doing something rash), Tuden essentially expels Haus from Whiplash, though he will secretly keep working for Whiplash’s greater good on his own (and with Sheel). Back on Mandalore, Xizor reveals that he believes Vader is on Kantaros Station in the Both system, inside an asteroid, making it very hard to get to. Xizor has the resources to get him to the station, given that Black Sun provides some shipments to Kantaros Station, but Jax refuses to owe Xizor. They take the Laranth to find and check out the station, and it appears far too difficult to infiltrate without help. (Jax finds the station at all by flowing the Force through the missai tree, which is starting to make him understand that he can hide his Force presence by going through another living thing in his use of the Force.) Aboard Kantaros Station, Yimmon is held prisoner by Vader, along with his Inquisitors, including Probus Tesla (another nemesis of Jax) and Renefra Ren (Tesla’s apprentice). Vader is only around for a short time, however, as he returns from Coruscant only to have to return when stirrings of a probable strike against Palpatine emerge. (These stirrings would appear to be the work of Xizor, to provide a distraction that could be exploited to let Jax go to Kantaros. He has no idea that a real attack on Palpatine is imminent by Whiplash.) He leaves Tesla to keep an eye on Yimmon, and Tesla will probe at Yimmon enough to realize that the source of what makes Yimmon hard to break is his dual cortaxes, the nature of a Cerean brain, so he will suggest surgically separating them in the future to make him easier to break. On Coruscant, Haus notices all of the ISB and security activity around the Emperor’s villa, and he tries to warn off Tuden Sal, but to no avail. Acer Ash also brags about the idea that Palpatine will be gone soon when trying to impress a female Zeltron business contact (Donari Caron), who sends that information up the chain of Black Sun to eventually reach the ears of Xizor, who realizes that his distraction might now have put the real Whiplash at risk. It also means that Xizor has to back out of any deal with Jax because if Palpatine were to be attacked, the rumors could be traced back to him. (While waiting to head out from Mandalore again, I-Five also gets another body, a hybrid of a body like his old one and parts from a Nemesis droid, which includes an arm cannon.) On Coruscant, the strike at Palpatine commences, but the Imperials are ready for it and wipe out the attackers. Moreover, they make strikes against Whiplash itself, killing the leadership council except for Sheel, Haus (well, a former member), and Tuden Sal himself. Haus goes to where the maglev base has been hiding, finding Tuden in there. Tuden admits to having overstepped himself in the attack, but Haus’ lieutenant, Kalibar Droosh, follows Haus and tries to arrest both of them. Droosh is defeated, but Tuden is killed. His last request is that Haus hide the Whiplash Express (the train) long enough to gather all evidence and data from it for safekeeping. The Laranth returns to Toprawa, where they go over possible plans to save Yimmon, but Jax decides to go it alone and steals the Delta-7 to go to Kantaros. Still unable to find a way in, he follows the guidance of the Force to “seek sisters,” and heads for Dathomir. On Dathomir, he meets with Augwynne Djo, Magash Drashi, and Duala Aidu of the Singing Mountain Clan. Meanwhile, back on Toprawa, Den, I-Five, and Sacha make plans to somehow free Yimmon, with or without Jax, by flying in as a Black Sun ship, the Raptor (using an identity code stolen by I-Five while on Mandalore). On Dathomir, Magash is given permission to take Jax to the ruins of an old Kwa Infinity Gate and the Star Temple. In such an energy-laden area, he meditates and considers the Sith holocron, realizing that it can be opened through the spilling of Force-user blood, but it will take more than a small offering. The Witches help him by providing some of their own to go with his, allowing him to access some of Darth Ramage’s knowledge from within the holocron. He understands how to use the pyronium now, along with how to use the Force to manipulate perceptions and create illusions by manipulating the flow of time itself, which was at the core of Ramage’s Dark Side research. He is ready to rescue Yimmon. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Haus finds proof that the person who sold out the Far Ranger to the Empire was Tuden Sal. He had apparently been trying to tip off the Imperials just enough to leave Yimmon and Jax running from the Empire, rather than getting killed or captured, so that he could push for a direct strike on Palpatine that neither man would have agreed with. This puts their allies on Toprawa and elsewhere in the clear; none of them betrayed Yimmon. Both rescue missions go forward. Jax sneaks aboard the station, using the pyronium to store Force energy to cloak the Delta-7 from view (and potentially blow it or anyone finding it to bits if need be). As he makes his way through the station using illusions and such, the Raptor team pretends to be dropping off supplies and sending I-Five out as an astromech on repair runs. As alarms wail, they seek out Yimmon before surgery can separate the parts of his brain. Sacha (who senses the Force a little bit and carries the user blood, but it will take more than a small offering. The Witches help him by providing some of their own to go with his, allowing him to access some of Darth Ramage’s knowledge from within the holocron. He understands how to use the pyronium now, along with how to use the Force to manipulate perceptions and create illusions by manipulating the flow of time itself, which was at the core of Ramage’s Dark Side research. He is ready to rescue Yimmon. Meanwhile, on Coruscant, Haus finds proof that the person who sold out the Far Ranger to the Empire was Tuden Sal. He had apparently been trying to tip off the Imperials just enough to leave Yimmon and Jax running from the Empire, rather than getting killed or captured, so that he could push for a direct strike on Palpatine that neither man would have agreed with. This puts their allies on Toprawa and elsewhere in the clear; none of them betrayed Yimmon. Both rescue missions go forward. Jax sneaks aboard the station, using the pyronium to store Force energy to cloak the Delta-7 from view (and potentially blow it or anyone finding it to bits if need be). As he makes his way through the station using illusions and such, the Raptor team pretends to be dropping off supplies and sending I-Five out as an astromech on repair runs. As alarms wail, they seek out Yimmon before surgery can separate the parts of his brain. Sacha (who senses the Force a little bit and carries the Sith lightsaber from inside the missai pot from the Laranth), Den, I-Five, and Jax all reunite when facing Tesla. When Teslas is about to deliver a possible death blow to Jax, Sacha draws the Sith lightsaber and kills him on instinct. They rescue Yimmon, and the others take him to the ship, while Jax faces off with Imperial forces and the newly-returned Vader. The two do battle again, this time with Jax empowered by Darth Ramage’s knowledge. Meanwhile, I-Five gets to the Raptor, and uses another body that Geri modified for him (a human replica droid, which now has the Nemesis arm cannon attached to it) to go back out to help Jax. As Vader taunts Jax and seeks the pyronium and the knowledge in Jax’s mind, I-Five buys him time with powerful arm cannon blasts (which Jax believes includes a big flash of light that distracts Vader long enough to save him). Vader destroys I-Five’s body (again), but Jax saves his head, and they escape in an evacuation pod as Jax has the Delta-7 explode, taking much of the station with it. (Of course, Vader will be among the survivors.) They return to Dathomir, where the Witches help Yimmon recover and remove the Dark Side knowledge that the Sith holocron put into Jax’s head. I-Five is put into one of his other bodies (another human replica droid). Sacha is allowed to keep the Sith lightsaber. As for Jax, he thanks I-Five for the bright flash that covered him when battling Vader, but I-Five was not the source. It certainly appears that the source of the bright flash of light could have been Laranth, reaching out from within the Force to help him. He is starting to come to terms with losing her. As they head out, he considers Magash. Perhaps he is the last Jedi, and, if he is, he will need students to someday rebuild the Jedi Order . . .

("The Last Jedi")

*NOTE: In the novel, the events on Bandomeer in Blue Harvest (16:9, about 3 months after ROTS) are noted as “last year.” It is also “months” since Patterns of Force (which is about 6 months after ROTS). The events of Infinity’s End are noted as 13 years earlier. All of this points to The Last Jedi being in this year, 18 BBY, rather than late in 19 BBY or early in 17 BBY. I should also note that this novel spans at least a couple of months or so.
At the Imperial Naval Academy, Trever Flume (under the guise of a recruit named Fortin), has infiltrated the academy in search of Lune Oddo Divinian. He is quickly "put in his place" by another student (Kestrel) and Guardian Advisor Lieutenant Maggis (who assigns Kestrel to guide Trever, and reminds Trever that enough marks on his record will send him into the Mining Corps for the rest of his term of service). Meanwhile, on Bellassa, Ferus Olin is still dealing with his grief over the loss of Roan Lands and is dipping into the use of the Dark Side under the direction of Emperor Palpatine, all in an attempt to one day get revenge upon Darth Vader for Roan’s death. His secret allies are also making their own plans, as Flame tries to convince the Eleven to join Moonstrike, while the Eleven (using information from Ferus) makes plans to save Aime Antin from Imperial custody. As plans are made, Ferus visits Roan’s family, where he learns that Malory Lands has a chance to work at the EmPal SuRecon center where he believes Vader was “created.” He asks her to take the job, giving him an “inside woman.” Meanwhile, the Imperials are making their own plans for the research facility, as Vader meets with Jenna Zan Arbor about a procedure she is developing that will allow the Empire to target certain memories in a subject and erase them. Vader wants to know if this will work, especially on someone who is Force-attuned, so he can remove all memories of Padmé from his mind. He arranges an assistant for her (Linna Naltree, who once helped save Ry-Gaul after Order 66) and contacts Senator Sano Sauro to have a student (or students) from the Imperial Naval Academy sent over to be test subjects. For his part, Sauro wants to get back at Bog Divinian, so he arranges a staged transmission wherein Divinian is made to believe that it is an honor to have a child picked to “volunteer.” At the academy, Trever and Lune reunite and begin their escape, only to have Lune taken away by Bog for the “honor” of serving the Empire, while Trever is confined. He breaks out, though, and makes his way to the hangar, where Maggis, having been treated like garbage by his superiors for so long, decides to make an escape with Trever, stunning Kestrel along the way. Back on Bellassa, the rescue of Aime goes off well, and she is reunited with the Eleven, but Ferus has been sent to Coruscant, where he meets with High Inquisitor Hydra. He is to go seek out several possible Force-sensitives, but he won’t leave until the next day (with Hydra). He uses Malory to get into her medical facility, where he gathers records of Vader’s creation (at least, as much as are left in the databanks). Soon, he is trying to enter a secret room in the facility, where he happens to pass where Lune is about to be experimented upon. He decides to go back for him, saving him with Linna’s help. They burst out of the facility, falling, just as the now-escaping Maggis and Trever fly by, catching them. In the wake of these events, Lune is returned to his mother, Astri, who wants to take Ry-Gaul up on his offer to train Lune in the Force. As for Astri herself, now she has a new mission. Clive Flax has been digging up information about Moonstrike leader Flame on Acherin. He thinks she might be Eve Yarrow, daughter of deceased Yarrow Industries head Evin Yarrow, but he doesn’t trust her. He has even visited Acherin to learn about her past, but his contact was killed (in a random act of violence or something else)? Now, he wants Astri to help dig into her background to see if she can be trusted. As for Ferus, he is to go on the mission to find the Force-sensitives, but he contacts Obi-Wan Kenobi on Tatooine first. He mentions a bounty hunter and a teacher, among the various prospects, and Kenobi doesn’t seem very moved. When he mentions a possible Force-sensitive little girl on Alderaan, Obi-Wan realizes that this is Leia Skywalker (Leia Organa), daughter of Anakin. Ferus doesn’t figure that it is worth checking out, but Obi-Wan persuades him to visit, investigate, and file a report that all is well. Ferus doesn’t understand the importance of the child, but he goes along with Obi-Wan. He will investigate Leia on Alderaan . . .

(Against the Empire)

Ferus Olin and Hydra, both Imperial Inquisitors, arrive on Alderaan. Ferus is following Obi-Wan Kenobi’s request that he follow-up on a report of a Force-sensitive young girl (Leia Organa) on Alderaan and rule the report baseless to protect the child. Ferus, of course, has no idea that it is Leia, nor of her real significance, any more than he knows that Darth Vader is Anakin Skywalker, but he is continuing to look into the Vader issue. Aime Antin contacts him shortly after arrival that she has looked into records that indicate that the patient who was “changed” into Darth Vader was likely severely injured on Mustafar. Ferus is getting closer . . . On Alderaan, Ferus meets Bail Organa, his wife Breha, and Breha’s sister Deara. The family does not think the time is right for armed resistance to the Empire, and they fear the Empire installing an Imperial governor, but the presence of an Imperial spy (the one that reported on Leia instinctively saving her nanny, Memily, from falling from a broken railing) makes things more difficult. He and Hydra seek out clues, and Ferus discovers that an Imperial spy (later identified as Dartan Ziemba) was watching the spaceport for deliveries when he must have turned his gaze on the park where he saw Leia’s accidental Force use. He knows, though, that Dartan is just a low-level informant, and the revelation of a stop-off by Raymus Antilles on a secret mission reveals that another spy must be in the palace. With the help of a call from Obi-Wan (whom Ferus is angry with for keeping him so much in the dark), Ferus works alongside Bail to set up false information to reveal the other traitor, who turns out to be Deara. They send Deara away for her own protection (since the family looks after their own), while Ferus hides Leia’s sensitivity, protecting the child in any official records.

Meanwhile, back on Coruscant, Flame is trying to get Moonstrike more support, but without the support of a senator like Bail, it likely will not work as well as it should. Her current comrades, though, spearheaded by Clive Flax, are not particularly trusting of the resistance leader. Clive, Keets Freely, and Astri Oddo look into her background, discovering that Eve Yarrow (whom they believe Flame to be) has a secret bank account on Niro 11, which seems to be one of the ones that the Empire helped keep active, which may suggest Imperial ties. Astri and Clive head for Niro 11, where they convince a banker to provide enough information to send them to Eve’s apparent home on Revery. They infiltrate the home, only to be trapped within a secret chamber . . . Back on Coruscant, the Empire has somehow discovered the location of the resistance base (Dexter Jettster’s hideout). They attack Thugger’s Alley, wiping it all out, but Dex, Keets, and Curran Caladian manage to escape in time, though now they are going to be out of contact with the others for a while . . . Meanwhile, Trever Flume keeps an eye on Jenna Zan Arbor’s apartment, as Ferus wanted him to, but he breaks in, going beyond his instructions. While inside the apartment, which Zan Arbor shares with Linna Naltree, whom they want to save, Trever is surprised to see Jedi Ry-Gaul arrive. Ry-Gaul wants to help get Linna out because Tobin Gantor, her husband, is now on Coruscant. If they can get Linna out, they can get her and her husband off the planet to safety. They decide to wait for Zan Arbor and Linna to arrive on a nearby landing pad, then “kidnap” Linna. When it finally happens, though, Vader is there. They catch part of a conversation in which Zan Arbor promises that her memory-wiping drug will be ready soon (which Vader wants, so that he can remove any memories of Padmé Amidala that are torturing him). As Vader leaves, Ry-Gaul and Trever drop down from above Zan Arbor’s lift. They protect Linna and manage to inject Zan Arbor with her own serum, erasing much of her scientific brilliance and leaving her a broken shell of a woman. With Linna (and her data on the project), they escape and reunite her with her husband. As they leave for safety, Trever and Ry-Gaul return to the safehouse, only to find Flame there. The three look in horror upon the remains of the hideout. Could their comrades still be alive? On Alderaan, as things are winding down with Deara’s betrayal, the Alderaanians strike a public affairs blow against the Empire. With Ferus’ help, they learn that Dartan was preparing weapons so that the Empire could arrive, claim that Alderaan is arming against the Empire, then install an Imperial governor. However, Ferus helps get rid of all of the weapons once Dartan and Deara are caught, so when the Empire arrives in force, they look like fools and Alderaan retains its current leadership. However, amongst those arriving with the Imperial force are Emperor Palpatine and Darth Vader. Vader makes a comment that echoes the words of Anakin Skywalker years earlier, which finally puts the final pieces together for Ferus, who realizes that Vader and Anakin are one and the same. Shortly thereafter, Palpatine informs Vader that he now should have his own second-in-command . . . Ferus himself. The stage is set for a final confrontation . . .

(Master of Deception)

- On Kayuk, Ferus Olin contacts Obi-Wan Kenobi, revealing that he knows that Darth Vader is Anakin Skywalker. He quickly understands that Obi-Wan knew all along. Obi-Wan senses that Ferus’ double agent actions are bringing him into danger, even without knowing about the Sith Holocron that Ferus carries. He urges Ferus to leave the Empire, but Ferus does not believe that he can do so yet. Arriving on Coruscant, Ferus checks in with his allies. Trever Flume and Ry-Gaul are thanked for saving Linna Naltree, stopping Jenna Zan Arbor, and provide info about how personally Vader seemed to want Zan Arbor’s memory drug (information about which has now been turned over to Malory Lands for study). Keets Freely and Curran Caladian also arrive safely, though Dexter Jettster is recovering from a wound sustained during the destruction of their base. Dex, Keets, and Curran are pulling out of Moonstrike, intending to stay low to the ground, so to speak, until the time is better suited for rebellion against the Empire. Meanwhile, Ferus will help set up the first major Moonstrike meeting, but it will be up to Flame to provide the necessary ships to get them there. Meanwhile, Darth Vader discovers that Zan Arbor is unable to work on the memory drug, forcing him to keep memories of Padmé Amidala. He then heads for Revery to Eve Yarrow’s estate. His arrival proves to Astri Oddo and Clive Flax that Eve Yarrow is, in fact, working for the Empire. Vader talks about a plan called Twilight, locations like Bespin and Coruscant, and the activation of a mole. With one more revelation (that Clive saw Eve Yarrow at a luxury cruiser convention before) confirms that Eve is Flame, which means their friends are in danger. They contact Toma on the secret asteroid base, hoping to relay the message that Flame is a traitor to the others. Speaking of those friends, Flame helps Moonstrike steal ships from a similar luxury cruiser lineup, but when Ferus’ ship experiences trouble, they must land on Hallitron-7. They get the part they need, but the Imperials are alerted to their presence, and they are forced to escape. Clive and Astri have problems as well, as their recent looking into Eve’s accounts attracts Vader’s attention, and he sends Hydra and other Imperials to track their stolen ship. At their next refueling stop, Hydra discovers the two (who have recently expressed feelings for each other) and orders them detained. They purposely get Clive arrested so that Astri can impersonate Hydra, take him to Hydra’s ship, and steal it to escape. Meanwhile, Ferus discovers that his ship has a tracer activated, meaning that someone aboard is a traitor. When they stop near the asteroid to find the traitor, they realize that the tracer could have been planted before the ships ever lifted off. Ferus accuses Flame, which is confirmed by a call with Clive and Astri’s information. Ferus orders her executed, feeding on the holocron and the Dark Side, but he sees the logic of the others’ arguments and decides to strand her there. He and Trever then, knowing Vader would have a backup, need to get to Flame’s drop quickly to keep info out of Vader’s hands. They head for Coruscant, letting the others continue to the asteroid. Trever and Ferus arrive on Coruscant in time for Ferus to get to Vader’s secret drop in the Jedi Temple map room, just as Vader himself arrives. The two old Jedi duel, as Ferus draws on the Dark Side as well. Ferus, goading Vader with all that he has realized, is defeated and left to die. Luckily, Vader is called away to reactivate his mole. Aboard the asteroid, Toma, the mole, turns on his comrades, including those who just arrived for the Moonstrike meeting. Raina catches Toma sending out a signal to the Imperials, and the two trade blaster shots, both dying in the process. On Coruscant, Trever brings Malory to help Ferus, saving his life. They warn the others on the asteroid about Vader being on his way, but they aren’t enough ships to save them all. Instead, they can only save Lune Oddo Divinian. Vader arrives in an augmented Star Destroyer just as Ferus and the others make their way toward the asteroid. They bear witness as the Star Destroyer test fires what will eventually be the first Death Star superlaser, completely destroying the base and all of the Resistance along with it. Ferus must choose between following the Star Destroyer to confront Vader or save whomever is aboard the small ship that left the base. He chooses to save the passenger, Lune. Ferus is taken to Obi-Wan Kenobi for healing, but his job is not done, despite his anguish. In the aftermath of these events, Dex, Keets, and Curran go further underground on Coruscant. Malory uses Jenna Zan Arbor’s memory treatment on Trever, clearing his memory to the time when Bellasssa was taken. He is adopted by Astri and Clive, who will raise him alongside Lune. As for Ferus Olin, he has a new mission. Just as Obi-Wan will watch over Luke Skywalker on Tatooine until the time is right to reveal himself, Ferus will stay on Alderaan to help keep watch over Leia Organa, Anakin Skywalker’s other child, until the time is right to reveal himself. He will remain on Alderaan until just before its destruction many years later.

(Reckoning)

- Having set himself up on Alderaan, Ferus Olin will slowly become more involved in local affairs, eventually creating a whole new persona for himself, acting as Fess Ilee, a “yes-man” in the royal court. Only a select few, such as Bail Organa, will know his true identity.
• Around the time that the Lambda-class shuttle comes into heavy use, the Kappa-class shuttle starts being replaced by those newer models.

• During a card game, Delwanna manages to get Garris Shrike to say Han Solo’s last name to her. She soon tells Han, who is overjoyed to now know his family name. A short time later, during a stint pretending to be a wealthy school student for Shrike, Han Solo is attending a Corellian school when he asks Garm Bel Iblis about the Empire’s xenophobia during a convocation. Iblis begins keeping track of Solo’s progress. A short time after this occurs, Han discovers records on Corellia about Berethon e Solo, Korol Solo, and others in his bloodline. The next chance he gets, he stays behind on Corellia. He goes to the home of Tiion Sol-Solo and Thrackan Sal-Solo, hoping that they will take him in and that he is right in assuming they are related. Upon arrival, he is caught by Thrackan, who takes him to see Tiion. Tiion flips out, ranting about how all of Han’s family line is supposed to be dead. Thrackan takes Han in, but mentally and physically abuses him until Han has had enough. Han kicks Thrackan’s ass and threatens him with a knife. Thrackan tells Han everything he knows about Han’s family line. Years ago, Thrackan’s grandparents, Denn Solo and Tira Gama Solo, had lived on Tralus. Tira had given birth to twins, one boy and one girl (Tiion) the night their town was raided. Tira got out with Tiion, who later married Randil-Sal, Thrackan’s father. Denn and the boy twin were assumed killed. Apparently, they escaped, which allows Han to trace his ancestry, but only up to the point of his presumed father’s birth. A short time later, a vengeful Thrackan hands Han back over to Shrike. Han is beaten and returned to servitude under Shrike. (To be continued below . . . )

• The Empire’s SAGEducation program becomes a large part of Vin Northal’s youth. He achieves the position of local SAGroupwegsphere champion. This achievement earns him the personal attention of the local CompForce recruiter. However, while Vin found the CompForce recruiter’s offer attractive, he also realized that the Imperial Academy was wide open to him. He applied and was accepted.

• Anti-Empire intelligence agent Vyn Narcassan disappears. He has been declared an enemy of the Empire, so he has taken his two daughters, Shalla and Vula, to a backwater world far from Coruscant. Shalla and Vula will later go by the name “Nelprin” instead of “Narcassan.”

(conjecture based on Wraith Squadron)

*NOTE: This refers to the article in Gamer #9, not the novel.

- Locus Geen, former General, retires.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)

- A monumental idea was born, linking vast and disparate corporate interests. Galactic Corporate Policy League members began analyzing the revenues of the existing Corporate Sector. Probes into the surrounding regions of space showed an amazing coincidence: of the thousands of stars within and near the Corporate Sector, only eleven were known to contain intelligent species, and none of them had been contacted by the Republic. With careful doctoring of evidence and discrete “first contact teams”, the League could distort the evidence to show no such species. The result was an undeveloped and “uninhabited” region of space, rich with resources. Thousands of star systems were ripe for “development”. Baron Tagge, informal leader of the League, formulated a plan centered on changing the way the Corporate Sector was administered. He proposed that the region of space known as the Corporate Sector be expanded to include nearly 30,000 unclaimed stars. He proposed that a new corporation, the Corporate Sector Authority, be formed. The Authority would be the sole owner, employer, government and military of the region. The Authority would buy all the existing corporate facilities within the Corporate Sector, as well as shepherd the development of all future resources. Companies that already had facilities would receive shares in exchange for turning over their property. These companies and others could invest in the Sector by providing funds to the Authority. The Authority would handle every major industrial venture, including exploration, extraction, refining, processing and manufacturing. The Authority would maintain order, run the business operations, research and develop new products, and promote the sale of goods in the Sector without outside interference. Profits from the Sector’s operations would be split proportionate to the shares amongst all the investing companies. Aside from profits derived directly from business operations, the Authority would also supply raw materials and manufactured goods to the parent companies at greatly discounted prices. The companies would profit handsomely from this system. To interest Palpatine, the proposal would provide an operations tax directly to Palpatine. While the net would be considerably smaller than the taxes for comparable worlds within the Empire proper, the revenues would go directly to the Imperial government, rather than be split amongst sector, planetary and local governments. Likewise, because the Authority would be responsible for maintaining order and policing the region, there would be no investment in the region by the Empire. In Baron Tagge’s vision, the Corporate Sector would be a tremendous boon to Imperial coffers with no effort on the part of the Empire. With his scheme developed, Baron Tagge invited all the existing Corporate Sector companies, as well as members of the League, to a week-long closed door conference on the banking world of Aargau. There, he presented his plan. For a week, in the splendor of the famed Dragonbird Gardens of Aargau, from dawn to late at night, they haggled and wrangled and debated. But, at the end of the week, the Baron and his comrades had their charter. The proposed charter further refined the Baron’s ideas. The League proposed the creation of a special non-interference region, separate and autonomous from the surrounding Empire. The region would be a limited free market fief. That meant materials restrictions, often invoked during martial law in the Empire, could be ignored. Also, there would be no content supervision over advertising and media in the Sector. Since the region was devoid of all sapient life, there would be no first contact priorities to interfere with total economic conversion. Here, there would be no need of economic conversion or social policy and the Authority could maintain its own control over the fief worlds. As a special incentive, there were to be no corporate taxes or import / export fees on any products transported into or out of the Sector. Companies would not pay taxes of any sort on materials and expenditures intended for sale or trade to the Sector Authority. Of course, they still had to pay the usual taxes and levies on their total income and their non-Sector holdings. As a compensation to the Empire, there would be a yearly stipend of 3% of the total gross product from the Sector. Furthermore, all funds would be paid directly into the Imperial treasury. Lastly, 9% of all materials and 20% of strategic rare elements would be given directly to the Empire for its military build-up. Many well-known companies such as TaggeCo., Bank of the Core, Kuat Drive Yards, Rendili StarDrive, Cybot Galactica, Corellian Engineering Corp, and various others would be among the ‘sponsors’ of the Corporate Sector Authority.

(conjecture based on Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)

- A purge of free speech on Adarlon is carried out under Palpatine’s orders by Babel Torsch.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 6: Tramp Freighter)

- The line of assassin droids to which Waric Nane’s droids will belong during his move for power on Danoor 26 years later, goes out of service.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: The Kathol Outback—“Galaxy’s Edge”)

- The Fib religious order ends its missionary activities shortly after the creation of the New Order.
  (conjecture based on Endor and the Moddell Sector)

- The Anointed People, the name used by a race of reptilian humanoids native to the planet which the called Masterhome, reach a feudal level of society – which splits their people into two classes: the Godlings, who were rulers and priests of the planet; and the Unwashed, which were the serfs and laborers. All of the Anointed People were ruled by a supreme leader known as the Godking. Despite their fearsome appearance and disparate societies, there were very few wars in their history.
  (conjecture based on Campaign Pack via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Using the lure of keeping the Mining Guild “independent,” Palpatine seduces the Guild to align with the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse, Crimson Empire II, and Star Wars: Episode V—“The Empire Strikes Back” via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- The NewsNet known as Smuggler’s Scuttlebutt is created.
  (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- 10-year-old Quayce runs away from home by stowing away on a pirate ship. When she is found, she is taken in as a steward for the next six years.*
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.

- Roy and Chop Harlison’s parents are killed The children come into the care of the Rabid Mynocks.*
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.

- Serv-O-Droid goes out of business.
  (conjecture based on Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook)

- Drigor Tarrens discovers an abandoned space station that was once used to study the Gandle Ott region. He brings it to the attention of the Qektoth Confederation, of which he is not a member, but a friendly contact.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: The Kathol Outback—“Wildfire”)

- The Imperial Senate, under Emperor Palpatine, investigates the stone mite creatures they believe were created by the Arkanians.
  (conjecture based on Rescued Aliens: Swamp Slug and Stone Mite on the WotC website)

- After two years running the Greel Wood Logging Corporation, Xenon Nnaksta takes a vacation from work for six years and enters a fringe survival school. While there, he meets Adazian Liebke.*
  (conjecture based on The Greel Wood Haven)*

*NOTE: The Greel Wood Haven uses the term pro-Alliance several times to speak of anti-Empire groups, but it is clear by the suggested timing of these events that it is not the Rebel Alliance at this point, but simply anti-Empire rebels.

- The Neimoidians, an offshoot of the Duros species millennia old, still reeling and scattered after the dissolution of the Neimoidian Trade Federation, finally reemerges into galactic society, having integrated themselves back into their own subsection of Duros society after millennia.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire Handbook and The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Duros

- As the Empire begins to bury any references to the Jedi in historical records, Hess Korrin’s antiquities section on Obroa-Skai is shut down by the Imperial Security Bureau. Hess snaps and seeks to protect the memory of the Jedi. His manager gets him offworld, but is killed when they arrive on Aduba-3. Luckily, the Imperials had no idea Hess was there. In the years to come, Hess will take the name Don-Wan Kihotay and pretend to be a Jedi. Ironically, he is slightly Force-sensitive, but his low midichlorian count saved him from being taken as a Jedi student and thus dying in the Jedi Purges that killed his Jedi idols.
  (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)

- Early in the New Order, Firmus Piett flies with the Axxila anti-pirate fleet, slowly earning himself command and an excellent reputation.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

- Unhappy with the callous performance of the DD-13 in his cybernetic refitting sessions, Darth Vader has the DD-13 contract with Ubrikkian Steamworks canceled (well, not renewed when it comes up for renewal). Ubrikkian retires the DD-13 line (instead focusing on the DD-19 Overseer labor pool droid), even as the Empire begins using limited edition versions of Industrial Automaton’s MD-5 as a replacement for the DD-13 droids.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- During the reign of the Empire, Imperial Advisers are put on the executive board of MandalMotors. One of these, the Suprema, also monitors the City of Bone slave colony on Mandalore. Once the Advisers are in place, MandalMotors begins selling Pursuer Enforcement Ships to police forces across the galaxy, not just on previously Separatist worlds.
  (conjecture based on The History of the Mandalorians)

- Only one group of Padawans remains safe from the Jedi Purges. Unfortunately, the only Jedi still guarding them, Gira, is currently being attacked by stormtroopers, and Darth Vader is on his way. He contacts the base commander, but it seems that the commander has allowed the others to be taken out. Before he can investigate the matter, Vader appears. The two duel fiercely, until Vader has Gira at his mercy. Vader makes an offer: if Gira surrenders, the Padawans will be spared. Gira agrees, but then Vader has the base commander, who has joined his side in the battle, activate explosives on the Padawans’ starship, killing them all.
  Vader has broken his word, but his word is nothing compared to his duty to the Emperor. He didn’t kill Gira because the Emperor was best served by seeing him broken. As Vader leaves, Gira takes his own lightsaber, puts the emitter to his chest, and activates it, committing suicide.
  (The Duty)

The Force Unleashed (video games: LucasArts & Krome Studios & N-Space & THQ)
  The Force Unleashed (video game: LucasArts)
    “A Long Time Ago . . . ”
    Prologue
    A Secret Apprentice
  The Force Unleashed (video game: Krome Studios)
    Prologue
  The Force Unleashed (video game: N-Space)
    Prologue

Making a Killing (novel: Daniel Wallace & Jason Fry & Ryder Windham)
Making a Killing (novel: Daniel Wallace & Jason Fry & Ryder Windham)
  Cutting to the Chase
  How I Got Started
  First Guild Contract
  Looking the Part
  Rogues Who’ve Had the Pleasure of Meeting Me
  Watch Yourself

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Chapters 5 – 6
Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)
Fire Carrier [continued] (comic series: Randy Stradley)
  Fire Carrier, Part V [continued] (comic: Randy Stradley)
The Last Jedi (novel: Michael Reaves & Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff)
The Last Jedi (novel: Michael Reaves & Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff)
  Vaster Than Empires
    Chapters 1 – 12
  Flight and Pursuit
    Chapters 13 – 28
  Journey’s End
    Chapters 29 – 29
Epilogue
The Last of the Jedi [continued] (youth novel series: Jude Watson)
Against the Empire (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 20
Master of Deception (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 23
Reckoning (youth novel: Jude Watson)
  Chapters 1 – 21
The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
The Paradise Snare [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  Ylesian Dreams [flashback] [continued]
Two-Edged Sword (SWI85 short story: Karen Traviss)
Two-Edged Sword (SWI85 short story: Karen Traviss)
The Duty (SWT12 short story: Christian Read)
  The Duty (SWT12 short story: Christian Read)

17 BBY
  * Mara Jade is born.*
    (conjecture based on Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)*
  NOTE: Mara’s age repeatedly changed since the publication of the original Wizards of the Coast Core Rulebook for the Star Wars Roleplaying Game. The RPG Core Rulebook’s profile for Mara Jade Skywalker, dated 25 ABY, states that Mara is “at age 45” at that time, meaning that she would have been born in the year 20 BBY. Later, Star Wars Fact Files more gave her a “new” birthdate of 17 BBY, as she was then supposed to be two years younger than Luke, rather than the same age or older. Later, Leland Chee posted new information from the Holocron, suggesting that she is born at 18 BBY, making her only one year younger than Luke and Leia. Now, Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force has put her birthdate back at 17 BBY.
  * Iella Wessiri is born.
    (conjecture based on The Krytos Trap)
  * Tinian I’att is born.
    (conjecture based on To Fight Another Day)
  * Nadra Enasteri is born to Charis and Neth Enasteri on Rhamalai.
    (conjecture based on The Occupation of Rhamalai)
  * Isolder is born on Hapes.
    (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
  * Selby Jarrad is born.
    (conjecture based on Conflict of Interest)
  * Taryn Clancy is born.
    (conjecture based on Retreat From Coruscant)
  * Deen Vorsoon is born.
    (conjecture based on Slaying Dragons)
  * Kella Rand is born.
    (conjecture based on Kella Rand Reporting)
  * Kaleb Darme is born.*
(conjecture based on Kella Rand Reporting)*

*NOTE: This assumes Darme is 25 in Kella Rand Reporting.

- Niclara Varnillian is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #8)

- Theel is born.*
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)*

*NOTE: He is a teenager in Mask of the Pirate Queen, which is likely set shortly after ANH. I have rounded to him being 17 years old.

- Drake Paulsen is born. His mother is in poor health from childbirth and dies a short time later in the care of his father, Kaine Paulsen. As Kaine cares for his wife in her last moments, Drake is in the care of Tra‘Parr’Sratt, a Coynite warrior who calls the young Drake, “Lom,” the Coynite word for “freedom.”
  (conjecture based on Out of the Cradle)

- Trell’yar is born on Kothlis.

- Happy Go Lucky is born.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)

- Jaalib Brandl is born. Shortly thereafter, his father, Adalric Brandl, leaves Trulalis. He grows in his Jedi abilities, finally falling to the Dark Side sometime within the next few years and becoming a pawn of Palpatine.
  (conjecture based on The Final Exit)

- Princess Mora of M’Haeli is born. She is spirited away from the new Imperial government of the planet by Ch’n’no.
  (conjecture based on River of Chaos)

- Gohn Danfeil becomes the Chief Executive Officer of Gowix Computers, during the corporation’s move from Corellia to Corulag, early in the era of the New Order.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #7 via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Demma Moll brings her daughter, Kea Moll, into her rebellious activities on Annoo.
  (conjecture based on Droids)

- The supplies for the Outbound Flight Project should have run out around this time, but the attack of the Chiss under Thrawn cut the need for the supplies greatly with so many death from the battle.*
  (conjecture based on Survivor’s Quest)*

*NOTE: This was to take place 10 years after the launch of the OFP, which took place 27 BBY.

- The Bayonet-class Light Cruiser is developed by Sienar Fleet Systems.
  (conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three via TimeTales, abridged)

- SoroSuub develops the Ambassador-class Shuttle (AKA the Luxury Shuttle 001).
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- A Jedi on the run in a G-9 Rigger visits Abhean, hoping to gain scales or an ability from the scales of Taozin to help hide himself in the Force from inquisitors. (Exact date of report: 18:5:25)
  (conjecture based on Force and Destiny Core Rulebook)*

*NOTE: We do not have a definite date for this event, but it must be after RotS, yet before the villagers are forced to escape to Xorrn. Since I have put that escape at 15 BBY, I have just split the difference of 4 years and put this event 2 years prior to the escape.
Life Preservation Programming is given to the subroutines which every droid was required to have in their operational computer memory. Known as LPP, this programming was mandatory under the laws of the New Order, and prevented a droid from "experiencing the compulsion to do harm to an organic being." This programming could be overridden, but this act was considered a Class Two or higher crime by the Imperial Penal References.

(conjecture based on Cynabar’s Fantastic Technology: Droids via TimeTales, verbatim)

Bendbelly Dark, a beer, becomes popular.

(conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, abridged)

Evitch Jenton is made Governor of Ebra. He institutes martial law and begins enslaving the Ebranites.

(conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, abridged)

The Imperial Star Destroyer Destrier (and, by extension, Shea Hublin and the 77th Wing) is assigned to the Western Reaches Superiority Force under Admiral Bannidge Holt and Admiral Terrinald Screed, under the direction of Moff Wilhuff Tarkin.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

CT-4981 (Contrail) is ordered by a non-clone officer to kill his gunner, who has sustained an injury that is not, in itself, life threatening. Contrail refuses to follow the order, causing the officer to try to shoot him for disobeying. Contrail instead punches him, breaking the officer’s jaw. He is sentenced to a year in solitary. The injured trooper survives and heals, but will be killed several months later in a bombing run.

(conjecture based on Vader Adrift)

Boss Torsk, a crimelord, comes to power in the Tapani Sector.

(conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, paraphrased)

In the Tapani Sector, Hose Mecetti attempts to wipe out House Pelagia in the Mecetti Purge. House Pelagia manages to get the younger siblings of Theus Paddox out of the line of fire, allowing House Palagia to begin rebuilding.

(conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, paraphrased)

On Rodia, Navik the Red of the Chattza clan conquers the planet, making Navik’s home city of Iskayuma the new capital.

(conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

Boo Rawl begins piloting.

(conjecture based on Slaying Dragons)

By this time, the Empire’s Western Reaches Operation has managed to restore security and the rule of law to eight sectors, “liberating” 95 different planets.

(conjecture based on The Guns of Kelrodo-Ai)

On the planet Kelrodo-Ai in the Outer Rim Territories, the Imperial 77th Air Wing’s Sword Squadron, led by Blade Leader Captain Shea Hublin and his two flight leaders, Starks (Dagger Leader) and Kaal (Scimitar Leader), have been knocked down to only nine pilots while trying to take down the planet’s shield generators in their V-wings. Shea himself has become a major media darling due to having been the so-called “hero of Deepspace Cimarosa and Feather Nebula.” After a brief interview with Eris Herro of Eriadu News Service, Shea (who believes in the ideal of “One Empire,” which includes all sentients contributing to society, not just humans) leads a new offensive against the shield generators that are in a cavern beneath a nearby mountain, where they have found a wide shaft (with a grate over it) leading down below the surface. When they attempt the assault, Scimitar Flight is able to blast away the grate, but once they are in the tunnel, they are killed by a strange substance on the walls. The surviving pilots (Shea, Amp, Starks, Dibs, and Rocket) disengage and view footage from Scimitar Flight’s nose cameras. They discover, with the help of their groom (i.e. servant), Fara, that the tube is lined with the eggs and tentacles of a large creature. Moving too fast down the tube causes the tentacles to lash out to protect the eggs, and they can destroy a starfighter. Their only chance is to get through the tube in both directions (down to the shield reactor and back out again) very slowly, which will be rather dangerous. They head out on a new run. Shea, Amp, and Starks enter the tunnel slowly, while Dibs and Rocket cover them. They reach the generator, never setting off the tentacle trap, and they barely make it back out past the tentacles again before the reactor explodes. In the aftermath, Shea is once again a hero, and all of the survivors from their first run are still alive. Knowing that he owes Fara for the information that saved the day, Shea decides that he should take Fara with him and show him the galaxy, but Fara seems wary of the idea. Finally, Shea receives a transmission from the commander of the Western Reaches Operation, Moff Wilhuff Tarkin himself. Shea’s star appears to be rising . . .

(The Guns of Kelrodo-AI)

- After two years on Tatooine, Obi-Wan Kenobi is drawn to the site of Shmi Skywalker’s death, where the spirit voice of Qui-Gon Jinn helps him understand his former Padawan’s fall to the Dark Side in relation to that event. Obi-Wan has also learned of an increase in Tusken Raider atrocities recently, as Tusken land that settlers had stolen. Qui-Gon helps Obi-Wan to realize that the source of this newfound Tusken might is their new war leader, former Jedi Knight A’Sharad Hett. Obi-Wan goes to the Lars Moisture farm to protect Owen Lars, Beru Lars, and Luke Skywalker from A’Sharad’s advance. The two old allies duel, and Obi-Wan defeats A’Sharad soundly, cutting off one of his arms and removing his mask, shaming him in front of the Tusken. A’Sharad is sent away from Tatooine forever. (To be continued below . . .)

(The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi)

- By the time Imperial Officer Teron delivers his second batch of yearly supplies to the hidden Jedi settlement on Arkinnea, the traumatized Sidirri has run away. Jedi Master Zao goes after her, but neither ever returns. K’Kruhk claims that he can still sense Zao in the Force, so they are likely still out there somewhere. Over the years, Teron will continue to help, until, several years later, the help ends for unknown reasons.

(Fire Carrier)

- A’Sharad Hett becomes a bounty hunter, hiding his Jedi identity. When tracking the bounty Resk, he is led to Korriban, where he kills Resk to protect his identity and is drawn toward a Sith Holocron bearing the teachings of Sith Lord Xoxaan. He agrees to open himself to her teachings, beginning his path toward becoming the eventual supreme Sith Lord and Emperor Darth Krayt . . . (conjecture based on The New Essential Chronology and Claws of the Dragon)

The Empire executes the government of the Trans-Nebular sector, establishing a puppet state under the rule of Moff Nebin Cray. Reviewing the records of his predecessor, Cray rediscovers the planet Goroth, forgotten for centuries. More importantly, he learns of the high concentration of the hyperbarides on the planet. Cray’s call for annexation go unanswered—the Empire is spending too much money on building up the military to bother with the planet at the moment. But neither can they leave it alone. Cray strikes a deal with various megacorporations to come in and mine the planet, under his supervision. Goroth becomes little more than a slave world.

(conjecture based on Goroth: Slave of the Empire via TimeTales, verbatim)

- During the Battle of Thovinack, Hrovan Toth’s wife, Tisha Rostek, is killed. For her safety, Toth sends their daughter, Samona, to live on Isis

(conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11)

- After two years, the Imperials call off the bounty on the Sa Nalaor as a new Imperial Security Bureau agent is assigned to the search.

(conjecture based on Beyond the Rim)

- Michael Unther joins the Imperial Navy.

(conjecture based on A World to Conquer)

- Talsava abandons her daughter, Akanah Pell, on Carratos.

(conjecture based on Shield of Lies)

- Prince Denid of Velmor is ousted by Imperial elements on his homeworld. He flees with his betrothed Loren and protector Jedidiah, only to crash on an unnamed jungle world, where Loren dies and Jedidiah suffers brain-damage.

(conjecture based on The Last Jedi)
• Chel Dorat, disgusted with the corruption of the Empire, retires from Imperial Navy service and goes to live on Jerrilek with his daughter, Preela.*
  (conjecture based on Loyalties)*
*NOTE: This is to take place shortly after his promotion to the Imperial General Staff, which, in turn, is supposed to take place shortly after Palpatine declares himself Emperor.
• As the Emperor continues to methodically kill or otherwise dispose of all his political enemies (as well as opponents to his New Order), Bail Organa begins to move surviving opponents of Palpatine, as well as their families, to Isis. Over the years, hundreds of thousands of the Emperor’s targets make their home there.
  (conjecture based on The Isis Coordinates via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Geonosian engineer Gizor Dellso reactivates a Separatist droid factory on Mustafar, intending to strike against the Empire. Rather than allowing this to happen, the Empire sends the 501st Legion to Mustafar. They kill Dellso and shut down the factory for good. (To be continued below . . . )
  (Battlefront II)
The Guns of Kelrodo-Ai (SWI132/DRS13 short story: Jason Fry)
The Guns of Kelrodo-Ai (SWI132/DRS13 short story: Jason Fry)
Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 8
Dark Times [continued] (comic series: Mick Harrison & Welles Hartley & Randy Stradley)
  Fire Carrier [continued] (comic series: Randy Stradley)
  Fire Carrier, Part V [continued] (comic: Randy Stradley)
Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
  Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
    Mustafar Orbit
    Preventative Measures
    Mustafar
    Tying Up Loose Ends

16 BBY
• Asori Rogriss is born.
  (conjecture based on Starfighters of Adumar)
• Around this time, Otha Tevarkian, future lawyer for Natasi Daala after she is deposed as Galactic Alliance Chief of State, is born.*
  (conjecture based on Conviction)*
*NOTE: She is around 60 in 44 ABY.
• Tyria Sarkin is born on Toprawa.
  (conjecture based on information provided by Aaron Allston to TimeTales via Nathan Blumenfeld)
• Garik “Face” Loran is born on Pantolomin.
  (conjecture based on information provided by Aaron Allston to TimeTales via Nathan Blumenfeld)
• Gil Crosear is born.
  (conjecture based on Rendezvous with Destiny)
• Jimm Doshun is born.
  (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)
• Allandria and Allexia Evlan are born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• Koy’tiffin, future Twi’lek actress, is born. When she begins her acting career, her face will make such an impression on Stavin Thaal that he will choose future wives and mistresses, consciously or unconsciously, based on their resemblance to her.
  (conjecture based on Mercy Kill)
• Ral Shawgrim is born aboard the Panorama.
• Kal Nkai, an Arcona, is born.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars Screen Entertainment via TimeTales, abridged)
• Boba Fett (age 16) marries Sintas Vel (age 18).
  (conjecture based on Bloodlines)
• Koth Melan's father is wrongly executed for being a spy, sending Koth on the path to becoming a real one.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire and the Star Wars Encyclopedia)
• Mammon Hoole comes out of exile, with Jabba the Hutt erasing records of his existence, in order to begin a new life as an anthropologist.
  (conjecture based on Army of Terror)
• Aalia Duu-lang is orphaned. She finds work in a Stassia City cantina and soon begins working for crime lord Hek Dallan.*
  (conjecture based on Ringers)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that Aalia is 25 in Ringers.
• C-3PO, attending the Emperor's Ball with the Organa family, mistakes Darth Vader for a new droid, and is placed as a preschool teacher for the next year as punishment.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
• Rej Taunt ends up on Carcel, still imprisoned. Meanwhile, a bounty hunter finds Bammy Decree on Nkllon, collecting the bounty that Rej put in place two years earlier. Rej turns Bammy over to the Black Sun Vigo that had paid for the buzz droids he had jettisoned two years earlier, and the Vigo is so impressed that Rej has paid back that debt that he helps set up a sort of Black Sun franchise within the Carcel prison. Rej will receive information from Black Sun, which he will use to create his own criminal enterprise, run out of Carcel, where he becomes a sort of head honcho, even in relation to the official authorities.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
• CT-4981 (Contrail) is released from solitary confinement and returned to duty. He has been demoted to regular stormtrooper status, rather than being allowed to continue as a pilot.
  (conjecture based on Vader Adrift)
• Sometime after the bounty on the Sa Nalaor is called off, IsoTech founder Ropok is arrested for having Separatist sympathies and supposedly aiding CIS officers after the conflict. He is put into an Imperial prison, where he will eventually die, leaving IsoTech (including IT-3PO) to his children, Reom and Shira, who will handle operations in the Outer Rim and Mid-Rim (and Coreward), respectively. His death and the children's lack of any knowledge of the Sa Nalaor put yet another nail in the coffin of the Empire's search for the lost ship.
  (conjecture based on Beyond the Rim)
• Obi-Wan Kenobi writes a journal entry about the beginning of the Clone Wars, which Luke Skywalker will read while on Tatooine to create his green lightsaber. He also writes another entry regarding Asajj Ventress and how she became so twisted, which leads into a discussion of how Anakin became twisted and rebuilt to become Darth Vader in both mind and body.
  (conjecture based on The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi)
• The Qektoth Confederation is formed.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: The Kathol Outback)
• Sometime around this time (just over forty years before the Yuuzhan Vong War), Golan Arms begins producing its DF.9 anti-infantry battery.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
• A month prior to his death at Weerden, Imperial High Inquisitor Torbin visited the Corporate Sector on an inspection tour. While relaxing in an opulent pool, survivors of the religious cult Church of the First Frequency attempted to kill Torbin (due to them being among the many that the Inquisitors worked against in the early days of the Empire). Odumin, disguised as a Tynnan tourist, used his native aquatic skills to save Torbin and alert security about the would-be assassins. For his heroism, Odumin was promoted. Odumin was influential in cracking slaving and criminal operations in the Corporate Sector. He is credited with single-handedly breaking the Xiochi slaver gang, and his actions caused him to become the target of the Malorm gang. The criminal family nearly killed Odumin, so the Tynnan hired notorious gunman Gallandro to permanently solve the Malorm problem.
(conjecture based on Han Solo and the Corporate Sector Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Imperial Moff Gal Brello begins to control the Trans-Nebular Sector.
(conjecture based on Goroth: Slave of the Empire via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Thermoskin, a high-tech bodysuit, is developed for starfighter pilots.
(conjecture based on Rebirth via TimeTales, abridged)
• Lord Torbin, Grand Inquisitor of the Galactic Empire, is killed by an assassin droid on the planet Weerden. Though no replacement would be found for Torbin, the Inquisitorius continued on until the shakedown of the Imperial Civil War.
(conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)
• With the assassination of Imperial Grand Inquisitor Torbin, legislation is passed barring the sale, ownership, or manufacture of assassin droids.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• Bakur Mining Corporation develops a cure for the genetic defect threatening the Kurtzen.
The species begins to grow in number again.
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
• With the end of the Western Reaches Operation, Shea Hublin is named air marshal of the Greater Seswenna sector and given a marquisate on Eriadu. He marries Eris Harro, an heiress of one of the Quintad Houses. He does not, however, give up flying. He continues to fly for Wilhuff Tarkin, predominantly leading anti-piracy operations.*
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

*NOTE: This can be any time after the Battle of Kelrodo-AI and the next dated event for Shea in 13 BBY. We have no idea how long the Western Reaches Operation lasts. I just put it in the next year after Kelrodo-AI.
• Ray Harlisson begins riding swoops.*
(conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.
• Many months after Order 66 forced X2 to kill Jedi Master Ferroda (while technically defending his brother, X1), the clone brothers X1 and X2 are among Zeta Squadron when they are sent by Darth Vader to Dantooine to take down a small local resistance led by Jedi Knight Falon Grey. After months of having his own misgivings about the new Empire, X2 finally decides to desert. He breaks off from Zeta Squadron and is forced to shoot down some of his comrades in order to escape to the surface to warn the resistance of what is coming. He meets Falon Grey, who reveals that he was the Jedi from whom both X1 and X2 were cloned. He is, in a sense, their father. When the Imperial force, led by X1, arrives, X2 helps Falon get many of the rebellious villagers to the safety of an underground hangar, but X1 catches up with them.
X1 battles X2, wounding X2 long enough for X1 to then take on Falon, sword to lightsaber.
Falon bests his "son," but when Falon attempts to show him the error of his ways by letting him live in an effort to bring peace between "father" and "son," X1 attacks Falon from behind, dealing a mortal blow. X1 delivers one last blow to X2, leaving him for dead, then takes Falon's lightsaber as his own and leaves. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Elite Squadron)

*NOTE: The defection with Zeta Squadron and the conversation with Falon Grey that reveals the background of X1 and X2 appear only in the DS version of the game. The PSP version leaps straight into the battle to protect the villagers and is punctuated by random lines of dialogue from Falon (who has appeared here without any introduction) that try to fill in the gaps in the story during the battle itself. For what it's worth, the DS version refers to these events as "months" after Order 66 (but, then again, it refers to Order 66 as "months" after the Battle of Coruscant, which is obviously incorrect). It then, however, also refers to the next mission, where X2 meets Rahm Kota, as "fifteen years later," which, if that story is right after The Force Unleashed II, would put this event in 16 BBY, rather than 18 or 17 BBY. I'm taking that exact year reference as more definitive than the rough "months" reference, especially since some of those were quite obviously wrong.
• Upon finding a desert plant that has flowered then died the next day, Obi-Wan Kenobi reminiscences on his encounters with Asajj Ventress, comparing her to Anakin Skywalker and his transformation in to Darth Vader. He records his thoughts on Ventress in a book that Luke Skywalker will later find. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Jedi vs. Sith: The Essential Guide to the Force)

*NOTE: The events of The Clone Wars may end up invalidating this particular item from the guide, depending on whether Obsession’s “end” for Asajj and some of her earlier encounters with Obi-Wan are allowed to stand or instead wiped out by new continuity.

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
   Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
      Rise of the Empire [continued]
      Mustafar Orbit
         Preventative Measures
         Mustafar
         Tying Up Loose Ends
 Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: Rebellion)
      The Clone Wars [continued]
      Dantooine
 Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: N-Space)
      Act I [continued]
      Dantooine

   The Dark Side [continued]
      Dark Side Disciples

15 BBY
• Qui Xux is born on Omwat.
   (conjecture based on Jedi Search and Jedi Academy Sourcebook)
• Morgan Q. Raventhorn is born.
   (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)
• Shan Tanner is born.*
   (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. He is 15 in The Battle of Wayfar, an RPG scenario in the guide.
• Yuri Stonelaw is born.
   (conjecture based on The Draw)
• Shana Turi is born on Sundari.*
   (conjecture based on Mission to Zila)*
*NOTE: This is likely quite late in the year, given that she is 23 in Mission to Zila, which is rather late in 8 ABY.
• Mazi is born on Alderaan.*
   (conjecture based on Hostage)*
*NOTE: He is “no more than fifteen” as of Hostage.
• Ailyn Vel is born to Boba Fett and Sintas Vel.*
   (conjecture based on Bloodlines)*
*NOTE: Honestly, she looks a lot younger than she should be in Boba Fett is Dead, but there is no explanation for this yet.
• Julias Narn’s daughter is born.*
   (conjecture based on Strange Bedfellows)*
*NOTE: This assumes that Strange Bedfellows takes place 1 – 2 ABY.
• Several months into this year, Trig Longo is born to Von Longo and his wife on Cimarosa. Trig has an older brother, Kale Longo.*
   (conjecture based on Death Troopers)*
*NOTE: Without an exact placement for Death Troopers, it is tough to pin down Trig’s birthdate. However, we know that the novel takes place sometime 1 – 0 BBY, and he was a month away from turning 14 years old in that story.
• Zorba the Hutt is sentenced to 20 years on the planet Kip.*
   (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)*
*NOTE: HoloNet News #48 makes it appear that this is perhaps a second sentence of some kind, given that he is sentenced to 45 years in 22 BBY.
• Han Solo begins playing sabacc.
   (conjecture based on Hero’s Trial)
• Keelii Mazral joins the ThunderForce mercenary unit.
• The Imperial Symphonic Orchestra performs beyond the Core Worlds for the last time for the next 15 years.
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5)
• Roa begins seeing Lwyll.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
• Iaco Stark’s wife, Arris Rossum, dies in an accident. Stark will later remarry to a Nautolan named Dha’lis.
  (conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)
• Arok the Hutt of the Besadii kajidic, who represents them on the Hutt Ruling Council, mysteriously goes missing. He is replaced by Aruk the Hutt as the leader of Clan Besadii, but the kajidic’s prestige drops considerably, and they lose their seat on the Hutt Ruling Council. The seat will eventually wind up in the hands of the Vanderjar kajidic by the era of the Battle of Yavin.
  (conjecture based on Lords of Na’l Huttta)
• Daine Winger dies while serving in the military.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb’s website)
• In this era, the Empire finally discovers that the “Phantom of Gall” is actually Jans Coorsa, the Cacique (leader) of a village on Gall. The Empire attacks the village, but Lira Hardin, a respected political rival to Jans, suggests that they might be able to find a safe hideout on the planet Xorrn, where she was part of a Republic force that bombarded droid foundries during the end of the Clone Wars. They escape to Xorrn and discover that Foundry Four is still intact, mostly. They begin refitting it, and it becomes a new home for the clan and a repair port for the region.
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*
*NOTE: We do not have a definite date for this event, but it must be sometime before the death of Kal Coorsa’s mother around 13 BBY yet after the founding of the Empire when Jans Coorsa is still on Gall in 19 BBY. I have rounded to 15 BBY to allow him to establish his operation on Xorrn for a bit before taking Kal there. This also gives Lira Hardin enough time to be an established political rival for Jans on Gall after leaving the Empire.
• On Nespis VIII, Darth Vader destroys a Jedi library and Jedi Knight Aidan Bok.
  (conjecture based on Ghost of the Jedi)
• The Justice Action Network, an anti-Imperial movement, is born on Findris. It is founded by Earnst Kamiel and the parents of Jan Ors, hence the acronym “JAN” for the organization. Jan, however, will later leave the organization.
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #8 and The Dark Forces Saga, Part II: Unsung Heroes of the Light)
• Vuffi Raa and his master arrive at Renatasia to update the far-flung civilization on galactic affairs.
  (conjecture based on Lando Calrissian and the Flamewind of Oseon)
• The Rego Mineral Company discovers Altor 14 and strikes a deal with the indigenous Nuiwit to mine the planet.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races)
• The Galactic Empire takes over Lan Barell, though there is very little lasting Imperial influence.
  (conjecture based on Lan Barell)
• By this time, Dayla Kev has come to be known as Lady Ahrkan, and has become somewhat wealthy.
  (conjecture based on Welcome to the Jungle)
• The AirPatrol II craft is developed by Bespin Motors.
  (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, abridged)
• Thila, supposedly a slaver, becomes increasingly famous (or infamous) for her slaving exploits, while she’s truly helping people get to freedom.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 9: Fragments from the Rim)
• If Reija Momen had lived and remained the head of the Intergalactic Communications Center on Praesitlyn, her contract would have ended around this time.
When the son of Drearian Defense Conglomerate (DDC) president Mardu Avoa is captured by Thalassian slavers, bounty hunter Corvastan Benelex rescues him, killing the slavers’ ringleader. However, Corvastan receives a wound as a result that ends his career as an active hunter. He approaches DDC vice-president Shiko Tanderris for a loan of two million credits, which he uses to establish a Bounty Hunters Guild house, House Benelex, that specializes in the retrieval of kidnapping victims and other hostages. DDC is given a way in how House Benelex will be promoted in the years to come.*

*NOTE: House Benelex is in its second decade of operation as of the publication of the copy of The Bounty Hunters Guild Handbook that first belonged to Greedo. I have rounded that to about a decade and a half, give or take.

Sometime after the rise of the Empire, Master Petty Officer Corla Metonae is placed in charge of a refit of the Tantive IV. Shortly thereafter, during a flight in the Maramere system, the ship is attacked by pirates known as the Lok Revenants during a test of its escape pods. R2-D2 and C-3PO are aboard one of the pods, which is accidentally launched, causing the droids to be lost. As a result, Corla Metonae is disciplined. She is reassigned, though, to the Another Chance project that is currently underway.*

*NOTE: This must take place after C-3PO attends the Emperor’s Ball with the Organa family, yet must take place before the events of the Droids cartoon series.

R2-D2 and C-3PO prepare to travel to Tatooine, when they realize that their ship needs more space crystals. R2 tells 3PO that the only source of them is deep in a cave on the planet they are currently on. Arriving at a mountain pass, they are confronted by a large serpent, but R2 knows the way past it: rub its belly and it will fall asleep. Afterwards, they arrive in a swamp, where they flee from a “big, green, hairy plant—with claws!” Running into the woods, they encounter a large, furry creature that tells them where to find the cave once 3PO touches its paw. Once in the cave, they look for a smelly, orange fungus, since they always grow near the space crystals. They find some fungus and a cache of crystals. They return to their spacecraft, load the crystals into the engine, and leave for Tatooine.*

Shiny As a Droid *

In a Halowan Laboratories lab, IG-88 comes online for the first time, and the sentient programming he was given rushes through his system like a brushfire, making him even more sentient than planned. After killing all of the technicians when they try to shut him down, IG-88 dubs himself IG-88A and loads his sentient program into the three other IG-88 droids in the room, creating duplicates of himself (IG-88B, IG-88C, and IG-88D). IG-72, an inferior model, is activated but retains its programming. The five assassin droids, after downloading all information in the lab’s computers, escape the base, and the IG-88s go one direction while IG-72 goes another. Imperial Supervisor Gurdun arrives at the lab and learns that the most dangerous droids in the galaxy are now running loose. The IG-88s head for the droid factory world Mechis III and load their program onto the planet, effectively making the droids revolt and murder the workers and administrator (Hekis Thul), before landing on the world and taking it over, using fake transmissions to make it appear that all is normal. From here IG-88 wishes to prepare an army of droids with sentient programming buried inside them to be activated at an appropriate time and take over the Empire. In order to make sure that IG-88 remains visible and thus no one comes to Mechis III looking for them, IG-88B is sent out into the galaxy to perform as a bounty hunter (but also to use that cover to track down anyone involved in the IG-88 creation project and murder them so as not to have any loose ends). The first mission takes IG-88B to Peridon’s Folly, where his secondary target is Bolton Kek. One down, a very short list to go. (To be continued below . . . )

Therefore I am: The Tale of IG-88

In the years after the Clone Wars, Industrial Automaton tries to capture some of the protocol droid market that has been dominated by Cybot Galactica. Industrial Automaton makes shady deals with supposedly pro-Cybot Galactica companies to create what amounts to a new protocol droid with a body almost identical to the 3PO series from Cybot Galactica, but with an insectoid head. Cybot Galactica sues Industrial Automaton over the new droid, known as the LOM series protocol droid, but Industrial Automaton puts the LOM series on the market anyway. Unfortunately for Industrial Automaton, one of its LOM droids, 4-LOM, will serve as the ship’s valet of the Kuari Princess and abandon its programming to become a jewel thief and, eventually, a bounty hunter. The public relations nightmare from 4-LOM’s actions will cause Industrial Automaton to quietly retire the LOM series.*

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

*NOTE: There is no firm date for this event, so I’ve interpreted “in the years after the Clone Wars” to a rounded 15 BBY.

- Several worlds finally begin to rebel against the Empire openly. The rebellious activities are soon snuffed out, but serve as martyrs for other rebels to rally around.
  (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)
- The Empire begins to tap lava beds under Rubyflame Lake on Centares for industrial purposes.
  (conjecture based on Dark Encounter)
- Bail Organa takes his daughter Leia to an animal fair on Alderaan, where the young princess is spit upon by a nerf. She grows up hating the creatures and those who herd them.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species via TimeTales, verbatim)
- Neth Enasteri leaves Rhamalai to work against the Empire.
  (conjecture based on The Occupation of Rhamalai)
- Lyle Lippstroot begins working as Vop the Rodian’s bookkeeper.
  (conjecture based on The Great Herdship Heist)
- Lorn Moonrunner (actually Corvus Langlier) brings his family to Rhamalai and goes into hiding with them.
  (conjecture based on The Occupation of Rhamalai)
- The Empire outlaws podracing.
  (conjecture based on A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)
- Despite being outlawed, podracing continues by going underground. Over time, major starship and vehicle manufacturers even begin creating “factory customs,” a type of podracer somewhat standardized but highly tuned variants of engines often being purchased for the creation of podracers.
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)
- Luke Skywalker (age 4) reveals to Beru Lars that he senses someone watching over him (unbeknownst to him, Obi-Wan Kenobi). Beru tries to shrug it off when they are visited by her younger sister, Dama Whitesun Brunk, and her husband, Sam Brunk. After discussing the Empire’s recent ban on podracing, Dama and Sam notice that Owen Lars has removed the headstones that marked the graves of, among others, Shmi Skywalker Lars. Those comments are the first time Luke has heard the name of his grandmother . . . (To be continued below . . . )
  (A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)
- With little hope of being able to return to the service of House Organa of Alderaan, R2-D2 and C-3PO seek employment with the Intergalactic Droid Agency.
  (conjecture based on the Droids Re-Animated, Part 1 and The Destroyer)
- Aboard an Intergalactic Droid Agency starship, C-3PO and R2-D2 are brought to the planet Dodz to meet a new master, Lott Kemp. They find his home utterly destroyed. They meet with a young boy named Jost Ellon, who informs them that Lott Kemp (among others) have refused to pay taxes to Governor Kugg, who then sends his Destroyer (a killer droid) to wipe those people out. Kemp is alive, but escaped, leaving the droids stranded. Jost gives them a job, but there is little to be done. Jost’s parents were killed by Kugg, and he just keeps scavenging equipment to fix and sell. When they discover that something he salvaged was an old Ranger X-1 droid, though, they think they have a chance against the Destroyer. At the next council meeting, they send in the X-1 to face the Destroyer, but the X-1’s power cells are nearly depleted. When Jost is hurt, R2-D2 uses cables to transfer some of the Destroyer’s power into the X-1 long enough to destroy the Destroyer. Kugg is arrested, but the droids can’t stay with Jost. They are sent away on the next ship to have R2-D2 repaired from microsynapse damage during the power transfer. The droids are heroes, but they are again without a legal master.*

(The Destroyer)*

*NOTE: This story was said for years to take place within the 10 – 6 BBY time frame, at least five years after the Droids cartoon series and ending prior to the Dark Horse Comics Droids materials. However, in the 2013 articles The Droids Reanimated, Parts 1 – 2 by Abel Pena and Rich Handley for the Official Star Wars Blog did a better job of fitting these stories together than had been the case before. Now, it is assumed that the Marvel (Star) Comics tales and cartoons were both in 15 BBY, with the comics preceding the cartoons. (The exception, of course, is the final arc of the Droids comics, which are a retelling of ANH.)

- Aboard a ship heading for repairs, R2-D2 and C-3PO end up in a scuffle with other droids after C-3PO accidentally insults them. The ship’s pilots, Nikki Idd and Vik Idd, stop the fight when R2-D2 starts to overload. They save the droid by resetting him to only basic functions until he can be repaired. Until that repair, Nikki and Vik will act as their masters. They arrive at a nearby space station, where the pilots’ father, Lonn Idd, is being forced by Tig Fromm to install a new laser on his ship. When Tig takes Nikki hostage to get Lonn to agree to the installation, Vik and the droids send in R2-D2 on overload to act as a distraction, while Vik saves Nikki. Lonn has already installed the weapon, but as Tig and his men prepare to leave, C-3PO enters, wearing coverings from a guardian droid, catching Tig and his men in a net. They are handed over to authorities, while Lonn fixes R2-D2 and agrees to take them to the nearest Intergalactic Droid Agency office to re-enter service.*

(The Ultimate Weapon!)*

*NOTE: See note with The Destroyer above.

- Sometime shortly after his first encounter with R2-D2 and C-3PO, Tig Fromm is released from jail. He waits a while before contacting his father, Sise Fromm, for fear of his anger. (conjecture based on The Droids Re-Animated, Part 1)

- Purchased by Ambassador Zell on the planet Majoor, R2-D2 and C-3PO have found a new master. While Zell goes to Armath for a peace mission, the droids are to be tutors and companions to his son, Llez. They listen to a program with him called Space Pirates of Galaxy (no, there’s no “the” in there), about which Llez refers to the pirate captain Reddjak as his hero. However, Reddjak is a real space pirate, not a true hero. When a news announcement reports his capture, Llez goes to save his “hero.” The droids chase after him, and when Llez frees Reddjak from droid captors, they escape on a guard ship with R2-D2 and C-3PO as stowaways. They return to Reddjak’s own larger ship and crew, who then target the ships bearing Zell, based on unintended tips from Llez. The droids and Llez then cause torpedoes on the way toward Zell’s ships to self-destruct, then face Reddjak, nearly escaping before Llez is caught by the pirate and held as a hostage. When Zell arrives aboard with his men, Reddjak tries to use Llez as a distraction and strike Zell, but Zell bests him, revealing to his son that he was once a Space Ranger. Llez has a new hero, his father. As for the droids, with Zell now wanting to take Llez on missions with him, the droids are out of a job, yet again.*

(The Scarlet Pirate!)*

*NOTE: See note with The Destroyer above.

- On Sooma, R2-D2 and C-3PO are acting as diplomatic couriers with a message for King Zornog. Unfortunately, Prince Plooz, son of King Gorkus of Alzar, stowed away on a freighter to Sooma, and now Gorkus is threatening war if Plooz is not returned. Little do they know that it was Gorkus’ own General Sludd that put Plooz on the freighter, hoping for a diplomatic incident that would let his forces take control of both worlds. When the droids inform Zornog that their next stop is Alzar, he begs them to take Plooz with them to Gorkus. In space, Plooz fouls up the antimatter controls for the ship’s hyperdrive, just as Sludd’s forces arrive to destroy them, forcing a war. When the ship goes into hyperspace with insufficient antimatter levels at the same instant that torpedoes strike their exit point, they are thrown into a strange dimension without any stars. When they see a tear in the fabric of that dimension, a dimensional rift, they travel through, unknowingly sending themselves forward in time. They have passed through what will later be known as the “Endor Gate wormhole.” (To be continued below as The Demons of Endor!, then continued immediately below as Lost in Time! . . . )*

(Lost in Time!)*

*NOTE: See note with The Destroyer above.
R2-D2, C-3PO, and Plooz return to their own time through the Endor Gate wormhole, barely escaping the forces of Alzar’s treasonous General Sludd in the process. They arrive at King Gorkus’ palace on Alzar, just in time to avoid a war. Sludd and his co-conspirators are arrested. The day has been saved by two droids and Ewoks from the future.

(Lost in Time!)*

*NOTE: See note with The Destroyer above.

- R2-D2 and C-3PO lose yet another master (King Zornog of Sooma) when R2-D2 mistakes a power socket for a computer port. Zornog abandons the droids on R-Duba.

(conjecture based on Separated! and The Droids Re-Animated, Part 1)

- Kirk Windjammer’s astromech falls overboard, necessitating that he purchase another one week later.

(conjecture based on Separated!)

- R2-D2 and C-3PO have been abandoned by King Zornog on R-Duba. Again, the droids must find a way to gain a new master. They make their way to Van P. Quuist’s droid store, where R2-D2 is sold to Kirk Windjammer, prompting C-3PO to worry about their separation. C-3PO, for his part, is sold to Prince Jagoda via Baron Starlock. While serving the prince, C-3PO overhears the ambassador from Dorande and Starlock conspiring to use Starlock’s droid, BX-00, to kill Jagoda, allowing Dorande to invade. Unfortunately, he has no proof, as he did not record the conversation. When BX-00 tries to kill Jagoda, C-3PO saves him, leading to Starlock’s banishment, the ambassador being kicked off the planet, and the advisors all being fired. C-3PO becomes Jagoda’s new advisor. Meanwhile, Windjammer and R2-D2 take a job for his boat (an ocean-going ship, not a starship). When they meet their client on the high seas, though, an accident reveals that the cargo is weapons. The R-Dubs are actually Dorande operatives in disguise. They try to destroy Windjammer’s ship, but they use a tractor beam and underwater capabilities to escape. While Jagoda does not believe Windjammer when he warns of the impending Dorande attack, C-3PO believes R2-D2, making the prince believe. Jagoda asks Windjammer to lead his defense forces, and they turn back the attackers. In repayment of this debt, Windjammer asks Jagoda to remove the travel taxes that have kept the world divided for so long. Shortly thereafter, R2-D2 and C-3PO head off to find a new master on another world, recommending that Windjammer become Jagoda’s new advisor.*

(Separated!)*

*NOTE: See note with The Destroyer above.

- Having stowed away on a ship from R-Duba to Ord Gertoth, C-3PO and R2-D2 are discovered and dumped at a refueling station operated by only one sentient, the Bimm businesswoman Sindee. She teaches R2-D2 how to play Dejarik holo-chess, but games become the situation’s undoing when she loses the droids in a game of chance to smuggler Zevel Hortine. When Hortine is arrested over Ingo, he jettisons his illicit cargo to the surface below to get rid of evidence. The droids are in the cargo bay at the time and end up jettisoned to Ingo as well.

(conjecture based on Separated!, The Droids Re-Animated, Part 1, and The White Witch)

- C-3PO and R2-D2 are lost in a game of chance to smuggler Zevel Hortre, who subsequently dumps them on Ingo.

(conjecture based on The White Witch)

- On Ingo, C-3PO and R2-D2 are found by the speeder racing duo of Thall Joben and Jord Dusat. Unfortunately, the detour that leads Thall and Jord to save the droids from where they were dumped puts them into territory run by Tig Fromm (son of Sise Fromm, the gang leader), where Fromm is working on the secretive Trigon 1 weapon. Tig Fromm and his partner Vlix arrange for droids to capture Jord and take him to their base. Tig thinks that Jord knows more than he does about Tig’s plans to take over the other major gangs, such as Jabba the Hutt’s territory. Luckily, Thall and the droids meet up with the rebel Kea Moll, who helps them sneak into Tig’s facility, using the duo’s White Witch (a suped-up speeder) and a lightsaber left behind by a Jedi that makes short work of locked entry points (and later Jord’s binders). While Thall and R2-D2 charge into the base’s tunnels, C-3PO and Kea handle things from a nearby control room, from which they can track Jord’s location. Thall finds Jord, then the White Witch charges through a flurry of blaster bolts and smashes through sentry droids, finally returning to the control room and catching up to C-3PO and Kea. They reach the exit, but find themselves under fire from Fromm’s cruisers. Luckily, C-3PO activates an override that turns the sentry droids back on, causing them to attack Fromm’s own forces, while the White Witch escapes, allowing them to get to Kea’s ship, the Star Runner, and escape Ingo for the time being. As for Tig and Vlix, their plans for a takeover have been revealed, fouling up their intentions and putting more heat on Tig’s father, Sise. Tig suggests a long trip to Borga to hide out for a while. Meanwhile, our heroes are off to the planet Boonta to enter the White Witch in speeder races.

(\textit{The White Witch})

- In space, C-3PO and R2-D2 perform repairs on the Star Runner’s hull, while Jord Dusat and Thall Joben perform repairs inside and Kea Moll handles flying. In need of more repairs than they can handle on their own, they take a detour to the planet Annoo to see Kea’s mother Demma and get parts they need. Elsewhere on Annoo, Tig Fromm reports his failure on Ingo to his father, gang leader Sise Fromm. Luckily for their gang takeover plans, Sise thinks he can take out our meddling heroes while they are on the planet. The droids and their masters escape some of Fromm’s thugs before spending the night at Kea’s family’s home, where the droids discover the secret entrance to Kea’s rebel hideout. After a droid assassin attacks Thrall in his bedroom, Thrall and Jord join the droids in the hideout, as Kea explains that she is working (under Demma’s directions) to somehow get to Fromm’s secret Trigon 1 satellite weapon on Ingo and destroy it before the Fromm’s can use it (or the Empire can get its hands on it). Jord and Kea attempt to sneak aboard Fromm’s ship to get back to Ingo and into the Trigon 1 base, but they are captured. Luckily, Thrall and the droids arrive and save them, then the droids use a pair of cargo containers to sneak Thrall and Kea aboard the ship, while Jord stays behind to help Demma. As they are loading, they run into Sise and Tig, who don’t realize who the droids actually are. Once at the base, Tig spends time impressing his father with the Trigon 1, while the droids sneak Thrall and Kea next to the satellite as “cargo.” Upon exiting the cargo containers, they are set upon by sentry droids and goons, forcing them to steal the Trigon 1 to escape, rather than destroying it. In a very brief battle in space, our heroes destroy all of Fromm’s pursuit starfighters. Back on Ingo, Sise essentially banishes Tig, intending on avoiding the wrath of the other gangs with Vlix and his loyal minions, while Tig is forced to fend for himself.*

(\textit{Escape Into Terror})*

*NOTE: The Rebel Alliance apparently does not exist yet, given its formation 2 BBY, but C-3PO mentions the “Rebel Alliance” when discovering Kea’s hideout. That is considered just a continuity error given when the cartoons were made.

- On Ingo, Thrall Joben and R2-D2 to hide the Trigon 1, while Kea Moll and C-3PO stay behind, accidentally intercepting a message from Tig Fromm to Sise Fromm, wherein Tig promises to get the satellite weapon back. When Vlix Fromm’s goons attack Kea and C-3PO at the speeder shop where they are awaiting the others, only the hasty arrival of Thrall and R2-D2 (along with a hasty retreat) saves them from capture . . . for a moment, at least. They find themselves at a dead end, captured by Vlix and brought to Tig, who tells them to give up the location of the Trigon 1 or his droids will kill Demma Moll and Jord Dusat, who have been captured on Annoo. Thrall agrees, but he will only talk to Sise, forcing Tig to take the quartet to Sise’s base on Annoo. Once there, they are taken to see Sise, where they propose a trade: the Trigon 1 location for the freedom of Demma and Jord. Thrall reveals that the weapon is hidden in a forest on Ingo, but Sise refuses to hold up his end of any trade, locking up Thrall, Kea, and the droids with Jord. (Demma is locked up elsewhere). R2-D2 saves them by blasting off Thrall’s bindings. In space, Tig flies the recaptured Trigon 1 back from Ingo, followed by Sise’s shuttle. Tig has earned back his father’s respect in regaining control of the satellite weapon. Back on Annoo, our heroes split up. While Thrall and Kea race to save Demma, Jord and the droids commandeer a ship to escape with. In space, Tig Fromm discovers that the Trigon 1 has been sabotaged (by Thrall and R2-D2 when they hid it) to send it on a collision course with the base on Annoo. On Annoo, the droids accidentally end up riding a cart down to where Thrall and Kea are about to be captured. The disruption saves the two, allowing the four of them to rescue Demma and escape with Jord, just in time to watch as the Trigon 1 crashes into the base, destroying both. Unfortunately for our heroes, both Fromms (and Vlix) have escaped the debacle and will be back for revenge.

(The Trigon Unleashed)

- Having destroyed the Trigon 1 with some clever sabotage, Thall Joben, Jord Dusat, Kea Moll, Demma Moll, R2-D2, and C-3PO head for the planet Boonta for the Boonta Speeder Race, in which Thall and Jord intend to register their speeder, the White Witch. En route aboard the Star Runner, they are set upon by Sise Fromm, Tig Fromm, and Vlix in Sise’s shuttle. They manage to escape from the gangsters, but they know that the Fromm Gang won’t rest until they get revenge for the Trigon’s destruction. Upon landing on Boonta, our heroes need to repair the White Witch and find medical attention for Jord, thanks to the attack in space. They are assisted by a scrapyard droid, Proto One, then head on their way. Meanwhile, Sise hires Boba Fett to assassinate our heroes. Boba takes the contract because he owes Sise a favor, but he also notes that Jabba the Hutt has a price on Sise’s head. Once Jord is set up with a splint, they realize that Thall will have to pilot the speeder, if they can get it fixed. They take it to a repair facility operated by BL-17. (Little do they realize that BL-17 is actually an ancient Mandalorian Battle Legionnaire droid owned by Boba Fett himself.) While C-3PO and BL-17 trade stories, gas is released in the facility (set by BL-17), knocking out Kea, who is repairing the Witch. Luckily, R2-D2 saves her in time for Thall to arrive and check on her. Meanwhile, C-3PO and BL-17 run into Proto One, who speaks poorly of BL-17, forcing Fett’s droid to reveal his dastardly intentions. A lucky strike leaves BL-17 buried under junk, but their troubles aren’t over. Even as Boba Fett enters and starts firing on them, Tig and Vlix attach a thermal detonator to the bottom of the White Witch. Thall and R2-D2 escape with the speeder, heading straight for the race. At the race, (attended by Imperial Admiral Terrinald Screed), Thall does well, but he is pursued by Boba Fett. Luckily, Fett’s attacks accidentally knock off Tig’s detonator, which explodes and damages Fett’s speeder instead. Fett escapes and Thall wins the race, but Tig has crossed Boba Fett, which is never a healthy thing to do. After the race, Thall and Jord are approached by Zebulon Dak, who wants to hire the two to be engineers for his speeder corporation. Before they can leave, the Fromms and Vlix try to attack them again, but Proto One saves them, even as Fett arrives to take out his anger on Tig, Sise, and Vlix, capturing them to turn in to Jabba. Once in space, R2-D2 patches into the intercom and discovers that Zebulon would require memory wipes on the droids in order to hire Thall and Jord, but since they don’t want to do that, they won’t take the job. Rather than having their masters pass up such an opportunity just for their sakes, the droids get in an escape pod and launch, leaving Thall and Jord to take the job and ensure their futures.

(A Race to the Finish)

- R2-D2 and C-3PO find themselves trapped in a prison run by the Fromm gang. The two droids escape through the prison, a series of mines, and a research facility.*

(Escape from Aaron)*

*NOTE: The article The Droids Re-Animated, Part 2 confirms that this old video game takes place between the first and second arcs of the Droids cartoon.

- Once again in need of a master, C-3PO and R2-D2 again go to the Intergalactic Droid Agency to find a new master. They are sent to Tyne’s Horky to work at Doodnik’s Café, based on C-3PO’s prior experience as a gook and maître d’ aboard the Tantive IV. The café is owned by Doodnik, who had come to Tyne’s Horky with dreams of setting up a restaurant with his friend, Dexter Jettster, though he ends up instead having an unfortunate partnership (as part-owner) with Kleb Zellock. (conjecture based on The Droids Re-Animated, Part 1)

- On the planet Tyne’s Horky, R2-D2 and C-3PO are working at Doodnik’s Café, but are quickly fired for their clumsy antics. They soon put themselves up for sale at a nearby auction, finally being purchased by Jann Tosh. Jann also purchases another droid, but that droid is actually the disguised the Tammuz-an prince Mon Julpa, who is being hunted by bounty hunter IG-88. Mon Julpa is also being hunted by Kleb Zellock, who has been hired by Sollag, and it is Kleb and his assistant Yorpa that recognize the “droid” as Mon Julpa and set out to get him from Jann. Shortly thereafter, Jann brings the three droids (well, two droids and Mon Julpa) to his uncle Gundy’s mine. Later, Jann and the others realize that the droid is not a droid at all, but they don’t know Mon Julpa’s name, just his species (Tammuz-an). They give him the temporary name “Kez-Ilban,” shortly after he saves Gundy from a near-collapse. in the mines. A while later, Kez-Iban disappears, snatched by Kleb and Yorpa. Jann and the droids return to the café, looking for him, only to arrive while Kleb and Yorpa are there. A brawl ensues, which is broken up by the arrival of Jessica Meade, who stuns Yorpa, but Kleb is able to escape with Jann and the droids, whom he soon puts to work mining Nergon 14 (alongside Kez-Iban), an element he intends to sell to the Empire. Luckily, the man who hired Kleb was wanting to save Mon Jula, not beat IG-88 to the bounty. Sollag is tossed into the group’s cell, reuniting him with “Kez-Iban.” He gives “Kez-Iban” the Tammuz-an royal scepter, which breaks the spell placed on Mon Jula by Zatec-Cha, allowing him to come back to his senses. Our heroes stage a daring escape, during which they find an unlikely ally in Yorpa, whom Kleb intended to leave behind when unstable gasses in the mine blow them sky high. Kleb is turned over to the authorities, and Mon Jula prepares to return home to reclaim his throne.

(The Lost Prince)*

*NOTE: When viewing this episode as part of The Pirates and the Prince on DVD, rather than the original broadcast version, you might notice some differences. First, the music has been rescored. Second, the opening establishing shot of Tyne’s Horky has been cut for the DVD and replaced by the various generic establishing shots that are used with the new opening credits (which, of course, replace the cartoon series opening credits). Third, near the end of the episode, we have an unusual case of lines being added for the DVD, it seems, but then a case immediately thereafter of material being cut. In the original broadcast version, Gundy says that he hasn’t gotten his money worth yet out of the droids, to which C-3PO stammers a response, “But, but, you don’t mean . . . ” In the original broadcast version, it moves immediately to Gundy’s line, “You bet your bolts I do! Now get working before I . . .” and he kicks R2-D2. On the DVD, “We need your help getting that bucket of bolts up and running so we can take this prince back to become a king,” is a brand new line that replaces “You bet your bolts I do!” The “get working” line and subsequent kick are intact. However, immediately after R2-D2 is admonished to behave himself, the DVD moves directly into the next episode’s content, whereas the original broadcast episode has C-3PO’s leg act up, causing him to bounce around, needing R2-D2 to steady him to keep from falling. The original episode ends with Gundy laughing about them both having bounced around for a moment. I have yet to see an explanation for these changes. The end credits are, of course, gone as well.

• Intending to help Mon Jula regain the throne of Tammuz-an from the usurper Vizier Zatec-Cha, Jann Tosh, Sollag, R2-D2, and C-3PO get passage to Tammuz-an with Jessica Meade. Unfortunately, they are being hunted by IG-88, who has been hired by Zatec-Cha to recover the royal scepter from Mon Jula, which would theoretically solidify his place as ruler. En route to Tammuz-an, the ship is attacked by the pirate Gir Kybo Ren-Cha (Kybo Ren), but they are saved by Jessica’s piloting and a quick save from IG-88, who is protecting his bounty. Upon arrival, they must take the royal scepter to the Keeper of the Tower, at the peak of the royal palace, before the equinox begins. As they make preparations, Jessica goes with Sollag to a medstation to have wounds from the space battle treated, only to be abducted by Zatec-Cha’s goons. Meanwhile, Jann and the droids recognize Vinga, aide to Zatec-Cha, around the palace and give chase. They are led into an ambush and captured. Back at their quarters, IG-88 steals the scepter from the now-alone Mon Jula and uses it to capture the prince himself. The captives are all reunited in a pit, where they face a monstrous durkii. Luckily, R2-D2 is able to remove some insects from the durkii’s scales, pacifying the beast. They then race to the Keeper of the Tower to stop Zatec-Cha from placing the scepter in place, finally catching up to him and reclaiming the scepter, allowing Mon Jula to insert it into its slot. In doing so, Mon Jula takes his rightful place as King of Tammuz-an. Jann, for his part, is made a captain in the Tammuz-an navy.

(The New King)*

*NOTE: If you are watching this on the DVD of The Pirates and the Prince, rather than the original broadcast version, you will notice some changes. The opening credits are gone, of course, since this has been merged into a “movie” version. As such, the opening recap of the previous episode is also gone, and the “movie” section irises into a view of the ship a bit later than in the broadcast version, so as not to show the individual episode title. As with the previous episode, the end credits have been removed, and the episode has been rescored. Oddly, Zatec-Cha’s final line, ranting about having spies, has been altered for the DVD. He does not begin “I have spies . . . spies that . . .” anymore, just “I have spies, that . . .” That shortens the line, as does the fact that the sentence is more compressed now, necessitating a tiny cut in the video to go with it. What is stranger is that an entire scene is cut from the end of this episode and replaced on the DVD. In the episode, C-3PO and R2-D2 are at a reception wearing medals, and guards catch a pair of hooded thieves swiping silverware, then the episode ends. On the DVD, that scene is missing, but a new short scene is added immediately after Jessica’s line about still being owed for the flight to Tammuz-an, in which Mon Jula tells her, “Excellent, I have need of your piloting skills, and Jann will fly as escort to repay his debt to you.” The end credits are, of course, gone as well, after this added segment.

• Jessica Meade, with R2-D2 and C-3PO aboard, is transporting fuel for King Mon Jula of Tammuz-an, guarded by Jann Tosh in his R-22 Spearhead. They come under attack by Gir Kybo Ren-Cha (Kybo Ren) and his pirates, who strike with stolen TIE fighters. Despite Jann’s defense of the ship, Kybo Ren and his goons capture Jessica’s freighter and take the ship back to their base on Tarnooanga. After sending a distress call to Mon Julpa, Jann follows the pirates, eventually landing and being captured himself. He is locked up with R2-D2 and C-3PO, while Jessica is held by Kybo Ren as his “guest.” Jann and the droids are to be taken aboard a sail barge and tossed into the sea. Upon being tossed into the sea, they are attacked by a miridon sea creature, but they manage to get the monster tangled in sea wreckage, making their way back toward the pirate base. As for Jessica, she manages to distract Kybo and escape, pursued by Kybo’s henchman Jyn Obah, whom she traps aboard her own freighter, then leaves stranded on Tarnooanga when she takes off. Meanwhile, Jann and the droids steal a skimmer but are set upon by Kybo’s goons. The emergence of the miridon, however, causes them more trouble than Jann and the droids are worth, at least briefly. Unfortunately, our heroes are recaptured by Kybo Ren’s pirates when they try to escape in Jann’s Spearhead and brought aboard the Demolisher, Kybo Ren’s Star Destroyer (apparently stolen when the TIE fighters were stolen, most likely). They set out for Tammuz-an, where Kybo Ren intends to defeat Mon Julpa, since the lack of fuel from Jessica’s freighter will mean that their ships are not spaceworthy. En route, they come across Jessica’s freighter, which Kybo Ren blasts. Jessica gets away in an escape pod, but the freighter is ripped open, revealing no fuel inside. Their mission was only a decoy. The real freighter full of fuel has already reached Tammuz-an, while Kybo Ren wasted time with Jessica, Jann, and the droids. Mon Julpa launches Tammuz-an’s space forces to engage Kybo Ren’s forces, while, aboard the Demolisher, Jann and the droids reclaim his Spearhead (again), escaping to reunite with Jessica (who has been taken aboard Mon Julpa’s command ship), but not before sabotaging Kybo Ren’s weapons by reversing a torpedo launcher to backfire, causing enough havoc on the Demolisher to give Mon Julpa’s space forces the upper hand. Tammuz-an is saved, and Kybo Ren is arrested."

(The Pirates of Tarnooanga)"

*NOTE: If you are watching this episode as part of The Pirates and the Prince on DVD, you will find some changes from the original broadcast episode. First, obviously, the opening credits have been removed, as have the end credits. The episode has also been rescored. More notably, Kybo Ren’s line “No one escapes” and Jessica looking down at the water after Jann, R2-D2, and C-3PO go overboard have both been cut, as has the establishing shot immediately thereafter, so that the “movie” moves along smoothly without the lead into and out of a commercial break. Later, just on the other side of a hidden commercial break, Kybo Ren’s line “So, now you admit that you cannot . . . ” becomes “You cannot . . . ” due to what I consider poor editing. Near the end, we have another odd transitional choice, just like in the previous episode. An entire scene featuring C-3PO and R2-D2 getting an oil bath and having the decoy plan explained to them has been cut from the “movie” version of the story, but it has been replaced by more dialogue from Mon Julpa while our heroes are in the Spearhead. C-3PO still delivers his line, “Decoys? We were not the decoys, were we, sir?” but rather than this being as the Spearhead flies off, we see C-3PO’s face in reused animation, then the trio, followed by new lines from Mon Julpa in reused animation of him on the communication screen, wherein Mon Julpa says, “My friends, I have a great project for you. I need help negotiating a peace treaty with Lord Toda. Proceed with all speed to the royal castle.” As the last sentence is delivered, we see the same Spearhead flying animation that we originally saw over C-3PO’s decoy line.

- On Tammuz-an, Mon Julpa and a delegation visit Mon Julpa’s rival, Lord Toda, seeking peace and cooperation. Toda distrusts the proposal, but his daughter, Gerin, supports it. Given that Mon Julpa’s own advisor, Sollag, is against the peace charter as well, it seems that Gerin is the key to its approval. Unfortunately, Gir Kybo Ren-Cha (Kybo Ren) made a good choice in making Jyn Obah his first mate. Jyn sneaks into Mon Julpa’s palace, freeing Kybo Ren. The two make it to the landing pad, where Mon Julpa and Gerin (on a diplomatic visit that seems much more like a date) are talking. Jyn stuns Mon Julpa, but even the assistance of C-3PO and Jann Tosh cannot stop Kybo Ren from stunning Gerin and escaping with her as his prisoner aboard one of the R-22 Spearheads. Mon Julpa promises Toda that he will send Jann and Jessica to save Gerin. Mon Julpa remains as Toda’s prisoner until they can find her. C-3PO and R2-D2 visit Jyn Obah, who was left behind and is now a prisoner. R2-D2 pretends to be an out-of-control droid, while C-3PO plays the role of a terrified droid, pleading with an equally terrified Jyn to reveal where Kybo Ren would have taken Gerin. He reveals that Gerin would have been taken to Kybo Ren’s base (a wrecked cruiser) on Bogden. Kybo Ren contacts Mon Julpa and Toda, arranging to trade Gerin for all of his men being released from prison. Meanwhile, though, Jessica Meade (with R2-D2) and Jann (with C-3PO) take a pair of Spearheads to Bogden to rescue Gerin. Upon boarding Kybo Ren’s wrecked cruiser, they split up, even as Gerin frees herself and races through its corridors. She is found, surrounded by catlike shungwas, by Jann and C-3PO. C-3PO draws the creatures attention, while Jann gets to Gerin. The two of them then give chase, finding the shungwas gone and C-3PO with a detached arm and busted leg. When Toda hears of the rescue attempt from Kybo Ren (after R2-D2 and Jessica are captured), who does not reveal that Gerin is already free, he accedes to Kybo Ren’s greater demands: his men; his ship; and Mon Julpa as his prisoner. Toda sends them all back to Bogden aboard the Dianoga. Back on Bogden, R2-D2 frees himself and Jessica, but now all of our heroes are pursued by Kybo Ren. Luckily, R2-D2 drives shungwas toward Kybo Ren, who is then chased away. Together, Jessica, Jann, Gerin, and the droids make their way to the landing site, where they find that the Dianoga has already landed. Kybo Ren then arrives, which traps Mon Julpa, the two pilots, the two droids, and Gerin in the bay with the pirates. However, the Dianoga also conceals Toda and a group of Toda’s warriors, who disembark and subdue the pirates. The day has been won. The pirates are arrested once again, and the treaty between Mon Julpa and Toda goes forward. Unfortunately, all does not end on an entirely happy note. With Jessica’s mission to Tammuz-an complete, she needs to return to Tyne’s Horky and her own business.*

(The Revenge of Kybo Ren)*

*NOTE: As with the previous three episodes, we see changes to this episode when it is included in the DVD “movie” known as The Pirates and the Prince. As usual, the opening credits have been removed, and the episode has been rescored. Rather than regular ending credits, the new version features scrolling credits for the entire “movie.”

- The Space Academy has not yet accepted Jann Tosh’s senior application, but Lord Toda’s son, Prince Coby, has been accepted to begin his training. After bidding farewell to Toda, King Mon Julpa, and Coby’s sister Gerin, Jann, C-3PO, and R2-D2 prepare to take Coby (and his precious pet Ingey) to the Academy. Before leaving, Coby slips away and tries to spend some of the money he inherited from his great-uncle on a pair of old war droids. C-3PO and R2-D2 stop him, however, and they all head for the Academy. During a layover to change ships in Zallakesh on Chuzalla, a seedy world, it seems, Jann leaves Coby with the droids while arranging passage. They happen upon a starship from Starhunters’ Intergalactic Menagerie. The intergalactic zookeepers Captain Stroof and Mr. Slarm (his assistant) steal Ingey, which is a very rare creature. The menagerie ship lifts off, taking Ingey with it. The droids and Coby use Coby’s money to purchase a Blackhawk Destroyer and chase after the ship, attaching to its hull before it jumps to hyperspace. They arrive in the Dandelo system, where they detach the Blackhawk and crash land. They find themselves captured by the native Fuzzum, who are being hunted as slaves to the Starhunters. Coby and the droids try to free Ingey, but their first attempt does not work. Instead, they work with the Fuzzum tribe. Using C-3PO’s ability to imitate sounds, they create the sound of a jugaloo, which draws the Starhunters into the forest, distracting them while Coby and R2-D2 sneak into the Starhunter base, freeing Ingey and a human prisoner, Greej. Other Fuzzum arrive to help free other creatures, but they have to fight a droid guard in doing so. During the confrontation, R2-D2 blows a fuse and deactivates. Meanwhile, C-3PO is chased by a real jugaloo, but the chase leads to the droid being captured by the Starhunters, who are then chased off by the jugaloo. C-3PO is later chased by the jugaloo back to reunite with Coby and the others, while the Starhunters are trapped in their own net, but only briefly. When they are about to turn the tables on our heroes, Jann arrives, having received the Blackhawk’s distress call. The day is won. In the aftermath of the confrontation, Greej reveals that he had once commanded the menagerie ship as an animal sanctuary, planning to take animals back to their native worlds, but Stroom, Slarm, and their goons overpowered him and took over, turning it into a traveling zoo. Coby gives Greej his inheritance to help the animals, which then prompts Greej to take Coby on as his junior partner, giving him a sense of direction that Lord Toda had hoped the Academy would provide. As for Jann, he has been accepted to the Academy, which means that the droids will have to find a new master, since the Academy does not allow droids. Jann and the droids part ways as friends.*

(Coby and the Starhunters)*
On Biitu, Mungo Baobab of the Baobab Merchant Fleet is with some of the locals that he has befriended, including the young boy Fidge, when the monstrous droid, the Great Heep, passes overhead, wrecking their farmland by sucking away its moisture. The Empire, using the Great Heep, has begun a takeover of Biitu’s mining operations to make a fortune. Mungo is captured. Shortly thereafter, the droids R2-D2 and C-3PO are ferried to the planet Biitu, where C-3PO is to become Mungo’s property (with another job, hopefully, for R2-D2). Just before landing, their ship comes under attack by small droids, who capture all of the droids aboard and bring them back down to Biitu, where R2-D2 and C-3PO are separated C-3PO is taken with other droids in a transport, while R2-D2 is taken away and dumped into a stone-like cell. Back at the cell, R2-D2 awakens to find himself atop a huge tower, alongside another droid. They are in a droid harem, where they are treated to luxurious oil baths and such, at least until the Great Heep can consume them. As for C-3PO, he and other humanoid style droids are brought to the Great Heep itself and made slaves for hard labor. C-3PO reveals that he is technically owed by Mungo Baobab, which draws a laugh from the Great Heep, who then recharges by consuming an astromech, much to C-3PO’s horror. He also finds Mungo held in a prison cell nearby. Things look grim. Soon, as C-3PO is carrying things as part of his labor assignment, Mungo asks him to get him water, as he (like many others) is dying of thirst. As he fills a canteen, he encounters Fidge and his pet, Chubb, who is also there to get water. When C-3PO mentions Mungo, Fidge reveals their friendship. They are chased out of the cave where they met by a large droid, but Mungo uses a lubricant that C-3PO was forced to carry to send it sliding back into the cave. In the encounter, Fidge and Chubb escape down a pipe, requiring C-3PO to follow them, hoping to find the boy to help Mungo. Meanwhile, R2-D2 and another droid, KT-10, seem to be hitting it off in the droid harem, seemingly in as much of a romantic way as droids can. Nearby, Imperial Admiral Terrinald Screed arrives to check on the Great Heep’s progress in mining fuel for the Empire. Screed also checks on Mungo, who has been a thorn in his side. He intends to bring Mungo back to the Emperor in hibernation. That night, C-3PO arrives without Fidge. He tells Mungo about R2-D2 and his plight. Fidge then arrives with his digging pet Chudd. They discuss escape plans, intending to have Fidge use Chudd to get into the droid harem to save R2-D2, who could then fly the Imperial cargo ship if they could steal it. That way, they could escape Biitu. Mungo begins cutting through his cell bars, as C-3PO, Fidge, and Chudd sneak their way into the tower that houses the droid harem. They are nearly there when the Great Heep arrives to take another astromech. C-3PO enters the harem before the Heep takes his next droid, but it is KT-10 that is taken. KT-10’s energy is entirely consumed by the Heep, then C-3PO is yanked from the harem by the Heep, even as Fidge and Chudd hang on to a tower outcropping, unable to help. R2-D2 drives off the tower top, using a parachute to glide down onto a transport’s rooftop, allowing himself to be carried to the mining camp. Meanwhile, Screed arrives with a droid to put Mungo into hibernation. Luckily, Fidge and Chudd arrive just in time to distract the Imperials for long enough for Mungo to kick out his bars. The three of them escape into the tubes that Fidge had used earlier. They find themselves in an underground industrial area, then same area where R2-D2 has just arrived. R2-D2 finds KT-10’s deactivated form, but is captured by the Great Heep before he can do anything for her. R2-D2 pulls the plug on the Heep’s magnetic grapple, allowing himself to fall onto a conveyor belt and escape, chased by the Heep’s small servant droids. Elsewhere, C-3PO is about to be operated on by a demented droid “surgeon.” He accidentally activates a lift on his surgical bed, and, in a string of mishaps, finds himself on a conveyor belt just as R2-D2 comes by, having eluded his pursuers. R2-D2 cuts an exit hole for them with a laser appendage, and the two make it safely into what looks like an escape pod (or a huge jar), only to be sealed inside by the Great Heep and put into a laser incineration furnace. Using his wheels to spin the container, R2-D2 manages to roll them back out of the incinerator shaft, allowing them to escape. Nearby, Mungo, Fidge, and Chudd emerge from the underground tunnels. While Fidge and Chudd go back underground, trying to go back to the harem to save R2-D2, whom he does not realize has already been freed. Mungo tries to sneak into the industrial facility, only to run directly into C-3PO and R2-D2. They overhear Screed tell his men to only allow droids to board his ship. Wearing junked droid parts as if it is armor, Mungo makes himself look like a droid, so that the three can infiltrate the Imperial ship, posing as droids loading cargo. They are noticed, though, when part of Mungo’s costume falls off. They are also noticed when R2-D2 accesses the ship’s computers. While R2-D2 interfaces with the computer, Mungo pretends to be a whiny droid to distract the Imperials with his complaints. Again, though, he loses a part of his coverings, revealing himself to Screed. The ship, however, lifts off under R2-D2’s control, accidentally leaving Mungo and C-3PO on the ground with the Imperials. Elsewhere, Fidge and Chudd emerge on the mountain near the tower, where they steal a bulldozer-esque vehicle. Fidge drives it into the tower, smashing through into the harem, freeing the droids inside. A veritable army of astromechs emerge from the base, then Fidge uses the bulldozer to destroy the turbolaser batteries attacking the cargo ship. Aware of the disturbance, the Great Heep arrives, arguing with Screed over who is to blame for the failure of this operation. Above, R2-D2 uses the ship to blast away much of the Imperial mining operation. The Great Heep throws a large disc into the ship, damaging it, but R2-D2 manages to pilot it into a crash with the tower itself, destroying most of it. With the tower destroyed, it begins to rain as all of the stolen moisture returns to the natural environment. The Great Heep tries to take its vengeance on Mungo, C-3PO, Fidge, and Chudd, but is defeated by the harsh weather conditions as a storm arises. A short time later, the locals are now safe, and they force Screed to leave Biitu. Everyone mourns R2-D2, who arrives, battered but functional, dragging the deactivated KT-10. In gratitude for his heroism, the other droids join with R2-D2 in supplying a portion of each of their own power supplies to KT-10, reactivating her. The Biitu adventure has ended happily, but there are more adventures to be had.

(The Great Heep)

• The deactivated Great Heep will eventually become a permanent exhibit at the Baobab Museum of Science after being discovered by Ebenn Q3 Baobab.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

• While studying the Abominor known as the Great Heep, researchers at the Baobab Museum of Science realize that there could have been as many as eighteen Abominors who infiltrated the galaxy at one point, including the Great Heep and the planet Ronyards. This drives one researcher, Cantebarius H. Broom, into such paranoia that he begins to distrust all machines and soon begins experimenting upon them in torturous ways.
  (conjecture based on The Droids Re-Animated, Part 2)

• C-3PO and R2-D2 are now the property of Mungo Baobab of the Baobab Merchant Fleet, who intends to find a way to the planet Roon in the Cloak of Sith to open a trade route for the extremely valuable data-storage crystals known as Roonstones. After purchasing a map to the Roon system, they are nearly arrested by stormtroopers, who have been sent to retrieve the map. At the Baobab archives, they narrow down the location of Roon, charting a definite course. Mungo then attends a meeting of the Merchant Council on Manda. The Council knows that if Mungo’s father’s floundering business goes under, the entire economy of Manda will suffer. He pleads with them for approval to go to Roon, but they consider it too risk and send him on a mission to Hrill instead. While in space, he violates his marching orders and sets course to seek out Roon anyway. Meanwhile, Imperial Admiral Terrinald Screed is near the Cloak of Sith, trying to determine if there is anything of value to be had in the region. He is contacted by Roon’s Governor Koong (of Tawntoom Province), who wants to begin dealing with the Empire and has prepared the Umboo lightstation accordingly. He offers Roonstones as the incentive for a visit. Elsewhere, our heroes follow the Rainbow Comet to the Roon system through the Cloak of Sith. As they emerge from an asteroid field, they are taken in by Koong’s starship and brought to a space station (a sort of beacon in space called a “lightstation,” as opposed to a “lighthouse”). Koong and his other goons have mistaken them for Screed’s delegation from the Empire. As they play along, they understand that Koong took over the station from its original owner, who ran it to help travelers, and turned it into a lure for piracy, stealing from anyone who passed by. Unfortunately, our heroes are discovered to be impostors when Screed arrives with his own delegation. Mungo is captured, C-3PO is ordered to be reprogrammed to serve Screed, and R2-D2 is given to Koong. With help from the free R2-D2, Mungo and C-3PO are freed, along with Noop Yeldarb, the original operator of the facility. Chased through a storage room full of Nergon-14, a very explosive substance, they wreak enough havoc to be able to escape, disabling enough of the station to free it of control by Koong and his ship of pirates. Noop is back in control of the lightstation, and he provides the final directions needed for our heroes to enter the Roon system. As for Koong and Gaff, they are in custody about Screed’s ship, but they are his best asset for finding Roonstones, so they won’t remain in custody for long.*

(Tail of the Roon Comets)*

*NOTE: If you view this episode as part of the DVD release called The Treasure of the Hidden Planet, you will find that the music seems to have been rescored somewhat (as far as I can tell), a new introductory narration from Mungo has been added (to a backdrop of scenes mostly from The Great Heep), and one of C-3PO’s lines has been inexplicably cut. (After Mungo says, “I’ve found it. I’ll establish a trade route for the Baobab Merchant Fleet yet,” C-3PO originally replied, “I’m afraid I still have a bad feeling about this, but maybe all the surprises are over now.” Mungo answers, “Maybe they are,” just before the retained line, “Threepi, get the astrogation charts.” C-3PO then opens the compartment that Mungo identifies and a bunch of Tribble-esque mupples fall out. On the DVD, Mungo’s reply, “Then again, maybe not,” seems to be best paraphrased “maybe that’s not the right compartment,” while the original scene was more akin to “maybe the surprises are not over after all.” It’s odd that this was altered, though I would guess it had something to do with original source recordings.) The opening and closing credits are also gone, merged as opening and closing credits for the entire “movie.”

- On Roon, Mungo Boabab, R2-D2, and C-3PO continue their search for Roonstones. They are shot down by forces loyal to Governor Koong of the Tawntoom Province, who is still in league with Imperial Admiral Terrinald Screed. Once on the ground, they are attacked by strange mud creatures (“mudmen”) but are saved by two locals: Auren and Nilz Yomm. When Koong sends his goon Gaff to take out Auren Yomm, his biggest competitor (on behalf of Umboo Province) in the upcoming Roon Colonial Games, which would solidify his control over the planet, Gaff also realizes that Mungo is alive. He sets a giant sauropod (a shamanar) after them. Auren saves the others, then they save her, and the creature is run ragged to the point of exhaustion. Seeing his prowess, Auren invites Mungo to help their team at the Roon Games. Before Auren’s event, Mungo has his droid poison the Umboo team, giving them bad stomach aches. This leaves only Auren, Mungo, and C-3PO to carry out the race. They sabotage Koong’s droid rider, which falls into a pit with gravity increased by Gaff, who had intended to take out C-3PO or the others. Gaff is then chased off by tiny mudmen, as the Umboo team wins the race. With this failure, Screed does not intend to give Koong further leeway in providing Roonstones to the Empire.*

(The Roon Games)*

*NOTE: If you view this episode as part of the DVD release called The Treasure of the Hidden Planet, you will find that the music seems to have been rescored somewhat. The opening and closing credits are also gone, merged as opening and closing credits for the entire “movie.”

- On Roon, Mungo Boabab has fixed his ship, the Caravel, and prepares to set out with C-3PO and R2-D2 to hunt Roonstones on his recently-forged Manda-Roon trading route. Mungo takes his leave of Auren and Nilz Yomm, despite him and Auren having developed some feelings for each other. Auren gives him a Roonstone as a going away gift, and when he discovers that this stone came from the so-called Bantha Graveyard, he goes there with the droids and Auren to investigate. He finds an old man, the hermit who had provided that Roonstone, and it turns out to be his great uncle “Old Ogger” Baabab, who had disappeared sixty years ago looking for Roonstones and had been stranded in the Bantha Graveyard. After a brief plea to avoid letting greed overshadow more important things, Ogger dies, leaving six full sacks of Roonstones with Mungo. With Ogger’s gear, including a pyramidal item with cryptic riddles written in different languages, they prepare to set out after the source of the Roonstones. Using some of the Roonstones to get cash and supplies, they travel to a nearby cantina. Unfortunately, Gaff arrives with some of Governor Koong’s men. When Mungo pulls Ogger’s “blaster” to fire at Gaff, it fires a seed pellet that immediately grows into a plant that wraps around Gaff and subdues him. Mungo uses the weapon to take on Mungo’s guards, while ordering Auren to take the droids and get to safety. When Mungo’s mount starts to run away with the Roonstones still on the packs attached to its saddle, they spend so much time trying to save them that they are all captured (except for R2-D2), having put wealth over friendship and safety, as Ogger warned them not to do. They are made slaves aboard Koong’s ship, which they use to cross the Roon Sea. R2-D2 chases after them... underwater, catching up and freeing them. Mungo snags the Roonstones back before they cast off in their small vessel to escape. While Koong might have let them get away into the coming storm, he has his men give chase because of the Roonstones. Meanwhile, in the storm, our heroes are on a sailing craft . . . with the annoying Lin-D humor droid, whom they also helped escape. As our heroes are fired upon by Koong’s flying minions, Mungo takes them out, but Lin-D is damaged and the sail is destroyed. Shortly thereafter, Koong’s ship arrives, but a whirlpool emerges to engulf them. Using a stretching material from Ogger’s pack, they form a new sail, then, to lighten the load, Mungo voluntarily tosses out the Roonstones, allowing them to escape. Koong’s ship escapes too, and he promises Screed that he will have control of Roon and the Roonstones soon. As four our heroes, they fix Lin-D, while Mungo decides that, he will begin translating the pyramid object as soon as they return to Umboo.*

(Across the Roon Sea)*

*NOTE: If you view this episode as part of the DVD release called The Treasure of the Hidden Planet, you will find that the music seems to have been rescored somewhat. The opening and closing credits are also gone, merged as opening and closing credits for the entire “movie.”

- On Roon, Mungo Baobab, Nilz Yomm, Auren Yomm, R2-D2, and C-3PO undertake a trip to see the path of the Roon comets above the planet. Fearing that when they leave the system, they won’t be able to easily find their way back to Manda, they consider their future. As for Koong, he has lost favor with Admiral Terrinald Screed, but he decides to regain favor by engaging in germ warfare against the locals of Umboo Province. He releases Rooze (a deadly disease) into the settlement, but accidentally manages to infect everyone aboard the ship except for Screed (who has a breath mask handy) and Gaff. Back at the Yomm home, our heroes return to discover that Bola, Auren’s mother, is sick from Rooze. Moments after this discovery, Gaff arrives to force Nilz, who is a doctor, to produce a cure for Rooze. Nilz leaves with Gaff, who has taken a stunned Auren prisoner. Mungo and the droids follow, using the memory material (a “memling”) from Ogger’s pack, which can track its other pieces, one of which is placed on Auren. Elsewhere, Nilz treats Koong in an iced-over volcano fortress that acts as one of his bases. Screed, for his part, intends to leave that afternoon, having given up on Koong’s ability to provide the fortune in Roonstones that he promised to the Empire. Crash landing in the snow outside the base, Mungo and the droids sneak into the base on foot (or, in R2-D2’s case, tread). C-3PO notices a huge mirror inside, which allows him to translate the pyramid artifact’s text when reflected. They realize, through the translation, that the Roonstones are found within the walls of that very volcano, meaning that Koong has been sitting on a fortune without even knowing it. They also discover, by accident, that the mirror acts as a size-changing device, as R2-D2 is reduced to a size that lets him fit into C-3PO’s hand. Storing R2-D2 in C-3PO’s chest cavity, they continue on their way. They discover the Caravel, which had been stolen by Koong’s goons, which gives them a way to leave later, since the ship they took from Koong is now wrecked outside. Using the tiny R2-D2, they then make their way further inside. R2-D2 sneaks into the Yomms’ cell, helping them escape as he slowly starts to regain his size. With the cure in hand, they head back out, reuniting with Mungo and C-3PO. In the hangar, Koong pleads with Screed to stay, at least until he can use his new aerial drill to search for Roonstones. Commandeering the drill, Mungo offers to trade their safety for the source of the Roonstones and some of the cure for Koong. When the drill blasts to reveal the Roonstones, Screed has Koong’s entire operation seized. Koong, angry, races to the drill, which he uses to blast his own base’s cache of Roonstones, sending them into the volcano below, rather than let the Imperials steal the Roonstones out from under him. In the chaos that ensues, the Imperials evacuate, while Mungo, the Yomms, and the droids get away on the Caravel. Koong laments having nothing left, but Mungo does leave him enough of the cure to save himself. Despite this largess, Koong still intends revenge. He is so busy raving about his revenge that he finally succumbs to Rooze (which causes a person to basically phase out into nothingness), as the container of the cure crashes to the floor, breaking and spilling, unused. Aboard the Caravel, R2-D2 gets back to normal and is found to be carrying a Roostone. They return to Umboo Province, saving Bola and their people (presumably). R2-D2 and C-3PO are left with the Yomms as Mungo heads back to Manda to inform them of his success in the Roon system mission.
(The Frozen Citadel)*

*NOTE: If you’re wondering why these Droids cartoons have been leaped back from 5 BBY to 15 BBY, that is because the dates for the stories were changed yet again. Now, according to Lucasfilm and the text on the back of the Droids DVD release (Star Wars: Animated Adventures: Droids), these animated stories take place 15 BBY, a full ten years before the last date we were given for them. This date has been confirmed by Leland Chee, who claims that the 15 BBY date has been in effect since a 2003 issue of Star Wars Insider. Also, if you view this episode as part of the DVD release called The Treasure of the Hidden Planet, you will find that the music seems to have been rescored somewhat. The opening and closing credits are also gone, merged as opening and closing credits for the entire “movie.”

- At some point while working for Admiral Terrinald Screed on Roon, C-3PX slips away and falls into the service of the Intergalactic Droid Agency. He will eventually be taken in by Olag Greck and refit by outlaw techs on Hosk Station to be an assassin droid (much like how Darth Maul programmed him decades earlier). The droid will eventually carry out hits on Bonadan and Rampa, earning an Imperial bounty on the droid’s head.

  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- In the wake of their adventures against Governor Koong and Admiral Terrinald Screed, C-3PO and R2-D2 are given much calmer jobs in the Baobab Archives. There, they catalog and translate engravings of an ancient poem found on a Roonstone. Annoyed with C-3PO’s know-it-all attitude and R2-D2’s pushiness, the researchers have the droids “mistakenly” sold to the renegade technolord (or perhaps “technolady” would be more appropriate) Krellus Barzane. The droids remain with Barzane before misfortune finally finds her. They also learn in this period that the Fromm Gang has bribed Jabba the Hutt to reduce the price on their heads by paying him a percentage of their business dealings and promising to commit their Annoo-dat clones to wiping out the scattered remnants (the diaspora, so to speak) of the Mandalorian Death Watch.

  (conjecture based on The Droids Re-Animated, Part 1)

- C-3PO and R2-D2 (or a master they are working for, possibly Jann Tosh again) come into possession of a “hotrod” starship. It is soon in need of repairs.

  (conjecture based on The Stolen Ship)

- At a ship garage on Roon, C-3PO is shocked to find that R2-D2 claims to have fixed their “hotrod” (ship) all by himself. He is even more shocked to find that the hotrod has been stolen! They report this to the garage controller, Nik, who thought they were the ones leaving it. It has been stolen by Fromm Gang member Vlix Oncard, who is being ordered to take it to a secret lair, where “the guardians” will recognize the ship as belonging to the droids, so that when Vlix steals the lair’s “cosmic treasure,” the droids will be blamed. Unfortunately for Vlix, the droids and Nik listen in on his communication with his boss (Sise Fromm, presumably, as usual), and they are able to override the ship’s command codes so that R2-D2 can bring the ship back remotely. Vlix is to be arrested on arrival, and the droids retain the ship.*

(The Stolen Ship)*

*NOTE: This two-page comic story is something of a quandary. It was published in Spain (and thus in Spanish) by Editorial Gepsa in their MyComyc series. There is some question as to whether these were officially licensed or not – a concern that kept them from being reprinted in the Wild Space omnibus volumes. However, Rich Handley and Abel Pena did extensive research and even translations on these, making them available on their websites, which were lined to via the Official Star Wars Blog. The duo also worked in some tiny references to them in their The Droids Re-Animated two-part article on the same blog. Two other tales in this series also exist, Neutralizing Trigon One and Kea Kidnapped, but their content seems to conflict somewhat with the Trigon One arc. Abel has suggested that these might be considered alternate versions of that arc’s events, similar to many children’s books that adapt other Star Wars stories. In any event, that is why you will not find summaries of either of those two stories in this document, as they would serve to confuse that arc. They are instead given their own alternate Apocryphal Timeline in the Appendices file.

- C-3PO and R2-D2 once again enter the service of Jann Tosh, who sports a new look after their time away.

  (conjecture based on Sabotaged Droid)

- C-3PO, R2-D2, and Jann Tosh a visit to Jann’s old friend, Professor Smith on the Roon Communication Satellite. Smith is in trouble, though, since the green-skinned General Koong (no, not Governor Koong) has reprogrammed Smith’s droids, so that his droid, XR, is attacking him, controlled remotely by Koong. Fortunately, the arrival of R2-D2 and C-3PO allows them to fix matters when R2-D2 fires a laser that destroys the viewscreen and disables the droid. Now, they will have a surprise waiting for Koong when he arrives.*
(Sabotaged Droid)*

*NOTE:  See note with The Stolen Ship, as this story is in the same situation.

- While Jann Tosh makes some purchases, C-3PO and R2-D2 are walking together when C-3PO finds himself falling through a trap door into the laboratory of Professor Cantebarius H. Broom, who intends to experiment upon him in harmful ways. Fortunately, R2-D2 is able to get to Jann and bring him to the trapdoor. They jump into the lab and intend to save C-3PO, but the droid saves himself by smacking Broom on the head with a pipe when his back is turned.*
(Troublesome Outing)*

*NOTE:  See note with The Stolen Ship, as this story is in the same situation.

- While traveling together on a small ship, C-3PO and R2-D2 are pulled into a satellite run by Tig Fromm. Tig is using it, disguised as a cloud, to capture travelers. Tig is not aboard at the moment, however, so the droids simply turn off the artificial cloud and leave in their ship.*
(The Cloud)*

*NOTE:  See note with The Stolen Ship, as this story is in the same situation.

- A young girl fancying herself a bounty hunter speaks with Nikk Zavod about a partnership. When he says yes, she takes him to her ship. That's all he was interested in, though, so when she checks the thrusters, he ignites it and flies off, leaving her for dead. Her quarry had been Chewbacca, but now Chewbacca emerges from hiding to save her life. Chewie's medical droid fixes her up as best as possible, and when the young girl hears Chewie mumbling the name "Malla" (for Mallatobuck) in his sleep, she takes the name Mala Mala, which she will go by for the rest of her life. Chewie leaves her in good hands on the planet, and goes into hiding once again. (To be continued below . . . )*
(Chewbacca)*

*NOTE:  This assumes that Mala Mala was around 40 years old or so when R2-D2 and C-3PO interview her about her encounter with Chewbacca. This would also make her in her mid-to-late teens during Vader's Quest. Feel free to correct me. For now, take the placement as a best guess.

Shiny as a Droid (children's book: Virginia Holt)
Shiny as a Droid (children's book: Virginia Holt)
Therefore I Am: The Tale of IG-88 (TOTBH short story: Kevin J. Anderson)
Therefore I Am: The Tale of IG-88 (TOTBH short story: Kevin J. Anderson)

Part I
Part II
Part III
Part IV
Part V

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
Chapter 1

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)
Droids (comic series: Dave Manak & George Carragone)
The Destroyer (comic: Dave Manak)
The Ultimate Weapon! (comic: Dave Manak)
The Ultimate Weapon
In the Company of Evil
Shock Treatment
The Scarlet Pirate! (comic: Dave Manak)
The Scarlet Pirate
End of the Game

Lost in Time! (comic series: Dave Manak)

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

- Droids [continued] (comic series: Dave Manak & George Carragone)
  - Lost in Time! (comic: Dave Manak)
  - Lost in Time

- Ewoks (comic series: Dave Manak)
  - The Demons of Endor (comic: David Manak)
  - A Race in Time

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

- Droids (comic series: Dave Manak & George Carragone)
  - Separated! (comic: George Carragone)
  - Separated
  - Malice in the Palace!
  - Deceptions

Droids: The Adventures of C-3PO and R2-D2 (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright & Joe Johnston & Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Sharman DiVono & Paul Dini)

- The Trigon One (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright)
  - The White Witch (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
  - Droid Adventures (children's book series: James Emily & Ellen Weiss & Bonnie Bogart)
  - The White Witch (children's book: James Emily)

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

- The Trigon One [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright)
  - Escape Into Terror (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
  - Escape Into Terror (children's book: Unknown)

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

- The Trigon One [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright)
  - The Trigon Unleashed (cartoon: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban)
  - The Trigon Unleashed (children's book: Unknown)

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

- The Trigon One [continued] *(cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen
A Race to the Finish (cartoon: Peter Sauder & Stephen Wright)

Droid Adventures [continued] (children’s book series: James Emily & Ellen Weiss & Bonnie Bogart)

A Race to the Finish (children’s book: Unknown)

Escape from Aaron (video game: LucasArts & Mastertronic & Lool, Ltd.)

Escape from Aaron (video game: LucasArts & Mastertronic & Lool, Ltd.)

Prison
Mine
Research Facility

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

Droids: The Adventures of C-3PO and R2-D2 [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright & Joe Johnston & Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Sharman DiVono & Paul Dini)

Mon-Julpa (cartoon series: Peter Sauder)
The Pirate and the Prince (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
The Lost Prince (cartoon: Peter Sauder)

Droid Adventures [continued] (children’s book series: James Emily & Ellen Weiss & Bonnie Bogart)
The Lost Prince (children’s book: Ellen Weiss)

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

Droids: The Adventures of C-3PO and R2-D2 [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright & Joe Johnston & Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Sharman DiVono & Paul Dini)

Mon-Julpa [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder)
The Pirate and the Prince [continued] (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
The New King (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
The Pirates of Tannoonga (cartoon: Peter Sauder)

Droid Adventures [continued] (children’s book series: James Emily & Ellen Weiss & Bonnie Bogart)
The Pirates of Tannoonga (children’s book: Ellen Weiss)

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)

Droids: The Adventures of C-3PO and R2-D2 [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright & Joe Johnston & Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Sharman DiVono & Paul Dini)

Mon-Julpa [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder)
The Pirate and the Prince [continued] (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
The Revenge of Kybo Ren (cartoon: Peter Sauder)
Coby and the Starhunters (cartoon: Joe Johnston & Peter Sauder)
The Great Heep (cartoon: Ben Burtt)*

*NOTE: Even though The Great Heep was aired as a television special (combining two regular episodes worth of material into one presentation), I have listed it here as a cartoon, rather than a television special, due to its being part of the broader Droids cartoon series.

The Adventures of Mungo Baobab (cartoon series: Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Peter Sauder & Sharman DiVono & Paul Dini)

Treasure of the Hidden Planet (cartoon series: Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Peter Sauder & Sharman DiVono & Paul Dini)

Tail of the Roon Comets (cartoon: Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves)*

*NOTE: Some sources, including the DVD chapter listings on the Treasure of the Hidden Planet DVD incorrectly refer to this episode as “The Tail of the Roon Comet.” The original title from the cartoon series, though, was Tail of the Roon Comets (note the lack of “The” and the plural “comets,” rather than singular “comet.”

Droid Adventures [continued] (children’s book series: James Emily & Ellen Weiss & Bonnie Bogart)

Escape from the Monster Ship (children’s book: Bonnie Bogart)
Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)
Droids: The Adventures of C-3PO and R2-D2 [continued] (cartoon series: Peter Sauder & Richard Beban & Stephen Wright & Joe Johnston & Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Sharman DiVona & Paul Dini)
The Adventures of Mungo Baobab [continued] (cartoon series: Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Peter Sauder & Sharman DiVona & Paul Dini)
Treasure of the Hidden Planet (cartoon series: Ben Burtt & Michael Reaves & Gordon Kent & Peter Sauder & Sharman DiVona & Paul Dini)
The Roon Games (cartoon: Ben Burtt & Gordon Kent & Peter Sauder)
Across the Roon Sea (cartoon: Ben Burtt & Sharman DiVona)
The Frozen Citadel (cartoon: Ben Burtt & Paul Dini)

MyComyc (comic series: Editorial Gepsa)
Droids (comic series: Editorial Gepsa)
The Stolen Ship (comic: Editorial Gepsa)
Sabotaged Droid (comic: Editorial Gepsa)
Troublesome Outing (comic: Editorial Gepsa)
The Secret Disk (comic: Editorial Gepsa)
The Cloud (comic: Editorial Gepsa)

Chewbacca [continued] (comic series: Darko Macan)*
Chewbacca, Part II [flashback] [continued] (comic: Darko Macan)*
Chapter 4: Mala Mala [flashback]*

*NOTE: This assumes that Mala Mala was around 40 years old or so when R2-D2 and C-3PO interview her about her encounter with Chewbacca. This would also make her in her mid-to-late teens during Vader’s Quest. Feel free to correct me. For now, take the placement as a best guess.

14 BBY
• Cray Mingla is born.*
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)*
  *NOTE: Thanks to “Logray the Physician Ewok” for the heads-up. I’d remembered her younger than Luke and assumed she was a year younger, when she was actually 26 in COTJ.
• Alec Lamere of the House Barnaba is born.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)
• Asha is born to Chirpa and Ra-Lee on the forest moon of Endor.*
  (conjecture based on comments by Leland Chee)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that Wicket is born 8 BBY (as based on Leland Chee’s comments), that Kneesaa is the same age as Wicket, and thus Asha being six years older than Kneesaa would be born here in 14 BBY.
• Terkuus is born on Plesstil.
  (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising Sourcebook)
• Aliea Tanner is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #6)
• Beidlo is born.
  (conjecture based on The Brain Spiders)
• Tendra Risan is born on Secorria.
  (conjecture based on Ambush at Corellia)
• Mistal (or whatever the original name of Duchess Mistal was) is born on Dargul.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Academy Sourcebook)
• A Jedi on the run in a G-9 Rigger visits Aleen. While there, he visits the old Jedi chapter house from the ExplorCorps that was bombarded from orbit after the Clone Wars. (Exact date of report: 21:4:08)
  (conjecture based on Force and Destiny Core Rulebook)
• Ancient Jedi maintenance droids at the Acablas Ruins on Auratera finally lose power a few years after Order 66.
  (conjecture based on Nexus of Power)
• Han Solo is quite friendly with a woman who later gives birth to Danielle Kieran. When Danielle later discovers pictures of Han and her mother together looking very friendly, she comes to believe that she is Han’s illegitimate daughter.*

(conjecture based on The Luminous Bantha)

*NOTE: This assumes a date of 4–5 ABY for The Luminous Bantha. I’m aware that this makes Han only 15 at this point, but The Luminous Bantha does not give much wiggle room on when we are dating back from.

- The first Ylesian colony, a spice slave camp, is founded by Teroenza.*
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)

*NOTE: One could also argue that this takes place 15 BBY instead of 14 BBY. I have placed it at 14 BBY because Teroenza says it was created nearly five years earlier, suggesting just under five years (i.e. four years) earlier for the construction date.

- Vin Northal graduates from the Imperial Academy and is placed under Crix Madine’s command.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)

- Porel Vakra joins the Zann Consortium.*
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)

*NOTE: He has been with them for “nearly fifteen years” as of Mask of the Pirate Queen, which is likely set shortly after ANH. I have rounded to 14 years.

- Loronar Corporation discontinues the E-9 Explorer-class light freighters due to dismal sales over the few years since its release. Instead, the ships are redesigned and re-released as a long-range, armored scouting vessel.*
  (conjecture based on Enter the Unknown)

*NOTE: According to Enter the Unknown, this happened “after a few years of dismal sales,” for this ship that was launched “at the end of the Clone Wars.”

- Ten years prior to Shandy Fanaso setting up Shandy’s Place on Triton Besh, the insectoids of the Domains of Triton attempt to make having intoxicants in one’s belly the same as possession of intoxicants. However, this causes trade and their tithes to start drying up, so the rules are soon changed.
  (conjecture based on Deader Than a Triton Moon)

- A few years after the Clone Wars, a Force-sensitive Sullustan agronomist in the employ of a Mid Rim foodstuffs company begins researching the dolina ring seeds of Dagobah. Upon discovering their Force-connection, the scientist and all of the research are taken into Imperial custody. Meanwhile, another dolina ring seed is found by the father of Syla Trasker, a farmer, among salvage from a Trandoshan junk dealer. It rests in his lab when Imperial Inquisitors sweep their region for Force-sensitive children. Syla’s father tries to claim she is offworld with her mother, but when a records check proves that her mother is dead, Syla’s father is killed. Drawn by her own Force-sensitivity to the ring, she slips it on, and it enhances her through the Living Force, giving her super-speed. She escapes into the night. Syla will eventually become a member of the Rebel Alliance and a Force adept, keeping the dolina ring seed on a chain around her neck.
  (conjecture based on Nexus of Power)

- After the death of Captain Twolz on Niian, Dannen Lifehold and Krell arrive on Alderaan and set up a small repair shop.*
  (conjecture based on Breaking Free)

*NOTE: This entry assumes that Dannen Lifehold and Krell worked together on Alderaan for 3 years. The actual Breaking Free biography of Dannen Lifehold says “a few years.”

- Luke Skywalker uses the Force for the first time (to help Beru Lars) and is greatly scolded by Owen Lars.
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)

- According to some of the various rumors about his past, Boba Fett leaves Mandalore and briefly enters Imperial stormtrooper training, but soon goes AWOL and, with his Mandalorian Supercommando armor, becomes a bounty hunter.*
  (conjecture based on The Last one Standing—“The Tale of Boba Fett,” Classic Star Wars: A Long Time Ago…—“The Search Begins” and The Hutt Gambit)

*NOTE: Like I’ve said in earlier Fett-based entries, these are merely rumors. The reason for this entry being at 14 BBY is a reference to him being a bounty hunter for 10 years as of The Hutt Gambit’s segment that takes place in 4 BBY.

- The Dushkan League is taken over by the Empire, who then use N’Zoth for shipyards and the Yevethans for slave labor.
In the decade after the Clone Wars, SoroSuub introduces the G2 repair droid.*

*NOTE: Since this is “in the decade after the Clone Wars,” I rounded this to five years after the end of the Clone Wars.

- Wes Ankichia is born.*
  (conjecture based on A World in Revolt)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that A World in Revolt takes place within the first year after ANH.
- Jerid Sykes, formerly a Republic officer and then an Imperial officer, grows so disgusted with having to put up with fellow officers who were appointed due to connections instead of merit that he lets his disdain show frequently. This results in a stunted career until he finally loses his post. He finds a new “home” working with the Zann Consortium.*
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)*
  *NOTE: We have no firm date on when this takes place, but it is after Sykes has worked for “years” under the Empire, not just the Republic.

13 BBY

- Tash Arranda is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on Eaten Alive)
- Jem Ysanna is born on Ossus.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire II)
- Durrei is born.
  (conjecture based on Relic)
- Zeth Durron is born on Deyer.
  (conjecture based on Dark Apprentice)
- Bron Dooku is born on to Adan Dooku and Maite Dooku.
  (conjecture based on Hard Targets)
- Gondara is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #10)
- Princess Kalieva K’ntarr is born to King Rilvvan K’ntarr and his wife on Rhydonni Prime.*
  (conjecture based on Easy Credits)*
  *NOTE: This assumes “late teens” can be rounded to 17-years-old in Easy Credits.
- Danielle “Dani” Kieran is born.
  (conjecture based on The Luminous Bantha)*
  *NOTE: This assumes a date of 4 – 5 ABY for The Luminous Bantha.
- Byss is opened to the public by Palpatine, where he begins to draw from the lifeforce of the inhabitants and visitors to sustain himself.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook)
- Leia Organa (age 6) attends the Time of Meeting on Ithor.
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)
- The Royal Imperial Shockball League is formed.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Kal Coorsa (age 12) loses his mother when she dies during Imperial bombardment of their village on Gall. Kal is taken in by his grandfather, Jans Coorsa, who is known to the Imperials he fights as the “Phantom of Gall,” though he now works from Xorm.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that while the “father killed by the Empire” issue has caused timeline inconsistencies, his age is still expected to be 12 in this situation.
- A local crime lord hires Mandalorians from Clan Awaad at Arumorut on Vlemoth Port to eliminate Thalassian slaver Nok’s operation on Tatooine. Nok nearly springs a trap on the Mandalorian forces, which included Avin Solus, but they are warned by a young slave (age 5) in time to save them. Nok is defeated, and the boy is adopted by Avin as “Kad Solus.” By the era shortly after the Battle of Yavin, Kad will be second-in-command of Clan Awaad at Vlemoth Port.*
  (conjecture based Friends Like These)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that Kad being “young” (a reference frequently made) in Friends Like These would make him about 18, just barely an adult.

- On Belazura, a group of rebels, including Clive Flax, Astri Oddo Flax (formerly Astri Oddo Divinian), and Trever Flume attack an Imperial factory, intending to destroy it from the inside. They are betrayed by someone in on the plot, and the Imperials are ready for them. Clive is killed by blasterfire, while Astri is killed by a grenade. Trever is captured and brought inside, and he is still inside when the Imperials, either out of spite or because they are about to build a garrison on the same spot, destroy their own factory. Young Lune Oddo Divinian, age 15, is considered too young to go on the raid, so he can only watch in horror as his family is destroyed. Lune will later become a bounty hunter and give up his rebel and Jedi ties, going by the nickname “Div.” The Empire will soon build the aforementioned garrison where the factory once stood.

  (conjecture based on Trapped)*

*NOTE: There is a contradiction in Trapped regarding this event. It is said to be when Lune is 15, but it is also said to be 10 years prior to Trapped. Given that Lune is born in or around 28 BBY, these two dates are internally inconsistent. I have chosen to go with his age reference and to consider the “10 years ago” references to be rounding. Otherwise, he would have been 18 and probably old enough to participate, rather than watching the deaths of his family on the mission.

- On Concord Dawn, Boba Fett (living as a Journeyman Protector under the alias “Jaster Mereel”) has been trying to live a “normal” life as a father to his daughter Ailyn Vel and a husband to his wife Sintas Vel. That peace is shattered when Sintas is raped by another Journeyman Protector named Lenovar Purton. She attempts to keep this from Boba, knowing he would want to kill Lenovar. He finds out anyway and kills Lenovar, despite him being a superior officer. At his trial, Boba refuses to reveal why he killed Lenovar. He is banished from Concord Dawn, forced to leave Sintas and Ailyn alone to care for each other. (To be continued below . . . )

  (The Last One Standing: The Tale of Boba Fett and conjecture based on Classic Star Wars: A Long Time Ago . . . “The Search Begins” and Boba Fett is Dead)*

*NOTE: This was part of The Last One Standing, which was part of the backstory of Boba Fett before AOTC, back when we thought that Boba Fett was Jaster Mereel. Later materials then made it seem that this was not Boba, but it was rather somehow a flashback to the real Jaster being banished from Concord Dawn to make room for Jango Fett’s father to become the Journeyman Protector . . . Now, thanks to Bloodlines and the rest of Legacy of the Force, we are told that this really was Boba, presumably using “Jaster Mereel” as an alias, and that this event is what caused him to leave Sintas and Ailyn (as also referenced in Boba Fett is Dead). This fits for the most part, and it gives us an easy way to pin it down because it has to come near the end of Boba’s three years with Sintas. However, there are supposedly “years” (plural) that pass between this event and the Free-For-All on Jubilar at 12 BBY. I suppose we can only assume that the “years” reference has been thrown out and the date is being set by circumstances instead.

- With his disgrace at his banishment too much to put on his family, Boba Fett leaves his wife Sintas Vel. Boba returns to bounty hunting, while Sintas raises their daughter, Ailyn Vel (now just under two years old), alone.

  (conjecture based on Bloodlines)

- Nova Stihl begins studying Teras Kasi.

  (conjecture based on Death Star)

- Around this time, fifty years before the facility is found after the fall of Coruscant, Emperor Palpatine orders Imperial Intelligence to take over the network of hidden monocellular organism vat air-scrubbers. This will allow him, if necessary, to literally suffocate the populace of Coruscant at a whim.

  (conjecture based on Rebel Stand)

- The Astrogation Plotter finds a following among smugglers and independent spacers, as a backup to their nav computers.

  (conjecture based on Platt’s Smuggler’s Guide via TimeTales, abridged)

- Nell Wenn, a 16-year-old Police Academy student on Deysum III, discovers corruption in the constabulary and tries to root it out. As a result, her boyfriend is killed, she is nearly killed, and she is essentially run off the planet. She goes into business as the bounty hunter “Mendegar.”

  (conjecture based on Tasariq: The Crystal Planet)

- While playing on the cliffs near Mount Usca on Garos IV, Dair Haslip is injured, but his friend Jos Mayda risks his own life to get Dair to safety.

  (conjecture based on Turning Point)
• The planet Tervissis, refusing to give up after five years of raids from Imperial ships, is finally invaded by the Empire.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
• Imperials come to Trulalis to find Adalric Brandl. When they do not find him, stormtroopers kill his abandoned wife, leaving their son, Jaalib alone.
  (conjecture based on Uhl Eharl Khoehng)
• Zevel Hortine dies, leaving his ship and reputation to Kaj Nedmak.
  (conjecture based on Crimson Bounty)
• Shea Hublin’s squadron is ambushed at Vale by rebel forces. HE loses a leg and half of his right arm, which prompts his wife, Eris Harro Hublin, to demand that he retire from the Imperial Starfighter Corps. He is given a new line command aboard the Imperial Star Destroyer Kabalian Cross, so he can still lead squadrons (only now from a capital ship). He earns the nickname “The Rebel Destroyer,” but finds that he is falling out of favor with the military elite due to his urging that the TIE fighter be replaced by a new starfighter with a shield and hyperdrive. He does not care much that he is falling out of favor, however, as he has made a good home for himself with his wife, Eris Harro Hublin, on Eriadu. He is content to remain in the service of his local Seswenna sector.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

The Tales of Boba Fett (TOTBH/TFJP short stories: Daniel Keys Moran & J. D. Montgomery)
The Last One Standing: The Tale of Boba Fett (TOTBH short story: Daniel Keys Moran)
“Concord Dawn” Section

12 BBY
• Zak Arranda is born on Alderaan.
  (conjecture based on Eaten Alive)
• Leonia Tavira is born.
  (conjecture based on I, Jedi)
• Niosa Bliana is born.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• Faarl the Conqueror is born on Korlings.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken)
• Malindan Gevarak is born.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
• Teneniel Djo is born on Dathomir.
  (conjecture based on The Courtship of Princess Leia)
• Terek Rogriss is born.
  (conjecture based on Starfighters of Adumar)
• Icomia Hamnet, daughter of crime boss Hamnet, is born.
  (conjecture based on Ananuru Express)
• Tereb Ab’Lon begins his career in politics.
  (conjecture based on Droid Trouble)
• Mako Spince enters the Caridian Academy.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
• Zenn Bien begins stealing starships.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
• Matt Turhaya and Anii Degarienne are married. Shortly thereafter, Anii’s parents move to Janara III, while Matt and Anii move to Carida so that Matt can enter the Academy.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb’s website)
• When Imperials put down an uprising in V’eldalv on Ryvella, Sienn Sconn’s parents are killed. He is taken in by his uncle, Cryle Cavv, and taught the thieving trade.
  (conjecture based on One of a Kind)
• Around this time, Nova Stihl enlists in the Imperial military, becoming a security guard.
  (conjecture based on Death Star)
• Upon setting down in Gallisport, Quayce jumps ship and joins the Rabid Mynocks.*
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*
*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH and that “a few years” can be assumed to be 5.
• Vin Nothal is given his own command in the Imperial forces.
  (conjecture based on Cracken's Rebel Operatives)
• Amaiza and Jodelle Foxtrain are preyed upon by Quatrain Pudundruh, who says he will manage their dancing/tumbling act.*
  (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)*
*NOTE: This assumes Amaiza is 30 at the time of the defeat of the Cloud Riders on Aduba-3.
• Labria will come into possession of a bottle of Dorian Quill that is bottled this year.
  (conjecture based on Empire Blues: The Devaronian’s Tale)
• Han Solo is named Junior Speeder Champion of Corellia.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
• Luke Skywalker (age 7), sneaks out of his room to see a meteor shower, only to nearly be killed by Owen Lars, who thinks he might be a trespasser. After an argument with Beru about Luke’s unique situation and safety, Owen relents and decides to teach Luke how to use a blaster rifle to protect himself when Owen himself can’t do so. (To be continued below . . . )
  (A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)
• Parlay Thorp, having graduated from medical school and completed her internships, must serve three years bringing her skills to distant worlds as part of the requirements of the university she attended. She quickly realizes that this is her calling, rather than working in a medcenter somewhere. She founds Remote Sector Medical, planning to bring help to many different worlds. As her time doing this for the university requirement ends, she will come into possession of the Millennium Falcon.*
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)*
*NOTE: I have assumed that she did not get the Millennium Falcon until the end of her three years of compulsory service. If, however, we assume that she had the ship during part of that service, then this event may take place any time 12 – 9 BBY, since she gets the ship in 9 BBY.
• Greeata Jendowanian and Sy Snootles join Evar Orbus and His Galactic Wailers, after being discovered at the Green Planet nightclub on Tothis. Sy will not join, as Evar wants her to, unless Greeata goes too, so they are both allowed to join, although Greeata will remain a “guest dancer” for fifteen years, until Max Rebo (AKA Siiruulian Phantele) gains control of the band.
  (conjecture based on Who’s Who in the Max Rebo Band)
• Jimm Doshun’s parents are killed in a high-hound attack. The villagers of Onacra take to collectively raise him, but his main caretaker will be the reprogrammed tractor droid FE-9Q.
  (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)
• Han Solo is caught cheating at cards on Jubilar and is forced to participate in Regional Sector Number Four's All-Human Free-for-All. Solo barely wins. A cocky Han then tries to strike Shrike, whose return strike wrecks Solo’s mouth so badly that Delwanna must feed him mush for a week.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
• Boba Fett goes to Jubilar to kill Hallolar Voors and sees Solo’s fight. (To be continued below . . . )
  (The Last One Standing: The Tale of Boba Fett)
• When the clone masters of Kamino create a legion of clonetroopers loyal to Kamino to be used against the Imperial forces on the planet, Darth Vader sends the Imperial 501st Legion, under the temporary command of bounty hunter Boba Fett, to quell the Clone Rebellion (also known as the Kaminoan Insurrection). They succeed, crushing the Kaminoan resistance. During the raid, they manage to steal clone DNA to check against current research, along with killing Kaminoan cloners. As a result of this battle (and the fact that it is difficult to make a clone of a clone, hence Darth Vader already seeking out new clone template candidates), the Empire decides to further pursue other clone templates for its army, rather than just Jango Fett. The 501st, however, remains “pure.” (To be continued below . . . )
  (Battlefront II)
• Crab droids are deployed to Jabiim to fight for the Separatists.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)
• As Kaminoan clones are phased out of the Imperial military and the Imperial Special Training Corps takes over the oversight of stormtrooper training, Kamino Engineering observation ships from Kamino are no longer needed by the Imperial military. Instead, they become heavily favored vessels for universities and such, thanks to their extensive sensor and other observation capabilities.
  (conjecture based on Disciples of Harmony)
• Kaine Paulsen begins smuggling for Abdi-Badawzi, taking his son, Drake, on his runs.
  (conjecture based on Out of the Cradle)
• Hella Brun becomes bodyguard to Bequesh.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: Shintel Downtime)
• Kentor Sarne, while on a mission in the Kathol Sector with his fellow Imperials, finds himself and his comrades hurtling through the Kathol Rift. Somehow surviving, they discover the planet Kathol, where they meet the DarkStryder creature. Sarne speaks with the being and strikes a bargain to receive mysterious DarkStryder technology in return for one day returning with hyperspace technology for DarkStryder. Sarne then kills his fellow crewmen who found Kathol and returns to the Empire, awaiting the day when he will make his way back to Kathol.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: Endgame)
• A second Ylesian colony is created.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
• Late in this year (i.e. over a year before the theft of the Second Chance AKA Millennium Falcon from Nilash III), Luufkin recruits Quip Fargil into a rebel faction.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
• After six years in survival school, Xenon Nnaksta returns to his duties directing the Greel Wood Logging Corporation.*
  (conjecture based on The Greel Wood Haven)*
*NOTE: The Greel Wood Haven uses the term pro-Alliance several times to speak of anti-Empire groups, but it is clear by the suggested timing of these events that it is not the Rebel Alliance at this point, but simply anti-Empire rebels.

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 2
The Tales of Boba Fett [continued] (TOTBH/TFJP short stories: Daniel Keys Moran & J. D.
  Montgomery)
The Last One Standing: The Tale of Boba Fett [continued] (TOTBH short story: Daniel Keys Moran)
  "Jubilar, Part I" Section
Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Battlefront II [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  Rise of the Empire Campaign [continued]
  Rise of the Empire [continued]
  Kamino
  Changing of the Guard

11 BBY
• Falynn Sandskimmer is born on Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on Wraith Squadron)
• Fia, daughter of Spang, is born.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: Shintel Downtime)
• Zakarisz Ghent is born on Baroli.
  (conjecture based on Thrawn Trilogy Sourcebook)
• Dev Sibwarra is born on Chandrila.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura)
• Stuart is born to Trux Zissu.
• Tahi Panagakos is born.
  (conjecture based on The Black Sands of Socorro via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Alex Turhaya, who will come to be renamed “Alex Winger” when adopted, is born to Matt and Anii Turhaya on Carida.
  (conjecture based on Turning Point, Rendezvous with Destiny and Charlene Newcomb’s website)
• Iona Wince is born.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
• West and Nieka Haslip, parents of Dair Haslip, die in an accident.
  (conjecture based on Turning Point)
• Revah joins the Veiled Sorority. She will eventually become a decoy for Noira, the third of the queens of the Sorority. *
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)

*NOTE: She has been with the Sorority for “over a decade” as of Mask of the Pirate Queen, which is likely set shortly after ANH. I have rounded that to 11 years.*
• Jahan Cross enters the Imperial Academy (one year ahead of Han Solo’s entrance).
  (conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)
• Dannen Lifehold, needing funds to purchase his own ship, goes to Linkaas, a loanshark, for the credits. He purchases the Lifeline, but is indebted to Linkaas for the next ten years.
  (conjecture based on Breaking Free)
• Sianna Sekko, a Force-sensitive woman in the Empress Teta system, is shocked when her parents are killed. She is told that a rogue Jedi killed her parents. She inherits her family’s estate and is under the guardianship of her uncle. Her uncle reveals himself to secretly be part of a Dark Side cult that traces its roots back to the Qel-Droma Epics. Sianna is recruited into the cult and is trained in using Force illusions and other abilities. She is sent on various missions to acquire dark relics in the galaxy, all under the orders of her handler, the “Tailor.” Unbeknownst to her, it was the Tailor who murdered Sianna’s parents in order to push the Force-sensitive girl into the cult.
  (conjecture based on Witch’s Wrath)

*NOTE: This is “over a decade” before the present of Nexus of Power.
• Mitth’raw’nuruodo (Thrawn) brings some of his own Chiss people (Cyndic Mitth’raw’nuruodo’s Household Phalanx division of the Chiss Expansionary Defense Fleet) to Niruan and has them keep his fortress, the Hand of Thrawn, ready for a day when those resources will be needed. He will come to include many of his loyal Imperial officers in this mission in the years to come.
  (conjecture based on Vision of the Future and The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Chiss)
• Klorr Vilia and Zorneth create savorium, a euphoric drug. Those who take the drug are known as “smilers,” and soon become used as slave labor due to how excessively accommodating they become. An assistant to the two botanists manages to steal some savorium and place in on the black market, precipitating a horde of new “smilers” appearing nearly overnight.
  (conjecture based on Season of Revolt)
• Data Equity Management, Incorporated (DEMi) is founded.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, abridged)
• Executions of Enemies of the Empire are held in private for the last time until after the Battle of Yavin. They will henceforth be public during New Year Fete Week.
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5)
• The Empire comes to Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on Secrets of Tatooine)
• When Quatrain Pudundruh ends up needing extra money to save his own ass, he sells Amaiza and Jodelle Foxtrain into slavery to the Black Hole pirate gang. A short time thereafter, Jodelle is killed in a raid. *
  (conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)
*NOTE: This assumes Amaiza is 30 at the time of the defeat of the Cloud Riders on Aduba-3.

- Bria Tharen joins the Ylesian colony.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- A third Ylesian colony is created.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- Platt Okeefe runs away from home.
  (conjecture based on Platt’s Starport Guide)
- Soontir Fel stops a group of teenagers from assaulting a family friend. In order to avoid a long and messy trial, the agro-combine’s director hushes up the incident and makes sure Fel receives a Senatorial appointment to the Imperial Naval Academy on Carida. (This would, of course, make him unavailable as a witness.) He has no choice but to take the deal, as not doing so could have his father in trouble for allowing his underage sons to use combine equipment.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- The Qom Jha on Niruan discover deadly tentacle-like creatures in deep caves on the planet.
  (conjecture based on Vision of the Future)
- Mrrov comes to Ylesia, eventually joining the second Ylesian colony before her intended mate, Muuurgh, can arrive.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- Ord Antalaha starts being used as a stopover for smugglers and pirates.
  (conjecture based on Pirates and Privateers via TimeTales, abridged)
- The Galactic Empire makes contact with the Amanin of Maridun. Shortly after his stay, the Empire leaves Maridun, but the slave trade is taken up by Jabba the Hutt.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- Searching for his intended mate, Mrrov, Muuurgh comes to Ylesia, where he stays on as a guard for Teroenza when he doesn’t find his mate, and lacks the funds to continue his search.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- Vin Northal joins the Emperor’s Royal Guard.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Samire Mandel, daughter of Fabritech CEO Kvarn Mandel, vanishes without a trace.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 7: Mos Eisley)
- Han Solo and Dengar participate in a swoop race. Han wins but Dengar is gravely wounded. The Empire will offer to make him into a cybernetic assassin to save his life.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare and Payback: The Tale of Dengar)
- Six months before the mission to steal the Second Chance (Millennium Falcon) from Nilash III, rebel agents Quip Fargil and Luuftin begin planning to do so. With an agent at the facility, they begin prepping the ship and fueling it bit by bit for an escape to Sriluur.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)
- Han Solo is named Junior Speeder Champion of Corellia for the second year in a row. He also becomes champion for the entire Corellian system.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- For one reason or another, Han Solo angers Garris Shrike and endures a punishment session, after which he cannot walk for two days.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)
- Roy Harlison is conscripted into the Imperial army. On his first duty, he removes the speed governor from his commanding officer’s swoop, causing the captain’s death. He is court-martialed and discharged. He returns to Gallisport*
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH, that Roy and Quayce can be assumed as the same age, and that he was conscripted at 18.

- At age 8, Leia Organa (and her friend Winter), are banned from a reception for putting a wooly moth in the Minister of Agriculture’s drawer, thus destroying a budget document. They are caught sneaking down to watch the proceedings when noticed by Fess Ilee (Ferus Olin), whom Leia can’t stand. She is later sent to bed, but she sneaks out anyway, only to nearly be attacked by three men before getting herself lost. She is saved by the arrival of Fess, who she believes will keep her safe, even if she cannot stand how he acts so subservient to everyone. (To be continued below . . . )

(Hostage)

Rebel Force (youth novel series: Alex Wheeler)

Hostage [flashback] (youth novel: Alex Wheeler)
Chapter 8 [flashback]
Chapter 10 [flashback]
Chapter 12 [flashback]
Chapter 13 [flashback]
Chapter 20 [flashback]

10 BBY

• Gavin Darklighter is born on Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Squadron)

• Balass ke Teldan is born, heir to the Adumarian nation of Cartann, to Pekaelic ke Teldan. He is placed in the care of a foster family for his safety, and is known for the next 22 years as Balass ke Rassa.
  (conjecture based on Starfighters of Adumar)

• Syal Antilles takes on the name “Wynssa Starflare” and leaves home to pursue a career in acting.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: X-wing Rogue Squadron—“The Rise of Isard: Masquerade”)

• In the era after the Clone Wars, exiled Mandalorian warriors following their ancient traditions and the ways taught by the True Mandalorians of Jaster Mereel and Jango Fett rise up under the leadership of clone Alpha-02 (AKA Spar) and retake the planet Mandalore from the pacifist New Mandalorians that had been dominant in their culture for over seven centuries. Spar becomes known as Mandalore the Resurrector*
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)*

*NOTE: We have no idea when this takes place, other than that it is after the Clone Wars and prior to when we start to see the warrior Mandalorians again in the Imperial era. Given that Hityamun “Hitch” Kris was a New Mandalorian before becoming a Black Sun Vigo and had a bounty put on his head by the New Mandalorians when he did so, we must assume that the New Mandalorians still exist pretty close to ANH due to the timing of Shadow Games. Since we don’t know how long before Shadow Games Hitch was made a Vigo, I’m putting this event here to have an approximate date for it, though it could be a bit later or even a bit earlier.

• The Anxarta-class freighter goes out of production.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, abridged)

• Daric LaRone is recruited into the Imperial military on Copperline.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)

• Around this time, Hella Thimram becomes the CEO of ChandriTech on Chandrila.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)

• Around this time (or earlier), Taska Mastigar becomes a “freelance agent provocateur.” *
  (conjecture based on The Geharr Incident)*

*NOTE: She has been doing so for “at least a decade” prior to The Geharr Incident in the Strongholds of Resistance sourcebook.

• Dana Dregond, master painter, is named one of Kamoris’ “living treasures.”
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5)

• Pelav Jular, an Imperial Army Major, leaves the military and joins the Neolsse family’s local militia. Jula served as a General in the Keremark armed forces, and was in command of the defense of Fortress Keremark during the height of the Galactic Civil War.
  (conjecture based on Heroes and Rogues via TimeTales, verbatim)

• The Moldy Crow, a Corellian Engineering Corporation HWK-290, is constructed. Its product line goes back decades, however.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire and Far Horizons)

• The planet Ranklinge enters a civil war that will still be raging ten years from now.
- Around this time, Bidor Ferrouz is considered an up-and-coming young politician, one of the best to come from Coruscant over the next decade.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- Glitterstim dealer Crovendif begins working for Black Sun sector chief Avrak Villachor on Wukkar. He begins as a simple seller.
  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)
- Six years before meeting Shandy Fanaso, bartender Saman of the cantina on Triton Besh begins a long period of sobriety.
  (conjecture based on Deader Than a Triton Moon)
- Kasso Trelek, a freelance demolitions expert, begins working with various mercenary groups.
  (conjecture based on Dangerous Covenants)
- Around this time (or a bit earlier), Leia Organa loses touch with her childhood friend Seren Song.*
  (conjecture based on A Shattered Hope)*
  *NOTE: They were out of touch for “at least a decade.”
- Around this time, the Empire invades Dressel, which is in a pre-industrial state due to lack of interference from the Bothans who made contact with the planet 190 years earlier. As a result, resistance takes on a more primitive edge, as Dresselians take to the steepara forests and their selldu mounts. The former governor of Sreeharlo, Orrimaarko becomes the leader of a resistance against the Empire on Dressel, taking the title of “general.” General Neeralli commands his cavalry, the Selldu Rangers, while Orrimaarko’s other general is Panno.*
  (conjecture based on A Shattered Hope)*
  *NOTE: This assumes Age of Rebellion is set in the period right after ANH.
- Information broker Liddy Ravora, who works as a waitress at the veteran spacers’ hangout known as Bell’s Cantina on Gus Treta Inner System Market Station in the Corellian System, uses the small fortune she has made by trading secrets to purchase the cantina from her boss.*
  (conjecture based on Sons of Fortune)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that Sons of Fortune uses the year of ANH as its “present.”
- The Rodian Sinoca “Sin” Meeku travels to Coruscant, seeking to make her fortune in the property market. When a seemingly benign deal turns out to involve the Pyke Syndicate, they are able to show her that she could make more profit by betraying her original client by undercutting them deeply. She begins a career of working outside the system.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of a Black Sun)
- In what will come to be known as the Chadrian Disaster, a massive earthquake leads to huge tsunamis that cover land that had been drained of water in much earlier quakes. The result is that 90% of the planet’s population dies, leaving only 20,000,000 Chadra-Fan on their homeworld.*
  (conjecture based on Stay on Target)*
  *NOTE: Information on this event was first provided by Luke Van Horn, using Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope. Stay on Target has added to these details.
- Members of the Zygerrian Slavers Guild set up Sclavos outpost on Kowak and begin to capture Talz from nearby Vlemoth Port as slaves. The outpost is run by an heir to the Zygerrian throne. (Reports vary on whether that heir is Hordem Molec or Sono Molec at this point. It is possible that Sono initially establishes the Zygerrian presence there, but Hordem is assigned to actually lead it for now.) Members of the Talz Gnaaz tribe make an arrangement with the Mandalorians of Clan Awaad, their neighbors, for protection. In return, the Talz will participate in celebrations twice a year with Clan Awaad, during which the Mandalorians will get a chance to participate in challenges with the Talz, which gives them a chance to hone their skills against opponents similar to Wookiees.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*
  *NOTE: I say that reports vary on whether Hordem or Sono is in charge at the base’s inception because this is one of the internal inconsistencies of this RPG adventure. Sometimes it claims that Sono was in charge for a decade. Other times, it claims he was in charge only after his brother died. It is also possible that this event is separate from when the Zygerrians first establish a presence on Kowak (though that is doubtful), since the book refers to that happening “after the Clone Wars” but then, on the very same page, says it has been a satellite headquarters and such “for the last decade.”

- When Gholondreine scholars publish scathing critiques of Palpatine’s rule, the Imperials drain the planet’s green seas and seed the land with Ithorian crawlers that poison the land and leave it arid. Scholars who survive are left to rely on the kindness of fellow scholars. This event becomes known as the Gholondreine Desiccation.
  (conjecture based on Enter the Unknown)

- The Weequay-Houk War begins, pitting the native Weequay of Sriluur against the Houk who colonized part of the world just under two centuries ago. It will be during this conflict that the Houk use toxic chemicals to poison the soil of the Cupric Islands. Once this happens, the Empire sets up an aquatic garrison nearby and maintains martial law on the islands. Food there is strictly rationed, but as time goes by, and Imperial efforts to fix the soil seem to drag on, rumors will begin to speculate that the Empire will have fixed the soil but maintained material law and rationing to keep the population in check.
  (conjecture based on Dangerous Covenants and Lords of Nal Hutta)

- Around this time, seven individuals are brainwashed and tortured by Imperial officer Rezi Soresh until they do not remember who they really are. They are now empty slates for Rezi to use as assassins. Their final test is to fight each other, to determine which of the seven (numbered X-1 through X-7) will be the one to actually live and serve Rezi Soresh. The survivor is X-7, who will serve Rezi Soresh for the next ten years. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Target)

*NOTE: X-7 has always known Rezi Soresh as “the Commander,” but Rezi does not become a true “Commander” in rank until 2 BBY. This works fine in Target, but he then refers to having served Rezi Soresh for about 10 years in Hostage. Presumably, Rezi either used “the Commander” as a name to describe himself when dealing with the assassin training plan, or X-7 simply has altered his rank in his mind to “the Commander” as a way of referring to him as the nameless man who shaped him.

- Starship thief Zenn Bien is hired by Quip Fargil to steal the Second Chance from the Imperial impound at Nilash III. They steal it and repair the ship (renaming it the Gone to Pieces), but they are stopped by an early prototype of an Interdictor vessel. As it turns out, Quip and his ally Luufkin are secretly working for anti-Imperial rebel factions. They have set up this encounter to sabotage the prototype Interdictor. In the wake of this encounter, Zenn does not join the rebel cause. Instead, she joins a freelance scavenger team. As for Quip, he continues to pilot the ship, which he renames the Millennium Falcon, fast as a bat-falcon and resilient enough to last a millennium. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Millennium Falcon)

- Leia Organa (age 9) is on Bilbringi. This is her only trip to the planet during the Imperial years.
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

- Smugglers stumble upon Ruusan and create Fort Nowhere near the ancient ruins of Olmondo. It will serve as a haven for Rebel refugees in the future.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

- The Moldy Crow comes to be used by the smuggler Roark Garnet, but when Roark inherits the Dorian Discus from his sister Neena, he uses the Crow to help pay off a debt to Grappa the Hutt. The Crow will eventually be stolen from Grappa by Dace Bonearm and IG-72, then end up dumped on Teth during a mission to capture Winfred Dagore. It will eventually enter the hands of Lt. Palov Godalhi, who will give it to the Rebel Alliance vessel New Hope. It is while on the New Hope that it will be requisitioned by its final owner, Kyle Katarn.
  (conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part II: Unsung Heroes of the Light)

- The Neuvalis Bounty Hunters Guild is formed. It would become one of the most prominent guilds, which was due mainly to the family fortunes of the Guild’s founders, Marjan and Feras Neuvalis.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 10: Bounty Hunters via TimeTales, verbatim)

- Rendili StarDrive gets its last major military contract.
  (The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

- The Republic base on Borleias is finally placed under Imperial control.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Squadron)
In order to keep aging clonetroopers in service, the Empire authorizes the secret project known as Dark Trooper Phase Zero (a precursor to the actual Dark Trooper Project around the time of the Battle of Yavin), in which young Imperial officer Rohm Mohc grafts cybernetic parts onto the clones to make them cybernetic stormtroopers. However, many of these troopers commit suicide, rather than living as what they had fought in the Clone Wars – droids.*

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)*

*NOTE: This is found in The Force Unleashed Campaign Guide and given more detail in the EGtW, but neither gives a definitive date for when this happens, though it must be after the Z-X3 work and the “real” Dark Trooper Project.

- Trachta begins work on a specially bred and trained group of stormtroopers. Ostensibly, these troopers are for the Emperor, but in reality, Trachta intends to someday use them to bring down the Emperor and his “Sith theocracy.”
  (conjecture based on Betrayal)

- Cyborg Archa Sabis uploads a virus into the droid population of Coruscant, inciting the short-lived Second Great Droid Revolution. This is usually thought of as a cyborg plot against the Empire, rather than a droid plot. As a result, cyborgs come under greater suspicion and scrutiny in the Empire.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- Wilhuff Tarkin gets married to a member of the Motti lineage on Phelarion, giving him ties to that powerful family, but the marriage is one of convenience only.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters, Jedi Search, and Jedi Academy Sourcebook)

- Bynder Zebb becomes a corporate scout for TaggeCo.
  (conjecture based on Special Edition Sourcebook)

- Shimmersilk capes go out of fashion.
  (conjecture based on The Great Herdship Heist)

- When Dawson is selected to have to work for the governing body on Tynna, the young Tynnan escapes from his homeworld.
  (conjecture based on The Great Herdship Heist)

- Rooty the Gragmaloid comes to Nar Shaddaa.
  (conjecture based on Unusual Suspects)

- Bail Organa points out Gilad Pellaeon to Leia at the Grand Alderaan Gathering.
  (conjecture based on Vision of the Future)

- The Lotran force behind the Reslian Purge is finally stopped by the Imperial Navy.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 12: Aliens–“Enemies and Allies”)

- The members of Sonic Free, musicians speaking against the Emperor, are arrested. Only their lead performer, Skawn Bonduna, escapes.
  (conjecture based on Bounties to Die For)

- The Empire builds a swoop racing arena on Travnin to lift morale of workers. The arena collapses during the opening ceremonies due to shoddy construction.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 6: Tramp Freighters)

- Han Solo is named Junior Speeder Champion of Corellia for the third year in a row.
  (conjecture based on The Paradise Snare)

- The Pa’lowick species is discovered by miners looking for Lowickan firegems in the Lowick asteroid belt. Pa’lowickan vocal talents soon become the stuff of legend as some Pa’lowick begin to adopt Basic and its alphabet to spread Lowickese.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- Han Solo manages to escape from Shrike’s ship, the Trader’s Luck, but Delwanna is killed in the process. He manages to stow away on Ylesian Dream, a drone ship and make his way to Ylesia, a place noted for two things–recreation and a spice-mining operation run by Teroenza (a t’landa Til) and Zavval the Hutt, under the command of Aruk the Hutt. He uses the alias of Vykk Draygo to land a piloting job for Teroenza, figuring he can escape if he ever grows weary of the place (which is increasingly possible given the erratic weather he will be flying in and the telepathic “good vibes” addiction that the t’landa Til are using to keep “devotees” working), but he is assigned a Togorian “bodyguard” named Muuurgh, who is ready to stop him from escaping. Han ends up meeting Bria Tharen, a pilgrim who works in the spice factory. Bria at first blows him off, but his Corellian charm begins to sway her. Soon, Han makes a run of spice for Teroenza and ends up being attacked. He makes a hasty escape to a nearby planet, Alderaan. While on Alderaan, Han meets Bornan Thul and Aryn Dro. After unsuccessfully trying to sell the spice load and cover it up by saying it was stolen, Han returns with Muuurgh and the spice to a highly grateful Teroenza. Teroenza allows him to have his blaster back, and heaps praise on him. After speaking with Jalus Nebl, the other pilot for the operation, Han realizes that he has to get Bria (who has yet to tell him her name) off the planet. It seems that a year after arrival, most pilgrims are sold as slaves. He soon meets with Teroenza. During the meeting, he meets Zavval the Hutt, who confirms that it looks like the attack on Han’s ship was made by forces loyal to Jiliac and Jabba the Hutts. He suggests that they might like for Pilgrim 921 (Bria) to take care of Teroenza’s disorderly antique collection, given that she was studying the subject before becoming a pilgrim. He also learns that the Exaltation is actually a telepathic variation on t’landa Ti mating facets. He meets Bria again, finally learning her name. He also manages to record the entire conversation, which should be enough to prove to Bria that she is being duped. After a few months, Han finally plays the recording for Bria. She decides to join Han in escaping from Ylesia. Their plan is to steal some of the small, rare antiques and escape aboard a stolen ship. Muuurgh hears this and is about to kill Han when Han reveals that Bria believes she has seen Mrrrov, Muuurgh’s intended mate, at another colony. That means Teroenza has been lying to him, which makes his vow of honor to serve Teroenza void. They plot to not only escape, but free Mrrrov and escape with her as well. The quartet manages to escape from Ylesia just hours before Mrrrov is to be sent off the planet, at high cost to the Ylesian operation—Zavval is killed by a falling ceiling, part of Teroenza’s art collection is stolen, and the factory that processes the glitterstim is destroyed (which one could say is the highest costing diversion in Han’s life thus far). After a stop at Togoria for Muuurgh and Mrrrov’s marriage, Han and Bria head for Corellia to take Bria, now in Exaltation withdrawal, to her family. Bria’s family is less than approving of Solo, now Bria’s significant other. Her mother is generally disapproving. Her brother tries to call CorSec. It is only her father, Renn, who stays their hand. Things get even worse when Bria’s old fiancé recognizes Han as the winner of the swoop races years earlier, under an alias. After stashing one of the items taken from Teroenza, Han and Bria then head to Coruscant to prepare for Han’s entry into the Imperial Academy. Once there, however, Bria’s drug problems and love for Han eat at her inside until she finally leaves him, leaving behind a sizable amount of money from her father to help him in the future. A despondent Han is then accepted to the Academy, though it no longer holds the prominence in his mind that it did with Bria by his side. Soon before he can begin classes at the academy, Shrike catches up with him and attempts to collect the bounty on him that the Hutts have offered in response to the Ylesian fiasco. Shrike is murdered by another bounty hunter who wishes to take Han in, and Han must subsequently kill the new bounty hunter to escape. He blasts the hunter’s face to remove his retinal patterns and puts his old fake ID cards on the body. Now, with his own retinas altered earlier, Han Solo is an upstanding Imperial citizen with no aliases. Han is able to begin his classes, proceeding to gain the rank of Cadet in the Imperial Navy. As our story closes, Han steps aboard the Imperator, bound for Carida, and his future . . .

(The Paradise Snare)

- On Coruscant, Jedi Master Darrin Arkanian and his young friend, Corwin Shelvay, are attempting to find Captain Rashh and, to put it bluntly, get the hell outta Dodge. They are stopped by Imperial High Inquisitor Tremayne. Darrin and Tremayne duel, but Corwin is caught by Tremayne’s Imperial stooges. Tremayne tells Darrin to lower his lightsaber or watch Corwin die. Darrin does as he is asked, only to be murdered by Tremayne while his guard is dropped. Corwin, Darrin’s Padawan it seems, takes Darrin’s weapon and cuts off one of Tremayne’s arms and cuts Tremayne’s face before escaping. Tremayne is taken to bacta treatment and receives a prosthetic arm and facial apparatus. His Master, Darth Vader, is pleased that Darrin was destroyed, but is angered at Tremayne’s failure to take down Corwin as well. Tremayne vows not to fail Vader again.

(Dark Vendetta)
Rebel Force [continued] (youth novel series: Alex Wheeler)
Target (youth novel: Alex Wheeler)
  Chapter 4 [flashback]
Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Chapter 23 [flashback]
The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
The Paradise Snare [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  Trader's Luck
  Ylesian Dreams [continued]
  Crash Landing
  Muuurgh
  Spice Wars
  Alderaan and Back Again
  Bria
  Revelations
  Lost and Found
  Farewell to Paradise?
  Escape Velocity
  Togoria
  Return to Corellia
  Down and Out on Coruscant
  Out of the Fire
  Rebirth
Dark Vendetta [continued] (SWGM8 short story: Eric Trautmann)
Dark Vendetta [continued] (SWGM8 short story: Eric Trautmann)

9 BBY
- The fifth recorded "Death Wave" ravages the planet Chad.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races)
- Luke Skywalker gets a case of dust fever.
- Lando Calrissian gambles with Quaffug the Hutt and wins the Hutt’s ceramowerx complex from him.
  (conjecture based on The Bounty Hunters: Scoundrel’s Wages)
- Kibbick the Hutt is assigned to Ylesia to replace the dead Zavval.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
- The Empire begins augmenting its stormtrooper forces with recruits, rather than relying mostly on clones.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- While visiting Anii Turhaya’s parents on Alderaan, Matt Turhaya is told by Anii’s mother to open his eyes so that the truth about the Empire will be revealed to him.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb’s website)
- Ob Khaddar of Alderaan creates a botanic “portrait” of Palpatine for his state visit, but makes sure that on the day Palpatine views it, it will blossom with another set of plants which will show the portrait’s Palpatine to be withering and decaying.
  (conjecture based on The Illustrated Star Wars Universe: Alderaan Entry)
- Eisen Kerioth is the only survivor when an entire stormtrooper escort is shot to pieces around him. From then on, Kerioth must walk with a swagger stick.
  (conjecture based on Tinian on Trial)
- Former Separatist pilot Nas Ghent emerges on the galactic scene again as a glitteryll spice smuggler.
  (conjecture based on Walking the Path That’s Given)
- The Cirra Mace is stolen by a Seela. The thief is caught before escaping from the Aramand
  Cluster, but by then, the Mace has been sold.
*Emperor Palpatine creates Imperial Sentinels on Byss using Sith alchemy.

(conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook via TimeTales, paraphrased)

Around this time, Marv Moray becomes chief at the Oridelve Incorporated oridium mining operation on Gavos that is owned by Thakba Besadii Diori.

(conjecture based on Debts to Pay)

NOTE: This is 10 years before Debts to Pay and assumes that Debts to Pay is about a year or so after ANH.

When the current owner of the Jewel of Yavin (a huge corusca gem that is considered unstealable) is convicted of sedition against the Empire, the Jewel is bequeathed by the Imperial Senate to Imperial bureaucrat Marus Grayson. This same year, a business enterprise run by Grayson fails. This leaves him in a position to have to declare bankruptcy and would leave him with a huge debt to a subsidiary branch of the Bank of the Core that is run by Arend Shen. Rather than facing bankruptcy or debt, he arranges to have the bank branch charged with treason on trumped up charges. The bank’s assets are frozen by COMPNOR, effectively ruining the Shen family.

(conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)

NOTE: This is 10 years before The Jewel of Yavin and assumes that The Jewel of Yavin is about a year or so after ANH.

Baron Administrator Dominic Raynor of Cloud City on Bespin convinces major casino owners that they could raise their profits by having some form of public-friendly, first-class sporting event. They set up the Cloud City Grand Prix, a cloud car race. For its first three years, it will not make a profit.

(conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)

NOTE: This is 10 years before The Jewel of Yavin and assumes that The Jewel of Yavin is about a year or so after ANH.

Quip Fargil, working for rebel elements against the Empire, is sent on a mission to Bilbringi. He is to use a baradium fission bomb to strike the Imperial shipyards there, but he is too fond of his ship, the Millennium Falcon, to allow it to be destroyed. He ditches the bomb and goes into hiding, refusing to complete the mission. (The rebels try again with conventional explosives and another ship, but two die in the failed attempt.) He heads for Vaced, where he lives under the name Vec Minim and eventually, burdened by guilt, gives the Millennium Falcon to adventurous Dr. Parlay Thorp of Remote Sector Medical, who is on Vaced on a medical mercy mission. Parlay purchases a pair of aging medical assistant droids and outfits the ship with diagnostic devices.

(conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

NOTE: Zenn Bien says that this mission to Bilbringi took place 9 ABY. It is actually 9 BBY (a typo).

Parlay Thorp of Remote Sector Medical finds herself at Hijado, which is under Imperial attack. Having heard of recent attacks on shipyards at Bilbringi and elsewhere, she thinks that the planet has a rebel base that is being attacked. She arrives and saves many natives, all of whom seem very long lived. She agrees to help them fly over the Imperial base on the planet in return for being allowed to stay and learn the secret of their longevity and their ability to recognize when someone is nearing the time of their death (or the time when something will be “gone”). (To be continued below . . . )

(Millennium Falcon)

NOTE: Parlay Thorp’s landing on Hijado could begin in 8 BBY instead of here at 9 BBY, but I am assuming that the Bilbringi mission and her landing on Hijado are in the same year, just spread throughout the year.

On Dathomir, Gethzerion, the second daughter of Mother Augwynne of the Singing Mountain Clan, becomes driven to take over the clan in order to let her more Dark Side-driven interpretations of The Book of Law be taught. She seeks out Baritha, another malcontent, and the two try to assassinate Augwynne. Instead, Gethzerion’s youngest sister, Kara’Teel, is killed, and both Baritha and Gethzerion are banished. In banishment, they are attacked by three other outcasts. They kill two, but the third wishes to join them, and Gethzerion begins plotting to create her own clan of Nightsisters. They begin capturing other Witches in raids, offering them survival in return for allegiance. Even Baruka, Gethzerion’s other sister, joins, hoping to turn Gethzerion back to the Light.

(conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook)

*NOTE: I set this here, four years before the Imperials arrive (and then leave) Dathomir in order to allow the Nightsisters under Gethzerion to become “already strong” by that time, as the book states.

- Luke Skywalker, Deak, and Windy are out for a swoop (well, kid’s swoop by the looks of it) ride, when they are knocked off their rides by Gorm Maldorf, who challenges Luke to a race (and brawl, one might assume) in a place called the Cage, an enclosed swoop arena. Before racing, though, Luke arrives early, only to find Gorm dead in the Cage, strangled by his own scarf. Chester, Gorm’s Rodian friend, accuses Luke of murder. Luke hides out in the desert, finding himself in the cave of reclusive Obi-Wan “Ben” Kenobi, who helps Luke decide to try to clear his name and find Gorm’s true killer. Upon learning more about Gorm, Luke proves to the authorities that Gorm was accidentally killed by Chester, while the two were trying to set up a tripwire to hurt or kill Luke in the arena. The day has been saved, and, who knows? Perhaps Luke will run into the mysterious Kenobi again someday . . .

(\textit{Luke Skywalker: Detective})

\textbf{Millennium Falcon [continued]} (novel: James Luceno)

\textbf{Chapter 24 [flashback]}

\textbf{Luke Skywalker: Detective (SWT20 short story: Rick Geary)}

\textbf{8 BBY}

- \textit{Wicket W. Warrick is born to Deej and Shodu Warrick on the forest moon of Endor.}\n  (conjecture based on comments by Leland Chee)

- \textit{Princess Kneesaa is born to Chirpa and Ra-Lee on the forest moon of Endor.}\n  (conjecture based on comments by Leland Chee)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Wicket is born 8 BBY (as based on Leland Chee’s comments) and that Kneesaa is the same age as Wicket.

- All key industries on Mecetti worlds are nationalized.\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Lords of the Expanse})

- \textit{Rigis Corazon acquires Gryseium Incorporated from Eib. After this transaction, Eib retires.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Supernova: The Mynock Conspiracy})

- \textit{Dengar begins flying the Punishing One.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Payback: The Tale of Dengar})

- \textit{Venthan Chassu’s Selonian nudes are last shown to the public at Corellia’s Fine Arts Museum.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Side Trip})

- \textit{Garil Dox begins serving in the Imperial military.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Model Officer})

- An outdated Imperial craft arrives on Ranklinge to pick up dignitaries who had tried to (and given up on) easing the civil war there. This is the last time there will be any Imperial presence on the planet for the next eight years.\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Allegiance})

- \textit{Matt Turhaya enters the academy at Carida.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Passages})

- \textit{Intelligent crystal spiders called Lucents construct the Crystal Web Station as a way to interact with other members of the galactic community.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Crystal Web Space Station})*

*NOTE: All information from this \textit{Polyhedron} #93 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn. This event takes place between 5 and 12 years prior to the framing article, set shortly before the Declaration of the New Republic.

- \textit{Andi Tolen is caught stealing. When her target attacks her, she ends up shooting him with his own blaster, taking her first life. She discovers that it is a “kill or be killed” galaxy and begins honing her survival skills, eventually beginning to work for Herogga the Hutt.}\n  (conjecture based on \textit{Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game} profile for Andi Tolen, found on the Wizards of the Coast website)*

*NOTE: This assumes she was born 20 BBY.

- \textit{Dean Lado assassinates the leader of the Spiders in Gallisport and is soon unanimously made their new leader. He will come to bring other gangs under the Spider banner and make them a force to be reckoned with.}
(conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH, and that Lado can be assumed the same age as Quayce and Roy.

- Imperial Navy officer Rovan Tresario, frustrated by harassment by pirates like Reginald Barkbone (the “Scourge of the Seven Sectors”), retires from the Navy and joins with other retired officers to create House Tresario (or the House Tresario Bounty Hunters Guild) to specialize in bounties on pirates.
  (conjecture based on The Bounty Hunter Code)
- The Empire descends upon Contruum to seize its borium mines and shipyards for the military. Airen Cracken, a working-class mechanic shop owner from Torian City, begins leading a resistance to the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)
- At age 10, Leia Organa writes in her diary of missing her mother (Padmé), the annoying restrictions of the royal life, and of rebelling against parental expectations. (To be continued below . . . )
  (The Princess Leia Diaries)
- At age 10, Luke Skywalker is grounded for talking back to his uncle, Owen Lars, but he sneaks away from the Lars moisture farm anyway, finding himself lost in a sandstorm. As he seems to be starting to suffer another case of dust fever, he comes across a vision of Darth Vader, which fades into what appears to be a young boy about his age, named Annie. Unbeknownst to Luke, he is having a sort of vision of his own father, Anakin Skywalker, as a child. After some bonding time, the two are attacked by a krayt dragon (possibly imaginary). Luke takes it down, then collapses. Luke is finally found, with no trace of Annie or the krayt dragon, by Owen and three others. Luke, they know by his survival of the sandstorm, is a very special boy.
  (Sandstorm)
- Shortly into her second year (i.e. shortly after the end of her first year) on Hijado, Noneen, a native, informs Dr. Parlay Thorp that she is about to die. She undergoes a native ritual that saves her from her illness. (To be continued below . . . )
  (Millennium Falcon)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Parlay Thorp’s stay on Hijado began late in 9 BBY.

The Princess Leia Diaries (SWT11 short story: Jason Hall)
Sandstorm (SWT15 short story: Jason Hall)
Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Chapter 23 [flashback] [continued]

7 BBY
- Belindi Kalenda is born.
  (conjecture based on Ambush at Corellia)
- Allania Jakien is born on Bespin.
  (conjecture based on Movie Trilogy Sourcebook)
- Ken is born.
  (conjecture based on The Lost City of the Jedi)
- Daric LaRone is offered a spot in the elite Imperial Stormtrooper Corps.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- Sok Brok’s Annual Pet Show begins, likely on Taris.*
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)*

*NOTE: The show that is running at the time that the Solos visit Vistal Purn in Millennium Falcon is the 50th Annual Pet Show, so unless any years were somehow missed or skipped, this is the starting point of the show.
- Gara Petothel’s parents, both working in Imperial Intelligence, are arrested and executed for an unspecified treason. Gara becomes completely loyal to the Empire so that nothing like that will ever happen to her.
  (conjecture based on Iron Fist via TimeTales, verbatim)
Black Sun Vigo Xizor arranges for Moff Flirry Vorru to be imprisoned on Kessel, eliminating him as a thorn in Palpatine’s side. In doing so, he solidifies his own power and becomes Prince of Black Sun. His previous position as Vigo is filled by Perit. Along with the changes coming with Xizor’s reign, he makes Green, a human, a Vigo.

By the time she reaches her early twenties, Wildis Jiklip, mathematical prodigy, has been licensed to teach at the university or academy level. Shortly thereafter, she vanishes for two decades, becoming the smuggler “Red Stepla.”

A biological weapon created under Darth Vader’s orders is released (on accident) upon the Falleen homeworld. The resultant epidemic kills over 200,000 Falleen, including the family of Prince Xizor, who vows revenge against Vader.

In the wake of the Falleen disaster, Xizor removes all records of his family, letting his vendetta against Darth Vader be carried out in secret.

Kaleb Darme sees Armor of Honor for the first time. The story of the elite stormtroopers in the story have a profound impact on his life.

Glah Ubooki discovers a crashed Imperial R&D vessel and, with seven brothers, salvages materials from it. After selling it to a Rebellion trader, they decide to enter the rare item market. The brothers, as an inside joke, all pretend to be the “real” Glah, while denying the existence of any of the other brothers or their shops.

Adion Lang heads off for the Imperial Academy, saying goodbye to Celia Durasha until they meet again seven years later.

Tedris Bjalin graduates from the Caridian Academy.

Drigor Tarrens joins the Qektoth Confederation.

Soontir Fel graduates from the Caridian military academy and is stationed on the Abrogator.

Queen Breha Organa of Alderaan attends the birthday celebration for her adopted daughter, Leia Organa (age 12), wearing a dress very similar to a design that will be used by Bink and Tavia Kitik while robbing Avrak Villachor shortly after the Battle of Yavin. (Exact date: 28:5:26)

Roons Sewell, a young man in a rough area on his homeworld, is beaten by bullies and left to die. He survives, eventually turning the tables and luring the bullies to their deaths. (To be continued below . . . )

Hargeeva welcomes the Empire. The world’s feudal ruler, the elder Makintay, becomes its first Imperial Governor. Makintay’s son, Stevan, heads off for the Imperial Academy.
• Han Solo gains the honor of wearing Corellian Bloodstripes.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)

• Bria Tharen begins working with a group of rebels to fight against the Empire from the inside. Among their other targets is the Ylesian slave operation.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)

• Tedris Bjalin graduates from the Imperial Naval Academy.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)

• In the latter half of this year, Dax Doogun arrives on Hijado with the Molpol Traveling Circus and becomes enamored with Parlay Thorp’s ship, the Millennium Falcon. He purchases it from her.
  (To be continued below . . . )

  (Millennium Falcon)

NOTE: This assumes that Parlay Thorp’s stay on Hijado began late in 9 BBY. That would place the end of the two years between her arrival and Doogun’s late in this year (7 BBY). This allows (barely) for the ship to have been in Doogun’s possession for at least a year or two before Vistal Purn joins Molpol’s Traveling Circus.

• As a result of Dax Doogun purchasing the Millennium Falcon, Parlay Thorp has enough money for Remote Sector Medical to set up a research base on Hijado. She will later also set up a clinic on Enferm, then go to work for Aurora Medical on Obroa-Skai as an expert in aging and longevity.*
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)

• After the death of their leader, the swoop gang called the Rabid Mynocks votes that Roy Harlison should lead them. Roy declines and throws his support in for Quayce to lead. She is installed as the new gang leader.*
  (conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)

NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.

• Mako Spince is expelled from the Caridian academy for destroying the academy’s mascot moon. He is soon cleared of all charges by Senator Simon Greyshade, who was amused by the stunt.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook)

• Wrennx Jixton is court-marshaled for his involvement in the Falleen disaster and is sent to the spice mines of Kessel, from which he will escape later.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Stalker)

• Gallofree Yards, Inc. enters the starship market and fails. Much of its small production will find its way to the Rebel Alliance in the future.
  (The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

• Sometime in this era, technicians aiding the early rebel cells against the Empire begin Project Decoy, an attempt to create droids to replace Imperial officials with perfect duplicates. Unfortunately, the Empire beats them to it. The Empire has two engineers, Massad Thrumble and Simonelle the Ingoian, who will manage to create the Human Replica Droid (HRD) Guri.*
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

NOTE: There is no telling how long both sides were working on such droids before Guri was created, and things are a tad thrown off by the reference in the NEGD that says that the Rebel Alliance was working on Project Decoy at the time, since the date of Guri’s creation predates the formation of the Rebel Alliance by several years. I have attempted to have this all make sense with how I worded this entry, along with placing it in the year before Guri’s activation.

Empire [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie & Randy Stradley & John Wagner & Paul Chadwick & Paul Alden & Jeremy Barlow & Welles Hartley & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews & John Jackson Miller)

Darklighter Collection (comic series: Paul Chadwick)

The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell (comic series: Paul Chadwick)

The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell, Part I [flashback] (comic: Paul Chadwick)

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Chapter 23 [flashback] [continued]

6 BBY

• The Human Replica Droid (HRD) Guri is developed by Imperial scientists Massad Thrumble and Simonelle. In the wake of this success, Thrumble remains with the Empire, while Simonelle establishes his own HRD workshop in the Minos Cluster (eventually creating the HRDs of Governor Torlock and Frija Torlock from Corulag) and Guri is sold to Black Sun’s Prince Xizor for 9,000,000 credits. Guri then becomes Xizor’s personal aide.

(conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire and The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- Shannon Vorsoon is born.
  (conjecture based on Slaying Dragons)
- Zehrinnie (future wife of Stavin Thaal) is born.
  (conjecture based on Mercy Kill)
- Around this time, the precious metal and gem mines on Kuratooine finally play out, leaving the mines abandoned.
  (conjecture based on Mercy Kill)
- Lord Bai Jaset begins his reign over House Melantha.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)
- Han Solo graduates from the Caridian academy and enters the Imperial Navy. He is posted to the Flanchard, an Imperial Star Destroyer, under Pter Nyklas.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit and The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- The Dominant is commissioned.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura)
- Magir Paca begins sending information he learns through his high connections and position to the Garosian resistance.
  (conjecture based on A Glimmer of Hope)
- Ivhin Jayme lies about his age and enlists in the Imperial Army.*
  (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)*

*NOTE: This assumes Jayme is 25 in Special Ops: Shipjackers.

- Harovan Toth is put in command of Scandium Team, an infiltration unit in the resistance to Palpatine’s Empire.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11)
- Galen “Starkiller” Marek is sent to Port Pixelito on Malastare to kill an Imperial official that has compromised himself with podrace gambling debts.*
  (conjecture based on The Force Unleashed II)*

*NOTE: This is five years prior to TFU2.

- Avrak Villachor begins holding activities for the Festival of the Four Honorings at his Marblewood estate on Wukkar. He will continue to do so over the next six years.
  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)
- Lira Wessex designs the Imperial Raider-class corvette. It is expected to be a frontline warship, but it soon fails to meet expectations in that area. Instead, the Raiders become primarily used as anti-starfighter platforms.
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)
- Imperial Star Galleon IM-873X begins making precisely scheduled trips to the Corva Sector.*
  (conjecture based on Operation: Shell Game)*

*NOTE: This is “more than six years” before the Age of Rebellion Beta Rulebook adventure Operation: Shell Game, which I have placed around two months after ANH to run alongside some of the earliest Edge of the Empire RPG scenarios.

- An Imperial research project into viruses that can be used for brainwashing is terminated by the scientists involved. They are so horrified by the work that they destroy the project and defect en masse to the Rebellion.*
  (conjecture based on Ananuru Express)*

*NOTE: I have assumed that the Ananuru Express adventure takes place during the same year as ANH (albeit after the film). The only other date noted in the story is the birth of Icomia Hamnet, 12 years earlier. I have split the difference (6 years) for this event that has no exact context.

- Around this time, Memah Roothes becomes the manager of the Soft Heart Cantina on Coruscant.*
  (conjecture based on Death Star)*

*NOTE: The wording on this reference is odd. The novel says, “Memah had managed this place for two years, and owned it for two more, before the galaxy had gone crazy.” The “galaxy going crazy” seems to refer to the Beginning of the Rebel Alliance and its conflict with the Empire, and the dates before, though oddly worded, seem to suggest that she owned it for two years before the Declaration of Rebellion and managed it starting two years earlier. That is how I have chosen to interpret the information.

- The musician Miracle Mariko dies in Imperial custody. His last surviving recordings will find their way into the hands of Kardue’sai Malloc, AKA Labria.
  (conjecture based on The Last One Standing: The Tale of Boba Fett)
- The Cloud City Grand Prix finally begins to make a profit for its investors.*
  (conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)*

*NOTE: This is 7 years before The Jewel of Yavin and assumes that The Jewel of Yavin is about a year or so after ANH.

- Colonel Matthews goes to the Corporate Sector and begins making progress in the area of supplying weapons to what will become the Rebel Alliance.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)
- Around this time, Lestra Oxic goes to Epica to sit by the deathbed of former Senator Des’sein. Before he dies, Des’sein tells Lestra of the Republic Group treasure and that Tobb Jadak is the key to finding it.*
  (conjecture based on Millennium Falcon)*

*NOTE: We are not given an exact date for when Des’sein dies and passes this information to Oxic. However, we know that Oxic was searching for the treasure for “almost fifty years,” and that there is a period between him learning Tobb Jadak’s name before he eventually discovers that Jadak is on Nar Shaddaa in a coma. I have assumed “almost fifty years” to be 49 years, and I have assumed that he is dating that comment back to when Des’sein died.

- After an entire youth spent having to keep his true parentage as the result of an illicit affair between Cacique Jans Coorsa and his sister-in-law, Vilola Sargan, young Ralchio Sargan finally succumbs to his ambitions and his feelings of being entitled to Jans’ fame and resources. He confronts his father and is so enraged that he blacks out. He awakens to find Jans dead, killed by unexpected Dark Side Force use on Ralchio’s part. (The Force might well explain Jans’ own successes as the “Phantom of Gall.”) Ralchio flees to the one place he expects no one from Xorrn will look for him: within the Empire. He quickly marries the influential Lila Nervi, taking her last name instead of the reverse, making him “Ralchio Nervi.” He then enrolls in the Rengali Imperial Naval Academy. He will secretly explore his Force attunement but more in an attempt to hide it from the Empire than to actually use it. Back on Xorrn, Jans’ will is read, in which he leaves his leadership position as interim Cacique to his grandson (Ralchio’s secret nephew), Kal Coorsa, who is only 19. Kal steps in as interim Cacique and works to gain the trust and support of the Clan Assembly to become their chosen Cacique rather than just an interim one, but there are those who believe he is not qualified for his position, including chief engineer Lira Hardin. His own aunt, Vilola Sargan, secretly works against him in trying to pit him against Hardin in hopes that they will tear each other down and pave the way for her own ascension to leadership. (Like mother, like secret son.) For her part, Hardin simply does not agree with Kal’s intention of broadening their client base to include more and more Rebels, which could bring the Empire down upon them.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: There are internal inconsistencies with the chronology of Friends Like These. If we take Kal’s father being killed by the Empire when he was an infant at face value, then this must be almost immediately after ANH, but we are told that it happened six years ago. While there are ways to make the former timing suggestion make sense for Kal, it would not leave any time for Ralchio’s background to progress, requiring that the “six years ago” reference must be taken into account, placing the event here.

- After a major bout of vertigo, Dawson swears off of space-walks, and avoids them like a plague for the next six years.
  (conjecture based on The Great Herdship Heist)
- Matt Turhaya finally sees the truth about the Empire. He deserts.
  (conjecture based on Charlene Newcomb’s website)
- Teroenza finally restores his antique collection to a semblance of normalcy after Han Solo stole from him, wrecking the place.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
- A smuggling group led by Hoffner accidentally finds the Katana Fleet. Talon Karrde, a crewman, immediately recognizes what they have found.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
The Empire nationalizes Incom Corporation, leading Rebels to assist in getting the company’s senior staff to safety, along with the blueprints and prototypes for the newest X-wing starfighter model. (conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook)

Jahan Cross visits Bail Organa’s family on Alderaan. While there, he is the object of “mad crushes” (yes, lasting three whole days) from both Leia Organa and Winter. (conjecture based on Hard Targets)

Other Incom designers defect to the (as yet unofficial) Rebel Alliance and start the company known as FreiTek, Inc., which will later design the E-wing starfighter. (The Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

Loka Hask is expelled from the Caridian academy and returns home to see his father executed. He uses the money from his father’s criminal activates and buys a small-freighter to start a pirate career. (conjecture based on X-wing Rogue Squadron Handbook)

Dair Haslip meets Magir Paca for the first time. (conjecture based on Turning Point)

Dr. Issan Len, a well-renowned droid specialist, sets up a laboratory on Cloud City at Bespin. He begins work on a new droid series called the X1. He intends to have the X1 series be capable of controlling starships and space stations, a feat currently beyond droid capability. (conjecture based on Crisis on Cloud City via TimeTales, verbatim)

Garik “The Face” Loran gets to sit on Ysanne Isard’s lap. After his hit Win or Die is released, he gets a trip to Coruscant to meet the Emperor, but Palpatine is in a bad mood after receiving a report informing him of the degree of organization the Rebels actually have, so he gets to see Isard instead. She tells him what a good boy he is. (conjecture based on Wraith Squadron via TimeTales, verbatim)

While on a trip aboard Luke Skywalker’s dewback, Huey, Luke Skywalker (age 13) and Windom “Windy” Starkiller/Marstamp get caught in a level seven sandswirl and become lost. Huey escapes into a cave, followed by the boys. Inside the cave, they are attacked by a krayt dragon, which kills Huey, who appears to have sacrificed himself for Luke. The boys are finally saved when the dragon is put to sleep by Jedi Master Obi-Wan “Ben” Kenobi, who has been watching out for Luke based on a report of the boys’ disappearance. Kenobi takes the boys back to the Lars Moisture Farm, where they are welcomed back, but Owen Lars orders Kenobi to leave immediately, believing that while Kenobi saved the boys’ lives by bringing them home, Owen himself is saving Luke’s future by making Kenobi leave.*

*NOTE: The author of the original tale (Luke Skywalker’s Walkabout), Phil Norwood, apparently decided in mid-story to change Windy’s last name. First it is Windom Starkiller in the report of the boys’ disappearance, and then it becomes Windy Marstamp when Luke introduces him to Obi-Wan. Now saying that “Windy” is short for “Windom” is one thing, but trying to say that “Starkiller” and “Marstamp” are the same last name is ludicrous. Would it have been that hard to have proof-read a 10-page story? (As for The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi, its ninth chapter is just a retelling of this story, as is the third chapter of A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker, which sets the date as 6 BBY, rather than the previously-assumed 5 BBY.)

R2-D2 and C-3PO, sold by Master Wena to a junk trader and subsequently sold by the trader to Olag Greck, arrive at the Kalarba system’s Hosk Station. When they arrive, IG-88B (who was aboard their shuttle), frees himself from his bonds and blasts through the docking bay, taking R2-D2 with him. It appears that IG-88 was sent to kill Olag Greck, but was caught. Now, he’s free in the very system where Greck lives. Upon finally finding R2-D2 and IG-88, C-3PO joins them as they escape in a stolen ship from Greck’s forces. Greck gives chase in a battleship piloted by Jace Forno. They manage to stop Greck’s ship, and R2-D2 and C-3PO leave the ship in an escape pod. The pod crashes onto Kalarba near the home of the Pitareeze family. The family “adopts them” to look after the young Nak Pitareeze. Baron Pitareeze, Nak’s father, used to be a starship designer. Olag Greck took one of his designs, made a terribly inferior version of it, and used it to sully Pitareeze’s name. Now Greck is hassling Pitareeze again. Greck wants his new hyperdrive design to sell to the Galactic Empire. Nak, the little brat, decides to steal the device and give it to Greck. He is subsequently taken hostage by Greck to force Baron Pitareeze to give Greck what he wants.
C-3PO and Nak escape from Greck's clutches in one of Greck's own ships and end up crashing it, injuring Nak. They manage to get in touch with Balto, a worker for Pitareeze, and get to the Baron in time to stop him from giving in to Greck, since Greck no longer has hostages to worry about. With the situation salvaged, the family enters the restaurant business, only to have the restaurant invaded by former cooks (who were sent to crystal mines after botching a Hutt-poisoning job for Greck). The invaders take R2-D2, C-3PO, and Nak prisoner. Nak tries to escape and is taken prisoner by Greck in a cave full of treasure. When the droids and the "pirate cooks" attack Greck, Nak is saved, and the cooks return the droids and Nak to the Pitareeze family in return for R2-D2's recipe for Stenness pie, and the treasure. Soon thereafter, C-3PO is damaged while going to Hosk Station and the resulting crude repair job makes him look like the droid assassin C-3PX (who, by the way, was originally reф from protocol droid statistics to an offensive model by Darth Maul decades earlier), who also happens to be at Hosk Station. C-3PO is nearly forced to battle "to the death" with a huge droid for the amusement of a coliseum full of spectators before C-3PX steps in and takes his rightful place in the battle, destroying the other droid. C-3PO is subsequently taken home. Next, Nak is hired by Forno to go with her to Indobok to get some valuable crystals. While there, they encounter strange rock-creatures which seem to live off of the crystals. Forno and her crew are run off and the arrival of the Pitareeze family helps set things straight, with the return of all crystals to the creatures. Back home, the droids meet Q-E and 2-E (U-E is absent), three "young" droids. R2-D2 likes them. They learn that the three Model Es were being used by Vuldo, a burly man, to build blasters illegally. The droids bust in with the help of a large droid repaired by Nak, and Vuldo is stopped. The large droid repaired by Nak ends up leaving on his own adventures with Q-E and 2-E. Next, while C-3PO is helping Baron Pitareeze in business negotiations, R2-D2 is attacked, stolen, given to a new owner, escapes from the new owner, and makes it back in time to meet the Baron and C-3PO as if nothing ever happened. Then the droids return to Hosk Station, which is in full evacuation. The reactor is set to destroy the station. R2-D2 and C-3PO elect to stay on the station so that Baron Pitareeze and a couple of Ithorians can flee. The droids meet up with Zed and Trillka, two droids who are security head and mechanic of the station, respectively. They learn that Greck has sabotaged the station to steal a barge. R2-D2 and Zed face off with Greck's monstrous droid while C-3PO saves the reactor. The station is saved. R2-D2 and C-3PO are deputized and sent with Zed to track down and bring in Greck.*

(The Kalarba Adventures)

• R2-D2, C-3PO, and Zed hunt for Olag Greck on Nar Shaddaa. Their chase ends with the death of Movo Brattakin, who had agreed to help Greck in his escape. Jace Forno manages to capture R-2-D2 and C-3PO once Greck has been jailed. Forno, now working for Brattakin instead of Greck, decides to just leave Greck in jail. In the process of capturing the droids, Forno shoots one of C-3PO's legs off, but Brattikan's droid, B-9D7, brings him a new one (the precursor to the infamous silver leg), and helps them to escape. In the meantime, Greck breaks out of jail. Once B-9D7 gets the droids to a "getaway ship" for a return to Kalarba, they realize that the ship is full of droids who are all being taken away for memory wipes. R2-D2, diverted from boarding the ship, which leaves with C-3PO, manages to steal another small ship to go after the one C-3PO is aboard. Before catching up to the ship, though, he is recaptured by Forno. B-9D7 steps in, however, and saves R2-D2 by stunning Forno. Back on the drone ship carrying C-3PO, the droid begins to be "taken over" by a program running from his new leg. B-9D7 and R2-D2 catch up with the ship and board it just as C-3PO's new programming overrides his usual personality. He then reveals that the droids are not going to Kalarba for memory wipes, but to stop Boonda the Hutt from converting normal droids into weapons of conquest. Apparently, Brattakin wants Boonda stopped. Upon arrival on Boonda's moon, however, it seems that Boonda is actually running legitimate operations. B-9D7 then reveals that there is a bomb in C-3PO's new leg . . . and that B-9D7 is Movo Brattakin, in the sense that Brattakin's brain is the living CPU of the B-9D7 droid. It was B-9D7/Brattakin who wanted the ability to turn droids into weapons, and he only had to kill Boonda to get the technology. R2-D2 takes control of B-9D7/Brattakin's ship and crashes it into Boonda's base, forcing a face-to-face confrontation. Forno arrives just in time and kills B-9D7/Brattakin. Boonda is saved, but his operation is somewhat of a mess. C-3PO has the bomb leg removed and replaced by another leg piece. The rebellious droid ship leaves, and our droid heroes prepare for a ride on an Ithorian herd ship, after returning safely to Nar Shaddaa.

(Rebellion)

- Aboard the Ithorian herd ship, captained by Master Zorneth, the droids encounter a man known as Smiley. They learn that Smilers are people who have become addicted to the euphoric drug known as savorium. Zorneth is protecting these happy-go-lucky-to-the-extreme individuals from being used as slave laborers. Upon arrival at Targonin, while Zorneth handles negotiations with local traders, Smiley gets loose of the ship and temporarily wreaks havoc in the marketplace before being kidnapped. All of a sudden, the kidnappers’ speeder is attacked by a construction droid, who frees Smiley while acting under the influence of the Caretaker Virus—a computer program which causes droids to be compelled to help Smilers. Back aboard the ship, one of the kidnappers manages to get aboard and kidnap Smiley. R2-D2, infected with the Caretaker Virus, follows, bringing C-3PO, and the two are eventually captured right along with Smiley, as the kidnappers escape. They are taken to Dictator-Forever Craw, who wants the secret to savorium so that he can enslave multitudes. Why does he want Smiley? Smiley is really Klorr Vilia, the man who invented savorium in the first place. Craw orders a brain-drain done on Smiley. C-3PO and R2-D2 manage to save the unknowing Smiley from the procedure. The droids escape into the hands of the Revoltists, sort of a micro-rebellion against Craw, but Smiley remains captured. Craw knows that R2-D2 has scanned his personal files, so he tries to demand R2-D2's return for the life of Smiley. Against the Revoltist's wishes, R2-D2, led by the Caretaker Virus, returns to Craw's fortress. The Revoltists and C-3PO give chase and catch up to R2-D2 outside of the fortress' shield perimeter just as Zorneth's herd ship arrives and attacks the fortress. As the shields are lowered to allow R2-D2 in and Craw's troops out, the Revoltists manage to get C-3PO and Zorneth's droid into the base's shielded area, before the shield is reformed. The two droids manage to free R2-D2 and knock out the shields. The Revoltists come in firing and drive Craw off of the planet. Upon return to the herd ship with the newly rescued Smiley, Zorneth reveals to them a forest of savorium on the ship itself. Craw is close behind in his own ship, however, and he attacks the herd ship and sends a landing party. In a last attempt to keep the savorium out of Craw's hands, Smiley sets the forest of savorium on fire and perishes with it in the blaze. With no hope left for his plans, Zorneth offers Craw savorium soup, to make them both euphoric Smilers. R2-D2 and C-3PO, meanwhile, have been able to evacuate from the ship in a small escape craft, but it will be quite a while before they will reach any of the frequently-traveled shipping lanes.

(Season of Revolt)

- Jake Harthan gets C-3PO and R2-D2 on Rudrig.

(conjecture based on The Protocol Offensive)

- C-3PO and R2-D2, working for the Tion Hegemony, are assisting in negotiations for a trade route between the Tion Hegemony and Tahboor. The Troobs and Hobors, though, the native races of the planets in question, have been at war for years. Madame Krax, a Troob, decides to buy C-3PO. The Hobor leader then shows that the Hobors have a new ground-to-space weapon to use against the Troobs, and buys R2-D2, separating the two droids. The negotiations, in a state of disarray, then move to Tahboor, where all goes . . . okay . . . until the Hobor leader's daughter Larka is suspected of killing the Troob leader's son. (She was really in love with the guy, and was not involved.) R2-D2 and C-3PO band together to keep war from breaking out. They investigate the Hobor weapon, which it appears that they simply found (i.e. didn't invent themselves) and learn that it is an energy tap. They use it to have C-3PO inform both sides of the conflict that they were being manipulated by Jake Harthan, the droids' master, who was the actual murderer of the Troob boy. The Troobs, rightly angered, kill Harthan. As the droids leave the planet with the grieving Larka, the Troob-Hobor negotiations really get underway, and the races unite.

(The Protocol Offensive)

- When all of the Wookiee children of Tvrrdko and Chewbacca's clan are kidnapped by Trandoshan slavers, Chewbacca uses a derelict spacecraft as a cover to attack the slavers’ ship, break inside, and free his fellow Wookiees. An Imperial Star Destroyer soon arrives, but Chewie sends all but two dead Wookiees and himself into hyperspace aboard the “derelict.” Lt. Han Solo is sent by Commander Pter Nyklas to secure whomever might remain in the blasted slaver ship. Han finds Chewbacca, but refuses to kill him as Nyklas orders. Nyklas promises they’ll both pay for his insubordination. In the meantime, the children are returned to Kashyyyk, where Tvrrdko, father of Tojjevvuk (a Wookiee Chewie was forced to kill) breaks the Wookiee vengeance custom and not only calls off his family’s vendetta against Chewbacca, but also carves the likeness of Chewbacca into a nearby tree. (To be continued below . . . )

*NOTE: According to the EGtW, this is seven months after Han Solo graduates and is posted to the Flanchard under Nyklas.

- Han Solo is formally reprimanded and grounded for refusing to kill Chewbacca under Pter Nyklas’ orders. However, Han is left under Nyklas’ command. Nyklas decides to “break” Han in the future.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- Wyl Tarson begins working for the information-broker Raze.
  (conjecture based on The Ahakista Gambit)
- On Kashyyyk, Chewbacca and Hronk are rivals due to family grudges. When they finally begin to settle the score, they are interrupted by Imperial impressment crews. Chewbacca makes his way off of Kashyyyk again to keep from being captured, as does Hronk, apparently. Hronk, however, will be captured sometime just before the Battle of Yavin and be held by Imperials on Formos.
  (conjecture based on Way of the Wookiee!)

*NOTE: This story suggests that avoiding slavery was why Chewie left Kashyyyk, which happened after this fight was interrupted. Given the various times that Chewie was on Kashyyyk, I have chosen to assume that this takes place after he brings the saved children back to Kashyyyk. It could take place in plenty of other chronological locations, but this seems logical.

- LE-BO2D9 (Leebo) will come to carry a datastick with six months of data on Black Sun that begins with this date (six months prior to being purchased by Dash Rendar).
  (conjecture based on And Leebo Makes Three)

*NOTE: Please note that this date only works if And Leebo Makes Three is in 5 BBY. If and when we learn an exact date for the story, this event will move.

- Approximately four months before they purchase LE-BO2D9 (Leebo), Dash Rendar and Eaden Vrill begin working together.
  (conjecture based on And Leebo Makes Three)

*NOTE: Please note that this date only works if And Leebo Makes Three is in 5 BBY. If and when we learn an exact date for the story, this event will move.

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
The Life and Legend of Obi-Wan Kenobi [continued] (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 9
  Chapter 3

Droids [continued] (comic series/cartoon series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels & Dave Manak & George Carragone & various)
Droids Omnibus (comic series: Dan Thorsland & Ryder Windham & Anthony Daniels)*

*NOTE: According to the opening pages of this omnibus, the Droids comics apparently begin at 5.5 BBY and, it might be assumed, run somewhat consecutively.
Rebellion (comic series: Ryder Windham)
  Rebellion, Part I (comic: Ryder Windham)
  Rebellion, Part II (comic: Ryder Windham)
  Rebellion, Part III (comic: Ryder Windham)
  Rebellion, Part IV (comic: Ryder Windham)
Season of Revolt (comic series: Jan Strnad)
  Season of Revolt, Part I (comic: Jan Strnad)
  Season of Revolt, Part II (comic: Jan Strnad)
  Season of Revolt, Part III (comic: Jan Strnad)
  Season of Revolt, Part IV (comic: Jan Strnad)
The Protocol Offensive (comic: Anthony Daniels & Ryder Windham)
Chewbacca [continued] (comic series: Darko Macan)*
  Chewbacca, Part II [flashback] [continued] (comic: Darko Macan)*
  Chapter 5: Tvrmd — “Breaking a Custom” [flashback]*

*NOTE: This assumes that Chewie first encounters Han the same year he is saved by Han. The Star Wars Encyclopedia had suggested that Chewie became a slave a few years before this, but it would have been impossible, since Han is a Lieutenant at the time Chewie is captured, as we see in this story.

5 – 0 BBY
Empire at War [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Forces of Corruption (video game: LucasArts)

5 BBY
- Kyp Durron is born in the Anoat system in the Deyer colony.
  (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)
- Irek Ismaren is born to Roganda Ismaren, a concubine of the Emperor (leading people to believe that Palpatine is the boy’s father). Early signs that they boy may be able to use the Force lead Roganda to train him in the Dark Side.
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)
- Zahara Cody begins to study medicine on Rhinnal.*
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)*

*NOTE: I have assumed here that Zahara’s comment in Death Troopers that she has worked with Waste for three months is referring to her initial assignment to the Purge. I have further assumed that, since that would have been her first real medical service after graduating from Rhinnal, perhaps two years had passed since her encounter with the doctor, whom she met two years into her studies. That would put her initial medical studies at this point.
- Del Hunter becomes a Rebel.
  (conjecture based on Passages)
- Iaco Stark of Rossum Droidworks dies in an “accident.” His head is severed at one of his work sites. After his death, his holdings go to his son, Iaclyn Stark, who only provides his sister (supposedly Iaco’s daughter, but actually the child of an affair Stark’s wife Arris Rossum had), Etti Stark, with an allowance, while trying to marry her off in a marriage of alliance as soon as possible. Unbeknownst to anyone but Iaclyn, Iaco’s head has been saved and grafted to a new droid body, and Iaco will remain hidden at the Eclipse facility on Reltooine for the time being.
  (conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)
- Commander Pter Nyklas makes certain that Han Solo is assigned to supervise Wookiee slaves on Coruscant, where he again meets Chewbacca, who has now been captured into slavery. Nyklas whips Chewbacca repeatedly, bringing Chewbacca into a violent anger. When Nyklas then draws his blaster, Han stuns him before he can shoot. Han and Chewbacca flee together, but they are unable to get off of Coruscant. At the urging of Captain Habodon, Han turns himself in and testifies about the extenuating circumstances of the situation. Habodon begins pulling strings in hopes of avoiding execution for Han if the trial does not go in his favor.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
- In the years leading up to the Battle of Yavin, bounty hunter Dalan Oberos, who made an enemy of the Jedi Order during the Clone Wars by taking down Jedi for Count Dooku and the Separatists, then cemented his reputation by helping the Empire hunt down remaining Jedi, is now in decline because opportunities to prove his mettle against Jedi are few and far between. He seeks to prove himself and reclaim his reputation by working for the Empire and will eventually come to often serve Duke Erron Irbian in the Cato Neimoidian city of Jorra.

(conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)

- Lt. Han Solo, having defended Chewbacca from mistreatment by Cmdr. Nyklas finds himself dishonorably discharged from the Imperial Navy, but Han is drummed out as well (though it will be written off as desertion. One month later, Chewbacca, now free, catches up to Han. He owes a life debt to Solo and follows him around.

(conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)

- The Empire breaks the conditions of Kinyen’s post-Clone Wars surrender and lands occupation forces on the planet. Imperial forces bombard the resisting planet of Malthee. This causes many Kinyen natives to join the Rebel Alliance.*

(conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)*

*NOTE: According to Strongholds of Resistance, this happened “recently” and after “more than a decade” of Kinyen being “rewarded” with peace after its surrender at the end of the Clone Wars. I am rounding it to about 5 BBY, though that strains “recent” for me.

- Back when the Rebellion was “just a local affair,” Jodo Kast, a SpecOps Resistance fighter on Goratak III kills the bounty hunter Feskitt Bobb (whom he mistakes for Boba Fett due to Mandalorian armor from his days before washing out of Tobbi Dala and Fenn Shysa’s Mandalorian police force) in the Crystal Forests with a lucky shot. The ease with which he mistook the Mandalian Giant Feskitt Bobb for Boba Fett gives Jodo the idea that he can use some Mandalorian armor he salvaged on Zaadja to begin a life as a bounty hunter himself, using Boba Fett’s reputation (and sometimes his name) to get jobs. Jodo Kast teams up with two others, Zandra and Puggles Trodd, for a while. The most popular Boba Fett impersonator has been born.

(conjecture based on The History of the Mandalorians)

- The Empire attempts to make Mon Calamari part of the Empire. When the Calamari resist (passively), the Empire destroys three of their cities from orbit. The Calamari then obliterate the Imperial fleet, sparking a bitter war between the Calamari and the Empire.

(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races and The New Essential Guide to Characters)

- The Empire cuts back on funding for exploration. Jowart Typok, a scout for Interplanetary Charts and Surveys, is consequently forced to find a new livelihood. He eventually chooses big-game hunting and becomes wealthy selling trophies to collectors.*

(conjecture based on Bantha Cannon)*

*NOTE: This event likely happens at least a few years prior to Bantha Cannon, hence this placement.

- The pieces of artwork that will be used by Moff Glovstoak to help fund a separatist movement five years from now are stolen from a gallery, possibly by the BloodScars, at this point. This is during an attack on a Rebel cell on Krintrino.

(conjecture based on Allegiance)

- Around this time, BramDorc Corporation, a company that produces mining vessels, based out of the Unknown Regions, vanishes without a trace. Only three ships manufactured by BramDorc remain. The icebreaker finds its way to the New Brampis Starship Museum, while the Gasbag becomes an orbital fortress for a Hutt crimelord. The Rockhound, an asteroid tug, was used by Lando Calrissian during his days as a prospector and remains in his possession for decades to come.

(conjecture based on Allies)

- Around this time, Judge Lamos Chatoor becomes corrupt and begins a five year stretch of extortion, theft, and influence selling.

(conjecture based on Choices of One)

- Laynara begins working with Wyl Tarson for Raze. She becomes Raze’s top assistant within the next five years.*

(conjecture based on The Ahakista Gambit)*

*NOTE: It is unclear if this is when she began working for Raze overall, or just working alongside Wyl, who was working for Raze for a year prior to this.
• Around this time, the Sienar Fleet Systems Legate-class Courier enters the market.*
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)*
*NOTE: This is “a few years” before the present of Endless Vigil, which I have rounded to 5 BBY.
• Around this time, the highly popular Collor Pondrat Plug-F Mammoth podracer’s popularity finally starts to be eclipsed by that of the company’s Plug-2 Behemoth and Plug-G Gargantuan podracers.*
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)*
*NOTE: This is “a few years” before the present of Endless Vigil, which I have rounded to 5 BBY.
• As the Empire occupies Mon Calamari (AKA Mon Cala AKA Dac), a handful of exploration cruisers escape. The Independence will eventually become the spacegoing capital of the Rebel Alliance after its founding. The Liberty and Defiance are also among the escaping ships that will join the Rebellion later. Meanwhile, ship designers who remain behind are not allowed to create warships, just luxury cruise liners for sale. They will secretly use these cruisers to test new weapon enhancements, such as pinpoint targeting computers on the Kuari Princess and a Class One hyperdrive on the Queen Amidala IV. They will also make certain that these “luxury liners” can easily be converted into warships when in rebel hands.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
• With the occupation of Mon Calamari (AKA Dac AKA Mon Cala), the broken Calamari Council will eventually reconvene as a species-neutral Dac Council.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)
• During the Imperial occupation of Mon Calamari, Loronar Corporation takes over the shipyards over the planet.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)
• With the Imperial takeover of Mon Calamari, Tendaar Bel, an astrophysics student at Coral Collegium, is forced into work as a shipyard technician.
  (conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Beginner Game: Tendaar Character Folio)
• Ahleazah, a Mon Calamari female, is captured during the Empire’s initial occupation of Calamari, and is forced to work with the medical corps. The rest of her family was simply sold into slavery. She did her best to ease the suffering of her people, being moved from camp to camp in order to ensure she didn’t develop any relationships. When she saved the life of a minor Imperial Navy Officer, the grateful officer brought Ahleazah to his starship, where she was allowed to work with and learn from the advanced medical facilities on the ship. During her treatment of an Alliance pilot who was to undergo interrogation, Ahleazah decided that the time had come for her to act against the Empire that had destroyed her family. She treated the pilot, then both of them got to an escape pod just as the Imperial ship was leaving the Anoat System. An Alliance convoy later rescued them, and Ahleazah served the Alliance – and later, the New Republic – as a medic and healer.*
  (conjecture based on Heroes and Rogues via TimeTales, verbatim)*
*NOTE: This and other borrowed events regarding the subjugation of Mon Calamari have been moved from 4 BBY to 5 BBY due to new dating information given in The New Essential Guide to Characters.
• Teaneespi joins the rebellion against the Empire after the subjugation of Mon Calamari.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• Haash’n joins the rebellion against the Empire after the subjugation of Mon Calamari.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, paraphrased)
• Gideon Tarkin is killed during the Erhynradd Massacre. His brother, Wilhuff Tarkin, learns of this at around the same time that he is taking the Mon Calamari named Gial Ackbar as his slave. To compensate for Gideon’s loss, Wilhuff offers Rivoche Tarkin, Gideon’s daughter, into his family estate on Eriadu.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
• The moon of Hiit is annexed by the Corporate Sector Authority.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)
• When an Elomin protection scam goes wrong, Thaddeus Ross and Trep Winterrs are nearly killed. As they escape from the confrontation, Ross is shot and nearly dies. He awakens aboard the Kierra on Corellia, where Trep tells him that he’s been “dead” several days. He then sees who has helped revive him, his old lover Saahir Ru’lov. In return, she asks Ross to make a cargo run for her. He and Trep make the run to Aurea, where they realize that they've just helped Saahir supply weapons and such to the Rebel Alliance. Ross confronts her about it upon meeting her fiancé, Juri Marbra. Ross, agitated, agrees to the mission based on the credits it'll allow, but he's highly pissed at Saahir. Upon making it to the Rebel base and delivering the supplies, Ross has he and Trep sit out the battle when Imperials attack. Saahir goes to defend her comrades and is gravely wounded. The two men rush out to find her, and Ross carries her to relative safety as Trep uses his field experience to help lead the Rebels. In private, Saahir tells Ross to go back to her favorite spot on Isamu with someone special to him. He forgives her for how she wronged him in the past, and then she dies in his arms, with her last words being that the song is wrong. There is no laughter after dark, only silence. (To be continued below . . .)*

(Christmas: The Falcon)*

(Shadow Games)*

*NOTE: The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels suggests a date of 4 BBY for this event, but that conflicts directly with The Hutt Gambit. This more accurate date (5 BBY) was later "set in stone" by Millennium Falcon (though the earlier date was referenced again by The Essential Atlas). It may seem odd to have these two different sections of the novel's flashbacks in the same place, but it does make sense. Quip Fargil still has the ship as of 9 BBY. Cix gets it in 5 BBY. It still has to go through Parlay Thorp and Dax Doogun to get to Cix in that four year interim. When Cix's kids refer to him having the ship briefly, they must mean very briefly (which fits

NOTE: The Princess Leia Diaries

*NOTE: Please note that this story has no set date. Leland Chee has only said that Thaddeus Ross and Reuther knew each other around 5 BBY, so this part of the story must be at least a little before that.

• At the Nexu's Den on Rodia, Dash Rendar and his Nautolan partner, Eaden Vrill, haggle with Rodian comedian Kood Gareeda, who is trying to sell them a navigation droid, LE-BO2D9 (Leebo). They decide to make the purchase, only to find themselves, shortly after liftoff, being pursued by agents of Hox Bilan, led by Kravengash, who want Leebo. They discover, after a quick escape to hyperspace, that Leebo was carrying a secret datastick, which contains a treasure trove of data on Black Sun, and it seems Bilan wants it back. They are attacked again and forced to reach a nearby system (amid a supernova) with an ancient Hutt jumpgate. In order to allow his new masters to escape, Leebo uses an escape pod to harass their pursuers. The Outrider escapes through the jumpgate, and Dash is just about to "mourn" Leebo's loss when the pod comes through behind them, as Leebo had always intended. Dash and Eaden have a new traveling companion from here on.*

(And Leebo Makes Three)*

*NOTE: Please note that this story has no set date. Leland Chee has only said that it before Shadow Games, and Shadow Games is before ANH, but that is all we can say for now. I'm putting it here so that it has a summary, at least.

• At age 13, Leia Organa writes in her diary of sneaking out to be with dangerous boys, her first meeting with Wilhuff Tarkin (who embodies the wrongs of the Empire to her), being groomed to replace her father in a few years in the Senate, and even wishing that she had a brother . . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(The Princess Leia Diaries)

• Vistal Purn, flying with Molpol's Traveling Circus, usually aboard the Millennium Falcon, is in love with Molpol's star, Sari Danzer. In order to impress her, he offers to bring her aboard the Falcon during a trip to Delphon VII, but they were attacked by the Black Hole pirate gang. The pirates set them down on Regosh, the primary moon of Delphon IV, and steal the circus' Haor Chall C-9979 transport ship. Purn saves the day by ferrying the smaller animals back and forth on the Millennium Falcon, which earns him both respect and Sari's enduring love. Sadly, the pirate attack cost the circus dearly, and Dax Doogun is forced to sell off everything, including the name "Molpol's Traveling Circus" and the Millennium Falcon, which is sold to Cix Trouvee. As for the Black Hole pirates, some are caught, while others join the Zann Consortium. A very brief time later, Cix Trouvee, the new owner of the Millennium Falcon and a bit of a gambler, tries to gamble on the outcome of a skirmish between Imperials and the rebellious forces at Yag'Dhul, he loses the bet amid a desperate escape. Cix, down on his luck, decides to enter a high-stakes sabacc game. During the game, he loses the Millennium Falcon to a new owner, gambler Lando Calrissian. As for Cix, his luck drastically turns around. He eventually wins enough money in other games to be set for life, later becoming a partner in PlanetDreams, Inc. on Oseon VII. Cix keeps Waglin, his Weequay co-pilot, as an employee. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Millennium Falcon)*

*NOTE: The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels suggests a date of 4 BBY for this event, but that conflicts directly with The Hutt Gambit. This more accurate date (5 BBY) was later "set in stone" by Millennium Falcon (though the earlier date was referenced again by The Essential Atlas). It may seem odd to have these two different sections of the novel's flashbacks in the same place, but it does make sense. Quip Fargil still has the ship as of 9 BBY. Cix gets it in 5 BBY. It still has to go through Parlay Thorp and Dax Doogun to get to Cix in that four year interim. When Cix's kids refer to him having the ship briefly, they must mean very briefly (which fits with the ship being called 55 years old), just during this year. That also must mean that Doogun sold it to Cix this year, which puts the Vistal Purn portion of the story in this year as well, albeit probably earlier in the year.

- On Stassia, Zeck Tambell and Valon Rizz pick up Aalia Duu-lang as part of a counterfeiting scheme. Aalia manages to sweet-talk her way out of custody, much to Tambell's later regret. (conjecture based on Ringers)
- The lava beds under Rubyflame Lake on Centares, having been tapped by the Empire for a decade, are exhausted, leaving a ruinous landscape where a wonderful resort had existed during the Old Republic. (conjecture based on Dark Encounter)
- Morgan Katarn begins working against local Imperial control. (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- On Tatooine, Muftak takes in Kabe, a fellow orphan. (conjecture based on Play it Again, Figrin D'an: The Tale of Muftak and Kabe)
- Shamus Falconi takes his grandmother's ship, the Lumrunner, and begins his smuggling career.* (conjecture based on the Lumrunners)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Falconi is about 26 in Lumrunners (and that he'd been smuggling for about 5 years by then).

- An Imperial scouting team, led by Admiral Spitar P’ton, comes across Kubindi and brings Imperial rule and technology to the world.* (conjecture based on A Free-Trader's Guide to the Planets)*

*NOTE: This rounds "a few" to 5 years.

- When Tinian I'att witnesses Wrrlevgebev being beaten for trying to help a Kitonak slave escape slavers, Tinian races in and throws herself over Wrrl, protecting him and offering to buy him. After some protest, Tinian's grandmother, Augusta I'att, agrees to purchase the Wookiee. Though she will not know it until she learns to speak Wrrl's language, Wrrl how owes a life debt to Tinian. (conjecture based on To Fight Another Day)
- After numerous attempts to recruit Sedriss for Imperial service fail, Imperial Inquisitors capture the Force-sensitive Sedriss and bring him before Palpatine. Palpatine makes him a deal: they will battle, and if Sedriss wins, he can kill Palpatine. If Palpatine wins, Sedriss must serve Palpatine for life. Sedriss, egotistical, agrees, and Palpatine beats the hell out of him, refusing to stop even when Sedriss gives up. This proves to Sedriss that Palpatine is his superior in every sense, and Sedriss becomes a loyal Dark Side trainee under Palpatine, later an Executor.* (conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook)*

*NOTE: This could be any time before Palpatine's death, but I figured 5 BBY was a nice round number.

- The Galactic Empire begins a mining operation on Karra for varmigio, based on incorrect information over 500 years old which was rediscovered by Darryn Edalm. The colony, as with the original mining colony centuries earlier, failed, leaving Edalm the governor of a relatively useless world.* (conjecture based on Stranded)*

*NOTE: The mention of this in the supplemental information for Stranded is vague and only says this happened "recently." I chose to interpret that as 5 years ago, a nice round number.

- In the wake of the activities on Janara III, Adalric Brandl goes into hiding on Najiba for a short time. (conjecture based on The Final Exit and Betrayal by Knight)
- The Empire has decided to set up a permanent presence on Garos IV. Dair Haslip is about to head for the Raithal Academy to join the Imperial Army, though he is saddened that his friend Jos Mayda cannot be accepted due to his father Desto's status as a resistance fighter. Dair is informed while speaking with Magir Paca and his grandmother, Kerin Haslip, that Sr. Lt. Brandei will be arriving soon, followed shortly by the Judicator. Tork and Sali Winger are to meet with him at a local medical facility. Dair and the others go to meet them there. At the facility, Brandei introduces them to Imperial Lt. Chancellor, who is sitting with a young girl. Brandei tells the Wingers that the girl (Alex Turhaya, though they don't know anything but her first name, which in itself won't come for another short while) was orphaned when Rebels attacked her world and killed her guardians. The Wingers adopt the child and thus "Alex Winger” comes to be her name. As the Imperials leave, Chancellor, greatly distraught, tells Sali and Kerin that it was not Rebels who destroyed Alex’s village, but Imperials. Later, Jos and Dair are walking in the area that used to be Kerin’s before the Imperials forced her to sell her hibridium mine to them. A group of scouts who are searching for Chancellor (who has deserted) find Jos and Dair and Jos is killed as a spy. Dair kills the scouts and hides their weapons. When he tells his grandmother of this, she introduces him to the resistance, of which she, Paca, and Desto are a part. They go to retrieve the hidden weapons, and Dair considers Paca’s suggestion that he continue to join the Imperial Army to give them eyes and ears inside the Imperial ranks. Shortly thereafter, Tork Winger is made the first Imperial Governor of Garos IV and Dair says his goodbyes and heads out for Raithal. Elsewhere, Chancellor, who will soon be known only as “Chance,” joins the resistance.

(Turning Point)

- Imperial Counselor Baro is assigned to Garos IV.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #2 via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Tusken Raiders kill Mrs. Bjornson’s son on Tatooine.
  (conjecture based on Drawing the Maps of Peace: The Moisture Farmer’s Tale)
- Soontir Fel begins teaching at the Prefsbelt IV academy.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: X-wing Rogue Squadron--“The Rise of Isard: In the Empire's Service”)

(Empire Blues: The Devaronian’s Tale)

A Rebel uprising in Montellian Serat on Devaron ends after one group is captured and executed by forces loyal to Kardue’sai’Malloc, and the second group is then attacked by Malloc’s forces. Afterwards, Malloc leaves Imperial service and leaves Devaron, changing his name to Labria and following various musicians around on their tours. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Hutt Gambit)

- Mako Spince introduces Han Solo to Roa, who teaches him how to fly the Kessel Run, among other things.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
- While working for Mako Spince, Han Solo and Chewbacca are stopped while taking the Jaina’s Light (how’s that for an ironic name?) to Nadiem by Imperials under the command of Captain Deyd Lnewe. Lnewe wants to get out of the assignment, so he assumes Solo to be a smuggler (which he is), and has the ship inspected. The Imperials find nothing. This happens two more times, with each inspection being more thorough. After the third, Solo and Chewbacca manage to escape just in time. Lnewe has realized that they aren’t flying the same ship each time, but have come in three different ships. The ships themselves are what are being smuggled! Han and Chewbacca head back to Nar Shaddaa for another big payday.
  (Routine)

About five months after starting to learn about smuggling from Spince, Han Solo begins working for Lord Jiliac and Jabba the Hutt, Jiliac’s great-nephew. Three months into his employment, he saves Jabba’s Star Jewel, with Jabba aboard, from a group of Drell pirates under orders from Aruk the Hutt. It is at about this time that Teroenza hires Boba Fett to go after Han (Fett even receives two Mandalorian wrist darts for even speaking with Teroenza).
Two months later, meets the magician/conwoman Xaverri and begins a relationship with her. Soon thereafter, Boba Fett arrives, nearly capturing Han, but Han is saved by Lando Calrissian, who was looking for Han to act as a pilot for him. Grateful for the save, Han teaches Lando how to fly his ship, the Millennium Falcon, better, but he can’t join Lando in his trip to Oseon because he has promised to join Xaverri on her next tour. Han decides to lay low for a while to avoid Fett (with the tour being the perfect excuse), and tells Jiliac (now considered “Lady” Jiliac because the Hutt is pregnant) that he intends to leave Nar Shaddaa. As a last mission, Jiliac has him transport him and Jabba to Nal Hutta for a Hutt clan meeting. At the meeting, Aruk the Hutt accuses Jiliac of raiding Ylesia. (He didn’t, of course. It was Bria Tharen’s rebel forces.) Jabba the Hutt then accuses Aruk of stealing from other Hutts, thus making those Hutts objects for Palpatine’s anger. After the meeting, Jiliac and Jabba begin plotting to use Teroenza to strike at the Besadii clan. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Hutt Gambit)

- Wedge Antilles helps repair the Pulsar Skate.
  (conjecture based on Rogue Squadron)
- Moff Wilhuff Tarkin establishes a refueling outpost on Ryloth, where he recruits the gifted Twi’lek scientist Tol Sivron. To find other such talented individuals, he returns to Omwat. He takes a ten Omwati children captive to use as designers and tacticians, with their performance being the basis for their families’ survival. Of the ten, only Qui Xux (and presumably her family) will survive.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Search)
- Stanton Rendar, brother of Dash, is killed in a freighter crash that destroys part of Palpatine’s private wing of the Imperial Museum. Infuriated at the loss of Jedi and Sith artifacts, Palpatine orders the Rendar family stripped of everything they have (which is given to Xizor) and banished from the Core Worlds. This includes the expulsion of Dash from the Caridian academy.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Sourcebook)
- Loka Hask purchases Crimson Jack’s old Cindev series IV picket ship, the Buzzer, and continues his pirate activities.
  (conjecture based on X-wing Rogue Squadron Handbook)
- Tork Winger and Tionthes Turi create a truce to end the Garos IV/Sundari war. Imperial intervention keeps both sides to the agreement.
  (conjecture based on the Star Wars Encyclopedia)
- As the Empire cracks down on any rebel activity on Garos IV, the homestead of the Tantor family is destroyed. When Brenn Tantor and Delfis Tantor are saved from the rubble by a stormtrooper, they decide to devote their lives to the Imperial cause. Brenn leaves immediately for the Academy. Delfis stays behind, for now.
  (conjecture based on the Force Commander)
- Alzoc III is subjugated upon its “discovery” by the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races)
- The planet Flax comes under Imperial jurisdiction (through business negotiations, not through force) and the local Flakax begin working as miners for the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 4: Alien Races)
- On Najiba, the Dark Jedi Adalric Brandl terrorizes townspeople demanding the services of a pilot to safely take him out of the system (during the arrival of the Children of Najiba—an asteroid shower). A bartender finally brings in his acquaintance, Thaddeus Ross, to take the menace off-planet. Ross learns, via hints laid down by the bartender, that Brandl is a Jedi. They make their way off of Najiba to Trulalis, where Brandl speaks with his former master, Otiar. Ross learns from the encounter that twelve years ago, Brandl fell under Palpatine’s influence and he has been journeying as penance in an attempt to turn back to the light. The old actor and master sends Brandl away. Brandl is soon warned by his son, Jaalib, that the locals are going to make an attempt on Adalric’s life. Ross and Brandl return to the ship and escape as the vessel is assaulted by locals. Finally into space, they are met by a Star Destroyer that Brandl has summoned with a hidden transponder, in resignation. They are taken aboard to see Inquisitor Tremayne. Tremayne sets Ross free with a 10,000 credit reward for Brandl's "capture." Brandl, resigned to his fate, gives Ross the agreed on payment for his trip from Najiba to Trulalis, and then, upon Ross' taking leave of the Star Destroyer, commits suicide using a thermal detonator. Or so it seems...

(The Final Exit)

- After faking his own death among Imperials, Adalric Brandl makes his way back to Trulalis. There, he takes his son, Jaalib, and begins training him in both acting and Jedi arts.

(conjecture based on Uhl Eharl Khoehng)

- On Stassia, Aalia Duu-lang arranges for the death of crime lord Hek Dallan, then takes over his organization. She converts his totally illegal operation to include a few legitimate businesses to cover her tracks.

(conjecture based on Ringers)

- Young con artist Lando Calrissian (with his droid, Flek) comes to an alien world, where he pretends to be a ronin Jedi, seeking to save the local Meeks from a rancor. Unbeknownst to the Fleks, the rancor was actually removed by poachers a week before. Promising to save them in return for various artifacts, Lando fakes rancor sounds and such, only to come under attack by a real one. When the real rancor retreats, Lando returns with a fake rancor tooth to claim his reward. Upon trying to sell the artifacts later, though, he learns that while his ruse was just a con on the Meeks, they conned him as well. The artifacts are all fake.*

Young Lando Calrissian)*

NOTE: A reader pointed out to me that Lando mentions knowing Han, which means this must be after The Hutt Gambit.

The Adventures of the Turhaya, Ross, Winger, and Brandl Families [continued]

(AJ/TFTE/TFTNR/SWT short stories: Charlene Newcomb & Patricia A. Jackson)

Laughter After Dark [flashback] (AJ15 short story: Patricia A. Jackson)

And Leebo Makes Three (SWI128/DRS12 short story: Michael Reaves & Maya Kathryn Bohnhoff)

And Leebo Makes Three (SWI128/DRS12 short story: Michael Reaves & Maya Kathryn Bohnhoff)

The Princess Leia Diaries [continued] (SWT11 short story: Jason Hall)

The Princess Leia Diaries [continued] (SWT11 short story: Jason Hall)

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)

Chapter 15 [flashback]

Chapter 20 [flashback]

The Adventures of the Turhaya, Ross, Winger, and Brandl Families (AJ/TFTE/TFTNR/SWT short stories: Charlene Newcomb & Patricia A. Jackson)

Turning Point (AJ5/SWT short story: Charlene Newcomb)

Empire Blues: The Devaronian's Tale (TFTMEC short story: Daniel Keys Moran)

Empire Blues: The Devaronian’s Tale (TFTMEC short story: Daniel Keys Moran)

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)

The Hutt Gambit (novel: A. C. Crispin)

New Friends, Old Enemies

The Smuggler's Road

Nar Shaddaa

Routine (SWT2 short story: Tony Isabella)

Routine (SWT2 short story: Tony Isabella)

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)

The Hutt Gambit [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)

Upping the Ante

The Thirteenth Bounty Hunter

Love at First Flight

Con Games

The Adventures of the Turhaya, Ross, Winger, and Brandl Families [continued]

(AJ/TFTE/TFTNR/SWT short stories: Charlene Newcomb & Patricia A. Jackson)

The Final Exit (AJ4/TFTE/SWT short story: Patricia A. Jackson)

Young Lando Calrissian (SWT20 short story: Gilbert Hernandez)
Young Lando Calrissian (SWT20 short story: Gilbert Hernandez)

4 BBY
- Robbe Nostler of the Galactic News Network is stationed on Indu San.
  (conjecture based on Kella Rand Reporting)
- A salvage ship accidentally jumps into the Koler system and discovers the long abandoned wreckage of Jedi Master Val Isa’s starship Sanctuary. They board and begin salvage operations, accidentally reactivating a Basilisk war droid that had refused to leave its dead Mandalorian master behind. It had been dormant for thousands of years and is now hunting them. The crew escapes, but they are soon confronted by Imperials, including Lieutenant TK-575, who confiscate much of what they have discovered, including a Mandalorian helmet cut in half by a lightsaber, the transponder from the lost ship Astral Jester, an ancient droid control core, and Val Isa’s Ilum Talisman. The objects are sent to the Archive at Phellar University on Eriadu, though they will be put into storage until being removed to be cataloged four years from now.
  (conjecture based on Lessons from the Past)
- The Corellian Times becomes one of the best financial newsfeeds available in the galaxy.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #3 via TimeTales, abridged)
- Bancor Armaments begins to produce personal-safety weapons.
  (conjecture based on Galladimun’s Fantastic Technology via TimeTales, abridged)
- Approximately three years before Dash Rendar becomes Javul Charn’s security consultant, the Otoga-222 droid known as “Oto” begins touring with Javul Charn.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Games)
- Anii Turhaya dies in a freak weapons accident at her workplace. In truth, the “accident” was sabotage. Anii’s father, Lexi, was actually a Jedi Knight in hiding, and the Empire had killed her to try to get to Lexi. Matt Turhaya, her husband, is devastated. He works hard to get through is Academy exams quickly, sending their daughter Alex to live with Anii’s parents on Janara III until he can leave to care for her.
  (conjecture based on Passages and Charlene Newcomb’s website)
- After fifteen years on the run from the Empire to hide his Force-sensitive nature, Tarast Voon finds a kindred spirit in scholar Hethan Romund, who encourages his studies of the Force.
  (conjecture based on Force and Destiny: Beginner Game: Tarast Character Folio)
- Arden Lyn reappears, alive and well after millennia in Morichro suspended animation. She runs afoul of Jedi hunters. As a prisoner, she kills Inquisitor Darys, and is about to be killed by Inquisitor Tremayne when Inquisitor Torbin cuts off her arm, but spares her so that Palpatine might make use of her teras kasi skills. Palpatine takes her in and begins having her train his Byss Mages and Sovereign Protectors in her arts, all the while lying to her about intending to bring her lover, Xendor, back to life through the Dark Side.
  (conjecture based on The Emperor’s Pawns)
- Around this time, Fren Nurook begins working as an engineer in Glare Peak.
  (conjecture based on Rescue at Glare Peak)*

*NOTE: She has lived and worked in Glare Peak for five years, so this assumes a 1 ABY date for Rescue at Glare Peak.
- Fifteen years after the end of the Clone Wars, the Veiled Sorority scouts an old Separatist facility in Blackwind Crater on Saleucami. They begin refurbishing it for a potential base.
  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)
- Yiyar Salvage expands its business on the Wheel to include custom and black market technology, which brings it into competition and conflict with IsoTech’s operation there.*
  (conjecture based on Beyond the Rim)*

*NOTE: This is “a few years” before Beyond the Rim, which I have rounded to 5 years.
- When the transport corporation he works for is closed by the Empire, Rik Torrence is recruited into the rebel band at Arda Base. *
  (conjecture based on Onslaught at Arda I)*

*NOTE: This is five years before the adventure, which I have placed in 1 ABY.
- Seren Song, working for what will eventually develop into Alliance Intelligence, goes deep undercover. She will remain so for four years.

(conjecture based on A Shattered Hope)

- While en route from Eriadu to Pangarees, young spacer Shandy Fanaso of the Corellian Gambit makes a brief stop at Triton. Imperial Lieutenant Gallagane finds amusement in Shandy’s lack of familiarity with the reason why they say “deader than a Triton Moon.” He is cleared to go to Triton Besh, where he should study the Rules of Law for the Domains of Triton that he will be given by the insectoids there. He arrives and is met by a local insectoid guide, Maclimentus, who fills their travel time with lessons from the tracts of Gactimus, the local religion. He is excited to see a cantina, which is not considered part of the Domains of Triton, but he has to use Triton scrip there, so he must go to the cargo-tithe office to trade currency first. Once he does so, he leaves Maclimentus right outside and enters the cantina on his own (since the insectoid cannot accompany him outside of the Domains). Unfortunately, there are no intoxicants or stimulants to be found, just juice and water, due to local laws. (There isn’t even any music, since the insectoids consider it a stimulant.) The bartender, Saman, explains that only the cantina, the restrooms, the umbilicals connecting to ship, and pilots’ ships themselves are considered outside of the Domains of Triton, so they cannot be bombarded by preaching. Shandy wonders why the cantina cannot have intoxicants and such, if it is outside their Rule of Law, but the problem is that anything brought in would have to be taken from a ship and umbilical to the cantina, and everything in between those places is part of the Domains. He soon leaves on the Corellian Gambit and returns with a hold full of intoxicants and such. He docks at Triton Besh and leaves the ship docked. He turns it into a club, Shandy’s Place, since it is beyond the Rule of Law of the Domains of Triton. When the insectoids deem his actions immoral but not illegal, he offers to cut them in on profits as “tithes” in return for an exclusive right to operate, and he even takes some Gactimus tracts to put at the bar. He soon leaves to pick up more cargo for Shandy’s Place and swaps out the Corellian Gambit for a much larger ship, Shandy’s Pleasure Palace. Unfortunately, the laws have been changed in his absence to be used against him. As a result of these new (rather snide) changes, Shandy’s ship and its cargo are confiscated, and there is nothing that Gallagane can do to help him. His “fine” is not to be paid in tithes, however, but in devotion-service. Since the original cantina’s jukebox is broken to stop music from playing, but no insectoids can enter in order to spread the word of Gactimus, Shandy is forced to do so, reciting tracts in place of a jukebox. He also cannot leave until fulfilling this service. He will only be through after reciting the saga of Gactimus’ enlightenment correctly 500 times, which takes the next four years. (To be continued below . . . )

(Deader Than a Triton Moon)*

*NOTE: The Essential Reader’s Companion pins down the framing story for this item to 6 ABY, but it does not pin down the flashback that is the bulk of the story. I asked Jason Fry (the author) directly, and he confirmed that this flashback segment should be in 4 BBY.

- Arden Lyn, captured by Torbin, is debriefed on her life experiences, including her time with the Legions of Lettow during the First Great Schism. (To be continued below . . . )

(The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- Arden Lyn receives a replacement arm from an ancient juggernaut war droid.

(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

- After saving Han, Lando had gone to Oseon 2795. Once there, he hears of treasure in the Rafa system and heads there in the Millennium Falcon. (He still sucks as a pilot, by the way.) He lands on Rafa IV and purchases Vuffi Raa, a droid (unbeknownst to him, a scout for the Silentium), to pilot the ship in his stead. Soon thereafter, the local police arrest him (on false charges to ensnare him). They are in league with the planetary governor, Duttes Mir, who is in turn wants Lando to help them find the Mindharp of Sharu. Lando is given this option or death. He obviously chooses to help. He is given a Key that should get him to where the Mindharp, a mysterious religious artifact of fabled power, but has no idea where to look for it. He decides to check the local bars to see what he can learn. He meets Mohs the High Singer, a Toka, who recognizes the Key and calls Lando the “Emissary.” Mohs agrees to help Lando and they proceed to Rafa V. Once there, they are attacked by Captain Jandler, the cop he was arrested for engaging, who wants the Key back, under orders from Mr. Lando and Mohs defeat Jandler and, with the Key, find a glass pyramid through which one can find the Mindharp. He returns to Rafa IV four quickly-moving months later. Upon giving the Mindharp to Mir, he is placed back in jail. Mir then uses the Mindharp, seeking power, but only manages to do what the Mindharp of Sharu was intended to do. It awakens the original inhabitants of the planet, the Sharu. Lando escapes and manages to steal the last few life-crystals harvested from the Rafa system and leaves the system. Gepta, the sorcerer, plans revenge against Lando.

(Lando Calrissian and the Mindharp of Sharu)
- Lando Calrissian buys a spaceship lot with money from the life-crystals.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit)
- The Empire establishes an interdiction field around the Rafa System.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- Approximately one year after Brenn Tantor goes to the Imperial Academy to become a stormtrooper, his brother, Dellis, does so as well, leaving Garos IV behind. While both brothers are training, they learn that their father has been killed in a rebel attack, while on a medical supply run to Graal’din.
  (conjecture based on the Force Commander)
- A lone spacer on a scouting mission is thrown off-course by a meteor, causing him to set down in the legendary Seoul 5 System. Upon entering the ruins, the spacer takes a crystal from a machine in the ruins and keeps a map of how to get to the system. These objects will later come into the possession of Han Solo, shortly after the Battle of Endor.
  (conjecture based on Seoul Searching)
- One of the cryodexes from Alderaan goes missing and is presumed stolen. It will fall into the hands of Black Sun vigo Qazad by the time of the Battle of Yavin.
  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)
- Six months after leaving with Xaverri, Han Solo finds himself dumped with a letter, yet again. He returns to Nar Shaddaa and the Hutt’s, but finally has enough money to lease a ship from Lando’s lot. He names it the Bria. Unbeknownst to Han, Bria Tharen is now working within an Imperial military base as a spy for a group of rebels. He then returns to work for Jabba the Hutt, who subsequently calls off Boba Fett, paying Fett to lay off of Han for a while, which Fett is willing to do, given that the Besadii clan now has a more important bounty—Bria Tharen. While on Nar Shaddaa, Han meets Shug Ninx (to have the Bria fixed), “adopts” Jarik (a young man who pretends to be a Solo, whom Han takes under his wing), meets Rik Duel, and falls in love with Salla Zend (a gunrunner of some repute). (It’s a very productive interpersonal time on Nar Shaddaa, to say the least.) Teroenza, having had his fill of Aruk the Hutt, strikes a bargain with Jiliac the Hutt to murder Aruk by poisoning some tree-frogs that Aruk would be eating. (To be continued below . . .)

(The Hutt Gambit)
- Han Solo, Katya M’Buele, and the other crew members of a smuggling vessel are captured on Skye by Majestrix Kharys. Only Han and Katya live to tell the tale.
  (conjecture based on The Long Hunt)
- Armennion Ullgusta writes two damaging documentaries, titled The Edict of Jiaan and Obeisance: Betrayal Within, also rumored to have been produced by Pret Swain. These two documentaries highlighted many aspects of the purge of the Jedi Knights, and earned Ullgusta a place on the Empire’s most wanted list.
  (conjecture based on The Black Sands of Socorro via Time Tales, verbatim)
- Mon Mothma, Bail Organa, and Garm Bel-Iblis begin planning a unified rebel operation against the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook)
- Maw Installation is constructed. Under Bevel Lemelisk and under Wilhuff Tarkin’s orders, a “prototype” Death Star is created there when it becomes obvious that Imperial technicians on the actual Death Star are having some trouble adapting the station’s original Geonosian plans into a true, working model with a working superlaser. They set to work on this “prototype,” which will essentially be a frame with a superlaser and control apparatus, rather than a full-sized or fully-functional Death Star.
  (conjecture based on The Hutt Gambit and Death Star Owner’s Technical Manual)
• Around this time, Memah Roothes becomes the owner of the Soft Heart Cantina on Coruscant.*
  (conjecture based on Death Star)*
  *NOTE: The wording on this reference is odd. The novel says, "Memah had managed this place for two years, and owned it for two more, before the galaxy had gone crazy." The "galaxy going crazy" seems to refer to the beginning of the Rebel Alliance and its conflict with the Empire, and the dates before, though oddly worded, seem to suggest that she owned it for two years before the Declaration of Rebellion and managed it starting two years earlier. That is how I have chosen to interpret the information.

• As he prepares to leave for the Caridian military academy, Kyle Katarn is given a modified Bryar rifle by his father, Morgan Katarn. The modified rifle is better known as a Bryar pistol.
  (conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part I)

• Norcomm engineers develop the 1A9 installation, a minimally staffed automated facility for mining methane.*
  (conjecture based on Operation Norcomm or Asta la Vista Baby)*
  *NOTE: This is "recently" before the 1A9 is set up.

• Kyle Katarn enrolls in the Caridian military academy.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire)

• Dia’passik (Dia Passik) is kidnapped from Ryloth and sold as a slave.
  (conjecture based on Iron Fist)

• Mair Koda, having lived much of her life under the care of her foster parents, Arn and Emmi Stonelaw, takes command of her recently deceased father’s ship, the Blue Boy and becomes an independent trader/spacer.
  (conjecture based on The Draw)

• The Pan-Tapani Historical Society is formed at the Mrisst Academy by Arkeld (and secretly funded by Bel Janius).
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, abridged)

• Klingson, with his droids, builds a space station known as Klingson’s Moon AKA Droid World.
  (conjecture based on Cynabar’s Fantastic Technology: Droids via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• Jarred Sneel's anti-droid-exploitation Mechanical Liberation Front stages hit-and-run assaults on droid companies like Industrial Automata and MerenData.
  (conjecture based on Cynabar’s Fantastic Technology: Droids via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• Wilm Olgreen’s Olgreen Intelligence Guild protests droid cruelty by blockading reclamation factories.
  (conjecture based on Cynabar’s Fantastic Technology: Droids via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• Jin-Jin begins smuggling.*
  (conjecture based on Smugglers of the Outer Rim)*
  *NOTE: This assumes that Smugglers of the Outer Rim is meant to be current as of 5 ABY, and that the fact that he’s been smuggling at that point for nearly a decade can be rounded to 9 years of smuggling.

• Lord Cassius Nolath Rha loses the race during the Festival of the High Winds on Sevarcos.*
  (conjecture based on Festival of the High Winds)*
  *NOTE: The packet says that he has won frequently, including three wins in a row during the years before Festival of the High Winds. This would seem to suggest that he lost the year before those three wins, since otherwise it would’ve said four wins in a row.

• Morgan Q. Raventhorn takes apart some hyperdrive components in her father’s ship and reassembles them in less than 90 minutes, showing her early technical aptitude.
  (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)

• T’Charek Haathi applies for entrance to the Imperial Academy, but is denied due to her alien status. She is soon recruited by the Wroonian defense force.*
  (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)*
  *NOTE: This assumes Jayme is 25 in Special Ops: Shipjackers.

• Yeorg Captison becomes Prime Minister of Bakura.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)

• Hal Horn records a holographic message for Corran Horn to tell him his Jedi heritage.
  (conjecture based on I, Jedi)
• The Cirra Mace is sold on the underground market in Brenn on Genesia. Rumors suggest the buyer was a Nalroni merchant.
  (conjecture based on From the Files of Corellia Antilles)
• Bonestar Pirates leave the Gus Treta Inner System Market Station in the Corellian System in a rush, while still refueling. The resulting fire could have destroyed the station, but loyal owners and employees save the station. It will be repaired over the next four years.*
  (conjecture based on Sons of Fortune)*
*NOTE: This assumes a basic timing for most Edge of the Empire materials as just after ANH.
• Luke Skywalker (age 15) and Biggs Darklighter (age 20) take Biggs' landspeeder to see the remains of the Space Siren, only to end up checking out womp rats and Tusken Raiders. It is while watching the latter that they come upon the remnants of the camp (preserved as a sort of holy site it seems) where, unbeknownst to Luke, his father had slaughtered an entire group of Tusksens after finding his mother (Luke's grandmother) dying. The encounter leaves Luke shaken for reasons he cannot entirely explain. (To be continued below . . . )
  (A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)
• Owen Lars relents and allows Luke Skywalker to purchase a used X-34 landspeeder for himself.
  (conjecture based on A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)
• While hunting womp rats in a T-16 Skyhopper, Luke Skywalker and his friend Windy are stranded when the T-16 clips a wing. After fending off Jawas and hiding from sandpeople, they are saved from a krant draygon by the mysterious old man named “Ben.” (Luke actually met him about five years ago but either does not remember or is surprised to see him again.) The next day, Ben pacifies a dewback for them to ride home, but Ben disappears as soon as they get there, likely because Luke’s uncle Owen Lars recognizes him. They return to salvage the T-16 later, but Luke can’t shake the feeling that “Ben” is more than he appears.
  (Adventure in Beggar's Canyon)
• A group of rebel agents go to Mother’s, a spaceport in orbit of Peekoine, to meet a rebel contact. Just as they find him, he is attacked by a probe droid which recognizes him as a rebel operative. Wounded, he gasps out “Two Jedi” and the name “Baronis.” The rebels go down to the largest of the planet’s floating cities and begin trying to find information on the name “Baronis.” While hacking a computer, they accidentally order tickets to a play being performed the next day, “Two Jedi Men from Baronis.” Learning all they can from the city’s computer system, the rebels go for a walk through the streets. Noticing some commotion, they see that the local Imperial governor, Zannen, has rented out a restaurant and evicted all the other patrons so he can entertain his guests alone. Wanting to meet their local opposition, the rebels sneak into the restaurant and promptly begin hitting on a beautiful woman in Zannen’s group. It turns out that she is Zannen’s daughter, Yuma, and is a nasty, manipulative woman (actually, she only feigns that personality to cover her sympathies for the Rebellion), as she toys with them only to trick them into picking up the check. The next day, they decide to go to the play for which they have tickets. Luckily, the Tantrellius Theatre Troupe, featuring master thespian, Damien Tantrellius, will be performing. While waiting for the show to begin, they notice a suspicious looking character with a holdout blaster sneaking backstage. As the play begins, one of the rebels, a force sensitive, notices that Damien is making a disturbance in the force (he is a former Jedi Knight suffering from amnesia). He also notices that Damien’s daughter, Plum, bears a striking resemblance to Yuma Zannen. Curious, the rebels go backstage to talk with her, only to find her missing and themselves mistaken for actors. They are thrown into costumes and shoved onstage, whereupon they promptly embarrass themselves (they can’t sing). Eventually, they extricate themselves and notify Damien that his daughter is missing. He contacts the authorities and waits for a ransom message while the rebels try to track her down. They learn that she was abducted by members of the Gutterwipes, a local swoop gang, and track them to their hidden base. After a brief firefight, it becomes clear that the gang had intended to kidnap Yuma Zannen and had mistaken Plum for her. Yuma shows up and explains that she had hired the gang to kidnap her so that she could have some freedom to help lead the gang in rebelling against the Empire on Peekoine (they have no idea how to contact the Rebel Alliance and so had decided to start their own rebellion). Having met some potential allies, the rebels return Plum to her father and put enough pieces together to realize that he is a former Jedi (although Damien doesn’t know any of this, Governor Zannen has recognized him as the man responsible for his wife’s death during the Clone Wars and plans to kill him).*

(Peekoine Opera Blues)*

*NOTE: Luke Van Horn, who submitted information for this article, suggests that somewhat generic Rebellion era story must take place prior to ANH because Yuma is 18 years old in the story, but she was “very young” when her mother was killed during the Clone Wars. I have assumed that she was born when the Clone Wars began (22 BBY), so that she can be 18 here and have her mother die when she is 2 (20 BBY), still during the Clone Wars.

- An Imperial prison colony on Dathomir, long abandoned, is rebuilt. Upon seeing her chance to leave her homeworld, Gethzerion approaches the commander and offers the Nightsisters’ services in guarding prisoners, using the time to learn about Imperial technology, especially their ships. Later, when the prison is attacked by the Nightsisters (perhaps to steal a shuttle), Palpatine orders the prison bombarded from space and leave two Imperial Star Destroyers in orbit. The Nightsisters are to be confined to the planet.
  (conjecture based on The Courtship of Princess Leia and The Dark Side Sourcebook)
- General Zakar takes over Imperial operations on Garos IV.
  (conjecture based on Mission to Zila)
- Miletta Sabrin becomes Governor of the Renillis system.
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Near Janodral Mizar, Han Solo and Chewbacca run across a group of Zygerran slavers. They subsequently free the slaves and give them control of the slavers’ ship.
  (conjecture based on Heir to the Empire)
- Midje joins the rebellion against the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Star Wars: Customizable Card Game via TimeTales, paraphrased)

Deader Than a Triton Moon [flashback] (SWH short story: Jason Fry)

Deader Than a Triton Moon [flashback] (SWH short story: Jason Fry)

The Essential Guide to Warfare [continued] (essential guide: Jason Fry & Paul R. Urquhart)

The Essential Guide to Warfare [continued] (essential guide: Jason Fry & Paul R. Urquhart)

The Ancient Republic

The War of the Jedi and the Legions of Lettow

The Lando Calrissian Adventures (novel trilogy: L. Neil Smith)

Lando Calrissian and the Mindharp of Sharu (novel: L. Neil Smith)

Prologue

Chapters 1 – 20

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)

The Hutt Gambit [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)

Con Games [continued]

The Shadow of the Empire

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)

Chapter 4

Adventure in Beggar’s Canyon (children’s book: Jane Mason)

Adventure in Beggar’s Canyon (children’s book: Jane Mason)

Peekoine Opera Blues (SGFG88 short story: William Herz)

Peekoine Opera Blues (SGFG88 short story: William Herz)

The Curtain Rises

A Lovely Red Planet

Enter, the Lady, Breathless

A Night at the Opera

Exit, Stage Right

The Denouement

Til Next Time – Go Home Soon

3 BBY

- During this era, when challenging the Empire is not yet fashionable, Cody Sunn-Childe leads some early resistance actions against the Empire. He will become a legend for his ideas, but he really just loves war for its own sake. The true patriots left him when they realized this. During one battle, a blast sent him into pits inhabited by the M’usts. When he survives falling into their fire, they believe his has been given the powers of the flame-god, and, along with his latent mystic species abilities, he comes to believe it as well. He lives among them until returning to the battlefield, where the carnage sets him on a quest for peace. He uses the power of the flame to give corporeal life to his dreams of peace, creating a kingdom from his own mind in a parallel dimension. His old companions soon join him in a dimension of peace, ever dependent upon Cody’s control of his own inner demons.”

*NOTE: The actual story says that Cody was in his little “dream world” for 10 years, but changes to the timeline to accommodate the prequels have led that date to be retconned to here at 3 BBY, as noted in the New Essential Chronology.

- While in medical school on Rhinnal, Zahara Cody meets an older doctor, with whom she has a fling. While the two separate eventually, his tales of a galaxy in need lead her to seek out work to help the downtrodden after graduation, much to her parents’ dismay.”

*NOTE: I have assumed here that Zahara's comment in Death Troopers that she has worked with Waste for three months is referring to her initial assignment to the Purge. I have further assumed that, since that would have been her first real medical service after graduating from Rhinnal, perhaps two years had passed since her encounter with the doctor, whom she met two years into her studies. That, of course, assumes a four-year course of college, which may or may not be a valid means of conjecture.

- While leading Black Eight on Callos, Juno Eclipse follows orders to destroy a critical installation, which serves to help devastate the planet’s biosphere. She will carry guilt from this, but her next assignment will be a special “reward” . . . piloting Starkiller’s Rogue Shadow.

  (conjecture based on The Force Unleashed)

- Around this time or soon before, new Imperial shipyards are built over Nar Shaddaa.

  (conjecture based on Lords of Nab Hutta)*

*NOTE: The sourcebook calls this “recently,” but it obviously must be prior to The Force Unleashed.

- Savin begins working as a rebel faction spy on Feddasyr.

  (conjecture based on Rebel Heist)*

*NOTE: This assumes Rebel Heist is around 2 ABY, since this is five years earlier.

- The Empire sets up a new naval yard on Bestine, uprooting colonists and promising to relocate them. They fail to follow through with their promise, which causes many colonists to unite in an anti-Imperial underground movement.

  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

- A TAJ9 automated methane mining facility is constructed on the planet Asta and begins operation.

   (conjecture based on Operation Norcomm or Asta la Vista Baby)*

*NOTE: This is three years before the story, which I’ve set shortly after ANH.

- After a year, the old Separatist facility in Blackwind Crater on Saleucami is fully refurbished by the Veiled Sorority, who set it up as a base of operations known as the Vault. They hire the former clonetroopers (now mercenaries) of the 1st Platoon to provide security.

  (conjecture based on Mask of the Pirate Queen)

- Approximately two years before Dash Rendar becomes Javul Charn’s security consultant, Arruna Var becomes Javul Charn’s engineer aboard the Nova’s Heart.

  (conjecture based on Shadow Games)

- During a conversation about gambling with the Tonnika sisters, Han Solo decides to play a prank on his gambling buddy, Lando Calrissian. He arranges for Lando to meet “Bresenni” (a name the sisters would assume when they would exploit the fact that they are identical twins to pretend to be the same person) on Balfron, knowing that Lando wouldn’t be able to resist charming her. Over the next month Lando and Bresenni spend most of their time together, dancing, dining, and gambling. He notices that Bresenni appears to have abrupt mood shifts, but since Lando likes her so much he ignores them. Eventually Lando decides he wants to make their relationship more serious and possible permanent. That evening he visits Bresenni’s hotel room, only to find that she is sharing the room with her doppelganger. Smiling, one of the women hands Lando a holoprojector which plays a message from Han explaining the prank. It ends with Han laughing at Lando’s expense. Lando is furious for a moment, but then he finds himself smiling and admitting that the prank was well played. Someday, Lando will find a way to even the score."

(Double Vision)*

*NOTE: Summary provided by Luke Van Horn. We have no idea when this is meant to take place, other than that it was sometime during Han and Lando’s friendship and at a time when Han would’ve come into contact with the Tonnika sisters due to working for Jabba.

- Senator Garm Bel Iblis is on Anchoron with his family, about to give a speech that will help rally citizens against the Empire. While not an active Rebel, he is a sympathizer. Under orders from Armand Isard, Imperial Intelligence Director, the hotel where Garm’s wife and children are staying is blown up. Garm is spirited away by Aach, a Rebel sent by Bail Organa, who has just told him that Bail wants one of Garm’s agents to go to the Continuum Void tapcafe in Xakrea on Darkknell to meet someone who has sensitive materials to sell to the Rebels—information about the Death Star Project (actually, information about the fact that the project does exist, and is located at Despayre). Knowing that he is now fully into the Rebellion based on the need for vengeance against Palpatine’s Empire, Garm decides to go himself, with the perfect cover—everyone thinks he’s dead. On the day of the meeting, a woman named Moranda Savich, a lifter (pickpocket to the nth power), sees a military-esque man awaiting a buyer (Garm), and she manages to bump into him and steal a pack of eight datacards from him—the information that was to go to Garm. Garm arrives shortly thereafter and, when they realize the packet was stolen, decides to call on an associate of Aach, whom he’d been told to turn to if he needed assistance. On Coruscant, Armand Isard knows of the theft of the data from Despayre and orders his daughter, Field Agent Ysanne Isard, to go to Darkknell and track it down. Back on Darkknell, Hal Horn of Corellian Security arrives searching for Moranda. Ysanne Isard (under the name Glasc, and the title of a Darkknell security agent) and her henchman, Trabler, also arrive and head for the nearest place where one could get fake identification, since they suspect that the person with the data packet will want to change his or her identity to get offworld. Hal heads for one of these shops as well. All three parties (Isard, Horn, and Bel Iblis) end up at Seb “Arky” Arkos’ place at the same general time. Garm manages to keep from being recognized, but Isard takes Horn outside and convinces him to help her find the Rebels behind Garm Bel Iblis’ “assassination.”

Outside, Moranda has seen all the attention and wants nothing more to do with the data. She flirts with Trabler a bit and dumps all of the datacards down into the doorframe of Isard’s car, where she’d never think to look for them. Horn and Isard exit and see her, and as she runs away, Isard has Trabler shoot her. Horn uses his Force abilities to cause the shot to not be deadly, just damaging. After they leave, and Garm has a chance to work out an escape plan with Arky, Garm helps Moranda, who was left for dead. As Garm and Moranda ally themselves in order to get the datacards back, Isard has Trabler try to kill Horn, which ends in Trabler’s death. Horn agrees to team with Isard, since he knows how to catch Moranda, in return for his life. She puts a collar on him, though, so that if she dies or hits a switch, he’d choke to death. After a few well-placed calls by Moranda to the local Colonel Nyroska, the local law enforcement is scouring the area, which Garm and Moranda hope will bring Isard into the open. They manage to maneuver Hal and Isard to their safehouse and Moranda pretends to be an old friend of Hal’s using her disguise talents. She bumps into him and unhooks his collar, and then bumps backwards into Isard, stealing her ID, just as Nyroska arrives to capture the date thief. Moranda pretends to be Isard and has Isard arrested, while Hal can only watch and laugh on the inside. All the while, Garm has made it to the car, opened the door frame, and taken all of the datacards. Moranda has the money he and Arky scrounged up, so she’s got her money, and he has the datacards. By the time Nyroska realizes he arrested the wrong woman, Moranda is long gone, and so is Garm with the data. Later, back on Coruscant, Ysanne confronts Armand. She accuses him of warning Garm Bel Iblis about the assassination attempt, making sure Bel Iblis would get the data to the Rebellion (as a sign of good faith on his part) and sending Ysanne on a mission from which she’d most likely not return, thus giving him an excuse to defect to the Rebellion with all his Imperial secrets. It’s is all a lie, of course, but a good enough one that Armand is taken to the Emperor for execution and Ysanne begins taking his place in the power structure. The Isard legacy lives on.*
Approximately one year before the formation of the Alliance to Restore the Republic, events that will lead to its creation are set in motion in the most unexpected of ways. In the Scarl System, work continues on Darth Vader’s (relatively secret) new Super Star Destroyer, the Executor. Boarding massive starship, Darth Vader elevates his secret Dark Side trainee, “Starkiller” (Galen Marek) to the title of “apprentice.” Vader has been training the young man since finding him on Kashyykk after Order 66 and killing his father, Kento Marek. Vader has groomed Starkiller as his Sith Apprentice, claiming that they will one day rise up and overthrow Emperor Palpatine, allowing Vader and Starkiller to rule the galaxy as the two Dark Lords of the Sith. Now, Vader believes that Starkiller is ready for his first true test. He will be sent to an Imperial shipyard facility in orbit over Nar Shaddaa, where rebellious Jedi Master Rahm Kota is staging a daring assault against the Empire. Starkiller is to take down Kota, along with killing any witnesses (including Imperials) that might reveal his existence. Before leaving, Starkiller is set upon by Obi-Wan Kenobi, who tries to kill him. Starkiller bests the Jedi, who is actually his training droid (Prototype Ten), known as PROXY, who can produce holograms around himself and has a primary function to kill Starkiller, as part of his ongoing training for Vader. Together, Starkiller and PROXY meet the new pilot of Starkiller’s Rogue Shadow, a young Imperial officer, Captain Juno Eclipse. Juno is a model officer in many respects, but she remains haunted by an Imperial attack that she led with the Black Eight to Callos, where her own actions, under orders, led to the complete devastation of the planet’s biosphere as an example to other planets. She also bears significant emotional scars from an disapproving father, who was also an Imperial officer. Together, this odd trio sets out for Nar Shaddaa. After having Juno drop him off on the satellite, Starkiller decimates the forces aboard, militia and Imperial alike, before finally coming face to face with Kota. Kota, who was hoping to have drawn Vader out to face him, is disappointed, but they duel fiercely. In the process, Kota senses that Vader will not always be Starkiller’s master, as Starkiller’s future includes Kota himself. This seems unlikely, though, as Starkiller blinds Kota with his lightsaber and sends him tumbling down from the satellite toward the atmosphere. Starkiller believes he likely survived, but they return to Vader with news of success, claiming Kota is dead. (In the interim between missions, there are those who believe that Starkiller is sent to engage in a Trial of Skill by heading for the Imperial-occupied Jedi Temple, where he fights his way into a confrontation with a spirit or holocron projection of the long-dead Sith Lord Darth Desolus.) Their next mission is to the junk planet of Raxus Prime, where Starkiller faces off with Rodian scavengers under Drexli before taking on Jedi Master Kazdan Paratus in a mechanical recreation of the Jedi Temple. Starkiller kills Paratus, but his mission are far from over. (In the interim between missions, there are those who believe that Starkiller is sent to engage in a Trial of Insight by heading for the Imperial-occupied Jedi Temple, where he fights his way into a confrontation with a spirit or holocron projection of the long-dead Sith Lord Darth Phobos.) He is next sent to Felucia, where Jedi Council member Shaak Ti has gone into hiding. Once there, he battles through hordes of Felucian warriors before battling Shaak Ti herself on the lip of the Ancient Abyss, a gigantic sarlacc. He defeats her, sending her into the sarlacc, but, unbeknownst to them, her death will serve to throw off the balance of the Force-rich world, sending it into darkness, even as Shaak Ti’s current apprentice, Maris Brood, is corrupted by that darkness over the course of many months. Upon returning to the Executor, Starkiller (and Juno, who has begun to be a bit fond of Starkiller and is watching him via a security camera slice) learns that the Emperor has arrived. This is not a lure by Vader, though. Palpatine’s spies have learned of Starkiller, so Palpatine is there to force Vader’s hand. He orders Vader to kill his secret apprentice, leading Vader to smash Starkiller through a viewport and send him tumbling out into space. As for Juno, her work with Starkiller has made her a traitor. She is taken into custody . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(The Force Unleashed)

Rebel spy Scarlet Hark, working for the fledgling groups that will become the Rebel Alliance, visits a private club on Oolan under the alias of “Seddia Chaan,” security engineer for the Salantech Cooperative. For several months, she has been following a lead about the warden of an Imperial prison that may be becoming sympathetic to his political prisoners (rebels). Most of that information is untrue, but it caused her to make contact with Imperial General Cascann (from the Entiia system) via his lover on Ootan. She believes she has convinced him to sell her sensitive Imperial information that would protect worlds and get many Imperials killed by rebels. Unfortunately, as she is about to meet him face to face for the first time to make the trade, her assistant droid, L4-3PO informs her that the imperial interrogator that has been tracking Cascaan, Nuulan Sulannis, has also arrived. After talking with Cascaan, who was pushed into betraying the Empire by his role in orbital bombardment on Burununin (in which people Scarlet knew died), he seems to be having second thoughts about his betrayal and how it basically means an end to the life he has known, especially since the data on the crystal he has brought was only accessible by him, making it easy to figure out who would have sold it. Scarlet has to briefly leave to deal with Sulannis. After knocking him out in an elevator, she returns to find him gone. He has gone back on the trade . . . sort of. Owing to his sense of honor, he has not taken her money, having left her credit chit behind. However, he has also left the data crystal for her. Mission accomplished for Scarlet Hark.*

(Silver and Scarlet)*

*NOTE: We have no indication of when this story takes place, though it is presumed to be a prequel story to Honor Among Thieves, which means it must be at least before the two year mission for Scarlet Hark that leads up to that novel.

- Shortly after Han Solo begins working for the Hutts again, Sector Moff Sarn Shild announces that Emperor Palpatine has now begun to focus on ending illegal activities in Hutt space, whether it be carried out by Hutts or otherwise. Han Solo, being a human instead of a Hutt, is sent to Coruscant to speak on the Hutts’ behalf to Shild. Shild tells him that the Hutts will not be harmed if they fully cooperate and that Nar Shaddaa will be made an “example” to the Hutts. Accompanying Shild is Bria Tharen, who Han mistakenly takes to be Shild’s mistress. As Shild’s fleet approaches Nar Shaddaa, the Hutts (again via Han) attempt to negotiate with the fleet commander, Admiral Winstel Greelanx. Han manages to purchase the plan of attack for the Hutts, which he makes a note of himself. Back on Nar Shadda, he speaks with his allies there, and they begin, under Mako Spince’s direction, to gather every smuggler they can in order to build a fleet to attack Greelanx’s. Bria, acting as a spy, learns from Shild that Palpatine has ordered that Aruk’s Besadii clan, helpful in getting slaves for the Empire, be spared from the onslaught. She then learns that Shild, power-mad as he is, wishes to soon take his sector and secede from the Galactic Empire, using the wealth and resources of the Hutts to take on Palpatine. On Nar Shaddaa, Han brings Xaverri into the defense of the moon, with a plan to use illusions (which are Xaverri’s specialty) and sliced traffic signals to create a fake fleet to attack the Imperials head-on, while the smuggler fleet attacks the flank. The Imperials leaps ahead toward Nar Shadda, despite the reservations of one of their higher ranking captains, Soontir Fel. When the fleet arrives and encounters the smuggler fleet, the attack is so thorough that Greelanx forgets his new orders, sent by Palpatine (apparently) himself, to let the smugglers win, and goes on the offensive. The Battle of Nar Shaddaa is long and devastating, but in the end, Greelanx must retreat. During the conflict, though, the Bria is destroyed, leaving Han once again without a ship of his own. Soon thereafter, Han attends a wedding as a poisoned Aruk kicks the bucket. Aruk is succeeded by his son, Durga the Hutt, who begins speaking with Black Sun in his pursuit of power and revenge. Han goes to pay Greelanx off for his involvement in the Battle of Nar Shaddaa’s planning stages, but when he arrives, he hears Darth Vader murder the man. He runs like hell, encountering Tedris Bjalin on the way off the ship, and heads back to Nar Shaddaa, taking a krayt dragon pearl that was part of the payoff. On Coruscant, Shild commits suicide. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Hutt Gambit)

- Yref Orgege is assigned as Sarn Shild’s replacement.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)
- Shelshla Governor Choard and his future Chief Administrator Disra come into contact for the first time. Disra begins to study Choard.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- Karazak slavers attack a wealthy Tarnab animal merchant while his ship is parked on Tatooine. This attack unintentionally frees the merchant's slave, Swilla Corey. She eventually ends up working on a ranch near the Motesta Oasis colony.*
  (conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Swilla Corey, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What's the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. The date is conjecture, but it must be prior to the attack on the ranch shortly before ANH.

- Dusque Mistflier begins advanced studies to prepare her for a career in bioengineering. This same year, Dusque's youngest brother dies in a training accident, only a few months after joining the Imperial military service.*
  (conjecture based on The Ruins of Dantooine)*

*NOTE: This interprets “a few years” of advanced study as three years.

- Durga the Hutt hires a group of forensic examiners to discover the cause of Aruk's death.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)

- Still angry over the Rafa IV incident, Rokur Gepta lures Lando Calrissian to Oseon 6845 with an anonymous tip about gambling winnings. Lando arrives and is shortly invited to a sabacc game. He realizes that he's essentially in enemy territory, but he can't resist the lure of credits and the chance to see the system's sun flare into the Flamewind. Shortly thereafter, the Millennium Falcon is sabotaged and he finds himself attacked by an Oseon police officer. He is forced to kill the officer, and is arrested and sentenced to death for carrying a firearm. As before, he is offered a deal. This time, he must take two Oseon cops to Oseon 5792 to arrest Bohhuah Mutdah. Mutdah is a rich man, and taking him out of the picture will allow rivals to become rich as well. Of course, Lando must also deal with the Flamewind itself and its harmful radiation, while wondering if he'll get out alive with Gepta trying to kill him every step of the way. Upon arriving at Mutdah's home, however, one of the two cops kills his partner, and then Mutdah kills him. Mutdah, it seems, is dead. The Mutdah that Lando has met has changed form--into Gepta, who killed Mutdah and set up the entire elaborate snare just to kill Lando. Gepta tortures Lando mentally, but his is able to escape, stabbing Gepta's eye and stealing some of the late Mutdah's fortune in the process. On their way from the trap, Lando and Vuffi Raa, his droid pilot, manage to also rescue a Renatasian named Klyn Shanga, who seems to have it in for Vuffi Raa.
  (Lando Calrissian and the Flamewind of Oseon)

- Lando Calrissian is finally in good standing. He's rolling in credits, has learned to fly the Millennium Falcon well, and he's survived Gepta's attempts on his life. Lando then encounters Lehesu, a living spacecraft of the Oswaft species. He agrees to help the Oswaft's fellows, in a space-cloud called ThonBoka. He'll dump as much garbage as he can into the cloud, where the Oswafts will use it as food. Anything they can't digest will be made into precious materials and given to Lando. Hindering his fulfillment of this task is a partnership of revenge, Rokur Gepta and Klyn Shanga, and a fleet between him and ThonBoka. The fleet is apparently trying to get precious materials from the Oswaft. Lando pretends to be a trader, enters the fleet, fakes his own death, and runs like hell into ThonBoka. The fleet, annoyed at the Oswaft, moves into ThonBoka for retribution, followed by a ship containing Gepta, Shanga, and Osuno Whett, a spy. Lando arranges for the Oswaft to help cover him in his flight through ThonBoka, but then Gepta challenges him to a duel to the death. If Lando doesn't accept, ThonBoka will be destroyed. Lando accepts and the duel is about to take place, when Whett attempts to kill both Gepta and Lando (and himself it seems). Lando uses the distraction to kill Gepta, but Gepta manages to strike a death blow to Vuffi Raa. Shanga has, in the process, learned that it was Whett, not Vuffi Raa, who was the Butcher of Renatasia, and while Whett escapes, Shanga leaves in hot pursuit. Lando barely has time to begin mourning for Vuffi Raa when a huge spacecraft enters the vicinity. It tells Lando that it is Vuffi Raa's father. Raa, revealed to be a larval spacecraft, is healed and taken back to his people. Lando takes the precious materials given to him by the Oswaft, and heads out from ThonBoka.
  (Lando Calrissian and the Starcave of ThonBoka)

- Lando Calrissian records his observations about the Oswaft of ThonBoka for future reference.
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)

- The Akorec Strike Cruiser becomes popular.
  (conjecture based on Gamer #5 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Grakkata the Wookiee begins his pirating in the Elrood Sector.
  (conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three)

- Laird Gustavu is appointed Moff of the Tapani Sector.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, abridged)

- Sheila Rinou rises to become captain of a smuggling fleet.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Hira Deboota begins to work as a forensic for the State Coroner’s office on Coruscant during the New Order, and was one of the few beings ever to perform an autopsy on a Yaka.
  Doctor Deboota reported that the cyborg implants of the specimen were very similar to those of a Gank Killer.
  Doctor Deboota went so far as to theorize that the Gank implants were actually the "beta" versions of those which were used on the Yaka.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species via TimeTales, verbatim)

- The L-17A Quickjump navicomputer is produced by Novastar Corporation.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- BlasTech releases the DL-56 blaster pistol.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Shira Elan Colla Brie, now in her teens, is chosen for adolescent indoctrination into COMPNO.
  She soon becomes a top inductee and attracts Darth Vader’s attention.
  She enters Imperial Intelligence and her body is altered to increase her pain threshold and healing rate.*
  (conjecture based on Lumiya: Dark Star of the Empire)*
  *NOTE: This assumes Shira was the same age as Luke and “in her teens” can be interpreted as when she was 15.

- Dannen Lifehold hires Feq as a mechanic aboard the Lifeline.
  (conjecture based on Breaking Free)

- Rejuvenation therapy is developed.
  (conjecture based on Hero’s Trial via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Slizzik and her husband join Crutag the Taloron Hunter’s Gang.
  (conjecture based on Domain of Evil via TimeTales, abridged)

- On Carida, a graduate of the Imperial Military Academy named Stor fouls up during graduation ceremonies, causing the entire front rank of the Cliffside procession to plunge from the cliff that gave the Academy its name.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire)

- Halbrek Dodd begins to work as a negotiator for the Corporate Sector Authority during the height of the New Order.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #7 via TimeTales, abridged)

- Slyder, a Rodian, takes up residence aboard the Star of Empire.
  He is a bounty hunter, or so he says, but instead of chasing after bounties, he finds people who should have bounties and then offers to turn them over to interested parties who had not yet posted bounties.
  He finds the Star of Empire to be prime hunting grounds.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire)

- The resistance against the Empire purchases the Trader’s Luck and renames it the Liberator.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)

- After four years at the Imperial Academy, Stevan Makintay decides to marry his sweetheart, Ketrian Altronel instead of the woman his father had chosen.
  To forcibly keep them apart, Mak’s father has him sent to Garen IV, an Imperial labor colony.
  Ketrian believes he’s simply left her.
  (conjecture based on Firepower)

- Frequent winner of the race during the Festival of the High Winds on Sevarcos, Lord Cassius Nolath Rha, wins the race again after having lost in the last race.
  (conjecture based on Festival of the High Winds)
• T’Charek Haathi becomes a pilot for the Wroonian defense force . . . and then goes AWOL with her squadronmates.*
  (conjecture based on Special Ops: Shipjackers)*
*NOTE:  This assumes Jayme is 25 in Special Ops: Shipjackers.
• Aboard Quincey's Girl, Tru’eb, a slave of Big Quince since his cousin Ku’amar sold him into slavery to stop him from heading their Twi’lek clan, meets the recently captured Platt Okeefe. She is to be given to Moff Jellrek as a gift from Big Quince. Platt speaks to Tru’eb of escape and uses her knowledge of Gruvian Tovash and Ryll to cause a torrent of smoke when Jellrek inspects a crate of spice that is also part of the gift. In the ensuing chaos, Tru’eb and Platt escape. To reward him for his help, Platt begins teaching Tru’eb of life among the stars. A new partnership has been forged. (To be continued below . . . )
  (Big Quince)
• Tru’eb helps Platt Okeefe secure funds to purchase a ship, Pak's Demise.
  (conjecture based on Sandbound on Tatooine)
• Tormax Ardellian, a Corellian pirate is a member of a raiding party that tries to smuggle in Alliance operatives and equipment to the planet Questal. His expedition is exposed, and the agents and crew are imprisoned. The Alliance operatives are killed in a public execution, and the pirates are permanently detained. Ardellian managed to escape the initial assault, and he wanders around Gralleenya city for several weeks, trying to figure out how to rescue his companions.
  (conjecture based on The Game Chambers of Questal via TimeTales, verbatim)
• Ma’w’shiye begins serving as a special forces operative for the Rebel Alliance.
  (conjecture based on Wanted by Cracken supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #4)
• Narg is discovered by the Galactic Empire. The Empire gives TransGalMeg Industries control of the planet for 10 years.
  (conjecture based on The Abduction of Crying Dawn Singer)
• Saelt-Marae, an information broker, joins Jabba the Hutt's organization to spy on him.
  (conjecture based on Special Edition Sourcebook)
• Shada D’ukal becomes a Mistyl Shadow Guard.
  (conjecture based on Specter of the Past)
• Brathlen Corporation builds a light-amplification dome over Plawel on Belsavis.
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)
• Natasi Daala is drafted into the Caridan Academy, based on her aptitude in competitive sports and unarmed combat. She is initially chosen for the stormtrooper program, based on her violent push to win in competitive sports. In fact, Instructor Visk believes she could be a great clone template if he can break her will with Imperial discipline. During her basic training, her simulator tests show that her skills also translate well into capital ship combat. When Chief Instructor Massimo Tagge discovers her skills and that she is a woman, he has her transferred from Visk’s program to Tagge’s own Imperial Navy officer-cadet course. Later, detractors (some of whom are friends of Visk who feel he was slighted) will claim that her simulated victories are always at too high a cost and depend too much on overwhelming odds, putting a dent in her chances at getting command of a starship.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)
• Within Maw Installation, Bevel Lemelisk and Qui Xux have finished final designs for the Death Star’s superlaser with a scaled down prototype of the superlaser within a skeletal armillary sphere that overcomes issues with the Death Star’s early Geonosian schematics, but Tarkin orders them to design something even more powerful within the next ten years.
  (conjecture based on Jedi Search, The Essential Atlas, and Death Star Owner’s Technical Manual)
• Jagged and Zena Antilles are killed during a pirate raid led by Loka Hask. Wedge Antilles (age 17 – he hasn’t had his birthday yet this year, it would appear) takes a Z-95 Headhunter and manages to destroy Hask’s ship. Wedge is now an orphan and will soon join the Rebels. In a space suit, Hask manages to survive his ship’s destruction, but a creature within the suit’s helmet attaches itself to Hask’s face. Hask subsequently returns to Imperial service, his pirate days over.
(conjecture based on X-wing Rogue Squadron Handbook and The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- Ssi-ruuk forces reach the Outer Rim Territories. Palpatine becomes aware of their existence at this time.
(conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)

- Han Solo meets Jessa, daughter of the legendary engineer Doc. After a very short time, he leaves again, returning to the Corellian Sector.
(conjecture based on Han Solo at Stars’ End)

- Anti-taxation protestors on Ghorman are killed when Captain Wilhuff Tarkin lands his ship some on them to quell the protests. The incident is known as the “Ghorman Massacre” and sparks the first inklings of unified rebellion against the Galactic Empire.*
(conjecture based on Star Wars: The Roleplaying Game and Rebel Dawn)*

*NOTE: I had originally placed this decades earlier, but it would appear, upon re-reading Rebel Dawn, that it is far more recent as of the events of that novel.

- Daino Hyx joins the Corellian resistance.
(conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)

- Six months after the Battle of Nar Shaddaa, Han Solo takes the krayt dragon pearl from Admiral Winsel Greelanx’s payoff and an antique he had stashed on Correllia seven years earlier to Okanor, his usual buyer, to get enough money to enter the forthcoming sabacc tournament at Cloud City on Bespin.
(The Hutt Gambit)

- After arriving at Cloud City on Bespin, Han Solo meets up with Lando Calrissian, while preparing for one of the largest known sabacc tournaments. When Han is attacked by Shallamar, a Barabel with a bad attitude, Shallamar, Lando, and Han are all arrested. Han and Lando go free, as does Shallamar, though the Barabel is placed on probation, of sorts. As the tournament begins (much to the delight of Han and Lando, who are both competing), Bria Tharen and anti-Empire rebels Ylentic It’kla, Sian Tevv, Winter, etc. meet using the tournament as a cover to discuss the notion of combining the rebellious cells into a “Rebel Alliance,” of sorts, to take down the Empire. In the tournament, Han and Lando are the last two competitors and in what could be the most important win in Han’s career, Han wins the Millennium Falcon from Lando in a poorly-worded bet. Way back on Nal Hutta, Prince Xizor agrees to help Durga the Hutt find the person who killed Aruk the Hutt. Upon returning to Nar Shaddaa in his new ship, Han Solo proceeds to begin upgrading the Falcon like crazy and then takes Chewbacca and Jarik “Solo” to Kashyyyk. Han meets Chewie’s family for the first time and soon learns that Bria has joined the Corellian rebels. Chewie proposes marriage to Mallatobuck. They are married (with Han as best man), and Han prepares to leave on his own, but Chewie (supported by Malla) decides to leave with Han, in accordance with his life debt and friendship. (To be continued below . . . )
(Rebel Dawn)

- On a tip from Boba Fett, Mon Mothma is declared an Enemy of the Empire, but she escapes before she can be arrested. The resulting protest of the accusation on Chandrila leads to an Imperial massacre on the planet.
(conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)

- The defection of Clone Wars “hotshot” starfighter ace Aron Onstall causes a public relations problem for the Empire and will play a role in the upcoming uprising in the Atrivis Sector.
(conjecture based on Stay on Target)

- The Outer Rim Territories were among the boldest opponents to the Emperor. This was primarily due to their location on the extreme edge of the Old Republic — their isolation had bred in them a stubborn independence and a remarkably strong distaste for government of any kind, totalitarian government in particular. The fact that the Empire maintained only a token military presence in the Outer Rim might have had something to do with it, as well. Foremost among the territories in opposition was Atrivis Sector, a relatively small sector of space that included the Mantooine and Fest systems. These systems had long histories of petty bickering among themselves, and they distrusted each other almost as much as they hated the far — away Emperor. Resistance to the Emperor was scattered among the different systems, each group of freedom – fighters isolated from and suspicious of the others. Despite their many weaknesses, the Resistance was an annoyance to the Imperial forces, and before long, an Imperial garrison post was established on Mantooine, where the Resistance was most active. The Resistance group there, the self–proclaimed “Liberators”, wasted no time in attacking the under–defended post and confiscating its weapons and equipment. However, instead of quickly retreating into the wilderness as an experienced force might have done, they occupied the remains of the Imperial garrison and boldly broadcast their triumph, urging all on Mantooine to join them in revolt. Because this was the first and only Imperial presence in the system, the Liberators had thought themselves safe from Imperial retribution. They had no knowledge of the Imperial strike fleet waiting in orbit around the nearby moons of Fest. The Resistance group of Fest knew about the fleet, but they had no communication with the Mantooine Rebels. There was no way to warn them . . . Mantooine’s Liberators were decimated by the Imperial strike fleet, hunted down almost to the last man. But the Resistance group on nearby Fest remained intact and uncompromised. Both groups now realized the value of communication and an expanded underground network. With this in mind, the Fest group formed its own Mantooine arm, as well as several other branches in various systems throughout Atrivis Sector. The newly – dubbed “Atrivis Resistance Group” (or ARG) was far more efficient than it’s ill – fated predecessors. With lines of communication firmly established, the ARG was able to keep track of Imperial movement and operations throughout the Sector. The underground network worked feverishly to feed information to the ARG leaders, who had set up a hidden base of operations aboard a long - abandoned space station in the barren Generis system. Striking from their hidden base, the ARG was able to harass the Imperial establishment in Atrivis Sector. But as confidence grew within the Resistance ranks, so did concern. The ARG leaders realized just how isolated they were from all other groups throughout the galaxy. For all they knew, the Imperials could be mounting a major offensive against them from the very next sector. They simply had no way of knowing what was happening outside their remote sector of space. That was until Mon Mothma arrived . . . Mon Mothma’s visit to Atrivis Sector began a new era for its Resistance fighters. She proposed to link Atrivis’s forces with countless others throughout the galaxy, integrating them into the forthcoming Rebel Alliance. The ARG’s leaders were hesitant to establish an efficient organization, and they were afraid to give control to outsiders. But Mon Mothma was persuasive. She pointed out the benefits to the ARG of a galaxy – wide communications net, and of the usefulness of a single galactic Resistance command as opposed to multiple uncoordinated ones. She admitted that this entailed some loss of control on the part of the ARG, but stressed that it was necessary if they were to have any chance of success against the monolithic Empire. She also noted that the ARG would get something in return for their loss of control. As she proposed to make the base on Generis a key communications station linking many Outer Rim resistance units through satellite beam transmissions, the Alliance would establish a fighter outpost on Generis to protect the base. Up until then, the ARG had had no starfighters at all. There was some mild argument over the proposition among the ARG leaders, but it quickly became obvious that the positive points of joining the Rebel Alliance far outweighed the negative. Yes, there would be an influx of foreign personnel, as well as new responsibilities and dangers. But the promise of new weapons, equipment, and the added security of open communication with other Resistance groups was more than enough to convince them. The treaty of Generis was signed shortly thereafter, binding the ARG to the Alliance for the Duration. The ARG was in the war.

(conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook and Rebel Dawn via TimeTales, verbatim with the exception of adding the word “forthcoming” before the term “Rebel Alliance”)

- The Mantooine Medallion is introduced in the Rebel Alliance, first issued to surviving members of the Mantooine resistance.
  (conjecture based on Lead by Example)
- On Aduba-3, the village of Onacra becomes the preferred target for Serji-X Arrogantus and his Cloud Riders. Arrogantus had intended to raid them for goods and then sell them in Tun Aduban, but several of the town’s leaders convince him to accept credits instead of pillaging their town. This arrangement would continue for three years, ending just after the Battle of Yavin.

(conjecture based on The Starhoppers of Aduba-3)

- Three years before Boba Fett’s run-in with Aron Harcourt, Harcourt is in command of the Anya Karu, when anti-Imperial saboteurs force the Star Destroyer down, scuttling it. A handful of Imperials escape, but Harcourt leaves the woman he loves aboard the ship to die. In the aftermath, the Imperial military makes Harcourt a scapegoat for the loss of the Anya Karu, rather than allowing anyone to know that rebellious elements were responsible.

(conjecture based on Wreckage)

- Han and Chewbacca arrive on Ventooine to procure some sansanna to sell on the black market. Upon entering the city of Goyoikin, Han sees a monk named Vetter Piin being abused by a thug of the local leader, the Satab. Han helps Piin. When Han asks in a local bar for sansanna, he is nearly killed (since he does not know that sansanna is controlled on Ventooine by the Satab). As he escapes, he sees the Satab’s ward, Chrysalla, in her royal cart. He sees the cart as a means of escape, and tries to hijack it. At the same time, Piin and his helper Phalaf try to assassinate Chrysalla, whom Han saves with a well-time blaster bolt to an incoming bomb. Chrysalla is very grateful and takes Han back to the Satab’s home. There, Han witnesses the Satab, using the power of a sensory-increasing stone called the Shadeshine, killing Phalaf. Han spends time with Chrysalla, where he learns all about the Shadeshine’s power, and that after a while, the senses of the bearer become so overly powerful, that they must enter suspended animation in the Hall of Satabs and pass the Shadeshine on to a successor. The current Satab wants Han to be his successor. The Satab puts him in danger to test him, several times. Han survives all of the dangers, but during a dinner in which Piin is brought before the Satab, he saves Piin again, forcing him and Chrysalla to flee. They battle the Satab as the Satab’s senses reach overload. Han is saved at the last moment by Chrysalla, who has taken the Shadeshine to save him, knowing full well that by taking it, she has doomed herself. She places herself in suspended animation and leaves the Shadeshine for Han to carefully dispose of. He does so, fulfilling the prophecy that Piin knew he would—to rid Ventooine of the Satab and the evil of the Shadeshine. A statue of Han Solo is soon erected. (To be continued below . . . ).*

(Shadeshine!)*

*NOTE: Before being reprinted in Classic Star Wars: A Long Time Ago . . . (the seven-volume color trade paperback set), it was reprinted in the limited run six-volume black and white series of “prestige format” comics by the same name. This story appeared in the fifth issue of that black and white series.

- Approximately six months before the Corellian Treaty, six months have passed since Darth Vader “killed” his secret apprentice, “Starkiller” (Galen Marek), and Juno Eclipse was arrested. Starkiller awakens aboard the Empirical, Vader’s medical vessel, where Starkiller has been unconscious for six months, as his body was being rebuilt. He instantly distrusts Vader (who appears in the form of a hologram over PROXY), but Vader claims that he had to “kill” Starkiller so that Palpatine would drop the issue, which now makes the “dead” Starkiller even more dangerous, as he can move about without Palpatine’s suspicions. He is given a new mission: to create a massive diversion to distract Palpatine and allow Vader and Starkiller to overthrow him. The diversion is a grand scheme for Starkiller to gather the Emperor’s greatest adversaries into one massive rebellious force, a “Rebel Alliance,” to strike at the Empire. While not likely to be successful as a fighting force, this Rebel Alliance would allow for the toppling of Palpatine and rise of a Vader/Starkiller regime. Leaving the Empirical, Starkiller discovers Juno incarcerated. He frees her, and they steal back the Rogue Shadow to escape. Once free of the ship, Starkiller, Juno, and PROXY decide to begin “his” plan to strike back at the Empire with new allies by hunting down someone who could train Starkiller in Force techniques that the Sith might not have taught him. They decide to seek out Jedi Master Rahm Kota, whom Starkiller fought above Nar Shaddaa, whom Starkiller believes is still alive. They will spend the next six months looking for him . . . (To be continued below . . .)

(The Force Unleashed)

- Inspired by the rebellions of Cody Sunn-Childe and Garm Bel Iblis, Janu Godalhi begins gathering supplies and weapons on Teth. These preparations become crucial when the Empire arrives on Teth and establishes its own security, forcing Godalhi into retirement.*
(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Janu Godalhi, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed this here, between Cody’s actions and the birth of the official Rebel Alliance.

- Having returned to Nar Shadda after a long five months of great smuggling success, Han Solo is bored with smuggling. He begins avoiding Salla Zend’s marriage proposal (He had saved her when her ship was about to be destroyed, but without a ship, she wants to settle down. She doesn’t bother to really ask him, but assumes he wants to get married.). To get out of the situation, Han heads for the Corporate Sector to make a profit. Upon arrival, he intends to have the Millennium Flacon’s hyperdrive upgraded by Doc. (To be continued below . . .)

(Rebel Dawn)

- Two weeks prior to taking down Milosh Muhrlein, Jahan Cross goes undercover at Imperial Research Station 61 on Wayland to investigate illegal dealings there.
(conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)

- Around this time, Imperial Research Station 61 on Wayland develops new droids based on the B-2 battle droid (super battle droid) design.
(conjecture based on Iron Eclipse)

- On Wayland at Imperial Research Station 61, Imperial Intelligence (and Diplomatic Service) agent Jahan Cross and his droid IN-GA 44 (“Inga”) confront corrupt Colonel Milosh Muhrlein, who has been selling new experimental weapon designs from Wayland on the black market. When he tries to kill Jahan, the agent and droid take out Muhrlein instead. They report back to Imperial Intelligence Director Armand Isard on Coruscant, whom Jahan informs about Muhrlein working with Rossum Droidworks, owned in the past by Iaco Stark. Cross wants to continue tracking down a mysterious project called “Iron Eclipse” that they came across, even if it means going alone into the Corporate Sector, outside of Imperial control. He drops in to see Alessi Quon, who is fixing up Inga, and Royd Pew in the tech station to pick up new gear, including a set of parawings (a sort of glider backpack), then head off for Mondder spaceport on Etti IV. He arrives and immediately runs into (literally) Han Solo, who is an old friend from the Academy. He helps Han and Chewbacca get rid of some goons who are after them from a game of chance, and he covers them with his diplomatic immunity, while allowing their pursuers to be arrested by Espo Sergeant Myrsk. Cross then meets with Emesh Nar, aide to his contact, Ambassador Blains Vorlin, Cross’ contact on the planet. Cross then attends a party thrown by Vorlin at the Imperial Embassy, where he meets Eli Stark (whose jerk brother Iaclyn has been trying to marry her off for years and keeps her on a tight leash, not allowing her to leave Etti IV, and who seems attracted to Cross), Iaclyn and Emesh (both of whom seem to dislike Cross and the Empire with great passion), and Stark’s widow, Dha’lis (also obviously sexually attracted to Cross). While stealing away for some “private time” with Dha’lis, Cross learns that Iaco Stark was killed not by his disease but by an accident that left him decapitated, all while he was working on a secret anti-gravity resort project on Reltooine that he called “Eclipse.” It is Dha’lis’ desire to complete Eclipse in memory of Iaco. Little does Cross know that they are being spied upon by Iaclyn, who enters, stuns Cross, and then kills his stepmother. Corporate Sector Locational Enforcement Lieutenant Dakka Fasser and Sergeant Myrsk (the same Nikto that had taken away those who were after Han and Chewbacca) question Cross when he awakens. There is faked holographic and fingerprint evidence that points to Cross as the killer, and the Empire has disavowed him, according to Emesh. When Etti comes upon Cross being escorted from the building by two agents, he quickly blurts what is happening and attacks the guards. She points him to the garage, where he takes Iaclyn’s expensive speederbike and escapes, while Etti covers him by telling Myrsk that they cannot shoot up the home or the speederbike without incurring Iaclyn’s wrath at the destruction of expensive property. Even as he races off into the night, Inga (sent back to his room to contact the Empire) is zapped herself (by Iaclyn, Emesh, and their droid, Majordomo), just after revealing via comlink that Emesh and Iaclyn were boyhood friends, and Emesh owes his position to the Starks. Inga is to be taken to the Eclipse to aid in Iaclyn’s own plans. The chase of Cross ends when he drives over a waterfall. Myrsk assumes he will rejoin Han and Chewbacca to get off the planet, but when he searches the Millennium Falcon later, he doesn’t find Cross. Cross, of course, was hiding in Han’s secret cargo compartment. He hires the duo to get him off the planet and to Reltooine, but Cross has some business to attend to first. That night, he breaks into Emesh Nar’s quarters and threatens him. Knowing he is likely to be found, he just gets cash from Emesh to use since his own resources are cut off. He is forced to kill Emesh when he pulls a blaster on Cross. Before leaving, Cross helps Emesh’s date, Dawn, get to safety, but he calls her “Jens,” suggesting some kind of traumatized child in his past. He contacts Isard, who is annoyed with so many deaths, and notes that he has been disavowed at the moment. Isard suggests that Cross find a way to justify his actions (or how they are being portrayed) or kill himself. Cross decides to do the latter, leading Myrsk’s men on a chase in a small airspeeder, then crashing it to fake his death, while he escapes by using the parawings. He returns to Etti for help, and the two set out together for Eclipse, so both can find out the truth about another project Etti finds in the family databanks: “Iron Eclipse,” which Cross thinks might be similar to the navicomputer virus that Iaco Stark used during the Stark Hyperspace War. They return to the Millennium Falcon, and Han and Chewie take them to Reltooine, where they are dropped off at Eclipse with the Falcon having to race off to safety. (Will they return for Cross and Etti?) Inside, they find Iaclyn, who reveals that Iron Eclipse is similar to the virus Iaco had, but this one will affect all droids, turning them into his servants (and thus his army). Before he can have his droids kill Cross, he reveals that Etti is not really a Stark. She is the child of an affair between Arris Rossum (Stark’s wife) and an unknown male. That is why she is being cut out of the family money, and Iaclyn claims that he is trying to protect her for their mother’s sake, but she is in danger there because Iaco Stark still lives . . . sort of. Stark emerges as a huge insectoid droid with only his head still flesh and blood (mostly). He kills Iaclyn, then moves to kill Cross and Etti. They escape through a horde of droids, only to come face to face with Inga, who has also undergone transformation to Stark’s side in the conflict. As Inga attacks Cross, other droids grab Etti to hold her until Stark can kill her himself. Stark, mocking Cross, reveals that his intent is to use the Iron Eclipse body to take over the galaxy. Unfortunately for Stark, Inga has core programming to protect Cross. She is fighting against her conflicting directives, but Cross tells her that if she destroys the repulsorlift generators under the station, she will be able to not directly attack Cross, yet take him down anyway. She races to do so, chased by droids sent to stop her. As she does so, Cross attacks Stark, finally sending barrels of explosive material at him to explode, even as Etti calls the Falcon for help. Cross reaches Etti, and the two literally fall from the station when Inga destroys the repulsorlifts. They fall onto the Falcon, but so does Stark. As they fly away from the station, Cross mans the quad-laser cannons of the Falcon and blasts Stark to his doom. As for Inga, Cross can only say goodbye to her via comlink. They cannot risk going back for her, since she might still try to kill Cross and could very well still carry the virus. The station is destroyed, along with Inga. Cross contacts Isard, who drops all charges against him on Etti IV and provides bonus pay to give to Han and Chewbacca. As for Cross and Etti, they end our tale in each other’s arms in a Falcon bunk.

(Iron Eclipse)

- In Alderaan on Alderaan, Jahan Cross attends a celebration for the 25th anniversary of Bail Organa’s ascension to Viceroy and the end of the Alderaan Ascendancy Contention. Jahan is a native of Alderaan and warmly greets Bail, Leia Organa (now 16), and her constant companion Winter. Also in attendance are the current Count Dooku (Adan Dooku) and his son, Bron (age 10). (Bron’s mother, Maite Dooku, died years ago.) They are accompanied by Candra Tymon, Count Dooku’s head of security. In private, Bail tries to convince Adan to back activities against the Empire that will eventually culminate in the Rebel Alliance, but he is resistant to the idea, despite his long friendship with Bail. Before they can finish arguing the point, a sniper (that appears to be Boba Fett) fires a shot through the window that kills Adan, despite Candra leaping to get him out of the way. She then pursues the shooter, who flies off with his jетpack until coming down in a body of water. “Boba Fett” is actually Jahan, who was under orders to kill Adan. With that done, the fake Fett armor dissolves in the water as planned. He sneaks back inside quickly enough to avoid suspicion. Upon returning to Coruscant three days later, though, doubts are placed into his mind by Ysanne Isard about... the purpose of his mission. Upon reporting to Ysanne’s father, Armand Isard, it is somewhat confirmed that this was done because someone higher up than even Isard decided that it would be better to remove Adan and put in a regent that the Empire can control, while Bron Dooku remains unable to rule until he comes of age. Now, Jahan is sent to Serenno to make sure that the Five Great Houses of Serenno unanimously vote for Rodas Borgin (head of House Borgin) as the new regent. Jahan resents the nature of the mission, but Isard puts him in his place, for now. Five days later, Jahan is on Serenno as an Imperial Diplomatic Envoy, and his own father, Davim Cross, is attending as the Empire’s primary representative. Rodas Borgin (a real piece of work, given how he treats his wife, Cretia, and son, Pero) will only accept himself as regent, but he only has the backing of his brother-in-law, Count Orom Malvern. The heads of the Great Houses and the Imperial representatives travel aboard the Dooku family airship, the Windrunner, with orders from Davim not to return until they have made a decision. Bron is also aboard and speaks frankly with Jahan about his low chances of surviving to come of age and take power. There is little time to discuss this issue, though, as the airship is attacked by pirates, led by Ramchak (captain of the Bloodskull) and female human pirate “Vex” (Aveca Dunn, a freelance operative that Jahan knows, who often works with the Bothan Spynet). The Windrunner is left dead in the air, and Vex escapes with Bron in a small flyer, pursued by Jahan. He catches up to Vex before she can leave Carannia. He won’t kill her, nor will she kill Bron, but he shoots her ship’s controls and contacts spaceport security. She is willing to tell him who hired her, but only after he breaks her out of whatever prison they send her to. He agrees, and she fakes being comatose while the local authorities send her to the Spike (a Clone Wars era prison meant to be strong enough to hold Jedi if necessary). After providing information on Vex to Candra, Jahan contacts Imperial tech guru Alessi Quon (who is currently building a Human Replica Droid called IL-SA to replace the destroyed IN-GA, though Alessi will technically own IL-SA, since she is being made on his own time). Jahan agrees to keep IL-SA a secret from his superiors in exchange for information on the Spike. He then uses that information to infiltrate the facility, free Vex, and escape (having to stun Candra and leave her with the warden along the way). Once clear of the prison, Vex reveals that it was Rodas himself who paid her to join with the pirates to kidnap Bron. When confronted, Rodas reveals that his intent had been to have them kidnap Bron, then have his own people “save” Bron, thereby cementing support for Rodas as regent. When Jahan backtalks Rodas, he reveals that he could pin Adan’s death on the Empire and Jahan at any time. Jahan contacts Isard, who tells him that he is being recalled, at Rodas’ request. The Empire is sending a fleet of Star Destroyers to take Bron into their “protection” and name Rodas as regent. Jahan believes Rodas is too unstable to be in the Empire’s best interests, but Isard makes it clear that when the fleet arrives in 32 hours, Jahan is to leave with them, thereby giving Jahan 32 hours to deal with the mess (with or without Isard’s consent). Jahan meets with Candra, who has now been fired, and reveals that he was the one who freed Vex. After a scuffle, he enlists her aid in protecting Bron by going after Borgin, Vex’s previous employer. Shortly thereafter, Vex contacts Boba Fett on behalf of a new employer. (Fett still wants to find whomever tried to frame him for Adan’s death.) Jahan visits his father, who tells him that Borgin has Bron at the Dooku underwater retreat, Otoh Dooku (built in Gungan style). Jahan and Candra take a bongo to Otoh Dooku, find and “kidnap” Bron, and then evade Chief Jorrick by having Jahan take off in a modified manta subfighter, while Candra and Bron sneak away in the bongo. The trio evade their pursuers and reunite at the docks, where Boba confronts them, intending to take Bron. Jorrick and Borgin’s forces arrive, however, and they engage Boba in a firefight, as Jahan sends Candra and Bron away to the spaceport. Jahan helps Boba defeat Jorrick’s men, but then Boba beats up Jahan and heads off on his mission. Jahan pursues Boba. He catches up with Boba as he reaches the spaceport. In the ensuing conflict, Boba fires a missile (which supposedly only has an ion charge), which hits a shuttle being flown by Candra, blowing it up. It appears that Boba has been set up to take the fall for the apparent death of Bron aboard the shuttle, which Jorrick has now witnessed. Jorrick reports this to Borgin, then dies in his office from battle wounds. Jahan confronts Borgin, revealing that he rigged the shuttle to explode, and without Bron, Borgin is not the new Count of Serenno. Instead, his brother-in-law, Orom Malvern is the new Count, with the blessing of the Imperial Navy and the other Houses. Borgin’s own vote was not necessary because his son, Pero, has been named the new head of House Borgin, as Borgin is “dead.” Jahan reveals that he was the one who hired Boba, but he did it through a third party (Vex) to make it look like Borgin did it. Thinking he has been double-crossed, Boba uses a sniper blast to kill Borgin. As for Bron, he is not actually dead. Davim Cross takes the boy, who knows that Candra died to cover for his escape, to stay with Bail Organa’s family on Alderaan. The boy is now safe, and all is well . . . or as well as can be expected in the career of an agent of the Empire.

(Hard Targets)

- Matt Turhaya returns to Janara III only to find that the village where he had left his daughter has been destroyed by the Empire. The task force that destroyed the village was led by Adalric Brandl and included Lt. Chancellor, who rescued Matt’s daughter, Alex, from the rubble, though Matt doesn’t know this.
  (conjecture based on Passages, A Glimmer of Hope and Betrayal by Knight)
- While Doc works on the Millennium Falcon, Han Solo and Chewbacca work on a run to Rampa for Roa. The job brings them into contact with Reck Desh for the first time.
  (conjecture based on Hero’s Trial)
- A little over a year before playing there, Javul Charn accepts a contract for a concert on Falleen.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Games)
- Luke Skywalker and Biggs Darklighter set out in Luke’s new landspeeder to visit the area of Metameur. They decide to take a shortcut through Desolation Canyon, despite warnings from a local at Douz Station. Heading through the canyon, they are blown off course by a sandstorm and find themselves at a lost city that used to be inhabited by the Ghorfas, a race that lived on Tatooine before the Sandpeople wiped them out. Upon looking at some of the writings and images in the city, though, Luke realizes that the Ghorfas are the Sandpeople, whose lives were irrevocably changed when human settlers began draining their water supplies. They escape before Sandpeople can catch them in the city, but when Luke tells Owen Lars of his find, Owen simply scoffs at it, telling him, cryptically, that the past is best left buried.

(The Lost City of Tatooine)

- The rebel groups that will soon form the Rebel Alliance begin supplying the Alignment Forces in the Virgillan Civil War. The Imperial-supporting side of the civil war, the Aristocracy, had previously kept blaster technology out of Alignment hands. The Rebels have now changed that.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)
- Just before the official outbreak of the Galactic Civil War, the Taim and Bak families form the Taim and Bak weapons manufacturing company.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- Shortly before open rebellion begins, several Alliance agents, posing as law enforcement procurement officials, purchase over 200,000 Merr-Sonn Munitions SG-4 Blaster Carbines and conceal them in secret, scattered stockpiles. Imperial Security Bureau agents stumble upon one such cache of 2000 before armed hostilities begin.*
  (conjecture based on Blaster Weapons of the Rebel Alliance)*

*NOTE: All information from this Challenge Magazine #40 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- Smugglers Booster Terrik and Talon Karrde go on a wild and dangerous treasure hunt. *
  (Treasure Hunt)*

*NOTE: Don’t remember this one? Don’t be surprised. This summary is based on research conducted by frequent contributor Andrew Gordon into stories proposed or put into production for the Official Continuity but eventually canceled for some reason. The most famous of these stories is Lightsider, of course, but Treasure Hunt is among them as well. The story never came to exist, so the information is just flavor text for our purposes, with no C-Canon (or even S- or N-Canon) backing whatsoever at this point. Consider it historical curiosity.

- Captain Skahvi Renlow of the Icarii-7 begins harassing Imperial ships along the Crannan-Excarga hyperspace route near Xorrn.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*

*NOTE: Renlow has been doing this for a “few years” as of Friends Like These, which I have rounded to about 3 years.
Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope [continued] (RPG: Grant Boucher & Paul Sudlow)

Interlude at Darkknell (TFTNR short stories: Timothy Zahn & Michael Stackpole)

A Secret Apprentice [continued]

Silver and Scarlet (SWI148 short story: James S.A. Corey)
The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
The Hutt Gambit [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  The Shadow of the Empire [continued]
  Playthings for the Moff
  The Admiral's Orders
  Battle Stations?
  Dreams and Nightmares
  Making Magic
  The Battle of Nar Shaddaa
  Leave-takings
  The Payoff

The Lando Calrissian Adventures [continued] (novel trilogy: L. Neil Smith)
Lando Calrissian and the Flamewind of Oseon (novel: L. Neil Smith)
  Chapters 1 – 18
Lando Calrissian and the Starcave of ThonBoka (novel: L. Neil Smith)
  Chapters 1 – 18
Tales of the Black Curs (AJ/SWH short stories: Peter Schweighofer)
Chessa's Doom [flashback] (AJ1/SWH short story: Peter Schweighofer)
Big Quince [flashback] (AJ2 short story: Peter Schweighofer)

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
The Hutt Gambit [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  Epilogue

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  Winners and Losers
  Promises to Keep
  Mallatobuck
  Domestic Bliss and Other Complications

Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Millennium Falcon [continued] (novel: James Luceno)
  Introduction

Screams in the Void (comic series: David Michelinie & Walter Simonson & Mary Jo Duffy)
  Shadeshine! [flashback] (comic: David Michelinie)

The Force Unleashed [continued] (comic: Haden Blackman)
The Force Unleashed [continued] (novel: Sean Williams)
  Empirical
    Chapters 10 – 14
The Force Unleashed [continued] (video games: LucasArts & Krome Studios & N-Space & THQ)
  The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
    Betrayal / A New Mission [continued]
    The Empirical
    Juno Rescued
    The Search for Kota

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  “From One Side of This Galaxy to the Other”
  Farewell to Nar Shaddaa

Agent of the Empire (comic series: John Ostrander)
Iron Eclipse (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Iron Eclipse, Part I (comic: John Ostrander)
  Iron Eclipse, Part II (comic: John Ostrander)
  Iron Eclipse, Part III (comic: John Ostrander)
  Iron Eclipse, Part IV (comic: John Ostrander)
  Iron Eclipse, Part V (comic: John Ostrander)

Hard Targets (comic series: John Ostrander)
  Hard Targets, Part I (comic: John Ostrander)
  Hard Targets, Part II (comic: John Ostrander)
  Hard Targets, Part III (comic: John Ostrander)
  Hard Targets, Part IV (comic: John Ostrander)
  Hard Targets, Part V (comic: John Ostrander)

The Lost City of Tatooine (AD short story: David Reynolds)
  The Lost City of Tatooine (AD short story: David Reynolds)

Treasure Hunt (canceled AJ17 short story: Unknown)*
  Treasure Hunt (canceled AJ17 short story: Unknown)*

*NOTE: This story never came to exist. Consider it historical curiosity.

2 BBY

- A remote grandniece of Palpatine, Ederlatth Pallopides, is born.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook)
- Anja Gallandro is born on Anobis.
  (conjecture based on Return to Ord Mantell)
- Boo Rawl joins the Rebellion.
  (conjecture based on Slaying Dragons)
- Rayf Ysanna is born on Ossus.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire II)
- Gabby is born.
  (conjecture based on Before the Storm)
- TK-622 saves the life of Commander Akobi for the first time.
  (conjecture based on What Sin Loyalty?)
- At age 16, Gariel Captison begins attending the Bakur Senatorial Academy.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)
- Around this time, the T-65 X-wing starfighter enters the Rebel Alliance forces, beginning with holding off Imperial forces in the Battle of Turkana. The confrontation begins when Imperial Intelligence notices Rebel ships massing over Turkana, prompting the local governor to send in ten Star Destroyers, led by Captain Xamuel Lennox in the Tyrant, with support coming mostly from Captain Firmus Piett in command of the Accuser. Due to Lennox's poor calculations and lack of consideration of the threat posed by Rebel Y-wings and their new X-wings (which Piett tried to warn him about), the Rebels are able to hold off the Imperials and escape after severely damaging the Star Destroyers Formidable and Ajax. After the event, Piett files a report and recommends that Lennox be removed from command of Pakuuni Sector operations. His report will find its way into the Imperial Handbook shortly before the Battle of Yavin.
  (conjecture based on The Farlander Papers and Imperial Handbook)
- Early in the days of the Rebel Alliance, Maximilian Veers leads an AT-AT assault on the rebellious city of Salline on Chandrila. His effective tactics become the basis of an article on the importance of unit support in armored assault for the Imperial Handbook.
  (conjecture based on Imperial Handbook)
- Around this time, the BloodScars, a pirate group, begins working out of a base on Gepparin.
  (conjecture based on Allegiance)
- Approximately one year before Dash Rendar becomes Javul Charn's security consultant, the Nik becomes the assistant to cargo master Yanus Melikan aboard the Nova's Heart.
  (conjecture based on Shadow Games)
- Hume Tarl joins the Empire's Tempest Force.
• After eight years as a seller of glitterstim for Black Sun sector chief Avrak Villachor on Wukkar, Crovendif is promoted to street manager in the organization.
  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)

• Ralchio Nervi (formerly Ralchio Sargan) graduates from the Rengali Imperial Naval Academy with average marks but an unprecedented winning record in head-to-head combat simulations. He is assigned as a lieutenant in the 14th Sector Fleet. Sometime over the next two years, he will catch the attention of Moff Ravik during a sabacc game on Ryloth and be promoted to the rank of captain (due in large part to the lobbying of his wife, Lila Nervi). However, he will remain desperate for a position within the admiralty or as a Moff, always chasing his ambitions and dealing with the inferiority his youth bestowed upon him.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)

*NOTE: This assumes Ralchio spent about 4 years at the academy and that he entered around 6 BBY. See 6 BBY’s entry about Ralchio for more details.

• Members of Clan Awaud spot an Aurore-class Zygerrian slave ship heading for the Talz of the Gnaaz tribe on Vlemoth Port. Nam Beroya, leader of the clan, leads an assault against the Zygerrians, but during the fighting, he appears to be killed, leaving only a blackened helmet on the battlefield. Nam is presumed dead, and his daughter, Vera Beroya, takes over as leader of Clan Awaud. Little do they know that Nam has instead been captured and taken back to Kowak, where Prince Sono Molec forces him to fight in arena battles. His victories will earn him the nickname “the Prince’s Sword.”
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)

NOTE: This is about 2 years prior to Friends Like These.

• While on a tour of various holdings for their father King Atai Molec’s Zygerrian Slavers’ Guild, Princes Sono Molec and his older brother, Hordem Molec, are drawn into a naval engagement with Imperial Captain Ralchio Nervi. Hordem is killed, making Sono into Atai’s surviving heir. Sono is sent to run the guild’s Sclavos outpost on Kowak. For failing to protect Hordem, Captain Rajim Armin is removed from his duties directly to the king and is assigned as Sono’s second-in-command on Kowak.” Jorec Gemen and Mard Gemen are sent by the king to run the Auction Registrars’ Office for the outpost. They are also secretly instructed to act as a moderating influence on Sono, who is prone to youthful indiscretions. They resent this, but they obey out of loyalty to Atai.*
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)

*NOTE: This is about 2 years prior to Friends Like These, though there is some internal inconsistency in the adventure book, which suggests that Sono might have been in charge of the outpost before Hordem’s death, and/or that the Gemens might have been there since the outpost’s founding around 10 BBY instead of only being assigned there once Atai knew that Sono would be there and need to be watched over.

• On Kinyen, Tayala Lees, government-appointed leader of the Ayanee Farming Cluster, is secretly ordered by the Office of Agricultural Export to tuck away 10% of crop yields into hidden storage to be picked up later by Rebel agents. This goes on for at least the next two years.*
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)

*NOTE: According to Strongholds of Resistance, this is “for the past two years.” Given that most of Age of Rebellion is set just after ANH, I am placing it here.

• Sienar Fleet Systems creates the first fully-functional Imperial “interdictor” gravity well technology. Very few Interdictors are produced at this time due to cost.*
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

*NOTE: Rogue Squadron to the Rescue makes a big deal out of a project to create interdiction technology for the Empire. We can only assume, I suppose, that it was a matter of making it more efficient and cost-effective that was the issue in that story, as the NEGtVaV has nailed down a date of 2 BBY for the introduction of the first Interdictors.

• Egot Pai-4-Yem, a skeletal humanoid who appears corpse-like, begins to build his criminal empire in Spaceport City, the capital of the planet Harridan.*
  (conjecture based on Paid in Full)

*NOTE: This is “a few years” (rounded to five) prior to Paid in Full.

• Around this time, Lelsk (AKA “Go Silent” and “Silent”) joins the Bothan Spynet.
  (conjecture based on Rescue at Glare Peak)

*NOTE: This is “a few years” before she is kicked out and almost immediately joins the Alliance.
• Thera Morrow begins getting involved in amateur cloud car races, hoping to someday break into professional racing.*
  (conjecture based on The Jewel of Yavin)*

*NOTE: This assumes that The Jewel of Yavin is about a year or so after ANH. She has been doing this for three years as of that story.

• Around this time, Fren Nurook works inside the Trivar II Imperial Detention Center that is being built. She spends several weeks working as an engineer on systems for the facility, which will come in handy during a prison break three years from now.
  (conjecture based on Rescue at Glare Peak)*

*NOTE: This is three years before the adventure, so this assumes a 1 ABY date for Rescue at Glare Peak.

• An Imperial fleet devastates the planet Shumari. While stormtroopers destroy the cities and slaughter the populace, Darth Vader engages a group of Jedi who survived Order 66. The only survivor of the group is a youth named Tao, whom Vader spares in order to train as his own apprentice. (To be continued below . . .)*

(Perfect Evil)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke Van Horn. His reasoning for its placement is that this segment is a few years before Tao’s death a while before ESB, and his appearance does not change much, which would mean it could only be a few years before ANH, at best. Since this story is from one of the Star Wars Manga comics by Tokyopop, its veracity as Canon is in doubt.

• Biggs Darklighter scores tickets aboard a starliner to give Luke Skywalker and himself a taste of space. Granted, it is only a trip to the moon, but that’s better than nothing. While en route, an explosion rocks the ship. Luckily, Luke instinctively assists the pilot in getting it down safely. They never do make it to the moon, making Tatooine Luke’s only real life experience, but at least he has had a brief taste of what is out there.*

(Falling Star)*

*NOTE: I have assumed that Luke is 16 in this story.

• Leia Organa and her adoptive father, Senator Bail Organa, travel to Coruscant, where Leia goes off with several guards to explore. She witnesses a Caamasi, Eg’ros Akala, being mistreated due to his species. Leia intervenes, but is not taken seriously. She tells her father of this, but he lectures her on the need of keeping such feelings close to the chest, so as not to arouse suspicion in such an intolerant Imperial government. They attend a reception at the Imperial Palace, where Leia has her first encounter with Emperor Palpatine. She manages to convince her father to help the Caamasi. She is there when he is released from confinement. Leia, who will soon take her father’s Senate seat, has her first friend and ally on Coruscant.

(First Impressions)*

*NOTE: I am assuming here that this takes place shortly before Leia actually takes the Senate seat, but it may be quite a bit earlier. Placement will be updated when further information becomes available.

• At age 16, Leia Organa overhears her father, Bail Organa, speaking via holocomm with Mon Mothma and Garm Bel-Iblis. They are discussing the possible need to rebel against the Empire in an allied effort. Bail says they should meet in person about it. Shortly thereafter, Leia is told that she will now be taking Bail’s Senate seat. She reveals that she knows he is doing it to work for a Rebellion effort, and she offers her support. Soon, at a diplomatic function, Leia sees Grand Moff Tarkin and knows that it is time to make a difference, even as Tarkin begins his sinister designs to someday strike at Alderaan.

(The Princess Leia Diaries)*

*NOTE: Leia is said to be nearly 17 here, which might make placement tricky, but it must take place shortly before the latter part of The Force Unleashed, due to the three Rebel leaders discussing the need for an alliance. Bail is still a senator in TFU, however, so this must take place very close to the beginning of TFU, so that the actual transition of Leia into Bail’s seat takes place immediately thereafter.

• Essio Galassian, the Emperor’s favorite astrocartographer, discovers the ancient hyperspace “weapon” of the K’kybak on Seymarti V. He returns to his office on Tyybann, where he enters information about the find, including his report and preliminary data, into his personal workstation. Upon hearing rumors about something big being found, Rebel spy Scarlet Hark is dropped off at the edge of Imperial space. She eventually makes her way to Tyybann, where she inserts herself and her ally (not property) CZ-33 into Galassian’s household staff, intending to steal the information.*
  (conjecture based on Honor Among Thieves)*

*NOTE: This assumes Honor Among Thieves is sometime just before the six month post-ANH mark, based on its references in relation to Hoth. This is two years before that novel.
After six months of searching, “Starkiller” (Galen Marek), Juno Eclipse, and PROXY discover the location of Jedi Master Rahm Kota. Starkiller goes to Cloud City on Bespin (though others claim that he found Kota on Nar Shaddaa, likely due to Nar Shaddaa being where Starkiller began his search), where he finds Kota as a broken man, whose Force connection has been dampened extremely and who remains blinded from his duel with Starkiller (whom he does not recognize, due to a different Force presence from all of the rebuilding done to his body) over Nar Shaddaa. They are discovered by some of Palpatine’s Shadow Guards (Force-using Imperial Royal Guards, somewhat similar to the concept of Imperial Sovereign Protectors), and Starkiller manages to extract them. (There are some who believe that it was after this mission, before heading for Kashyyyk, when Starkiller was drawn back to the Jedi Temple on Coruscant and fought his way into a confrontation with the spirit of his dead father, Jedi Knight Kento, who revealed Starkiller’s ancestry. This seems to be an historical error, perhaps combining the vision of his father that Starkiller has on Kashyyyk and his later mission to the Jedi Temple to face a form of the Jedi Trials.) Upon learning of Starkiller’s plans for a Rebel Alliance, Kota has them head for Kashyyyk to find and retrieve something valuable to one of Kota’s Senate contacts. They arrive to find that the Empire has begun a massive slave labor operation, sending Wookiees offworld to some kind of construction project. Attached to the surface is a skyhook that dominates the Imperial presence there. When he finally slips through the Imperial lines, he discovers that the “valuable” that he is searching for is actually Leia Organa (and R2-D2), daughter of Senator Bail Organa of Alderaan, who is being held (after a fashion). He helps her get away, but has to promise to destroy the skyhook to put off the slave operation as much as possible. He does so by destroying its connections on the ground, but the mission has an unexpected consequence. While on Kashyyyk, he discovers an old hut, emblazoned with a bird-like symbol (the Marek family crest). Having entered, he begins to slowly experience memories and feelings relating to his own forgotten past, wherein Darth Vader had arrived there and killed his father, Kento Marek, right in front of him, only to take young Galen Marek (Starkiller) back to the Empire to train as his secret apprentice. This starts Starkiller (Galen) on a path toward redemption, or at least doubt at his master’s intentions. Once the mission is complete, Kota and Starkiller discuss their next move, then head for Felucia. Bail Organa had gone there looking for Shaak Ti, only to find himself stranded and captured by Maris Brood, now corrupted by the Dark Side. Once on Felucia, Starkiller battles his way past Dark Side creatures, saving Bail from Maris, but he lets Maris live, as the corruption that has overtaken her is not her fault. Perhaps she will someday find redemption herself. They discuss the idea of open rebellion with Bail, who agrees to talk some others (Mon Mothma, Garm Bel Iblis, etc.) about the idea, but they need some kind of major victory to rally behind and prove that rebellion can work finally, rather than waiting. Starkiller contacts Vader for advice on such a location and is told to wipe out the new Imperial shipyard over Raxus Prime, where Star Destroyers are being built. Unfortunately, Juno sees him talking with Vader via PROXY and confronts him. She is unsure what to make of this, but she has at least some faith in him to make the right decisions when the time is right. For her part, she has come to believe in the cause that he was only pretending to support . . . or was he? On Raxus Prime, Starkiller faces Drex’s goons again, along with various technological terrors that are guided by the core intelligence of the interconnected junk planet. He finally overpowers the core, after the core reprograms PROXY into an enemy, forcing Starkiller to “kill” him. Using junk launchers, he blasts the shipyards, destroying them, but he then needs to destroy the cannon itself. He directs a crashing Star Destroyer to smash into the cannon, ending the mission. In its aftermath, PROXY is repaired. They have their victory . . . As preparations are made for a new alliance, Bail sends Starkiller to Cloud City on Bespin, where he saves Senator Garm Bel Iblis from outlaws. He hunts down Kleef, who is said to have Garm, who leads him to a group of Mandalorians, led by Chop’aa, from whom he saves Garm, earning his gratitude. Shortly thereafter, Starkiller feels drawn to the ruins of the Imperial-controlled Jedi Temple on Coruscant. He infiltrates the building, eventually finding a holocron that plays a message for him from his father, Kento, who tells him that he is not too far gone to save, as he has Jedi blood in his veins. Starkiller completes a series of Jedi Trials in the temple and escapes. The time is near for the alliance meeting. Bail sets up the meeting on Corellia for himself, Mon
Mothma, and Garm Bel Iblis (with Leia there via PROXY's hologram), so that they can discuss plans with Starkiller and Kota, but Starkiller informs Vader of the meeting first, intending to keep him apprised of their progress. This becomes a major mistake, as the meeting on Corellia is interrupted by a strike from Vader. During the strike, Vader reveals that Palpatine's grand scheme had been to allow Vader to craft such a disciple to use against the Emperor's enemies, and Vader's “distraction” mission was actually a mission to bring together Palpatine's enemies to be wiped out. Vader claims that he was never intending to rule alongside Starkiller, and all that he was taught to believe as he grew up was, in essence, one big lie. Vader strikes down PROXY (in the guise of Obi-Wan Kenobi), captures the Rebel leaders, and leaves Starkiller for dead. Shortly thereafter, Juno takes the Rogue Shadow to find Starkiller and finds him alive. After some Jedi-style meditation, Starkiller, who is more and more considering himself “Galen,” determines that they should head for a specific location in the Outer Rim to save the Rebel leaders. They arrive over Despayre in the Horuz system, where, after a brief kiss, Juno helps Galen leap down into the superstructure of the Death Star, which is under construction. Galen battles his way through the station to where Palpatine and Vader hold Bail, Mothma, Garm, and Kota for upcoming execution. Galen confronts Vader, actually winning the confrontation, as Vader lies broken and blasted. Vader claims this to be Starkiller's final test, but Galen will not accept that. When tempted by Palpatine to take Vader's place, Galen refuses, but the point is emphasized by Kota, who leaps in to strike at Palpatine, only to be hit with Force lightning. Galen then strikes out at Palpatine himself, nearly killing the Sith Lord before Kota can convince him not to, as a means of sparing Galen from falling back to the Dark Side so soon after what appears to be a redemption. The Emperor lashes out at them again, though, with Vader's help, which forces Galen to hold them off while the others escape to the Rogue Shadow. As the Rebel leaders escape, Galen is killed by the Sith, but his sacrifice has started something that will bring down the Empire. A short time passes . . . Juno Eclipse and Bail Organa, aboard the Rogue Shadow, return to Corellia, where they discover the severely damaged PROXY. Upon reactivating Galen Marek's droid, they learn that PROXY has been ordered to serve Juno upon his reactivation, if Galen is dead. They have come to find the droid to record the history of the founding of the Rebel Alliance. Thus, PROXY tells them all he recalls of Galen's actions as “Starkiller” from the day that Darth Vader dubbed him his apprentice and sent him to take down Jedi Master Rahm Kota over Nar Shaddaa, up through PROXY's deactivation while Galen dueled Vader on Corellia. Juno picks up the story from there, explaining how she found Galen alive and continuing on through his death. As she finishes the story, they arrive at the site of the signing of the Corellian Treaty, which will actually be on Kashyyyk, Galen's home. In attendance are Rahm Kota, Garm Bel Iblis, Mon Mothma, Leia Organa, R2-D2, and, now, Bail Organa, PROXY, and Juno Eclipse. The signing of the Corellian Treaty officially births the Alliance to Restore the Republic (Rebel Alliance), which will be symbolized by the birdlike Marek family crest. As for Kota and Juno, the humans who knew Galen best, Kota always suspected who Galen truly was, but he sensed that there was a light in Galen's darkness, something that gave him hope for redemption: Juno herself. The galaxy has been forever altered by one man's sacrifice.

(The Force Unleashed)

- The Corellian Treaty, now actually signed on Kashyyyk, creates what amounts to a dictatorship for the Rebel Alliance with two top ranks, one civil (Chief of State) and one military (Commander in Chief). Both positions are held by Mon Mothma. The Chief of State can only be removed by a two-thirds vote of the Advisory Council. However, the treaty requires that the Chief of State position itself be abolished upon the end of the Emperor’s reign (whether he dies, is killed, is deposed, resigns, or whatever). At that point, a Constitutional Convention is to be called to decide upon a new governmental structure. Mon Mothma rejects the idea of referring to the Alliance as a sort of government-in-exile with its own representative government. Being a government-in-exile would, in a sense, give recognition to the Empire as a legitimate (rather than illegal) state, and a representative body of worlds that are backing off from the central authority would likely remind far too many people of the Confederacy of Independent Systems and perhaps turn opinion against the Rebellion.
Mon Mothma drafts the "Declaration of Rebellion" and broadcasts it over the HoloNet. In it, she calls for the overthrow of Palpatine and the restoration of the Republic. Several planets openly announce their allegiance to the Alliance and begin transferring supplies to the Rebels. Many of these worlds are soon suppressed by Imperial forces, but much of the supply loads get through.

Immediately after the Declaration of Rebellion, some planets actively rise up against the Empire prematurely. They are dubbed the Secession Worlds and crushed by the Imperial starfleet.

With the official formation of the Alliance to Restore the Republic, the planet Froz, which has been resistant to the Empire since its formation, publicly declares its support for the Alliance. To make an example of the world, Grand Moff Naomi Dargon bombs the planet from orbit with a fleet of Star Destroyers, nearly extinguishing life on the planet. The destruction of Froz causes the nearby planet Xyquine II to officially crack down on anti-Imperial activities that had gone on there since the Empire came to power, but the government secretly reaches out to the Alliance in hopes of helping to bring the Empire down without bringing down its wrath upon Xyquine II.*

(Note: The planet Froz was against the Empire from the beginning, but the bombardment is specifically said to come because of their support for the "Alliance to Restore the Republic." That suggests that the payback must come after that organization officially exists, long after the initial resistance. The Xyquine II info is also subject to whenever the Froz devastation takes place, since it happens as a reaction to it.

Shortly after the Declaration of Rebellion, the neutral planet Sanctuary reaches out to the new Rebel Alliance and offers to provide asylum to wounded Rebels, Alliance family members, and political exiles in return for supplies and equipment to increase their agricultural capacity.

Shortly after the Declaration of Rebellion, the Corellian Cross award is created by the Rebel Alliance to honor distinguished service in the field. It is named for vital contributions made by Corellia to the fledgling Alliance.

Voren Na’al, working for the Galactic News Service, is covering the swoop races on Corsin when stormtroopers arrive and arrest the entire press corps. Over the next few weeks, he learns that the Empire has deposed the Corsin government and replaced it with a puppet military police state. Voren is so disgusted by these events that he joins the Rebel Alliance.*

(Note: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. Given that this is once the Alliance exists, yet Voren is said to have been with the Rebel Alliance since its inception (in the ROTJ Galaxy Guide), this event must be pretty close to the official founding of the Alliance.

Voria Sergar is abandoned by her slave master on Lok. She wanders alone for several months before being found by Rebel officer Isnal Roran. He begins training her and she quickly rises in the Alliance ranks.*

(Note: Information provided by Luke van Horn. This would pretty much have to be very early in the Rebel Alliance’s operations for her passing to have been felt so broadly, shortly before Galaxies.

Having turned over his Senate seat to Leia Organa, Bail Organa takes the positions of Viceroy and First Chancellor back home and begins trying to turn Alderaan back from its pacifist ways to oppose the Empire.

SoroSuub’s Siin Suub disbands the Sullustan Council with Corporate Proclamation 137d.

Rather than ordering the death of Bail Organa after his capture and escape during the Starkiller plot, Emperor Palpatine chooses to allow Bail to live, since he knows that he can manipulate Leia Organa in the Senate through threats or acts against her father, and vice versa.
In the wake of the death of Galen "Starkiller" Marek, Juno Eclipse’s heart is broken. She battles against her feelings of despair and loss as she continues to work with the Rebel Alliance. In this capacity, she spends time on Malastare, assisting in freeing the planet from the Empire. During that time, she works closely with Berkelium Shyre, who develops strong feelings for her, despite them not being reciprocated. She soon leaves her posting on Malastare to become the captain of the Salvation, serving with Nitram as her first officer. She also, as she has time, begins attempting to have Galen’s droid, PROXY, repaired.

(conjecture based on comments from Leland Chee in Star Wars Insider #116.)

In the wake of the death of Galen "Starkiller" Marek, Rahm Kota continues to fight the Empire as part of the Rebel Alliance at times, while going off on his own with his militia in other instances. During this time, the Rogue Shadow, formerly Galen’s ship, is used by Kota, and Juno Eclipse sometimes aids the Jedi Master without informing the Alliance leadership.

(conjecture based on The Force Unleashed II)

In the wake of the death of Galen "Starkiller" Marek, Darth Vader experiments with various clones of Starkiller (using his body as a template) on Kamino. He also creates a bizarre clone from combined genetic material from Starkiller and Darth Maul, dubbed Maulkiller, but the clone is unstable and must be destroyed. Of the Starkiller clones, one, dubbed Subject 1157 will die at the hands of an escaped Starkiller clone (designation 1138), while another will complete his training with Vader to become the Dark Apprentice.

(conjecture based on The Force Unleashed II)

Kimali Soresh, fresh out of the Imperial Academy, falls in with a group of Rebel sympathizers. His mother, Ilaani Soresh, helps him avoid the authorities, but when she tells her husband (and Kimali’s father), Imperial officer Rezi Soresh, so that he can say his goodbyes, he turns them in, earning himself a promotion to the rank of commander. Ilaani and Kimali are sent to the Gree Baaiker Labor Camp, from which they will eventually be transferred to the Death Star as slave labor. Both will die when the station is destroyed.

(conjecture based on Target)

Around this time, Airen Cracken, who has been leading his own group of resistance fighters against the Empire on Contruum, flees the planet with his people, stealing the Imperial Nebulon-B escort frigate Eccentric Lad in the process. He soon joins the Rebel Alliance. He becomes a senior intelligence officer and captains the Eccentric Lad, now rechristened the Shadow Raptor, in coordinating intelligence operations in the Trans-Hydiand Borderlands. Within a short time, Cracken will become head of Alliance Intelligence, at which point he will continue to use the Shadow Raptor as his flagship, but the captain’s position will be held by Hylo Sortuli. Along the way, the ship is modified to remove all but running lights that can simulate a starfield pattern, the hull is painted matte black, its sensors and communications suites are upgraded, and its docking bay is refit to handle Alliance starfighters instead of TIE fighters.*

(conjecture based on Dead in the Water)*

*NOTE: We actually don’t have a date for when this happens, but it must be pre-ANH, and if he is joining the actual Rebel Alliance, then it must be after the Corellian Treaty.

Around this time, Empire evicts the entire population of Bestine IV so that the whole planet can be used as a high-security base.*

(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This must be sometime after the formation of the Rebel Alliance, yet prior to ANH.

Janu Godalhi and Bail Organa finally communicate with each other and Godalhi commits the resources of his Tethan resistance to the early Rebel Alliance.*

(conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Janu Godalhi, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What’s the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

On Tatooine, Matt Turhaya spends time in a cantina drunk. The years since his wife and daughter’s deaths have been rough. His brother Jamie picks him up and returns him home, but he returns to the cantina and enters into a sabacc game involving Captain Tere Metallo. He bets his brother’s speeder shop and loses it, but since he can’t legally do that, he is in debt to Metallo, who takes him on as a mechanic and co-pilot of her ship, the Star Quest. One month later, they make it to Kabaira. While in another cantina, at another sabacc game, Matt meets Metallo's friend, Del Hunter. Stormtroopers enter the cantina looking for Rebels, and Hunter mysteriously vanishes. On the way out, Matt is spotted and almost recognized by one of the stormtroopers. Back at the Star Quest, Matt and Metallo hear an explosion and find Hunter under the ship. They take him aboard the ship and he tells them that he is a member of the rebellion against the Empire. When the stormtroopers come to search the Star Quest, Hunter is hidden in a special compartment, but the stormtrooper from earlier recognizes Matt for certain and takes him prisoner. Metallo and Hunter decide to rescue him. In prison, Matt meets Chaz and Blaise, professors of Rebels. When Metallo and Hunter free them, Blaise turns out to be an Imperial after all, and nearly kills Matt before they escape from him. They make it back to the Star Quest and escape the planet.

(Passages)
• Early in her first term as Imperial Senator for Alderaan, Leia Organa is nearly assassinated on the planet Challon. She is saved by “the weapons master,” Giles Durane (a Clone Wars veteran), who, with his assistant, Gimlet, has been hired by Bail Organa to instruct Leia in armed self-defense. The man behind the attack was Imperial General Emir, who has hired assassins from Torgas’ guild to kill her, leaving the Empire free of any implications of guilt. When Leia and Giles are attacked again by three assassins, Giles kills two and forces Leia to be the one to kill the other. A short while later, Leia’s training is finished, so she returns to Challon, but she is attacked by Torgas, who is working for Emir himself now. Gimlet falls saving Leia, and Torgas is killed by Giles, who turns out to now be working for Emir, who contacted him after she left. With his contract to Bail fulfilled, he intends to finish the job on Leia in his usual mercenary fashion. Leia is forced to kill her own instructor . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(The Weapons Master)
• While on a mission to Quellor to meet with Rebel agent (and friend of Bail Organa) Rafe Ballon, Senator Leia Organa and fellow rebel Gorhan. Leia is still new to Rebel missions at this time, and is covering this one with a diplomatic trip to Duro, which is near Quellor. When Rafe does not show up on time, she agrees with Gorhan’s urgings to leave, but they run into Rafe after leaving the cantina where they were to meet. He explains that Moff Toggan is onto him for slicing Imperial systems. He gives Leia a datacube and intends to remain behind, but Leia insists that they get him off the planet, despite the dangers that presents. They make it to the Constant Spirit and lift off, but they are approached by the Imperial customs vessel Gatekeeper, commanded by Captain Task. They are unable to get away, so before they can be captured (which would reveal Leia’s involvement in the Rebellion), Rafe launches in an escape pod, sending it on a collision course with the Gatekeeper’s bridge. The resulting crash covers the Constant Spirit’s escape. Leia eventually makes it back to Alderaan, where Bail Organa reminds her that she cannot save everyone, though if she did not try, she would not be the person she is.*

(Constant Spirit)*

*NOTE: We have no indication of when this story takes place, aside from it being an early solo mission or Leia, while she is still a Senator.
• Boba Fett accepts a bounty from a Muun named Gilean. The bounty is for a mysterious man named Connor Freeman, for whom Jango Fett set up an account (after killing Freeman’s father, an escaped clone of Jango himself, though Boba does not know this yet). Connor owes quite a bit of money to the crime lord Tayand (who is dangerous and “absolutely insane” according to Boba). Boba catches up with Connor after the latter does some hard drinking and is attacked by members of the so-called “League of Bounty Hunters.” Boba soundly kicks their butts, then absconds with Connor, who recognizes Boba as having the face of both his father and his father’s killer. He refuses to go along with the idea he sees Boba latching onto – that they are “brothers.” When Boba reveals that he was the one who shot at Connor’s father twenty years ago, the two get into a scuffle that gives the League a chance to attack. Boba is cornered and shot in the chest plate, then left for dead. (Big mistake!) With only two members of the “League” left, Daquinn, the leader, takes Connor to Tayand on Cilare. En route, Connor reminds him that if Boba isn’t dead, he is now very, very angry. Soon, Connor, Daquinn, and the other remaining hunter, Yarttar, arrive at Cilare, where Connor quickly kills Yarttar when Daquinn idiotically has the beastly hunter carry Connor, who then reaches for the hunter’s blaster and kills him. Before Daquinn can recapture him, Boba swoops out of the sky with his jetpack and snatches Connor away. Connor tries to reason with Boba, telling him that this is all about Connor winning sabacc repeatedly against Tayand, who, as a sore loser, accused him of cheating and set his goons on him. Connor was trying to earn more with the credits he had been left (by Jango, though he thinks they were left by his father) to make his father proud. Boba takes Connor to Tayand (because he always collects as part of his personal code), collecting his bounty, but then he offers to pay the 500,000 credits that Connor “owes” Tayand. When Tayand refuses, claiming he would prefer to kill Connor, Connor takes the initiative to put a bounty on Tayand with the measly three credits in his pocket. Boba accepts, then kills Tayand and several of his goons before escaping out of the room with Connor. However, they run headlong into a rancor . . . which Boba then angers so that it will kill their pursuers. When they are nearly caught by Daquinn, though, Connor pushes Boba out of the way, taking the shot meant for the man he has hated. Boba then wounds Daquinn and feeds him to the rancor with his exploding jetpack, giving them the opportunity to leave. Connor pays Boba the three credits, then collects a ton of riches left by the dead Tayand, while Boba takes the tooth from the rancor as a trophy as Jango would have. Both men have made their dead fathers proud this day.

(Jango and Boba Fett)

• Connor Freeman heads for Atzerri, where he opens the Freeman Cantina, hiring his friend Quinn as his bartender.

(conjecture based on Boba Fett is Dead)

• Around this time, Natasi Daala, in her final semester at the Caridan Academy, is requested by Chief Instructor Massimo Tagge for his command class, but he is overruled, likely due to allies of her former Instructor Visk, who was slighted when Tagge took her into his program. She finds herself graduating and being assigned as a datapad assistant, then a galley yeoman. In a last-ditch attempt to see her potential fulfilled, Massimo Tagge takes Daala’s detailed analysis of the Tarkin Doctrine and forwards it to his cousin, Cassio Tagge, who passes it to Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin himself. He pays a surprise visit to Carida, reassigning Visk to Sirpar, and taking Daala as both his new adjutant and lover (thought he latter appears to have been at her urging, not his, oddly enough). Very quickly, she is promoted to the rank of admiral, and Tarkin makes her part of his Maw Installation project.

(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

• On the Corellian moon of Gus Talon, young Wedge Antilles jokes with his darling Mala Tinero, running off with her necklace. When his actions draw the attention of Mala’s father Rallo and the Imperial Captain Turrant, the trio’s attitude annoys Turrant. Shortly thereafter, Wedge leaves on a cargo run, not telling Mala that he loves her before he does. While he is gone, Turrant arrives and claims that Rallo and Mala are both charged with collusion with the rebellion against the Empire. When Rallo blasts away at the Imperials, both Turrant and Mala run for safety. Unfortunately, Turrant’s run ends with him calling down Imperial forces to subjugate the entire settlement. When Wedge finally returns, he has to sneak his way onto the moon, where he finds devastation and no trace of Mala. It is very likely that she is dead, and he never got to tell her that he loved her . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Lucky)

• At the time of the very earliest founding of the Rebel Alliance, Roons Sewell acts with a troupe in a play about tyranny, alongside his beloved Malsa. When the Empire comes to shut the play down as seditious, he refuses to bow to real tyranny, and Malsa pays the price with her life. This starts a chain of events that leads Sewell into the Rebellion shortly thereafter, albeit with a great deal of blood on his hands. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell)

• An exobiotic plague strikes Kenloo’s Market on Coruscant, leading to a brief quarantine.

(conjecture based on Death Star)

• Approximately nine months before Dash Rendar becomes Javul Charn’s security consultant, Tereeza Dza’lar joins her tour as a costumer.*

(conjecture based on Shadow Games)*
*NOTE: Of course, we are also told that she did this after leaving Cloud City on Bespin, having worked for “Baron Administrator” Lando Calrissian, which is impossible, given that Lando does not have that position until at least two years later. (Yet another Reaves-Bohnhoff continuity gaffe.)

- Drigor Tarrens discovers that the Qektoth Confederation’s leaders have been using DNA samples from its members to engineer ever more powerful biological technology and weapons. He takes off in a Y-wing to inform the rest of the Confederation, but the starfighter explodes. When he awakens, the Confederation has repaired his body with cybernetic implant and he is to be put on trial for treason. He flees to Uukaablis, where he is given asylum.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign: The Kathol Outback—“Wildfire”)

- Boo Rawl joins the Rebellion.
  (conjecture based on Slaying Dragons)

- Tet Tramys recruits Ryley Ancum to gather information against the Empire and transmit it in Bass Code.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Bass)

- An outlaw camp is established on Aaris III.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Corellian outlaw Sufar is exiled from his colony for committing a murder.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- The B22 hold-out blaster is produced by Merr-Sonn.
  (conjecture based on Gundark’s Fantastic Technology: Personal Gear via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- A game of mental prowess known as Declination becomes popular.
  (conjecture based on Galladinium’s Fantastic Technology via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- A surveillance post is established on Calito by the Bacrana System Defense Force.
  (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- The FR9 model holographic ore scanner is produced by MicroThrust.
  (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- The Rebel Alliance establishes a base on De’nel.
  (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- An escape attempt on Despayre is foiled.
  (conjecture based on Death Star)

- Devton Cirilla joins the Ubiquitator. He will come to work under the alias Carill Benton as EO of Data Equity Management, Incorporated (DEMi), spying on the Tapani Sector from the top.
  (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Wes Janson enlists in the Rebel Alliance. His first tour is with the Tierfon Yellow Aces, where he meets Jek Porkins and Kissek Doran.*
  (conjecture based on A Cast of Thousands)*

*NOTE: I place this here because the following event takes place “early in his first tour.”

- Kissek Doran, a Rebel pilot, must be shot down by fellow pilot Wes Janson when he panics during a “hit and fade” operation. In disgrace, Doran’s wife changes their family name to “Tainer.” She moves to Alderaan with the rest of Kissek’s family, including his son Kell.*
  (conjecture based on Wraith Squadron)*

*NOTE: This refers to the article in Gamer #9, not the novel.

- Luke Skywalker (age 17) asks Beru Lars about his father after she accidentally mentions him in front of Luke. She spins a tale that he can tell is fake.
  (conjecture based on A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker)

- Savielk Trey’dra becomes leader of the Bothan Council (making him the de facto ruler of the Bothan people).
  (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- During the early days of the Galactic Civil War, Athakam MedTech donates supplies to Princess Leia Organa, who gets them to needed locations, up until her exposure as a Rebel agent around the time of the Battle of Yavin.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)

- During the early days of the Galactic Civil War, the Bith of Clak’dor VII again withdraw from the galaxy at large, fearing war’s impact on their planet. A few Bith still leave their wasteland homeworld, though, in order to earn money to send back to the homeworld.
(conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)
- During the early days of the Galactic Civil War, BlasTech Industries does not officially join the Empire. They do, however, provide Imperial forces with weapons at a substantial discount.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- During the Galactic Civil War, Chiewab Amalgamated Pharmaceuticals Company moves most of its activities into the Corporate Sector.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- During the early days of the Galactic Civil War, Merr-Sonn Munitions develops the PLX-2M missile tube for use by Imperial forces.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- During the early days of the Galactic Civil War, several Flash speeders disappear from Naboo’s Royal Security Force . . . only to later surface “mysteriously” in the hands of the Rebel Alliance.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)
- During the Galactic Civil War, Neuro-Saav Technologies forms an alliance with Tagge Company, forming a joint venture called BioTech, an experimental cybertech company. This helps keep Neuro-Saav in the Empire’s good graces.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- Dandamont Pring becomes Imperial Consul-General to Bothawui.
(conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, abridged)
- Yasinda Barkak, a Force-sensitive Imperial Intelligence agent being groomed to be one of the Emperor’s Hands, has refused to believe in the Force. When on Tasariq, proximity to Tasar Crystals reawakens her Force-sensitivity, making her hear voices and slowly be driven insane.
(conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Approximately one year before being transferred to the Death Star, Teela Kaarz backs the “wrong” political candidate on Mirial, leading to her arrest on charges of treason and subsequent imprisonment on Despayre.
(conjecture based on Death Star)
- The brother of Hapan Prince Isolder is killed by Harravan, a pirate. Isolder takes off undercover to hunt for Harravan.*
(conjecture based on The Courtship of Princess Leia)*

*NOTE: Entry moved from 5 BBY based on information provided by StarKiller.
- When her father, Dreja Darmic, is arrested for sympathizing with the Rebellion under the pretense of a tax evasion arrest, Maranne Darmic takes the next freighter off of Coruscant, which happens to be Haber Trel’s. The two become partners in trading and, at times, smuggling.
(conjecture based on Side Trip)
- Frequent winner of the race during the Festival of the High Winds on Sevarcos, Lord Cassius Nolath Rha, wins the race for the second year in a row.
(conjecture based on Festival of the High Winds)
- Eyvind becomes the farthest out moisture farmer in the areas around Mos Eisley on Tatooine.
(conjecture based on Drawing the Maps of Peace: The Moisture Farmer’s Tale)
- On Indu San, Robbe Nostler of the Galactic News Network is forced to start tailoring his stories to Imperial censors.
(conjecture based on Kella Rand Reporting)
- Lady Varin Arabella ascends to head of House Barnaba.
(conjecture based on Lords of the Expanse)
- Wryk Jobones retires from active swoopchasing competition.
(conjecture based on The Black Sands of Socorro via TimeTales, abridged)
- Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin and Bevel Lemelisk oversee final construction on the Death Star I in orbit of Despayre. Tarkin (on behalf of the Emperor) orders the construction of a second station, the Death Star II. To protect the Death Star II construction zone at Endor, Imperial Empire dissidents.

*NOTE:  From this point onward, I will try to always refer to the various Death Star-based projects as follows.  The prototype Death Star (referred to in The Essential Atlas as a scaled down superlaser within a skeletal armillary sphere) which appears in the Jedi Academy Trilogy will, of course, be referred to as the Death Star Prototype.  The Death Star-modeled creation found in Dark saber will be referred to as the Darksaber.  The Death Star-modeled creation dubbed the Tarkin will be referred to as the Tarkin.  The first Death Star to be destroyed by the Rebel Alliance (at the Battle of Yavin) will be referred to as the Death Star I.  The second Death Star to be destroyed by the Rebel Alliance (at the Battle of Endor) will be referred to as the Death Star II. I know that numbers were not given to the Death Stars that appear on film, but the naming convention of "I" and "II" were created in the Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels, and I will use them to assure that no confusion exists.

- As the Empire begins construction of the Death Star II at Endor, the three-headed snakelike divto creature is discovered.
  (conjecture based on Ultimate Adversaries)
- In response to the formation of the Rebel Alliance, Emperor Palpatine begins building up the Imperial military.
  (conjecture based on Imperial Sourcebook)
- Moff Kentor Sarne is assigned to the Kathol sector.  Upon his promotion, he requests that the Renegade be among his forces.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign)
- Sufar is banished from his Corellian colony home after committing a series of murders.
  (conjecture based on The DarkStryder Campaign)
- The first Rebel High Command base is created in the Chrellis system, though they must leave for a new base on Brigia in the Tion Cluster shortly thereafter due to increased Imperial activity in the Chrellis system.  When the Empire then unleashes Operation Strike Fear to target the Brigia base, they are forced to briefly relocate to Orion IV, only to be chased away again.  They will eventually find a somewhat more permanent base on Dantooine, until shortly before the Battle of Yavin.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook and Age of Rebellion: Core Rulebook)
- Travia Chan is made Commander in Chief of the Rebel forces in the Atrivis sector.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook)
- Adazai Liebke, now a Rebel Alliance officer, goes to Pii 3 seeking refuges with his old friend Xenon Nnaksta.  He will eventually convince Xe to join the Rebel Alliance.*
  (conjecture based on The Greel Wood Haven)*

*NOTE:  The Greel Wood Haven uses the term pro-Alliance several times to speak of anti-Empire groups, but it is clear by the suggested timing of earlier events that it is not the Rebel Alliance until this point, but simply anti-Empire dissidents.

- A group of Rebels liberates the workers at the Garen IV labor camp, including Stevan Makintay.  Makintay returns home to Hargeeva and tries to lead the citizens in rebelling against his father, but to no avail.  Mak, knowing the woman he loves, Ketrian Altronel, is safe working for the Imperials at the moment, he returns to the Rebel Alliance.  Several other Hargeevans and offworlders who helped in the attempted coup leave for the Alliance with him, including Merinda Niemeh.
  (conjecture based on Firepower)
- Rebel Alliance member Amarith is promoted to captain.  When this happens, her former partner, Koral-tae, decides to retire back to Ando.
  (conjecture based on The Ando Project)
- Leia Organa meets Emperor Palpatine and Roganda Ismaren (one of Palpatine's concubines and an Emperor's Hand).
  (conjecture based on Children of the Jedi)
- Corellian Diktat Dupas Thomree dies.  Heir – apparent Daclif Gallamby becomes the new Diktat, though he is little more than just a figurehead for a puppet government.  Gallamby's ascension brought Thrackan Sal-Solo to a position of second-in-command.
  (conjecture based on Assault at Selonia via TimeTales, verbatim)
- Shandria L'hnar begins studying at the Imperial Institute of Higher Studies on Ferr hast.  In her early days there, her friend Celida Noerr, who had just joined the Alliance, is arrested as a traitor to the Empire after showing Shandria the truth of Imperial tyranny. Shandria leaves to join the Alliance.

(conjecture based on One of a Kind)

- Tereb Ab’Lon begins sending useful information to the Rebel Alliance.

(conjecture based on Droid Trouble)

- As a result of Hal Horn’s efforts, Booster Terrik is captured by Corellian Security and sent to Kessel.

(conjecture based on The Bacta War)

- Toob and Karl Ancher are wounded when a homemade thermal detonator explodes. Toob loses an eye, while Karl loses a leg. Both get cybernetic implants.

(conjecture based on Out of the Cradle)

- Jan Dodonna chooses resignation from the Empire over treason or continuing to follow the harsh tactics laid down by Emperor Palpatine. As a result, the Empire plans to terminate him, but Mon Mothma warns him. While Dodonna won’t join the Rebellion (which is basically a treasonous organization), he does take heed of the warning. He escapes in the middle of the night.

(conjecture based on The Essential Chronology)

- Jan Dodonna’s escape has not gone well. He has to be saved by Rebels under the command of General Roons Sewell. In their escape, Dodonna’s tactics save the ship, leading Roons to suggest that Dodonna is a tactical genius to Mon Mothma. While he was originally reluctant to join the Rebellion, the Empire’s attempt on his life convinces him to join, being commissioned as a General, answerable to Sewell. (To be continued below . . .)

(The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell)

- Drake Paulsen returns to Socorro after a smuggling run. He runs into Toob Ancher, who is leaving the world for good, expecting to die soon. He then goes to Karl Ancher’s Black Dust Tavern, where he refuses a summons from Secles Uslopos, who is wanting him to take a job for Abdi-Badawzi. Upon leaving, Drake is stunned and taken to Abdi’s fortress anyway. There, he sees his father, Kaine, being threatened, and is forced to relent and take the job. He is to be aboard the Seldom Different, captained by Elias Halbert with the Coynite Warrior Tra’Parr’Sratt. They are to be a decoy to fool Imperials while another ship makes a run in the Nodgra system. When they are stopped by the Imperial Star Destroyer Inquisitor, a stormtrooper fakes an “incident” to let the Imps use him as an “example” of what it means to be insubordinate (or threatening) to a stormtrooper. They shoot him in the shoulder and leave. Drake passes out and awakens to the Sratt calling him Lom’Ka’Sol. He is on the Miss Chance one of the two ships he and his father own. His father is also there, free of Abdi’s clutches. Kaine informs Drake that Sratt was there when he was born and called him Lom at the time. Now “Lom’Ka’Sol” means he believes the young Drake has come of age. They head back to Socorro to pick up their Ghtroc freighter, the Steadfast.

(Out of the Cradle)

- While Kaine Paulsen and Karl Ancher argue over Kaine’s desire to help the Thrugii Outpost out of good will (to deliver needed supplies), Kaine sends Drake over to a nearby guard station to “check on his Wookiee.” Drake has no idea what he’s talking about. He goes to the station and meets with Seth, the CO of the little station (though not an Imperial), and finds him dealing with a Wookiee. Drake calms the Wookiee, Nikaede, and suggests that she join Drake and Kaine as a mechanic. Karl enters and tries to help when Imperials enter and don’t go along with Drake’s story of purchasing Nikaede. The Imperials lock all three of them up, where they meet Tait Ransom, who is also being held. Inside the cell, Karl and Drake talk about how Karl really does care for Kaine, and was worried about him taking the Thrugii job, though he did anyway. Finally, with a distraction from Nikaede, they escape aboard a ship flown by Tait’s comrade, Rusty. They escape to Socorro. As Drake awakens from the flight, he overhears Karl and Tait talking about Kaine. He’s been killed during the Thrugii mission. Karl and Tait help console Drake. Tait gives him 1,000 credits, like his dad gave him when they parted. Drake will take up his father’s legacy. He and Nikaede team up and take the Steadfast (still hidden in a dormant Socorran volcano) off of Socorro. Their destination: the Thrugii outpost, to finish what Kaine started.

(When the Domino Falls)

- When the Empire strikes Tyshapahl, Tedris Bjalin leaves Imperial service and joins the Rebel Alliance.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)
- Flinor Tekkirl joins the Rebellion as a scout.
  (conjecture based on Cracken's Rebel Operatives via TimeTales, abridged)
- The Imperials garrison the planet Nishr.
  (conjecture based on Rules of Engagement via TimeTales, abridged)
- One month after the signing of the Corellian Treaty, the Besadii clan of Hutts is censured and fined 1,000,000 credits when Jabba the Hutt convinces the other clans that the Besadii have done ill to the Desilijic clan. Jabba has slowly begun taking leadership of his clan while Jiliac is busy with motherhood. Elsewhere, Bria Tharen leads a raid on an Ylesian slave ship. (To be continued below . . . )
  (Rebel Dawn)
- Approximately one month before meeting Han Solo, Rekkon infiltrates the Corporate Sector Authority installation on Orron III.
  (conjecture based on Han Solo at Stars' End)
- At some point while working in the Corporate Sector Authority, Han Solo meets Kearsa Davit, with whom the Rebel Alliance will end up trading for Echo Base supplies approximately two years after the Battle of Yavin. The two become acquaintances, but not particularly good friends.
  (conjecture based on Razor's Edge)
- Han Solo and Chewbacca are now working in the Corporate Sector Authority. On an arms run to Duroon, the Millennium Falcon is damaged, leading Han to pay his employer, Ploovo Two-For-One, back immediately (screwing him over, even as he has screwed over Han) and take off to find his old friend Doc, who can make the necessary repairs to the ship. When they reach where they expect to find Doc, they instead find that he has vanished. They do find his daughter, Jessa, though, who tells them of Doc's disappearance. An IRD attack is repelled by the outlaw troupe, using Z-95 Headhunters, and then Jessa tells them what they must do to gain repairs. They, and others who have lost friends or loved ones, are to go on a mission to find the lost individuals, including her father. They agree, and the Falcon is placed aboard a drone barge where Han is introduced to Bollux and Blue Max, two droids. The smaller one, Max, is carried inside Bollux's chest, and will hack into CSA computers to find the location of the missing people. They proceed to Orron III where they meet the rest of their infiltration group: Rekkon; Torm; Atuarre; and Pakka, Atuarre's cub. Their mission is a success, but in the process, Chewbacca is captured. Rekkon tells Han of Chewie's predicament just as Torm, a traitor, kills Rekkon. Han, enraged, tosses Torm out the nearest airlock. (Some science fiction series, like Babylon 5, call this "spacing.") Solo and the rest of the remaining team members head for Mytus VII and its Stars' End prison complex. They infiltrate the area as replacement entertainers for Vice President Hirken. Unfortunately, Hirken doesn't care for the group and only wants Bollux, for a match against his Mark X Executioner droid in a gladiator battle. During the match, Solo rigs the prison tower to be blasted free of the planet and into space. Once this happens, the prisoners are freed and sent to the Falcon, docked alongside the tower. In space, Solo faces off with Hirken and Uul-Rha-Shan, Hirken's bodyguard. The tower is on its way to crash back into the planet when Han kills Shan. Defeated, Hirken tries to plead for safe passage away from the doomed tower, but upon doing so, he is murdered by his own employees for treason. Han boards the ship and they escape the tower before it crashes back into Mytus VII. They return to Urdur, Doc's hideout, and reunite Doc with Jessa. The modifications and repairs asked for are made to the Millennium Falcon.
  (Han Solo at Stars' End)
- Having been attacked by a dinko brought to him by Han Solo, Ploovo Two-For-One puts a bounty on the head of any dinko.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
One month after her attack on an Ylesian slave ship, Bria Tharen suggests that the Rebel Alliance strike at Ylesia itself to free slaves, who might want to join the Rebellion, and to take over as much spice as they can to purchase weapons and ships. In the Corporate Sector, Han Solo is with Jessa, but considers returning to Nar Shaddaa after a while. (To be continued below . . .)

(Rebel Dawn)

During an elaborate New Year’s Fete Week ceremony, Emperor Palpatine elevates twelve of his top servants to the rank of Grand Admiral, a new rank he has just instituted. These twelve will include Grand Admirals Martio Batch, Nial Declann, Octavian Grant, Josef Grunger, Ishin-Il-Raz, Afsheen Makati, Danetta Pitta, Peccati Syn, Miltin Takel, Osvald Teshik, Rutaan Tigellinus, and Demetrius Zaarin. This group will later include a secret thirteenth Grand Admiral, Mitth’raw’nuruodo (Thrawn). (Exact date of via Who’s Who: Imperial Grand Admirals: 34:F1)*

*NOTE: This takes place during New Year’s Fete Week two years before the Battle of Yavin. I have chosen to interpret that as two New Year’s Fete Weeks ago, rather than going to years back and then heading for the preceding Fete Week. Remember again that since ANH took place in the third month of the year, this event takes place near the end of the year relative to SW4, even though by the galactic calendar, it would be at the start of the year, or very end, depending on your system’s standards.

Corran Horn enters the Corellian Security Force Academy.

(Approximately six months before Dash Rendar becomes Javul Charn’s security consultant, Javul’s touring concert loses parts to one of its sets when a container arrives at a location empty. It is unknown whether the set was forgotten or stolen.

The Scout Service (originally part of the Old Republic) is disbanded.

On a run to Kamar, the Millennium Falcon takes some damage, forcing Han Solo and Chewbacca to make repairs with Kamarian fluidic technology. While on the world, they begin showing a holofilm, Varn, World of Water, to the natives in return for q’mai, a fee. Unbeknownst to them, the natives haven’t taken up a new pastime, but a new religion, and the q’mai is an offering.

Around this time, Moff Glovstoak buys stolen artwork from the BloodScars to help fund a separatist movement eighteen months from now . . . At about the same time, the BloodScars begin attacks on various vessels as cover for their true targets, vessels carrying Imperial military supplies . . .

Han Solo and Chewbacca meet with Jabba the Hutt on Kwenn Station. They make a transfer of spice and money, regardless of a run-in with Bidlo Kwerve, one of Jabba’s servants. While on the station, Salacious B. Crumb gets aboard Jabba’s ship. When Jabba gets back to Tatooine, Crumb is found in Jabba’s soup bowl and is about to be executed when an accidental spilling of the bowl onto Bidlo Kwerve and Bib Fortuna makes Jabba decide to trade Crumb his life for his services as, essentially, a court jester.

During a run to Kamar, Han Solo and Chewbacca have accidentally created a new religion. Needless to say, this is not a favorable event when they discover the truth of the situation, so they flee to the planet Lur. A potential client named Zlarb hires them for a run which they soon learn, under threat, is a slaving run. He and Chewbacca (along with the slaves, whom they have freed) defeat Zlarb and his fellow slavers. Han, now bereft of the fee he was to receive from Zlarb, decides to take his payment in simple revenge for the slaving Zlarb was doing. Their quest takes them to Bonadan, where they intend to take the payment that Zlarb was to receive upon receipt of the slaves. When they arrive, Han meets CSA Auditor Fiolla, and he and Chewbacca make acquaintance with repo-man (er, repo-being) Spray. Fiolla has discovered a link, she thinks, between the CSA and the slavers. Fiolla and Han take Lady of Mindor, a pleasure ship, to Ammuud, where the conspiracy is rooted. Chewbacca and Spray head for Ammuud in the Millennium Falcon ahead of Han and Fiolla. En route, Lady of Mindor is attacked by slavers (whom they will learn were led by Fiolla's assistant, Magg, who was "on the take"). They manage to escape the slavers and proceed to Ammuud. Once there, they speak with another man attempting to take down the conspiracy, Mor Glayyd. They show Glayyd that his father's murder was caused by Zlarb's machinations (since Zlarb was a Malkite Poisoner), and he agrees to aid them. The slavers had set up a duel between Glayyd and Gallandro, the best shot in the galaxy, per se. Han decides to take Glayyd's place. The duel isn't carried out, however, because Gallandro apologizes for the affront which brought about the duel. Han and Fiolla catch up to Chewbacca and Spray, but during their journey from the planet, they are taken aboard a Victory-class Star Destroyer, where Gallandro recognizes Spray as Odumin, territorial manager for the CSA . . . the same being Fiolla had been investigating (but had apparently never seen in person). Odumin had been using Solo and Chewbacca in an attempt to make the slavery ring vulnerable, in preparation for destroying it. Their reward for helping Odumin is to be arrested (to silence them). Han doesn't like that idea, of course, and enters into a firefight with Odumin until Han finally takes Fiolla and Gallandro hostage, steals a sizeable "reward" from Odumin's vault, and makes his way back to the Falcon. He will soon leave Fiolla and Gallandro behind, as he and Chewbacca escape unharmed.

(Han Solo's Revenge)

- After Han Solo and Chewbacca's escape from Kamar, the local Kamarians build an effigy of Solo, calling him the Dark One, the one who tempts and then denies. The religion Han inadvertently started is taken over by Sonniod, who comes to be known as the Good One.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- In need of repairs on the Millennium Falcon, Han Solo and Chewbacca leave the Corporate Sector. They attempt clotheslegging in the Cron Drift, a Military Script-Exchange Plot in the Lesser Ploroid cluster, and several other schemes before finding themselves in the Tion Hegemony working for Grigmin.
  (conjecture based on Han Solo and the Lost Legacy)
- The Margengai glide (a dance) gains popularity.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)
- At the battle of Chabosh, Harsh, in command of the Star Destroyer Cauldron, leads a stormtrooper company in battle with Rebels who have just overthrown the governor. Harsh is severely wounded and told that his legs will have to be replaced with cybernetics. He refuses the operation, and his legs actually wind up healing, making him a legend among Imperials.
  (conjecture based on Unusual Suspects)
- Captain Tandra Pyl and her Star Destroyer, Thunderflare, are assigned to the Elrood Sector.
  (conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three)
- Imperial Mining Ltd. is founded on Derilyn in the Elrood Sector.
  (conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three)
- Industrial Automaton and Cybot Galactica remain the only major droid manufacturers in the market after the chaos of Rebel activity helps them put the smaller companies out of business.
  (conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook)
- The Galactic Empire oppresses the Icarii on Vestar. The Icarii can regenerate, however, and the battle is costly until Abl Karda, an Imperial Colonel, decapitates the still living head of Selestrine, the Icarii leader, and uses a biological weapon to destroy the Icarii. He keeps the future-seeing head and leaves Vestar.
  (conjecture based on Boba Fett: Enemy of the Empire)
- Jake Farrell comes out of retirement to join the Rebel Alliance.*
  (conjecture based on Rebel Assault Gamebook)*

*NOTE: Rebel Assault has a questionable status in the continuity. According to Leland Chee, some of the story fits, while other elements do not. That makes me wonder if the information in its guide, the Rebel Assault Gamebook, should be taken seriously. For now, we can figure that this information is correct, since the character exists in some of the in-continuity segments.

- The Kwymar Suppressions begin, marked by Imperial assaults against Rebel positions on Picutorion and several planets in the Kwymar Sector. Sergeant Major Beilert Valance and his legion are involved in the fighting on Picutorion. Valance leads a squad of 16 troopers who eliminate every Rebel unable to hastily evacuate. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Hunt Within)*

*NOTE: This summary was provided by Luke van Horn. These events are said to be Valance’s final mission prior to the one that leads to him becoming a cyborg.

- Sergeant Major Beilert Valance serves the Empire in an outworld skirmish on Denephon, but is blasted by a Rebel torpedo. He is taken to the Telos IV medical facility to be treated, but when the Imperials abandon the facility, he is left for dead. He survives, but only as a cyborg, which grates against his soul due to his hatred for mechanicals. (To be continued below . . . )

(The Hunter!)*

*NOTE: Some of the details here come from The Hunt Within.

- Mara Jade is given a test by Palpatine. She must break into Wilhuff Tarkin’s private quarters. After completing this task with flying colors, she is given the title “Emperor’s Hand” and is introduced to Darth Vader.

(Mara Jade: By the Emperor’s Hand #0)

- Having been named Emperor’s Hand, Mara Jade is given her own ship and a droid named K3.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Characters)

- Sometime before his encounter with Morgan Katarn, Qu Rahn visits Yoda on Dagobah and learns about the Valley of the Jedi in vague terms. He is also given a golden lightsaber that he takes with him.
  (conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part II: Unsung Heroes of the Light)

- Morgan Katarn, while evacuating protestors from Sulon to Ruusan, stumbles across the Valley of the Jedi. He informs his friend, Jedi Knight Qu Rahn, of his discovery, but Rahn refuses to learn the coordinates of the find. Instead, Katarn engraves a map to the Valley in the ceiling of his home. He then arranges for Rahn to deliver a message and Rahn’s lightsaber to his son Kyle Katarn when “the time is right.” (To be continued below . . . )

(Rebel Agent)

- Upon leaving Morgan Katarn, Qu Rahn also gives his friend his lightsaber, keeping the golden one he received from Yoda for himself. It is Rahn’s lightsaber that will come into Kyle Katarn’s possession.
  (conjecture based on The Dark Forces Saga, Part II: Unsung Heroes of the Light)

- On Tuttin IV, Ryley Ancum, Hannis D’lund, and Erik Lauderslag, collectively known as the musical group “Far Cry,” are preparing for an audition with Keth Beamis. Little do Hannis and Erik know that Ryley has been working with Beamis (after being recruited by Tet Tramys) to use a secret code (Bass Code) to encode Rebel Alliance information into their music, hoping to be of service to the Rebels and work against the Empire Ryley believes caused his parents, Tendis and Jioie Ancum, to abandon him on Tuttin IV to be raised by Governor Shran Etison. At the audition, Beamis recognizes important information about metal shipments in their song “Dark Eyes, Warm Thoughts,” but before they can send Ryley’s information along to the “Holstrum Talent Agency” on Beltrix (a Rebel front), Imperials arrive to take Beamis into custody. He had asked about a woman who turned out to be a spy a while back, and they believe he is a Rebel. Ryley is allowed to go, since they have no true reason to suspect him, but Beamis commits suicide via poison while in custody to prevent the Imperials from getting any information from him. The governor decides to send Ryley and Far Cry to Beltrix with Intelligence Agent Onjo Fegel in order to infiltrate the talent agency and rout any Rebels. While on route, the group manage to get a Bass Code warning out to the Rebels, and upon arrival, Onjo’s plans are foiled, as the Rebels have all escaped. Far Cry goes forward with their faked audition, where Ryley recognizes two of the people present—Tet Tramys and his mother. She tells him he has to go back to Tuttin IV for now, but he plans to somehow find a way to communicate with her from Tuttin IV. He’s finally found his mother, and he has a lot to catch up on.

(Rebel Bass)

- Tenn Graneet is assigned to the Steel Talon.
  (conjecture based on Death Star)
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

- Ferus Olin, now in the guise of Fess Ilee, hears from Obi-Wan “Ben” Kenobi for the last time during Obi-Wan’s life. He will later be contacted by Obi-Wan’s spirit after meeting Luke Skywalker on Delaya.
  (conjecture based on Hostage)
- Sometime prior to Queen Nehanna of Ord Gimmel going missing, teenaged Salana begins attacking Imperial targets and making a name for herself as a resistance leader.
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)
- Sometime fairly early in the life of the Rebel Alliance, the independent anti-Imperial group under Ran Niall that has been acting from Arda I since shortly after the formation of the Empire joins the Rebel Alliance as a “Sector Force” (SecForce).*
  (conjecture based on Onslaught at Arda I)*

*NOTE: The adventure book refers to the group working with the Rebel Alliance for “several years,” when the adventure takes place around a year after ANH. That suggest that they must join the Alliance pretty soon after its founding. (Of course, this is also sometimes referenced as “only recently,” and the dates in the book are not internally consistent, so . . . take this as an approximation, at best.)

- Sometime shortly before Kyle Katarn’s mission to Danuta, the base there is brought online.
  (conjecture based on Kyle Katarn’s Tale)

Perfect Evil (SWM short story: Hiromoto-SIN-ichi)
- Perfect Evil (SWM1 short story: Hiromoto-SIN-ichi)
  Part 1

Falling Star (SWT15 short story: Jim Beard)
- Falling Star (SWT15 short story: Jim Beard)

First Impressions (SWT15 short story: Nathan Walker)
- First Impressions (SWT15 short story: Nathan Walker)

The Princess Leia Diaries [continued] (SWM11 short story: Jason Hall)
- The Princess Leia Diaries [continued] (SWM11 short story: Jason Hall)

- The Force Unleashed [continued] (comic: Haden Blackman)
- The Force Unleashed [continued] (novel: Sean Williams)
  Empirical [continued]
  Chapters 15 – 31

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video games: LucasArts & Krome Studios & N-Space & THQ)
- The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
  The Search for Kota [continued]
  Cloud City*
  A Fool’s Errand
  Return to Kashyyyk
  Imperial Kashyyyk
  Reunion
  Finding the Princess
  The Skyhook Destroyed
  Kota’s Contact Revealed
  Imperial Felucia
  Escape from the Sarlacc
  The Dark Side Embraced
  On the Path to Redemption
  Leaving Another Life Behind
  Imperial Raxus Prime
  Troop Transport
  The Shipyard Destroyed
  The Force Unleashed
  Jedi Temple*
  The Force Unleashed (video game: Krome Studios)
  Nar Shaddaa*
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

Trial of Spirit
Imperial Kashyyyk
Imperial Felucia
Imperial Raxus Prime
Cloud City

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game: N-Space)
Cloud City
Imperial Kashyyyk
Imperial Felucia
Imperial Raxus Prime

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game THQ)*

The Force Unleashed [continued] (novel: Sean Williams)
Rebel
Chapters 32 – 38

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video games: LucasArts & Krome Studios & N-Space & THQ)

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game: LucasArts)
Ambush on Corellia / The Death Star
Traitors to the Empire
Death Star
The Apprentice Faces His Destiny

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game: Krome Studios)
Death Star

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game: N-Space)
Death Star

The Force Unleashed [continued] (video game THQ)*

The Force Unleashed [continued] (novel: Sean Williams)
Epilogue

*NOTE: The different versions of The Force Unleashed in video game format were produced by four different companies: LucasArts; Krome Studios; N-Space; and a subsidiary of THQ. The games play a bit differently, overall, and the “next gen” version (LucasArts’ version for the Xbox 360 and Playstation 3) is considered the most accurate of the four versions. I have chosen to include information regarding the Jedi Temple levels in my summary, but those should be taken with a grain of salt due to the three “trials” only appearing in the Krome Studios versions (and entailing some continuity wrangling to make them fit) and the fourth being a downloadable extra mission for the LucasArts version of the game. I am also including the Cloud City mission from the Krome Studios game, which features a meeting with Garm Bel Iblis, but I have chosen to keep the LucasArts’ version’s recruiting of Rahm Kota on Cloud City as well, instead of on Nar Shaddaa, as the Krome Studios version presents the encounter. As for the THQ version, which was produced for the iPhone and iPod Touch . . . it is an extremely truncated version of the story, but is included here because it remains another adaptation of the same story (if we want to be generous in our description).

The Adventures of the Turhaya, Ross, Winger, and Brandl Families [continued]
(AJ/TFTE/TFTNR/SWH short stories: Charlene Newcomb & Patricia A. Jackson)
Passages (AJ7 short story: Charlene Newcomb)

The Weapons Master! [flashback] (MIBSW1 short story: Archie Goodwin)
The Weapons Master! [flashback] (MIBSW1 short story: Archie Goodwin)

Constant Spirit (SW1145 short story: Jennifer Heddle)

Constant Spirit (SW1145 short story: Jennifer Heddle)

Blood Ties [continued] (comic series: Tom Taylor)

Jango and Boba Fett, Part I [continued] (comic: Tom Taylor)
Jango and Boba Fett, Part II [continued] (comic: Tom Taylor)
Jango and Boba Fett, Part III (comic: Tom Taylor)
Jango and Boba Fett, Part IV (comic: Tom Taylor)

Lucky [flashback] (SWT23 short story: Rob Williams)
Lucky [flashback] (SWT23 short story: Rob Williams)

Empire [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie & Randy Stradley & John Wagner & Paul Chadwick & Paul Alden & Jeremy Barlow & Welles Hartley & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews
& John Jackson Miller
Darklighter Collection [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell, Part I [flashback] [continued] (comic: Paul Chadwick)
The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell, Part II [flashback] (comic: Paul Chadwick)

The Adventures of Drake Paulsen (AJ/SWH short stories: Patricia A. Jackson)
Out of the Cradle (AJ2/SWH short story: Patricia A. Jackson)
When the Domino Falls (AJ3/SWH short story: Patricia A. Jackson)

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
Hutt Justice and Rebel Retribution

“Han Solo Novels” (canceled novel series: Jack Chalker)*
“Han Solo Novel” (canceled novel: Jack Chalker)*
NOTE: This novel series is more of an alternate plan than a specific canceled tale. Instead of Jack Chalker, Brian Daley was tapped to write The Han Solo Adventures because Chalker wanted to finish another series he was working on at the time. Who knows what other ideas might have been spawned by Chalker, rather than Daley? Either way, the Chalker version of a Han Solo series never came to be. Consider it historical curiosity.

The Han Solo Adventures (novel trilogy: Brian Daley)
Han Solo at Stars’ End (novel: Brian Daley)
Chapters 1 – 11
Han Solo at Stars’ End Comic Adaptation (comic: Archie Goodwin)
Han Solo at Stars’ End, Part I (comic: Archie Goodwin)
Han Solo at Stars’ End, Part II (comic: Archie Goodwin)
Han Solo at Stars’ End, Part III (comic: Archie Goodwin)
Han Solo at Stars’ End Comic Adaptation (SWH comic: Archie Goodwin)
Han Solo at Stars’ End Comic Adaptation (SWH comic: Archie Goodwin)

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
Hutt Justice and Rebel Retribution [continued]
Interlude I: The Corporate Sector
Jabba the Hutt–This Crumb for Hire (ADODH short story: Jim Woodring)
This Crumb for Hire (ADODH short story: Jim Woodring)

The Han Solo Adventures [continued] (novel trilogy: Brian Daley)
Han Solo’s Revenge (novel: Brian Daley)
Chapters 1 – 13
The Hunt Within (miniatures game: Jason Fry)
The Hunt Within (miniatures game: Jason Fry)
Raid on Picutorion

The Hunter! [flashback] (comic: Archie Goodwin)

Shadows of the Empire Omnibus [continued] (comic series: Steve Perry & Michael Stackpole & John Wagner & Timothy Zahn)
Mara Jade: By the Emperor’s Hand (comic series: Michael Stackpole & Timothy Zahn)
By The Emperor’s Hand #0 (starwars.com comic: Timothy Zahn)

Dark Forces Trilogy (graphic novel trilogy: William C. Dietz)
Rebel Agent (graphic novel: William C. Dietz)
Chapter 1

Dark Forces Audio Dramatizations (audio drama series: John Whitman)
Rebel Agent (audio drama: John Whitman)

Rebel Bass (G6 short story: Kathy Tyers)
Rebel Bass (G6 short story: Kathy Tyers)
1 BBY – CONCURRENT TO SW4 (7 Days BBY – 1 Day ABY)

(Death Star is an unusual novel, which follows multiple characters in somewhat separate stories until those stories finally converge. In order to keep this summary understandable, each character or group of characters is given their own subsection here.)

- Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin: Tarkin oversees construction on “his” Death Star, but is frequently troubled by Rebel slowdowns and the like. When Rebels blow up a cargo vessel, he brings Darth Vader aboard to help investigate. He later brings his lover, Maw Installation commander Admiral Natasi Daala, aboard to visit and help him with the station for a bit, but she is injured by shrapnel in an “accident.” She is saved by Dr. Kornell “Uli” Divini, then returns to the Maw. As for Tarkin, he proceeds with Imperial plans for the station, destroying a Rebel ship as a test of the station’s superlaser, then destroying Despayre with three lower-powered shots. Later, when Leia Organa is brought aboard, Tarkin orders the destruction of Alderaan. His pride will not allow him to accept the possibility that the impending Rebel attack at the Battle of Yavin can actually pose a threat to the station, though, so he remains aboard when the station is destroyed. (This is almost all, essentially, background from A New Hope that fans already knew.)

- Lieutenant Commander Villian “Vil” Dance: Vil is the TIE fighter pilot who leads Alpha Squadron off of the Imperial Star Destroyer Steel Talon, which is stationed in the Horuz System, around the planet Despayre, where the Death Star is being built. After taking out a shuttle full of escaping Rebels, which doesn’t completely sit well with him, since they posed no immediate threat, Vil is eventually transferred to the Death Star to lead a squadron.

- Teela Kaarz: Teela was a successful engineering businesswoman on her homeworld, but she and other Mirialans who supported the “wrong” politician were rounded up and sent to the Imperial prison world of Despayre. Thanks to Teela’s technical skills, she is removed from Despayre and brought aboard the Death Star to help make the station run more efficiently. She is privy to a Wookiee engineer who wants to install a planned secondary exhaust port that she deems unnecessary. The port will eventually be installed because she never bothered to write down her objections, and it will be this port that Luke Skywalker will use to blow up the station later. Meanwhile, as a prisoner and worker at the same time, she has little chance for a future, as far as she is concerned. She eventually meets Vil in the Hard Heart Cantina and falls for him.

- Memah Roothes and Rodo: Memah Roothes ran the Soft Heart Cantina on Coruscant with her friend and bouncer Rodo at her side, until an insurance scam led to a fire that burned down the cantina. She was approached to join an Imperial contingent going to the Death Star to set up a cantina aboard, and she and Rodo took the offer. Once aboard, they set up the Hard Heart Cantina. While there, Rodo meets the Imperial combat instructor Nova Stihl, becoming friends based on a mutual interest in teras kasi. Memah, meanwhile, meets and falls for the escaped smuggler Celot Ratua Dil.

- Master Chief Petty Officer Tenn Graneet: Tenn is a heavy gunner aboard the Steel Talon until his proficiency gets him a transfer to the Death Star and the chance of a lifetime to control the superlaser (the “Big Gun”). After being required to destroy Despayre and Alderaan, though, Tenn has immense doubts, unsure if he could ever pull that trigger again. Eventually, he is looking for any possible way to stall when given the order to destroy Yavin IV. It is only the destruction of the Death Star at that moment that spares his conscience from another act of murder (or trial for treason).

- Dr. Kornell “Uli” Divini: Uli, a surgeon, is still in Imperial service due to a stop-loss order. He cannot leave, and his tour will not end until the Empire says it’s over. Instead, he is transferred to MedStar Four, then later to the Death Star. It is while aboard the Death Star that he will give Memah a physical (meeting her), treat Nova Stihl for nightmares (eventually looking up midichlorians because of Nova’s high count, despite them being a forbidden topic), and save Admiral Daala’s life. When Leia Organa is brought aboard, he treats her between interrogations, while she convinces him that he should actively move against the Empire, rather than seething about their policies in private.
- Celot Ratua Dil: Ratua is a Zelosian heir to a wealthy family, but he chose to go into smuggling. He was at the wrong place at the wrong time and was rounded up with other seedy individuals and sent to Despayre. There, he is a “friend” of sorts with Nova Stihl, as he helps in Nova’s combat lessons for weaker prisoners. Eventually, he sneaks aboard a hauler and makes his way to the Death Star, where he hides in plain sight and sets up his own black market. In the Hard Heart Cantina, he meets and falls for Memah, then later encounters Nova after the destruction of Despayre. Nova decides not to turn him in, as he is having his own doubts about Imperial justice, and Nova has Memah and Rodo vouching for him.

- Sergeant Nova Stihl: Nova is a guard on Despayre who teaches combat to weaker inmates to give them a fighting chance with some of the rougher crowd. He is a master of teras kasi and is eventually transferred to the Death Star, where he also teaches teras kasi classes. This interest leads him to befriend Rodo. When a latent Force-sensitivity causes him to have nightmares of the events of the Battle of Yavin and immediately before, he visits Uli to be checked out. It is his raised midichlorian count that causes Uli to run a search on the term, eventually raising red flags within the Empire. Nova also finds former prisoner Ratua aboard, but decides to let him go on with his life after the destruction of Despayre and Alderaan profoundly affect him mentally, thanks to his Force-sensitivity.

- Commander Atour Riten: Atour is a librarian, having worked all across the galaxy. Now, he is assigned to a library on the Death Star. Over the years, he has come up with a system for stealing information and filing it away off-site for later use. In this capacity, he does so with a set of Death Star plans that make it off the station to Danuta, only to be found by Kyle Katarn and sent to Darknpell, from whence they make their way to Toprawa, it would seem. Atour has been politically neutral, but after Despayre and Alderaan are destroyed, he decides that he needs to get off of the Death Star.

- Vil, Teela, Rodo, Ratua, Memah, Nova, Atour, and Uli: Eventually, during an evening in the Hard Heart Cantina, after the destruction of Alderaan, our characters come together by chance at the same time. During the conversation that ensues, Atour suggests that he has the information necessary to commandeer a vessel to get them all off of the Death Star when the time is right. They all agree that this is the right course of action. Later, when the Battle of Yavin begins, they use the distraction to make their way (after a signal from Atour) to an ambulance shuttle to escape. Atour, though, must stay behind to authorize the launch, since his droid, who had planned to do so, has been taken into custody. Uli almost doesn’t make it, as he is to be arrested for stealing information, but an explosion frees him to race for the shuttle. As for the others, Rodo and Nova are killed while holding off Imperial forces to let the others escape. Finally, the shuttle, piloted by Vil, launches, carrying him, Teela, Ratua, Memah, and Uli. They are nearly stopped by Darth Vader, who senses the Force-attuned Teela, but Luke Skywalker’s run at the trench draws him off. When the shuttle is finally caught in a tractor beam, they think they are doomed, but the Death Star explodes, freeing them. They decide to head for Yavin IV to join the Rebel Alliance and fight together against the Empire.

(Death Star)

NOTE: You may be wondering why the Death Star novel is listed here with its own date notation, rather than integrated with the other materials leading up to (and concurrent to) A New Hope. The basic reasoning is as follows: Death Star starts months before ANH, but we are never given an exact number of months. The story is essentially continuous for the characters involved, with the exception of Darth Vader, who weaves in and out of the story. Otherwise, the story is generally cohesive. Furthermore, breaking up Death Star to interweave with other materials would, in essence, shatter this summary into many, many more pieces than necessary. Thus, I have chosen to keep this summary intact, here. You can be the judge as to whether this was the right call. One should also note that I have covered the events in Death Star in a somewhat unusual fashion. Since the novel is basically a bunch of separate character stories that eventually finally merge together, I have tried to cover each character’s story somewhat independently before finally bringing the storylines together in the end. This should hopefully keep the size of the summary shorter than it otherwise might have been and make it understandable to someone who has not read Death Star yet. Got all that? Good. By the way, there is a definite inconsistency here with the destruction of Despayre. In the novel, it takes place just as Vader is attacking the Tantive IV, which puts it during ANH. Every other source I have ever seen, including Lethal Alliance, puts it before ANH, as the Death Star is already on the move well before the film begins.
Death Star (novel: Steve Perry & Michael Reaves)

Death Star (novel: Steve Perry & Michael Reaves)

Construction

Chapters 1 – 46

Shakedown

Chapters 47 – 75

1 BBY

- Lumpawarrump, son of Mallatobuck and Chewbacca, is born on Kashyyyk. (conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)
- Luther De’Ono is born. (conjecture based on Vector Prime)
- Rebel Command is moved from Dantooine to Yavin IV, as a result of Mon Mothma’s growing concern over Imperial spies. (conjecture based on The Essential Chronology)
- Before Biggs Darklighter leaves for Carida, he constructs and races a T-16 Skyhopper, which he constructed from scratch. (conjecture based on Star Wars Journal: The Fight for Justice by Luke Skywalker)
- Just before Biggs Darklighter leaves for Carida, he and Luke Skywalker discover a Bantha without its rider. The creature dies, apparently from grief, before they can help it. (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Alien Species)
- Kimali Soresh, fresh out of the Imperial Academy, falls in with a group of Rebel sympathizers. His mother, Ilani Soresh, helps him avoid the authorities, but when she tells her husband (and Kimali’s father), Imperial officer Rezi Soresh, so that he can say his goodbyes, he turns them in, earning himself a promotion to the rank of commander. Ilani and Kimali are sent to the Gree Baaker Labor Camp, from which they will eventually be transferred to the Death Star as slave labor. Both will die when the station is destroyed. (conjecture based on Target)
- Hughart Tetch discovers how to produce bacta without using the scarce dioxy 3.6.methyl alginate [the “3.6” in the middle here might be a typo]. Tetch flees to the planet Charity, where he did his PhD thesis, when he realizes that Imperial agents are going to arrest him for this research they oppose. (conjecture based on As Cold as Charity)

NOTE: This is “last year” as of As Cold as Charity.

- A Rebel colony is founded on a rocky moon in the Unknown Regions. (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope)

NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. He suggests that this is likely in the same year as when Lak Sivrak finds the colony.

- Commander Nahdonnis Praji’s stormtrooper unit is assigned to the Star Destroyer Vengeance. The ship is ordered to disrupt Rebel supply networks, but after bungling an attack at Datar, Darth Vader takes command of the vessel, blaming Vice Admiral Slenn for ordering troops into an unwinnable situation. (conjecture based on Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Praji: A Cartel of Genes)
- After three years together as fellow scholars, Tarast Voon and Hethan Romund part ways. By this time, Romund has helped Tarast construct his own lightsaber, but a close call with an Imperial agent convinces Tarast that it is too dangerous for Romund to be traveling with a Force-sensitive companion. The two reluctantly part ways. (conjecture based on Force and Destiny: Beginner Game: Tarast Character Folio)
- Around this time, the Trivar II Imperial Detention Center becomes fully operational. (conjecture based on Rescue at Glare Peak)

NOTE: This is two years before the adventure, so this assumes a 1 ABY date for Rescue at Glare Peak.

- Ponda Baba, a pirate, hires Jodo Kast to kill his current partner, promising to pay him with half of the reward that has been offered for his partner. Kast kills him but then flees with all of the reward. Baba is furious and intends to strike back at Kast once he has the opportunity. (conjecture based on One That Got Away)

NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This is relatively recent as of One That Got Away.
• Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin leaves Maw Installation to oversee the final stages of readiness for the Death Star. He leaves Admiral Natasa Daala in charge of Maw Installation.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

• Around this time, Czerka Corporation releases the CR-17 Incendia III podracer.*
  (conjecture based on Endless Vigil)*

*NOTE: This product is “new” and the “latest entry” in the podracer market from Czerka as of Endless Vigil, which bases its “present” just after ANH.

• Life has been rough on smuggler, con-man, and rogue Pash. He had been in Imperial flight school, only to be expelled after stealing a shuttle for a joyride. His favorite speederbike was then impounded. He was then arrested for grifting in Alderaan and sentenced to the spice mines of Kessel by the manipulations of an Alderaanian noble whose daughter he had been involved with. On the way to Kessel, he is saved by a pirate raid and joins them, but the pirates are soon defeated and arrested (including Pash) by the Empire.*
  (conjecture based on Edge of the Empire Beginner Game: Pash Character Folio)*

*NOTE: We have no indication of how long a span these events cover. We only know that these all wrap up as we head into a time around the Battle of Yavin.

• Around this time, SoroSuub Corporation designs the Preybird-class starfighter craft.*
  (conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

• During his third year reciting tracts of Gactimus at the Cantina on Triton Besh, Shandy Fanaso is “discovered” by Herglic writers and included in the book Strange Sights Along the Spaceways.
  (conjecture based on Deader Than a Triton Moon)

• Near the settlement of Teron’s Bluff, Olnom Grilnor, a Force-user, falls to the Dark Side, which drives him insane. He begins to use his talents with animal control to attack the settlement, finally resulting in the settlers driving him off, but only temporarily. He bides his time over the next year before returning for revenge.
  (conjecture based on Destroy to Protect)

• Around this time, a new Updated Imperial Edition of The Bounty Hunters Guild Handbook is released. A copy is acquired by Greedo.*
  (conjecture based on The Bounty Hunter Code)*

*NOTE: Internal references in the text of the book (not hand-written comments) to things like Mon Mothma and Carlisle Rieekan being in the Rebel Alliance, Leia Organa being a possible ISB target for rebel activities, and Han Solo having the Millennium Falcon puts this publication sometime very close to ANH, yet enough ahead of that film for Greedo to have gotten a copy and annotated it himself.

• Queen Nehanna of Ord Gimmel goes missing. Outwardly, society remains stable, but a power struggle begins that is beginning to tear the society apart. Nehanna’s advisor Credi Sollfinn is made Acting Regent in Nehanna’s absence because Nehanna’s oldest son, Ebrahi, is still too young to rule. He has the backing of the powerful Induparan Crown Worlds (the leader of which, King Indupar, has sent representatives to bring arms, equipment, troops, and advisors for the young man and his acting regent). However, Nehanna’s sister, Meilarra, has allied herself with the Empire with a demand to rule as Queen-Regent until Ebrahi comes of age. (She takes up residence at the Imperial garrison and frequently walks the streets in the open, hoping to draw her enemies into open conflict so she can win by Imperial might without having to take the actual palace by force.) Another citizen, Geit Chambell, claims to be a descendant of Grand Vicar Sidharra, upon whom the royal bloodline was based, and also claims the throne should be his. Meanwhile, the Rebel Alliance supports a local resistance leader, a young woman named Salana, who has no royal blood.*
  (conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)*

*NOTE: This is about one year before Age of Rebellion, which features stories mostly set just after ANH.

• The captain of an Imperial Raider-class corvette is informed that a full squadron of prototype TIE Advanced (likely TIE Advanced x1) starfighters has been delivered for his inspection. During a test run of the starfighters, Tempest Squadron engages Rebel pilots when the Rebels ambush them. The Imperials turn the tables by sending an unencrypted transmission that lures the Rebels into an ion tempest in search of an imaginary munitions storage facility, where the Imperials then ambush them in return. Later, they have another encounter with Rebels, followed by taking out a Rebel transport full of gear. They must then battle Rebels who come to recover the transport, drawn by a distress signal. The new ships are getting quite a workout."

(The Will of the Empire)"

*NOTE: Unlike most X-wing Miniatures Game scenarios, this campaign from the Imperial Raider Expansion Pack is set when the TIE Advanced is relatively new, not in heavy production, with Vader being one of the few flying it. That would suggest that it should be earlier than this, but it also involves actual Rebel Alliance opponents, meaning that it must be post-Corellian Treaty.

- Imperial troops smash a supposedly-secret Rebel outpost on Kashyyyk, but the Rebels there are mostly able to evacuate. Another Rebel monitoring outpost is destroyed on Ryloth when Imperials on Nal Hutta learn its location based on information from a captured smuggler and the use of probe droids. Soon, a Rebel force led by Captain Raymus Antilles on the Sundered Heart strikes at six Imperial shipyards over Kuat, after first drawing away the Imperial Star Destroyer Tyranny. They then send R2-D2 and C-3PO with a Rebel group to Wayland, where they steal Imperial codes to allow them to steal X-wings from Imperial-held Fresia. When they find that scientists that were helping them from the inside on Fresia are being taken to Kessel as prisoners, the Rebels assault the Imperial convoy and rescue them with the Sundered Heart. They then send droids to Mon Calamari to acquire technologies that could be of use to the cause. Meanwhile, Imperial forces led by Darth Vader pursue Imperial traitor Moff Kalast. They strike at his forces on Thyferra, driving him from that hiding place, but fail to capture him. Rebel weapons with Black Sun pirate insignia found during the raid lead the Imperials to Ilum. Before they can act, however, they learn that Kalast’s forces have taken advantage of Vader’s ships being diverted from Fondor to attack at Fondor and take over Fondor City. Vader leads his forces there to rout the Rebel Moff. Vader then hires Boba Fett to go to Ilum and take out the Black Sun pirates’ early warning system. When he succeeds, Imperials engage the pirates, defeating them. While the pirates are being interrogated, Vader is drawn to Geonosis, where he intends to secure more slaves for the Death Star construction project. Unfortunately for the Empire, the Geonosians have aligned themselves with the Rebel Alliance to protect themselves. Vader’s Imperials defeat the Rebel Geonosians and acquire the slaves at great cost. He then leads forces again to subjugate (or re-subjugate) parts of Mon Calamari in a strike at their shipyards. During this raid, Mon Calamari battle cruiser plans are captured and sent to Carida. Soon, the Rebels learn that the independent smuggler Han Solo is attempting a prison break on Kashyyyk to rescue his co-pilot, Chewbacca, who has been captured by Imperials. Taking advantage of the situation, Mon Mothma sends Rebel forces to strike as well. Several Imperial prisons on Kashyyyk are liberated, and the Millennium Falcon escapes, bearing Han Solo and a freed Chewbacca, though they have no illusions about being part of the Rebellion. The Rebels soon learn of a pirate that they have worked with, who seems about to sell Rebel information to the Imperials. The Rebels go after him at Atzerri and engage Imperial forces. The mission is a success, and the pirate, in custody, reveals that he has learned more information about an Imperial superweapon in development, which he claims Grand Moff Tarkin is overseeing from a space station over Corulag. Needing to get into an Imperial research facility in the Vergesso Asteroid Belt, Mon Mothma believes that Han Solo and Chewbacca could do the job well, so the Rebels seek them out, saving them from a Star Destroyer’s tractor beam above Corellia. They get inside, plant an EMP device on a container bound for Tarkin’s Corulag station, and wait for it to be delivered. Once it is, they go there to detonate the device. Rebels strike the space station when the EMP is activated, and they gain information that confirms the Death Star’s name. To aid Leia Organa in gathering more information, Raymus Antilles is assigned back to the Tantive IV. During the Corulag raid, Mon Calamari slaves are saved, and they provide information that point to Mon Calamari capital ship plans there were taken by the Empire in their recent raid. Those plans are now on Carida, and Mon Mothma hires a large fleet of smugglers (including Han and Chewbacca again) to strike against Carida and retrieve those plans, so that the Rebellion can build their own Mon Calamari cruisers. They then use those plans to start building ships at Mon Calamari (Dac), but an Imperial fleet, led by a trio of Star Destroyers, arrives to destroy their efforts. The Rebels are able to win the day, but Mon Mothma is concerned: if the Empire can easily throw away such a fleet, then what else must they have in their arsenal? Meanwhile, after clashing on Kashyyyk, Vader’s Imperials are also on the move. Vader attends a test of the AT-AT walker on Carida with Maximillian Veers, only Alliance. ANH.

*NOTE: These events lead into a few final missions that are simply real-time strategy game variants of parts of ANH. The final Imperial campaign mission, however, is non-canonical, since it sees the destruction of the Rebel Alliance.

- Boba Fett is dead, or so news broadcasts are announcing. He has apparently been killed on Sathiemon. When a broadcast of this announcement reaches Connor Freeman (the son of a clone trooper and, in a sense, family to Boba, whom Boba helped the previous year), he recognizes a Zabrak (Captain Sibar), a Storm Commando, and others in the recording. He sets out from his bar (bought thanks to Boba), leaving it in the hands of Quinn, his bartender. Three weeks later, a hooded man attacks Sibar on Iridonia, learning that the hit on Boba was ordered by a stormtrooper commander on Sathiemon, where Boba was supposedly killed. The hooded man kills Sibar, then tracks the commander, whom he also interrogates, then leaves for a debrief to eat. He has learned that the actual death blow came from the Storm Commando: Mac Ewevs. Unfortunately, while bribing the locals, the man has also revealed his identity (according to his documents, it is Connor!), which allows the man who ordered Boba dead to learn who he is. The man’s spymaster, Teychenne, is to have him found and killed. Apparently, her employer wants Boba wiped out of existence, along with everyone who ever knew him. This also means that they must kill Boba’s newly-discovered daughter (Ailyn Vel, born to Sintas Vel). Soon, Connor’s “Freeman Cantina” on Atzerri is raided by stormtroopers, who drag him out of the bar, only to all be attacked by a newly-arrived ship. Quinny is saved, and the rescuer takes Connor with him into space. The rescuer is none other than the real Boba Fett, who staged his death on Sathiemon by putting the body of the man he was hunting (and had just killed) into his own armor, allowing those who blasted the body in flight to think it was Boba. Connor awakens in a bacta tank overseen by Dr. Evazan and a man in the armor of the Stormtrooper commander. Connor lost his right arm in the attack, but it now has a cybernetic replacement. After Boba reveals himself to his quasi-brother, Connor is angry because Boba’s use of Connor’s identity (since they look so much alike) has caused the bar to be destroyed. Boba takes Connor to Concord Dawn, where he is told to look after another bounty hunter, Sintas Vel (not knowing who she is to Boba). After asking around in a bar, he finds Sintas’ home and meets both Sintas and Ailyn. Boba, meanwhile, uses the stolen stormtrooper armor to fake a Rebel attack on his small ship, allowing him to sneak onto Blackfel, a moon dominated by an Imperial training facility, where the Storm Commandos are based. Boba, in disguise, confronts and kidnaps Storm Commando Captain Ewevs for questioning. On Concord Dawn, goons attack, forcing Sintas to trust Connor (who claims to be “Quinny”) to work with her and Ailyn (yes, the kid can fight) to defeat them. They then head for a safehouse, where Connor helps care for Ailyn and earns a kiss from Sintas, who is reminded of Boba by Connor’s looks. Only then does he see a family holo that indicates that Sintas and Ailyn are Boba’s wife and child. Meanwhile, Boba questions Ewevs, learning that the man trying to have him killed is none other than the governor of Concord Dawn, Governor Purton, who even now is with a team ready to attack the safehouse where Connor, Sintas, and Ailyn are holed up. As Purton and Teychenne attack, Boba attacks in Slave I from above. Connor, Sintas, and Ailyn hide in a hidden room under the main safehouse room, while Boba takes out all of Purton’s men except a few he takes inside with him and Teychenne, whom Boba convinces that she cannot win this fight. He instead takes her on as his employee, with her job being to help keep his past a secret from his enemies, now that she knows what that past includes. Inside, Connor and Sintas gear up in Mandalorian armor in the lower saferoom, then spring their trap on Purton. Purton finally reveals his motives: the Journeyman Protector that Boba murdered before being banished from Concord Dawn was Lenovar Purton, the governor’s son. He believes Boba killed his son for nothing, but Sintas reveals to him the truth that his son raped her, earning his death at Boba’s hands. When he refuse to believe this and tries to strangle Sintas, Connor kills him. Connor wants to stay with Sintas and Ailyn, but she does not want to be reminded anymore of Boba. She sends Connor away to deliver the same message to Boba, who waits above, never entering to see his former family. That family is severed, but Connor and Boba now have a small brotherly bond that is even stronger than before. After all, Ailyn “has their eyes.”

(Boba Fett’s Dead)

NOTE: The first issue claims to be set ten years before ANH, but that was an error. Randy Stradley quickly corrected on the Dark Horse Comics forums that the story is actually one year before ANH. (It was a typo between “1” and “10” at some point in the creative process, even though the date in the inside cover of the first issue says “ten,” written out.) Later issues fix this error.

- Jabba the Hutt and his cronies meet with Gaar Suppoon in a business ceremony. Jabba has placed a bomb in Suppoon’s palace, but the Gaar does not believe it. After multiple exchanges of items, insults, accusations, and threats, Jabba reveals to the Imperial bomb inspector, Kosh Kurp, that Gaar Suppoon is Sonopo Bomoor. Kosh subsequently murders the Gaar because the Bomoor (Suppoon under an old alias) had killed Kosh’s family during the massacre in Bonaka Square in the city of Bonaka Nueno on Intuci. Jabba tells Kosh that he was the bomb, since he knew a bomb threat would bring him within “exploding” distance of Bomoor. Jabba tells the late Gaar’s minions that Kosh is now in charge and leaves with his bounty.

(The Gaar Suppoon Hit)

- Plat Okeefe explains spacer policies to an individual wanting to become a new starhopper, over drinks on Kwenn Space Station. She explains the jurisdiction of the Imperial Space Ministry over space travel (including the Imperial Spacefaring Regulations and Spacers’ Information Manual), the Bureau of Ships and Services (BoSS) as the arbiter of what must be done with ships, and the Imperial Penal References (ImPeRe). Under the ImPeRe, she explains that offenses are either Class Fives (Quints) that are minor infractions, Class Fours (Quads) that are for things like expired licenses, Class Threes (Trips) for things like spaceport bribery, Class Twos (Deuces) like illegal transport of weapons, and Class Ones (Aces) that include attacking Imperial ships and other capital offenses.

(The Essential Atlas)

- Happening upon what appears to be a Nuffin freighter on their way back to Tatooine from Gaar Suppoon’s base, Jabba and company decide to take the ship by force and raid it. Jabba, Scuppa, Bib Fortuna, and others board only to find that it is not run by Nuffins but by Princess Nampi, a huge Hutt-like creature. Jabba is taken prisoner and Scuppa is ordered to convince him to give over his cargo to her. Jabba refuses and when Nampi is about to kill Scuppa, he pretends to love her and they become engaged. Scuppa meets with her alone and she bites his friggin’ head off (apparently Nampi’s species uses a variation on mantis mating). She orders Jabba to her presence and tells him to go to his ship and bring back the treasure. He returns with a remote control to a vial of explosive acid he had surgically implanted into Scuppa’s head, out of fear for Scuppa’s loyalty. Knowing she has eaten the head, he activates it, killing Nampi. He then frees his minions and loots the ship.

(The Hunger of Princess Nampi)

- Aboard the Nuffin freighter, Jabba orders the remainder of Nampi’s crew spaced. Then the ship is taken to Cabrool Nuum’s base so it can be sold to Nuum instead of simply left in space. He meets with Nuum, who impetuously orders Jabba to go kill Vu Chusker for him. Jabba refuses and is threatened with execution. Nuum’s son, Rusk, approaches Jabba and asks him to kill Nuum. Jabba does so. Then Rusk begins being just as impetuous and orders Jabba to go kill Chusker. He refuses and is put in a dungeon. He is freed by Rusk’s sister, Norba. She tells Jabba to kill Rusk. He does so. She then turns on him and sends him back to the dungeon, where a short time later, she orders him to go kill Chusker. He refuses and instead eats Norba. Now freed, he escapes the palace and runs into Vu Chusker outside. Annoyed with the irony of the situation, he kills Chusker, wishing he’d done that in the first place. Jabba heads back to his ship and prepares to leave.

(The Dynasty Trap)

- Jabba and company arrive on Tatooine and prepare to rest from their journey. Bib Fortuna takes a moment to speak with Nivek, whom he has been working with to form a group of scoundrels ready to get rid of Jabba. They plan to enter his throne room that night, murder his guards, take Jabba prisoner (through knocking him out) and torture his secrets from him. They will be free and rich. When it is time, Bib checks the throne room and finds that Jabba has two guests, Gru’um Ropple and Miramba. Bib plants a blaster in Gru’um’s cloak, which prompts Jabba to order he and Miramba taken to the dungeon, thus freeing the way for Bib and his fellow conspirators. As the strike is put into motion, Gru’um, seeking revenge on Jabba, orders Miramba (actually a droid shell) to release a pack of freckers from inside her shell. One of the conspirators spots them and Bib and the group end up battling freckers, and saving Jabba in the process, instead of fulfilling their plan to kill him. Bib is more trusted now than ever, but the plan has failed and his fellow conspirators are dead.

(Betrayal)

- Galen “Starkiller” Marek awakens in a cloning vat on Kamino. He is not the true Starkiller, but a clone created from the dead Rebel founder. Darth Vader trains this new clone, who bears the skills, memories, and weaknesses of his template. This clone is shown the bodies of other clones that came before him. He claims to be having dreams and visions of the original Starkiller’s former life, which Vader claims was the undoing of the previous clones. Vader claims that the original Starkiller was broken and weak. After further training, the clone claims to be free of the original Starkiller’s memories. He is then shown the body of the original Starkiller, proving that the clone truly is a clone and that Starkiller is truly dead (assuming that this is the real Starkiller’s body, not Vader claiming a clone body is the original’s body). When facing a test to destroy a training droid that looks like the original Starkiller’s love interest, Juno Eclipse, this clone passes Vader’s test, destroying the clone and reveling in hatred for what the original Starkiller loved. Vader soon informs the clone (his “Dark Apprentice”) that he will soon face his final test, which will be confronting an escaped (and presumably Light Side) Starkiller clone that will attempt to destroy Vader when he returns to Kamino very soon . . .

(Distant Thunder)

*NOTE: To make this story easier to follow, given the cloned nature of Starkiller in both this story (as an evil clone) and the mainstream TFU2 tale (where he is a “good clone”), I have kept this summary whole, rather than splitting it up. Technically, the very last scene with Vader informing the Dark Apprentice of his final test would be earlier in the same day as the final portions of the game, after the “good” Starkiller clone has already escaped.

- Above Cato Neimoidia, Captain Juno Eclipse of the Rebel Alliance frigate Salvation, is on a mission to test the defenses of the Empire’s local Moff, Baron Merillion Tarko, a protégé of Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin. Meanwhile, Jedi Master Rahm Kota and his militia, acting without Alliance sanction, strikes at Tarko, intending to take down “Imperial barracks” (apparently slave pens including some Mon Calamari), only to discover a more fortified position. When the Rogue Shadow, with Kota aboard, appears to be destroyed, Juno is forced to order her ships away, presuming that Kota is dead. Juno returns to the Rebel starship Solidarity to brief (and be dressed down by) the Alliance leadership, which is currently refusing to take rash action against the Empire, despite Kota’s (and Juno’s) urgings. Juno attempts to convince Mon Mothma, Garm Bel Iblis, and Leia Organa (on behalf of Bail Organa) to authorize a mission with the newly-recruited former slave Gial Ackbar to Dac (Mon Calamari), where a decisive strike against the Empire could spark an uprising that would bring Dac fully into the Rebel camp. When they refuse, she is demoted from commanding the Salvation temporarily, but Leia sends R2-D2 to secretly deliver a message to Juno. Juno can carry out the mission without official sanction, ostensibly with Leia’s help. She joins with Bail Organa (who has been acting as a simple pilot), PROXY, and Ackbar on Dac’s moon, where they meet with Quarren and Mon Calamari rebels like Seggor Tels. Together, they bluff and trick Evir Derricote and even Wilhuff Tarkin into having the Imperial 181st strike their own city. Between that and almost capturing Tarkin himself, the Rebels send a clear message to the Empire and to the people of Dac. Meanwhile, on Kamino, Darth Vader gives another test to one of the Starkiller clones (Subject 1138). The clone is resisting the Dark Side at times and experiencing memories of the original Galen “Starkiller” Marek’s life, due to memory flashes used to train him after being cloned rapidly through an imperfect process. When he refuses to destroy a training droid that is holographically disguised as Juno, the woman Starkiller loved (and the clone, by extension, loves), Vader is ready to terminate him as another failure. However, this clone (hereafter just “Starkiller” for the sake of making this summary easier to read) lashes out against Vader with Force lightning, stunning him long enough to allow Starkiller to blast his way out of the cloning facility. He cuts through Vader’s forces, eventually stealing his TIE Advanced fighter and fleeing from Kamino. Vader had mentioned that Starkiller’s former Jedi mentor, Kota, was captured on Cato Neimoidia, and Vader had intended for Starkiller to go there and kill the Jedi. Now, the cloned Galen seeks his template’s former ally. As Starkiller heads for Cato Neimoidia, Vader contacts Boba Fett on Nar Shaddaa, where he is lounging during some down time with the Mandalorian-armored fellow bounty hunter (his lover, apparently). Xasha. Fett is hired to go to Cato Neimoidia to retrieve Starkiller, and he takes Xasha along (without Vader’s knowledge). Starkiller arrives at Cato Neimoidia and is confronted by Tarko. Starkiller strikes Tarko’s men, as the baron escapes. After a long battle across the floating landscape of the planet, Starkiller finally reaches Kota in Tarko’s huge arena, in which Kota has been fighting for days. When Starkiller arrives, Tarko lets loose a huge garog to kill both Jedi, but Starkiller manages to cause the beast to severely damage the supports for the city, then confronts Tarko with the beast on his tail. The garog devours Tarko, but when it finally falls from the damaged city, it drags Kota with it. Starkiller saves him during a death-defying free fall, from which they are saved by the remotely-summoned Rogue Shadow. Upon reaching space, Kota expresses his relief that Starkiller is back and is shocked when Starkiller reveals himself to be a clone. Kota does not believe it, claiming that no one can clone a Jedi (which he is obviously wrong about, given that his own former Padawan Falon Grey, was cloned without Kota’s knowledge, and Kota will meet one of those two clones of Falon later this year). Shortly thereafter, Fett and Xasha arrive on Cato Neimoidia and survey the damage from Starkiller’s battle with the Gorog . . . and find that the creature is still alive. It attacks the duo, and Fett destroys it, but Xasha decides to bow out of the venture, while Fett heads for Kamino to meet with Vader personally. After checking several Alliance checkpoints, Kota and Starkiller are nearly ready to rejoin the Alliance, but Starkiller is being drawn to somewhere with water (Dac) to find Juno, and finding her is his myopic focus. He drops Kota off to find his way back to the Alliance and heads for Dac. Meanwhile, Juno checks in with Leia on their success, then she heads to Malastare to pick up the trail of the Alliance and rejoin them, unsure of what the leadership will think of her actions. She meets up with Berkelium Shyre, a former comrade, who helps her find the Alliance fleet at Nordra. As for Starkiller, he finds Dac to be a dead end, since Juno is already gone. Instead, he takes an off-hand comment from Kota about a planet called “Dagobah” (mentioned as a place to go meditate alongside Kashyyyk). He arrives and is drawn to the Cave, where he meets Yoda (who does not identify himself). Inside the Cave, he experiences visions of other clones entrapped and reaching for him, some evil and some in torment. He witnesses his own death at the hands of another clone, a Dark Apprentice. He sees Juno on the bridge of the Salvation, under attack and endangered. Everything points to his need to find Juno but retain himself. On Kamino, Vader hires Boba Fett to hunt down Juno and bring her to Kamino to lure Starkiller back, even going so far as to allow Boba to take some of his newest creations with him. Before leaving, Fett visits the human cloning supervisor, learning that most cloned subjects (Starkiller clones, presumably) go insane within a short time). Fett then apprehends a mechanic who changes transponder codes for the Alliance and uses him to seek out the Salvation and Juno. As Juno rejoins the fleet and is met with reluctant praise from Mon Mothma and friendship by Leia, Starkiller races to Malastare to rejoin Kota, who then uses Shyre to point them back toward Juno and the fleet. They meet up with the Rebels before the Empire can strike them. As they arrive, the Alliance is happy to hear that Kota is alive, and Kota is even happier to be given enough information on the Kaminoan cloning facilities to deal a decisive blow to the Empire there. They are just boarding the Salvation (with Juno kept in the dark about Starkiller) when the Empire strikes the fleet. During the ensuing battle, Juno’s second-in-command, Nitram is killed, and Starkiller recognizes the boarders as being from Vader’s secret projects on Kamino: terror droids; terror troopers; terror giants; and a terror walker. As he battles these foes, he witnesses Juno (who gets a glimpse of him) being captured by Boba Fett. He gives chase, but conflict with the Imperial boarders delays him, and Boba escapes with Juno in Slave I. (She will continue to question Fett’s motives en route, learning that Starkiller is supposedly a clone. Her feelings for him, though, will strike a nerve with Fett, who seems to be missing having Xasha with him.) The fleet, however, is already preparing to strike Kamino.
As they head for that fateful rendezvous on the cloner world, Starkiller destroys the terror walker. When they arrive, they find the Imperials waiting for them. In a raging battle, the Salvation takes heavy damage, but the cloning facility’s shields remain operable. In desperation, they abandon the Salvation, as Starkiller flies the ship itself, beaten, battered, and ripped into two sections, down into the facility, crashing into its shield generators. As the Rebels attack, Starkiller tears through Vader’s defenders (including a brief jaunt atop a Y-wing piloted by Wedge Antilles). Vader, Fett, and Juno watch the rampage begin, and Vader sends Fett to finish his mission to take down Starkiller, in return for exclusive Imperial contracts, despite Juno’s continued protests. He finds himself forced into a brief encounter with Kota and his militia, forcing him to retreat into another cloning facility, where he discovers the cloning supervisor cloning what Fett thinks are more clones of Jango Fett. When he learns that the clones are actually made from Boba himself, thanks to DNA samples stolen by Xasha, Fett destroys all of the clones (and the supervisor) himself. Meanwhile, Starkiller faces Imperial force-using Sith acolytes and saber-wielding saber guards, terror droid and troopers, and more. Eventually, he comes face to face with an army of deranged Starkiller clones (not yet fully formed) and numerous clones not yet released from their vats. He destroys countless twisted duplicates of himself (including Subject 1157, still in its vat) before confronting Vader outside. Vader holds Juno in shackles, threatening to Force choke her to death if Starkiller does not submit to him. The clone bows, willing to do anything to save her, but she snatches up one of Starkiller’s dropped lightsabers and strikes at Vader, causing him to Force push her brutally, sending her flying. In a fit of anger and fear for Juno, Starkiller attacks Vader. As the two engage, Fett again encounters Kota and is attacked by PROXY, who has taken on the visage of Jango. Fett escapes and heads upward to set up a sniper’s position . . . Below, Sith Lord and clone apprentice do battle mercilessly, until Vader, repeatedly shocked by redirected Kaminoan lighting and Force lightning, falls to his knees. Starkiller is ready to deliver a killing blow, but Kota arrives just in time to stop him. Even though Starkiller may never be truly free if Vader is alive, the only one who would be able to tell him definitively if he is or is not a clone is Vader, and Vader can also be of use to the Rebels, who plan to interrogate him, then execute him publicly. Starkiller finally relents, then checks on Juno, who appears to be dead. At his touch and with the overwhelming power of his love for her rippling through the Force, the apparently dead woman comes to, kissing her now returned love (well, sort of returned). Fett, unsure of himself, doesn’t shoot Starkiller, Vader (whom he considers), or Juno. Instead, he decides that he will still get his man, but he will not do so at that moment for Starkiller and Juno. There will be another time . . . After a brief contact with Leia, our heroes prepare to transport Vader (who still claims that as long as Juno lives, he will always control Starkiller) to Dantooine for detention. He will be carried by Juno, Starkiller, and PROXY aboard the Rogue Shadow. As they leap into hyperspace to head for Dantooine, Slave I emerges from hiding in the debris of the Kamino battle and sets out right behind them . . .*

(The Force Unleashed II, et al) *

*NOTE: This summary is a combination of the events of the following versions of The Force Unleashed II: the video game versions by LucasArts (PC, Playstation 3, Xbox 360), Red Fly (Wii), and LucasArts Singapore (Nintendo DS); the novelization by Sean Williams; the comic by Haden Blackman; and the Distant Thunder cinematic series that is unlockable via the Challenge mode on the “next gen” version of the game. It is in that Distant Thunder series that we learn that the hero of the game is indeed a clone, just like the Dark Apprentice, whose background is further touched upon in an unlockable databank entry with the game.

- Unbeknownst to Starkiller and his allies, another Starkiller clone, the Dark Apprentice, remains at large with only a few scraps of data on him recovered on Kamino. Somehow, perhaps through the machinations of this dark clone and Boba Fett, Darth Vader is rescued from Rebel custody. This is likely done before the Rogue Shadow can reach Dantooine, as Vader remains unaware of the Rebel base there until just before the Battle of Yavin. (conjecture based on The Force Unleashed II)

- With the Imperial garrison on Dac destroyed, the Mon Calamari plan to refit luxury liners (that were specifically designed to be refit into war vessels) as military vessels for use against the Empire swings into action. (conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)

- With the liberation of Mon Calamari, Tendaar Bel joins the Rebel Alliance and is assigned by ... Alliance High Command to work at the Mon Calamari shipyards.
(conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Beginner Game: Tendaar Character Folio)
• With the liberation of Mon Calamari, Imperial Security Bureau Agent Montra Varn swears to get revenge on the Mon Calamari and Quarren alike.
(conjecture based on In Too Deep)
• Jodo Kast travels to the Corellian system, tracking Doctor Evazan, who has a million-credit bounty on his head, dead or alive. Once his sources inform him where Evazan is operating his “creative surgery” business, Kast boldly walks into the building and stuns the receptionist. He then bursts into Evazan’s office, blaster blazing, only to find that Evazan had witnessed his entrance on a security camera and fled. Kast quickly locates him in a nearby alley and gives chase, both with his jetpack and on foot, but Evazan manages to reach a docking bay and hide under a Corellian freighter. Kast opens up with his blaster and manages to grace Evazan’s face, giving him a nasty scar. Before he’s able to rush up and finish off the doctor, a turret pops out from under the freighter and begins firing. One of the shots blasts a hole in Kast’s armor, so he decides to back away. Once Evazan boards the ship, it takes off. As it leaves, Kast glimpses the pilot, Ponda Baba, who apparently still carries a grudge against him.*
  (One That Got Away)*
*NOTE: Summary provided by Luke Van Horn. This is “some months” before Evazan arrives in Mos Eisley on Tatooine, which at least suggests that it must be after Boba Fett is Dead.
• Lak Sivrak, a scout exploring the Unknown Regions for the Empire, discovers a Rebel colony on a moon. Since he has been outside Imperial borders for quite some time, he has never before heard of the Rebellion. Since he has no particular loyalty to the Empire, Sivrak promises not to reveal the colony’s location. He helps the colonists prepare for the upcoming winter and then continues his scouting mission, falsifying his regular report to the Empire along the way.*
  (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This is “some months” before Lak Sivrak relocates to Tatooine.
• Jodo Kast reports on his failed attempt to capture Doctor Evazan. The report is sent to Imperial authorities and also intercepted by Rebel agents.*
  (conjecture based on One That Got Away)*
*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn.
• A political revolution on the planet Vesla results in the aristocratic Barons, who had ruled for about 300 years, being overthrown and replaced by the Revisionist government. The Barons flee their homes on the planet for their holdings on its moon, Jordan.*
  (conjecture based on Ship of Fools)*
*NOTE: This is “recently” before the story, so probably less than a year before.
• Luke Skywalker and his uncle Owen get into another argument about Luke sending an application to the Academy. Luke wants nothing more than to become a professional pilot, but Owen insists he cannot afford to hire any extra help to do Luke’s work on the moisture farm. Aunt Beru suggests a compromise: Luke stays home and works another season while Owen saves money to hire a worker to replace Luke. (To be continued below . . . )*
  (Camie’s Story)*
*NOTE: Summary provided by Luke Van Horn. This just before Biggs leaves for Carida. It is one of the short story bits from Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope.
• Fifteen years after being left for dead on Dantooine by his brother, X1, the clone of Falon Grey known as X2 is visited by Jedi Master Rahm Kota, Falon Frey’s former Jedi Master. Kota offers X2 the chance to make a difference in his “father’s” name by joining the fledgling Rebel Alliance. X2 leaves with him. His first mission for the Rebels is to take an X-wing to the Death Star, which remains under construction (as Rahm Kota last saw it). He flies the X-wing aboard a Star Destroyer, hijacks its turbolasers, and uses them to blast a path to an open docking bay on the Death Star. He then boards the Death Star and frees the prisoners, while using its partially-functional (and possibly early model) superlaser to destroy the Star Destroyer, allowing them all to escape. Knowing they need a way to stop the station, Kota then sends X2 to the secret asteroid base known as Desolation Station, where the final parts for the Death Star’s superlaser are slowly being sent to its construction site via a shielded route that the Rebels cannot penetrate. The ship itself has a superlaser of sorts (using the parts, perhaps), very much like the ship encountered by Ferus Olin shortly after the rise of the Empire. X2 boards the station and takes out the shield generators, making the ship carrying the superlaser parts vulnerable. He then frees some Wookiee slaves bound for Despayre and steals a TIE fighter, which he uses to board the ship with the superlaser, which he then uses to blast Desolation Station to bits. For now, production on a fully-operational superlaser for the Death Star has experienced a setback . . . but only a setback. (To be continued below . . . )" (Elite Squadron)

NOTE: The recruitment of X2 by Rahm Kota is shown in the DS version of the game, but his “first mission” for Kota is the one to the Death Star, seen in the PSP version of the game. That means that the Desolation Station mission in the DS version must come after the Death Star mission, which does logically make sense in terms of what the characters know about the Death Star at that point. Given that the superlaser is used in a very weak form in the PSP version, I have to wonder if this is a prototype of some kind, which would account for a superlaser and its parts being aboard the ship that X2 infiltrates in the DS version.

- On Tatooine, Luke Skywalker (age 17, not yet 18 later this year) returns from blasting womp-rats and receives permission from Owen Lars to attend a farewell celebration for Biggs Darklighter, who is about to leave for the Academy. The next day, he and Biggs make a daring race through Beggar’s Canyon before rejoining their friends. A militia scout crashes nearby, and the injured scout informs them that the Tusken Raiders are on the rampage. When the Sandpeople attack, the celebrants hold them off, but know it is a losing battle. In trying to get to a Skyhopper to get help, Biggs and Luke encounter a Tusken Raider who injures Biggs, inflicting him with sand bat venom. Knowing his friend’s life is on the line, Luke races Biggs and himself through Beggar’s Canyon’s dangerous Diablo Cut. Upon being the first to survive the dangerous section, Raiders shoot the Skyhopper, but they manage to crash just outside the Lars Moisture farm. Biggs is taken to medical treatment, and the Tusken Raider rampage is reported. (To be continued below . . . )" (Crucible!)

NOTE: Due to Luke’s age of 17 as of this story being retold in A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker, I have moved this story to very early in this year. It could very well be set within the latter half of the previous year.

- Finally, the day is fast approaching for Biggs Darklighter to leave for Carida. He, Luke Skywalker, and their other friends spend a day working on Biggs’ Skyhopper, and when a late womp-rat attack causes them to get to the Lars Moisture Farm late, Biggs stays for a last dinner with Luke’s family. When Beru mentions the Academy, Owen goes ape, ending dinner prematurely. Later, Luke and Biggs sit on the roof, wondering about whether Biggs’ father is right that the Imperials are the “bad guys.” A short time later, the two finally have their last meeting. Biggs sells Luke his Skyhopper for a steal, then leaves for Carida. In the coming months, he will spend time learning the fine arts of Imperial piloting, while Luke practices in the Skyhopper and works on the farm. Biggs meets Derek “Hobbie” Klivian and others. (To be continued below . . . )" (Darklighter)

NOTE: Given the placement for Crucible that is necessitated by A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker, I have pushed this event to early in this year.

- Jan Dodonna and Roons Sewell “immediately” (presumably after Dodonna has a short stint in charge of the base on Dantooine) begin outfitting the Rebel base on Yavin IV, but constantly clash over tactics. Dodonna favors creating a Rebel navy, while Sewell favors guerilla tactics. However, after a successful mission to steal hyperdrive units, he comes around to Dodonna’s way of thinking. Roons continues to be a passionate leader as the days come closer to the Battle of Yavin, driven by his need for vengeance for the indignity of his childhood and the death of Malsa . . . . (To be continued below . . . )" (The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell)

- Nahdonnis Praji leads an assault against a Rebel base in Nar Shaddaa’s Corellian Level 88. He racks up an impressive kill count and is promoted by Vader to a staff position when Vader recognizes Praji using a flanking tactic favored by Anakin Skywalker during the Clone Wars. (conjecture based on Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Praji: A Cartel of Genes)

- When Imperial customs officials try to confiscate an illegally-modified engine part belonging to Dannen Lifehold and his mechanic, Feq, Feq tries to take the part back and is killed in the attempt. (conjecture based on Breaking Free)
The Corellian Engineering Corporation puts the YT-1930 into production.*
(conjecture based on More Starships!)*

*NOTE: All information from this “web enhancement” for the Starships of the Galaxy RPG sourcebook was submitted by Luke Van Horn. This occurs “shortly before” Palpatine dissolves the Senate.

Dack Ralter escapes from Kalist VI (the penal colony where he was born) with the help of Rebel pilot Breg. He makes it to Tierlon Base, where he joins the Rebellion.*
(conjecture based on Who’s Who in Rogue Squadron)*

*NOTE: This assumes Dack is 21 in ESB like Luke.

Riij Winward joins the Rebel Alliance.
(conjecture based on Side Trip)

Harovan Toth is promoted to Commander and transferred to Yavin IV.
(conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11)

Taryn Clancy is taken aboard her father Kal’s ship, the Lassen, as pilot apprentice.
(conjecture based on Retreat From Coruscant)

Rebel agent Jez Planchet goes undercover on Malastare. A short time later (likely around six months after going undercover), he is captured and tortured by the Empire, revealing the identification code that assassin X-7 will later use to make his way into the Rebel base at Yavin IV shortly after the Battle of Yavin.
(conjecture based on Target)

Nell Wenn (AKA the bounty hunter Mendegar) makes Tasariq her base of operations.
(conjecture based on Tasariq: The Crystal Planet)

Daric LaRone is with Imperial stormtroopers during an incident on Elriss that shakes his faith in the Empire.
(conjecture based on Allegiance)

Owen Lars gives his nephew Luke Skywalker a used T-16 Skyhopper. They spend time working on it together to make it fully functional while sometimes watched by Luke’s friend, Camie.*
(conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This is a few weeks after Owen accepts Beru’s compromise over Luke staying another season.

Sometime in the period shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Empire hires cyberneticist Nycolai Kinesworthy to advance Imperial combat droid technology. He begins his so-called “N-K” project in the Myyydril Caverns on Kashyyyk, under the auspices of Merili, Kashyyyk’s darksider guardian. Upon reaching a roadblock in his research, he is provided with the insane scientist Treun Lorn to assist him. Lorn hires IG-72 to capture two MagnaGuards to aid in their research, which leads Merili to take Lorn and Kinesworthy to the storehouse on Utapau where General Grievous’ remains are stored. They put Kinesworthy’s experimental droid brain into Grievous’ body, calling the new hybrid cyborg N-K Necrosis. The two MagnaGuards are renamed NK-3s and train Necrosis in lightsaber combat, wherein Necrosis uses the lightsaber that once belonged to Darth Bane’s apprentice, Darth Zannah. The advanced droid begins to question whether he is, in fact, his own being, rather than just a shell of Grievous . . . *
(conjecture based on The Story of General Grievous: Lord of War)*

*NOTE: I would put this entry earlier, but the article refers to Necrosis’ musings about Grievous to be “short-lived.”

Sometime shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Empire publishes its newest edition of the Imperial Handbook. This edition includes an introductory and concluding message from Emperor Palpatine, a section on the Imperial military by Admiral Wullf Yularen, a section on the Imperial Navy by Admiral Conan Antonio Motti, a section on the Imperial Army by High General Cassio Tagge, a section on the Stormtrooper Corps by TX-5532, and a section on Imperial Doctrine by Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin. The book also contains brief articles or reports by Kendal Özzel, Firmus Piett, Maximilian Veers, and Nala Se.
(conjecture based on Imperial Handbook)

Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, Mesens Corporation develops the SCT scout craft.*
(conjecture based on The Unknown Regions)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn.
In this era, the Adz-class destroyer is produced for the Imperial Navy by Kuat Drive Yards.*
(conjecture based on Force and Destiny Core Rulebook)*

*NOTE: The ships is a “relative newcomer” as of Force and Destiny.

Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the TIE Aggressor is introduced into the Imperial Navy.
(conjecture based on Stay on Target)

Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, CyronCorp releases the Mk. I Cat’s Eye multipurpose sensor suite.*
(conjecture based on Lead by Example)*

*NOTE: The sourcebook says that the company was a relative newcomer to the galactic technology market “having been founded in the last decade of the Clone Wars.” (Uhm, last decade of a three-year conflict? What the...?)

Around this time, SoroSuub revives a weapon created several thousand years earlier by the long-defunct Systech Corporation. The SoroSuub version is known as the SSB-1 static pistol.
(conjecture based on Fly Casual)

Sometime before the Battle of Yavin, disgruntled Duros wildlife holographer Vendri DeRalm is recruited by a Duros Rebel named “Mother” to join the Alliance. He reports to Yavin IV for training, where he first meets Mother in person. Alliance Special Operations Command quickly realizes that Vendri’s holography background makes him well suited for spying and reconnaissance on lightly populated worlds.
(conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Beginner Game: Vendri Character Folio)

Yasinda Bardak, a Force-sensitive woman, is brought into Imperial Intelligence training and placed in a special program for Force-sensitive agents, overseen by Palpatine himself. When she learns why she has been placed there, her belief in the anti-Force propaganda of the New Order causes her to request transfer from the program. Palpatine allows the request to go through, knowing she can be valuable as a solo agent.
(conjecture based on Tasariq: The Crystal Planet)

Vost Tyne, an Imperial Navy Admiral, retires from active duty.
(conjecture based on Planet of the Mists via TimeTales, abridged)

Prior to the Battle of Yavin, the Rebel Alliance establishes the planet Fusai as a safeworld. There, they discover Mistress Mnemos, a BRT supercomputer that was once part of the Obroa-ski branch on Fusai. When the branch’s funds were cut, locals kept the computer well-maintained. Now that the Rebels are on Fusai, they begin using Mnemos as an asset in planning and analysis operations.
(conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Droids)

Sometime prior to the Battle of Yavin, a young Rebel learns that a relative from Innton II has passed away. The Rebel receives a datachip with information and tales of adventure from this deceased family member, including comments about having fought for the Separatists. After some digging, the Rebel learns that the family member served on the Nova Defiant, a Separatist ship that crashed on Innton II and was slowly being turned into an underground base when the Clone Wars ended. The Rebel travels there and discovers the incomplete base, a perfect base location for a Rebel outpost.*
(Family History)*

*NOTE: This is a “plot hook” found in the Age of Rebellion sourcebook Strongholds of Resistance. There is no real indication of when it takes place, other than that Defiant Core base exists. I have placed it here alongside other plot hooks from the guide.

Rebels continue work on the remains of the Nova Defiant on Innton II, creating a new base known as Defiant Core. It undergoes several stages of development. During stage three, former Separatist Rebel Romar Kek is placed in charge.
(conjecture based on Strongholds of Resistance)

When the planet Kabal declares neutrality in the forthcoming Civil War, Imperial bombers make an example of the capital city.
(conjecture based on Fair Prey)

Brenn and Dellis Tantor, unable to become full-fledged stormtroopers, despite their Academy training, are made honorary members of Cattena Squad when Cattena’s commanding officer finds their determination rather impressive.
(conjecture based on the Force Commander)
• On New Plympto, Nosaurian general Fefar Blackeye leads the first successful resistance against the Imperials holding the world. His resistance will continue for two years.
  (conjecture based on The University of Sanbra Guide to Intelligent Life: The Nosaurians)

• As intergalactic war becomes imminent, Bail Organa expands the role of the safeworld of Isis. Rich in minerals, the planet becomes a starfighter construction facility for the Rebel Alliance. Engineers begin to move there. The native Gutretees are sympathetic to the Rebel cause, and are asked by the Alliance not to leave the planet – it is feared the new race would attract the Emperor's attention. Isis remains, for the moment, one of the Alliance's best-kept secrets.
  (conjecture based on The Isis Coordinates via TimeTales, verbatim)

• The original copy of 54th Atrisi an Emperor Uueg Tching's Sayings is sent to Coruscant under the request of Palpatine, as a personal trophy.
  (conjecture based on From the Files of Corellia Antilles )

• On Danuta, a hearing-impaired Rybet is murdered in apartment 4G of an apartment complex just a stone's throw from the local Imperial spaceport.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire)

• Jabba the Hutt abandons Mos Espa entirely and makes his Mos Eisley townhouse and his palace his two main residences.
  (conjecture based on Secrets of Tatooine)

• The Wookiees Fahraark and Friyahrr take a group of Hoojibs as slaves, planning to use them soon in a revenge plot against Milac Troper on behalf of Dayla and Hereven Kev.
  (conjecture based on Welcome to the Jungle)

• In a ceremony at the Imperial Palace, Harsh becomes Moff of the Bosph Sector.
  (conjecture based on Unusual Suspects)

• An accident forces Daran Tal's scout ship to exit hyperspace near the Crystal Web Station. He spends the next month getting to know the Lucents who built the station.*
  (conjecture based on Crystal Web Space Station)

*NOTE: All information from this Polyhedron #93 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• Shortly after the first clashes between the Rebel Alliance and the Empire, Alliance supporters, through a front corporation, purchase control of Kashnir Arms and supply the Rebellion with large numbers of the KX-60 Blaster Rifle. Once this is discovered by Imperial agents, the owners secretly pack up all the production equipment and take it to an unknown location.*
  (conjecture based on Blaster Weapons of the Rebel Alliance)

*NOTE: All information from this Challenge Magazine #40 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• Two months after his original stay on the station, Daran Tal returns to the Crystal Web Station with a small staff to work the station and assumes the title of Baron Administrator.*
  (conjecture based on Crystal Web Space Station)

*NOTE: All information from this Polyhedron #93 article was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

• A group of heroes have reached Mos Eisley spaceport. They are all trying to join the rebellion and so are looking for someone with rebel ties. Around noon, they are heading toward the cantina to escape the heat when they hear shouts and blaster fire coming from a nearby, garbage-strewn alley. A man in a pilot's uniform staggers out of the alley clutching a data cartridge, and before he dies, he mumbles that the card is "our only hope." The heroes inspect the card and realize that it contains valuable data on the Imperial Navy that the Rebel Alliance could use to plan future attacks. They also notice that the coordinates to a secret rebel base have been etched into the card. After taking the card and evading a patrol of stormtroopers, the heroes find themselves at docking bay 35, where an old stock light freighter, Limping Lady, is for sale. Several snake-headed Saurians are standing near the ship, and when the heroes inquire about it, the Saurians' boss, Sithless Leethe, walks out of the ship. He shows the heroes around the ship, trying his best to convince them to purchase it. Later, after either purchasing or deciding to steal the ship, the heroes return to the docking bay only to discover that the ship has been impounded by the Empire and is guarded by a squad of stormtroopers. The heroes make it onto the ship (either by sneaking or blasting their way in) but more troopers show up and begin shooting, prompting a fast escape from the spaceport. Once they reach space, the star destroyers Vengeance and Belligerent try and fail to stop them. After racing smuggler Hawker Bryce-Kelly to Zoma V, the heroes eventually reach the secret rebel base, hidden in a cliff face on the planet Regnar. General Corros, commander of the base, welcomes the heroes into the Alliance and thanks them for bringing the information on the data card.*

Limping Lady

*NOTE: Luke Van Horn, who submitted information for this article, suggests that this could have taken place prior to ANH, hence its placement here, even though it is a generic Rebellion era RPG story.

- At age 86, Tem Chesko, in failing health, is saved when his droid companion, Millie, gives him her power core (and whatnot) as an artificial heart. (To be continued below . . . )

Tales from Mos Eisley: Mostly Automatic

- Rebel spy Renci Tosh has crash landed near Great Rock in the wilderness of Ord Mantell. She has been captured by a local crimelord’s minions, but escaped. To return to the Rebellion, she hires a group of fringers in Great Rock, who help her track her own trail back to the crashed ship. Unfortunately, the ship is gone. Following treads from the crash site, they discover a group of raiders led by the Trandoshan Yarroq. They break into the compound and hold off the raiders while others in the team repair Tosh’s Z-95. Finally, they manage to drive off the raiders for a bit, allowing Tosh time to escape. She offers her saviors a chance to join the Rebellion. They’ll think about it.

Rendezvous at Ord Mantell

- Davin Felth enrolls in the Caridian academy. (To be continued below . . . )

When the Desert Wind Turns: The Stormtrooper’s Tale

- After some taunting back and forth, Luke Skywalker (age 18) and Laze “Fixer” Loneozner engage in a speed run race in their skyhoppers. Luke wins, and he considers it a win that Biggs Darklighter would have found impressive. (To be continued below . . . )

A New Hope: The Life of Luke Skywalker

- The Empire discovers anti-Imperial acts taking place on Telfrey and attacks. This causes the people to rebel outright. The Empire’s response leaves the surface of Telfrey unable to support life for generations. Meanwhile, the Empire subjugates another world in the system, Gamandar, building an enormous fortress on the world and enslaving the populace. Only Iskalon, Gamandar’s twin world, remains unsubjugated, but Imperials begin appearing on that planet as well. As a result of the Telfrey attack, Yom Argo and Tay Vanis join the Rebel Alliance.*

*NOTE: This takes place before The Iskalon Effect, but is never given an exact date. Given that Primor talks about Vanis and Argo thinking the Imperials were building a large weapon (the Death Star, perhaps) nearby (could this be near Despayre?), it would make sense for this to happen just before ANH. That is further supported by Argo and Vanis being at the Battle of Yavin, but they could have been part of the Alliance for other reasons. No exact correlation between their joining the Rebels and this event has ever been firmly established. Take this dating with a grain of salt. On the other hand, the Essential Atlas puts Despayre and Iskalon far away from each other, which makes this reasoning less sound. It would be nice to have a specific date for this event.

- Droopy McCool joins the Max Rebo band (at this point, it’s actually still Evar Orbus and His Galactic Wailers) when he is purchased by Evar Orbus at a slave auction on Orvax IV. The band also has an advertisement for an engagement at the Kanzwick Amphitheatre.

*NOTE: This takes place before The Iskalon Effect, but is never given an exact date. Given that Primor talks about Vanis and Argo thinking the Imperials were building a large weapon (the Death Star, perhaps) nearby (could this be near Despayre?), it would make sense for this to happen just before ANH. That is further supported by Argo and Vanis being at the Battle of Yavin, but they could have been part of the Alliance for other reasons. No exact correlation between their joining the Rebels and this event has ever been firmly established. Take this dating with a grain of salt. On the other hand, the Essential Atlas puts Despayre and Iskalon far away from each other, which makes this reasoning less sound. It would be nice to have a specific date for this event.

- J’ywyz’gnk Kchhllbrxcstk Et’rmndndivctb, exiled from his home, sneaks aboard Roark Ganet’s starship. He befriends Roark, and eventually leaves Roark when on Nar Shaddaa. In a bar called Uncle Chesko’s, he sings along and is heard by Evar Orbus, who invites him to join Evar Orbus and His Galactic Wailers (later known as the Max Rebo Band). Fellow band member Sy Snootles suggests that he shorten his name to something that humans can pronounce, and he chooses to go by the name “Joh Yowza.”

*NOTE: This takes place before The Iskalon Effect, but is never given an exact date. Given that Primor talks about Vanis and Argo thinking the Imperials were building a large weapon (the Death Star, perhaps) nearby (could this be near Despayre?), it would make sense for this to happen just before ANH. That is further supported by Argo and Vanis being at the Battle of Yavin, but they could have been part of the Alliance for other reasons. No exact correlation between their joining the Rebels and this event has ever been firmly established. Take this dating with a grain of salt. On the other hand, the Essential Atlas puts Despayre and Iskalon far away from each other, which makes this reasoning less sound. It would be nice to have a specific date for this event.

- Bens Figg and Tabbins Vee enter the Imperial Academy. They become roommates.

*NOTE: This takes place before The Iskalon Effect, but is never given an exact date. Given that Primor talks about Vanis and Argo thinking the Imperials were building a large weapon (the Death Star, perhaps) nearby (could this be near Despayre?), it would make sense for this to happen just before ANH. That is further supported by Argo and Vanis being at the Battle of Yavin, but they could have been part of the Alliance for other reasons. No exact correlation between their joining the Rebels and this event has ever been firmly established. Take this dating with a grain of salt. On the other hand, the Essential Atlas puts Despayre and Iskalon far away from each other, which makes this reasoning less sound. It would be nice to have a specific date for this event.

- Molo Himron is hand-picked by Emperor Palpatine to be trained by the Imperial Intelligence Bureau.

*NOTE: This takes place before The Iskalon Effect, but is never given an exact date. Given that Primor talks about Vanis and Argo thinking the Imperials were building a large weapon (the Death Star, perhaps) nearby (could this be near Despayre?), it would make sense for this to happen just before ANH. That is further supported by Argo and Vanis being at the Battle of Yavin, but they could have been part of the Alliance for other reasons. No exact correlation between their joining the Rebels and this event has ever been firmly established. Take this dating with a grain of salt. On the other hand, the Essential Atlas puts Despayre and Iskalon far away from each other, which makes this reasoning less sound. It would be nice to have a specific date for this event.

- The anthropologist Hoole goes to Tatooine on a survey mission. He uses his shape-shifting abilities to infiltrate local groups, from Tusken Raiders to moisture farmers. He learns much, such as that the B’omarr palace that is currently home to Jabba the Hutt was once home to another scoundrel, Alkhara for 34 years at some time in centuries past. After his survey is complete, Hoole desperately wants to get off of the planet and awaits the next transport away from Tatooine.

(The Illustrated Star Wars Universe: Tatooine Entry)

- An unknown pilot working under Captain Antilles goes to purchase a ship to help in an upcoming mission. He meets C-D20 and R2-RD, two sales droids who show him several different ships before he chooses (it seems), an Arakyd Helix Light Interceptor. Elsewhere, Debret AKA Courier Nightmoon takes on an unknown cargo for Jarafok via his henchman, Nopan. She will carry the cargo in her Starfeld Z-10 Seeker, the Starlady. In another part of the galaxy, near Darknon, two pirates, Larken and Sahr, are aboard the Pillage as the pirate group (including the Pillage, Profit, and Trust Me) prepare to take the helpless Kizbon’s Box. No sooner do they begin to make their move than the “helpless” prey attacks them, via an Arakyd Helix, making the predatory pirates the prey . . . *

(A Buyer’s Guide to Alternative Starships)*

*NOTE: The three stories in this summary aren’t even remotely connected, aside from being in the same AJ article. The placement here assumes that all stories happened at the same time, and that the Captain Antilles mentioned is Raymus Antilles, thus making this story necessarily take place prior to ANH.

- Three months prior to the Purge’s encounter with the Blackwing-infected Vector, Dr. Zahara Cody (fresh from medical school on Rhinnal) begins serving in the Purge’s medbay with a 2-1B droid that she nicknames “Waste.” She has been trying to find a way to serve the downtrodden, but she has been rejected from various aid groups for lack of experience. (conjecture based on Death Troopers)

- Lando Calrissian meets Bria Tharen aboard the Queen of Empire. He is captured by Boba Fett, who has already captured Bria, but when Drea Renthal (Lando’s former interest and a woman who owes Han Solo a favor) arrives with her pirates, the deal their way out of the jam with Fett, and Fett leaves. At about the same time, it has been a month since Han Solo left Fiolla, and he is seriously considering returning to Nar Shaddaa. He and Chewbacca are, at the moment, still en route to the Tion Hegemony. (To be continued below . . . )

(Rebel Dawn)

- Mako Spince is crippled on a smuggling run and decides to take a job as a Nar Shaddaa traffic controller. (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook)

- Han Solo and Chewbacca are now working for Grigmin in the Tion Hegemony. When that job ends (because they showed Grigmin up), they head for Brigia, where they disrupt the status quo of the planet’s government. They escape to Rudrig and meet with Han’s friend, Badure. Badure introduces them to Hasti. Hasti subsequently hires them to find Xim the Despot’s old treasure ship, the Queen or Ranroon. (Lanni, Hasti’s sister, was killed after finding a clue to the ship’s whereabouts.) A Ruurian named Skynx wants to join them for one last adventure before metamorphosing into a chroma-wing, so he tags along. They go to Dallalt and struggle with mine owners to finally gain the ships log recorder. This leads them, after a bit of misadventure, to a group of Survivors, descendants of Xim’s people, who want to kill them for a sacrifice. They escape, having to battle Xim’s old war droids. Once they are safe, though, Gallandro returns and joins the group. He says that he will take a share of the treasure, then “let bygones be bygones,” so to speak. Upon finding the vault holding the treasure, Gallandro tries to kill the others and take the treasure for himself. He gets off the first shot, but he vault’s security systems kill him. They finally enter the vault. The treasure, though, is not valuable items, but common materials and old weapons that Xim was trying to stockpile. Han and Chewie leave Bollux and Blue Max with the rest of the group, along with the “treasure,” and he and Chewie head off to return to their old haunts.

(Han Solo and the Lost Legacy)

- Sometime after his adventure to find the Queen of Ranroon with Han Solo, S.V. Skynx writes a book about the discovery of the treasure trove of historically-significant artifacts, Han Solo and the Lost Legacy: A True Story of the Scoundrel and a Scholar, which is published by University of Rudrig Press. (conjecture based on The Despotica)
Ten weeks prior to the Purge’s encounter with the Blackwing-infected Vector, the Star Destroyer Vector sets out from Meglumine on a mission to a secret testing base on Khonji VII, outside the Brunet System, where they are to continue tests on the bioweapon known as Blackwing, all on Darth Vader’s direct orders. Tanks of the substance begin leaking en route, however, and the crew begin to be infected. The disease quickly sweeps across the ship, wiping out all but about thirty survivors, who all hide inside an Imperial shuttle, led by Commander Gorrister. They eventually have to start killing and eating each other by drawing lots to stay alive. Only seven of them will remain by the time they are found by Jareth Sartoris during the Purge encounter.

(conjecture based on Death Troopers)

Eight weeks prior to the Purge’s encounter with the Blackwing-infected Vector, Von Longo and his two sons, Trig and Kale Longo, are taken from their homeworld of Cimarosa as potential Rebel sympathizers in a show of Imperial force. They are taken aboard the prison vessel Purge.

(conjecture based on Death Troopers)

On Simbarc, Han Solo and Chewbacca are caught trying to “steal” from the owner of the Hollow Moon casino near Khorya, Sollima. When caught trying to escape, they are forced into a tough situation. Han must team up with his childhood “friend,” Billal, to steal Sollima’s accounting droid back from the Empire at Moog Mot VI. Chewbacca, meanwhile, must remain with Sollima on the Hollow Moon, where he is put into a tournament against other beings for the amusement of huge crowds. When Han and Billal arrive, they sneak into the Imperial installation, disguised as Imperial officers, but when they find the droid, Billal blasts its head, covering his own tracks (from skimming off of Sollima’s funds). Han believes this might have doomed Chewie, but they will claim a stormtrooper blasted it. Captain Taavin and his Imperials capture the duo, forcing them to return to the Hollow Moon to complete their mission, all the while ready to take down Sollima’s security to allow the Empire to claim the Hollow Moon. They return to the moon just in time to find Chewie leading a slave revolt after having become a star in the arena. Sollima, seeing this, orders Han and Billal shot, but Billal turns Han in (briefly) as an Imperial spy before using the accounting droid’s head (rigged with explosives) to blow up Sollima’s office. They contact Taavin, who promptly attacks. With Sollima in tow to locate Chewbacca, Han and Billal take the Millennium Falcon to pick up Han outside. Once safely away, they jettison Sollima in an escape pod, then strand Billal (for his double-crossing and general untrustworthiness through the entire affair) on a planet full of hoojibs.

(Han Solo and the Hollow Moon of Khorya)*

NOTE: The opening “date” page of this comic puts it in 1 BBY, but the actual story text places it in 2 BBY. I contacted the writer, Jeremy Barlow, about this, and he noted that the official time frame is 1 BBY. This was later confirmed by Randy Stradley.

On Tatooine, Han Solo is about to finally hook up with Jenny, but he and Chewbacca take a job for Norund Tac. By the time negotiations are over, Jenny is already with a bouncer named Tork.

(conjecture based on Maze Run)

Han Solo and Chewbacca travel to the Rishi Maze, a dwarf galaxy with its own black hole at the center. They have been hired by Norund Tac of the Merchants Guild to carry out a supply run to a secret and illegal energy farm deep inside the Rishi Maze. Upon arrival, they discover a ships’ graveyard, which includes a huge Sith warship, dormant possibly for millennia. Before they can deliver their cargo to the energy farm, the warship senses their approach and launches drones. They are able to destroy the drones by connecting with the warship’s reactor and causing its engines to fire its last remaining energy to burn away the drones. They then find the “energy farm,” actually a Rebel base: Firebase Alpha. They find that their cargo is heating up: they have been set up to destroy the Rebel base with a cargo consisting in part of baradium. They get clear of the base, eject the cargo (with some difficulties), then finish off their cargo drop. They intend on going to Tatooine to have a word with Tac.

(Maze Run)*

NOTE: There is no definitive date for this story. However, the art includes Han’s scar, and the Rebels (with a capital “R”) exist, so it is likely after The Force Unleashed. I have lumped it here with some oddball Han stories (such as Death Troopers) to make it fit somewhat within the span of Rebel Dawn.

- One month prior to the Purge’s encounter with the Blackwing-infected Vector, a young prison guard aboard the Purge visits the medbay to receive treatment from Dr. Zahara Cody. She remembers him talking about his family on Chandrila. When the Blackwing infection strikes, she will discover a note he tried to write to his wife, which she and Trig Longo will deliver to her after the incident.
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)

- Two weeks prior to the Purge’s encounter with the Blackwing-infected Vector, prisoner Trig Longo notices an alien prisoner with a red eye in the back of its head that disconcerts him. A few days later, the alien is gone for unexplained reasons. Around this same time, Trig Longo and his brother Kale Longo are present when their father, Von Longo, dies in the medbay, overseen by Dr. Zahara Cody, after Von, presumably innocent of Rebel activities, after being tortured by Imperial Corrections Officer Jareth Sartoris. Von’s last words are that Trig should look after his brother, even though Trig is the younger sibling. Due to Zahara’s sympathies for the prisoners, many of the guards stop talking to her at this point, seeing her sympathy as disloyal. Zahara begins considering returning home to her family, hat in hand, so to speak, to return to the fold and leave this lifestyle behind.
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)

- While on a smuggling run, Han Solo and Chewbacca are arrested. They are placed aboard the Imperial prison barge Purge, while the Millennium Falcon is impounded by the Empire and almost immediately taken and sold by corrupt officials.
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)

- Delphanian gang leader Sixtus Cleft, aboard the prison vessel Purge, is killed, presumably by Aur Myss, so that Myss can take over his criminal operations.
  (conjecture based on Death Troopers)

- Aboard the Imperial prison barge Purge, two teenage brothers, Trig and Kale Longo, are alone as prisoners among the general population. Their father, Von Longo, has recently died at the hands of a vicious prison guard, Jareth Sartoris, while in front of the medbay’s lead physician, Zahara Cody, and her 2-1B droid, nicknamed “Waste.” Now, they face the wrath of Von’s old criminal contacts, led by Aur Myss. When the Purge experiences a breakdown while still a week out from arrival at its detention center destination, the Imperials, led by Warden Blissey Kloth, fortunately discover the derelict Star Destroyer Vector. A team, led by Sartoris, is sent aboard to hunt down replacement parts for the Purge, but they find the vessel to be a veritable ghost ship, save for strange, unexplained cargo and remains. Half of the team returns to the Purge, while the other half is lost aboard the Vector. Unbeknownst to the team, they have brought across a dangerous biological agent, which quickly begins to spread and kill the crew of the Purge, except for a precious few who seem to be immune, including Zahara, Trig, Kale, and Sartoris. Over the span of a few days, the crew is wiped out by the disease, and it is only the dying act of prison guard Wembly (who befriended the Longo boys) that allows them to get out of their cell and not die of starvation. They attempt to make their way off the ship via an escape pod on their own, if they can find one. Sartoris, meanwhile, confronts the warden and kills him, taking the information necessary to escape himself. Zahara, meanwhile, tries to make her way through the ship, only to come upon the solitary confinement chambers, where she releases two prisoners who have no idea what is going on but might be able to help them escape, if inoculated with a cure that she has produced (far too late) from her own immune blood. Those prisoners are Han Solo and Chewbacca, who had been arrested for smuggling a short while earlier. Our two groups of heroes (Zahara, Han, and Chewbacca, and then the Longo brothers) unite when they find each other, after a few sharp words and pointed blasters between the males. Together, the five will try to find a way to escape. Things are not as they seem, however. The dead bodies begin to reanimate, becoming zombies, including recognizable faces like Von Longo. After a series of frightening encounters, our heroes make their way aboard the Vector in hopes of using the ship to escape, since the Purge is dead in space and held in a tractor beam to boot. Sartoris, for his part, has used an escape pod, but it is simply pulled aboard the Vector by its tractor beam as well. When Kale is injured, Zahara keeps watch over him while the others go to deactivate the tractor beam and find a way to get the Vector in motion. Zahara saves Kale... from the infection in his body that is a strange dark substance moving through his body (which she and the former away team from the Purge have discovered being harvested from extracted lungs and throats of infected individuals). She cuts it out of him, but it is for naught, as he is soon shot in the face by a “lucky” shot from one of the zombies. While aboard the ship, they discover black drums leaking fluids. From what they and Sartoris eventually piece together separately, the zombie plague is actually an Imperial bioweapon, known as Blackwing. It was created to be extremely virulent and kill, but it reanimates bodies as a means of distributing itself, in a way that is very self-directed, almost sentient. Under attack by Blackwing zombies, Sartoris discovers a shuttle filled with a handful of surviving, cannibalistic Imperials from the Vector. He chooses to save one of them, named White, from oncoming zombies, earning him the man’s gratitude, before he goes out to try to save their skins. He ends up making up for being the one who tortured Von to death by saving our remaining heroes, even sacrificing himself to save them. (Granted, he was bitten, so he would have turned into a zombie, so it was not entirely selfless, but it was more than one could have expected from Sartoris.) As things heat up, and the zombies, with enough sentience left to launch in starfighters with which to spread the disease, begin to escape into space, Han, Chewbacca, and Trig escape with a few of the remaining Imperials aboard the shuttle, forced to leave Zahara behind when she is apparently killed while deactivating the tractor beam to cover their escape. As it turns out, White had carried out that final act in repayment to Sartoris, allowing Zahara to have already gotten back to the shuttle. She is aboard as they see the starfighters, with their zombies too far from the original source and concentration of their infection (and the necessary quorum for the hive mind to operate properly), simply go dead in space. By trying to spread, the flawed Blackwing bioweapon has stopped its own distribution. The survivors head for Galantos, where they sell the shuttle. Han and Chewie now must hunt down the Millennium Falcon to buy it back, while Zahara takes Trig under her wing. The two close loose ends by delivering a message from one of Zahara’s dead colleagues to his family. The Vector and Purge are still technically out there, though, and Blackwing may very well return one day. . . *

(Death Troopers)*

*NOTE: Sue Rostoni has noted that this story is within a year of ANH, which gives us very little time in which to fit the tale. I have taken Rob Mullin’s suggestion in placing it into one of these travel gaps within Rebel Dawn, alongside some of the other oddball Han and Chewie stories in this era. The story must be after Han Solo and the Lost Legacy due to Han having his chin scar, and it is likely before Chewie returns to Kashyyyk and learns about Lumpy, since he does not include Lumpy in his delirious visions.

- Sometime after Trig Longo and Zahara Cody escape the Purge, the ship is recovered in the Unknown Regions. Various messages are recovered from the ship. A letter from inmate Armo Drane to his wife, Tso Sook Drane is found that claims to have been written six days out from the detention moon, but the time is suspect, given that the crew seems to be lying to the inmates about their travel time. A letter from Kale Longo to his deceased father, Gilles Longo, is discovered, including an additional message at the bottom, written by Trig Longo just before he was discovered during the outbreak. Two letters are found from Zahara to her father, Teef Lan Cody, one written prior to the outbreak, noting her desire to resign her post, and another written as the medbay filled approximately two hours after the outbreak. Inmate Dugtroy “Dugtroy the Header/Cruel” Osck left a letter to Boffitt Einer, informing the latter that the spice-run he double-crossed Dugtroy on was actually for the Hutts. Corrections Officer Omar Zook left a message to his wife, Kai Zook, on Chandrila. An error message from the computer notes that it is impossible to confirm the number of prisoners due to changing lifeform readings. Nox Xakarta left a message that was to be sent to his brother, but the message recipient was unavailable to receive the message. A message from Warden Bissley Kloth notes his actions as the situation unraveled aboard the Purge. The messages, minus some redacted segments, are preserved after the Purge incident.*

(conjecture based on Recovered Messages from Purge)*

*NOTE: These messages were scattered across seven different websites as a promotional tool for Death Troopers. They are not stories in and of themselves, per se, but flavor material that is meant to reflect events in the novel, which is summarized above. No time frame is given for when the messages are recovered, other than that they are recovered in the Unknown Regions aboard the Purge itself.

- Very shortly after the incident on the Purge, Han Solo and Chewbacca track down the Millennium Falcon and buy it back from whomever purchased it from the corrupt Imperials who had impounded the ship upon their previous capture.
(conjecture based on Death Troopers)

- Kell Bircher, member of the Chandrilan Special Forces and nephew of Mon Mothma, is inserted into the Imperial military as a spy for the Rebel Alliance. His forged records put him in a position to soon take command of the Devastator in the wake of the Battle of Yavin, mere months away. No one is informed of this plan except for Bircher, Mon Mothma, and the Bothan who helped set up his fake records.
(conjecture based on From the Ruins of Alderaan)

- Finally safe, Bria Tharen heads for Nar Shaddaa, where she asks Jiliac and Jabba the Hutt for help in attacking Ylesia. Jabba is willing to help, but Jiliac is not. For the moment, she is without aid. After talking with Lando Calrissian, she begins to consider hiring smugglers as a fighting force. At about the same time, Han Solo and Chewbacca make a stop at Kashyyyk, where they discover that Mallatobuck has had a child, Chewbacca’s son. They name the child Lumpawarrump. Soon, Han will return to Nar Shaddaa. Chewbacca will join him later. (To be continued below . . .)

(conjecture based on Rebel Dawn)

- Dannen Lifehold is on a run to Dohu VII for Linkaas. This will be his last mission for Linkaas. After this, the Lifeline will be Dannen’s, and the loan from Linkaas fully repaid. Linkaas had other plans, though, and sends his henchmen Chokk and Bakk after Dannen. Dannen arrives on Dohu VII, but the Lifeline is damaged and in need of pricey repairs. In a local cantina, Dannen takes a challenge of water-drinking from a Silika named Kenta Anwa. Lifehold chugs it down easily, while Kenta, whose species is oddly affected by water, passes out. Lifehold wins enough credits to have his ship fixed. When he arrives at Linkaas storehouse, though, Chokk and Bakk jump him and tie him up, stealing his winnings and the cargo that Dannen was to pick up. Dannen is saved by Kenta’s brother Klin, who had come back to ask Lifehold to take a picture with Kenta, which would be an honor. Lifehold agrees, and begins to piece together who it was that attacked him by the voices he remembers hearing. When Dannen returns to his ship, he finds a Tinnel (a very innocent-minded Tinnel) named Purr, who has fixed his ship. Dannen is first suspicious, then amazed. They leave Dohu VII. Dannen then contacts Linkaas, who was planning to have him killed to resell the Lifeline, but who now simply tells Dannen that Dannen now owes his last payment and the cost of the “stolen” cargo. Dannen refuses, but Linkaas notices Purr and tells Dannen he’ll let Dannen off free and clear if he’ll give Linkaas Purr to . . . study. Dannen refuses that as well and he and Purr escape into hyperspace, bound for Alderaan, now on the run from Linkaas.

(Breaking Free)

- X2, working with the Rebel Alliance under Rahm Kota, joins Kota in a rescue mission to Geonosis. A Rebel team landed there to infiltrate an Imperial base that is run out of an old Separatist droid factory there, but they have been captured. Kota arrives before X2 and prepares for the infiltration, but when X2 arrives in space in his X-wing, he is attacked by Boba Fett in Slave I, who intends to capture Kota. He initially thinks X2 is Kota, but when he realizes that he isn’t, he decides to try to take X2 anyway, given that he could get a substantial reward for his capture. (Unbeknownst to X2 yet, his brother, X1, has become a rather high-ranking Imperial agent, which makes X2’s capture quite a prize.) X2 manages to drive Fett off, then lands and joins Kota. They infiltrate the base, freeing the strike team, which consists of all cross-trained pilots. In the wake of the mission, the pilots all owe X2 their lives and sense his leadership potential, as does Kota. The pilots form Grey Squadron (named for X2’s “father” and Kota’s former Padawan, Falon Grey), under X2’s command. (To be continued below . . .)

(Elite Squadron)

*NOTE: The Geonosis mission appears only in the Nintendo DS version of the game. Yes, that means that the next time we see X2 in the PSP version, he mysteriously is in command of an X-wing squadron that doesn’t even get a name until very late in the game. (Can you tell yet that the storytelling in the PSP version is extremely sloppy, and it takes the DS version to make any sense whatsoever out of the tale?)

- Aboard the Death Star, a group of Rebel prisoners from the detention block of the not-yet-fully-operational battle station manages to escape. They are set upon by the Imperial 501st Legion. The Rebels, who apparently have stolen a copy of plans for the Death Star from its own computers are stopped, but they will soon receive word of other stolen plans. (To be continued below . . . )
The Star Wars Timeline Gold: Legends Timeline, Vol. 1

Battlefront II

- The Ssi-Ruvi carry out an attack on G'rho, a Chandrilan colony world, and take Dev Sibwarra as their "spokesperson." (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)
- The Empire tightens its grip on Ando, making fishing by the indigenous Aqualish illegal. (conjecture based on The Ando Project)
- Go-Corp produces the CD-12a autopilot brain. (conjecture based on Galladinium's Fantastic Technology via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- A sandstorm and a pack of anoobas attack a ranch near the Motesta Oasis colony on Tatooine, killing most of a herd of jerbas, scattering the rest. This leaves Swilla Corey, an ex-slave ranch hand, destitute.* (conjecture based on the StarWars.com databank entry for Swilla Corey, part of the fan-submitted canonical entry series What's the Story?)*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn.

- An Imperial scout discovers a Rebel colony on a moon in the Unknown Regions, the same colony Lak Sivrak had earlier discovered and failed to report to the Imperial authorities. This scout reports his find to the Imperial Navy. Rebel spies learn of the report and warn the colony, but a few of them are still captured. Under torture, they reveal that Sivrak had found the colony months earlier. Sivrak learns of this when he has to shoot his way out of an attack by stormtroopers. Knowing that the Empire now considers him a traitor, he decides to flee to the other side of the galaxy and hide on Tatooine.* (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope)*

*NOTE: Information provided by Luke Van Horn. This is "some months" after Lak Sivrak discovers the colony, yet prior to ANH.

- Figrin Da'n wins Tech Mo'r's Ommini Box in a sabacc game. (conjecture based on We Don't Do Weddings: The Band's Tale)
- Lando Cahtrssian and Niles Ferrier are nearly killed during a run to Phraetiss. (conjecture based on Dark Force Rising)
- Tessala Corvae becomes Major General of the Imperial Army forces in the Tapani Sector. (conjecture based on Lords of the Expanses via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Merkur starts Merkur's Cab Service in Tal'cara. (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Arkvis is assigned to the staff at the Rebellion's Oracel Base. (conjecture based on Flashpoint: Brak Sector via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- The Empire takes over Edan II. (conjecture based on Introductory Adventure Game)
- Scruts leads guerrilla fighters against the Imperials taking over Edan II. (conjecture based on Introductory Adventure Game via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Porcellus is made chef to Jabba the Hutt. (conjecture based on Taster's Choice: The Tale of Jabba's Chef)
- Brahle Logris kills his father. (conjecture based on Galaxy Guide 11: Criminal Organizations)
- Iella Wessiri joins CorSec. (conjecture based on information provided to TimeTales by Dan Wallace)
- Rookie One and Thurland Hack meet on Tatooine.* (conjecture based on Rebel Assault Gamebook)*

*NOTE: Rebel Assault has a questionable status in the continuity. According to Leland Chee, some of the story fits, while other elements do not. That makes me wonder if the information in its guide, the Rebel Assault Gamebook, should be taken seriously. For now, we can figure that this information is correct, since the character exists in some of the in-continuity segments.

- Frequent winner of the race during the Festival of the High Winds on Sevarcos, Lord Cassius Nolath Rha, wins the race for the third year in a row. (conjecture based on Festival of the High Winds)
- Halla Ettyk prosecutes her last case before taking the Celchu case several years later.
• Reezen joins the Imperial Navy.
  (conjecture based on The Courtship of Princess Leia)

• Nil Spaar begins moving members of his Yevethan underground group into positions of power at the Imperial shipyard of N’Zoth.
  (conjecture based on Before the Storm)

• Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Empire takes over the planet Sriluur, ending the Weequay-Houk War there.
  (conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds and Dangerous Covenants)

• With the Imperial takeover of Sriluur, the Empire puts an end to ritual sacrifices to the Weequay god of thunder, Shak, which were taking place at the Shak Monastery in the Sriluur capital of Al-Campur. Followers of Shak will later claim that the lack of these sacrifices is why the planet will see increased acid rains along the Lesser Cueva Expanse.
  (conjecture based on Lords of Nal Hutta)

• Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, scouts discover Little Capella, which will become a mining world, settled by crews from Feldwes.
  (conjecture based on The Essential Atlas)

• Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, phrikite is discovered on the Gromas moons. The Empire moves in to mine it.
  (conjecture based on Kyle Katarn’s Tale)

• Col. Abal Karda of the “Lightning Battalion” kills General Nim (his superior) and four body guards and proceeds to go AWOL. He is declared an enemy of the Empire.
  (conjecture based on Boba Fett: Enemy of the Empire)

• Grell Panib begins his Imperial service.
  (conjecture based on Truce at Bakura Sourcebook)

• Rai-Kalei joins the Rebellion.
  (conjecture based on A Deal Gone Sour)

• Vanden Willard becomes personal aide to the Organa family.
  (conjecture based on Dark Empire Sourcebook)

• Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Sentinel-class landing craft is introduced to the Imperial forces by Sienar Fleet Systems.
  (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Vehicles and Vessels)

• Abal Karda arrives on Maryx Major. He proceeds to a Pessimist monastery and asks for sanctuary from Boba Fett. Across the galaxy, Fett meets with Darth Vader, who hires Fett to find Karda and bring back a casket in Karda's possession, without looking at what the casket contains. For 12,000 credits, Fett agrees and heads for Vestar. Vader, shortly thereafter, sends a group of assassins to follow Fett and kill him once the casket is secured. Fett speaks with a freighter crew and learns that Karda had gone to Starstation 12. Fett goes there and learns that Karda had just gotten a facial tattoo and paid for it with the jewels from the hair of Selestrine, the Icarii queen. Fett notices he is being followed and kills one of the would-be assassins after learning why they are after him. Fett then continues to Tatooine, finally learning Karda's whereabouts. He heads for Maryx Major and arrives just as the disembodied head of Selestrine, the contents of the casket, tell Karda that revenge will be served for what he did to the Icarii. Vader comes to Maryx Major as well, unbeknownst to Fett. Fett kills the assassins and heads for the monastery. There, he confronts Karda and finally tosses him into a pit of lava. Selestrine tells Fett that not only are the jewels in her hair valuable, but she can also see the future. (It was this fact that caused Karda to go AWOL with "her" in the first place.) Fett decides that he should keep Selestrine just as Darth Vader arrives at the monastery. Fett tries to escape but Vader destroys his speeder. The two do battle, lightsaber against blaster, until Fett, on the verge of defeat drops off a ledge over lava and uses his jetpack to lift up and surprise Vader, blasting him square in the faceplate. Vader drops his lightsaber, but places a Force-grip on Fett until Fett, as a diversion, kicks the casket off of the ledge and toward the lava. Vader releases Fett from his Force-grip and saves the casket, while Fett escapes. Vader and Fett both leave the planet. From orbit, Vader's Star Destroyer destroys the monastery. Selestrine then talks to Vader, who realizes that if he does not want the Emperor to have Selestrine (since he'd planned to keep it for himself), he would have to kill Selestrine. Just as Palpatine calls to order Vader to give him the casket, Vader uses the Force to cause Selestrine to have a seizure and then finally die. Fett, well on his way from the planet, admires his new prize—Selestrine's jewel-laden hair.

(Boba Fett: Enemy of the Empire)

- The Imperial cargo ship Misanthrope, captained by Kevrem Bebo, crashes into the planet D'vouran, which has suddenly appeared about one light-year from a busy spacelane. While Bebo, his friend Lonni, and 18 others survive the crash, all but he and Lonni soon vanish, eaten by the planet, it seems. The Imperial bureaucracy deems the crash Bebo's fault and orders his arrest, but the Enzeen of D'vouran give him sanctuary on the world.
(conjecture based on Eaten Alive)

- Sten Thannas leaves an Outer Rim assignment to go with the Star Destroyer Hydra as it is assigned to Maw Installation. He is First Mate at this time, and will later rise to Captain.
(conjecture based on Jedi Academy Sourcebook)

- Imperial First Lieutenant Brazack earns a position within the Empire's Special Operations force as a platoon leader in Ghost Squadron when he survives one of the bloodiest battles ever fought by the Empire. He will be at the point of the assault on the moon of Sulon.
(conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Candice Ondi and A-Cee are sent to Sulon to document the rebel uprising on the moon.
(conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Mirchindi NeMall buys the NeHimmep.
(conjecture based on Stock Ships via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- A plague breaks out on Sedesia. Imperial forces move in to contain and control the plague, finally announcing that the plague has been cured.
(conjecture based on Finder's Fee)

- Around this time, Patroller Chief Cav'Saran on the planet Ranklinge takes control of the entire planet.
(conjecture based on Allegiance)

- Han Solo sets off on a mission by himself, which takes him to the Hoth system. He ends up crashing a TIE fighter on Hoth, but makes his way to a nearby settlement before heading off toward Tatooine. About one month later, the Empire wishes to set an example by capturing Solo. To catch the deserter, Boba Fett is sent after him. Darth Vader disagrees with the decision, but in a heated conversation about the Death Star, Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin argues that Fett should be allowed to do his job. Vader leaves, highly annoyed. On Hoth, Fett is tracking Han down via a bartender. He heads for Tatooine, even as Vader arrives, gains the same information, then kills the informant. Later, on Tatooine, Fett observes Han in a cantina, but before he can strike, Vader enters, lightsaber drawn. Fett attacks Vader, knowing he is there to foil his bounty. Vader strikes back, forcing Fett to brandish a lightsaber he had taken from a Jedi he had killed. The two duel until both are disarmed. Han escapes, but when Vader strides away, Fett vows that he will still find Solo wherever he goes.
Later, Vader returns to the Devastator, setting course back to the Death Star. Little does he know that Han is attached to his Star Destroyer in an R-22 Spearhead, which soon detaches, floating away with the garbage. It is a trick Han hopes he never has to do again.
(Prey)

- Aboard the Outrider, Dash Rendar, Eaden Vrill, and LE-BO2D9 (Leebo) are attempting to beat Han Solo's boasted times for the Kessel Run at the Maw, only to fall into an Imperial patrol ambush. They are supposed to deliver a cargo to Nal Hutta, but the ship is damaged in their escape and in need of repairs. The head for Tatooine to have Kerlew in Mos Eisley fix the ship. To do that, though, they need cash and to find a way to get the cargo the rest of the way to Nal Hutta. They end up having to hire Han Solo (who is on Tatooine alone while Chewbacca visits his baby son Lumpawarrump on Kashyyyk) to take the cargo to Nal Hutta (which Han is none too thrilled about, given the assassinations and Hutt turmoil there and something about a dropped spice shipment . . . ). They then reluctantly take a job as bodyguard (or "security personnel") to Javul Charn a Holostar (a singer in this case) who has started to get more and more threatening messages from some kind of stalker. They are taken aboard Javul’s ship, the Nova’s Heart, and get acquainted with Javul’s crew, including: Kendara Farlion (her manager); Serdor Marrak (captain of the Nova’s Heart); Yanus Melikan (cargo master); Tereez Dza’lar (costumer); Nik (Melikan’s assistant); Bran Rinnick (first mate); Arruna Var (engineer); and Oto (an Oto-222 maintenance droid). Another ship, the Deep Core, is along as part of her traveling concert venture as well. They are only aboard a short time when a fake atmosphere leak shuts Javul and Kendara away from everyone else. Fortunately, they slink away through a secret passage and are safe, but who caused the false alarm? They determine that it was some kind of signal carried with the port authority signal from Rodia, where they have just arrived, suggesting someone on Rodia is to blame. Javul explains that there was a singer, Alai Jance, whom she looks a lot like, who broke off a relationship with a Black Sun Vigo and earned his ire. She claims she has had to deal with threats due to her resemblance to Alai over the years. They investigate on Rodia, which provides Leebo with a new “pet” (or friend, perhaps) in the form of a cleaning (MSE-6) droid he names “Mousie.“ During Javul’s rehearsal that uses a set of wings and rigging to simulate flight, she is nearly killed when several things (including the wings) fail at once. Again, sabotage. After this incident, Dash learns from Javul that the Vigo who is after Alai Jance to get her back is ex-Mandalorian Hityamun “Hitch” Kris . . . and that Javul herself is actually Alai, trying to cover up that fact publicly. She had left him upon finding that he was using her out of a career he helped launch to secretly ferry illicit goods on her ships from system to system. Dash, who is starting to care for Javul, crashes a meeting Javul accepts from Hitch to see what he wants. As it stands, it seems that he is not the one trying to kill her, though he does want her back. Javul again irks Dash when she “slips the leash” to go out on her own at night, visiting the nightlife. They next head out for Christophis, but after the Deep Core is on its way, they are attacked by an unknown vessel and experience an air lock failure and are forced to head to Tatooine, where their intention is to have the Nova’s Heart fixed, while they head for Christophis for her next concert in a fixed Outrider. Unfortunately, it will take too long. Looking for other options, Dash runs into Han, who has offloaded the cargo on Nar Shaddaa (unable to actually get to Nal Hutta with the political upheaval there). Much to Dash’s annoyance, Javul hires Han to take them to Christophis in the Millennium Falcon. Dash threatens to quit in a moment of foolish pride, but Javul calms him and explains that she is scared not just because of leaving Hitch after being engaged and cutting off a source of his smuggling. As it turns out, he was still using her ships to smuggle after they split, so she turned info in to the Imperial Security Bureau. It not only harmed Hitch but also Black Sun’s Prince Xizor, while taking down several Vigos, so Black Sun itself is gunning for her, wanting her dead, not just Hitch, who just seems to want to scare her into rejoining him. Melikan, Nik, Kendara, the Outrider trio, Han, Oto, and Javul head out in the Falcon, having the others stay until the Nova’s Heart is fixed to rejoin them, limiting the number of people who could be feeding information to Black Sun and/or sabotaging the ship. Even aboard the Falcon, sabotage strikes, as Dash is nearly killed while in a sabotaged cargo area that suddenly loses gravity. They realize that it was set up to go off when they underwent a “state change” (namely entering or exiting hyperspace). Leebo and Oto check for any other sabotage, and they make their way safely to Christophis. After another encounter with Hitch that Dash eavesdrops on and then interrupts, Dash confronts Javul again, learning that she did not just hurt a few Vigos but virtually crippled Black Sun along the Corellian Trade Spine with information, codes, and such that she provided. Unfortunately, their next stop is Xizor’s homeworld, Falleen. Things go fine on Falleen, oddly enough, and they prepare to head for Bannistar Station. The Deep Core heads out, but before they leave, Javul slips out again and is again trailed by Dash, who finds her at a Wayfarer’s Temple. Javul, it seems, is a believer in the Cosmic Balance and wants to find some spiritual peace before continuing on the tour. Before they get back to the ship, they are attacked by a Xizor-hired assassin named Edge and barely escape with their lives. Eaden recognizes Edge as the killer who wiped out his order years earlier. Now it seems that payback is all around, including in the often stoic Eaden’s desire to take down Edge. When Javul insists on making all of their stops on time on the tour, Dash has had enough with half-truths. She finally reveals that she, Kendara, and Melikan are part of the Rebel Alliance and are using these stops to ferry cargo between operations. (She joined the Rebel Alliance by tracking down Melikan when she was old enough, seeking to strike back for the deaths of her parents – former Republic pilots – on Nar Shaddaa when she was fourteen.) It was their own small starfighter that caused the damage to force them to Tatooine in order to separate them from those Javul was not sure she could trust among her non-Rebel crew. As it turns out, there are important Imperial plans (uhm, can you say “Death Star?”) that are working their way toward Rebel hands from various missions and sources, and there are quite a few missions that are essentially decoys out there (i.e. not all of those Death Star plans missions are necessarily legitimate – a nice little retcon slipped in there!), and they are to pick up cargo on Bannistar that might contain those plans (or might be an important decoy mission). In other words, the Empire would want Javul too if they have discovered her Rebel ties. They head for Bannistar, where Javul charms Arno D’Vox, the local commander, into shifting around the containers that make up the station in order to allow the Falcon to secretly grab the cargo (along with making a drop in a separate cargo deal Han has made). During her performance, though, Edge reappears and attacks. In the harrowing encounter, Oto seems to misunderstand an instruction that opens a path for Edge, and Edge nearly kills Dash and Javul before Eaden stops him. Eaden himself dies in the process, however, having sacrificed himself to take down the immediate threat and the being who killed his order so long ago. They are held by D’Vox for questioning, but Han interrupts the meeting and they escape, only to learn that Imperials are on their way to their next stop. Instead of going there (instead allowing the Deep Core to go without them), Han agrees to take them all the way to the stop after that (and the destination for the secret Rebel cargo): Alderaan. They realize from the concert attack that Oto is working against them. They learn from the droid that he was reprogrammed during a recent maintenance stop by an agent of Hitch, who was given access by Bran, the ship’s first mate, who is apparently compromised (which sucks, given that they are to rendezvous with the Nova’s Heart soon). This allowed programming from Hitch to be sent to Oto, but then Xizor also utilized the same path to send even more instructions. The Imperials also compromised the droid, via the Nova’s Heart, through the signal from Rodia. Unfortunately, the droid is also supposed to transmit their location each time they drop from hyperspace to both Xizor and the Imperials. They shut him down and get a coded message to Marrak, warning him of Bran’s treachery. They emerge from hyperspace in the Circarpous system. They turn on Oto so he can transmit, then intend to take off quickly, but Hitch’s ship appears immediately due to another undiscovered tracking device on Oto that does not require him to be active. They rendezvous with the Nova’s Heart at Mimban and put Hitch’s tracking device on it, so that they can escape to Alderaan. They are discovered by Xizor, who attacks them during the transfer of the tracking device, but they are able to escape, just as Imperial ships also join the fray. They are saved by Hitch, who gives them a chance to escape. Xizor follows Nova’s Heart (where they put Oto), and Hitch is no longer an issue because he sees she is into something bigger than he wants to deal with. They reach Commenor, but they are met by Commander Zarin and the Imperial vessel Avenger, forcing them to flee again in the nick of time. They reach Alderaan, but they appear to be taken prisoner (actually a security precaution by the Rebels under Bail Organa’s leadership, who want to isolate Han, Dash, and Leebo since they are not active Rebels). Dash tries to find Leebo aboard the Falcon when they are pushed into leaving, only to be attacked by a badly-injured Edge, who snuck aboard before they left Bannistar Station. Fortunately, Leebo “malfunctions” in his sentient-protecting programming and blasts Edge, finally killing him. In the aftermath, Han, Dash, and Leebo return to Tatooine, where Han awaits Chewbacca. Dash finds the Outrider moved, but it is all under Javul’s instructions. Her cousin, Leia Organa, has helped Javul set up a room at a local hotel for Dash for quite a while, along with finishing the Outrider repairs and moving it for its safety. It has been a decent deal, but Dash misses Javul. If only he would join the Rebellion himself someday . . .

(Shadow Games)

NOTE: Placing this story is difficult in light of Rebel Dawn trying to cover most of Han’s activities prior to ANH. The novel’s time frame is kept somewhat vague, but we know that Chewbacca is on Kashyyyk with his new child, Lumpawarrump, so Han is alone. That would seem to indicate either Chewie returning to Kashyyyk late in Rebel Dawn (say in the last chapter or so), or Han leaving Chewie on Kashyyyk after the interlude in Rebel Dawn between Chapters 9 and 10, since we don’t actually see Chewie in Rebel Dawn after that interlude until the middle of Chapter 11. This also leaves some room for Han to go on this mission and might very well leave enough time to pass (months) between Shadow Games and the next time Han runs into Dash in the end of Rebel Dawn.
Unfortunately, this solution also has to ignore that Han has already set some kind of Kessel Run record that Dash is trying to beat, and it sounds as though (from one line in Shadow Games) that Han has already dumped Jabba’s spice, which would put it much closer to ANH, perhaps during the last chapter or so of Rebel Dawn. In that case, though, why would Han need money to pay back Jabba if he has a hefty fee from Javul’s mission? It’s a contradictory set of information in Shadow Games, but this is my best guess at a placement that makes logical sense.

- Eight months prior to working with Han Solo on Wukkar, Winter (working for the Rebel Alliance) joins Mazzi’s smuggling organization as part of a Rebel procurement operation. (Exact date: 34:7)*
  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)

*NOTE: The exact date used here assumes that Scoundrels is close enough to ANH to still be in the third month of the year.

- Sometime in the year before encountering Han Solo, Japet Saun is caught as part of a resistance cell in Port Chait on Cioran. He is briefly detained for questioning, but not prosecuted. (Prior to this, at some unspecified point, Japet served time at a work camp on Mangan III for two years for larceny as well.)
  (conjecture based on Honor Among Thieves)*

*NOTE: This assumes Honor Among Thieves is sometime just before the six month post-ANH mark, based on its references in relation to Hoth.

- Sometime relatively soon before the Battle of Yavin, SoroSuub releases the 501-Z Law Enforcement Officer (LEO) Droid, a competitor to Cybot Galactica’s HXZ-1 droids. Rim Securities then releases their own AC Law Enforcement Droids as competitors to both SoroSuub and Cybot Galactica.
  (conjecture based on Far Horizons)*

*NOTE: I put this pre-ANH, rather than shortly post-ANH, because the 501-Z series droids appear in Scoundrels.

- After a brief stop on Alderaan that makes them two days late for a delivery, Han Solo and Chewbacca finally deliver their cargo to Verhandle, after bickering with each other aboard the Millennium Falcon. Verhandle tries to buy the Falcon, but Han is not selling. Verhandle is able to manipulate Han into taking a substantially reduced fee for their cargo, causing the duo to bicker again. Han ends up piloting away from the planet himself, while Chewbacca remains in the rear of the ship, seemingly brooding over the argument. When a smuggling panel opens to reveal more of Verhandle’s men, there to steal the ship, Han yells for Chewbacca, who emerges and knocks them all out, but not before the goons can tie Han up. Upon saving Han from the creeps, Chewbacca decides to leave Han tied up for a while to make a point about their most recent bad deal.*
  (The Art of the Bad Deal)*

*NOTE: We have no indication of when this takes place, other than that Han and Chewie are traveling together, seemingly pre-ANH, aboard the Falcon. This is the Free Comic Book Day 2012 comic.

- Han Solo and Chewbacca make a brief trip to Formos to make contact with an agent of Jabba the Hutt, N’Mirth, to pick up a load of spice. When the Millennium Falcon nearly collides with an Imperial prison ship, under the leadership by Commander Quirt. Quirt has a quota of prisoners for the spice mines of Kessel to make, so when Han and Chewie reach the surface, Quirt confronts them. They are free, for now, but must watch themselves. N’Mirth explains the situation to them and makes arrangements for mining equipment (a cover) and spice to be brought to the Falcon. Shortly thereafter, Chewie sees another Wookiee, Hronk, held by Imperials. When he races toward Hronk, Han stuns him, saving him from being captured. Chewie then explains that the two still have a grudge from back on Kashyyyk, so Han expects that Chewie wants to settle that score by fighting him. When it is nearly time to leave, Chewie races off and breaks into the prison hold, freeing the prisoners briefly, but allowing some to escape, including Hronk, whom he takes back to the Falcon against his will. They escape the planet with Hronk aboard, accidentally losing their spice load in the process. When they are captured by Quirt’s ship, Han plays on Quirt’s speciesism by making him think Hronk is Chewie, so that their sensors don’t pick up Hronk’s life signs (since he’s so close to Quirt and not suspect). After the Imperials let them go, Han learns that Hronk is now in Chewie’s debt from having his life saved, which cancels out the old grudge. Perhaps Chewie was trying to be a hero all along.*
  (Way of the Wookiee!)*

*NOTE: This story was originally presented in the Marvel UK Star Wars Weekly series in issues 94 through 96, then reprinted in the United States. As this timeline is based on the American releases of Star Wars materials, it is noted by its American release format.

- Han Solo and Chewbacca, having just obtained dyadworms for free from a fertilizer hauler, deliver them as a delicacy to Jabba the Hutt on Tatooine. Despite a few insults from Han to Jabba's majordomo, Bib Fortuna, Jabba hires Han and Chewie for a new job. They are to go to Fornax Station, where they are to obtain Lashaa silk for Jabba from a locker where they are stored, awaiting pickup. They head there, admiring the Five Fire Rings of Fornax (flaming rings around the planet below) and arrive at Fornax Station, only to discover an Imperial transponder transmitting. Han manages to get on the bad side of Royal Margravine Abominelle of Vena, who is there for her wedding, but he mouths off to her and leaves, sticking to his preferred style. After using a lonely shoeshoe droid to inquire as to whether there are Imperials present, they enter the cargo locker area and are caught putting a bag into a locker. A former Imperial Customs agent, Chief Smurdap of Fornax Security (whose own shuttle is the source of the transponder signal) stops them and tries to accuse them of smuggling, but all they have put in the locker is a bunch of Wookiee grooming items (including a comically huge comb). When Smurdap leaves, they carry out their actual swap, filling their bag with Jabba's silk and leaving the grooming supplies. They then run into the droid again, who had tipped off Smurdap, but they simply learn from the droid about Smurdap being a former Imperial. They then run into Abominelle again, whose wedding dress has been stolen. When Han and Chewie reach the Millennium Falcon (named the Close Shave in current records and purported to be a spaceborne Wookiee barber's ship), they quickly store away the silk in a hidden compartment, but they are not allowed to leave. Smurdap arrives, having discovered the grooming supplies still in the locker, even though they are planning to leave. He believes this means that Han and Chewie have stolen something valuable, so he has his droid board the ship. The droid then returns outside with their bag, which now has the stolen wedding dress inside. Smurdap intends to extort them (having had the droid put the dress that Smurdap himself stole into the bag to frame Han and Chewie) by letting them go only if they turn over whatever it was that they took from a storage locker. They run back into the Falcon and blast away at Smurdap's droids and the docking bay, convincing flight control to open the doors and let them leave. Smurdap gives chase in his shuttle, but he and several drone fighters are outmaneuvered in the Fire Rings. Han is able to get Smurdap to reveal his plot via ship-to-ship communications, but he has Fornax Station on the comm line as well, and Smurdap is taken into custody upon his return. With some thanks from Abominelle (who seems to have a crush on Han now), Han and Chewie leave to return to Tatooine with Jabba's silk.

(Fire Ring Race)

- Having returned to Tatooine after delivering Jabba the Hutt's Lahsaa silk from Fornax Station, Han Solo and Chewbacca witness a battle between a squill and a gundark in Jabba's arena. They are given a new job. They are to go to Gamorr to pick up several new guards for Jabba, along with some food supplies. They must take TC-72, a protocol droid for translation. They arrive, and Han tries to keep TC-72 out of the picture, but when Han accidentally insults the Gamorrean farmer who is providing the food (the nonsentient but animal-like mushrooms known as snoruuks), TC-72 saves him by claiming she had mistranslated Han's accidental insult. Unfortunately, when they deliver the snoruuks and new staff for Jabba, he has learned from TC-72 that Han tried to sell other goods to the Gamorreans, which annoys the Hutt. He exacts a penalty from Han by wiping out his profits and giving him a new job that will only pay a small sum beyond paying Jabba back for encroaching on his turf without permission. They are sent to deliver some plant seedbeds and seeds to Torkil Mux's mine gemstone mine on the planet Shinbone in Wild Space. When they discover that the seeds are actually new, possibly sentient laborers that are being grown to work the mines (and that Mux is not giving Jabba the right amount of gems, hoarding many for himself), Han and Chewie turn the tables on the mine foreman. They steal all of the gems (both the ones meant for Jabba and the ones Mux was trying to steal) and free the plant laborers, along with Mux's ship. The laborers are given most of the gems and Mux's ship to find safe harbor somewhere, while Han and Chewie return to Jabba with news that the laborers "ran away," which makes them of no use to Jabba (getting them was Bib Fortuna's idea), that Mux was trying to cheat him, and, better yet, that Han and Chewie have brought Jabba more gems than he expected. Jabba commends them for not taking any for themselves (which is technically true, but they did give a ton to the plant laborers). They are still in Jabba’s good graces.

(Shinbone Showdown)

- Durga the Hutt begins working for Black Sun when Prince Xizor trades the name of Aruk the Hutt’s killer (Jiliac the Hutt) to Durga in return for full defensive information on Nal Hutta. As a result of this information exchange, Durga challenges Jiliac by the Old Law and kills him. Jabba the Hutt then kills Jiliac’s child and takes over the Desilijic Clan. Jabba contacts Bria Tharen and promises aid in attacking Ylesia. Durga has also hired Boba Fett to kill Teroenza, now that Teroenza has killed Kibbick the Hutt in preparation to declare independence from the Besadii. Elsewhere, Han has returned to Nar Shaddaa. He has found Mako Spince crippled and Salla Zend relatively unreachable, but shortly after his return, he gets something he’s wished for over the last ten years—he is reunited with Bria Tharen. Bria convinces Han to join her in gathering smugglers to strike with the Rebels against Ylesia. Durga has also hired Boba Fett to kill Teroenza. Han is somewhat aloof in the beginning, but slowly begins warming to having Bria around again. He is even more uplifted when he finds Tedris Bjalin and Jalus Nebi among the Rebels. Preparations for the raid on Ylesia begin . . . (To be continued below . . .)

(Rebel Dawn)

- AL-BRT-34-X3 joins the Rebel Alliance.
  (conjecture based on Cracken’s Rebel Operatives)
- Jorj Car’das vanishes from the galactic scene. Talon Karrde takes up control of Car’das smuggling organization in his absence. Unbeknownst to the rest of the galaxy, Car’das has gone back to Dagobah to confront Yoda and gain a greater respite from his ailing health. Yoda, upon being threatened, uses the Force to disarm Car’das of his beckon call and blaster, and tells Car’das that he has squandered his gift of life.
  (conjecture based on Vision of the Future)
- Biggs Darklighter and his classmates graduate early from the Caridian Academy due to a fast-paced curriculum. In his speech at their commencement, Grand Moff Wilhuff Tarkin speaks of the might of the Empire and certain notions and puns that suggest the possible existence of an Imperial battle station the size of a small moon, which can destroy entire worlds. Derek “Hobbie” Klivian, hearing Biggs and his friends discussing the idea, tells them that it is true, and it is being called the “Death Star.” Biggs, fearful of being assigned to such a station, is happy to be assigned to the Rand Eclipic, aboard which Hobbie has been assigned as well. In a few months, he will finally get a chance to visit Tatooine again, when he will run into Luke Skywalker. In the meantime, his belief in the evil of the Empire grows with each passing day . . . (Summary continues as part of the Star Wars: Episode IV—“A New Hope” summary below, then continues as a separate summary.)

(Darklighter)

- Darth Vader is called before Emperor Palpatine, who tells him that Mara Jade has discovered where one of the last Jedi, a Jedi known as the Dark Woman (former master of Aurra Sing and the Jedi who originally found Ki-Adi-Mundi), is hiding (on Cophrigin V). Mara believes she deserves to be the executioner, but Vader is sent instead. Vader arrives on the fifth planet of the Cophrigin system and encounters the Dark Woman in her garden. Amidst metaphors about rebirth, she tries to convince Vader that he can return to the Light Side, but Vader ignores her lightsaber and prepares to deliver the killing blow. The Dark Woman blocks the blow and the two duel, both with lightsabers and words. Finally, Vader brings a huge tree down on the Dark Woman, pinning her—broken but not yet dead. She tells him that the Dark Side has destroyed Anakin Skywalker, and he delivers the killing blow. He is surprised to see that her body has vanished. Behind him, the Dark Woman appears as a spirit in the Force and tells him that she sees within him the power to release himself from the Dark Side. Vader refuses to believe this, and leaves the Dark Woman’s garden to wither and die.

(Extinction)

- Imperial Lord Dixton tries to take control of the Godking from the planet Masterhome. The Godking then proceeds to align the Anointed People with the Alliance. The Godlings assisted a group of Alliance agents in capturing Dixton, and ensured the Anointed Peoples’ freedom.
  (conjecture based on Campaign Pack via TimeTales, verbatim)
Six months prior to working with Han Solo on Wukkar, Kell Tainer (working for the Rebel Alliance) joins Mazzic’s smuggling organization as part of a Rebel procurement operation. He finds himself working with fellow Rebel Winter. (Exact date: 34:9)*
(conjecture based on Scoundrels)
*NOTE: The exact date used here assumes that Scoundrels is close enough to ANH to still be in the third month of the year.

When hyperdrive motivator issues cause a massive recall of components from SoroSuub, freighter technician Dai Danu is framed for the negligence that led to the recall. He is fired, but as soon as he discovers that he is being framed, he steals the Gundark’s Back and escapes, intending to clear his name. In truth, mid-level manager Hila Eder has framed him. She is the one who put substandard parts in those ships, as she has been stealing the high-end parts for the local Imperial Moff. It will be two months before Dai comes up with a plan to start shipjacking to gain parts and credits to set up a hideout in the Caltrap Belt asteroid field.*
(conjecture based on Company Man)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Company Man is around 35:6, that he sets up defenses at the Caltrap Belt hideout around 35:5, and that he starts his shipjacking in 34:11. This would be two months before then, putting these events in 34:9.

The planet Gaulus, site of a Rebel Base, is compromised by a MerenData 3PO espionage droid, obtained from Jawa traders. It had served as a translator between the Gaulians and the Rebels. As a result of this discovery, the base on Gaulus had to be evacuated. The Empire brutally subjugated the base, sending Garrison Company 125a under the command of Commander Harles. Many young men and women in the base were killed. The base’s medical suite, living areas, command center and life support areas were littered with dead Rebels. The Rebels did manage to destroy their computer records however. Upon inspecting the ruins of the base, Commander Harles discovered a young, 16-year-old survivor setting explosives on the base’s main generator. Rather than capture her, Harles, who was sick of the death and destruction, aided her. Harles defected to the Rebellion, helping the young girl and her injured mother escape.
(conjecture based on Rebel Alliance Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)

Tash Arranda searches for Jedi lore on the HoloNet, eventually finding an illegal article by ForceFlow. She contacts ForceFlow, but his article is ripped off the HoloNet. Shortly thereafter, they begin semi-regular correspondence.
(conjecture based on Ghost of the Jedi)

Quayce and the leadership of the Rabid Mynocks are arrested by LA-LA in Gallisport, but they escape with the aid of friends before being sent to Kessel.*
(conjecture based on Swoop Gangs)*

*NOTE: This assumes that all of Swoop Gangs takes place around the time of ANH.

Smuggler’s Strip is built by the Lud Chud cartel on Elrood.
(conjecture based on Planets of the Galaxy: Volume Three)

Colonel Danal is put in charge of the Imperial ground forces on Gerrard V.
(conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #3 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

Sometime in this late pre-Yavin era, the Empire loses the Battle of Ton-Falk due to the Rebellion’s use of Red Squadron. This prompts the creation of Kuat Drive Yards’ escort cruisers (which can carry a full wing of TIE fighters), though many will be relegated to protecting convoys after production.*
(conjecture based on The Essential Guide to Warfare)*

*NOTE: This is sometime after Red Squadron exists, yet pre-Yavin, as the very next comment in the EGtW jumps to “after the Battle of Yavin,” implying this is pre-ANH.

On Stassia, Imperial investigators Sergeant Zeck Tambell and Corporal Valon Rizz investigate a string of very lucky gambling wins on Ringers games made by Reye Sedeya. (Other games, including a swoop race, make up other festivities.) Upon arriving at the Ringers area, the two investigators see Reye with local crime mistress Aalia Duu-lang, who had slipped through Tambell’s fingers four years before. They believe Aalia may be working with Reye to rig the games, but upon interrogating Reye, they see no proof that he is doing anything illegal. He says he simply visualizes what is going to happen and bets accordingly.
As their droid, FRN-1 investigates Aalia and her recent transactions and bets, the investigators speak with Ringer players, finally learning from one of them that players would never cheat or throw a game, and the only way someone could influence the game, in the player’s opinion, is if he was a Jedi. The investigators believe the Jedi are extinct or merely a myth, but Tambell begins to have suspicions that Reye may be unconsciously influencing events through his visualization. They head on to the swoop race area, where Reye and Aalia are sitting, after making wagers. They apprehend Reye to question him again, but he slips away as the officers make a much bigger arrest. FRN-1 has discovered that Aalia seems to have rigged the swoop race. The investigators finally have valid charges with which to arrest the crime mistress. Reye can wait until later . . .

(Ringers)

• After nearly six months of training at the Caridian academy, Davin Felth, during an Imperial training exercise, points out a fatal flaw in the AT-AT’s design to its “creator” (the man who resurrected the concept for the Empire after years of dormancy) Col. Maximilian Veers. For his “help” he is assigned to stormtrooper duty on Tatooine. (To be continued below . . .)

(When the Desert Wind Turns: The Stormtrooper’s Tale)

• Kels Turkhorn joins Cecil Noone’s thief cadre.
  (conjecture based on The Great Herdship Heist)

• The Dentaalian House on Dentaal is disbanded, and the world is placed under the control of Imperial Governor Taliff.
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #5)

• Fitz Roi, a Jatz Musician, has his concert tour nearly dumped by sponsor Flangth-2-Go when he appears on stage as a Jedi Knight during a concert in Camalar on Esseles.
  (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #4)

• Liiria Beldonna founds Beldonna’s Legion.
  (conjecture based on Shadows of the Empire Planet Guide via TimeTales, abridged)

• Alliance activity in Kesh Sector increases.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• In this era, the Battlefield Holographic Control Interface is introduced (albeit briefly) into the Imperial military.
  (conjecture based on the Force Commander)

• An Imperial propaganda campaign convinces the Kubaz that the Rebels are sabotaging their scientific efforts, placing the Kubaz majority firmly in the Imperial camp.
  (conjecture based on Alien Anthology)

• Imperials defeat Alliance forces at the Battle of Thovinack.
  (conjecture based on The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #11 via TimeTales, paraphrased)

• Soon before the Battle of Yavin, the Empire takes over the Cassandran Worlds, splitting the domain into three new political entities: the Cassander Sector (including Cassander AKA Cassander’s Star); the Tadrin Sector (with Garqi included and Minashee as capital); and the Tendrannan Sector (ruled by Isiring and including the half-explored Kalki Nebula). The Tardin Sector will be governed by Luthus Tadrin.
  (conjecture based on Geonosis and the Outer Rim Worlds)

• Around this time, six months before her cousin is captured by Logron while trying to find her, a woman runs afoul of Jabba the Hutt and needs to get away from Tatooine. She is helped by Sona, who is, at this point, still flying the Blue Flare, which will soon be confiscated by Logron.
  (conjecture based on Edge of the Empire: Core Rulebook Introduction)

• BlasTech releases the LBR-9 Stun Rifle, based on the current DL-87 Firespray stun rifle model.*
  (conjecture based on Enter the Unknown)*

*NOTE: According to Enter the Unknown, this happened “recently,” and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting “recently” as just before ANH.
• With the guidance of Lira Hardin and others, the Ferra Sector Shipyard is set up in Xorm's orbit, hidden along the exposed underside of an Acclamator-class cruiser."
  (conjecture based on Friends Like These)*
*NOTE: According to Friends Like These, this happened "recently," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Age of Rebellion product line, I am interpreting "recently" as just before ANH.
• As Reeve Gel Marcolf becomes more paranoid in his rule of Quolas on Arbooine, he begins having ancient statues from the native Sathari culture transformed into statues of himself. This includes the Pillar of the Ancestors."
  (conjecture based on Chronicles of the Gatekeeper)*
*NOTE: According to Chronicles of the Gatekeeper, this happened "recently," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Force and Destiny product line, I am interpreting "recently" as just before ANH.
• Around this time, Cadregg Armory enters the arms manufacturing trade."
  (conjecture based on No Disintegrations)*
*NOTE: According to No Disintegrations, Cadregg Armory is a "newcomer," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting this as starting just before ANH.
• Around this time, Cryospac Repulsorlift Corporation of Seikosha in the Breago System enters the landspeeder market."
  (conjecture based on No Disintegrations)*
*NOTE: According to No Disintegrations, Cryospac is a "newcomer," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting this as starting just before ANH.
• Around this time, Trilon Incorporated releases the Aggressor Assault Fighter."
  (conjecture based on No Disintegrations)*
*NOTE: According to No Disintegrations, the Aggressor is a "relatively new entry into the market," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting this as starting just before ANH. This must mean that the Aggressor used by Bardan Jusik during the Clone Wars is a different type of ship with a similar name, as "relatively new" surely doesn’t mean "20+ years old."
• The health of Empress Teta system Emperor Alor Keto begins to decline."
  (conjecture based on Nexus of Power)*
*NOTE: According to Nexus of Power, this happened "recently," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Force and Destiny product line, I am interpreting "recently" as just before ANH.
• Karflo Corporation begins producing more portable versions of their powerful beamdrills, including their first to hit the market, the G9-GP Pulse Drill."
  (conjecture based on Enter the Unknown)*
*NOTE: According to Enter the Unknown, this happened "recently," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting "recently" as just before ANH.
• CryonCorp releases an updated version of its Ground-Penetrating Sensor Pack (GPSP) that is geared toward scholarly exploration."
  (conjecture based on Enter the Unknown)*
*NOTE: According to Enter the Unknown, this happened "recently," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting "recently" as just before ANH.
• Black Sun operatives overrun the aging extra-galactic observatory known as the Rubicund Eye in the Corellian System. They repel numerous CorSec advances with advanced starfighters, but no one quite knows what motivated them to take over in the first place. CorSec becomes willing to pay good credits to anyone willing to kick Black Sun off the station."
  (conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)*
*NOTE: According to Suns of Fortune, this happened "recently," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting "recently" as just before ANH.
• In the months before the Battle of Yavin, a powerful detachment of Imperial Navy ships takes station around the planet Craeem in the Corellian Sector, likely due to an Imperial research project on the industrial world."
  (conjecture based on Suns of Fortune)*
*NOTE: According to Suns of Fortune, this happened "in recent months," and given the timing of most of the adventures within the Edge of the Empire product line, I am interpreting that as just before ANH.
• Soon before the Battle of Yavin, Rebel pilot Merrick Simms is promoted to the rank of Captain."
  (conjecture based on Rebel Assault Gamebook)*
*NOTE: Rebel Assault has a questionable status in the continuity. According to Leland Chee, some of the story fits, while other elements do not. That makes me wonder if the information in its guide, the Rebel Assault Gamebook, should be taken seriously. For now, we can figure that this information is correct, since the character exists in some of the in-continuity segments.

- The Gyrlica system is the site of Imperial control for surrounding space. The Alliance attack Imperial forces Milvayne to shut down Imperial control in Gyrlica. This attack causes great controversy in the Alliance ranks, causing a split between leaders Mon Mothma and Senator Garm Bel Iblis. Supporting the attack is one of the last acts of Rebellion Bail Organa will contribute.
  (conjecture based on The Last Command Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)
- The Max Rebo Band (still under the name Evar Orbus and His Galactic Wailers) is seen playing on Danuta, as part of their Outer Rim tour.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire via TimeTales, verbatim)
- Jes becomes a Rebel pilot.
  (conjecture based on Soldier for the Empire via TimeTales, paraphrased)
- Imperial survey vessel ISV-7X8 (the Lambda-class The Emperor’s Vision) stumbles across an Alliance safeworld, where a SpecForce team is training. They capture the vessel and submit false reports to make it seem that the ship and its team are still operation normally.
  (conjecture based on Operation: Shell Game)*

*NOTE: This is four months before the Age of Rebellion Beta Rulebook adventure Operation: Shell Game, which I have placed around two months after ANH to run alongside some of the earliest Edge of the Empire RPG scenarios.

- Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, the Illudium Star award is crated by the Rebel Alliance. It is the third highest honor after the Kalidor Crescent and Corellian Cross.
  (conjecture based on Lead by Example)
- Leia Organa’s Gray Flight is redesignated Stealth Squadron.
  (conjecture based on From the Ruins of Alderaan)*

*NOTE: We are given no reason for this change; it simply happens between issues. One could assume that it is because they are no longer a secret squadron. Or perhaps there was no name change, and Gray Flight was part of a larger Stealth Squadron concept at first that just hadn’t been fleshed out by other flights. Or, y’know, the writer just forgot that he had already given it a different name earlier in his own series.

- Dai Danu decides to set up a fortified hideout in the asteroid field known as the Caltrop Belt. To do this, he needs credits and parts, so he spends the next six months taking shipjacking jobs, storing parts from various stolen ships (before handing them off to associates) on Elrood.
  (conjecture based on Company Man)*

*NOTE: This assumes that Company Man is around 35:6 and that he sets up defenses at the Caltrop Belt hideout around 35:5. This is six months before that, in 34:11.

- Imperial forces have discovered dissent on the planet Agamar. Focusing their ire on the settlement of Tondatha, they bring their might down on the settlement. Many die, but those who survive have seen the true face of the cruel Empire. One of those survivors is Keyan Farlander, who has just lost his parents and had to send his injured (burned) sister Kitha to Oorn Tchis to be treated, though she may never recover. Keyan’s heart begins to burn with a rebellious fire . . . (To be continued below . . .)

  *(The Farlander Papers)

*NOTE: I’m listing this story under the title of the novella that was expanded upon in the X-wing Official Strategy Guide to create an overall fiction story to go with the game strategies. Most of the events, though, were originally covered in the X-wing computer game. (It’s just easier to merge the story and present it as one tale, rather than trying to split it up, which would get really, really ugly.)

- On Sulon, Morgan Katarn is inspecting his fields when an Imperial force, made to look like Rebels, decimates his home, nearly destroying it. Morgan meets up with several of the other settlers and Rebels in the settlement, knowing that the Empire’s next target will be their G-Tap, a system they were hoping would allow them to be free of Imperial influence. A second assault wave of Imperials, again disguised as Rebels, strikes the community. Among the Rebels killed in the assault is Candice Ondi, who has been helping to report new of Imperial atrocities, and whose droid, A-Cee, has captured much of the attack on video. Katarn is captured along with several of the other Rebel leaders and brought before the Imperials who orchestrated the assault. They are the Dark Jedi Jerec and the captain of Jerec’s vessel, the Vengeance, an alien known as Thrawn. Jerec wanted Morgan Katarn alive in hopes that he would give up other members of the Rebel Alliance, but when Morgan refuses to cooperate, Jerec beheads him and orders that his head be put on display on a pike at Sulon’s spaceport. district. Meanwhile, on an asteroid named AX-456, Morgan’s son, Kyle Katarn, is undergoing his last stormtrooper cadet mission before graduation, his Omega Exercise. During the mission, Kyle leads Imperial stormtroopers in a raid on a Rebel relay station on the asteroid. Even when most of his troops are killed and Rebels are being slaughtered left and right, Kyle grants mercy upon a group of surrendering Rebels—a group which happens to include a Rebel agent named Jan Ors, whose presence sparks something in Kyle, possibly through the Force. In a sense, the mission is a disaster, with bodies everywhere, but it is also a triumph for Kyle, who has survived his first real command mission. A few days later, Kyle and his classmates graduate from the Caridian Military Academy known as Cliffside. During the ceremony, Kyle receives the Imperial Medal of Valor and is personally congratulated by Jerec himself. The celebration is short-lived, though, as Kyle soon receives word of his father’s death, supposedly at Rebel hands. Kyle soon departs from Carida on his way to his first assignment. He travels on the Star of Empire, where he runs into classmate Nathan Donar and his parents. Nathan’s father, Dol Donar II, is governor of Derra IV, and he invites Kyle to dinner. During the dinner, Donar mentions that the Rebel Alliance will soon be paying dearly for the deaths of innocents like Morgan Katarn. While Donar goes off to play sabacc with Lando Calrissian, Kyle wanders the ship and notices Jan Ors. He follows her, wanting to talk to her about AX-456. When he finds her, she and her Rebel comrades capture him, but allow him to meet with Jan in a public place to discuss matters. It is during this meeting that Jan hears of Kyle’s father and introduces Kyle to A-Cee. The droid plays back footage from Sulton, proving that it was the Empire who killed Morgan, and that Morgan had been with the Rebels. Kyle destroys his Metal of Valor. A Rebel has been born. Kyle agrees to leave with the Rebels at the next stop-off point to join the Alliance. Before they reach that point, though, a bounty hunter named Slyder hears of the Rebels’ presence and Kyle’s intended defection. He alerts Donar, who attempts to have his people capture the Rebels. The Rebels are forced to make a quick getaway from the Star of Empire . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Soldier for the Empire)

- On Coruscant, Rianna Saren, a mercenary, is contacted by new Rebel agent Kyle Katarn (or, perhaps Kyle is not quite a Rebel agent yet, but contacts her on behalf of the Alliance as a favor to Jan Ors before he meets Mon Mothma). She is hired to break into a Black Sun warehouse nearby to destroy a Black Sun shipment. She does so, but is briefly captured by Black Sun. Luckily, a blaster shot has freed the captive droid Z-58-0 (Zeeo), who then saves Rianna. The two become somewhat reluctant partners. When Leia Organa suggests that they are not safe now on Coruscant, Rianna accepts a mission from Leia to go to Alderaan and destroy a Black Sun ship there as well. She and Zeeo head for Alderaan, where they sneak through an Imperial installation to get to the Black Sun ship, only to find that Black Sun is testing drugs on Imperial scientists, possibly to create slaves that are easier to control. They face off with Slak Sagar, a Black Sun agent that works for Zarien Kheev (the man who once owned Rianna and severed one of her lekku before she could escape him later). She kills him, but they know the location of the Black Sun shipments: Mustafar. Rianna heads for Mustafar (under orders from Leia, after she volunteers, hoping to find and take down Kheev), where she (with the aid of slave Wookiees) destroys the facility with its own drill. (The facility was developing Mirkanite which is used in the Death Star’s construction). She learns, though, that Kheev is already heading for Tatooine. She and Zeeo make their way there, but they are shot down by Boba Fett, working for Black Sun (apparently). They find Sedriss (an agent of Kheev) and take him down, learning where Kheev can be found. When they confront him, though, he sends a rancor against them and captures them. Rianna finds herself a captive on the Imperial prison world Despayre with Zeeo gone. She breaks out of her cell, eventually freeing Zeeo from a trash heap. They see the Death Star being constructed in the distance near Despayre and, having learned that Kheev is there, they stow their way to the Death Star. Once there, she sneaks around and overhears Darth Vader and Kheev discussing part of the Death Star plans that Kheev is to carry to have secured on Danuta. Rianna then witnesses the Death Star destroy Despayre. She informs Leia Organa of this, which confirms the station’s destructive power. They sneak away from the Death Star, following Zarien Kheev to Danuta, where she confronts and kills her former master near an Imperial facility, finding the Death Star plans that Vader had sent him with on his body and getting them into the system so that Kyle Katarn, who is on his way to steal them, can retrieve them and bring them to the Alliance.*

(Lethal Alliance)

*NOTE: Kyle’s appearance in this story is odd, given that he is not technically a Rebel agent yet, according to Soldier for the Empire, and he appears in his bearded form, whereas he would have been clean-shaven at this time, as seen in Dark Forces. As for the summary, it is intentionally a bit vague because the two versions of the game (Nintendo DS and Sony PSP) are somewhat different in their gameplay and missions, but similar in their overall storyline.

- Kyle Katarn is brought by Jan Ors to meet Rebel leader Mon Mothma. Mon Mothma has a mission for Kyle. He can prove his worth to the Alliance to undertaking a mission to the planet Danuta. The Rebel Alliance has learned (via various sources, including Rianna Saren) of the construction of the Death Star. Part of the station’s research (specifically, it seems, on superlaser parts) was carried out on Danuta, and Mon Mothma hopes that while a mission being carried out on Toprawa will be successful in stealing a set of plans there, that Kyle can succeed on Danuta in stealing a second set of plans, which, when combined with the Toprawa set, will make a far more complete schematic of the station. Kyle agrees, but lies to Mon Mothma when asked if he recognizes a man (his old roommate, Meck Odom) in a video from the Imperial base. Kyle is assigned the Moldy Crow and sets out for Danuta, followed by Jan, who has been sent to keep an eye on him, and kill him if he turns out to be an Imperial spy. On Danuta, Kyle lays the foundation for his infiltration, which includes speaking with Meck. He appeals to Meck’s religious beliefs and convinces the Imperial to help Kyle enter the facility. A short time later, as Jan lays down covering fire aboard the Crow, Kyle infiltrates the facility. He makes it look like Meck was trying to stop him, wounding his old friend, before stealing the matrix containing the plans and escaping to the roof, where Jan picks him up and carries him to safety. The first mission to steal Death Star plans has been a success. This set of plans will be forwarded along to the Tantive IV, where they will be merged with the plans from the Toprawa mission. (To be continued below . . .)

(Soldier for the Empire and Dark Forces)

*NOTE: Allow me to take this moment to comment on the various “steal the Death Star plans” missions. At present, there are at least three different stories that involve the plans being stolen. We have the Toprawa mission, the Danuta mission, and the Interlude at Darkknell story. The bad news is that this has led many fans to believe that the continuity is constantly being mucked up in this area. The good news is that, upon closer observation, everything does iron itself out. For the record, according to the Bel Iblis story, Bel Iblis is carrying information that has to do with the location of the Death Star, presumably the first mention that the station has been completed at Despayre. These were not the “Death Star plans,” as we commonly refer to them. The primary mission to get the plans was the mission to Toprawa, Operation: Skyhook. This mission was led by Bria Tharen and succeeded with great loss of life. According to Dark Forces: Soldier for the Empire, the plans on Toprawa included “hull design” and “life support infrastructure.” According to Mon Mothma, in the same graphic novel, the plans on Danuta included “additional engineering schematics” and possibly “a complete map to the offensive and defensive weapons emplacements.” As Mon Mothma mentions, “we need both sets to ensure success.” It was this need for the Danuta set that led to Kyle Katarn’s mission to Danuta. So, technically, there were two missions, not three as some have surmised based on TTFNR, and the missions were not fully redundant, but missions to take two different types of plans which, together, yielded the necessary information to stop the battle station. Which plans did Leia have? Those were the Toprawa plans. If we are to take Dodonna’s words literally, that the weakness of the thermal exhaust port was found via “an analysis of the plans provided by Princess Leia,” then we can assume that Kyle’s plans were combined with Leia’s, but it was the set from Toprawa that, as we later hear over and over again, led to the station’s destruction. So, it’s not the convoluted mess that it looks like, now is it? I could also be remiss if I didn’t note, at the suggestion of longtime reader Andrew Nagy, that the opening crawl to the Dark Forces game says that Kyle was a mercenary for a while before the first level of the game, which has been overwritten by LFL decree after the printing of Soldier for the Empire.

- Drunken musician Fitz Roi unleashes a barrage of fire from his famous antique projectile pistols before a concert in the Crystal Room on Rimma. His actions damage several artifacts, causing him to be deported before the concert can take place, leading to rioting by fans. (Exact date of report via TriNebulon News: 35:1:22) (conjecture based on Galaxywide News Nets supplement in The Official Star Wars Adventure Journal #3)

- Morena Mylls of Sienar Fleet Systems witnesses a Kubaz colony forcibly relocated to make way for a new Sienar facility. This pushes her to finally take a stand against corporate injustices. She gathers technology to hide her identity and begins preying on corrupt corporate leaders, mostly on Coruscant. The media begins calling her “the Mynock.”*
Imperial Lieutenant Win Barezz begins serving as the spaceport officer on Ord Mantell.

NOTE: This is "a few months" before Hero of the People.

With the Death Star plans stolen (the Kyle Katarn set from Danuta, apparently, since we see Vader head straight after the plans from Toprawa in the Radio Drama of ANH), Darth Vader receives word that Rebels may have taken them to an Outer Rim moon to pass them to another courier. Heeding this information, Vader takes a shuttle and a group of stormtroopers to the moon to either find the Rebels and the plans or confirm with absolutely certainty that the lead was false. The moon is strong in the Dark Side, and Vader senses a presence he can't yet place. As Vader enters a fortress on the moon, his stormtroopers (minus the two at his side) are murdered by a lightsaber-wielding assailant. Inside the fortress, Vader's stormtroopers are choked by the Dark Side, but not by Vader. Vader turns to see their killers, three Dark Side adherents who have discovered the secrets of the Sith. They believe Vader has too much of his past as a Jedi still within him and believe that he is not worthy of being Darth Sidious' apprentice. They have lured Vader here using false information about Rebel activity to bring him face-to-face with Darth Maul. Maul, who killed the stormtroopers outside, has been re-created by the Sith arts by the three outcast Darksiders in their hopes of having Maul replace Vader as Sidious' apprentice once again, and, presumably, to gain themselves standing with the Sith Lords. Vader battles the Maul Clone or Maul Reborn, whatever one might call him, being taunted all the while. Finally, when it seems Vader is about to be defeated, he pulls his lightsaber to him and ignites it, cutting through his own metal body into Maul behind him. Darth Maul is dead once again. Before Vader can kill the three Darksiders, Darth Sidious (Palpatine) appears and hits them all with Force lightning. He says that Vader has done well and denies any knowledge of the test the Darksiders had planned for him. He and Vader leave the moon, and the hunt for the Death Star plans continues.*

(Resurrection)

NOTE: This story appears in Star Wars Tales #9, which, as always, bears the Infinities logo. In most cases, it is obvious if a story in Tales is meant to be C-Canon or N-Canon, but this one is an interesting case. Nothing in the story actually contradicts the Official Continuity, and it even sort of helps add to Vader's Sith "tests," just as we learned of Maul's tests in the Darth Maul Journal. On the other hand, this was always used as a good example of the fun stuff Infinities can allow to happen. So, I include it here because there's an off chance that it might be able to be C-Canon somehow, but it is most likely just a really well-done N-Canon story, unfortunately.

Sometime shortly before the Battle of Yavin, pilot Zal Artha, a native of Chandrila and graduate of the Imperial Naval Academy, is frustrated that Imperial sexism has left her with a rather easy shuttle piloting post. When she raises her frustrations to the senator she is ferrying, Mon Mothma, she learns that this is because Imperial Naval Command suspects that Zal has Rebel sympathies due to her Chandrilan upbringing. She decides to prove the Imperials right and defects to the Rebel Alliance, joining the Soaring Dactillions starfighter squadron. She is soon piloting an X-wing with the squadron. When the squadron is partly destroyed during a raid on the Fondor shipyards, they are reassigned to be test pilots for prototype A-wing starfighters at an on Cardoone. Just a week after Zal is posted on Cardoone, the A-wing operation is attacked by Imperials. Tendaar Bel randomizes starfighterIFF's in bid-battle, creating enough confusion for the A-wings to win the day. He is assigned to Alliance Special Operations as a result. Zal is one of only two Soaring Dactillions to survive the fierce battle, and she requests (and receives) her own transfer to Special Operations.

* (conjecture based on Age of Rebellion: Beginner Game: Tendaar Character Folio and Zal Character Folio)

Three months after the death of Keyan Farlander's parents on Agamar, Keyan finally makes contact with the local Resistance. When the Resistance is visited by Mon Mothma of the newly-formed Rebel Alliance, Keyan sees his opportunity to strike back against the Empire. He joins up and is among a larger group of starfighter pilot candidates taken aboard the Independence. Once there, Keyan trains under Lt. Hamo Blastwell and Commander Dafid. He trains on simulators first, as is custom, including flying historical combat scenarios, one of which is based on a mission flown by Halley Kadorto, whom he meets after a particular training session. Soon, pilots are needed to fill slots in a mission in the Hadar sector. Keyan is tapped to join the mission as an X-wing pilot. They are to protect Rebel agents as a Storm Unit gets aboard the Imperial vessel Talon to capture Imperial officers and data. While he is supposed to just fly along on the mission, he eventually has to aid the Storm Unit itself aboard the Talon, requiring him to dock with the vessel and go in on foot with his astromech. He discovers an Imperial officer destroying data, but mistakes the Imperial’s blaster aim as being toward him, so he kills the officer. The data he captures, though, will be valuable to the Rebellion. He escapes with his life and earns a promotion from Cadet to Lieutenant. Later, he is called to meet with Dafid and Lt. Commander Legrane, who note that he has a new mission coming up, and it seems that General Jan Dodonna has taken a personal interest in Keyan. In a briefing by Commander S’man, a close friend of Dodonna, they are told of six current Rebel goals: intercept Imperial convoys to determine where the next major Imperial counter-strike will take place; evacuate the Rebel base at Briggia soon; use their own strikes to postpone the Imperial counter-strike; capture military supplies; seek new allies; and seize targets of opportunity. After a quick hit-and-fade mission, Keyan is sent (based on information from an Imperial defector named Captain Nogdra of the Corvette Bixby) to Dellalt, where he discovers Imperial starships in the area. Upon his return, they are soon told that the Imperial counter-strike is called “Operation Strike Fear” and is to make its first target Briggia! The Rebels must evacuate ahead of schedule. After the evacuation, carried out amid an Imperial assault, Keyan is ready for downtime. He learns that his fellow Agamarians, Breth Gart and Ndranth Poussan are gone (Gart washed out due to disorientation from a disease, while Poussan was killed during the evacuation). He does learn, on the plus side, that Agamarian Resistance leader Sunnar Jan-lo is now a pilot too. After another strike at the Imperials, Keyan is to go on recon, but finds that there are no R2 units to go in his X-wing. Thus, he instead takes an R-22 Spearhead out and captures a ship full of R2 units. Unfortunately, when a group of pilots, including Blastwell, use the R2 units on a mission, their ships start to run out of control, thanks to the R2 units being sabotaged. Once Keyan saves Blastwell and the others, they have some down time before Keyan and Blastwell are called to S’man, who gives Keyan a new mission. He is to go to Sullust and save Sullustan prisoners from being taken from the surface to an Imperial frigate in orbit. Upon saving them, Keyan waits, as the Sullustans and Rebel High Command engage in negotiations to bring Sullust fully into the Rebel Alliance. Finally, a summit is arranged. During the summit, Imperials attack, but Rebel starfighters drive them off. Unfortunately, this was just a diversion, and now an important Sullustan leader has been captured. Keyan leads a mission that recovers the captive, earning the Rebels a valuable ally and earning Keyan the rank of Captain. During the celebration of his new rank, Gart is back (though not a pilot still), as is Lynia, a woman who was there when he was recruited, whom he seems to fancy. A short while later, the Rebels learn that the Imperials have a new large explosive device, which they think they could use against a Star Destroyer if they could get their hands on it. Keyan leads a successful mission to capture the new warhead, then uses it to destroy the Imperial Star Destroyer Invincible (an apt name, right?), but despite the success, all is not well. Upon his return, he receives a month-old communiqué from his aunt and uncle, telling him that his sister is not responding to treatments for her severe burns during the attack on Agamar. A short time later, with the recent end of Operation Strike Fear, thanks to Keyan and his fellow pilots destroying the Invincible, a major victory has been won against the Empire, but Admiral Ackbar briefly briefs the pilots on the Independence with dire news of the Empire creating a superweapon. They must be constantly on guard . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(The Farlander Papers)*

*NOTE: I’m listing this story under the title of the novella that was expanded upon in the X-wing Official Strategy Guide to create an overall fiction story to go with the game strategies. Most of the events, though, were originally covered in the X-wing computer game. (It’s just easier to merge the story and present it as one tale, rather than trying to split it up, which would get really, really ugly.)

X-wing Miniatures Game (miniatures game series: Fantasy Flight Games)
Imperial Raider Expansion Set Mission Booklet (miniatures game: Fantasy Flight Games)
The Will of the Empire

Empire at War (video game: LucasArts)
Rebel Campaign
Kashyyyk Tutorial
Imperial Campaign
  Ryloth Tutorial
  Taking Thyferra
  The Pirate Menace
  Subjugating Geonosis
  Attack on Mon Calamari
Rebel Campaign
  Shipyard Diversion
  Interpreting the Network
  Theft of the X-wing
  Kessel Rescue
  Imperial Liberation
Imperial Campaign [continued]
  Trouble on Kashyyyk
Rebel Campaign [continued]
  Highest Bidder
  Rescue the Millennium Falcon
  Needle in a Haystack
  Borrowed Time
  Handle with Care
  The Defense of Mon Calamari
Imperial Campaign [continued]
  A New Weapon of War
  The Rebel Fortress
  The Traitorous Moff
Blood Ties [continued] (comic series: Tom Taylor)
  Boba Fett is Dead, Part I (comic: Tom Taylor)
  Boba Fett is Dead, Part II (comic: Tom Taylor)
  Boba Fett is Dead, Part III (comic: Tom Taylor)
  Boba Fett is Dead, Part IV (comic: Tom Taylor)
The Essential Atlas (essential guide: Jason Fry & Dan Wallace)
  The Essential Atlas (essential guide: Jason Fry & Dan Wallace)
  The Political Galaxy
    A Spacer’s Life – BoSS and the ImPeRe
Jabba the Hutt: The Art of the Deal (comic series: Jim Woodring)
  The Gaar Suppoon Hit (comic: Jim Woodring)
  The Hunger of Princess Nampi (comic: Jim Woodring)
  The Dynasty Trap (comic: Jim Woodring)
  Betrayal (comic: Jim Woodring)
  Distant Thunder (video game cutscene series: LucasArts)
    Birth (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Memories (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Failure (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Precursors (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Dreams (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Broken (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Freedom (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    The Body (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    Pride (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
    The Final Test (video game cutscene: LucasArts)
The Force Unleashed II (novel: Sean Williams)
Cato Neimoidia
Revolution
  Chapters 1 – 6
Revelation
  Chapters 7 – 15
Retribution
  Chapters 16 – 27
Kamino
The Force Unleashed II (comic: Haden Blackman)
The Force Unleashed II (video game: LucasArts)
The Saga Continues
Kamino
  The Escape
Flight From Kamino
Cato Neimoidia
  The Eastern Arch
Public Transportation
Cato Neimoidia [continued]
  The Western Arch
The Giant
Cato Neimoidia [continued]
  The Tarko-se Arena
A Close Call
Dagobah
The Cave of Evil
The Salvation
  Aboard the Salvation
The Battle Over Kamino
The Salvation [continued]
  The Battle for the Salvation
Desperate Measures
Kamino
  The Return
  The Confrontation
The Sith Lord Defeated
The Force Unleashed II (video game: Red Fly)
Kamino
  Awakening
  Escape
Cato Neimoidia
  City of Bridges
  Tarko-se Casino
  Baron Tarko’s Palace
  The Pet
Dagobah
  A Watcher
The Salvation
  Blackout
  The Chase
  Hunting the Hunter
  Battle Within
Into the Fray
  Springing the Trap
  Holding It Together
Return to Kamino
  Homecoming
Salvation Bridge
The Capacitor Core
Destined Ascent

The Force Unleashed II (video game: LucasArts Singapore)
Kamino Escape
Rescue on Cato Neimoidia
Rage of the Gorog
Rendezvous with Salvation
Salvation’s Sacrifice
Downfall on Kamino
The Dark Lord Awaits

Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope [continued] (RPG: Grant Boucher & Paul Sudlow)

Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope [continued] (RPG: Grant Boucher & Paul Sudlow)
One That Got Away
Camie’s Story [flashback]

Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)

Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: N-Space)
Act II
Desolation Station
Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: Rebellion)
The Dark Times
Death Star

Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: N-Space)
Act II [continued]
Desolation Station [continued]

Star Wars Pop-Up Books (pop-up book series: Kevin J. Anderson & Rebecca Moesta & Ken Steacy & Kay Carroll & John Whitman & Unknown)
The Mos Eisley Cantina Pop-Up Book (pop-up book: Kevin J. Anderson & Rebecca Moesta)

Crucible! (comic: Archie Goodwin & Chris Claremont)

Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
Chapter 5

Darklighter Collection [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
Darklighter (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
Darklighter, Part I (comic: Paul Chadwick)

Biggs Darklighter: Blaze of Glory (canceled comic: Andy Mangels)*
Biggs Darklighter: Blaze of Glory (canceled comic: Andy Mangels)*

*NOTE: This story never came to exist, however one might assume that the story was told in a more expanded form in the Darklighter storyline in Empire. Consider it historical curiosity.

Darklighter Collection [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
The Short, Happy Life of Roons Sewell, Part II [flashback] [continued] (comic: Paul Chadwick)

Strongholds of Resistance (RPG: Fantasy Flight Games)
Strongholds of Resistance (RPG: Fantasy Flight Games)
Hidden Bases
Defiant Core Base
Plot Hooks and Alternate Storyline Ideas
Family History
Limping Lady (CM64 RPG short story: Peter Schweighofer)
Limping Lady (CM64 RPG short story: Peter Schweighofer)
Early Victories Omnibus [continued] (comic series: Ryder Windham & Bruce Jones & Louise Simonson & Terry Austin & Darko Macan)
  Tales From Mos Eisley [continued] (comic: Bruce Jones)
    Mostly Automatic [flashback] [continued]
Rendezvous at Ord Mantell (G1 short story: Andy Collins)
Rendezvous at Ord Mantell (G1 short story: Andy Collins)
  A Fateful Meeting
  Interrupted!
  Into the Wilderness
  The Crash Site
  The Sunken Mesa
  The Leader Returns
  Aftermath
When the Desert Wind Turns: The Stormtrooper's Tale (TFTMEC short story: Doug Beason)
When the Desert Wind Turns: The Stormtrooper's Tale (TFTMEC short story: Doug Beason)
Lives & Adventures [continued] (youth novel series: Ryder Windham)
  Chapter 6
The Illustrated Star Wars Universe [continued] (book: Kevin J. Anderson)
The Illustrated Star Wars Universe [continued] (book: Kevin J. Anderson)
  Tatooine Entry
  NOTE: The three stories in this article aren't even remotely connected, aside from being in the same AJ article. The placement here assumes that all stories happened at the same time, and that the Captain Antilles mentioned is Raymus Antilles, thus making this story necessarily take place prior to ANH.
“Princess Leia Novel” (canceled novel: Leigh Brackett)*
  “Princess Leia Novel” (canceled novel: Leigh Brackett)*
  NOTE: This novel never came to be, due, in part, to Leigh Brackett’s death. Consider it historical curiosity.
Love is a Warm Blaster (canceled AJ short story: Paul Danner)*
Love is a Warm Blaster (canceled AJ short story: Paul Danner)*
  NOTE: This short story never came to be. Consider it historical curiosity. Somehow, at one point, spell checking ended up changing this title to “Love is Warm Butter.” My thanks go to Brad Berger for noticing this and making me aware that it needed to be fixed.
Just Business (canceled AJ short story: Paul Danner)*
Just Business (canceled AJ short story: Paul Danner)*
  NOTE: This short story never came to be. Consider it historical curiosity.
The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  The Queen of the Empire
    Interlude 2: Somewhere between the Corporate Sector and the Tion Hegemony
The Han Solo Adventures [continued] (novel trilogy: Brian Daley)
Han Solo and the Lost Legacy (novel: Brian Daley)
  Chapters 1 – 16
Star Wars Adventures [continued] (comic series: Jeremy Barlow & Tom Taylor & Chris Cerasi)
  Han Solo and the Hollow Moon of Khorya (comic: Jeremy Barlow)
Maze Run (SW131/DRS13 short story: David J. Williams & Mark S. Williams)
Maze Run (SW131/DRS13 short story: David J. Williams & Mark S. Williams)
Death Troopers (novel: Joe Schreiber)
Death Troopers (novel: Joe Schreiber)
   Purge
   Meat Nest
   Where the Bad Air Goes
   Medbay
   Word
   Dead Boys Destroyer
   Lung Windows
   Descent
   Triage
   Red Map
   Big Midnight
   Molecules
   Bubble
   VHB
   In the Cage
   Tisa
   Solitary
   Pod
   Lifeday
   They Woke Up
   Bulkhead
   Inside
   Futureproof
   Deadlights
   Army of Last Things
   Say it Three Times
   Things You Don’t Forget
   Sine
   Black Tank Blues
   Coffin Jockeys
   Hate Trip
   Catwalk
   Skin Hill
   The Whole Sick Crew
   Lab Rat
   Lifter
   Bridge
   Stop
   Awakening
   Blackwing
   River
   Death and All His Friends
   Freebird
   Epilogue

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
   Offers and Refusals
   Interlude 3: Kashyyyk, on the way back from the Corporate Sector…

The Adventures of Dannen Lifehold (AJ/SWH short stories: Dave Marron)
Breaking Free (AJ1/SWH short story: Dave Marron)
Battlefront [continued] (video game series: LucasArts & Rebellion & N-Space & THQ)
Elite Squadron [continued] (video game: N-Space)
   Act II [continued]
   Geonosis
Boba Fett Omnibus (comic series: John Wagner & Mike Kennedy & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews & Andy Mangels)
Boba Fett: Enemy of the Empire (comic series: John Wagner)
  - Enemy of the Empire, Part I (comic: John Wagner)
  - Enemy of the Empire, Part II (comic: John Wagner)
  - Enemy of the Empire, Part III (comic: John Wagner)
  - Enemy of the Empire, Part IV (comic: John Wagner)

Prey (SWT11 short story: Kia Asamiya)
Prey (SWT11 short story: Kia Asamiya)

Shadow Games (novel: Michael Reaves & Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff)
Shadow Games (novel: Michael Reaves & Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff)
  - Chapters 1 – 33

The Art of the Bad Deal (comic: Zack Whedon)
The Art of the Bad Deal (comic: Zack Whedon)

Way of the Wookiee! (MIBSW1 short story: Archie Goodwin)
Way of the Wookiee! (MIBSW1 short story: Archie Goodwin)

Adventures in Hyperspace (youth novel series: Ryder Windham) Fire Ring Race (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  - Chapters 1 – 10
Shinbone Showdown (youth novel: Ryder Windham)
  - Chapters 1 – 10
The Big Switch (canceled youth novel: Ryder Windham)

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  - What Goes Around . . .
  - Death Challenge
  - Ice . . .
  - and Fire

Empire [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie & Randy Stradley & John Wagner & Paul Chadwick & Paul Alden & Jeremy Barlow & Welles Hartley & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews & John Jackson Miller)
Darklighter Collection [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
  - Darklighter [continued] (comic series: Paul Chadwick)
    - Darklighter, Part I [continued] (comic: Paul Chadwick)
    - Darklighter, Part II (comic: Paul Chadwick)

Extinction (SWT1/SWT2 short stories: Ron Marz)
Extinction, Part One (SWT1 short story: Ron Marz)
Extinction, Part Two (SWT2 short story: Ron Marz)

Ringers (AJ6/SWH short story: Laurie Burns)
Ringers (AJ6/SWH short story: Laurie Burns)

When the Desert Wind Turns: The Stormtrooper’s Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: Doug Beason)
When the Desert Wind Turns: The Stormtrooper’s Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: Doug Beason)

X-wing (video game series: Rusel DeMaria & LucasArts)
The Farlander Papers (video game: Rusel DeMaria & LucasArts)
Farlander’s Story
  - The Sentence

Dark Forces Trilogy [continued] (graphic novel trilogy: William C. Dietz)
Soldier for the Empire (graphic novel: William C. Dietz)
  - Chapters 1 – 5
  - Dark Forces Audio Dramatizations [continued] (audio drama series: John Whitman)
Soldier for the Empire (audio drama: John Whitman)

Kyle Katarn’s Tale (miniatures game: Abel Pena)
Kyle Katarn’s Tale (miniatures game: Abel Pena)
Mission 1

Lethal Alliance (video game: LucasArts)
Lethal Alliance (video game: LucasArts)

Dark Forces Trilogy [continued] (graphic novel trilogy: William C. Dietz)
Soldier for the Empire [continued] (graphic novel: William C. Dietz)
  Chapter 5 [continued]
  Chapters 6 – 7
  Dark Forces Audio Dramatizations [continued] (audio drama series: John Whitman)
  Soldier for the Empire [continued] (audio drama: John Whitman)

The Dark Forces Cycle (video game series: Justin Chin & Stephen R. Show & LucasArts)
Dark Forces (video game: Justin Chin)
  Secret Base
    Cutscene I
    Prologue Mission I: The Death Star Plans--"Operation Skyhook: Phase 2"
  Kyle Katarn's Tale [continued] (miniatures game: Abel Pena)
    Kyle Katarn's Tale [continued] (miniatures game: Abel Pena)
    Mission 2

Resurrection (SWT9 short story: Ron Marz)*
  Resurrection (SWT9 short story: Ron Marz)*
  *NOTE: See note with summary above.

X-wing [continued] (video game series: Rusel DeMaria & LucasArts)
The Farlander Papers [continued] (video game: Rusel DeMaria & LucasArts)
  Farlander's Story [continued]
    The Aftermath
    The Speech
    Did You Know . . .
    The End of the Republic
    Let Me Tell You About the Resistance
    Now is the Time of the Alliance

A Call to Reason
  Your Friends . . . and Foes
    Mon Mothma
    Viceroy Bail Organa
    Admiral Ackbar
    General Crix Madine
    Obi-Wan Kenobi
    Palpatine
    Crimes of the Emperor (A Partial List)
    Darth Vader
    Grand Moff Tarkin
    Jabba the Hutt
    Boba Fett

List of Key Worlds
  Alderaan
  Mantooine
  The Corellian System
  Ghormar
  Calamari

End Racism--We're All in it Together
  Know Your Allies
    Gamorrean
    Ithorian
    Mon Calamari
    Quarren
    Sullustan
Twi'lek
Wookiee

The Problem of Droid Abuse

Early Training
The Starfighter Pilot's Handbook

What is the Rebel Alliance?
Get to Know the Alliance Fleet Command
Starfighter Command
Special Forces Command
Sector Command
Fleet Intelligence
Ordinance and Supply
Support Services

Qualifying as a Starfighter Pilot
So you want to be a starfighter pilot?
Step One: The Pilot's Proving Ground
Step Two: Combat Simulation Training Combat Ranks
Medals and Awards
Flight Badges
Battle Patches
Combat Awards (Tour of Duty)
First Tour: The Corellian Cross
Second Tour: The Mantooine Medallion
Third Tour: The Star of Alderaan
The Kalidor Crescent

Starfighter Systems and Basic Tactics
Introduction
Power Systems
Flight Control
Sensor Systems
Weapons
Targeting Systems
Defense Systems
Navigation
Damage Control Systems
Communication
Life Support
Standard Operational Directives

Starfighter Combat

Situational Awareness and Energy Management
Situational Awareness and the Combat
Multiview Display (CMD)
Energy Management and the ELS Display
Basic Energy Configurations
Normal Maintenance
Speed
Normal Attack
Speed Attack
Slow Down

Weapons, Targets, and Firing Configurations
Homing Projectiles
Cannons

General Notes on Combat
The Principles of War
Communications in Battle
Mission Start
Special Characteristics of Alliance Starfighters
- X-wing
- A-wing
- Y-wing

Special Characteristics of Imperial Starfighter
- TIE Fighter
- TIE Bomber
- TIE Interceptor
- TIE Advanced
- Assault Gunboat
- Imperial Troop Transport
- Imperial Shuttle

Special Characteristics of Various Starships
- Corellian Corvette
- Nebulon B Class Frigate
- MC-80 Class Star Cruiser
- Imperial Class Star Destroyer

The Pilot Proving Ground (The Maze)
Rebel Proving Ground

X-wing
- Level One
- Level Two
- Level Three
- Level Four
- Level Five
- Level Six
- Level Seven
- Level Eight

Y-wing
- Level One
- Level Two
- Level Three
- Level Four
- Level Five
- Level Six
- Level Seven
- Level Eight

A-wing
- Level One
- Level Two
- Level Three
- Level Four
- Level Five
- Level Six
- Level Seven
- Level Eight

B-wing
- Level One
- Level Two
- Level Three
- Level Four
- Level Five
- Level Six
- Level Seven
Level Eight
Historical Combat Missions
Historical Combat Training
Historical Missions
X-wing Missions
Dev’s Sidestep
Wingmen are Important
Satellites Near Coruscant
Beat the Odds
Rescue at Mon Calamari
Historical Combat Missions [continued]
  Meeting Halley Kadorto
  My First Mission
Historical Missions [continued]
X-wing Missions [continued]
  Farlander’s First Mission
Y-wing Missions
  Commerce Raid
  Y-wing Gunnery Practice
  S.O.S. from Corvette Karinne
  Prisoners from Kessel
  Escape from Mytus VII
  Interception and Capture
A-wing Missions
  Repair Depot Raid
  Aggressor Squadron Training
  Intercept TIE Bomber Run
  Attack on Freighters
  Protect Rebel Starfighters
  Deep Space Reconnaissance

Tours of Duty
A New Ally
  Destroy Imperial Convoy
  Transcript of Interview with Captain Nogdra of the Imperial Corvette Bixby
  ID Recon Mission
  Fly Point During Evacuation of Brigia
  Protect Medical Frigate
  Ambush Imperial Supply Convoy
  Raid for R2 Units
  Recover Stolen X-wings
  Rescue Sullustan Tech Staff
  Diplomatic Summit at Sullust
  Rescue Sullustan Leader
  Capture Staff from Cygnus Recover Explosive Warhead

52 Days BBY
- When one of moisture farmer Ariq Joanson’s vaporators is attacked by Tusken Raiders, he gives them a gift of water, which begins a practice of giving the Sandpeople water from that vaporator in return for personal peace with them. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Drawing the Maps of Peace: The Moisture Farmer’s Tale)

NOTE: This event is 50 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).
Day 1: A New Calendar

51 Days BBY

- Ariq Joanson goes out to his farthest vaporator and, while thinking about the Jawas and Sandpeople, creates a map which divides the area into human, Jawa, and Tusken Raider areas. He decides to try to use this map to create peace among the species. (To be continued below . . . )

*NOTE: This event is 49 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).

Day 1: A New Calendar

49 Days BBY

- Ariq Joanson takes his map to the Jawas led by Wimateeka and proposes its usage to create peace among the moisture farmers, Jawas, and Tusken Raiders. Wimateeka considers the plan, and, after teaching Ariq a Tusken Raider greeting, agrees to the proposal (after a minor territory revision). (To be continued below . . . )

*NOTE: This event is 50 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).

Day 3: In the Jawa Fortress

47 Days BBY

- Ariq Joanson and his friend Eyvind (who is against his peace plan) wait for the Tusken Raiders at Ariq’s moisture vaporator and issue the greeting Wimateeka taught Ariq. Ariq hopes this is the first step to negotiations. (To be continued below . . . )

*NOTE: This event is 50 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).

Day 5: A Greeting

47 – 37 Days BBY

- Around this time, Boba Fett kills Eanjer Kunarazti on Wukkar, and his body is found by Iltarr City police. Boba will take on Eanjer’s identity three weeks later to bait Han Solo and Lando Calrissian into an operation that will get Boba close enough to Black Sun Vigo Qazadi to kill him for Jabba the Hutt.

(conjecture based on Scoundrels)*

*NOTE: This happens six weeks before the novel, but whether it is just before or just after ANH depends on how long after ANH the novel takes place, and there is no way to pin that down any more accurately than that it is between Star Duel and What Ever Happened to Jabba the Hut? from the Marvel series.

37 Days BBY

- Ariq Joanson goes to visit Eyvind and learns that he will be marrying Ariela very soon. Ariela and Ariq convince Eyvind to invite the Jawas to the wedding as a sign of peace. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Drawing the Maps of Peace: The Moisture Farmer’s Tale)*

*NOTE: This event is 35 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).

Drawing the Maps of Peace: The Moisture Farmer’s Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: M. Shayne Bell)

*NOTE: This event is 35 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).

Day 15: Eyvind and Ariela

37 – 20 Days BBY

* Around this time, amateur slicer Hunter Maas of the Sendavé Shared Interest Collective manages to steal Essio Galassian’s information about the hyperspace weapon on Seymartis V from Galassian’s private workstation. The data is then wiped, robbing Rebel spy Scarlet Hark of a chance to steal it. In retaliation for this betrayal by unknown parties, Galassian has his entire household staff killed and the staff droids’ minds wiped and reprogrammed. Scarlet and her droid ally, CZ-33, hidden among the household staff, must make a quick escape. They spend the next three weeks making their way across the surface of the planet. As for Hunter, he is briefly detained by Imperial authorities, and a report of this arrest will wind up at the Imperial Intelligence Service Center on Cioran.*

*NOTE: This assumes Honor Among Thieves is sometime just before the six month post-ANH mark, based on its references in relation to Hoth. This is seven months before that novel.

* According to Imperial HoloVision, Rebel uprising takes place on Gerrard V, but is short lived, as Imperial forces led by Admiral Jion Trynn arrive and strike down the Rebel forces. (Exact date of report via Imperial HoloVision: 35:2:13)

*NOTE: Summary provided by Luke Van Horn. This is "weeks" before ANH, but it may not fit with continuity as established since that time, unless Biggs is serving on a merchant ship as part of his Academy training.

* Biggs Darklighter sends a letter to Luke Skywalker. He writes about working on a merchant ship and encourages Luke to go to the Academy as soon as he can, or he’ll be stuck on Tatooine forever. He also asks Luke to keep the letter confidential, promising to explain why the next time he sees Luke.*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.

* Independent Traders’ Infonet reports that the gladiator droid market is booming. (Exact date of report via Independent Traders’ Infonet: 35:2:17)

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.

* Cynabar’s InfoNet reports that Ithorian Shamarok Flitters are in fashion on Lianna. (Exact date of report via Cynabar’s InfoNet: 35:2:19)

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.

* The first segment of what will come to be called the Second Battle of Ord Biniir takes place. A group of Rebel Alliance Y-wings manages to defeat the Imperial 223rd Fighter Group and take Ord Biniir. Retaliation is soon to come.*

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.

*NOTE: Summary provided by Luke Van Horn. This is "weeks" before ANH, but it may not fit with continuity as established since that time, unless Biggs is serving on a merchant ship as part of his Academy training.

* Grizz Frix, a human born on Devaron, impresses a Sullustan recruiter for the Rebel Alliance with his natural piloting skills. He is posted on the Independence and shows great promise in his pilot training. Unfortunately, during a mission over Gerrard V, he collides with another starfighter and is taken off the roster of starfighter pilots, reassigned to Support Services escorting barges and cargo ships.*

NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.

*NOTE: Summary provided by Luke Van Horn. This is "weeks" before ANH, but it may not fit with continuity as established since that time, unless Biggs is serving on a merchant ship as part of his Academy training.

* Cynabar’s InfoNet reports that Ithorian Shamarok Flitters are in fashion on Lianna. (Exact date of report via Cynabar’s InfoNet: 35:2:19)

*NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.

* The first segment of what will come to be called the Second Battle of Ord Biniir takes place. A group of Rebel Alliance Y-wings manages to defeat the Imperial 223rd Fighter Group and take Ord Biniir. Retaliation is soon to come.*

NOTE: This entry was submitted by Luke Van Horn. I have placed it here due to the Gerrard V connection.
Baron Fel" via TimeTales, paraphrased)

- Crimson Jack discovers a badly-damaged Star Destroyer left from the Rebel Alliance’s first major victory. After taking out a few TIE fighters and boarding the vessel, Jack’s men take out the crew and make the Star Destroyer into their own personal pirate vessel.*
  (Conjecture based on Doomworld!)*

*NOTE: This could happen anywhere around whatever we are to believe is the Rebel Alliance’s first “big victory.” Given that the crawl to ANH suggests that they have just won their first victory (or first major victory, I suppose), I’m putting it here. It may be anywhere between the Alliance’s founding and ANH.

- About six weeks prior to the mission to Kamino, Fallon Pollo finds his “big score” mission as a bounty hunter and mercenary. It will take him a month to complete the job.*
  (Conjecture based on Firefight)*

*NOTE: I am working under the assumption that Firefight is only a few weeks, at most, after ANH. That would mean that his return to hunting is shortly prior to Firefight, his retirement was about two weeks before that (even more shortly after ANH), and his big score that took a month would then have started sometime just a few short weeks prior to ANH. This is all somewhat conjectural, though, as we don’t know exactly when Firefight definitely takes place.

Galaxy Guide 1: A New Hope [continued] (RPG: Grant Boucher & Paul Sudlow)

Wish You Were Here

20 Days BBY

- Ariq Joanson’s fellow moisture farmers come to see him and tell him to stop giving water to the Tusken Raiders and suing for peace. Ariela defends him, and the matter is put aside for another day. (To be continued below . . . )*
  (Drawing the Maps of Peace: The Moisture Farmer’s Tale)*

*NOTE: This event is 18 days before Ariq witnesses Luke and Obi-Wan in the Mos Eisley Cantina, which is the morning of 35:3:6, two days before the Battle of Yavin (35:3:8).

Day 32: Some Neighbors Pay Me a Visit

20 – 12 Days BBY

- BoShek breaks Han Solo’s Kessel Run record in the Infinity.
  (Conjecture based on At the Crossroads: The Spacer’s Tale)

- Imperial agent Captain Alcarz is sent to Asta to root out possible rebel sympathizers among the miners.*
  (Conjecture based on Operation Norcomm or Asta la Vista Baby)*

*NOTE: This is at least a week or more before the story, which I’ve set shortly after ANH.

- Emperor Palpatine, even as he prepares for the next step in the conversion of the galaxy into a dictatorship, is planning ahead even further. While the Moffs and planetary governors are about to take power over the regions of the Empire, Palpatine’s own Dark Side Adepts are being trained in secret on Byss to eventually replace them. When the people of the Empire are completely brought under the Emperor’s iron grip and all resistance is crushed, the Dark Side Adepts will take over, unleashing various horrors (being prepared at Byss) upon the galaxy, and bringing everything under Palpatine’s direct control.
  (Conjecture based on The Dark Side Sourcebook via TimeTales, verbatim)

- On Coruscant, Darth Vader practices his lightsaber skills against a team of excellent stormtrooper marksmen, a clone regiment meant to be part of Moff Kadir’s personal guard. Instead, Vader informs Kadir that they are to be placed on Wilhuff Tarkin’s transport. Kadir is approached by Grand Moff Trachta, who informs him that he will be sent for . . . Shortly thereafter, Trachta meets with Emperor Palpatine, who requires a regiment of his excellent soldiers to accompany him to the Death Star soon. After the meeting, Vader (who is experiencing memories of his youth, first from before he took the Jedi tests) meets with Palpatine and is given a mission. Meanwhile, Trachta meets with the man in charge of the actual preparation of the stormtroopers, Carsan, but once the stormtroopers are in Trachta’s hands, he has them kill Carsan. As Vader sets out on his mission to discover the identity of a Jedi spotted on Dargulli (a mission he does not wish to undertake, as he feels he is only now beginning to master the Dark Side under Sidious), Trachta meets with several others, including General Skosef, Gauer, Bartam, and the “sent for” Moff Kadir. They intend to keep Vader from ever returning to Coruscant, thereby allowing them the ability to use the loyal stormtroopers that Trachta has been overseeing for ten years to overthrow the Emperor and save the Empire from the forthcoming Sith theocracy that will emerge if the Senate is dissolved as planned. Aboard the Mathayus, Vader punishes Admiral Cov, the vessel’s commanding officer, for questioning the mission, allowing himself the chance to be introduced to the 1st officer (Atali) and 2nd officer (Dezsetes . . . one of the conspirators).

Back on Coruscant, Trachta suggests that Kadir keep an eye on Bartam, who may not be trustworthy, so Kadir speaks to Bartam, suggesting that he be a bit more respectful to Trachta. Back on the Mathayus, Vader (who has been daydreaming about a promise not to fail Padmé just before Shmi Skywalker’s funeral) is informed that they have located a Rebel rendezvous point at Yorn Skot. Vader allows them to deviate from their mission to wipe out the Rebels, even as, on Coruscant, Gauer and Bartam begin to conspire against Trachta. Aboard the Mathayus, the Imperials prepare to board the Rebel ship, which is pulled into the docking bay. When they do, though, it explodes. Vader barely makes it back inside the Star Destroyer. It appears that the Rebels managed to get to another ship and left this one as a trap. Vader orders the Mathayus after the new Rebel ship. On Coruscant, Palpatine prepares to leave via a small shuttle. Several stormtroopers aboard, though, blow up the shuttle before the Emperor can board. Back in space. Vader has the Rebel vessel destroyed. Now both Sith Lords have a sense of confidence in seeing their enemies’ plans foiled. In response to the assassination attempt on Coruscant, many more stormtroopers are ordered to guard the palace . . . and order Trachta fills with his loyal troopers, while the other half of his contingent waits patiently . . . aboard the Mathayus . . . Not all will go as planned, however. The stormtroopers on Coruscant are presented to Palpatine, but General Skosef has been apparently discovered. Trachta takes him aside. Aboard the Mathayus, Admiral Cov is killed by his own first officer, Atali, who now looks identical to Cov. The first officer, acting as the Admiral, tells Vader (who is lost in thought about a conversation he and Obi-Wan had about missing Qui-Gon and the nature of fatherhood) that they have reached Dargulli, to which Vader heads alone in his TIE Advanced starfighter. Elsewhere, Gauer is killed by an assassin, who is himself killed. At about the same time, Trachta blasts a droid that is about to assassinate him, but when he gets into the corridor to see the fallen droid, the droid’s master kills him. At the palace, Moff Kadir and his troopers, including the man who killed Trachta, blast several palace stormtroopers. They enter Palpatine’s quarters to kill him, but several Guardsmen drop down, decimating the group, which is finished off by Force lightning from Palpatine. Meanwhile, on Dargulli, Vader takes on local resistance alone with his lightsaber, hoping to find a child posing as a Jedi. At a nearby cantina, several mercenaries and bounty hunters debate the merits of working for the Alliance when another comes in, announcing that Vader is there, alone, and engaging in a free-for-all with a bunch of freelancers outside. The other freelancers run outside, taking him on as well, except for Boba Fett, who actually comes to Vader’s aid with one well-placed shot. The freelancers are wiped out. Then the real target of Vader’s search appears, a woman (Sidirri, possibly) with a lightsaber and Force abilities, who hopes to convince Vader to train her as a Sith. Vader simply kills her and is done with it. Meanwhile, Palpatine applauds Moff Kadir’s guts in taking him on. Kadir reveals that Vader is facing a trap as well, and Palpatine allows him to remain alive long enough to see how it plays out. They tap into a feed to Vader, who wipes out all of the traitors’ troopers, along with their creator, but not before he can confirm that Trachta was behind it. On Coruscant, Palpatine kills Kadir. Finally reunited on Coruscant, Vader and Palpatine discuss recent events. Palpatine gives Vader a new assignment. He is to travel to meet Grand Moff Tarkin and join him for the final preparations on a certain new superweapon

*NOTE: According to Randy Stradley, the unnamed woman that wants to be trained as a Sith in this story on Dargulli was meant to be the adult version of the Padawan Sidirri from Fire Carrier. No connection was ever
- Aboard the Devastator, Imperial Captain Torn initiates a plan to assassinate Darth Vader, as Boba Fett arrives with Slave I to meet with Vader on an issue of bounties. Torn decompresses the hangar bay, killing stormtroopers. Boba returns to his ship, which is fortunate for Vader. When Vader finds himself briefly out in space, he is targeted by TIE fighters loyal to Torn, which Boba destroys. Vader then climbs around the Star Destroyer to reach the bridge, where he uses his lightsaber to cut his way in, decompressing the bridge, until he finally allows the breach to seal and life support to return, just in time to catch Torn and kill him for his insurrection. As for Boba Fett, he has earned himself a place at the top of a very short list of bounty hunters that Vader will use in the future.*

(The Assassination of Darth Vader)*

*NOTE: We have no indication of when this takes place, other than that it is shortly before ANH. The fact that Boba Fett and Vader are on good terms, though, suggests that this is perhaps after Betrayal, which would fit nicely with the idea that Vader could be en route to meet with Tarkin when this event takes place aboard the Devastator. This is the Free Comic Book Day 2013 comic.

- The raid on Ylesia goes forward. Han Solo, Bria Tharen, Chewbacca, Lando Calrissian, Jarik Solo, Muuwrgh, Mrrov, and the Rebels and smugglers work as a unified force, but find themselves on Ylesia just after Jabba the Hutt’s assassins have killed all of the Priests except Teroenza, and Black Sun’s Nova Force, sent by Xizor as a favor to Durga the Hutt is prowling the grounds. The battle is a mess, but a success. Bria and Han are nearly killed by Teroenza, but Boba Fett appears, kills Teroenza for priority bounty, and leaves. With the battle over, losses are assessed. Mrrov has lost an eye and possibly a hand. Worst of all, Jarik Solo is dead. Han prepares to get the profits that were promised to him and the smugglers, but finds that Bria has turned on the smugglers, saying that only Han will receive some of the profits, assuming she goes with him. He agrees for a moment, but she takes all of the profit for the Rebellion. Han says his last hurtful goodbyes to Bria as she leaves him both with very little credit and as the black sheep among the pissed off smugglers. (As a result of the raid, it should be noted, Durga’s Black Sun-hired forces not only did Durga’s dirty work against the rebellious t’landa Ti, but also helped wreck the colonies in the battle, which means that Durga is now unable to pay back his debt to Xizor, which puts him in the Dark Prince’s debt.) Before leaving Ylesia, Chewbacca and Han discover some children of the pilgrims and take them with them to eventually get them to safety. En route to safety, they are called to make a spice run from Kessel for Jabba. During the trip, they are about to be taken by Imperials, and Han and the kids dump the spice, planning to pick it back up later. The Imperials escort them to Corellia to drop off the kids, though, so by the time they return, the spice is gone. Jabba is none too pleased and he gives Han ten days to repay him. They go to Nar Shaddaa, hoping to get some favors called in to make enough to pay Jabba, but they are unsuccessful. Upon visiting Lando, Han discovers that, as a result of the Ylesian double-cross, Lando holds a tremendous grudge against Han, which will last until he rethinks Han’s options in the future. Han decides that the only way he can settle things with Jabba is to go to Tatooine to speak to him in person. (To be continued below . . . )*

(Rebel Dawn)*

*NOTE: I base the time of Lando’s grudge being resolved on the fact that, although Lando is friendly enough (at times) during The Empire Strikes Back, it is not until Shadows of the Empire that we know for certain that the grudge is gone. That being the case, the rift isn’t closed until Han is freed from Jabba’s palace, right before the Battle of Endor in Return of the Jedi.

- Teel Kkak and his fellow Jawas discover a downed ship on Tatooine, inside of which is a deadly rancor. Bib Fortuna and Biddo Kwerve decide to purchase the rancor as a gift for Jabba, and purchase the monster-keeper Malakili from the Circus Horrificus to care for it. They present it to Jabba, and Bib is made Jabba’s majordomo, while Kwerve becomes the creature’s first victim. (To be continued below . . . )

(A Boy and His Monster: The Rancor Keeper’s Tale)

- On Druckenwell, L’att Armament has created an advanced energy shielding technology that can make stormtroopers (or any wearer) virtually impervious to blaster fire. When Moff Eisen Kerioth arrives to see a demonstration, Strephan, Augusta, and Tinian I’att, Wrlevegevbev, and Daye Azur-Jamin attend. Kerioth makes Tinian wear the armor for the test, but it works just as it was supposed to. Kerioth, who has been developing a similar device on his own, shut down the plant, telling them that they must come with him. (He intends to sell the device to the Empire as his own invention.) The elder I’atts don’t agree with the necessity of going with Kerioth, so he has them executed. As Daye escapes, Tinian (in the armor) and Wrrl escape as well. The Imperials chase both, but, as Day makes his way to the plant’s generator to destroy the plant and its information, Tinian and Wrrl are pursued as they try to escape the compound. Wrrl stays behind and fulfills his Life Debt to the I’atts by covering Tinian’s escape. She makes it out of the compound and takes vital parts to the armor with her into the nearest city. The enters the Happy’s Landing bar where she sits dazed, until Twilit Hearth and her band help her pretend to be their lead singer until pursuing Imperials leave the premises. Elsewhere, the I’att Armament plant explodes. The band then agrees to help Tinian offworld, with the armor parts attached to their instruments to hide them. Daye, who had escaped before his sabotage caused the plant to explode, can only watch Tinian leave, knowing that it is better that she not know he is still alive.

(Tinian on Trial)

Labria learns that Figrin D’an and the Modal Nodes are playing for Jabba the Hutt and turns in a merc Jabba wants taken down, Obron Metto, in hopes of being allowed to stay at his palace and watch the band play. He is sent away, but upon learning that the Max Rebo Band (Evar Orbus and His Galactic Wailers, technically) is set to play at Lady Valarian’s wedding, he goes to see Valarian and convinces her to offer the job to Figrin D’an and the Modal Nodes, which will allow him to see the band play. (To be continued below . . . )

(Empire Blues: The Devaronian’s Tale)

On an Outer Rim world, a group of Mistryl are hired by Dr. Kellering, at the urging of Dr. Eloy and the chagrin of Imperial Captain Drome, to help guard the shipment of a secret project called the “Hammertong” from the world to a new location. The group consists of Manda D’ulin, Pav D’armon, Shada D’ukal, Karoly D’ulin, Cai, and Sileen. They are told that their leader, Manda, must meet with Captain Drome and Dr. Eloy before the deal is complete. Shortly thereafter, the Mistryl are on guard (with Cai and Sileen back at their two ships ready to give air support), while Manda enters the research facility with Kellering. Once inside, they are set upon by Imperials. Pav is killed and Manda is presumed dead. Karoly and Shada make it to an Imperial Strike Cruiser and take cover inside it. They see the Hammertong, a huge cylindrical object, inside and decide to steal the ship and the object. They escape in the Strike Cruiser and head for Tatooine to lay low. As Sileen takes one ship to go get a freighter for them to transport the stolen object in, Karoly and Shada crash down in the Strike Cruiser. Cai lands nearby and makes her way to the Strike Cruiser as a sandstorm begins covering parts of it up. They decide that they can’t wait for Sileen and the freighter. They’ll have to go to Mos Eisley to hire a transport to get away with one of the multiple modular pieces of the Hammertong. (To be continued below . . . )

(Hammertong: The Tale of the “Tonnika Sisters”)

Feltipern Trevagg senses the presence of Obi-Wan Kenobi in Mos Eisley on Tatooine.

(conjecture based on Nightlily: The Lover’s Tale)

Knowing that Figrin D’an and the Modal Nodes have an exclusive contract with Jabba the Hutt, Labria informs Jabba the Hutt of their playing at Lady Valarian’s wedding, knowing that when the wedding is crashed by Jabba’s goons and Imperial security officers, the band will be in trouble, and thus will accept a well-timed job offer from his friend Wuher. (To be continued below . . . )

(Empire Blues: The Devaronian’s Tale)

Knowing full well that they have an exclusive contract with Jabba the Hutt, Figrin Da’n has gotten Figrin Da’n and the Modal Nodes a gig playing Lady Valarian’s wedding. When the wedding ends and the reception begins, D’Wopp is tricked into taking a job from Jabba out of honor, which prompts Valarian to get slightly pissed. As such, the Whiphids each square off and the reception becomes a full-scale riot. The band escapes, helping Wuher escape as well. Knowing they can’t return to Jabba’s Palace and that they don’t have the money to leave Tatooine, Wuher introduces them to Chalmun and they begin playing at Chalmun’s Cantina.

(We Don’t Do Weddings: The Band’s Tale)

On Tatooine, Momaw Nadon has been growing a small grove of bafforr trees, hoping to one day plant them outside Mos Eisley to repopulate them on the world. When an Imperial garrison discovers the grove, the contact their commander, Ingah Muloha. Seeking to stop Nadon’s work, which they see as subversive, the Imperials contact Gamorrean criminal Centa Sonhan, whose goons create false charges against Nadon. When Nadon races to protect the trees, he is captured by Sonhan and taken to the Imperials. A group of Rebels, hoping to gain Nadon’s help, moves to save him. They learn from Ladira, a double-agent, where Sonhan’s most recent base is. They race into the Jundland Wastes to intercept Sonhan’s sail barge, which they board. In a firefight that ends in having to avoid a sandstorm and a krayt dragon, the heroes manage to save Nadon, allowing his work to continue and making him once more a friend of the Rebellion.

(The Storm’s Edge)

- Having made a deal with Hagk Baht to buy weapons for the Rebel Alliance, a group of Rebels is stranded inside Tosche Station on Tatooine when a major sandstorm hits the area, and Hagk is apparently caught out in it. They must stay inside, while dealing with a felon trying to escape the Empire, a spice smuggler trying to get them to take the spice so he isn’t caught with it, Luke Skywalker’s friend Fixer . . . and a squad of sandtroopers also seeking shelter. When questions are raised as to the identities of the Rebels, who are new faces to those inside, an unluckily timed distress call from Hagk alerts the troopers to their activities as either Rebels or smugglers and a firefight ensues. The Rebels win the day, but upon leaving after the storm, they find Hagk’s Singing Savrip wrecked. Hagk is dead, but the cargo is intact. They hate to effectively steal the cargo they were planning to purchase from the dead man, but this is war, after all, and was is rarely pretty.

(A Night at Tosche Station)

- En route to Tatooine, Han Solo and Chewbacca encounter the bounty hunter Czethros, but escape. Czethros is sent to Kessel.*

*NOTE: This happens around this time, so having it be en route to Tatooine lets it fit without fouling up Rebel Dawn’s storyline.

- During an uprising on the planet Kalaan, Imperial Cattena Squad (including honorary troopers Brenn and Dellis Tantor) is struck a major blow by the deaths of its ranking officers. Brenn, though, is able to take command and win the day. As a result, Brenn is promoted to Lieutenant under a new commanding officer, General Malcor Brashin, who sends him to train with Captain Beri Tulon on Tatooine. On Tatooine, Brenn and Dellis are placed with Zeta Squad, Captain Terrik’s command . . . (To be continued below . . . )

(Force Commander)

- On Tatooine, two Hutts—Embra and Malta—visit with Jabba the Hutt. They are discussing the merits of their various business strategies. Jabba is a supporter of manipulation, Embra of honesty, and Malta of brute force. Their servants, Bib Fortuna, Farquill, and Jozzel, respectively, discuss their various masters. Jozzel has a strong desire to leave Malta’s employ to seek her own fortune. She suggests to the Hutts a wager. Garindan has brought information regarding a man named Illyan Webble, who has apparently discovered the location of the Yavin Vassilika, a statue carved from a single huge corusca gem. The items is priceless, and the madman may hold the key to finding it. She suggests that the Hutts each send three, and only three, people to seek out the object, with the winner keeping the valuable artifact and thus proving that his business strategy is superior. The Hutts accept the proposal. In Mos Eisley on Tatooine, a short time later, Holgurn, in Jabba’s employ, makes contact with Han Solo and Chewbacca, who have recently arrived on Tatooine. Holgurn tells Han that the item Jabba wants him to help seek out was stolen from Jabba’s library, and that Jabba will pay 50,000 credits (10,000 up front and 40,000 on delivery) for the recapture of the item, which (according to rules laid down by the Hutts, of course) must be delivered to the Hutt on Nar Shaddaa. Han is wary, given how many enemies he has recently made on the moon, but agrees anyway. Han (no, Chewie isn’t coming along on this one, at least not as an official part of the team, apparently) is Jabba’s first operative. On Nar Shaddaa, Bib Fortuna saves Lando Calrissian from being killed by an angry gambler. Bib pays the gambler the money Lando owes, and offers Lando the job of seeking out the Yavin Vassilika for Jabba. Lando agrees to take part in the search for 100,000 credits. Jabba’s team now has Han and Lando, who, by the way, are at odds. In the Jundland Wastes on Tatooine, Malta has called upon IG-88, Bossk, and Dengar. They are each promised 50,000 credits for their participation, plus Malta will match the bounty on any of the other competitors. Outside, the hunters are approached by Jozzel, who has offered another deal. They are to go on as Malta wishes, but instead of giving Malta the Vassilika, they are to give it to Jozzel for 300,000 credits, and Jozzel will give them a fake, which they can give to Malta to collect their fees from Malta. The hunters are up for the double-cross. Elsewhere, Embra has called upon Zuckuss, 4-LOM, and a tracker named Sardu Sallowe. They are all concerned that Jabba has only seemed to have contacted two members for his team, but leave Embra, assured that they will know soon enough who the other member of Jabba's team is. Out in the mainstream of Nar Shaddaa, Holgurn mentions to Greedo that Han Solo, who has just arrived with Chewie, is taking on a job for Jabba, even when he's been effectively blackballed. Greedo believes that he is the man for the job. Back on Tatooine, Jabba greets the third expected member of his team, Boba Fett. On Kalkovak, Han and Chewie discover that Webble can be found in the Quarren sector of Crevasse City. At about the same time, Malta's team arrives, soon learning the same information. Jozzel also arrives, followed closely by Greedo. It would seem that Jozzel is actually named "Moffett" and is working for an employer known as the Collector to retrieve the Vassilika. Lando has also arrived, and narrowly misses being seen by Boba Fett. In the Quarren Sector, Han and Chewbacca discover Greedo following them, and then the three of them run into Bossk, IG-88, and Dengar. Han and Chewie had just discovered that Webble had left for Mon Calamari, but now the others know it too, including the Embra team, who had one of Sardu's Jawas spying on them all. In a market, Lando is propositioned by Jozzel/Moffett. She hopes to make him trade alliances to her side. Elsewhere, Dengar, Bossk, and IG-88 are chasing Han, Chewie, and Greedo, guns blazing, when they come across Boba Fett, who gets caught in the crossfire. As Han, Chewie, and Greedo escape, they bump into Jozzel and Lando (who is none too happy to see Han). They are all forced to escape together on the Millennium Falcon, with the Malta team in hot pursuit in the Hound's Tooth... with Boba Fett in hot pursuit of both. The Falcon group arrives on Mon Calamari, just after Zuckuss' group. Jozzel repeats her offer of riches and a forgery for Jabba to Han, annoying Lando. Han, Lando, and company discover that Webble stole a skiff and ran toward where "lessor beings" supposedly go mad. They take a skiff after Webble anyway, followed closely by Zuckuss' team. They are disabled by a charge planet on their skiff, and are left by Zuckuss' group. Next, they go underwater, where everyone is hearing insane voices, but discover Webble's body, and hear his spirit telling them where the Vassilika is located. Upon returning to the surface, they find that Dengar, Bossk, and IG-88 have taken control of their skiff, but when Fett shows up and is a distraction, Chewie rigs the skiff to blow and the "good guys" escape in the trio's skiff. As they escape, Fett gives the trio a blast from his engines before escaping. As Fett leaves, the trio begin to hear the voices too. In space, Jozzel sorts out the sides in the race for Han and the others, even as Zuckuss, 4-LOM, and Sardu beat them to the target planet. As Han's team lands, Zuckuss' team finds a tribe of beings that appear to be descendants of Barundi. When 4-LOM tries to take the vassilika from them, they attack, forcing a retreat. A short time later, Han's team, hounded by jungle creatures, enters the village. When Jozzel tries to take the vassilika, they are all attacked and captured, except Jozzel. Near the ships, Zuckuss, Sardu, 4-LOM, and Sardu's annoying Jawas are attacked by Boba Fett. Fett, it seems, doesn't want the vassilika. He wants Han. Elsewhere, Jozzel contacts the Collector to tell him she'll soon have the vassilika, but she is found by Dengar, Bossk, and IG-88, who are ready to kill her for betrayal, but she offers them an even higher pay if they still help her get the vassilika. Back in the village, 4-LOM and the captured members of Han's team are all about to be beaten to death by flowers (yeah, they have poison tips to the flowers, but being beaten to death by flowers is just too undignified for Greedo...). They are saved when their makeshift hut/cell is cut into by someone they hope is Jozzel. It turns out, though, that their "savior" is Boba Fett. But Fett really is their savior, because he has dumped his Besaidii contract and gone with Jabba's, which was to protect Han. So, Han, Chewie, Greedo, Lando, and Boba Fett head off to get the Vassilika, while Dengar, Jozzel, Bossk, and IG-88 find themselves attacked by jungle creatures and forced into the village, where both the creatures and the villagers want to kill them. Above, Zuckuss and Sardu stand ready to create a distraction, but the situation with Jozzel and the others nixes any need for it. Han goes for the Vassilika, but one of Sardu’s Jawas gets to it first. The Jawa is tripped by Jozzel, who takes the Vassilika, but a blast from Boba Fett sends she and Han reeling. When the smoke clears, IG-88, Bossk, and Dengar are in a standoff with Fett, while the Jawas carry off 4-LOM. Lando tends to Han, and Sardu and Zuckuss make their way to join them. But where is Jozzel, you ask? She’s stolen the Millennium Falcon and the Vassilika and taken off to rendezvous with “The Collector” on Yavin IV. It turns out that the Collector is actually a Rebel Alliance commander (maybe Jan Dodonna, but it’s hard to tell with this art). Jozzel meets the Collector, a female Rebel, and two other Rebels, turning over the Vassilika for the fake one she can give to her master. Han and the others arrive, though, and stop the transaction, just as Han recognizes the female Rebel—Bria Tharen. Dengar tries to take the Vassilika, but Zuckuss has placed a bounty for Dengar and Bossk, which turns IG-88 against them. As IG-
88 hunts them down, Zuckuss takes the fake Vassilika, then loses it, and then watches as a Jawa steals it. Meanwhile, Lando, Chewie, Han, and Fett race after Bria, looking to settle their score over the spice raid. They corner the Rebels only to discover that they never wanted the Vassilika itself, but a key inside. The Collector breaks it, revealing the key to the largest Massassi Temple on the moon, which the Rebels need as a base of operations.
Elsewhere, Greedo stops the Jawa, but then has the fake Vassilika stolen by Jozzel, who is then shot by Farqul Ban’n, who had been tracking her. He gets away with the fake Vassilika, paying Zuckuss and Sardu for their efforts on Embra’s behalf. Deeper in the jungle, the Rebels help Han, Chewie, and Lando catch Dengar and Bossk, allowing them to, presumably, try to collect the bounty placed on them, as means of repayment for the Vassilika and the spice job. But, as everyone is well aware, this doesn’t even begin to settle tings between Han and Bria. A short time later, our story ends as Farqul has a stash of credits from selling the fake Vassilika and is lounging on a beach when Fett finds him and takes the money to Jabba. In the end, Jabba has won the day, in a manner of speaking.”

(Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika)*

*NOTE: Yes, it has its continuity issues, depending on your point of view, but the series is considered in-continuity, so it is included here, in its entirety. Now, this series has raised several doubts about whether or not it can fit into the Official Continuity. It has raised so many doubts, in fact, that a letter was printed in the second issue’s letters page addressing that very issue. The response from the staff was as follows. “We do try and keep track of all the different stories and reference books out there and make things fit together when possible . . .
However, I [Dave Land] don’t think this should limit us from telling fun and imaginative stories, which might not fit so nicely in with existing continuity, from time to time.” This can be taken as either meaning that it doesn’t fit nicely, but is part of the Official Continuity anyway, or that it’s of the same vein as almost everything in the Star Wars Tales series, i.e. written off as Apocrypha. Based on Lucasfilm’s most recent continuity policy (of inclusion rather than exclusion wherever possible), I’m including it. In theory, it could take place just before Han’s arrival on Tatooine in the last non-Epilogue chapter in Rebel Dawn, since it says that they arrived on Tatooine “hours ago,” which could mean they were there, gone on the Yavin Vassilika mission, then had just arrived back from that mission hours ago. This would still put the events within the period that the Ylesian debacle was before it, but Jabba’s “10 days” still remained in effect. This would mean, though, that the stories are highly compressed in terms of duration, but what else is new? It does not account for the fact that Han and Lando are here side-by-side, though. However, unlike how the reader portrayed the situation in the Underworld letters page, Lando did not say he’d kill Han next time he saw him. What he actually said in Rebel Dawn was “We’ve been friends in the past, so I’m not going to do what you so richly deserve and blow your head off. But don’t ever come near me again!” That’s not nearly the same as saying “Next time I see you, your ass is grass,” and Lando certainly references the “betrayal” several times in the story. The same reader commented that the Essential Chronology says that the Ylesian incident was the last time that Lando and Han saw each other until ESB. I have scoured that book, even using the index (which I’m loathe to do with such things, as they’re never as thorough as I’d like), and have yet to find any reference to such a comment. The only comments I have found regard Lando not wanting to see him again. At any rate, despite the pains in the ass presented by the mini-series, and despite the somewhat informed, possibly also misinformed Underworld reader, I am still including this story in the Official Continuity until LFL specifically deems it Apocryphal.

• Jin-Jin wins almost half a million credits in the Arenas of Mepha’s Prime. He invests it in real estate on Alderaan.

(conjecture based on Smugglers of the Outer Rim)

• Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, a secret Imperial research base on Kamino is abandoned.*

(conjecture based on Firefight)

*NOTE: I am only assuming this is just before ANH. The initial Rebel Force novels suggest that they take place mere weeks after ANH, but later books make it sound as though it is “months” after. I believe the former over the latter, which would make this event, which is one month before Firefight, the fourth Rebel Force book, must be shortly before ANH. If the books are actually months after ANH, which I don’t believe is likely, then this event would be shortly after ANH, rather than shortly before.

- By this time, the stygium crystals on Aeten II have been depleted, making the creation of further stygium crystal cloaking devices (like that on Darth Maul’s Scimitar) nearly impossible. (conjecture based on The New Essential Guide to Weapons and Technology)
- During his brief moments away from fretting about Han Solo, Greedo is approached Chalmun’s Cantina by a woman named Nima Maas, who wants him to help her find her boss, Temo Dionisio, who has gone missing. She pays him in advance, and he goes to Kabe for information. Kabe points him to Wuher, who points him to Nok Derrick. At Derrick’s, Greedo is attacked, knocked out, and robbed. He awakes, buys a blaster from a Jawa, and heads for Derrick’s hovel on Terk Street. Once there, he encounters a Gamorrean, who nearly kills him when the blaster misfires. He does end up defeating the dimwitted Gamorrean and discovers Temo being tortured for information by Derrick, who is working with the Imperials. Greedo knocks Derrick out with a timed thermal detonator and gets Temo out before it explodes. Outside, Greedo turns Temo over to Nima, who turns out to be yet another Imperial. Her job is to bring Temo in, but she was put off track when Derrick got to him first. Greedo simply lets her have him, but when he turns to leave, she decides she must kill Greedo to eliminate him as a witness. Greedo stabs her in the throat with a holdout knife and proceeds on his way—he has a Jawa he needs to talk to about a certain blaster . . .

  (The Hovel on Terk Street)

- Dannen Lifehold and Purr meet with Lifehold’s friend Krell, an Alliance agent, on Alderaan and agree to transport a shipment of bacta supplies to a Rebel cell on Rafft, though he still wants nothing official to do with the Alliance. (To be continued below . . . )

  (Changing the Odds)

- Shortly before the Battle of Yavin, Scarlet Hark and CZ-33 emerge from hiding on Tyybann, finding that Essio Galassian has lost interest in finding these escapees from his household staff and taken his personal Star Destroyer off on a new mission. He is, in fact, heading for Seymarti V (or on an investigation that will lead him there at its end), seeking the K’kybak hyperspace weapon. Scarlet and CZ-33 will slowly work their way to Cioran in the Saavin system, where Imperial records of Hunter Maas’ arrest can be found in an Imperial Intelligence Service Center. *

  (conjecture based on Honor Among Thieves)*

  *NOTE: This assumes Honor Among Thieves is sometime just before the six month post-ANH mark, based on its references in relation to Hoth. This is seven months before that novel.

- As the Empire occupies Raltiir, Pharl McQuarrie leaves the world to get aid from the Rebel Alliance.

  (conjecture based on Who’s Who in Echo Base)

- According to Boba Fett (while posing as Eanjer Kunarazti), it is around this time when Black Sun, under orders from sector chief Avrak Villachor, assaults Eanjer and his father, who has refused to sell his business, Polestar Imports, to Black Sun. In the assault, an explosion kills Eanjer’s father and wounds Eanjer to the point that he needs prosthetics for his eye, one hand, and more. (Given that the real Eanjer is already dead, and the prosthetics that Boba wears to impersonate Eanjer later are only designed to conceal his identity and weapons, it is in doubt as to whether Boba (as Eanjer) was actually with the real Eanjer’s father when this takes place. However, Villachor does come into possession of the family’s credit tabs, which suggests that Eanjer’s father does indeed die in a raid that obtains the credit tabs, even if no one was with him at the time.) *

  (conjecture based on Scoundrels)*

  *NOTE: This happens three weeks before the novel, but whether it is just before or just after ANH depends on how long after ANH the novel takes place, and there is no way to pin that down any more accurately than that it is between Star Duel and What Ever Happened to Jabba the Hut? from the Marvel series.

- On the planet Raltiir, the Empire has begun to crack down on Rebel Alliance activity. Among the troops who hit a Rebel “ammo dump” (actually a med center) in the town of Ettam is clone stormtrooper TK-622. He remains a loyal servant to Commander Akobi, whose life he saved two years earlier. As the Rebels are rounded up, Akobi intends on fulfilling his promise of restoring power to the area’s citizens as a show of Imperial trustworthiness before leaving the world with his troops to be stationed on the Death Star. Before they can leave, though, sabotage almost kills Akobi. Again, TK-622 saves his life. (To be continued below . . . )

(What Sin Loyalty?)

- A short while after the end of Operation Strike Fear, Keyan Farlander gets a new wingman, Lieutenant Cardacs. Their first mission together is to rescue prisoners from transports at Stars’ End, the infamous prison, where a friend of Cardacs is being held. The mission is a success, but Cardacs is killed, which his friend, Captain Samuel Raider, holds against Keyan personally. When the next mission comes up and it turns out that Raider is in charge, he picks Keyan for the mission to get some payback and put him in harm’s way. Luckily, the mission (which is to save Wookiee slaves being transported to a major Imperial construction project) is a success. Another man has died (Toalagar, one of the Stars’ End rescues), but Raider no longer holds a grudge against Keyan. They become friends, after a fashion. When Keyan’s next mission results in the deaths of two wingmen, Tan’tro and Ashmar, he is temporarily grounded, even as Hamo Blastwell returns from assignment with a promotion to Commander that he refuses to offer details about. After a couple of missions without wingmen, Keyan is off the restricted duty list. Around that time, Mon and other Rebel leaders come aboard the Independence. When Mon Mothma sees him, she suggests that he do as she hinted a long time before, that he find someone to train him in the Force. She also tells him that her “aide,” Lynia, does have a thing for him. He then spends some more time with Lynia. Later, after a warded-off ambush in the Cron Drift, Keyan and company must save a stranded X-wing pilot in the Cron Drift, which carries vital intelligence. Over the next few days, amid dreams that seem to suggest being torn between the Dark and Light Sides of the Force, Keyan’s next mission ends up disabling the Imperial Star Destroyer Intrepid, which allows a second mission to destroy the Star Destroyer itself. In the battle, though, Keyan’s close friend Sunnar Jan-lo is gravely injured, left in a bacta tank to heal over several days.

(To be continued below . . . )

(The Farlander Papers)

*NOTE: I’m listing this story under the title of the novella that was expanded upon in the X-wing Official Strategy Guide to create an overall fiction story to go with the game strategies. Most of the events, though, were originally covered in the X-wing computer game. (It’s just easier to merge the story and present it as one tale, rather than trying to split it up, which would get really, really ugly.) For the record, the game also uses Crix Madine prior to his defection, so we have to assume that is an error. The pilot in the Cron Drift is also Biggs Darklighter, though he has not yet defected at this point, which suggests that this is also an error. Oh, and they are rescuing prisoners from Stars’ End prison here, which must have been rebuilt or something, given that it was pretty much wiped out during Han Solo at Stars’ End.

Rogue Squadron (video game series: LucasArts)
Rogue Squadron (video game: LucasArts)
  Bonus Levels
  Beggar’s Canyon
Rogue Leader (video game: LucasArts)
  Tatooine Training*

*NOTE: This is just a tutorial session that takes place before the game’s other “regular” levels. As such, it has no summary above.
  Rebel Strike (video game: LucasArts)
  Tatooine Training*

*NOTE: This is just a tutorial session that takes place before the game’s other “regular” levels. As such, it has no summary above.

Betrayal [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie)
  Betrayal, Part I [continued] (comic: Scott Allie)
  Betrayal, Part II (comic: Scott Allie)
  Betrayal, Part III [continued] (comic: Scott Allie)
  Betrayal, Part IV (comic: Scott Allie)

The Assassination of Darth Vader (comic: Brian Wood)
The Assassination of Darth Vader (comic: Brian Wood)

Empire [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie & Randy Stradley & John Wagner & Paul Chadwick & Paul Alden & Jeremy Barlow & Welles Hartley & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews
& John Jackson Miller)
Yavin Base (canceled comic series: Paul Chadwick) *
  Yavin Base, Part I (canceled comic: Paul Chadwick) *
  Yavin Base, Part II (canceled comic: Paul Chadwick) *
*NOTE: This mini-series within Empire never came to exist. Consider it historical curiosity.

The Han Solo Trilogy [continued] (novel trilogy: A. C. Crispin)
Rebel Dawn [continued] (novel: A. C. Crispin)
  The Battle for Ylesia
  The Last Kessel Run
  Toprawa...and Mos Eisley

A Boy and His Monster: The Rancor Keeper's Tale (TFJP short story: Kevin J. Anderson)
A Boy and His Monster: The Rancor Keeper's Tale (TFJP short story: Kevin J. Anderson)
  Special Cargo
  The Care and Feeding of a Rancor

The Adventures of Tinian l'att (AJ/TOTBH/SWH short stories: Kathy Tyers)
Tinian on Trial (AJ4/SWH short story: Kathy Tyers)
Empire Blues: The Devaronian's Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: Daniel Keys Moran)
Empire Blues: The Devaronian's Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: Daniel Keys Moran)

Hammertong: The Tale of the "Tonnika Sisters" (TFTMEC short story: Timothy Zahn)
Hammertong: The Tale of the "Tonnika Sisters" (TFTMEC short story: Timothy Zahn)

Empire Blues: The Devaronian's Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: Daniel Keys Moran)
Empire Blues: The Devaronian's Tale [continued] (TFTMEC short story: Daniel Keys Moran)
We Don't Do Weddings: The Band's Tale (TFTMEC short story: Kathy Tyers)
We Don't Do Weddings: The Band's Tale (audio drama: John Whitman)
  We Don't Do Weddings: The Band's Tale (audio drama: John Whitman)

The Storm's Edge (RPG: Dan Kaufman)*
The Storm's Edge (RPG: Dan Kaufman)*
  The Watering Hole
  Plenty of Sunlight
  Between a Rock and a Hard Place

*NOTE: This adventure was a bonus, presented only on the Wizards of the Coast website.

A Night at Tosche Station (RPG: J. D. Wiker)*
A Night at Tosche Station (RPG: J. D. Wiker)*
  Introductions
  Sandtroopers
  The Distress Call

*NOTE: This adventure was a bonus, presented only on the Wizards of the Coast website.

Force Commander (video game: LucasArts)
Force Commander (video game: LucasArts)
  Desert Training

Boba Fett Omnibus [continued] (comic series: John Wagner & Mike Kennedy & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews & Andy Mangels)
Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika (comic series: Mike Kennedy)
  Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika, Part I (comic: Mike Kennedy)
  Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika, Part II (comic: Mike Kennedy)
  Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika, Part III (comic: Mike Kennedy)
  Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika, Part IV (comic: Mike Kennedy)
  Underworld: The Yavin Vassilika, Part V (comic: Mike Kennedy)

The Hovel on Terk Street (SWT6 short story: Tom Fassbender & Jim Pascoe)
The Hovel on Terk Street (SWT6 short story: Tom Fassbender & Jim Pascoe)

The Adventures of Dannen Lifehold [continued] (AJ/SWH short stories: Dave Marron)
Changing the Odds [flashback] (AJ3/SWH short story: Dave Marron)

Empire [continued] (comic series: Scott Allie & Randy Stradley & John Wagner & Paul Chadwick & Paul Alden & Jeremy Barlow & Welles Hartley & Ron Marz & Thomas Andrews & John Jackson Miller
The Imperial Perspective (comic series: Jeremy Barlow & Paul Alden & Welles Hartley & Ron Marz)
  What Sin Loyalty? (comic: Jeremy Barlow)
  What Sin Loyalty? (comic: Jeremy Barlow)
X-wing [continued] (video game series: Rusel DeMaria & LucasArts)
The Farlander Papers [continued] (video game: Rusel DeMaria & LucasArts)
  Tours of Duty [continued]
    The Great Search [continued]
      Rescue at Stars’ End
      Rescue Wookiee Slaves
      Attack Weapons Convoy
      Capture Stolen Freighter
      Protect Captured Satellites
      Ambush in the Cron Drift
      Protect a Disabled X-wing
      Stop Hyperdrive Replacement
      Take Out Intrepid’s Escort Ships
      Destroy the Star Destroyer Intrepid
Star Wars: Journal [continued] (youth novel series: John Peel & Jude Watson & Donna Tauscher & Todd Strasser)
The Fight for Justice by Luke Skywalker (youth novel: John Peel)
  First Entry

TO BE CONTINUED IN VOLUME 2 (A NEW HOPE AND ONWARD)
CLOSING MESSAGE

The saga we now know as Star Wars: Legends has grown so large in the years since 1976’s A New Hope novelization that the timeline for the continuity of “Legends” material must now span two different Star Wars Timeline Gold documents. To explore materials from A New Hope onward, proceed to the second document: Legends Timeline, Volume 2.